WELCOME FRESHMEN AND TRANSFER STUDENTS

'A Welcome Toast'

Editors offer "A Welcome Toast" to new and returning students. See edits, page 4.

The Daily Tar Heel

Coming Saturday

For full coverage and previews of Carolina's fall athletic teams see Saturday's DTH.

Offices in Graham Memorial — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1963 — United Press International Service

Aycock, Henderson And Berryhill Resign Posts

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

First Speaker Is Barred By Controversial Gag Law

Noted Scientist Refuses To Discuss His Politics

By GARY BLANCHARD

The maiden application of North Carolina's controversial speaker-ban law will prevent a "distinguished British scientist" from presenting scientific lectures on Consolidated University campuses as scheduled this fall, CUNC President William C. Friday revealed last week.

The scientist is Dr. John Burdon Sanderson Haldane, 71, one of the world's top living authorities in the fields of mathematics, genetics and biology.

He was invited to speak last spring by State College's Institute of Biological Sciences and interested scientific departments on the University's other two campuses, when it was learned he was coming to America for a speaking tour at universities including Cornell and Florida State this fall.

In early August a UNC faculty member interested in bringing him here, but mindful of the June 25 speaker-ban law, presented information indicating Haldane had been a member of the Commuist Party and might still be.

Under Trustee regulations governing enforcement of the so-called "gag law," which bars known Communists and persons who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking on campuses of state-supported schools, the University was obligated to determine the correctness of the information.

A letter went off to Haldane and, two weeks later, he replied.

"Matter of Principle"

Haldane said he refused to answer the questions "as a matter of principle," pointing out that his past or present political beliefs had nothing to do with his coming here to give scientific lectures.

Furthermore, he reportedly wrote, in view of the law he was cancelling his visit.

This was just as well, it was indicated, as the University had no choice under the law but to regard Haldane's refusal to answer the questions as effectively cancelling his invitation.

In confirming reports of the incident, President Friday was quick to point out that all prospective speakers don't have to be investigated under Trustee regulations—only those where "any apparent basis for doubt about the speaker" exists.

This was apparently emphasized at least partially to reassure any UNC faculty member that full-scale investigations of any variety are not in the offing, officials said.

Reaction was swift.

One of Haldane's professional colleagues, UNC Classics Professor B. L. Ullman, termed the incident "a great shame," and said "students are going to miss a lot by not being able to hear Dr. Haldane."

Ullman added: "I think the legislators were terribly misled when they passed that law. I don't want people to try to make Communists out of our students. But I don't see how this could possibly apply here.

"One can go too far and that is what the legislature did when they passed the speaker-ban rule."

Ullman met Haldane in Europe last February when both served on the newly-formed Balzan Awards Committee, similar to the Nobel Awards Commitee. The first Balzan Awards went to Pope John for Peace, Samuel Morrison for History and Paul Hindemith for Music, among others.

"I think," said Ullman, "that the whole thing concerning this rule is foolish. Matters like this should be handled by the University. The legislature should not try to run the University."

Sentiments Echoed

Other sentiments in the form of newspaper editorials around the state generally echoed Ullman's sentiments. The Raleigh Times cited N. C. State Chancellor John Caldwell's recent statement com-

(Continued on Page Five-A)

* * *

48 Groups Approved To Invite Speakers

The Office of the Dean of Student Affairs recently announced the names of 48 campus organizations authorized by the University to invite visiting speakers to the campus.

Acting Dean of Student Affairs Dr. C. O. Cathey added, however, that organizations not now listed should contact his office in South Building to gain the proper authority to invite visiting speakers to the University.

This announcement came as a direct followup to a resolution endorsed unanimously in July by the Executive Committee of the University's Board of Trustees.

The resolution stated that "the facilities of the Consolidated University shall be denied to any

(Continued on Page Five-A)

John Knowles Will Become First Writer-In-Residence

Author John Knowles will be UNC's first formal Writer-in-Residence, beginning this fall.

A former associate editor of "Holiday" magazine, Knowles is the author of two novels. A Separate Peace, published by Macmillan in 1960 for which he won three awards, and Morning at Antibes, published by Macmillan in 1962. He has also written a number of stories and articles which have appeared in the "Saturday Evening Post," "Story," "New World Writing," "Reader's Digest," and "Holiday."

As Writer-in-Residence, Knowles will teach one class in creative writing to a small number of students. He will also periodically lecture to other writing-related classes in such departments as Radio Television, and Motion Pictures, Dramatic Art and the School of Journalism.

He will have an office in the Department of English and will also participate in projects with extra-curricular groups.

An informal committee of students and faculty has been working since last fall to establish a writer-in-residence program.

The program has received wholehearted encouragement from the University's Board of Trustees, a favorable resolution from Student Legislature, the blessings of academic departments concerned with the teaching of writing, and most important, full financial support of the project from Chancellor William B. Aycock.

As the proposal evolved over a period of months, it became something very different from the normal writer's residency which has become a fixture at colleges all over the land, and promises to be a boon both to students and the writer himself.

(Continued on Page Five-A)

Orientation Emphasizes Academics

A new concept in Orientation highlights this year's program, now entering its final stage.

"We decided that the new students should know more about the courses they are to take in the General College," commented Archie Davis of Winston-Salem, chairman of the orientation program. "Therefore, today and Thursday new students will attend classes on an informal basis, in order that they may learn about the prerequisites and later rewards of majoring in each subject area."

Upperclassmen will register Thursday and begin classes Friday.

A panel discussion on "Academics" will be offered tonight. "Education outside the classroom will be one of the major topics," noted Davis. "Students need to learn to use their time to get classwork done and to take part in outside activities to get a broad education."

"Panel members will be Dr. William Koch, botanist; Dr. Rollie Tillman, economist; and Prof. Walter Spearman of the Journalism School from the faculty, and Harry DeLung of Atlanta, Ga. from student government, Dick Hesse of Metaerie, La. of the Carolina Symposium, and Peter Jasin of Woodmere, N. Y. who will preside.

Another panel discussion will be concerned with fraternities. The discussion, to be held tomorrow afternoon, will be moderated by Dr. Clifton Kreps. Participating in the discussion will be: Bob Spearman, vice-president of the student body, Charlie Battle, president of the Interfraternity Council, Mike Lawler, president of the student body and Gerry Good, president of the Interdormitory Council.

Continuing a program that has been successful in the past, freshmen have been required to read Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn. Members of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman and sophomore honorary organization, will conduct discussions on the book. "The discussions help to convince freshmen that there is more to reading than they ever realized be-

The remainder of the week-long program will be crammed with physical examinations library tours, testing, honor system lectures, and tests. The group of entering students is so large that most activities will be offered to small groups at different times through the week.

AYCOCK

HENDERSON

CATHEY

BERRYHILL

Committee To Find Aycock Replacement

William B. Aycock will end a seven-year tenure as Chancellor here next fall to return to the teaching of law.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday indicated this week he would soon name a special committee of faculty members, trustees and alumni to advise with him in choosing Aycock's successor.

Friday noted that at the time Aycock agreed to accept the Chancellorship in 1956 it was with the understanding that at the appropriate time he would return to his professorship in the University's law school.

"The unyielding stand of Chancellor Aycock for the freedom of the University, his introduction of constructive administrative procedures, his success in improving financial support of the University, the establishment of new distinguished professorships and the development of a long-range plan for the growth of the University are but a few of the achievements of his administration," Friday said.

"No administrator has served the University with greater devotion," he noted. "His has been a total commitment of mind and strength to advance the University at Chapel Hill to greater accomplishment."

Friday added, "I am delighted that Chancellor Aycock will continue to serve as chancellor for the next academic year and thereafter will be available for special assignments which will utilize his experience in University affairs."

Special Committee

An organization meeting of the President's Special committee is scheduled for early October, Friday said.

He said the committee would probably consist of 15 or 16 members, including alumni, faculty

(Continued on Page Five-A)

Cathey New Dean Of Student Affairs

Dr. C. O. Cathey, professor of history and modern civilization, has been named Acting Dean of Student Affairs for a one-year term following the resignation of Dean Charles Henderson.

Henderson, a professor in the classics department prior to his appointment as dean in February, 1961 is returning to the teaching of latin this fall.

The selection of Cathey was announced July 8 in Raleigh by Consolidated University President William C. Friday after its approval by the Executive Committee of the University's Board of Trustees.

Prof. Cathey is a member of the History Department and served as chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships and student aid for six years.

Cathey, who has jurisdiction over 13 University departments, reported last week that he anticipates "no easy solution" to the problems he will encounter during hi sone-year tenure in the Student Affairs office on the first floor of South Building.

He is a graduate of Davidson College and has been a member of the faculty here since 1947, after receiving his Ph.D degree at UNC. During World War II he served as colonel in the U. S. Army.

Henderson's two and half year term in the Office of Student Affairs was marked by several stormy conflicts between the University administration and student government, which culminated in a battle over the Apartment Rule this spring. The students' refusal to legislate a rule suitable to the administration resulted in the institution this summer of an administrative Apartment Rule far more encompassing than what had originally been in effect.

Prof. Henderson taught Latin here for five years, after five years at New York University. He was formerly an advisor to students in the University's special Honors Program, and a member of the American Philological Association, the Medeival Academy of American and Phi Beta Kappa.

Cathey is expected to serve as Dean of Student Affairs until August 31, 1964.

Administration To Enforce Own Apartment Rule

Students may be a little baffled about the new rule or rules that are now in effect concerning women students visiting men in apartments.

This is entirely understandable since, as far as one can tell, there are now two rules in effect, one sponsored and enforced by the University administration and the other by the students.

The Administrative rule reads as follows:

"Undergraduate students are not permitted to visit in the living quarters of members of the opposite sex, either in dormitories or in apartments in town. Women students may visit men's apartments provided there is a minimum of two couples present."

The other rule, which is enforced by the Student Government, says that the two couple-rule only applies to Freshmen women.

Therefore, all cases involving freshmen will be tried by the Womens' Council while all others involving sophomores, jun-

(Continued on Page 2-C)

Med School's Dean Served Since 1941

Dr. Walter Reece Berryhill, Dean of the School of Medicine, will retire as dean after June 30, 1964, take a year's leave of absence and then return to other duties in the University.

Dr. Berryhill, 63-year-old native of Mecklenburg county, has served as Dean of the Medical School here since 1941, and was acting dean one year prior to that time.

President William C. Friday, and Chancellor William B. Aycock expressed appreciation for Dean Berryhill's years of administrative and medical leadership.

President Friday said: Dr. Berryhill has made a magnificent contribution to medical education in the State and Nation by building here a first-rate School of Medicine. His period of service, spanning more than three decades, has been marked by exceptional leadership. . . ."

Chancellor Aycock said: "Dr. Berryhill's work in assembling and directing an outstanding teaching and medical research faculty in Chapel Hill and his development of the School of Medicine and the North Carolina Memorial Hospital into an institition of both regional and national service will stand as a distinctive achievement in the history of North Carolina. . . ."

Berryhill does not reach formal retirement age until 1965.

During Dr. Berryhill's tenure at Chapel Hill, the Medical School changed from a two-year institution to a four-year school and added Memorial Hospital and expanded its staff inservices to the state.

The merit of originality is not novelty; it is sincerity.—Carlyle Originality is simply a pair of fresh eyes.—Thomas W. Higginson.

UNC Enters 170th Year With Enrollment Of 10,600

By JOEL BULKLEY

The University enters its 170th year this week with an expected enrollment of more than 10,600 students, including 2,000 freshmen.

Acting Dean of Student Affairs Dr. C. O. Cathey said the expected enrollment would be an increase of about 1,000 over last year, with the freshmen class increasing by about 3,000, and would be the largest number of students ever enrolled at Chapel Hill.

The Housing Office reported that there had been an overflow of about 650 men students above the normal capacity of 3995 desiring University Housing this fall.

Housing Director James Wadsworth said the increase was beinb absorbed by putting three men in two-man rooms in many dormitories, placing four students in three-man rooms in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew and by putting beds in two dormitory basements. He said that about 15 beds had already been put in Stacey and about 30 in Avery.

According to Wadsworth, the total number of men students in University housing is now 4,677. He noted, however, that this figure included 562 students living in the married units.

Even with 22 dormitories already on campus, including two only a year old, UNC is not likely to see an end to its housing problem for quite a while, according to Wadsworth.

"Last year, we thought everything would be under control, after opening two new 750-man dorms, Ehringhaus and Craige, but we still had to put three students in 100 of our two-man rooms to accommodate all the students we accepted," he said.

About 150 girls will have to be crowded into rooms with two others, Wadsworth noted, although last year there were enough rooms to go around.

There are dorm facilities for 1,300 women students but well over that number have been accepted, University Cashier Marvin Woodard said. Last fall Cobb dormitory, a renovated men's dorm with a capacity of 400 students, was converted to a women's dorm. In exchange the men received Carr Dormitory, formerly a women's dorm housing approximately 70 students.

No new facilities are available this fall, Woodard said, but plans for a dorm not yet under construction are in the making.

"The only change in housing this fall will be that Smith Dormitory, which formerly housed women graduate students, will be opened to undergraduate women," Wadsworth said. He added that these graduates will move into town to live.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday formally announced increases in men's and women's dorm rates, effective this semester, early this summer. The hike in dorm rents $20 for men and $35 for women, became inevitable in early spring when the N. C. General Assembly refused to appropriate state funds for the construction of new dorms on both the State and UNC campuses.

The legislature approved the construction of one nine-story men's dorm here on a 100-per cent self-liquidating basis. Fees at Carolina consequently rose to $96.50 a semester for men and $120 a semester for women. These rates include a $1.50 social fee for men and $2.50 fee for women.

UNC, in anticipation of last week's announcement by President Friday, began charging the new rates in May as students here began applying in advance for rooms for the fall.

Woodard said officials here took it on their own in the spring to figure how much the new dorm would cost in terms of an increase in dorm rent. They changed the rates in all brochures sent to incoming freshmen.

The male-to-female ratio is expected to be about four to one.

Indications are 550 and 600 men will be living in fraternity houses this fall.

The Dean of Women's office said sorority houses will be filled to capacity.

New Faculty Appointments

Appointments, promotions, leaves of absence and resignations at the University were announced yesterday by Chancellor William B. Aycock following a meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Carl B. Holmes has been appointed an associate professor in the School of Public Health. He received his Master of Public Health degree at the University of Michigan. He is a native of Cross Plains, Tennessee.

Appointed associate professor and director of the Research Laboratory of Anthropology in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology is Dr. Robert L. Rands. Dr. Rands, who received his Ph.D. degree from Columbia University, was a visiting professor at UNC last year. He is a native of Washington, D. C.

Dr. E. Barbara Stocking has been appointed as an associate professor in the School of Public Health. A native of Chester, S. C., she received her M.P.H. degree at Harvard University. Dr. Stocking comes to UNC from the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Robert Foster Castle has been named an assistant professor in the School of Medicine. He received his M.D. degree from Western Reserve University. Dr. Castle is a native of Cleveland, Ohio. He comes to UNC from the staff of the U. S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va.

Named assistant professor in UNC's School of Medicine, Dr. Edward Majchrowicz received his Ph.D. degree from McGill University. He was born in Poland and last taught at the University of Virginia.

Ben Overstreet Jr. has been named assistant director and assistant professor at the Institute of Government. He received his BSC degree from the University System of Georgia and is a native of Scrivens County, Georgia. In 1962-63 Prof. Overstreet was a consultant to the National Council on Crime and Delinquency in New York City. He was an official delegate to the U. N. Conference on Crime and Delinquency in Geneva in 1955. Prof. Overstreet has acted as consultant for the Institute of Government in the past.

Two UNC instructors have been given promotions. They are as follows: Ronald Ernest Fox, instructor in psychology in the Department of Psychiatry in the School of Medicine, has been promoted to assistant professor. Charlene M. Nelson, instructor in the Department of Physical Therapy, has been promoted to assistant professor.

Leaves of absence have been granted to John Cassel, Osborne B. Hardison, and R. Darrell Bock. Prof. Cassell, School of Public Health, will do research with the Social Medicine Research Unit of the Medical Research Council in London for one year.

Dr. Hardison, professor in the Department of English, will do research and study under a Guggenheim Foundation Grant.

Dr. Bock will be a visiting professor at the University of Chicago during the 1964 Spring semester.

Resignations have been accepted by the Board of Trustees from four UNC professors. Dr. Lucie Jessner, professor of psychiatry in the School of Medicine, has accepted a similar post at Georgetown University.

Dr. Ernest Queener Campbell, associate professor of sociology and research associate in the Institute for Research in Social Sciences, has resigned to accept the chairmanship of a department at Vanderbilt University.

Carol Suzanne Lowry, assistant professor in the School of Nursing, resigned to marry and change her place of residence.

William A. Lund, assistant professor, Institute of Fisheries Research, resigned to accept a post at the University of Connecticut.

Mark Ethridge Appointed As New Editor Of Newsday

A new member of the UNC School of Journalism faculty was recently named editor of Newsday, a daily newspaper published in Garden City, N. Y.

Mark Ethridge, board chairman and former publisher of the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, will teach one course at the University, "Newspaper Management," beginning Feb. 3.

He will lecture one day a week, on Monday afternoons.

"We are most fortunate in being able to add such a distinguished publisher to our staff," Norval Neil Luxon, dean of the journalism school, said when Ethridge's addition to the faculty was announced.

"Mr. Ethridge's long experience in all phases of newspaper work on small and large newspapers in Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia, New York, the District of Columbia and Kentucky will afford our students an unusual oportunity to study under one of the acknowledged leaders of the newspaper profession.

"The original arrangements were that Mr. Ethridge would begin teaching this fall. Of course, when his new responsibility arose, we re-arranged the schedule so he could orient himself to his new position.

"We feel it will be very stimulating to both students and faculty to have him here even one day a week."

The Ethridges plan to build a house on acreage they have purchased about 20 miles from Chapel Hill and will also maintain a house on Long Island.

Ethridge, 67, an executive with the Louisville dailies for 27 years, was vice-president and general manager from 1936 to 1942 and publisher from 1942 to 1961. He will remain a member of the board of directors of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Co.

In addition to his newspaper responsibilities, Ethridge has served the government in various capacities, including a 1945 visit to the Balkans for the State Department, American delegate on a United Nations commission to study Greek border disputes in 1947, American representative on the Palestine Counciliation Commission and as chairman of the U. S. Advisory Commission on Information, 1948-1950.

He is a trustee of the Ford Foundation.

Ethridge's newspaper experience began on the Meridian (Miss.) Star in 1913. Later he was a reporter on the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer Sun; city editor and managing edtior, Macon (Ga.) Telegraph. He was with the New York Sun and Consolidated Press, 1922-1924; Associated Press, 1933; served as Assistant General Manager, Washington Post, 1933-1934; publisher Richmond Times-Dispatch, 1934-1936, and Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, since 1936.

QUALIFICATION TEST

Applications are now available for National Security Agency's Professional Qualification Test, which will be administered on the campus Oct. 26, 1963.

Any U. S. citizen and holder of or candidate for at least a bachelor's degree by Sept. 1964 is eligible to take the PQT.

Engineering, mathematics, and physics applicants need not take the test, but should contact the Placement Director for an appointment with a visiting NSA representative.

Deadline for receipt of applications is Oct. 16, 1963.

UNC May Get A.M. Station This Semester

Carrier Current, the student-run radio station which ceased operations over a year ago, may return to the University this year, according to Don Curtis, chairman of the Campus Affairs Committee.

The station will be operated entirely by students and will be under the control of student government.

The station, which must still be approved by the Student Legislature is expected to receive part of its income from the Student Government Activities Fund and the remainder from local advertising, Curtis said.

Curtis stated that "the original station was unsuccessful because of an insufficient initial outlay of funds. The station was never able to achieve a self-sustaining basis."

Curtis named either Dec. 1 or Feb. 1 as possible dates for broadcasting to begin.

"Eventually we hope to broadcast from September to May including examination periods," he said. "It is entirely dependent on the action taken by Student Legislature and the amount of money allotted to us," he added.

The station will be AM, operating at 645 kc., and will be received in all dormitories as well as Victory Village and most fraternity and sorority houses," Curtis said.

The station will feature popular and folk music shows as well as campus and local news coverage. In addition, there will be live coverage of sports events and other actiivties such as political conventions and symposiums.

Curtis said there would be a contest to choose the call letters of the station when it has been approved.

Currently, the only radio station on the campus is a statewide FM station, WUNC, which is under the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures.

Public Utilities

Except for gas and sewer, the University owns and operates all of Chapel Hill's utilities.

University Public Service Offices, located at 134 East Franklin Street, is the headquarters for water, electricity, and telephone. The branch office of the University Laundry is also in the building. The Laundry's main office and plant are on West Cameron Avenue.

Offices of the Public Service Co. (gas) are at 106 West Franklin Street.

The Chapel Hill sewer system is under the control of Town Manager Robert Peck, whose office is in the Town Hall at the corner of North Columbia and West Rosemary Streets.

In Carrboro, the University sells water to the Town, which then redistributes it to consumers, who pay their water bills directly to the Town.

The Carrboro sewer system is under the control of Town Clerk R. B. Todd, whose office is in the Carrboro Town Hall.

LOVER OF TRUTH

The scientist is the lover of truth, for the very love of truth itself, wherever it may lead.
—Luther Burbank

New discoveries in science . . . will continue to create a thousand new frontiers for those who would still adventure.
—Herbert Hoover

JANE HASLEM GALLERY

113 W. Franklin Street

Contemporary American & European Paintings, Drawings, Sculpture, Graphics

Custom Framing
Picture Rental
Art Lessons
Art Supplies

HOURS: 10 to 5 — Monday-Saturday
2 to 5 Sunday

Welcome . . .

To Chapel Hill and

Eastgate Hardware

• Glidden Paints • Housewares • Tools • Toys • Lawn and Garden Supplies • And all the things you expect a hardware to have. But if we don't have it—we'll get it!
RENTALS OF — • TV • Floor Polishers • Electric Power Tools

Eastgate Shopping Center

Open All Day Wednesdays Fridays 'til 9 P.M.
Phone 942-2920 Free Delivery

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

WELCOME

We welcome you to Chapel Hill and welcome your visit to our store.

LEDBETTER-PICKARD

College and Social
Stationery
Gifts
Greeting Cards
For All Occasions

Thalhimers Ellis-Stone

WELCOME STUDENTS

Shop Weekdays 9:30 to 5:30
Friday 10-9

do you have your personal Thalhimers-Ellis Stone Shopping Plate?

Shop the modern way, the convenient way, the pleasant way, with a Thalhimers-Ellis Stone Shopping Plate. Your Individual Account Number assures proper billing, saves time, and speeds delivery of your purchase; it quickly identifies you when you shop and charge it at any Thalhimers, or Thalhimers-Ellis Stone Store. If you do not have an account with us, just fill in the form below . . . and mail it to our store. You will be notified when your account is open. Come to see us soon!

THALHIMERS-ELLIS STONE, Box 891, Durham, N. C. CH 9-18-63
New Flexible Permanent Budget Account (__) Regular 30-Charge Account (__)
Name: _____ Spouses's first name: _____
Address: _____ Phone: _____
City: _____ Zone: _____ State: _____
Employment: _____
Bank Reference: _____
Have had accounts with: _____
Signature: _____
IF STUDENT Campus Address: _____ Parent's Signature _____
Should bill be sent to home or campus address? _____

School Supplies

Use this handy check list of supplies . . .

( ) Ball Point Pen
( ) Book Ends
( ) Bookkeeping Paper
( ) Briefcase
( ) Carbon Paper
( ) Cellulose Tape
( ) Chalk
( ) Cloth Marking Outfit
( ) Colored Pencils
( ) Compass
( ) Composition Books
( ) Construction Paper
( ) Paints
( ) Paste
( ) Paper Clips
( ) Pen and Pencil Set
( ) Pencils
( ) Pencil Box or Case
( ) Pencil Sharpener
( ) Protractor
( ) Ring Book and Index
( ) Ring Book Filler
( ) Rubber Cement
( ) Ruler
( ) Scissors
( ) Crayons
( ) Desk Lamp
( ) Diary
( ) Dictionary
( ) Drawing Equipment
( ) Drawing Paper
( ) Erasers
( ) Fountain Pen
( ) Graph Paper
( ) Ink
( ) Key Case
( ) Mechanical Pencil
( ) Notebook, Bound
( ) Scrapbook
( ) Scratch Pads
( ) Slide Rule
( ) Stapler
( ) Staples
( ) Stationery, Envelopes
( ) Shorthand Notebook
( ) Tablets
( ) Typing Paper
( ) Typing Ribbon
( ) Typewriters
( ) Waste Basket

Everything for the Student

Welcome Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS Welcome

Orientation: The Class Of 1967 Meets UNC

Small Groups Dot The Campus As Counselors Hold Meetings . . .

As New Students Study Their Carolina Handbooks . . .

Photo Essay

By

Jim Wallace

And Registration Lines Are Ready . . .

Sign Your Name 1,657,859 Times . . .

Then Walk And Walk Until . . .

Boy, It Feels Good To Rest A Minute Before . . .

It's Off Again To Tour The Library . . .

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

GARY BLANCHARD, DAVID ETHRIDGE
Co-Editors

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

A Welcome Toast

Already summer's heat has become fall's crispness, and the leaves have begun to change their colors. As the season changes, both behind and beyond the Madras Curtain that covers most campuses, so too has the situation changed with regard to our No. 1 domestic issue: The American Revolution of 1963.

Summer's discontent has become fall's uncertainty, and how fully the national needs stated in the streets since Birmingham, and headlined by the recent March on Washington, will be met. remains the exclusive knowledge of the future.

Other things, however, are certain; one of the foremost being that the conscience of America's white majority has made its choice between the alternatives which Gunnar Myrdal posed 21 years ago in his epochal study of America and her Negro minority, called "An American Dilemma."

"America," wrote Myrdal, "is free to choose whether the Negro shall remain her liability or become her opportunity."

America's white majority clearly has opted for opportunity. But, as usual, it has waited for the situation to reach crisis proportions before deciding.

ALL THIS IS by way of welcoming new, transfer and returning students to the Carolina campus. In the summer that has separated most of us from one another, many important events have occurred in our individual and national lives.

In our own editorial attempt to simplify the complex, in order to better grapple with it, we have been impressed with the need to modify the old axiom that "The only certainties in life are death and taxes." For change is the great certainty of all, as this summer has evidenced, and we all need to be impressed with that fact, though it probably was presumed by the author of the axiom.

This brings us to the essential reasons why we all are here: To study the ingredients of change — the sciences, natural and social, and the humanities — plus the nature and varieties of the process; and thus hopefully learn how to control change and keep it within the bounds of desirability.

This is a large task, and one that all of us will in one form or another be pursuing as the academic year unfolds.

So we offer a toast: That each of us will fulfill a good measure of the expectations we have brought with us, that we effect constructive change in ourselves and our campus environment as we oneday must in the world beyond the Madras Curtain.

Controversies On Tap

Dear Colleagues:

We are sorry to inform you that the Controversy Schedule for this academic year is still incomplete so all we can do is notify you about the several that are pretty well firmed up, along with our thoughts on them.

First, the Speaker Ban. This un-American device will probably grab most of the headlines if only because it is bound to involve people of more importance than you and us, and issues of such deep significance as to warrant state-wide, even national, attention.

We have some thoughts on how this matter should be handled, which we'll spell out in future editorials.

Secondly, the racial issue in Chapel Hill. Things got pretty sticky hereabouts this past summer, as they did over much of the nation. Consequently, demonstrations for the sake of pointing out the problem probably won't achieve much beyond making segregationists' necks redder.

We understand that a movement is afoot to have one wing-dinger of a demonstration here this coming Saturday, aimed at catching the football crowd.

While we are militantly for equal rights for all — which includes unremitting support for a Public Accommodations law — we earnestly counsel against demonstrating on this or any other football Saturday. As everyone knows, at least half the crowd is usually potted, consequently immune from appeals to reason. All that would probably result would be disorder, and while this has its value, we don't think it would help in this case.

We who are for Civil Rights intellectually as well as emotionally owe it to that cause not to waste our energies, or to unnecessarily alienate The Vital Center. We have some ideas on cracking the segregationist holdouts in Chapel Hill as efficiently as possible, and we'll spell them out, too, in an early editorial. Meantime, let's hold off.

Thirdly, the Apartment Rule. This is a tempest in a teapot if there ever was one. We hope it gets honorably resolved, and early, so as not to detract energy and attention from far more serious problems.

As things now stand, we're told, there are two rules, which means the stage is set for considerable confusion. But maybe if we give it a month or so the situation will be straightened out. We'll keep you informed.

Fourthly, Student Government. The charges will soon start flying about it being a rinky-dink operation, and so forth. Before you add to the discussion, we urge you to get a little first-hand experience with the situation so that your own views will, if "wrong," at least be informed.

Fifthly, the upcoming gubernatorial race. Judging from the bevy of candidates, it ought to be quite a horse race. We understand the candidates will all be invited here to express their views. We urge you to come and listen, as we'll be doing.

That's about it as of right now. The only real uncertainty is what the other dozen or so controversies that are bound to come up will concern.

Alas, our crystal ball just isn't that clear.

Thanks

A large vote of thanks is due Joel Bulkley and Fred McConnel who spent uncounted hours bull-dogging this largest Tar Heel in history through to completion.

Bulkley, who handled the news operation, was ably assisted by Jim Wallace as Copy and Photo Editor; and reporters Mickey Blackwell, Pete Harkness, Jim Neal, Fred Seely, Pete Wales and Nancy Wilkins.

McConnel, who handled the Business and Advertising end, was aided by his assistant, Woody Sobol, and salesmen Dick Baddour, Frank Potter and Bob Vanderberry.

"We've Decided Against The Test-Ban Treaty— We Want The Right To Develop Our Own Bomb"

This Will Happen Unless...

(The following column was written by Curtis Gans, a UNC graduate and 1958-59 Daily Tar Heel editor. Mr. Gans originally wrote this for the 1958 Orientation issue.)

The year starts and it is a new experience for many. For many billed by their high school presidents or school superintendents in a somewhat less than eloquent commencement speech as America's future leaders or citizens of tomorrow, the change will be quite drastic. For most the change will be quite drastic. For most the change is predictable.

There will be first the interminable orientation with meetings, meetings, and more meetings, some of which some of the new class will skip. They will hear many words about the Carolina tradition of freedom, about the Honor System, and about student government and activities in general. They will be told that a proper balance between scholarship and other interests will have to be made.

With much new found wisdom the student will go to his dormitory and get ready for the first day of classes.

* * *

SOON THE STUDENT finds out that the Honor System does not work too well, and that the noise in many dormitory corridors makes study impossible and life only a little unhappy. At about this time they also find that one in five, if that many, professors that they have for freshman courses are interesting, much less stimulating.

Almost all will forget their academic load until before the quiz and then assimilate what is necessary for quick regurgitation on the next day. They will be attuned to assimilating fact temporarily without placing the fact into context. They will be attuned not to think, and even those who came here not looking for a higher paying job as the primary result of a college education, will give up their goal early.

* * *

THOSE PERSISTENT enough to continue with intellectual pursuit will find it difficult to find people to converse with about anything save liquor, sex, and past experiences. A feeble attempt will be made by some to participate in activities, but for most this will mean lines in a yearbook rather than a personal contribution.

By the end of their sophomore year, those who have not received a high office will retire permanently to the bar stool or the uncomfortable cots that grace most dormitories and fraternities. They will content themselves with the activity of a Saturday night party or the intellectual pursuit of Mickey Mantle's batting average. They will be by the end of college little changed for the better by their four years.

THERE WILL BE several who will become "teachers," but there will be but one or two teachers. There will be a few who will become "lawyers," but there may be one lawyer.

There will be many writers and businessmen, but few will see their writings in print and few will rise above wanting to make the most money for themselves.

There will be some scientists, but few with the prospective to place the greatly growing body of knowledge into. There will be a few "leaders" and probably no leader. Many will not finish school.

Those that do finish will listen to a brilliant commencement speech by a famous person and comment on how brilliant the speech was largely because they know that the person must be famous for some reason. Few will question how and why he got his fame and almost no one will carry the words of the speaker into life.

EMBARKING ON the long voyage of life outside the Ivory tower, "America's future leaders" will be the same generation as the last. They will plunge themselves into Spanish-American Wars, as quickly as they react "Coca-Cola" to "The Pause That Refreshes." They will hear the words communist, socialist, radical, non-conformist, and even individualist and react negatively not knowing what they are reacting to, but blindly taking somebody else's word for it.

In them the future leaders, as they have been called, lies not the hope of America but the promise of its annihilation in an age when annihilation can be accomplished easily.

This will happen as surely as you are reading this, UNLESS . . .

Unless they as individuals try to find what they are and preserve the uniqueness of themselves.

Unless they resist the tide that chips at and ebbs away the curiosity that should be native to students.

Unless they become actively critical of their society and work, not just gripe, towards its improvement.

Unless they realize that reality is not a social whirl but rather is a problem worth coming to grips with and working out on a day to day basis.

Unless they shake the cliches and customs that society has forced upon them and they have accepted as making it the easiest way.

Unless they refuse to subvert themselves at all times to the will of the group.

Unless they think.

The wading against the stream is the most difficult. It demands courage and endurance. A successful passage, however, has rewards that far outnumber any of those received going another way. The road to a personal sense of well-being lies this way; the road to a personal Hell lies in the other direction.

The alternatives are clear. It is their choice. They will probably make the wrong one.

First 90 Days: Critical

By JENKIN LLOYD JONES
In The Washington Star

Dear Frosh:

So you're going to college. Your parents and their adult friends have told you you are lucky. And they are right. But a college education isn't what it was 25 or 30 years ago. It's harder. And, generally, it's harder to achieve.

There are still a few easy schools, places where they are likely to pass anybody with a discernible pulse. But these are getting rarer. The old-time "country clubs" that used to receive you with open arms after you'd been fired out of the Ivy League are getting pretty peck-sniffish. They've got waiting lists.

Some of the big State universities still have to take anyone who has a high school diploma. And because some high schools are pretty awful, the universities enroll a lot of freshmen who aren't ready. But they have a gimmick. They throw out the loafers and the staggerers after a semester. It's sad to be bounced out of college, particularly in these days when there aren't many colleges you can bounce into.

Remember this: The first 90 days are critical. If you're on top of your work by Christmas you'll probably survive. Don't let the glamor get you.

You may not have made the college of your choice. Maybe you flunked the entrance exams, or perhaps youd dad couldn't pay the freight. So you're enrolled in the home town school or in some little place so undistinguished that they still play football for fun.

Quit feeling sorry for yourself. Any college can be a good one. There's more information in the library of Hootenanny Tech than you'll ever get into your head.

The great universities with their distinguished faculties are fine. It's exciting to sit in on a lecture by a world-famous professor, and a big-name diploma can be handy in job-hunting.

But ordinary quiz sections in the famous schools are often taught by assistants who know less than the full professors who would teach you in a small school. And if the great universities boast a disproportionate number of alumni in "Who's Who," don't forget that a lot of these grads had fathers with money and influence. The boys advanced, not so much because they were better taught, but because they had a running start.

You will soon start getting acquainted with professors. Professors are human beings. They come in all sizes and shapes. Some are not very bright. Given enough persistence, almost anybody who is literate can eventually win a Ph.D. And some are marvelously intelligent and delightful people.

Just remember Will Rogers' remark: "Everybody is ignorant, only along different lines."

Professors are not all-around oracles. One of the greatest of mdern minds, Albert Einstein, probably came to more naive political conclusions than the corner bootblack. If you cover yourself with a doctor's hood you can stand out in a heavy rain of facts and never feel a drop.

But an able professor is a joy. If you really want an education, avoid the clods. If someone tells you that Professor X is an easy grader, try Professor Y. The best teachers do just that. They teach. They are not interested in providing day nurseries for young men who have retired prematurely, and for young ladies who are merely husband-hunting.

College is a bringing-out process. It will not make a bad person good or a good person bad. If you are born intelligent, it will bring out your intelligence. If you are born a bum, it will bring out your bumness.

There are no "college drunks." There are only people who revealed themselves as soon as parental restraints were removed.

But college can be a shocking experience. Some youngsters are brought up with a lot of beliefs that won't stand the light of academic inquiry. The first class in geology or sociology or political science can be pretty upsetting.

And out of this upset is born the college radical who seeks to compensate for his confusion in hot-eyed activism, or the college cynic who sneers because he is, for the moment, without convictions. Time usually cures both diseases.

Look at it this way You climb a hill. The world looks different. But it is not a different world. What you see is merely an enlarged horizon, a broadened perspective. The points of the compass have not been repealed.

College is not the only way to get an education. The world abounds with effective self-taught men and women. College is merely the easiest way to get an education. It hands you carefully programmed and in logical sequence the fruits of man's discoveries.

College is a great privilege. Don't just accept it. Seize it.

Phony Smiles Await Rushees

By MIKE PUTZEL

There are probably not two freshmen entering the University this fall who are unaware of the existence of fraternities.

And it is a well-maintained fact that there are very few more than that who know anything about the mysterious orders. Some know that regardless of what they are told during Rush, they will be financially unable to affiliate with any Greek organization. Others have been told that this or that house is great for after-the-game parties.

Still others are vaguely aware that if they join a fraternity it may help them to get dates.

But for the most part, the freshmen who realize they are expected to go through "rush" in a couple of weeks actually realize very little more than that. And for the purpose of trying to keep everybody "equal," fraternity affiliates (except for those few hundred who participate in what is termed "dirty rush") will supply little information and fewer facts to those who may be curious.

When the stampede to get new pledges begins, the brothers will say many things, all of them friendly and none of them controversial, in order to create certain impressions about fraternities in general and theirs in particular.

As a freshman rushee enters one of the 24 houses which beckon on the first evening of Rush, he cannot help but be amazed at the smiles which are glued to the face of every brother who is waiting to welcome him with outstretched palm and trite phrase.

He notices immediately that smiling is the thing to do whether he feels like it or not, and as he glances down the gauntlet of grinning mannikins, he is glad that he chose to wear dark socks with his Weejuns and a Madras jacket so he will be indistinguishable from the milling throng.

The impression is now being created, not by any one person, but by a large group. Though only 21% of the student body is active in fraternity life at Carolina, the impression is that everybody is affiliated — unless, of course, he didn't make his grades. Strangely enough, slightly over half the freshman class didn't make their grades last fall, but the brothers will assure the rushees that pledgeship doesn't take any extra time, and a "C" average comes easy anyway.

The impression is also that this house is the sharpest house on campus and quite exclusive. It's somewhat of a privilege to be a member here, because we are all good friends, and you willl have to fit in.

There are those things that will not vary from house to house like the smiles, the welcome, the party room, the number of brothers, the dress; but an observant rushee will notice that they are not ALL alike.

A DKE may ask you what prep school you went to.

The PiKAs and KAs may squirm a little when a Yankee is introduced.

An SAE may play "who do you know in Atlanta?"

The rushee will not, of course, ask the Phi Delts — or anyone else for that matter—about discriminatory clauses.

But even if the rushee is a Yankee who didn't go to prep school, knows no one from Atlanta, and did ask someone about discriminatory clauses, the smiles would still be there. For the rushee is notified only by a note on his door that the smiling brothers actually thought he was a disgusting insult to the House.

Of course, ALL the brothers may not have thought of him as a "cull." It may have just been one member who didn't like his tie or who noticed that he still wore braces. You know about how the "one ball" system works here.

The merits of fraternities, it is true, will not be presented here but in the House, and one needn't accept this as the only side of the question, but it is important to realize that the fraternities which Barry Goldwater has called bulwarks against Communism are the same fraternities which tie strings to one's freedom of association, freedom of speech and religion, and which often bluntly reject the principles of democracy and liberal education.

Such things should certainly be worthy of consideration as a freshman looks into the bright smiles and shining teeth of those who may soon be his brothers.

All that glitters . . .

Beer And Homilies

Charley Finkwick, the grizzled old sage of Upper Chapel Hill, leaned back in his rocker and began pulling furiously on his old corncob pipe. Now and then he made as if to speak, but no words came. His brow was knit like a rain gutter and his cheek muscles kept contracting and loosening. Obviously, he was thinking up a storm.

I had sought Charley out an hour earlier to ask him if he had any experience-stewed suggestions to offer to incoming and returning students.

At first he had just laughed and gone back to his beer.

"Them kids have probably got too many suggestions already," he said. "I don't want to go adding to their troubles."

"Aw c'mon, Charley," I said. "I mean, what the hell, everybody else is passing out advice, sure, but most of it's ripe and vague and goes in one ear and out the other. Haven't you got any concrete little homilies to pass along . . . something they can remember — something that really works—and isn't just so much noble hot air?"

This weakened him. I could tell by the way he peered at me over his beer mug.

"Y'mean it?" he asked. "Are you really serious?"

"Yes."

"Okay, c'mon out in front here. I'll give you an exclusive. The Secret of Success in Anything. How's that?"

"Fine," I said, trying not to slip on the patches of beer on the floor.

Now, sitting out in front of his hangout, rocking, Charley seemed to be getting closer and closer to saying something.

I was ready.

Suddenly he stopped rocking. Meticulously, he withdrew his tired pipe from his mouth, point-

(Continued on Page Five)

Letters

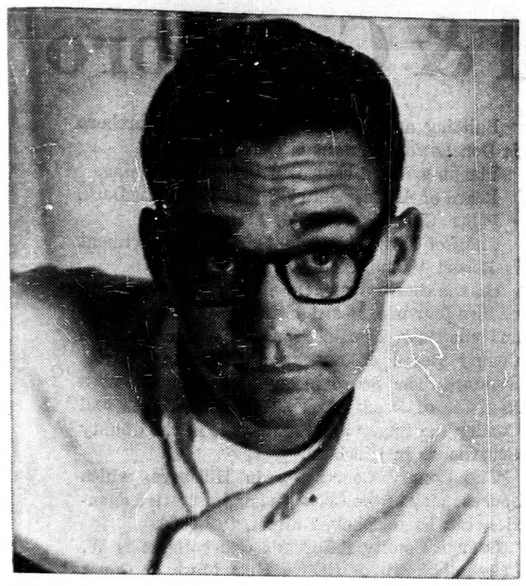
The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typewritten and triple-spaced.

DTH editorial offices are on second floor, Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.



LARRY PHELPS, Carolina graduate is shown last spring just prior to his illegal trip to Cuba with 57 other American "students" including another former UNC student, John Salter of Greensboro. One of the organizers of the Progressive Labor Club at Chapel Hill, Phelps told the House Un-American Activities Committee last week, "It's my right as an individual to see whoever I please whenever I please . . ." Photo by Jim Wallace

2 Ex-UNC Students Defy Cuba Travel Ban

Larry Phelps Testifies In Washington Hearing

By PETER HARKNESS

Larry Phelps of Burlington, a June graduate of the University, testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee in Washington last Friday.

The stormy hearing concerned a trip to Cuba which he, former UNC student John Salter of Greensboro, and 57 other American students took in defiance of the State Department this summer. (Salter left UNC early this year. He was a junior.)

Phelps, who received a BA degree in History here, told the committee that he had visited and would continue to visit wherever he pleased.

He said that he obtained a passport last year when he planned to go to England and France during his Christmas vacation from classes at UNC.

He said that an interview with him that appeared in the DAILY TAR HEEL last December was correct in saying that he went to Cuba to test the right of the State Department to restrict American travel.

Well-Dressed

Phelps testified on the afternoon of the second day. Unlike the majority of students, he was well-dressed and clean-saven.

Upon being questioned, he launched into a speech advocating "a radical new solution" for the United States, including the erradication of the House Un-American Activities Committee and the establishment of a "socialist society."

He said that he learned about people and the situations they face from the variety of jobs his father (the late G. W. Phelps) held in different places where he lived with him.

Phelps was asked if he and John Salter of Greensboro, were the principal organizers of the Progressive Labor Club at Chapel Hill. He answered that he would testify only about his own participation.

"I was one of the organizers of the Progressive Labor Club at the University of North Carolina," he added.

Nervously drinking water from a paper cup while committee counsel asked him questions, the tall, dark-haired youth sounded calm most of the time and spoke in a soft southern voice. But he raised his voice when he was asked if Jacob Rosen was a frequent visitor at Chapel Hill. He said loudly:

"I've listened to the hearings for almost two days now and I've heard names, names, names, names, names. . . .

"It's my right as an individual to see whoever I please wherever I please . . .

"I don't have to tell anybody who I see . . .

"Yes, I may inform on a crook, but I will not inform on the people I think are right."

When a newspaper story was read to him about a New Left club at Chapel Hill, he said, "Here, we go again."

And, he said most solemnly, "I cannot discuss the activities of another individual—especially if I agree with them. I feel it's my right under the First Amendment to associate with who I please."

Left In June

The 59 students left for Cuba in the early part of the summer. They flew to Ireland and then to Prague, Czechoslovakia where they caught a Cuban airliner to Havana.

The students stayed in Cuba the entire summer, traveling throughout the island. They met with Fidel Castro and other top officials on several occasions.

Upon returning to this country, the House Un-American Activities Committee opened hearings to investigate the trip and question leaders.

On both days of hearings riots broke out in the hearing room as the students and their sympathizers refused to cease applauding and shouting. Uniformed police and plainclothesmen swarmed into the chambers and bodily carried the students out of the room and down three flights of stairs.

The demonstrators fought back by kicking, scratching, and shouting as they were carried out. Cries of "Fascists" and "police brutality" echoed through the hallways as the officers hauled them away.

Violence was further perpetrated by members of the American Nazi Party who attended the hearings and tried to break up a meeting of th students Thursday night at the Presidential Arms, a Washington restaurant.

On Thursday, the first day of the hearings, there were two near riots.

Police forcibly ejected 15 kicking, screaming demonstrators from the hearing room and hauled them downstairs to the street after Barry Hoffman of Brookline, Mass., a voluntary undercover agent for the FBI who accompanied the group on their trip, told the Committee the names of many of the students who made the trip and the roles they played.

Cheers and applause broke out when a subsequent witness, Levi Laub of New York City and a leader of the group, called Hoffman a "rat" and a "snake" for giving the names.

Committee Chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., pounded his gavel for silence. When the applause defiantly continued, he ordered police to remove the noisy spectators.

When the officers moved in, some youths fought back. The scuffle spread. Suddenly 20 uniformed policemen swarmed into the big chamber from an adjoining room.

The officers pushed through the crowd, shoving and dragging 3 to 10 troublemakers toward the door. One girl screamed: "He's not hurting anyone — Let him alone." Others shouted: "Police brutality" and "It's like Nazi Germany!"

About 300 others in the audience stood on chairs to get a better look, or struggled to get to the center of the melee. It took eight policemen to hold down one bearded six-footer in beatnik dress.

Identified later as Albert Maher of Houston, Tex., he kicked vigorously all the way out while policemen held his arms tightly.

Cries of "Leave 'em alone" drowned out pleas to "Throw 'em out.

Several girls ran after the demonstrators as they were forced out of the room and into

(Continued on Page 4-C)

—Knowles Is Writer-In-Residence—

(Continued from Page 1)

He may be called upon to give one or two open lectures during the time he is here and a few talks to classes. The bulk of his time is expected to go toward talking with students who want to write, or are in the process of learning.

Salary From Chancellor

His salary is expected to come directly from Chancellor Aycock, and his schedule, such as it is, will probably be regulated by a student-faculty committee which will screen requests for his services and consult with him on what he needs in the way of time to pursue his own writing.

One significant difference between the proposed UNC setup and similar programs at other institutions is that a maximum freedom to write will be permitted the author.

Another is that the idea for the project was student-originated, and that students have pursued it assiduously to its apparent success.

The idea first cropped up in a student government election campaign several years ago as one of the major planks in the Student Party platform of 1962.

Not much came of the original proposal until last fall, when Mike Lawler sponsored a resolution adopted by Student Legislature. At that time, money for the program was expected to come from student funds, and for that reason alone might have died aborning.

As it happened, Gil Stallings, thin intent young man and former president of the YMCA, decided on a bit of personal diplomacy.

Pushing the plan before the Visiting Board of the University's Trustees last November, he and his committee found warm approval. From Chancellor Aycock came the offer to pay for the program out of his discretionary fund, provided there was evidence of student interest. From various members of the faculty came advice and suggestions, and the committee began looking for a writer.

"What we wanted was somebody young, with a good bit of his career ahead of him, who would be less inaccessible than most established writers. The bigger, firmly established ones tend to scare people away," Ralph Dennis, instructor in the Department of Radio, TV and Motion Pictures and one of the principal backers of the project said in a recent interview in the Chapel Hill Weekly.

Young Writer Wanted

Stallings and the students seemed to favor youth over eminence, not only because he would be more approachable by students, but because the residency would provide a younger writer with a certain margin of financial security to pursue his work.

"We were not after the best-known writer around," says Stallings. "We want a relatively young person, just coming to terms with his art form, with what he sees in society and wants to say about it, not someone terribly prestigious, but who may become an important writer."

A native of Fairmont, W. Va., Knowles attended Phillips Exeter Academy and Yale University. After graduating from Yale, he worked on The Hartford Courant, Hartford, Conn., for two years and then went to Europe where he lived on the Island of Ischia and at Juan-les-Pins in Southern France.

Knowles spent three years as an associate editor of "Holiday" before resigning in 1960 to devote full time to writing. In the spring of 1961, he gave a series of talks to writing classes at Yale and spent that summer travelling Europe and the Middle East.

Knowles' first novel, A Separate Peace, was first published in England by Secker and Warburg and was highly praised by reviewers. This novel won him three awards: the first William Faulkner Foundation Award "for a notable first novel published in 1960"; the Rosenthal Award of The National nstitute of Arts and Letters; and one of the annual awards of the Independent Schools Education Board "for the ten best adult books of 1960 for the pre-college reader."

His second novel, Morning at Antibes, deals with the presence of evil and violence admist a beautiful and peaceful setting.

— Gag Law —

(Continued from Page 1)

paring the law to the Berlin Wall.

Most state newspapers expressed vigorous disapproval of the ban-law last June, when it was enacted without hearings and in record time by The General Assembly.

Still further reaction from the man-on-the-street has indicated that strong approval of the law, whatever its consequences, exists so far as many state voters are concerned. One such person telephoned local radio station WCHL's "Opinion Please" show to express his approval of the law and its application in this case.

The heat of the debate over the wisdom of the law is expected to rise noticeably in the next few weeks, as students and professors return for the fall semester and as wide attention is given the Haldane incident.

Latest reports indicate there is no chance that the law will be reconsidered by the General Assembly when it reconvenes to take up re-districting next month.

Haldane is now connected with a Genetics and Biometry Laboratory in Orissa, India. He was a member of the advisory board of the London Daily Worker, a communist organ, from 1940 to 1949, when he resigned in a dispute over policy.

Haldane is an honorary member of the Russian Academy of Sciences and the National Institute of Sciences of India. He is a corresponding member of the Humbolt Academy of Sciences and the British Royal Academy of S ences.

He holds honorary degrees from Edinburgh, Groningen and Oxford universities, and has been awarded the Kimber Medal of the U. S. National Academy of Sciences.

New Rights Group Plans Meeting Tomorrow

Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED) will meet Thursday night, at eight o'clock in the Second Baptist Church, Graham St.

CURED, Chapel Hill's newest anti-segregation group, replaced the Committee for Open Business (COB) when it collapsed late in August.

The Thursday meeting planned to consider a constitution broadening the group's goals and base of support in the Chapel Hill-University community.

The group's goals include voter registration and complete integration of University and community life, according to a spokesman.

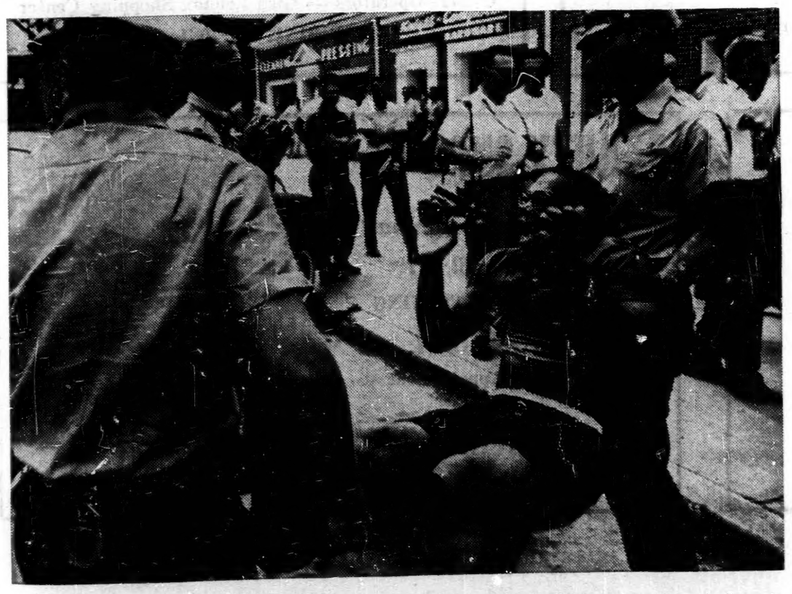
The COB conducted protests against the town's segregated businesses throughout the summer, including one sit-in demonstration, in which 34 whites and Negroes were arrested, and sidewalk marches and street parades. The largest parade numbered over 400 people.

CURED spokesmen have indicated protest demonstrations will be continued this fall.

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen is expected to consider a proposed ordinance which would ban street demonstrations on Saturdays.

The proposal will probably include a requirement that written parade permits be requested at least two days before a planned march.

Parade permits were handled on a verbal basis between demonstration leaders and the police department during the summer.



SIT IN — A Singing, hand-clapping demonstrator is carried from the Chapel Hill Merchant's Bureau during a sit-in held last July 19, that marked the height of racial demonstrations in Chapel Hill.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Campus Briefs

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS

The Carolina Playmakers will present an orientation production, "A Time for Love," at 8:30 tonight in the Playmakers' Theatre.

REMINDER

Those students contacted by mail in August to meet with Mike Lawler concerning HB No. 1395 will meet Monday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial. Lawler urged all concerned to be prompt and to reserve about two hours for the meeting.

FREE FLICKS

Friday night's movie will be "Battle Hymn." "Imitation of Life" will be shown Saturday night. Show time is 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall. ID cards are required for admission.

GRAHAM MEMORIAL

Graham Memorial will present a Hootenanny featuring Carolyn Hester, Mike Settle, and The Gaslight Singers in Memorial Hall Sept. 27 at 8 p.m.

TRANSFER COMMUTERS

All upperclass transfer commuters who desire to participate in formal sorority rush will be able to secure dormitory accommodations Monday, Sept. 23, through Tuesday, October 2, in the Dormitory of the School of Nursing. The usual University rate of $1.50 per night will be charged, payable to the dormitory hostess, Mrs. Mabel Britten. Reservations close today at the Dean of Women's office.

UNIVERSITY PARTY

The University Party will hold a special legislative caucus Sunday night, Sept. 22 at eight o'clock in the Grail Room of GM. Party chairman Mike Chanin asked all legislators who can not attend the session to contact Bob Spearman or himself.

— Aycock Resigns —

(Continued from Page 1)

members and trustees.

He noted that a student representative, probably the Student Body President, would be invited to the first few meetings of the committee. Friday added, however, that after the early meetings, whether or not the student remained on the committee would be up to the committee itself.

The committee would be requested to submit a list of three choices to him by early spring. Friday said. Under the administration code Friday has the duty to nominate a chancellor for approval by the full board of the University's trustees.

Friday indicated that he would probably submit his choice to the Board in late April or early May.

He stated that full notice of procedures to be used by the special committee will be given when the committee membership is announced .

He added that the committee will probably conduct interviews of prospective candidates here and at other campuses and that financial arrangements would be handled through his office.

Announcement of Chancellor Aycock's intention of returning to teaching in the law school here, effective in the fall semester of next year, came at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees July 8 in Raleigh. Aycock has served as chancellor for seven years.

Law Faculty Delighted

The information that Aycock will resume law school duties in 1964 was received with expressions of delight by members of the Law School faculty.

Law School Dean Henry P. Brandis Jr. said, "When Professor Aycock left the Law School classroom in 1957, he said he would return, and we have been expecting him. It was always his understanding and ours that he would serve as Chancellor for a limited period of time. He is an excellent teacher, and the faculty members of the Law School are delighted he is coming back." Brandis informed the law faculty June 1 that Aycock would return in 1964 and the future staffing of the school is being planned with that eventuality in mind.

It is traditional for deans, department chairmen and other top administrators to serve a period of years in administrative posts and ultimately to return to classroom teaching, officials said.

Aycock became chancellor of the University July 1, 1957, after serving as a law professor, acting dean of the Law School here, and a visiting professor of law at the University of Texas and University of Virginia.

A native of Lucama, born Oct. 26, 1915, the chancellor grew up in Selma and attended public school there. He graduated in 1936 from State College where he was president of the student body and a member of the Golden Chain, student honorary society.

He received his master's degree in political science from UNC in 1937 and taught history at Greensboro High School for a year before serving as administrator for the National Youth Administration headquarters in Raleigh.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Cuban Trip Raises Tough Constitutional Questions

By ROBERT S. BOYD
In The Charlotte Observer

Bearded and bathless though they may be, the 58 defiant young Americans who traveled to Cuba against State Department orders have raised a tough constitutional question that has not yet been finally settled by the courts.

The question: does the government in this land of the free have the right to tell a citizen he connot travel where he wishes?

In practice, the government forbids Americans to leave the country without a passport. It refuses passports to some persons. It marks some area of the globe "out of bound" to Americans. It prosecutes as criminals some who break its rules.

A federal grand jury in Brooklyn last week began collecting evidence for prosecution of some of the "students" who went along on the Castro-financed junket to Cuba.

A News Analysis

But the Supreme Court has never clearly settled what limits, if any, may be placed on an American's freedom to travel.

Ironically, this particular freedom was rarely seriously questioned until totalitarianism laid seige to freedom in general.

Before World War II, Americans were normally at liberty to leave the country and return as they pleased. Restrictions existed only during the War of 1812 and the Civil War, and for three years after World War I.

Passports were not required, and were issued chiefly as a favor to a citizen, to help identify him as an American.

Issuance of passports was at the discretion of the secretary of state.

Since 1941, however, a passport has been as vital to a traveler as his ship or plane ticket. He can't cross the border without it.

But no law was passed saying the government must give him one of the previous little blue-green booklets. The State Department still had its old "discretionary" authority.

This produced a "gray area" where legal confusion thrived.

Some people got passports; others didn't.

Congress passed laws, the executive branch issued regulations, and the courts handed down rulings — all without clearing up the uncertainty.

Here is the situation as of today:

1. Can the government deny a passport to an American citizen without violating his constitutional rights?

Normally, no, but the answer is apparently yes, if the citizen is a criminal or a member of the Communist Party and is allowed to confront his accusers at a hearing.

The State Department started refusing passports to Communists as long ago as 1921.

In 1958, however, the Supreme Court ruled that there was a constitutional "right" to travel, which cannot be denied without due process of law.

As a result of that decision, about 500 Communists received passports.

Then, in 1961, the Supreme Court upheld another law making it illegal to issue passports to known Communists.

The administration has interpreted these two rulings to mean it cannot deny a passport to a Communist unless it is willing and able to prove its charges in a hearing.

Since much of the information about Communists comes from Secret FBI informants, the State Department has continued to issue passports to many Communists rather than expose government undercover agents.

The Supreme Court has not yet passed on the constitutionality of the detailed State Department regulations governing the denial of passports.

2. Can the government declare certain areas off-limits to American travelers?

Again, the answer is apparently yes, although the Supreme Court has not explicitly ruled on this question.

The U. S. Court of Appeals in 1959 said the State Department was justified in cancelling the passport of William Worthy, a Negro newspaperman who made a forbidden trip to Communist China.

The Supreme Court refused to review the case, thus tacitly upholding the government's authority to create restricted zones.

3. Can the government bring criminal charges against persons who violate State Department travel regulations?

This question is currently before the courts.

So far only one person has been convicted of the "crime" of traveling to a forbidden country. Worthy was found guilty by a federal court in Miami in 1962 of making an unauthorized trip to Cuba. The appeals court is now considering his case.

A Los Angeles woman is awaiting trial on a similar charge. The 58 "students" who went to Cuba this summer may provide more chances to test this law.

— 48 Groups —

(Continued from Page 1)

visiting speaker who is known to be a member of any Communist Party; or is known to have advocated the overthrow of the Constitution of the United States or the State of North Carolina; or is known to have pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the Constition of the United States in refusing to answer any question, with respect to Communist or subversive connections, or activities, before any duly constituted legislative committee, any judicial tribunal, or any executive or administrative board of the United States or any state.

"This policy shall be enforced by student representatives of student organizations authorized to invite visiting speakers and by any member of the faculty or administrative official who invites a visiting speaker to the campus."

According to Dr. Cathey the following student organizations are now authorized to invite visiting speakers

Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Beta Kappa, Arnold Air Society, Phi Eta Sigma, Campus Chest Committee, Phi Mu Olpha, Carolina Forum, Professional IFC, Communications Committee, Public Affairs Committee (Y), Consolidated University Student Council, Scabbard and Blade, Cosmopolitan Club, Senior Class President, Debating Team, State Affairs Committee, Di-Phi, and Student Legislature.

Also English Club, Student Party, Freshman Camp Committee, Student Peace Union, Freshman Forum Committee, Student Government President and Vice-President, Graham Memorial Activities Board, Supper Forum, Human Relations Committee, Carolina Symposium, Interfraternity Council, Toronto Exchange Committee, International Relations Committee, International Students Board, University Party, Law Student Association, and Valkyries.

Also NAACP, WUNC Radio, National Student Association, Young Democrats Club, New Left Club, Young Americans for Freedom, Order of the Golden Fleece, Young Republicans Club, Orientation Committee, YMCA, Panhellenic Council, and the YWCA.

DTH Staff Open

Daily Tar Heel co-editors Gary Blanchard and Dave Ethridge said yesterday that several positions on the newspaper are open and all new UNC students, especially freshmen, are encouraged to try out for them.

Several of the positions are paid, including reporting and editing assignments.

"Tar Heel people are in the middle of everything that happens on or around the campus," they said, "whether it's the latest Graham Memorial entertainment, politics, or a hot controversy."

They urged interested students —including those with no previous experience — to contact the Managing Editor in the DTH offices, second floor of Graham Memorial, any afternoon except Sundays.

Working hours for paid positions run from about 1:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., depending on the assignment.

The Tar Heel is in its 72nd year of complete editorial freedom. It is completely independent of the faculty, administration and Student Government.

Any student may work on the staff, and letters and columns for the editorial page are solicited from all members of the community.

Blanchard, a senior from Portland, Me., and Ethridge, a senior from Louisville, Ky., were elected editors last spring in a campus-wide election.

—Beer—

(Continued from Page Four)

ed the stem at me and began.

"Given ability and opportunity," he said, "the Secret of Success is two things. Now get this cause I ain't gonna repeat it. Them two things is (1) attitude is everything and (2) rules are just like tires, they ain't holy and they wear out in time and need changin'."

He continued: "I guarantee, if them kids—and you too, young feller—just remember that you'll never really go wrong and things will work out fine."

Government In Orange County, Chapel Hill & Carrboro

Municipal government in the area surrounding the University is operated on two levels: town and county.

Chapel Hill and Carrboro, separately incorporated but contiguous towns, each have their own municipal governments.

Chapel Hill is governed by a six-man Board of Aldermen and Mayor Sandy McClamroch. The Board meets twice a month, with the Mayor exercising only a tie-breaking vote. Town Manager Robert Peck and Town Clerk David Roberts also attend meetings. Meetings are held in the courtroom in Town Hall every second Monday and fourth Tuesday, except that in February, May, August and November the Board holds a joint quarterly hearing with the Chapel Hill Planning Board on the fourth Monday.

Subordinate agencies to the Board of Aldermen are:

Planning Board, responsible for zoning and the orderly growth of the town. Chairman is Ross Scroggs.

Board of Adjustment, responsible for hearing and adjudicating appeals from decisions by the Building Inspector. Chairman is Dr. J. T. Dobbins.

Chapel Hill Fire Commission, Eben Merritt and J. A. McMahon, members.

Chapel Hill Library Board, responsible for the administration of the Chapel Hill Public Library. Chairman is Mrs. Richmond P. Bond.

Housing Authority, responsible for the development and adminis'ration of low-cost public housing in Chapel Hill. Chairman is William Cherry.

Human Reations Committee, responsible for maintaining liaison between the local white and Negro populations and making recommendations to the Aldermen on interracial situations which might benefit from the Aldermen's attention or legislation. Chairman is the Rev. Loren B. Mead.

Police Department. Police Chief is William D. Blake

Fire Department. Fire Chief is James Stewart.

Assistant Town Manager is Donald Archer.

Building and Electrical Inspector is Frank C. Morrow.

Plumbing Inspector is William Ray.

Tax Collector is David Roberts.

Recreation Commission chairman is pending appointment.

Two agencies independent of the Aldermen are Chapel Hill Recorder's Court and the School Board of the Greater Chapel Hill Administrative School District.

Recorder's Court judge is William S. Stewart; assistant is Robert Midgette; Clerk of Court is B. J. Howard; Prosecutor is Roy Cole. Recorder's Court convenes Tuesdays and Fridays at 10 a.m.

The Board of Education holds jurisdiction over both Carrboro and Chapel Hill. There are six members and chairman Grey Culbreth. The School Board meets on the first Monday of every month. Superintendent of Schools is Howard Thompson.

Constable of Chapel Hill Township is Vernon Burch, who has jurisdiction over Carrboro as well.

Justices of the Peace in Chapel Hill are Mrs. James Farlow, Percy Quinlan, and Paul Robertson.

Carrboro's municipal government is similar to Chapel Hill's, though not as extensively organized.

Carrboro is governed by a six-man Board of Commissioners and Mayor C. T. Ellington. The Board meets once a month with Town Clerk R. B. Todd attending meetings. Meetings are held in the Mayor's office in the Carrboro Town Hall every second Tuesday.

Carrboro has no Human Relations Commission, and is included in Chapel Hill's School Board.

Building and Plumbing Inspector in Carrboro is Don Lowe, assistant is Calvin Burch.

Planning Board chairman is M. E. Manning.

Board of Adjustment chairman is Harold Dark.

Police Chief is John M. Llewellyn.

Chief of Carrboro's volunteer Fire Department is Robert Womble.

On the county level, Orange County is governed by a four-man Board of County Commissioners and chairman Donald Stanford, son of Orange County Board of Education chairman Charles Stanford. The Board meets once a month with Register of Deeds Miss Betty June Hayes and County Tax Supervisor Sam Gattis in the County Courthouse in Hillsboro.

The County Courthouse in Hillsboro, which houses many of the County's administrative agencies, can be telephoned direct, 942-6300.

Orange County Recorder's Court Judge is W. Marshall Smith of Chapel Hill; Clerk of Court is E. M. Lynch; Prosecutor is Lloyd Noell. County Recorder's Court convenes Wednesdays at 10 a.m.

The District Health Department is on Old Fraternity Row, facing the parking lot behind Hill Music Hall on the University campus. District Health Officer is Dr. O. David Garvin.

SHOP GLEN LENNOX

Fall is just around the corner, and everybody's buzzing 'bout the many new for fall values at Glen Lennox, where you'll conveniently find quality merchandise and services reasonably priced, and plenty of free parking . . . So plan to be an early bird. Come to Glen Lennox this Week!

Colonial Food Store

SELF-SERVICE LAUNDRY

Glen Lennox

LAUNDROMAT

SANITONE the Finest in Dry Cleaning

DRUG STORE

DENTAL NEEDS SAVE NOW

FIRST + AID + NEEDS

★ Prescriptions ★ Cosmetics ★ Post Office
★ Gifts ★ Tobaccos ★ Newsstand

GLEN LENNOX PHARMACY

BATH NEEDS

Stock-up on VITAMINS and SAVE!

BABY CARE SUPPLIES

In the Shopping Center Call 967-7014

DAIRY BAR

WELCOME

We invite you to make Glen Lennox YOUR shopping headquarters

Lennox Development Corporation

Owners-Operators — Glen Lennox Shopping Center
PHONE 967-7081

GIFTS–FURNITURE

Pace

Distinctive Gifts

Interior Design — Fabrics — Lamps
Crewel Embroidery Kits
Custom Framing
Scandinavian Furniture

DIAL 942-4921

BANKING

The Bank of Chapel Hill

Established 1899

GLEN LENNOX BRANCH

Complete Banking Facilities

Drive-Up Window Ample Free Parking

BEAUTY SHOP

Greet Fall with a Smart New Hair Style!

FACIALS • FROSTING

Call 968-1821

For Your Appointment

Glen Lennox Beauty Salon

Under the Management of MAE JACKSON, Stylist

GLEN LENNOX SHOPPING CENTER

Summer 1963: Reds, Racial And Resignations

By MIKE PUTZEL
In The Tar Heel

The N. C. General Assembly's passage of a highly controversial speaker ban law, demonstrations and sit-ins protesting local segregation and the resignations of Chancellor William B. Aycock and two deans highlighted the news in the University community this summer.

The speaker ban (which bars campus speaking facilities to known members of the Communist Party, persons known to advocate the overthrow of the United States or the state of North Carolina or persons who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution in refusing to answer questions with respect to communist or subversive activities) was only one of many issues which have sprung up concerning communism on the campus.

In late June, the N. C. Department of American Legion passed a resolution condemning the Progressive Labor Club formed here a year ago as "atheistic and hate-embittered" and called on University trustees and the General Assembly to investigate this "Communist organization."

University officials promptly answered the Legion's charges saying they had "no evidence that there is a Communist cell on campus."

A few days later, on June 25, supporters of a previously unmentioned speaker ban bill rushed it through both houses of the State Legislature and into law within a matter of minutes.

Controversy over the bill flared throughout the state as noted educators, public figures and newspapers went on record opposing the hasty measure. Consolidated University officials, the Board of Trustees, the State Board of Higher Education, Governor Terry Sanford, former Governor Luther Hodges and Dr. Frank Porter Graham were among the first to ask repeal or amendment of the law.

Passenge of the bill became a major issue with its supporters, including I. Beverly Lake and the state American Legion, quick to answer all opponents.

Two weeks after the Legislature's action more attention was focused on Chapel Hill when The Tar Heel learned that two former students at the University had flown to Cuba via Prague, Czechoslovakia, with 59 other American college students.

The two, Larry Phelps and John Salter, were members of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Progressive Labor Club. They face possible action by the State Department and an investigation by the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC) for violation of federal travel regulations.

A month ago the American Legion blasted the University once more when its executive committee charged UNC officials with violating a 1941 statute prohibiting campus speakers from advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

The law was broken, claimed the Legionnaires, when National Chairman of PL Milton Rosen, "a known subversive," was allowed to speak on campus.

Concern over the local PL Club was raised once again a week later when a staff investigator for HUAC appeared on campus gathering information on Phelps, Salter and other members of PL and the New Left Club, a campus discussion group.

Mass demonstrations and other civil rights activities were in the headlines all summer since the Committee for Open Business staged its first march in Chapel Hill on May 25, with about 350 Negro and white participants.

Though the COB had orinially listed about a dozen businesses as being segregated, a recent survey placed a total of 19 restaurants, gas stations, motels and other places of business on the boycott list.

Four businesses have desegregated since direct action plans were announced three months ago, making a total of some 300 retail establishments and service type organizations which operate without service restrictions due to race.

On July 19, COB members were arrested and charged with trespassing, blocking traffic or obstructing the sidewalk following incidents including a sit-in at the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants' Bureau and a simultaneous march downtown.

The sit-in, which occurred two weeks after the COB had staged its largest protest march of nearly 500 persons, marked the highest point of tension reached in local civil rights activities.

After the arrests, an 11-day truce was declared to allow time for a committee of anonymous the remaining segregating merbusinessmen to negotiate with chants. They reported back that they had made no progress, and the COB went back into the streets in a renewed appeal to the town's aldermen for a public accommodations ordinance.

Such a law had been proposed earlier in the summer by the Mayor's Committee on Integration, but the Board of Aldermen indefinitely postponed consideration of it on June 25. The COB had publicly favored passage of the statute since the time of its proposal.

Shortly after the Committee for Open Business staged a protest march through campus seeking University aid and leadership in the struggle for community integration, its activities came to an apparent standstill. The Executive Committee ousted its chairman, Harold Foster, and at least two of its members resigned in protest.

At an open meeting of the full committee on August 15, an attempt at reorganization failed, and the Committee for Open Business ceased all activities. However, a "unity meeting" called by Floyd McKissick of Durham the following night resulted in announcement of a new group. Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED), which immediately resumed demonstrations and said that it planned to explore other fields of activity such as voter registration.

On July 8, after a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, Consolidated University President Friday unexpectedly announced the resignation of Chancellor William B. Aycock.

The official announcement of the resignation, which becomes effective next September, said the Chancellor plans to return to his professorship in the Law School, but there arose immediate speculation throughout the state that he might be thinking of running for Governor in 1964 or 1968. Aycock has been Chancellor since 1957.

Also announced at the same time were the resignations of Dr. Walter Reece Berryhill, Dean of the UNC School of Medicine since 1941, and Dean of Student Affairs Charles Henderson.

Dr. C. O. Cathey was named to replace Dr. Henderson as Acting Dean of Student Affairs for a one-year period.

A fire of unknown origin caused extensive smoke and water damage to the Ramshead Rathskellar restaurant and Danziger's Old World Gift Shop on August 22. Damage was estimated at $70,000.

Radio & TV

Chapel Hill and Carrboro have a large number of receivable radio and television stations to choose from. Following is a directory of the stations most often heard in the community over normal radios and TV sets.

CHAPEL HILL

WCHL, 1360 am, daylight; AP news, local news coverage, popular music ranging from Broadway musical to classical.

WUNC, 91.5 fm, non-commercial, day and night; AP news, University news, various radio features not usually heard on commercial stations, good popular music including generous use of classical.

WUNC-TV, Channel 4, non-commercial, day and night; AP news, University news, National Educational Television network programs, locally produced programs, other features emanating from the other two WUNC studios in Raleigh and Greensboro, and North Carolina In-School TV programs.

DURHAM

WDNC, 620 am-fm, day and night; CBS news, varied popular music.

WTIK, 1310 am-fm, day and night; ABC news, top forty music.

WSRC, 1410 am, day and night; AP news, top forty music.

WSSB, 1490 am, 24-hour broadcasting; AP news, top forty music.

WTVD, Channel 11, day and night; CBS news, local coverage, CBS and NBC programming.

Welcome Students

. . . To Chapel Hill's Shopping Center Where Quality Costs You Less

DORMITORY NEEDS . . .
Sheets
Towels
Pillow Cases
Rugs
Bed Spreads
Curtains

CLOTHING NEEDS . . .
Leading Brands
Top Quality
First In Styles

Use Our Charge Account Or Lay-a-way Service

SAVE SAVE

—Open Friday Night Till 8:30—

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

HUGGINS' OFFERS YOU...

- Free Parking
- Self or Clerk Service
- Free Delivery Service
- Charge Accounts
- Gift Wrapping
- Mail-Wrap Service
- Enter Our Back Door Next to Free Parking Lot

WIDE RANGE OF

Exciting, Unusual and Useful Gifts

YOUR ONE-STOP SHOPPING CENTER

for

- ☐ Art Supplies
- ☐ Artificial Flowers and Fruit
- ☐ Bathroom Accessories
- ☐ Brassware
- ☐ Bar Accessories
- ☐ Candles
- ☐ Cards
- ☐ China
- ☐ Cleaning Supplies
- ☐ Clocks
- ☐ Crystal
- ☐ Curtain Rods
- ☐ Cutlery
- ☐ Electrical Supplies
- ☐ Flashlights and Batteries
- ☐ Floor Mats
- ☐ Gadgets
- ☐ Gifts
- ☐ Glassware
- ☐ Garden Supplies
- ☐ Glass Cookware
- ☐ Handmade Baskets
- ☐ Handmade Woodcraft
- ☐ Hand Tools
- ☐ Hardware
- ☐ House Numbers
- ☐ Housewares
- ☐ Ironing Boards
- ☐ Keys Made
- ☐ Kitchenware
- ☐ Lawn Supplies
- ☐ Mirrors
- ☐ Outdoor Cooking Needs
- ☐ Paint
- ☐ Pegboard Fittings
- ☐ Plaques
- ☐ Pepper Mills
- ☐ Pet Supplies
- ☐ Place Mats
- ☐ Rental Equipment
- ☐ Rubbermaid Goods
- ☐ Stainless Steel Flatware
- ☐ Stuart Nye Jewelry
- ☐ Student Lamps
- ☐ Sunbeam Appliances
- ☐ Thermometers
- ☐ Trays
- ☐ Window Shades
- ☐ Woodenware
- ☐ Wrought Iron Gifts

SHOP AND SAVE AT

FREE PARKING WHILE YOU SHOP WITH HUGGINS'

HUGGINS HARDWARE

SELF-SERVICE OR ASK FOR CLERK SERVICE

107 EAST FRANKLIN

Carolina Playmakers Open 46th Season On October 23

Director of The Carolina Playmakers, Harry Davis, explains the process of exchanging season ticket coupons for reserved seat tickets to Mrs. Helen Heriford, first purchaser of the current season. Posters in the background announce the five major productions which the Playmakers will offer this year: "Little Mary Sunshine," a musical; Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Jorney into Night;" "The Busy Martyr," a new comedy; Archibald MacLeish's poetic drama, "J. B.," and "The Braggart Soldier," by Plautus. Season tickets are now on sale on the campus at 214 Abernethy Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickards.

The Carolina Playmakers will open their 46th season with the production of the musical comedy spoof "Little Mary Sunshine" at The Playmakers Theatre on October 23 for a five-night run. A recent off-Broadway hit, "Little Mary Sunshine" pokes gentle fun at the trite and the hackneyed in musical comedy situations and characters. Director Foster Fitz-Simons has scheduled tryouts for the first production for Monday, September 23, at 4:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

Other productions scheduled for the 1963-64 season are: "Long Day's Journey Into Night," November 20-24; "The Busy Martyr," a new play, February 12-16; "J. B.", March 11-15; and "The Braggart Soldier," May 8-10.

In "Long Day's Journey Into Night," his last major work, Eugene O'Neill has left behind a play of monumental simplicity, distilled from the tragedy of his own life.

The current selection of the Southeastern Theatre Conference as its new play of the year is "The Busy Martyr." This new comedy, scheduled for a February production, is by George Hitchcock.

Written by Archibald MacLeish, "J.B." is the dramatic retelling of the immortal story of Job in modern times.

Plautus' "The Braggart Soldier," the Playmakers' outdoor production in The Forest Theatre, closes the current season on a note of farce-comedy.

Season tickets are on sale at The Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall (next to the Scuttlebutt), and at Ledbetter-Pickard in downtown Chapel Hill.

Improvements Aid Campus

Students returning to the campus this fall will find the results of a summer of campus renovation as well as the completion of unfinished projects.

Working on the theory that "if you keep replacing things, depreciation will be reduced," John Bennett, director of operations, said that $100,000 has been spent for routine improvements.

Included under routine improvements are the brick walks that have been built to replace student - improvised paths, repainting of walls and replacement of damaged furniture.

"Over 800 beds alone have been purchased," Bennett said, attributing partial cause of this expenditure to student abuse.

Of special interest to students is the air conditioning of additional sections of the undergraduate library.

Highlighting improvements is the completion of Mitchell Hall, the new $1,500,000 geology building, which has been under construction for two years.

In addition 84 new married student apartments in Victory Village were completed September 1. They replace 34 wooden structures which have been condemned.

BIGGEST ERUPTION

The greatest volcanic eruption witnessed by man occurred in 1815 on Sumbawa, an island east of Java, according the Collier's Encyclopedia. The explosions from Tambora Volcano lasted a week, were heard 1,000 miles away, threw about 24 cubic miles of material into the air, and created three days of complete darkness for a distance of 300 miles.

Stage Season To Open With Show Tonight

Although the season does not officially open until October 23, with the production of "Little Mary Sunshine," The Carolina Playmakers are getting off to a head start this fall with a production planned for new students at the University during the orientation period.

Featuring three veteran Carolina Playmakers, Foster Fitz-Simons, Marion Fitz-Simons, and William Trotman, "A Time For Love" will be presented in the Playmakers Theatre tonight at 8:30. The production is composed of scenes from several different plays, all having to do with the central theme of love.

Foster Fitz-Simons, associate director of The Carolina Playmakers, has acted in and directed many Playmakers productions, and has just completed his thirteenth season as choreographer and associate director of "Unto These Hills" in Cherokee. His wife, Marion, also appears in "Unto These Hills" as Mrs. Perkins, and her performances with the Playmakers have been both numerous and memorable.

William Trotman, director of The Institute of Outdoor Drama in Chapel Hill, aside from having worked extensively with the Playmakers, has also been associated with the Alley Theatre, Houston, Texas, as actor and designer, and with the Erie Playhouse in Erie, Pa.

"A Time For Love" is being presented for one performance only, and all new students at the University are invited to attend.

PLAYWRIGHT PAUL GREEN

Chapel Hill Playwright Paul Green will write a play for the Bennett Place centennial celebration in Durham on April 26, 1965.

The play will cover closing scenes of the Civil War brought about by the signing of the Johnston-Sherman peace treaty. Unity will serve as the central theme of the play.

R. O. Everett, Durham attorney, said Green will present plans for his play at a meeting in the Jack Tar Hotel Sept. 19 of the Durham-Orange Historical Society and the Bennet. Place Memorial Commission.

FRIGIDAIRE
Appliances
Sales and Service

OIL BURNER
Sales and Service

Serving
Chapel Hill-Carrboro Since 1939
BENNETT & BLOCKSIDGE
Incorporated
105 E. Franklin
Chapel Hill
Phone 942-5141

Gulf
FUEL OIL
and COAL

Used
REFRIGERATORS
and RANGES
For Sale or Rent

TEXT BOOKS (New And Used)

Course Outlines (New And Used)

Translations

Paper Backs

ART BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS
MUSIC BOOKS

Medical Books

Bargain Books

HUMOR BOOKS
HISTORY BOOKS
BIOGRAPHY BOOKS

OLD BOOKS

RARE BOOKS

BEST SELLERS

COMPLETE BOOK SERVICE AT NORTH CAROLINA'S NO. 1 ALL-AROUND BOOKSHOP

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St. OPEN SUNDAY OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 10 Next to the Varsity Theatre

Frosh English Course Changed

Entering freshmen, generally better prepared each year than the one before, are expected to find UNC's two required composition and rhetoric courses more challenging and stimulating than ever before.

The courses will still be directed toward developing the ability to write well, but subject matter will be from good English literature rather than the "source-books" dealing with psychological and sociological problems used in the past, according to Dr. James Gaskin, director of freshman and sophomore English programs.

"Fundamental grammar problems will be solved more frequently in private conferences than before, so that classes can be devoted to literature and composition," he said.

Students in a pilot program of the new courses last spring, answered an anonymous questionnaire which showed "more mass enthusiasm than I ever saw for a hard-work course," Dr. Gaskin said. This group was not quite typical of the entering freshman class, however; many were taking the course for the second or third time. "They had despised English before," the program's director beamed.

Teachers for the pilot program were chosen to represent those the "average freshman" would get by going through routine registration. Half were experienced professors and half were relatively inexperienced at teaching.

One reason given for the success of the program is that teachers who have spent years specializing in literature can offer more enthusiastic help about literary topics than about a field with which they are not as well acquainted.

Composition handbooks used in the past as textbooks will be used more as reference works under the new program. Grammar faults will be detected and corrected in the student's themes, rather than in grammar workbooks.

"The Story at Work," a recently published anthology of short stories edited by Jessie Rehder, UNC specialist in creative writing, will be one of the major textbooks.

Books by John Steinbeck and Edith Wharton are two other literary works in the first semester course.

The second course will consist of "a comprehensive and entertaining group of works," according to Dr. Gaskin. Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby," Twain's "Huck Finn," Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," Shakespeare's "Othello," and MacLeish's "J. B." will be read and analyzed for half of the semester. An anthology of poetry will be the center of attention as students gain ability to enjoy it.

Flexibility will be one of the major advantages of Dr. Gaskin's program. The material can be varied easily to allow for particular weaknesses in students.

This fall there will be between 95 and 100 sections of the required freshman courses, English 1 and 2, with more than 65 teachers teaching, he added.

UNC Orders Fluoridation Equipment

The University of North Carolina has ordered fluoridation equipment to treat the Chapel Hill area water supply, Chancellor William B. Aycock said yesterday.

The action came despite the threat of renewed legal action to halt the water treatment. "We're not waiting on any pending action," the Chancellor said.

Meanwhile, attorney Harold Edwards said he is preparing a new suit aimed at stopping fluoridation. A week ago, Mr. Edwards' client, Mr. Manning Simons, in effect lost an earlier suit on a legal technicality.

"We're going to fluoridate unless we're stopped," Chancellor Aycock said referring to future legal action.

The equipment, being orderd from a Providence, R. I., firm, will cost $4,174. Its purchase was approved through the State Division of Purchase and Contract when the University first announced it intended to fluoridate three years ago.

Rev. Tom Davis Resigns As Secretary Of UNC YMCA

Tom Davis, YMCA Chaplain here for three years, recently announced his resignation. Davis said he plans to enter Duke University Divinity School this fall for one year to study for his Master of Theology degree.

"In these three years, I've really come to love the University," Davis said. "It is willing to take the risk of letting the students express all their opinions on society. It is willing to let them be a prophetic voice," he said.

"The Biblical understanding of the world talks about God working and changing society, and the University allows students to think about and work for change," he said.

Davis is married and has a 12-week old son, Tommy. He met his wife while both were studying at Union Theological Seminary in New York. He completed his undergraduate work at Dartmouth College in 1956.

The Scranton, Pa., native said he plans to continue working with college students after finishing his work at Duke.

"College students are the most flexible in our society," Davis said, "and are more likely to consider new ways men might live together more peacefully." That's why Davis decided to enter college chaplaincy, he said.

He said his most memorable experience in the "Y" here has been watching the YMCA Cabinet become a strong group, willing to face controversy.

The "Y" seems "like something of an anachronism, something from the 19th century," Davis said, "but on this campus it is a dynamic movement, where students feel free to raise their own money, their own issues, and take their own risks."

"The college age is a time when students rebel against the church, as perhaps they should, but it is also the age at which you can help them understand the Biblical understanding of man, both in politics and society," he said.

Davis has been active in community work including the Orange County Democratic Party and the Committee for Open Business.

MICHAEL KALEN BERKUT

Michael Kalen Berkut of the School of Medicine is a biochemist with the Medical Research Branch of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in Washington.

LIBRARY HOURS

The Louis R. Wilson Library is open Monday-Friday from 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and 2-10 p.m. Sundays.

LENOIR HAILL HOURS

The Lenoir Hall cafeteria is open daily from 7-11 a.m. for breakfast, 11 a.m.-2 p.m. for lunch and 5-7:15 p.m. for dinner.

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

The Pine Room cafeteria is open Monday-Friday 7-9:30 a.m. for breakfast, 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. for lunch and 5-7:30 p.m. for dinner.

The Pine Room Snack Bar is open Monday-Friday from 7 a.m.-12 p.m. and 4-12 p.m. on Sundays.

During the month of September with each shampoo and set we will give a FREE HAIR-CUT to all new customers.
Seven Stylists to serve you.
Complete Style ..... only $2.50

Eastgate Beauty Salon

Call 942-1396

for an appointment

GRAND OPENING
J.W. PAGE'S
AMERICAN SEVICE

At Eastgate Shopping Center

Thurs.- Fri. - Sat., Sept. 19, 20, 21
Hours: 7 a.m. 'til 11 p.m. Mon.-Sat.
1 pm. 'til 6 p.m. Sunday

FREE PRIZES

No obligation – Drawing Monday, Sept. 23
You do not have to be present to win

Set of 4 Atlas
Silver Dollars – 40, 30, 20 & 10
6 Underwater Lamps

FREE
★ 6 Bottle Ctn. of Coke with every 8 gallons of gas.
★ Balloons & Lollipops

OFFERING

- American Gas
- Atlas
  - –Tires
  - –Batteries
  - –Other Accessories
- Complete Auto Service

FREE PANCAKE BREAKFAST
at Eastgate
Saturday Morning, September 21

Fowler's
Food Store
CHAPEL HILL
West Franklin St.

Fowler's is Chapel Hill's only locally owned supermarket and through the past 30 years has grown along with Chapel Hill and the University. Fowler's has only been able to do this because of the advantages offered customer's due to personal attention and reasonable prices.

Fowler's Food Store

WELCOME TO
CHAPEL HILL

ATTENTION GLEN LENNOX, VICTORY VILLAGE . . .

FOWLER'S has a complete line of Meats, Groceries, and party supplies.

FOWLER'S has always been a quality store and carries the best brands. The brands which you know.

FOWLER'S Meats are all A-1 First Choice and are cut by our Meat Department to give you the best cuts available–Just a part of our personal attention.

Stock-Your-Pantry

Fowler's Deliveries . . . . Call 942-3116

SACKS OF SAVINGS
ON TOP QUALITY FOODS

LENOIR HALL AND THE PINE ROOM

WELCOME TO U·N·C

Lenoir Hall Serving

- BREAKFAST
  Hours — 7-11
- LUNCH
  Hours — 11-2
- DINNER
  Hours — 5-7:15

AIR-CONDITIONED

Always Remember
The Student Special

- Meat
- Your Choice of Two Vegetables
- Hot Rolls
- Iced Tea or Coffee

ALL FOR ONLY

40c

THE PINE ROOM IS READY TO SERVE YOU

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

- Breakfast Hours — 7-9:15
- Lunch Hours — 11-2
- Dinner Hours — 5-7:15

SOME OF YOUR FAVORITE DISHES

- Prime Rib Roast
- Charcoal Steaks
- Charcoal Hamburgers
- Pizza Slices
- Rotisserie Cooked Chicken

Serving Continually from 7 a.m. till Midnight
Sunday 4 till Midnight

- PINE ROOM'S HOT DOGS . . 10c
- Lasagna
- Pizza
- Spaghetti
- Sandwiches

WELCOME FRESHMEN

Buildings To Cost 19 Million Dollars

Building improvements and additions here for the immediate future are expected to total at least $19 million, University Business Manager J. A. Branch announced.

The N. C. General Assembly voted this spring to appropriate $9 million for capital improvements here for the next two years. UNC officials had requested $13.9 million from the State.

An additional $11 million will come from other sources including federal grants, the already-announced dorm rent increases, income from student activity fees, and utilities owned by UNC, Branch said.

Construction of five new buildings and additions to three others are scheduled to begin next summer. Renovations willl be made in three more campus buildings, and a $1,380,000 addition to the heating plant near Cameron Avenue will be built to supply the heating needs of the new structures. Income from University-owned utilities will pay the costs of the heating plant addition, he said.

Two and a half million dollars was appropriated for a proposed nine-story men's dormitory. The new dorm will have a planned capacity of 925 students and will be located near Craige and Ehringhaus.

The remainder of the cost of the new dorm will be liquidated over a 40-year period through the $20-per-student-per-year increase in room rent which goes into effect this fall.

Also, $1,100,000 was voted for a combined Cafeteria and Service Building, which will be built near the new men's dorm.

A new undergraduate library building will be constructed adjoining the present Wilson Library, at a cost of $1,315,000.

New Student Center Proposed

The same architect who is designing the library addition is also planning a new student center. There is no state appropriation for the student center, but the loan covering its construction expenses will be repaid out of the receipts from student activity fees.

A $1,230,000 addition will be added to the east side of Woollen Gym. This addition will bring the total seating capacity to 9,000.

All varsity basketball home games will be played in the addition, which is in the planning stage now; allowing floor space to be utilized by the physical education and intramural athletic departments.

This space had previously been occupied during the winter months by temporary bleachers. The proposed addition is also expected to include a stage platform which can be used for entertainment purposes.

A $903,000 wing will be added to Davie Hall, and construction of a $1 million addition to Wilson Hall (Zoology) will begin next year. The old part of Phillips Hall will be modernized at a cost of $460,000, including the installation of acoustic paneling in one large lecture hall.

McNider Hall to be Converted

The ground floor of McNider Hall in the Medical School will be converted for the teaching of the basic sciences.

The social science reading room and part of the staff rooms in Wilson Library will be air-conditioned at a cost of $65,000. The air-conditioning compressors in the library stacks are now being replaced and the air-conditioning ducts brought up to date.

An Ambulatory Patient Center will be built adjoining the present Medical Center at a total cost of $7.5 million.

The state is providing only one-third of this amount, Branch said, and the remaining $5 million will come from federal grants and donations.

Also $390,000 has been appropriated for construction of a Center for motionally Disturbed Children, which will probably be located near the present Psychiatric Center.

The total of expenditures for all construction may reach to $20,042,000 if proposed federal grant programs now pending in Congress are enacted.

Most of the proposed project cost figures are of necessity tailored to match state appropriations, he noted.

The figures are only estimates, since the majority of the contractors vying for these construction projects have not yet submitte dtheir bids, Branch said.

University Planning To Buy Old House

The University is waiting for approval from the Department of Administration in Raleigh for the purchase of Booker Place, the one-time residence of former University President Kemp Plummer Battle.

Located on Senlac Road near the women's dormitories, the wooden-frame house and the 2.14 acres surrounding it have been appraised at $100.000.

University Business Manager J. A. Branch said the property is well located for University expansion, and although the University does not have an immediate project in mind for the property, it would be profitable to purchase it now.

Branch expressed concern that the Department might question the amount required for the purchase.

Negotiations for the property, following state-approved procedures, have been going on since July 8 when the Trustees authorized the University to apply to the Department of Administration for allocation of funds from the State Land Purchase Fund.

If the purchase is approved by the Department it will be presented to the Governor and the Council of State. If approved by them, the offer will be sent to the Booker heirs.

John Manning, attorney for the Booker estate, said, "No other offers are being considered until the University reaches a decision. Mrs. Booker expressed a desire that the University be given the first opportunity."

Mrs. Booker died in April, 1961. Since then the executors of her estate have been waiting for the University to consider the purchase.

Negotiations were held up by the 1961 General Assembly when it failed to allocate funds for expenditures of this nature.

The 1963 legislature allocated funds, but the Department of Administration must decide on their use.

Spiders are nearsighted.

TEXTBOOKS, STUDY AIDS—EVERYTHING
Five Points Durham, N. C.
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
"South's Larget & Most Complete Bookstore"

CHAPEL HILL . . .

Where a Camera and Plenty of Film are Musts!

FAST SERVICE

BLACK & WHITE PHOTO-FINISHING

Our Kodachrome and Ektachrome Processed by

EASTMAN KODAK

FOISTER'S CAMERA STORE

161 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-3026

Your Photographic Headquarters in Chapel Hill

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

We Buy, Sell and Exchange all Kind of Text and Other Books
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.

Welcome New Students to Chapel Hill and the SHARYN LYNN SHOPPE

We hope you girls will stop in and browse

We Specialize in Popular Price Sportswear and Casual Wear in the College Fashions . . .
Sizes from 3 to 18

- BLOUSES—Roll Sleeve, Long Sleeve, Bermuda Collar, Button Collar.
- SKRTS — Pleated, Straight, Coachman, "A" Skirts—All available in Dacron, Cotton or Wool
- SHIFT DRESSES
- SHIFT JUMPERS
- CASUAL DRESSES
- Jackets
- SLAX
- Playtex BRAS
- Maidenform BRAS
- Lingerie
- Leather Ring BELTS
- Stretch BELTS

Mrs. Clark & Mrs. Cannady will be pleased to help with your needs & desires

SHARYN LYNN SHOPPE

135 E. Franklin 123 E. Main St.–Durham

Welcome to

a Pleasant Inn Of a Great University In a Good Town

A good place to stay, to dine, to entertain or just visit and enjoy the congenial homelike atmosphere. For your convenience and pleasure we offer clean and comfortable guest rooms, appetizing and wholesome food in our main dining room—The Hill Room—and in our cafeteria. Private dining rooms are available for parties, banquets, meetings and dances

You Are Invited To Hospitable

CAROLINA INN

Owned and Operated by the University of North Carolina

UNC's Student Government Has Strengths, Weaknesses

By THE DTH STAFF

UNC's student government means many things to many people, and nothing to a good many others.

To some students it is always the defender of "student autonomy;" to others it is a device for the self-propagation of the "big men on campus;" and to others it's an unrealistic game played in Graham Memorial by so-called student politicoes. And, of course, it's usually all three.

UNC's self-governing apparatus is venerable and respected, and as orientation counselors never tire of telling freshmen, many students are quite proud of their student government.

Many of the nation's top student "leaders" have come from Carolina — partially a result of the remarkable degree of student government independence, allowing students to mature more rapidly by dealing with their own problems and those of their peers.

But the flaws in the system are many. Rarely does the student government here purposely deal with issues of a controversial nature or off-campus affairs.

An obvious exception has been the efforts for desegregation of Southern universities, on which student leaders have usually given strong support for more than a decade.

Evolved from Debating Societies

The present form of student government evolved from the old debating societies, which handled discipline and other student problems.

The Honor System was instituted in 1875 and students have played a major role in enforcing it since its creation. Decisions handed down by student judicial bodies are usually accepted by the administration and faculty.

Members of the Men's and Women's Councils are elected from geographically apportioned districts in the fall and spring. Freshmen are eligible to run for the Councils if they gain endorsement by the Honor System Commission.

The legislative and executive departments of UNC student government are younger, historically, than the judiciary and sometimes, more erratic.

The party system (with two—the University Party and Student Party) is the basis of the campus political setup.

Both parties nominate candidates for the 50-member Student Legislature (which appropriates the $163,000 annual budget derived from student fees) and the executive offices: president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, each spring.

In addition the parties choose candidates for the class officer positions—these are largely ceremonial positions, with little money and not much power.

The excutive department includes the more than 20 SG committees, dealing with academic, cultural and political affairs.

The president has the power to appoint all committee members, with legislative approval, and may veto a legislative bill, although his veto is rarely used and may be overridden by the Legislature.

Political Parties

The political parties, like the national parties, contain dissimilar elements within themselves. The Student Party is generally thought of as the "dorm party," although it often runs fraternity members for office and is open to any student. The SP in the past has pushed for consideration of controversial, or off-campus resolutions.

The University Party is usually tagged the "fraternity party." Party officers regularly disclaim this.

In last spring's election Student Party candidates swept thre of the four executive offices — Mike Lawler, president; Bonnie Hoyle, secretary and Dick Akers, treasurer. Bob Spearman, running on the University Party ticket, was elected student body vice-president.

* * *

"Student autonomy" has been a student government cry for several years—the concept deriving its popularity from its apparent independence and rebellion from reputed administration "maternalism."

Both political parties and all segments of the student government are working in some way to make self-government more just, while staying efficient . . . at the same time allowing for the personal ambition which is always present in that world of "student politics."

UNC's Honor System Is In It's 88th Year

This year marks the 88th year of the Honor System at the University.

UNC adopted the Honor System in 1875. It came about like Student Government and the Student Legislature, mostly because of the Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Literary Society.

The system now handles, through the Men's Council, Women's Council, Law School Court, Medical School Court and Dental School Court, practically all of the disciplinary action in the University.

The constitution demands that at least six members of a council sit in on a case. A two-thirds majority is neded to convict a student. The same two-thirds majority is needed to convict a or expel a defendant who has been convicted. A simple majority is sufficient for lesser penalties.

All defendants are guaranteed the right to face accusers upon request. They are also guaranteed that they will be considered innocent until proven guilty.

Defendants must be notified of hearings at least three days before they take place, and they must also be told who is to sit in on the hearing.

Defendants are guaranteed the right to disqualify members of the judicial body from sitting in on cases.

Either the Attorney General's office appoints a defense counsel or the defendant appoints his own council. Any defendant is allowed to serve as his own counsel.

The defendant is also guaranteed the right to sit in on all testimony and to question anything that is said.

A student who has been tried has the right to refuse re-trial on the same accusation, he has also the right to ask for a separate trial when a group is being tried.

Last year there were over a hundred cases tried by the Men's Council. Sixty per cent of them were Honor Code violations, most of which involved cheating by freshmen and sophomores who plagiarized. There were less than a hundred cases tried by the Women's Council.

The punishment for Honor violations and Campus Code violations varies from expulsion to official reprimand.

Any sentence that involves cheating results in an automatic "F" in the course involved.

A student who is suspended before final examinations loses all credit for the courses he is taking and still gets an "F" in the course in which he cheated. If he has completed final examinations before being suspended he is allowed full credit in the courses he has not cheated in.

There are five different grades of punishment for offenses: Official Reprimand, Indefinite Probation, Definite Probation, Indefinite Suspension, and Definite Suspension.

The violations are written down at the back of the student's records. The Women's Council may also impose Council Reprimand, Social Probation, and Strict Social Probation.

Accused students can postpone hearings on the grounds that they were not charged with any specific offense, or that they were not fully informed of their charges.

Accused students can also move to terminate hearings on the grounds that the proceedings are not being properly carried out or that the council hearing the case has no jurisdiction over it.

Last fall the student body voted, in an all-campus referendum, to allow two Daily Tar Heel reporters to attend all trials, unless the defendant requests otherwise. Reports are then printed in the paper giving a detailed account of the trial excluding the name the defendant's name and details which could be used to identify the student.

WELCOME TO THE CLASS OF '67

Wentworth & Sloan

QUALITY

For the Student

QUALITY

Chapel Hill's Quality Jewelers

★ Clocks
★ UNC Charms
★ Fountain Pens
★ Lighters

167 W. Franklin St.

University Florist and Gift Shop

124 E. FRANKLIN ST.

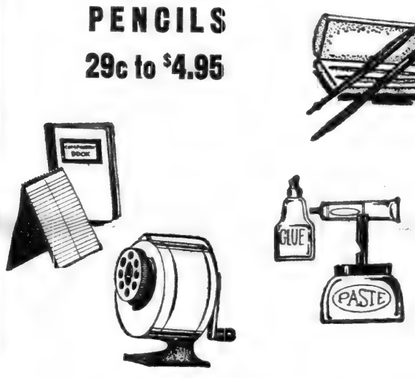
Buy All Your COLLEGE And STATIONERY Supplies from Sutton's

Here are only a few of the many college essentials you'll find at Sutton's. Make Sutton's your headquarters.

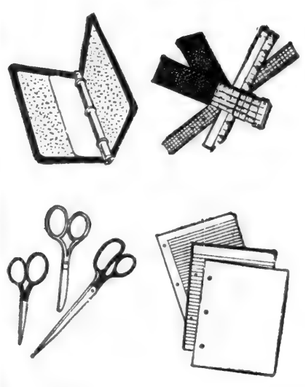
AUTOMATIC PENCILS 29c to $4.95

2-COLOR BALL POINT PEN 29c

Nationally Famous PENS, PEN & PENCIL SETS $1.00—$22.50

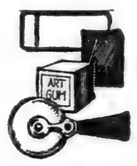


Rubber Cement ..... 39c
Scotch Tape ..... 25c up
Brief Cases ..... $3.98 up
Two and Three Ring Note Books .... 59c to $3.98
All Sizes, Spiral Composition Books 10c-75c
Art Paper ..... 25c
Five Ring Note Book Paper . 10c to 98c



STUDY LAMPS ..... $2.95 up
ALARM CLOCKS ..... $2.98 up

Compasses ..... 23c
Protractors ..... 5c up
Staplers ..... 98c up
Scissors ..... 59c up



PLASTIC SOAP DISHES ..... 15c up
SQUIBB ELECTRIC TOOTHBRUSHES
WASTE BASKETS ..... 98c up

● 50 Sheets UNC MONOGRAM STATIONERY
● 65 Envelopes to match U.N.C. Tablet 39c
● Boxed STATIONERY

Dorothy Gray
Helena Rubenstein
Revlon
Lanvin Perfume
Chanel
Guerlain
and Others

from 29c to $1.59
● Plastic TUMBLERS 10c up
COSMETICS
Elizabeth Arden

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

159 East Franklin —:— Phone 942-4861

IMPORTED CARS, Ltd.
Says
SCOUT AROUND
Stop by and test drive a Scout by International Harvester.
IMPORTED CARS, Ltd.
301 E. Main St., Carrboro
PHONE 942-7151

Welcome Carolina Freshmen . . .
SAVE!!
VISIT THE RECORD BAR
108 Henderson St.
Chapel Hill
(3 Doors off Franklin Street—Across From Post Office)
Durham
Church & Parish St.

25% Off LP Albums
EVERYDAY

Hi Fi & Stereo L.P's
All $3.98 ..... Only $2.98
All $4.98 ..... Only $3.75
All $5.98 ..... Only $4.50
All 45 rpm's ... 97c—One Free with 10 (your choice)

UNC OPENING SPECIALS
(Stereo & Hi Fi)
All French LP's ..... 50% off
All Kingston Trio ..... 50% off
(Angel & Capital with French Artists & Composers)

LATEST RELEASES
FINEST VARIETY
Largest, Most Complete Record Shop In The South
RECORD BAR
108 Henderson St., Chapel Hill, N. C.
Corner Church & Parish Sts.—Durham
Everything Guaranteed — Courteous Service Assured

WEEJUNS* by Bass

FOR MEN... and WOMEN

FOR MEN $15.95 Plus tax

FOR WOMEN $11.95 Plus tax

Colors—Brown, Red, Cordovan, Black,

Navy, Green, Brown Tassels

LACOCK'S SHOE SHOP

143 E. Franklin St.

Everything in Shoe Repairing

We have NROTC Shoes in Both Brown

and Black

Effective In December

University To Get Own Phone Number

The University will get a phone of its own this fall.

There has never been a "University of North Carolina" listed in the Chapel Hill phone book; all departments and staff members have been listed individually.

This has made it inconvenient and expensive for an out-of-towner who wanted to call the University but didn't know exactly who he wanted to talk to.

"Centrex" is the name of the new University Telephone System, which will provide a central UNC information operator available at any hour of day or night. She will be able to connect incoming calls to any campus phone and transfer the caller from one number to another without his having to redial.

The new system will provide approximately twice the telephone service the University now receives. At present there are 400 lines serving 1,300 phones. Plans call for a 600-line plant for academic departments and 1,600 lines for Health Affairs, with possible expansion to a total of 1,000 lines.

The Academic Affairs Centrex system will be ready in September, and installation of Health Affairs lines will take another year.

Under the present system, with one phone serving as many as 18 people in some departments, elaborate buzzer systems have had to be set up to call people from different floors to the phone.

All academic branches and departments will have a 7-digit number starting with "933". Health Affairs numbers will carry the prefix "966".

Any student or staff member may dial another campus number by dialing the last five numbers.

To make a local call to a non-campus Chapel Hill number he will dial all seven numbers. He'll get long distance by dialing "9-0" and the University operator by dialing "0".

There are no immediate plans for changes in dormitory service, but day and night access to the central switchboard will make it easier for parents to get in touch with sons and daughters in case of emergency.

At present dormitories are served by 135 coin-operated telephones — about one phone for every 32 students. The administration is currently considering a suggestion that telephones be installed in the rooms of one or more dormitories.

Students desiring telephones in their rooms could be assigned to one of these dorms and charged a special fee.

Next year's Chapel Hill phone book will list the University of North Carolina, with all departments alphabetically under it.

Coed Is Cleared Of Manslaughter Charge

Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Judge William S. Stewart recently dismissed an involuntary manslaughter case against a UNC coed.

Stewart found no probable caused in the case against Mary C. Saunders of Gastonia, on the grounds that the state failed to prove culpable negligence and had not established a direct casual relationship between the traffic death and the accident in which Miss Saunders was involved.

W. Frank Edwards of Chapel Hill died two weeks after being struck Aug. 13 in the parking lot of a drive-in frozen custard stand. The car that struck him was driven by Miss Saunders.

Police reports of the accident indicated that Miss Saunders was backing across the lot and did not see Edwards, on foot, rounding a corner of the custard stand.

TURKISH TEXTBOOK

A UNC professor's textbook has just been translated into its third foreign language Turkish.

The text, entitled "The Field of Social Work," was written by Dr. Arthur B. Fink, dean of UNC's School of Social Work. It's Turkish title is "Sosyal Hizmet Alani." The Book was written in collaboration with Everett E. Wilson of Yeshiva University, and Merrill B. Conover of the Health and Welfare Council, Inc.

TWO GRADUATES COMMISSIONED

Two August graduates of the University have received commissions in the U. S. Air Force. Lt. Col. Kage, Air Force ROTC commander in the University awarded second lieutenant commissions early this month to William H. Holderness Jr., Greensboro; and Reginald A. Pinson, Lenoir.

Enroll At REGISTRATION

In Your

STUDENT ACCIDENT & SURGICAL INSURANCE PLAN

FULL 12 MONTH COVERAGE – $8.00

Call 942-4358 or See

George L. Coxhead

Over The Dairy Bar

We are pleased to have been selected again by the University Administration and the Student Government to provide this protection for the students of the University.

THE PILOT

Pilot Life Insurance Company

Greensboro, North Carolina

THE CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS

46th SEASON

Little Mary Sunshine

OCTOBER 23, 24, 25, 26, 27

Rick Besoyan provided the book, music, and lyrics for this merry and sprightly spoof of musical comedy situations and characters from the days of the Viennese Waltz down to our own era.

The Playmakers Theatre

Tickets $2.00

Long Day's Journey Into Night

NOVEMBER 20, 21, 22, 23, 24

In searing simplicity, Eugene O'Neill makes an incision which lays bare the tragic mixture of emotions in the lives of those who, according to legend, were involved in his own life.

The Playmakers Theatre

Tickets $2.00

The Busy Martyr

FEBRUARY 12, 13, 14, 15, 16

This bright and entertaining comedy by George Hitchcock is full of laughs and some notable insights. The current selection of the South Eastern Theatre Conference as their NEW play-of-the-year.

The Playmakers Theatre

Tickets $2.00

J. B.

MARCH 11, 12, 13, 14, 15

Archibald MacLeish won a Pulitzer Prize for telling in verse-dialogue the dramatic story of the immortal Job in modern guise. Two circus peddlers, playing God and the Devil, focus our attention on man's relationship to the Divine in an era of cruel injustices.

The Playmakers Theatre

Tickets $2.00

The Braggart Soldier

MAY 8, 9, 10

One of Plautus' most exhuberant farce comedies will be staged in our outdoor theatre, using the Duckworth translation. The hero of this play became the comic prototype of all vainglorious military men.

The Forest Theatre

Tickets $2.00

Save One-Fifth Box Office Prices

Season Tickets . . . . . $8.00

ONLY 1,000 AVAILABLE

Mailing Address: The Carolina Playmakers

214 Abernethy Hall, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tickets on Sale at 214 Abernethy Hall (Next to Scuttlebutt)

and Ledbetter-Pickard (Downtown Chapel Hill)

L.P. RECORDS
$3.98 Value
WELCOME HOME SPECIAL
69c

Goose Necked
DESK LAMPS
$1.44

Unpainted Wooden
BOOKCASES
$3.99

ROSES
VALUE-VARIETY
109 East Franklin

Five UNC Officials Will Get Pay Hikes

Five University officials, including two officers of the Consolidated University, were among the 105 state executives recently awarded salary increases by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Gov. Terry Sanford indicated he plans to make "broad recommendations very soon" regarding competitive salaries for all University officials.

The Governor reported this when asked why Consolidated University President William C. Friday was not included in the list of those receiving salary increases.

The Governor said the Budget Commission's having passed over President Friday did not indicate negative action, but only that "action has yet to be considered."

"President Friday's name is on the list for consideration," Sanford said. "Frankly, we have a serious problem to consider if we are to maintain our leadership in higher education. A number of private institutions and many public colleges and all leading universities pay more for academic universities than we do.

"We must provide competitive salaries for university leadership — the president, chancellors, deans, department heads, distinguished professors.

"This is very much unfinished business and I am presently studying it very carefully and expect to make broad recommendations very soon."

Friday presently makes $22,500 a year and his position has an informal limit of $25,000 which is the salary of the governor. An unidentified member of the commission said the reason Friday was not included in the 105 officials to get pay raises was that his salary is already "close to the top."

Those from Chapel Hill included in the list of those receiving salary raises are: Dr. Henry T. Clark, director of the Division of Health Affairs, from $20,000 to $22,000.

Chancellor William B. Aycock, from $18,500 to $20,000. (Chancellors at the other two branches of the University got the same increase.)

Donald Anderson, the Consolidated University's vice-president for graduate studies and research from $18,500 to $19,500.

A. H. Shepard, business manager of the Consolidated University from $14,000 to $15,000.

J. A. Branch, comptroller and business manager at Chapel Hill from $13,700 to $14,200.

The Advisory Budget Commission is responsible for the pay of the top state officials.

Other state employees, whose pay is controlled by the Personnel Council and the pay schedules of the Personnel Act, received a $10-a-month increase from the General Assembly.

The raises went into effect September 1.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Aycock Comments On Salary: 'Just One Of Those Things'

Chancellor William B. Aycock makes less money than Division of Health Affairs Director Dr. Henry T. Clark, but the Chancellor says philosophically that discrepancy is "just one of those things."

Both officials received salary increases and Dr. Clark is not only still making more money than Chancellor Aycock, but he got a bigger raise.

Chancellor Aycock's salary was increased from $18,500 to $20,000. Dr. Clark's paycheck was sweetened by a round $2,000 to an even rounder $22,000.

Actually, Chancellor Aycock said Dr. Clark has always made more money than the chancellor, despite the fact that the director of the Division of Health Affairs is a member of the chancellor's staff.

"I can't fire him, any more than I can fire anyone else," said the chancellor, "but he's responsible directly to me."

According to what most people consider the "Natural Order of Things," the top man ought to make the top money. But Aycock said this verity is not eternal in academic circles.

"A University is not like a business," he said. "For responsibility, you do have to have a hierarchy," but academic organizations differ from businesses in that the scale of pay does not necessarily descend regularly from chief through vice-chiefs and assistant chiefs, and under-assistant-chiefs, and so on down to the workers.

"We have a lot of chiefs," said the Chancellor. "The faculty. It's something that's very hard to explain to the public. They just don't see it that way." He chuckled with amusement, this apparent incongruity.

When you come right down to it, he went on, Dr. Clark's salary is relatively low for what directors of divisions of health affairs are getting these days. So are North Carolina chancellors' and presidents' salaries low, he added, compared to what similar officials are getting elsewhere in the Nation.

But as far as intra-mural salary comparisons are concerned, Aycock said, "if we took the position that the Chancellor gets the highest salary, I'd say that about a hundred people would be gone from here."

He laughed again and repeated, "It's just one of those things, it's just the way it goes."

MEDICAL LECTURE SERIES

Topic for the annual Medical Lecture Series at the School of Medicine this year will be the kidney. American and European specialists on kidney functions will speak each Saturday morning, beginning September 21, at 11:00 a.m. in the Medical School's Clinic Auditorium.

The first lecture "Ultrastructure of the Kidney," will be delivered by Dr. Johannes A. G. Rhodin of the New York University School of Medicine. The second lecture, on "Comparative Renal Physiology", will be delivered September 28 by Dr. Roy P. Forster of Dartmouth College.

LOUIS GORDON WELT

Louis Gordon Welt, School of Medicine, is completing a year's work this month at Duke University under Dr. James Wyngaarden.

Panhellenic Pres. Urges Coeds To Rush

Peggy Ann Harriss, president of the Pan-Hellenic Council, this week urged all new and transfer women to take part in sorority rush. Miss Harris said, "I encourage all girls to go through rush or at least part of rush because there is no cost involved and it is an excellent way to meet other girls. I'm sure you will enjoy the parties, the entertainment, and getting to know the sorority girls and other rushees."

Any girls who wish to sign for rush or would like to obtain rush manuals or rush interest cards should go to the Dean of Women's office by 2 p.m. Thursday. If they are unable to attend in person, they may call her office.

The Pan-Hellenic reception will be held Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. in Graham Memorial for all girls going through rush.

Rush week officially begins Monday, Sept. 23. Bids will be sent by the various sororities to the individual rushees on Oct. 2.

Tuesday a Pan-Hellenic mass meeting was held for all girls interested in rush week.

The Village Cafeteria

For the Best Charcoal Steaks and Hamburgers in Chapel Hill.

The low low prices set just for The College Student

HAMBURGER STEAK ... 40c
CHEESEBURGER STEAK 45c
RIB-EYE STEAK ..... 80c
HAM STEAK ..... 40c

The Village Cafeteria
122 E. Franklin St.

OPEN FOR THREE MEALS
Breakfast
Hrs. 7 a.m.-10:15
Lunch
11-2
Dinner
Hrs. 5-7:30

Welcome To U.N.C.
Class '67
LA PIZZA invites
You to Try the Best Pizza Ever
to Come from An Oven
We Absolutely Deliver
Open 5 P.M.-1 A.M. Daily and Sunday Closed Wednesday
"The Only Pizzeria in Town"
LA PIZZA
Phone 967-1451
Go West on Franklin St.—A Three Minute Ride
406 W. Main St. Plenty of Free Parking

Welcome To UNC
THE VILLAGE LAUNDRY and CLEANERS
Has Two Convenient Locations To Serve You
SAVE MONEY — NEW SELF-SERVICE DRY CLEANING IS OUR LATEST ADDITION TO OUR SERVICE!

CARRBORO
104 South
Greensboro St.
942-5131

CHAPEL HILL
127 East
Franklin St.
942-4392

One Day Service On Request
Laundry And Cleaning
Try Our Beautiful Dry Cleaning

You can be more BEAUTIFUL
with Hair fashions
Styled by the
Aesthetic Hair-Styling Salon
We hope that you will think of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon in most matters pertinent to personal beauty and good grooming. Whether your need is for a simple manicure, a tint, eye makeup or hair styling of uncommon charm, choose Aesthetic.
TRY OUR EXCLUSIVE NEW PERFECT BLEND TAPER CUT.
for your appointment with beauty
CALL 942-4355 or 942-6857
Aesthetic
Hair Styling Salon
133½ East Franklin, Over T. L. Kemp's Jewelry, Chapel Hill

University Booketeria
. . . AIR CONDITIONED . . .
Steele Bldg. Campus
The
OFFICIAL SOURCE FOR CLASS REQUIREMENTS
ON USED
And
NEW TEXT BOOKS, OUTLINES
CHECK OUR PRICE BEFORE YOU BUY . . . AND SAVE!

The Most Important Issue Facing The University: Freedom

The following address, entitled "Freedom of the University," was presented by Chancellor Aycock at an Alumni Luncheon in Chapel Hill on June 6, 1960. Chancellor Aycock's remarks three years ago are particularly pertinent to the North Carolina General Assembly's recent action in barring Communists and those who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment from speaking at State-supported institutions. The Chancellor's introductory remarks have been omitted.

By WILLIAM B. AYCOCK
Chancellor of the University

On a cool October day in 1957 when I took the oath of office of Chancellor, I deemed it important to express my convictions about the importance of freedom. I was aware that during the long history of the University there were periodic attacks on its freedom. In 1925, as some of you will recall, opposition arose in the State to some of the lecturers who appeared on the campus and to certain articles published in the JOURNAL OF SOCIAL FORCES. Moreover, in the same year a resolution was introduced in the General Assembly which was designed to restrict the freedom to teach and publish. The alumni and friends of the University joined hands with President Chase and the faculty and saved the institution from a sentence which would have imposed a slow death; a death even more horrible than the tragedy of 1871. It is far better to close the doors of a University than to kill its spirit.

Today I feel impelled to repeat the substance of what I said in October, 1957. On this campus and throughout North Carolina we have certain fundamental freedoms—including freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of religion. Those fundamental freedoms protect teachers, authors, editors, reporters, publishers, broadcasters and motion picture producers from controls and regulations which interfere with their mission to seek and to state the truth. Indeed, they protect each of you and every citizen throughout this commonwealth.

These freedoms are not absolute. There are limitations, such as the laws of libel and slander which apply to all and statutory prohibitions against the use of public buildings by any person for the purpose of advocating, advising or teaching a doctrine that the government should be overthrown by force, violence or any unlawful means. In addition to legal limitations, there are pressures of various types — economic, social and political — both direct and indirect — which can be brought to bear on people engaged in seeking and stating the truth.

We recognize and accept the legal limitations such as the laws of libel, slander and the use of public buildings, but we reject economic, social and political pressure which would fetter research, publication, teaching and learning. If we do not reject these pressures, we forfeit our claim to be a university. A true university must seek out, examine, assemble and interpret facts. It must seek new ideas, new forms of knowledge, new values and new artistic standards in order that mankind may continue to grow in understanding and wisdom. A part of this creative mission is the duty to examine the bases, the foundations, and the assumptions on which present knowledge rests. This duty is not limited to certain categories of knowledge but extends to all. An institution engaged in higher education cannot be a university if it undertakes to fix or freeze knowledge or doctrine merely because it is suitable to some individual or group, however highly placed. By what authority, may I ask, can a person say that he has found the final truth for the youth of our land? History does not record a single successful effort to fix or freeze knowledge of beliefs. A university must provide an environment in which diversity, controversy and tolerance prevails. It is not expected that every person within or without a university will agree with the views of every speaker or teacher who appears on the campus. It is imperative, however, that the university be free to listen to differing views on controversial issues of the day.

Those of us entrusted, for the time being, with the leadership of the University of the people have a duty to express forthright concern when the freedom of the University is threatened. The context and the manner in which such threats appear are immaterial. No time and circumstance can dictate apparent indifference or command silence on so vital an issue as the freedom of the University.

A governor of this State possesses tremendous potential power to bring to bear on all state-supported institutions many kinds of economic and political pressures to induce conformity to his personal notions of freedm. It has become an instrument of democracy and a place in which the weak can grow strong and the strong can grow great. The process of youth maturing in an environment of freedom is always an erratic one, sometimes a turbulent one, and frequently a disturbing one to those whose memories of their own youth have faded. Yet, generation after generation of young men and women have gone forth from this campus to provide sound leadership throughout the length and breadth of this land.

We must not — we cannot — allow our precious heritage — a free university — to be infringed upon by an individual or group from whatever position or by whatever disposition. We shall not sit idly by and permit this to occur. My plea to you is that in the spirit of our fathers, all of us in the University family join hands with each other and with all those who hold freedom dear to guarantee that this great instrument of democracy — the oldest of our state universities — shall not be molded to suit the notions of any single person or social group. This, my fellow Tar Heels, is the most important issue facing the University.

University Cleaners

201 E. Franklin St.

When you need Dry Cleaning also remember University Cleaners

ONE-DAY SERVICE ON REQUEST

Phone 942-3450 — Phone 942-4351

Welcome to the Class of '67

Welcome Students . . .

Thell's Bakery Specials

Cookies
Do-Nuts
Birthday Cakes

124 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1954

Enroll in:

TYPEWRITING

And/or

SHORTHAND

Afternoon and Evening Classes begin Oct. 3, 1963

for information, call or write

TOWN CLASSES Secretarial College

159½ E. Franklin (Over Sutton's)
Chapel Hill
P. O. Box 615 Telephone 942-4797

WELCOME STUDENTS

UNC-YDC

1963-1964 Program

SPEAKERS

JUDGE L. RICHARDSON PREYER

W. LUNSFORD CREW, Chairman
State Democratic Party

JOE FALLON, Democratic National Commitee
AND MANY OTHER OUTSTANDING STATE AND NATIONAL LEADERS

UNC-YDC is a member of the Federation of College Young Democrats, representing over 3,000 college and university students in North Carolina.

BRADY'S

RESTAURANT

NOW OPEN FOR LUNCH ALSO

With Complete Dinner Menus or A La Carte

OPEN EVERY DAY 11:00 A.M. TO 11:30 P.M.

WELCOME!

We invite you to sample the fine foods and superb service at Brady's. Treat yourself, family or date to dine at . . .

BRADY'S

Cooked The Old-Fashioned Way
By Our "Old-Fashioned" Chef

REAL HOMEMADE CORN BREAD
CHICKEN STEW • CHICKEN PIE
BRUNSWICK STEW • BAR-B-QUE
— COMPLETE DINNERS —
All Deliciously Good!

BRADY'S RESTAURANT

"A by-word of good eating for 28 years"

Dine Out

Now Featuring

– LUNCHEONS –

For business, social groups and other functions. For information and reservations, call. . .

942-5392

Welcome Freshmen

The

TAR HEEL BARBER SHOP

ALWAYS WELCOMES YOU

In the Basement, Next to the Rat

Welcome Back Students

T. L. Kemp, Jewelry

THE HOME OF THE OLD WELL CHARM

135 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1331

– Apartment Rule –

(Continued from Page 5-A)

iors and seniors will be tried by the administration.

Dean Long said this summer that the administration's new rule grew out of the failure of a specially ogranized ad-hoc committee to resolve the controversial issue to the satisfaction of students, faculty and administration alike.

This committee, composed of five students, two faculty members and Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael and Dean Long, was formed on May 14 to come up with a compromise solution satisfactory to everyone.

The committee met three times but failed to propose an acceptable rule. During the period of negotiations an interim rule, stating that at least one other coed had to be present when a coed visited a man's apartment was in effect. After negotiations failed this rule expired.

The original controversy began on March 19 when the old two-couple apartment rule was changed to apply only to freshmen coeds, by the WRC.

Two days later Dean Carmichael announced that she did not consider the rule change valid and regarded only those rules in the 1962-63 Handbook for Women Students to be in effect.

The Women's Council then announced it would uphold the rule changes as legislated by the WRC.

On May 2, University officials stated that the students must choose between temporarily reinstating the old apartment rule while a compromise was negotiated or force the administration to impose and enforce a rule of its own.

Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael said it was unfortunate that the conflict existed, but that she felt the University could not give girls permission to visit mens' apartments without other couples present.

"I've been here 17 years," she said, "and I have only vetoed one thing that the students have done. That was the abolishment of the Apartment Rule".

WUNC Radio

This year WUNC will be broadcasting 45 hours a week on 91.5 megacycles with 50,000 watts of power, one of the most powerful educational stations in the nation. The station is unique in that it is operated entirely by students who volunteer their time.

Station Manager Frost Branon urges all students who are interested in a meaningful extra-curricular activity to join with the station this year. The first organizational meeting will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 25, in Classroom 1 of Swain Hall at 4:00 p.m.

This fall the station has expanded its schedule both in time and variety. Sunday through Friday, the station will go on the air at 6 p.m. On Saturdays throughout the football season WUNC will go on the air at 1:30 p.m. to carry the UNC Tar Heels' football games. Immediately following the games on Saturday, the station will present a football scoreboard with the latest sports scores from around the nation.

tion between fraternities, sororities and residence halls."

Good said that calling dormitories Residence Halls would psychologically give the resident something more than "a 50-per cent flop house."

Another new project which Good hopes to initiate will be to let one person be responsible for residence halls in each of the five areas. "The officers of the MRC will be responsible for these areas, their problems and their shortcomings, Good said. "These people will know what is going on and they in turn will be expected to report to me."

FALL BASEBALL PRACTICE

All freshmen or transfer students with high school or college baseball experience are urged to attend a squad meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24 at four o'clock in 304 Woollen Gym, according to varsity baseball coach Walter Rabb.

Carolina

TODAY

The Premiere of

INGMAR BERGMAN'S

New Film

"BRILLIANTLY DONE!"

—Bosley Crowther, N. Y. Times

"I ASSURE YOU IT IS A BEAUTIFUL MOVIE!"

—Brendan Gill, The New Yorker

INGMAR BERGMAN'S

WINTER LIGHT

Shows at: 1:00 - 2:20 - 3:39 - 5:38 - 7:17 - 8:56

OPENS FRIDAY

PAUL NEWMAN

JOANNE WOODWARD

IN

A NEW KIND OF LOVE

Shows at: 1:00 - 3:01 - 5:02 - 7:03 - 9:04

Carolina Coffee Shop

CHAPEL HILL'S FAMILY RESTAURANT

Southern Fried Chicken

IN THE BASKET

With Shoe String Potatoes

Cole Slaw Honey

$1.25

Boxed to go

7 A.M. to 8 P.M.

Special

CLUB STEAK . . . $1.35

Fried Onion Rings

Tossed Salad French Fries

SPECIALTIES

DESSERTS—Cheese Cake, Hot Apple Pie

WAFFLES—Blueberry, Strawberry, Bacon, Pecan

WELCOME Students

. . . For those of you who refuse to look anything but lovely, any season! Smart girl, you. . .knowing why nice things seem to come your way more often. It happens, you know . . .
right wave for your type hair,
and a variety of new styles.
See you this week?

La Marick La Fan Creme Wave
comparable value, 12.50 ------ NOW 6.95

La Marick Astre Lanol Wave
comparable value, 25.00 ------ NOW 9.50

La Marick Lanol Cold Wave
Prescription Formula, Plus USP Lanolin
comparable value, 32.50 ------ NOW 14.50

FREE — Hair Proteinzer and Conditioner Treatment, Fashion Cut and Style Set with Every Permanent Wave.

WE ALSO DO:

- Frosting
- Manicuring
- Hair Coloring
- Lamp Hair Cuts

Charge it, of course, at

BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON

2nd Floor

La Marick

Open Fri. 'Til 8:30 P.M.

BEAUTY SALONS

Phone 968-4467

La Marick — South's Largest and Leading Beauty System

New Concepts Are Planned In Dorms

A new concept in men's dormitory life will begin at UNC this fall. Dormitories will be called residence halls, the Interdormitory (IDC) will become the Men's Residence Council and the 21 men's residence halls will be divided into five geographic areas.

The new concept is the brainstorm of Gerry Good, president of the IDC or the soon to be MRC. Good feels that "a complete change in the whole scope of men's living quarters" is needed to include dormitory men at UNC.

"This program is not an attempt to cover over the IDC and give it a new name with an eye glory," Good said. "We are trying to do what we think is best for the dorm residence."

Good said that the new program would include many phases of men's dorm life. "Basically, we want to concentrate our attention on improving social facilities, opportunities for coordinated activities with others like more and better intramural athletic program, better coopera-

"Athletes Know MILK HAS STAYING POWER"

You'll find milk served with every meal at the training tables of both amateur and professional football players. Athletes know that milk with your meals keeps you going . . . gives you more staying power from meal to meal. And the fresher the milk, the more it makes your favorite foods taste better! To increase your stamina, drink Long Meadow Milk . . . 100% locally produced on the finest nearby farms. Long Meadow Milk comes to you "milking-time fresh"! Call for home delivery today.

Dairy Specialists Since 1915

LONG MEADOW FARMS

Call for home delivery today!

Call for Home Delivery

942-3114"

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

Is this the reason most engines still aren't in back?

Horseless carriages weren't called horseless carriages for nothing.

Gas engines may have taken the place of the horse.

But the horse left its mark.

Early cars kept their whip sockets, long after there were no horses to whip.

Dashboards once kept the horse from splashing mud on the passengers.

And most cars have kept their engines up front, where the horse used to be.

When the Volkswagen was designed, it was assumed that horses would never be back.

So VW felt free to put the engine over the rear wheels, the ones that drive the car.

That way, you don't spin your wheels getting power from the front to the back.

Or horse around with heavy driveshafts.

You also get more weight over the drive wheels for firm traction when the going gets sloppy.

Actually, the VW's air-cooled aluminum engine would have been a sensation, even in front.

But the big idea was moving it to the rear.

It was a great step backward in the world of automobile design.

TRIANGLE MOTORS, Inc.

616 W. Chapel Hill St. Durham

Open Friday Nights 'til 9

Blue Cross Blue Shield

For details mail coupon to . . .

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

STUDENT CERTIFICATE

Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.

Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

Hillel Will Hold Holy Day Services

This evening Jewish people throughout the world will usher in the Jewish New Year of 5724. This is the method of counting which begins with the Jewish view of when the world was created. Rosh Hashanah celebrates the birthday of the world according to traditional Jewish thinking.

Services marking the Jewish New Year will be held at the B'nai B'rith Hellel Foundation, 210 West Cameron Avenue tonight at 8, and Thursday and Friday mornings at 10. The director of the foundation, Rabbi Joseph H. Levine, will conduct the services and preach the sermon. The community is cordially invited to attend.

WHITEHEAD LECTURE

Dr. Flyod W. Denny Jr. will deliver the annual Whitehead Society Lecture at the University School of Medicine today at 4:00 p.m.

Genius begins great works: labor alone finishes them.

—Joseph Joubert

Three Students Killed In Vacation Accidents

Automobile accidents this summer claimed the lives of three University students and injured at least two others, according to reports reaching the Daily Tar Heel.

A Morehead scholar was fatally injured August 15 in a motorcycle accident 12 miles north of Traveler's Rest, S. C.

Scott Earnest Eummers, II, 21-year-old son of Buncombe County Deputy Sheriff E. Scott Summers, was riding a lightweight motorcycle north on US 25 enroute from Georgia to Asheville when he apparently lost control of the vehicle.

A witness said the motorcycle was found lying in the middle of the road. Summers was discovered off the left side of the highway partly down an embankment, unconscious but still alive.

He apparently had multiple head injuries, and died about 15 minutes after reaching a Greenville hospital.

Summers, a graduate of Morganton High School and member of the class of 1964 here, had been active in student government before leaving school during the fall semester of last year due to poor health.

He re-entered the University for the first session of summer school and was expected to enroll as a regular student this fall.

Summers was tapped for membership in the Order of the Grail as a sophomore was elected vice-president of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman honor society; and participated in the freshman and sophomore honors programs. He had been elected to Student Legislature.

He also received a Freshman Merit Certificate, was a member of the Student Party; the Finance Committee; chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; delegate to the State Student Legislature; Interim Committee; Graham Memorial Board of Directors; Student Government Burget Committee; Publications Board; and John Motley Morehead Committee.

His father is a former reporter for The Raleigh Times, The Asheville Citizen, The Charlotte Observer and the Morganton News-Herald.

* * *

A UNC student was killed and two others injured in an automobile accident July 19 near Kriegalach in East Central Austria.

Larry Morris Kramer, 25, of Whiteville was killed while Ralph Holland Falls, 23, of Gastonia and Augusto Belmont, 21, of Lima, Peru were injured.

Police said the driver of the American car apparently fell asleep and the car crashed into an oncoming truck.

The students were enroute from Italy to Vienna.

Kramer, a rising third year student in the University's Law School, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Kramer of Whiteville. He received his A.B. degree from the University in 1960.

Burial was in the High Point Cemetery.

Falls is a rising third-year student in the Institute of Government here.

Kramer and Falls had flown to London aboard a Graham Memorial chartered flight on June 11.

* * *

Stephen Paul Swofford, a 19-year old sophomore, was killed instantly June 6 when the car in which he was riding was involved in an auto accident in Columbus, Ohio.

Swofford, son of Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Paul Swofford of Lockbourne Air Force Base, Columbus, Ohio, was an intended economics major at UNC.

Swofford, a 1961 graduate of Hamilton Township High School in Columbus, made the Dean's List at the University for the spring semester.

Survivors include his parents and Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Hutchins of Winston-Salem and Mrs. G. L. Swofford of Gastonia.

Burial was in the family plot in the Forsyth Memorial Cemetery in Winston-Salem.

Professor's Book Is Translated

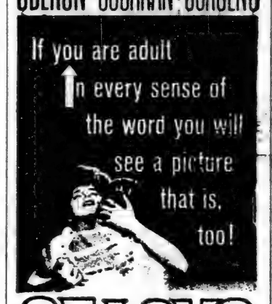
A University professor's textbook has just been translated into its third foreign language—Turkish.

The text, entitled "The Field of Social Work," was written by Dr. Arthur E. Fink, dean of UNC's School of Social Work. It's Turkish title is "Sosyal Hizmet Alani." The book was written in collaboration with Everett E. Wilson of Yeshiva University, and Merrill B. Conover of the Health and Welfare Council, Inc.

Also translated into Japanese and Spanish, the book is a basic text in social work which is used in more than 100 colleges and Universities throughout the United States. It is presently in its fourth edition, and it is the only text of its kind to have met with this success. The text was originally published in 1942 by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

Dr. Fink is also the author of "Causes of Crime," written in 1938. He received his A.B., M.S.W., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania. He joined the UNC faculty in 1945.

Varsity
NOW SHOWING
MERLE OBERON STEVE COCHRAN CURT JURGENS



OF LOVE and DESIRE

Shows at 1 - 3 - 5 - 7 - 9

STARTS THURSDAY

MIRISCH COMPANY presents
EDWARD L. ALPERSON presents
Jack LEMMON Shirley MacLAINE
BILLY WILDER'S
IRMA LA DOUCE
THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

Rathskeller Lunch at
THE RANCH HOUSE
Featuring the
Rare Roast Beef Sandwich 90c
The Same Famous Food and Service
11:30 – 2:30

Welcome Students . . .

to U.N.C. and Chapel Hill's newest Traditional Clothiers
We have carefully selected our lines of clothing and furnishings to please the exacting, discriminating taste of University students. Our personal service and qualified sales personnel assure you of the correct purchase and proper fit.
Below this text you will find listed a few of our outstanding lines. Long synonomous with quality, they represent the finest merchandise in collegiate wear
We hope you will become familiar with them soon.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX — Suits, Sport Coats, Slacks
EAGLE SHIRTMAKERS — Dress & Sport Shirts
THE FLORSHEIM CO. — Imperial Shoes
KEVIN McANDREWS — Hatmakers
J & D McGEORGE, Ltd. — Imported Sweaters
LONDON FOG — Raincoats & Golf Jackets
COLLEGE HALL FASHIONS — Suits, Sport Coats
PRINGLE OF SCOTLAND — Imported Sweaters
COSWELL MASSEY CO. Ltd. — Men's Colognes
ENGLISH LEATHER — Men's Colognes
G. H. BASS & CO. — Bass Weejun Shoes
S. SIMPSON, Ltd. — Dak Slacks
CHESWICK, Ltd. — Suits, Sport Coats
THE JAEGER CO., Ltd. — Imported Sweaters
THE BYFORD CO., Ltd. — Imported Knitwear
SAINT LAURIE, Ltd. — Sport Coats
THE LEATHER WORKERS — Belts
WREN, Ltd. — Dress and Sport Shirts

Varsity Men's Wear
147 East Franklin Street

IN CHAPEL HILL, THERE'S ONLY ONE

HARRY'S RESTAURANT
175 E. Franklin St., Next to Post Office

King Size Corned Beef Sandwiches
Blintzes (Cheese or Meat)
Pizza — The Greatest
Harryburgers — A New Taste Treat
Breakfast — Lunch — Dinner

Finest Foods
Courteous, Prompt Service
Experienced Personnel
Low Prices

HARRY'S
Open 7 Days a Week
6:30 A.M. to 11:30 P.M.

The Fireside

cordially welcomes you, and looks forward to your stay in Chapel Hill. As a ladies' sportswear shop we carry many lines, among which are:

AUSTIN-HILL — ETIENNE AIGNER
EVAN PICONE — BOE GESTE
GORDON FORD — COUNTRY SHIRT

We are strictly a sportswear shop with the coed casual look. We have everything in sweaters, skirts, slacks, perts, culottes, shirts, blouses, gloves, scarves, belts, bags, shifts, jumpers, rainwear, etc.

The FIRESIDE
117 E. Franklin Street

Welcome to Carolina
AND CHAPEL HILL
Come in and Browse at Varley's
Featuring Quality wearing apparel and a Fine Selection of Pipes

Varley's MEN'S SHOP
Since 1938

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Contour of the body
6. Conflict
11. —— beaver
12. Large artery from heart
13. Worship
14. Bracing
15. Furniture supports
16. Flesh of swine
17. Smoothes, as clothes
21. Correction mark in typing
24. Presidential nickname
27. Seasons, as vegetables
28. Courage
30. Female sheep
31. City: N.Y.
33. The Welsh (collectively)
34. Eng. spa
37. —— Whitman, poet
41. Variety of willow
43. Roll of tobacco
44. Beautiful girl
45. Kansas-Missouri river
46. Dish of greens
47. Grayish-blue

DOWN
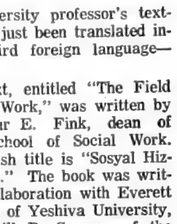
1. Design on document
2. Geol. vein angle
3. Keyed up with interest
4. Persevere
5. Before
6. Feline
7. Folds in thread
8. Italian river
9. Agitate
10. Cut roughly
18. Covered with corroded material
19. Gold: Her.
20. At no time
21. Compass point
22. Uncooked
23. Malt liquor
24. High: mus.
25. Express disapproval
26. Sea eagle
29. In any manner
32. Ream: abbr.
33. Pincerlike organ of crab
34. Curtsies
35. On the ocean
36. Money-drawer
38. Culture medium
39. Loiters
40. Woody perennial
42. Primary color
43. Policeman's aid.



Yesterday's Answer

Tennis — Restringing — Baseball — Football — Basketball — Table Tennis — Carry-All Bags — Stadium Seats — Sports Books — Athletic Wear — Badminton — Games — Gifts — Trophies — Plaques — Engraving — Shells & Ammunition — Records — Phonographs — Bar Equipment — Gym Shoes

"IT PAYS TO PLAY"
Visit

The SPORT SHOP
Phone 942-4064
151 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Two SG Scholarships Are Dead; Another Is In Shaky Condition

Two of student government's four foreign exchange scholarship programs, one of them new this year, have folded and a third is in shaky condition.

The two-year-old Tours (France) exchange collapsed officially three weeks ago and the Panamanian exchange, initiated last spring, has failed to materialize.

Pete Wales, a junior, received a letter from Douglas P. Morway, Hartford attorney and Registrar of the American College at Tours, on Aug. 20 saying that the College had "suspended operations" for the coming year and that he was sorry if he had caused any inconvenience.

Morway gave no explanation and has not communicated with the University for the past year. Efforts by Wales, and others to contact the attorney, both by phone and by personal visit, have been unsuccessful.

A letter from Dr. William Bailey, director of the College in France, to the International Student Board, sponsor of all four exchange programs, revealed that Mr. Morway had had little communication with the College and had refused to send funds for its operation, funds he allegedly had in his possession.

"It is hard to give you a clear idea of what happened to the American College, for I hardly know myself," Dr. Bailey wrote. The College is five years old.

Scott Trull, recipient of the Panamanian scholarship, has been switched to the Colombian exchange program which is due to begin this year. Both Latin American programs were originated by graduate student Jim Scott. The situation on the Colombian program is uncertain at this point, but the exchange is still alive according to ISB co-chairman Anne Ridenhour.

The Goettingen (Germany) program, student government's first exchange, is the only one of the four in good shape. Junior Gray Temple and sophomore John Shelburne are in Germany awaiting the start of school in November.

Dr. Bailey is now teaching in London and the College's assistant director, Dr. Brian E. Porter is teaching in Sudan. Dr. Bailey has formally complained to the American embassy in Paris and President Kennedy about Morway's conduct. Efforts are being made now through the Conn. attorney general for "appropriate action" against Morway with no result thus far.

Morway has taken several extended trips abroad at the expense of the College in the past two years.

A number of students planning on attending the College were reportedly in Europe at the time of the College's demise. Wales had postponed leaving for Europe to attend the National Student Congress in August.

John Morris, last year's Tours Scholar, knew nothing of the College's collapse when he left France this summer.

— Cuba —

(Continued from Page 1-A)

a nearby press room. "Stop, you're choking him!" yelled one girl.

The second day of hearings was equally stormy except that the police were not as tolerant and demonstrators were handled more roughly. Also, for the first time, demonstrators were arrested.

Club Founded Here

The Progressive Labor Club was founded here last year as a chapter of the national organization of the same name. It never sought official University recognition.

No membership list of the club was ever made available, but in its early stages, it had about one dozen members. The only students who still professed to be members last spring were Nicholas Bateson, John Salter, Larry Phelps and Dennis King. Of these, the only one still in school is King.

In June of this summer, the State American Legion passed a resolution calling on University trustees to investigate the club. It further condemned the club as "atheistic and hate-embittered."

The club was cited by W. K. Rhodes Jr., chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the Legion, as a prime example of what he called the many "red nests" formed in the name of academic freedom throughout the nation.

Following the American Legion action, the State Legislature passed the controversial Speaker Ban Law that prohibits Communists and members of subversive organizations from the campus of any state-supported institution.

The trustees of the University, many state papers, and other organizations immediately called the bill unnecessary and illegal.

Both Phelps and Salter were active while on campus. Phelps ran for the Presidency of the Student Body and Salter for Vice-President on an Independent ticket that was soundly beaten in 1962. Phelps was also a member of the original New Left Club here.

Phelps and 65 other students were stopped in their efforts to travel to Cuba over the Christmas holidays when the Canadian Government refused to let a Cuban plane land at Toronto Airport.

At that time, Phelps told THE DAILY TAR HEEL that the group had not given up hope and would not disband. He said that another attempt would be made over summer vacation.

Originality does not consist of inventing a new language, but in guage all possible new and personal thoughts. —Rene Dumesnil

Holmes Lectures Will Be Delivered At Chapel Hill

The 1963 Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures, held at a different university in the United States each year, will be delivered Oct. 1, 2 and 3 at the University here it was announced here today.

Chancellor William B. Aycock expressed pleasure that the University has been selected for the fourth in a series of lectures to be delivered under provisions of the unique gift left by the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Professor Arthur E. Sutherland Jr. of the Harvard University Law School will deliver the lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the first three days of October at 8 p.m. each evening in Carroll Hall auditorium. The public is invited.

"Apology for Comfortable Change" is the theme for the three lectures. Dr. Sutherland is Bussey Professor of Law at Harvard. He began his professional career as law secretary to Mr. Justice Holmes from 1927-1928.

Separate titles for the three lectures are, "Social Statics and a Restless People," "Education in the Obvious," and "To Grow More Civilized". Along with other Holmes Lectures, there will be published by the Macmillan Company.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes lectures are given each year by an eminent scholar on a subject broadly related to Justice Holmes' career and thought. They are conducted as part of the Holmes' estate which he left in its entirety "to the United States of America." Originally valued at $225,000, the fund has grown to $450,000. Holmes died in 1935 at the age of 94.

To administer this unique gift, the Congress of 1955 established the Permanent Committee for the Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise. Two projects have been undertaken — the lecture series, and the preparation of a definitive history of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Our Stock of Used Books has Never Been Larger. Save at
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.

For Your Book Needs Visit
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.
"A Book Store That Is A Bookstore"

Rathskeller Lunch at
THE RANCH HOUSE
Featuring the
Rare Roast Beef Sandwich 90c
The Same Famous Food and Service
11:30 – 2:30

EUBANKS DRUG CO
East Franklin St.
Our Old-Fashion Drug Store
With All the New Drugs
Bring Your Prescriptions to Us
Three Registered Pharmacists
Dependable Druggists Since 1892

Alarm Clock
Pin Up Lamps
Desk Lamps
Floor Lamps
Extension Cords
Sissors Lamps
Clock Radios
Transistor Radios
Water Heaters
Coffee Pots
Desk Fans
Electric Heaters
ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION COMPANY
169 E. Franklin St.

Colonial Drug Co.
414 W. Franklin St.
Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463
Now On Sale Exclusively
BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL
By Sarah Watson Emery
An Unusual Book About Chapel Hill
CHECK COLONIAL DRUG FOR SCHOOL NEEDS
GREETING CARDS HAIR CARE AIDS CAMERAS-FILM
SHAVE NEEDS TOILETRIES COSMETICS
STATIONERY
RESTOCK YOUR MEDICINE CHEST NOW!
COLONIAL DRUG CO.
414 W. Franklin St.
PHONE 942-4463

LADIES...EXERCISE YOUR RIGHTS
IN THIS ESTABLISHMENT
The proprietor proclaims: You have a leg to stand on under his roof. Therefore he has collected a fine selection of skirts, blouses, sweaters and pants . . . so that you may choose to your heart's content in the favorite establishment of the male sex.

Town & Campus

Welcome Class of '67
WCHL
Everyone at Carolina Listens to WCHL 1360

Welcome...
STUDENTS FACULTY
NEWCOMERS
Chapel Hill is an Ideal Place for Living for Study for Work for Worship for Relaxing
And
J. B. Robbins
HOUSE OF FASHION
is the ideal Shopping Center for all appropriate apparel in which to fully enjoy all of the above benefits.
CHAPEL HILL'S ONLY COMPLETE WOMAN'S SHOP

Visiting Professor

The first recipient of the newly established Mahlon K. Jordan Visiting Professorship will be Dr. W. D. Falk who is on leave of absence from Syracuse University, N. Y.

The grant was established by Mahlon Kline Jordan, president of a Smith, Kine & French Laboratories subsidiary, and an alumnus of UNC. It will enable the university to bring internationally-known professors to the campus.

Dr. Falk will teach classes in Ethics and Value Theory in the Philosophy Department.

'A Warm Welcome
Town & Country Beauty Salon
Phone 942-2960
TO OUR STUDENTS

The World Famous

PATIO

Offering You . . .

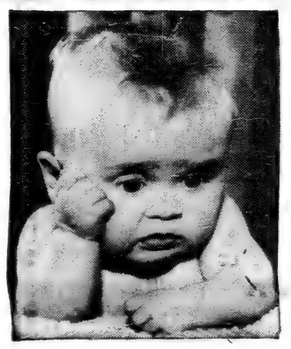
DANCING (Indoors & Outdoors)
COLD BEER & COKES
AMPLE PARKING

REMEMBER!

The PATIO for "One-Stop" Entertainment
Catering to the College Group
For 10 Years



"That's the thanks I get"

It is bad enough when someone else is inconsiderate of us. Millions of people are inconsiderate of themselves—neglecting their health. At the first symptoms of illness, show consideration for yourself. Get prompt medication.

SLOAN DRUG CO.
FREE DELIVERY • PHONE 968-4455 • CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

The Art World

Following is a directory of artistic activities and facilities in Chapel Hill.

Ackland Art Center. Ackland houses the UNC Art Department, has a permanent collection, and also holds exhibitions of student, faculty, and other art in its museum, which is open to the public free of charge. Museum hours are 2-5 and 8-10 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays, and 2-5 p.m. Sundays. Closed Mondays. An exhibit of student art is on view now. On Wednesday evenings, Art Department staff members teach classes in drawing to any interested persons. Classes start September 25, and cost $15 for supplies.

Harry's Grill, East Franklin Street. Harry's exhibits paintings free, charges artists no commission for sale of pictures, serves only as a means of communication between artist and buyer. Pictures from all over North Carolina are shown, exhibits change monthly. Richard Mandel is responsible for arranging exhibits and contacting artists for potential buyers.

Jane Haslem Gallery (formerly Paintings Upstairs), 113 West Franklin Street. The gallery has over 750 works of graphic art and sculpture for sale, by about 40 artists from all parts of the United States, and some from Europe. Prices start at $10, go to $1,500; most are in the $20-$50 range. The gallery also offers custom framing, a year-round art school with a staff of teachers, and art supplies for sale. Shows are changed monthly, hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Sundays. The current show is of oils, lithographs, engravings and etchings by Rudy Pozzatti.

Morehead Planetarium. The Planetarium's permanent collection of paintings, in the Rotunda, and the traveling exhibitions of various kinds of art work, are open from 2-5 p.m. and 7:30-10 p.m. daily; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturdays; and 1-10 p.m. Sundays, with no admission charge. Other Planetarium exhibits in other parts of the building are also open at these times. Reservations of one of the galleries for an exhibition must be arranged through Planetarium director Anthony Jenzano. Exhibitions change monthly.

★ ★ ★
★ ★ ★

Music Instruction Announced By UNC

An invitation to enroll for special individual instruction in voice, piano, stringed and orchestral instruments has been issued by the UNC Department of Music to colleg students, talented high school instrumentalists, youngsters and musically-inclined adults of the Research Triangle Area.

Prof. William Newman of the UNC Music School announced that all interested people may register Thursday and Friday in the Music Office at Hill Music Hall.

"We have one of the strongest piano faculties we've ever been able to line up," said Prof. Newman. "Of course we must accommodate our college students first, but we will try to take care of as many private students will be given free group instruction and music theory courses geared to their level of participation.

New instructors this year include Robert Triplett, organ instructor who has made an outstanding record at the Union Theological Seminary in New York; and Donald Pease, Merlene Taylor and Patricia Mosely, who will teach piano.

pupils as possible who want to take music lessons."

Instruction will be given in piano, organ, voice and all standard band and orchestral instruments. "It is also possible for students to take class lessons on string instruments," said Dr. Newman.

Welcome to . . .
Eastgate
Laundromat
OPEN
24 HOURS A DAY
WASH ..... 25c
DRY ..... 10c

Rathskeller Lunch at
THE RANCH HOUSE
Featuring the
Beefburger Sandwich . . 65c

Beautiful Lady . . .

YOUR STAFF AWAITS YOU

EXCITING HAIRDOS – Here, fresh, flattering hair styles will be individually created for a lovlier you. The staff of Carolina Beauty Shop welcomes you. From the left: Kitty Galloway, Hattie Willis, Joseph Polcaro, Manager; Dorothy Harriss, Tommie Cox, and Joann Morgan. Be a Carolina Beauty. For personalized, complete beauty care, do come in soon!

Call for your FREE MERLE NORMAN Cosmetics Demonstration

Carolina Beauty Shop

131 East Franklin Park FREE in Merchants' Lot Phone 942-4058

COME SEE

BILLY ARTHUR

Eastgate Shopping Center
Open Evenings Till 9:00
Class of '33

• ARTIST DESIGN, and SCULPTURE MATERIALS for the student, professional and hobbyist.
• TROPICAL FISH & SUPPLIES
• SCIENCE SETS & MATERIALS
• TOOLS for the scratch builder hobbyist and craftsman.
• MODEL RACEWAYS, RAILROADS and equipment
• MINIATURES — Figures and vehicles for collectors
• STAMPS & COINS
• "HOW-TO" BOOKS
• SUPPLIES & ACCESSORIES for all hobbies and crafts
• MODEL AIRPLANES — Ready to fly; rubber prowered; control line, gas; free flight, radio-control
• ADULT GAMES
• SELECT EDUCATIONAL TOYS

Billy Arthur, Inc.
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER
Open Evenings Till 9:00

KEMP'S KEMP'S KEMP'S KEMP'S

Welcome Freshmen

ORIENTATION DEAL!

NEW PRICE DEAL
2.00 ON SALE FOR ..... 1.68
3.00 ON SALE FOR ..... 2.17
4.00 ON SALE FOR ..... 2.82
5.00 ON SALE FOR ..... 3.68
6.00 ON SALE FOR ..... 4.52

ALL RECORDS On SALE
VOX 50% OFF
WESTMINSTER 40% OFF
ALSO—
Oriental Art
Prints
Bull Fight Posters
Photographs
EAST FRANKLIN
Kemp's

UNC Dental School Gets $500,000 Government Grant

The Public Health Center announced a grant today to cover half the cost of a one million dollar Dental Science Research Building to be constructed at the University here.

The funds from the Public Health Service grant have been matched with money from the Dental Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., and from other trust funds of the University.

Construction of the new building,, to be located adjacent to the present School of Dentistry, will begin in December, 1963. It will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1965.

Dr. John C. Brauer, Dean of the School of Dentistry and secretary-treasurer of the Dental Foundation, said hundreds of dentists, dental supply and equipment companies, as well as dental laboratories in North Carolina and adjacent states had contributed to the Dental Foundation for the new research building.

The Public Health Service funds, which are administered by the Division of Research Facilities and Resources of the National Institutes of Health, were granted under the health research facilities program authorized by Congress in 1956. The funds, to be matched by the receivers, are awarded to private and non-profit institutions with excellent health research programs and potential, according to Dr. Luther L. Terry, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service.

Dr. James W. Bawden has been appointed coordinator of research and assistant dean of the School of Dentistry as of Sept. 1. The direction of the new Dental Research Center will be part of his responsibility. Dr. Bawden came to the School of Dentistry in 1961 and is at present associate professor in the Department of Pedodontics.

The purpose of the center is to conduct basic research in the cause, prevention and control of dental disease and conditions such as tooth decay, soft tissue and bone infections about the teeth (peridontal disease), cancer of the mouth, cleft palate and lip deformities, facial and teeth deformities, hemorrhagic and other general body diseases involving the bone and soft tissues of the mouth. Research will also be directed to the improvement of dental materials and various operative procedures.

The Selective Committee appointed by Dr. Brauer considered potential candidates from all sections of the United States prior to recommending Dr. Bawden.

Changes Are Announced By Morehead Foundation

The Morehead Foundation has announced several changes in its program of awards to students who will attend the University.

The amount of the individual awards will be increased to $5,300 for four years of study. In the past Morehead scholars received only $5,100. This represents an increase of $75 a year.

The announcements were made at regional meetings of the Foundation's County Selection Committeemen.

The new chairmen will join 90 county committee chairmen reappointed by the Mrehead Foundation trustees from last year in heading the 100 county selection committees for the Morehead Awards.

The new committee chairmen are: L. Lyndon Hobbs of Shelby, Cleveland County; John D. Leak of Charlotte, Mecklenburg County; Frank M. Ledbetter of Troy, Montgomery County; Robert S. Sadler of Bayboro, Pamlico County; F. Kent Burns of Roxboro, Person County; Berry G. French of Lumberton, Robeson County; W. Bain Jones of Albemarle, Stanly County; William Joslin of Raleigh, Wake County; Robert E. Kirkland Jr. of Wilson, Wilson County, and Seavy Highsmith of Fayetteville, Cumberland County.

The county selection committees receive and evaluate the nominations for Morehead Awards made by local high school committees throughout the State. The nominations of the county committees, made by the middle of November, are further reviewed and selected by seven regional committees in January and a central committee in Chapel Hill in March.

Alumni Give UNC $90,500 Pledge

The University Annual Alumni Giving Council has allocated a total of $90,500 to UNC from the proceeds of its 1962-63 program.

The announcement was made by the director of Alumni Giving, Tom W. Bost, after the Council's fall meeting, Sept. 11.

The funds will be distributed among seven major academic areas: faculty research and publication, faculty travel, Distinguished Alumni Professorships, graduate fellowships, the Chancellor's emergency fund, faculty retirement, and the Student Welfare fund.

A total of 750 alumni worked in some phase of the fund-raising program during the last year. Nearly 7000 alumni contributed.

Since the Alumni Giving program was inaugurated in 1953, $604,000 has been allocated to the University, according to Director Bost.

Harry H. Montgomery, chairman of the Council for two years, presided over the meeting. Members of the Council present were John R. Purser Jr. of Charlotte, John T. Church of Henderson, Marvin B. Koonce of Raleigh, Marion G. Follin of Greensboro, and Hugh M. Morton of Wilmington, who is president-elect of the general Alumni Association.

Two past chairmen of the Council, E. J. Evans of Durham and James W. Pool of Greensboro were also present. William E. Thompson, of Chapel Hill, treasurer of the Alumni Association, and Joe Jones, a staff member of the association, attended as special guests.

The University was represented by Chancellor William B. Aycock, Dean of the Faculty James L. Godfrey, Chairman of the Physics Department E. D. Palmatier, Dr. Alfred G. Engstrom of the Department of Romance Languages, Director of Development Charles M. Shaffer, Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association J. Maryon Saunders, and Mr. Bost.

Three other members of the Council, Henry N. Patterson of Manhasset, Long Island, Alumni Association President H. Nelson Woodson of Salisbury, and Meade H. Willis of Winston-Salem, past president of the Alumni Association were not able to attend the meeting.

Pi Beta Phi Leads Greek Grades

Pi Beta Phi sorority took scholarship honors from all other sororities and fraternities for the spring semester with a 2.7842 grade average, according to figures released by the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women's Offices recently.

Alpha Gamma Delta, which had ranked seventh in grades for the fall semester, moved to second place with a 2.6975 average for the spring semester.

Tau Epsilon Phi ranked first among the fraternities with a 2.489 this spring after placing sixth in the fall.

Zeta Beta Tau took second with 2.430 and Delta Upsilon was third with 2.384.

The remaining five sororities in ranking order were Kappa Kappa Gamma with 2.6444; Delta Delta Delta, 2.6341; Alphe Delta Pi, 2.6222; Chi Omega, 2.6175; and Kappa Delta, 2.5537.

Kappa Kappa Gamma rose from sixth place for the fall to third for the spring semester. The all-sorority average increased from 2.5290 to 2.6481. The averages include the grades of all active members and pledges.

The remainder of the ten top-ranking fraternity averages, in order, were Phi Delta Theta, 2.352; Chi Psi, 2.318; Sigma Nu, 2.306; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 2.302; Pi Lambda Phi, 2.298; Alha Tau Omega, 2.222; and Beta Theta Pi, 2.216.

The fraternity averages also include all active brothers and pledges.

Pi Lambda Phi had the highest percentage of its brothers achieving "C" averages, 100 per cent. TEP was next highest with 95.1 per cent. TEP had the highest percentage of pledges making a "C" average, 66.7.

ZBT made the highest active pledge average for the spring semester, 2.160. Beta Theta Pi's 2.674 was the highest average for active brothers.

The all-fraternity average for active brothers and pledges took a surprising drop, from 2.172 last fall to 2.127 this spring.

William G. Harriss, assistant to the Dean of Men, said the all-fraternity grade average in most recent years has been higher for the spring than for the fall semester.

Active brothers and pledges in the spring semester numbered 21.3 per cent total of the 5089 undergraduate men.

Julians

Welcomes Each of You For Top Quality In Chapel Hill

- H. Freeman Clothing
- Gant Shirts
- Florsheim Shoes & Bass Weejuns
- London Fog & Baracuta Rainwear
- Corbin & Majer Pants
- Lord West Formals

—COEDS—

- Lady Weejuns
- Lady Gant & Lady Hathaway
- London Fog & Baracuta Rainwear
- Scottish Kilts

Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

Rathskeller Lunch at THE RANCH HOUSE

Spaghetti with Chili Con Carne .. 1.25
Pizza ..... .90
Gambler Steak ..... 1.29

Milton's Fall Sport Jacket Presentations

In the light of increasing clothing costs, Milton's has done an about face resulting in lower prices in some instances and maintaining last year's prices in other categories, all reflecting the smartest in "Old School" traditional with Milton's own inimitable touch.

Our incomparable buy-power-loomed herringbone shetland jackets including new exclusive bone combinations, at only $39.95

Hand-woven imported shetlands in plaids, herringbones or houndsteeth—$48.75

Our specially designed Tulloch handwoven shetlands of Lerwick, Scotland, sold by a famous New York traditional shop at $90.00, available at Milton's at $55.00

Hand-woven Irish shetlands in plaids or houndsteeth—bold and unusual—$60.00.

Suit selections are most complete including worsted herringbones —two piece Suit starting at $60.00, vested $70.00

If you have enjoyed brand BB, Brand G or Brand S shirts, just try one of our own M-2 perfect roll button-down with finest single needle tailoring, and if you're not convinced it is the best looking and fitting shirt you've ever tried, please tell us about it and we'll gladly refund $1.00 of the purchase price.

Many new heather tones added to our very fine McGeorge of Scotland shetlands, especially in our own higher V neck pullover—$16.95

In addition to the basic must of Bass Weejuns, we have the Cole Haan penny loafer in natural oil-stained finish in burnt ivory, double leather soles at $19.95

You'll Love Milton's New Fall Look!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

The classic traditional which Milton's innovated 15 years ago is just about saturated in this region. Hence, just to show you we still have many unique items, we've assembled some enticing specials for a very limited time.

Entire stock of our Fair Isle Scottish shetland cardigans regularly $23.95, now specially priced at 12.99.

Group button-down and choir boy Lady Milton shirts, all with longer shirt-tails so convenient under shifts, regularly to $10.95, at below cost 1 for $4.00 or 3 for $10.00

Large group shirtdresses specially priced $14.95 classic corduroy shirtdresses now $10.99, $16.95 imported Batik dresses now $10.99 Many other buys.

You're in for a shopping treat with our own Lady Milton Creations

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Those gentlemen who brook no compromise with tradition in style find their desires catered to admirably in this establishment. Autumn selections are now on view and for sale.

Town & Campus

the Hub OF CHAPEL HILL

103 E. FRANKLIN

Wishes to Extend a Personal Welcome to

STUDENTS OF U.N.C.

SPECIAL FREE GIFT FOR ALL FRESHMEN AND NEWCOMERS

THIS YEAR AS IN YEARS PAST, THE HUB IS FEATURING THE FINEST COLLECTION OF STYLISH TRADITIONAL CLOTHING FOR THE COED AND THE COLLEGE MAN.

AND REMEMBER, AT THE HUB YOU ALWAYS GET THE FINEST QUALITY AT THE MOST REASONABLE PRICES IN CHAPEL HILL

THANKS!

TO OUR ADVERTISERS

FOR MAKING THIS THE LARGEST

DAILY TAR HEEL IN HISTORY

GIVE 'EM HELL, HEELS (See Page 3)

Hammett Esposito Zarro Hanburger Cabe Sigmon Lacey
Ward Edge
Kesler Barden Willard

Editors advise team and fans. See edits page 2.

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1963 | United Press International Service

A laugh a minute—that's the "Football Horrorscope" See page 3.

300 Frosh Hear Fraternity Debate

By PETE WALES

Whether or not one joins a fraternity is pretty much up to the individual.

This was the upshot of a two-hour orientation debate on the benefits and evils of the fraternity system at UNC. The debate was held Thursday afternoon.

"Everyone here at Carolina is a unique and separate person," Bob Spearman, vice president of the student body and active fraternity member, said. "There is no one single answer to fraternities. Your decision is an individual one."

The debating panel was made up of non-fraternity members Mike Lawler, president of the student body, and Gerry Goode, Inter-Dormitory Council president, along with Inter-Fraternity Council president Charley Battle and Spearman. Dr. Clifford H. Kreps, chairman of the faculty committee on fraternities and sororities, acted as moderator.

Lawler, who pledged a fraternity his freshman year and later depledged, cited four criticisms of fraternities as they exist at UNC:

1) Discrimination clauses — "There are only ten discrimination clauses as such in national fraternities but most of the rest have the so-called gentleman clauses."

2) Social circumscription — "Fraternity men tend to date only in the 'status' sororities. Also, the fraternity system, from my own personal experience, does tend to narrow down the range of friendships."

3) Fraternity relations with faculty, administration and the community — "Faculty-fraternity relations are too consistently limited to the formal cocktail party and tea . . . it's often superficial."

4) Academics — "The fraternities get the cream of the crop scholastically and yet the all-fraternity average is only slightly above the all-men's average."

Spearman followed urging freshmen to estimate for themselves the "educational value of the fraternity organization.

"The fraternity offers a circle of friends, people interested in your welfare."

Spearman mentioned the help offered to a new fraternity member by the older brothers in academics, social life and in introduction to campus and student government affairs.

"By joining a fraternity you can meet a wide variety of people and learn to live with them.

"The fraternity is a large and often cumbersome operation. It offers a unique opportunity to participate in a real democracy."

Spearman warned of the time and money required by fraternities. He closed by urging freshmen not to narrow their horizons, whether they should join a fraternity or not.

Goode spoke of rush week and the problems of choosing a fraternity on the basis of only a few nights during rush.

"There are things that are hidden during rush week that are not as they appear during the rest of the year. Look carefully at each house and ask questions. Try to determine what the house and the boys will be like to live with during the year."

Bell Rings For Death Of Former UNC Official

Several students were wondering Friday why the bell which signals the change of classes, kept ringing for additional three minutes.

The ringing of the bell is part of an adopted University ritual that occurs each time a prominent member of the staff or faculty dies.

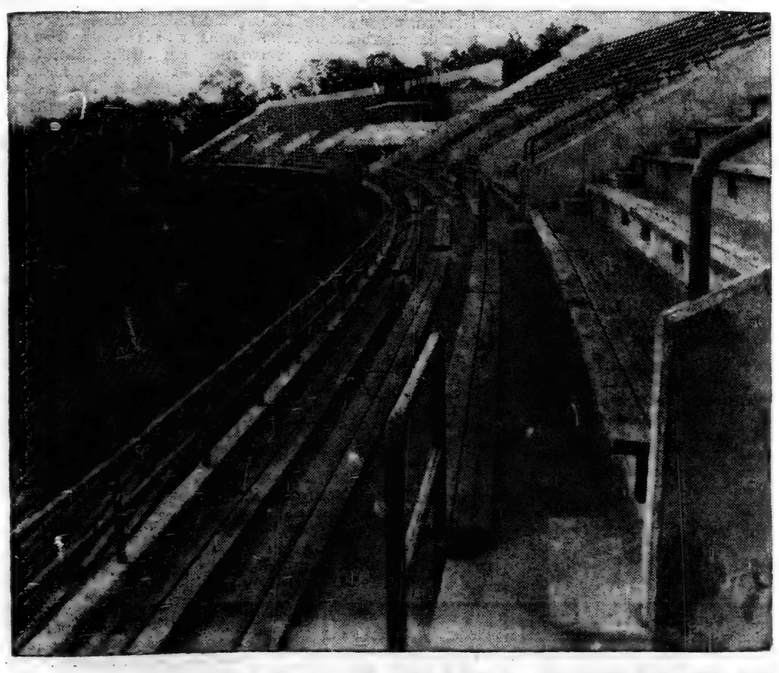
The toll of the bells Friday was in honor of Russell Grumman who headed the Extension Division here for 30 years prior to his retirement seven years ago. Grumman died in Mt. Dora, Fla. Tuesday.

University Maintenance man George Fearrington explains the situation: "The big bell is rung for about three minutes at the approximate time of the person's funeral. The bell has to be hand tolled since it usually operates on a time-clock system."

Fearrington said the bell is set once and will ring at certain times throughout the week. "It rings at ten minutes before the hour and on the hour to signal class change," he said. "It also rings to signal when the girls are supposed to be in at night."

Fearrington said that he had rung the bell many times during the past 40 years but he said he doesn't do it anymore.

"I'm too old and that bell isn't getting any lighter."



ALL-SET — Kenan Stadium, complete with new upper deck, stands empty awaiting today's crowds and players that will signal the kick-off of another Tar Heel football season. The fighting Carolina team under Coach Jim Hickey will meet the Cavaliers of Virginia at 1:30 today.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

JFK Calls For US-USSR Moon Trip At UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (UPI)—President Kennedy made a dramatic bid today for a joint U.S.-Russian expedition to the moon and other cooperative space projects in order to eliminate "immense duplications of research, construction and expenditure."

In a lengthy speech before the 18th General Assembly of the United Nations, which opened Tuesday, Kennedy questioned the wisdom of making man's first flight to the moon "a matter of national competition." He noted that all members of the United Nations, including Russia and the United States, already have waived claims to territorial rights in outer space or on celestial bodies.

The jam-packed audience listened in silence as Kennedy delivered his 28-minute appeal for international cooperation.

Then, to a man, they applauded for 48 seconds—a long time in U. N. circles—with the exception of the delegation of Albania, called here last week the "pariah" of the Communist world.

All U. N. members were present, except the delegation of Fidel Castro's Cuba and the Israeli delegation, the latter observing the Jewish holy day of Rosh Hashana.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko disdained a headset and listened in English as the President spoke. He applauded lustily.

"Space offers no problem of sovereignty," the chief executive said.

Tax Expert Condemns Kennedy Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Republican party's top spokesman on taxes Friday night called President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut a blueprint for disaster. He said the President was gambling with the "entire economic system" of the United States.

Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., top GOP member of the tax-writing House Ways & Means Committee, made the charges in an "equal time" broadcast in which he sought popular support for a Republican proposal that would tie the cut to specified curbs on government spending.

Without this, Byrnes said, all signs are that the federal budget will continue to soar, leading to further inflation and inevitable "financial ruin."

Byrnes was picked by the Republicans to answer the President's radio-television broadcast and plea to the nation Wednesday in support of the tax cut bill that goes before the House for debate Tuesday. He warned against "ruinous" amendments that could delay or make it uncertain.

Senate Treaty Support Steady At 82

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate support for the nuclear test ban treaty held steady at an overwhelming 82 votes Friday despite last-ditch denunciations of the pact by its opponents.

One of the few remaining "undecided" senators, Idaho Republican Len B. Jordan, joined the opposition camp. He announced he would vote against ratification Tuesday, with "great reluctance" because the treaty does not provide for inspection of Soviet testing activities.

Despite Jordan's loss, the treaty still had a four-to-one backing, more than enough to assure ratification. A two-thirds majority of senators present and voting—or 67 of the full roster of 100—is required for approval.

Three senators are still listed as uncommitted: John L. McClellan, D-Ark.; E. L. Mechem, R-N.M., and Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine.

Birmingham Bomb Deliberately Planted

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — U. S. Attorney Macon Weaver announced Friday that the bomb which killed four young Negro girls Sunday was deliberately planted underneath the steps of the 16th Street Baptist Church.

Earlier there had been speculation the bomb—consisting of 10-to-15 sticks of dynamite — had been hurled from a passing car.

Weaver said the persons responsible for the bombing still had not been caught.

The federal official issued a formal statement disclosing the fact the bomb had been planted. The statement said:

"There is no evidence to date indicating the identification of the person or persons responsible, but all investigative agencies that are currently investigating the bombing—the FBI, the sheriff's department and the Birmingham Police Department — agree that the bomb, a high order explosion, was placed underneath the steps on the 16th Street side of the church. This 14-step entrance was near the rear of the church."

Mural Manager Program Halted By Lack Of Funds

Spearman Calls Trial Program "Total Success"

By HUGH STEVENS

A shortage of funds will prevent the Intramural Department from continuing its program of paid dormitory intramural managers this year.

This announcement was made yesterday by Tom Johnson, director of the Intramural Office.

Bob Spearman, student body vice-president, expressed concern at having to abandon a program which he called "a complete success." "Student government will make every effort to see that the program is continued," he said.

In 1962-63, Student Government provided funds to establish a system of paid managers for dorms with money taken from student fees. The program was set up for one year on an experimental basis. An agreement was suggested by Student Government whereby the university might assume financial responsibility for the program if it was successful.

"The program was an unqualified success," Johnson said yesterday, "but we were simply told that funds were not available."

He gave statistics taken from a report issued by the intramural office at the end of the fall semester last year. The figures show that 792 of the 2966 eligible dormitory residents participated in intramurals during the semester. This was a participation rate of 32%, an increase of more than 10% over the previous year.

At the conclusion of the school year, eligible dorm residents totaled 2054, of whom 902 had participated in intramurals during the year.

"This gave us a participation rate of 44% for the year," Johnson said, "an increase of 7% over 1961-62."

He said that Teague, Craige, and Ehringhaus dorms were not included in the statistics since Teague was a graduate dorm in 1961-62 and the new dorms were not built. He said also that the department was unable to secure competent persons to act as managers for Craige and Ehringhaus last year.

"The number of teams entered, 355, represents an increase of 41 over the previous year," Johnson said. "The whole campus, including fraternities, dorms, and grad students, had a participation rate of 53% last year, an increase from 48% the year before. Most of this increase we attribute to greater participation in dormitories."

Johnson said that the intramural managers were paid a total of $171.50 each, and the total cost to Student Government for the program was $3,555.50. The re-

(Continued on Page 6)

CURED Meets Sunday At 1 P.M.

March Will Mourn Birmingham Deaths

Chapel Hill's newly-formed integration group, Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED) Thursday night called for a mass march Sunday afternoon to mourn the death of Negro children killed in Birmingham, Ala., racial violence.

The Sunday march will begin at one o'clock at St. Joseph's town, according to proceed down town, according to Pat Cusick, CURED's acting chairman.

Cusick said memorial services will be held at the Second Baptist Church. All local ministers will be asked to lead their congregations following Sunday morning church services. He added that the ministers will be asked to dedicate their services to the children of Birmingham.

The reactivated biracial group, successor to the Committee For Open Business, also adopted about one-quarter of a proposed constitution. The remaining sections and a slate of permanent officers will be voted on at a meeting next Thursday.

In other business, CURED heard a report from Dr. T. Franklin Williams, member of the Mayor's Human Relations Committee. Williams said a human relations group met Wednesday and heard the following report:

—A survey of Chapel Hill businessmen indicates at least 60 firms are "most favorably inclined" to hire Negroes. A large number of other businesses indicated interest in Negro hiring.

—The human relations group desires to bring CURED and other integration groups together with local civic clubs for personal contact and an explanation of the integrationist aims.

CURED officials also issued black armbands to be worn until the recent bombing cases in Birmingham are solved.

Adler Heads Drama Meet

Richard Adler, lyricist for several popular Broadway musicals, will participate in the UNC Outdoor Drama Institute's conference on outdoor theatre design, Saturday, September 21. Adler is a graduate of Carolina.

Among the successful musicals in which Adler has been co-author or of the lyrics to songs are "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankees." Adler also writes popular songs, among them "Hernando's Hideaway."

The primary purpose of the conference is to present experts in the field with an experimental and revolutionary outdoor design developed by the architectural firm Synergetics, Inc. of Raleigh in cooperation with the Institute at UNC.

Besides Adler, attending the conference will be architects, designers and directors of outdoor drama and James Fitzgibbon, representing the Synergetics firm and designer of the new theatre.

The novel theatre design is based on the plan of a classic Greek outdoor theatre set under an open aluminum dome-like structure. The design offers such innovations as complete flexibility of lighting and moveable scenery and the possibility of experimental "projected" scenery.

Announcement of the conference was made by William C. Trotman, director of the Institute of Outdoor Drama.

NEW NROTC COMMANDER

Captain Rex Welton Warner, USN, has assumed command of the University's NROTC unit.

Captain Warner, a naval aviator, took over command of the unit two weeks ago.

He replaces Captain John C. Spencer, USN, who has commanded the NROTC unit here since 1960.

Captain Warner was born in Burlington, Iowa, in 1916. After attending Marion Military Institute at Marion, Alabama, he entered the U. S. Naval Academy and graduated with the Class of 1939 as an Ensign.

Captain Warner's first duty assignment was to the Pacific Fleet heavy cruiser USS Houston, in which he served as gunnery junior division officer.

Combo Party

Lee Ferrell and the Trojans will be featured at an after-game combo party from 4:30-6 p.m. today. The party is the first Graham Memorial Activities Board promotion for the year, and will be continued at a dance from 8-12.

The dances will be held on the lawn in front of GM.

MODELS NEEDED

Models are needed at the Ackland Art Center.

The first model is needed in Ackland's life drawing class for two hours tomorrow morning, from 8 to 10, and models are needed every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 8 to 10 thereafter.

There are no requirements for models. Men, women, tall, short, young, old, middle-aged, anybody qualifies. All models sit clothed, and the job pays $1 an hour.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Give 'em Hell, Team

Well, today's the day — the day we start our winning season. Latest word from Big Jim is that the troops are ready and raring to have at them Cavaliers. And we're ready to do likewise, only in a manner that bruises the vocal cords rather than the muscles and ligaments.

We hope you are too.

We know a lot of you are going to hang one on. That's inevitable. But please don't get so carried away you start hanging one on the guy next to you, either in the stands or down on the field after the game. Handling 20,000-plus people is a nightmare by itself, even if everyone behaves — student and alumni. It becomes wishful thinking if they don't.

So whaddayasayteam, let's give 'em hell. And whaddayasayfans, let's relax and enjoy it.

The only casualties should be among the guys wearing shoulder pads and cleats.

The Good Old Days

We got thinking back the other day on The Good Old Days when our chief expense was marbles, or aggies, if you prefer.

And our chief concern, or our parents' anyway, was getting the leading edge of the lower half of our shooting finger clean.

All spring long it was the most delightful shade of grime; beautiful. Sort of a junior status symbol.

What got us thinking back was when we realized it was already time to start packing up for school.

Where had the summer gone?

Why, in The Good Old Days, summer lasted forever, or almost.

The best time, of course, was when more than two of us gathered at any given spot. Game suggestions immediately poured forth.

Hide-and-go-seek?

Scrub (a variety of softball)?

Or, as was the most commonplace, just "A Game of Guns?", with a hot argument over who was to be the good guy and who the bad.

Nowadays, of course, that's all behind us.

We have grown up.

Now we play games like, "Pin The Label," "Look Out For The Republicans," and "Make That Grade."

And the summers are an awful lot shorter.

An Editorialist's Dilemma

WRAL-TV editorialist Jesse Helms is a strange breed of cat.

One of his chief objectives in life, we're told, is to have his existence acknowledged by The Raleigh News & Observer in an editorial — any editorial, good, bad, or otherwise.

Yet the closest the N & O edit writers ever come to doing that is to refer to "local broadcasters" or by way of some similarly half-anonymous phrase.

Well, we've long been in something of a similar fix. Jesse consistently distorts, misinterprets, misconstrues and what have you, most everything that he editorially mentions.

Consequently, you the viewer, get mad, or indignant, or just nettled. At first, that is. Then, slowly, you come to accept the fact that this is the way things are where Jesse is concerned, and you even begin to look forward to catching his famous/notorious (whichever you prefer) twice-daily political kiddy show, called Viewpoint.

You recognize that this is The Outlet for the far right. Sort of a clearing house for reactionary wisdom. So you watch it, just to keep tabs on how The Fringe is seeing things these days.

Then comes Step 3. This is when you begin to enjoy Jesse's show. Enjoy it like you enjoy watching a Theatre of The Absurd production. You know it isn't for real, thank God. It can't be, although admittedly, sometimes you wonder.

So you watch, and play "Pick The Distortion." What this means is you read the worst possible interpretation into an event of the day, select several heavily loaded words, then use the worst possible logic in stringing the whole thing together into some sort of an intellectual abortion.

Nine times out of ten you come up with what would pass in a hurry for the gist of Jesse's pronouncement that day.

Then, however, comes Step 4. You begin feeling sorry for the poor guy. Honestly and truly sorry.

You think of all the good this guy could be doing if he'd stop trying to sell his Birchist philosophy and stick to some honest analysis of the facts.

After all, he's obviously a facile writer; obviously a clever, sometimes original, thinker; but just as obviously wedded to the rightist line as tightly as Fidel is to the Communist tune.

Then comes step 5. You begin writing editorials for the campus newspaper and you realize that this is your chance to rebut some of the half-truths Jesse puts out.

But should you? Would writing an editorial, or two, or three, or — to keep up with Jesse — one a day, only dignify the man's messages by bothering to take note of him?

Does the bus, you ask, stop to beep at the puppy running along behind it, barking as loud as it can?

You just don't know. Better think about it a little longer.

EDITORIAL

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors ..... Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor ..... Peter Harkness
Copy Editor ..... Harry DeLung
Photo Editor ..... Jim Wallace
Sports Editor ..... Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor ..... John Montague
Night Editors ..... Joel Bulkley, Jim Wallace
Women's Editor ..... Diane Hile
Features Editor ..... Chris Farran
Science Editor ..... Mat Friedman
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk

BUSINESS

Business Manager ..... Art Pearce
Advertising Manager ..... Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager ..... John Evans
Subscription Manager ..... Brian Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. ..... Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. ..... Sally Rawlings
Sales ..... Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"We've Decided Against The Test-Ban Treaty— We Want The Right To Develop Our Own Bomb"

Two Views On Gag Law Concerning Haldane Affair

The Charlotte Observer

BIOLOGY: The science of life; the branch that treats of living organisms.

The "gag law" passed by the General Assembly last session has placed its first ugly mark on the reputation of the University of North Carolina.

Because of the "gag law," a distinguished biologist will not come to the Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro campuses of the Consolidated University to talk about the world of living organisms.

The General Assembly's aim in passing the "gag law" ostensibly was to prevent this state's youth from being "taken in" by illusion-spinning Reds who are supposedly too smart for them. Not trusting the university's dedicated administrators, the legislators slapped a new law atop an old one to weave a thicker mesh of academic barbed wire around the colleges.

The first victims are the students themselves, particularly those biology majors who were to have heard from Dr. John Burton Haldane.

Dr. Haldane won't come because he got an "inquiry" from the University. The University sent the "inquiry" because of the "gag law" and a small line in International Who's Who which says that Dr. Haldane, from 1940 to 1949, was on the editorial board of the "Daily Worker," a Communist paper, in Britain.

In the first five of those years the United States and Russia were allies. Relations between us hardened only afterwards.

What Dr. Haldane's political beliefs are now we have no idea. Whatever they are, communism has no more to do with biology than Taoism or capitalism have to do with it, and Dr. Haldane is an eminent biologist.

His work has been honored by two of the great universities in the free world (Oxford and Edinburgh), and he is a member of the historic Royal Academy in England. He served on an awards committee which not long ago paid homage to Pope John XXII and the conservative American historian, Samuel Eliot Morrison.

When the "gag law" passed, we predicted that the legislature had "damaged North Carolina Schools' chances of even obtaining the services of many distinguished lecturers who would reject invitations in the knowledge that they were to be subjected to the kind of 'loyalty' check that could, because of misinformation or innuendo, do them personal harm."

This is precisely what happened. Scratch one series of lectures on an important branch of learning. And put one ugly smear for all to see on the lamp of higher education in North Carolina.

* * *

The Raleigh News & Observer

As a result of the ban on Communist speakers at State-supported colleges, North Carolina college students have been denied the opportunity to hear classroom lectures by one of the world's greatest scientists, Dr. J. B. S. Haldane. But the famous British scientist, however unorthodox his political views may be and despite his Marxist background, has at least done North Carolina the favor of pointing up how dangerous and unnecessary the new Red ban law really is.

It is inconceivable that any North Carolina college student would have been contaminated in any way by hearing a great scientist lecture on biology. And even the most frightened advocate of this ban's encroachment of freedom in North Carolina should admit that college students could profit a great deal by exposure to the knowledge of any great scientist in his chosen field.

Furthermore, Dr. Haldane was not invited to University campuses in Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro by any wild-eyed, fringe type of organization that some might find objectionable. The invitation was extended by the respected Institute of Biological Sciences here at North Carolina State, an organization whose concern is the search for scientific truth, not politics.

University officials reported that the Britisher, "as a matter of principle," refused to answer questions about his background which the University had to ask him in carrying out the intent of the speaker ban law. His refusal to answer the questions was the equivalent, of course, of turning down the institute's invitation. And the losers in this matter are the college students who could benefit by his knowledge and the State of North Carolina, not the scientist or godless communism.

North Carolinians should be disturbed but not surprised by this development. A man's political views in no way diminish his scientific contributions to mankind. If a Communist scientist discovered a cure for cancer, no one would suggest that Americans continue to die of cancer rather than take advantage of the remedy.

As the case of the British scientist emphasizes, this speaker ban is unworthy of North Carolina. No university or college can be great unless it is free to pursue knowledge and truth. And the people of North Carolina should not tolerate any longer than necessary this speaker ban which was the handiwork in the last Legislature not of true patriots but of these who fear freedom and democracy.

Warning To Frosh

By CHRIS FARRAN

When the dust has settled and you look back over your freshman year in college, you will view those first few months with the same sort of vague disbelief Phileas Fogg must have felt when he returned to London: "I made it . . . alive."

Certainly you will wonder how you could have been so very naive when you started school nine months earlier—naive financially, politically, intellectually, and in many other ways. You'll find you have adjusted to the idea of higher education the way a young bird learns to fly—by being pushed out of the nest.

The impressions you take home with you after your first year in college will not be the ones you got in the classroom. Of all that you've learned in your first two semesters, very little will show up in conversation for quite a while.

Instead, you will have picked up many widely-varied ideas from a great variety of people. During your four years in high school, your circle of friends varied little, and now suddenly in September you will find yourself in a pretty cosmopolitan group of students from every state in the union, every corner of the globe.

And this is the greatest value of your freshman year in college—its primary purpose is orientation—your chance to get on first-name terms with Greek philosophers, bill collectors, bartenders, British poets, football coaches, math instructors and dormitory janitors.

A proper title for a college catalogue might be "From the Sublime to the Ridiculous," for that will be the range of your experiences and acquaintances in college.

This vast new freedom, with its many temptations, is a mixed blessing. It teaches self-reliance in a hurry, the way a hang-over will teach discretion: enjoy now, pay later.

Financially, you will find that yu and your parents work up a little magic trick: they send you money and make it disappear. Depending upon what you want (as opposed to what you really need), you will find that the bulk of your funds will go for food, clothing, books, food, stamps, telephone calls, food and extra buttons.

Your studying will have a different aim, also—in high school you studied to get out; in college you study to stay in.

The best and most lasting thing your first year in college can give you is simple exposure. Like the sunburn variety, it may hurt a little at first. But believe it or not, after a while it will begin to look pretty good, and you may even get a few compliments on it.

Our Way Of Life

By PETER HARKNESS

This column is for the incoming students, especially the freshmen. It represents only one point of view, that of this writer, which is hardly typical.

The point involved concerns the attitude of the individual toward his or her stay at this University, what you feel are the important and the unimportant, the valuable and the unnecessary.

When one takes the step from high school to college, what attitudes should remain behind as memories to be replaced by a new sense and a new attitude?

The president of the student body, Mike Lawler, gave an excellent speech to the incoming coeds Tuesday night in which he pleaded with them to "Change the image of the Carolina Coed." It was an excellent speech — one of the best given by any President.

Lawler strayed from the ordinary and gave the students a rest from the "rah . . rah . . rah . . Carolina" talks that they had been hearing all week. The speech was challenging and, hopefully, there are a certain number who listened intently and will do some serious thinking about what he said.

The image that the Carolina Coed now projects is unfortunate for the simple reason that there is an image at all. It denotes a typical coed, and to be typical means to conform. Conformity here, at a university known for her tradition of academic freedom, is a tragedy.

All through the speeches that were given to incoming students, the phrase "the Carolina way of life" kept popping up. The question is, what does it mean? "The Carolina way of life" is an innocuous phrase that might well have a different meaning for everyone. Unfortunately it does not.

To many, this phrase connotes Madras and burgandy, Weejuns and London Fogs. Life here is in a pattern and any divergence from that pattern of life is met with intolerance — sometimes a cruel intolerance.

Adherence to the pattern is weak in some circles while strong in others, but the latter, which is made up of undergraduates for the most part, is larger and represents the Carolina student.

Mike Lawler hit on a subject which deserves more attention and last year a graduating coed named Beth Walker, mentioned by Lawler in his speech, told her classmates what had been on her mind for two years.

As Lawler said, Beth described the "Weejun-shod" and "Madras-brained" coed. She cited aspects of the University and of the coed herself that caused her potential to be tragically undernourished, underchallenged, and over-conformed.

Beth was an attractive girl with a sweet smile and a BRAIN. She was very active in Student Government and other programs. At the same time, she did well in her studies and had plenty of time for social life.

There are so many factions of people on this campus, so many different groups with different interests, students from the South, the nation and the world. Many dress differently or wear their hair in a different manner than others. There is no room for intolerance here.

Throughout the world students are beginning to take a more active role in the society that surrounds them. The youth of South Viet Nam, in protesting the rule of the government, have placed the United States in a precarious position.

The Negro youth in this country, dedicated to a cause, are perpetrating one of the largest social revolutions in this country's history. The youth in Latin America and Europe, the students, take much more interest in their environment than we here.

This column, then, is an appeal to the future Mike Lawlers and Beth Walkers. Life at Carolina is not necessarily all burgandy and Weejuns. If one does not desire to join a fraternity or sorority, or even if he or she cannot join, it isn't really important.

If one desires to wear or say or do something that does not fit into the pattern, wear it, or say it, or do it. Don't be afraid to be different.

The "Carolina way of life" is your way of life. Live it the way that you want to and not the way "they" dictate.

Movie Review

Fellini Has A Fine Flick

By LEON CAPETANOS

Review: "8½", Directed by Frederico Fellini. Rialto Theatre.

On some chaotic night after solitude has turned to loneliness we may find ourselves confessing to a strange face, an unfamiliar voice. We will tell our secrets and our sins and announce our visions and caress our memories as if this barroom listener were our priest and our lover.

With dawn, sobriety brings embarrassment as we rember what we said, but somehow we are glad that we said it. This strange embarrassment remembers dreams that might die in the rigor of the sun and weakness that would laugh at our ambitions. Still we smile at the thought of that stranger who holds our heart. So all is said even if mumbled. We are clean.

This feeling is the beginning of love and this is the feeling that Fellini give us in "8½", his latest film, now playing at the Rialto in Durham. To see it is to witness the best of cinema. We are illuminated in Fellini's world of evanescent affections where cringing blacks and bleak whites conceive shadows that look remarkably familiar.

Many think the film sheer autobiography. It is not. It is personal and grinning. Some might assert that it is a self portrait. It is a portrait without a face and without a logical focus.

The director-hero of the story is planning a new film. While the mechanics and stupidities of production whirl around him, he visits an elegant spa to seek a "cure". There is no inspiration for him. His banal mistress bores him. His fashionable wife irritates him. His associates nauseate him. All of the people surrounding him seem to be dancing to an absurd rhythm, a rhythm which is diametrically opposed to his own meter.

So the director, Guido Anselmi, attempts to escape the impending disintegration. He escapes in dream, in memory, in walk and gesture — but only for a moment.

Fellini handles these escapes beautifully, and some of these scenes constitute the best work he has done. The poetic remembrance of childhood is masterful and the comic harem where Guido reigns with lash and love is superb.

Technically they indicate nothing visually experimental. Fellini uses old methods and evident manners. Yet in the choice of technique and in the sythesis of sound, light, movement and texture we find what is unique in this film.

It is the absurd handled not as Truflaut would see it but as Fellini knows it: A phoenix turns out to be just a pleasant crow.

The dance on which the film ends finds Guido back in step. When the chaos seemed to be falling directly on his head, reunion occurs — reunion with the whimsy of life and the fragility of belief. The clown band resurrects the spirit just as Guido is confronted by the dismantling of his illogical edifice, a soaring structure that rises from the proposed set. The ritual ends in a romantic pageant, an individualistic extravaganza. What is more important than life itself?

"8½" is powerfully directed and superbly acted. Marcello Mastroianni deserves special praise for his work as do Anouk Aime and Sandra Milo. Gianni di Venanzo should be mentioned for the poetry of his visual effects, but the real master is still Fellini. He has fashioned a baroque masterpiece out of prsonal momentoes; out of those pieces of life hidden in a child's pocket.

The short trip to the Rialto is well worth the time, and the return will afford you a few minutes more to think about the film. It is pleasant to note that even the academic Lethe which surrounds our village can not erase the emotional gift of "8½". The real reason for the film, the actual "why", is to be found underneath the balyhoo unmentioned by Fellini. It is somewhere in ourselves, a secret.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typewritten and triple-spaced.

North Carolina, Virginia Open Season Today

Vintage Year Seen For UNC Football

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Jim Hickey and his Tar Heels annually approach that first football game optimistic that this is The year. And just as annually they discover that it wasn't The pre-season ballyhoo this time around is similar to 1959 (a disappointing 5-5); to 1960 (a poor 3-7); to 1961 (a fair 5-5) and to last year (a disastrous start for 3-7). Every year, those who are supposed to know say it will be different. This year, however, they will be right.

Gone are those mistake-filled sophomore days and the ill-fated three-team system—the "Blues," "Rams," and "Tar Heels." Back are 29 lettermen, and that means valuable experience, considerable depth and, it says here hopefully, victories.

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

HAVING PREDICTED a brilliant future for the Continental League, invested all my money in Edsel stock and picked Larry Burright as baseball's next super star, I find it very difficult to pay any attention to me when evaluating anything.

But because I enjoy college football and am permitted to write about it, the following weeks will find this space trying to approach an educated football average of 50 per cent. (UNC games will be omitted. I'm not that brave!)

SOUTH CAROLINA AT DUKE. The Gamecocks are going to miss halfback Billy Gambrell, last season's Player of the Year in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Quarterback Dan Reeves remains as the sole show, and he is not enough to match Duke's fine running backs, Bill Futrell, Mike Curtis and Jay Wilkinson. Duke, by 10.

NC STATE AT MARYLAND. Dick Shiner is one of America's finest passers, but his Terp supporting cast was severely deleted by graduation. State has good depth and should not make as many mistakes this year. It'll be a surprise. NC State, by 7.

CLEMSON AT OKLAHOMA. His tigers may even outroar Fran kHoward this fall, but they're aiming for ACC play. Good backs will make Oklahoma too tough. Closer than you think. Oklahoma, by 3.

WAKE FOREST AT EAST CAROLINA. The only place the Deacons can go is up. Or is it? Up is such a long way for these guys — ACC patsies at 0-10 last year. And they lost Karl Sweetan for more than a month. ECC dedicates a new stadium with this one. If Wake loesn't win it, it won't win any. Wake Forest, by 2.

The East: Boston Loses Two

BOSTON COLLEGE AT SYRACUSE. The improved Orangemen have Wally Mahle to throw the ball and Jim Nance to run with it. Jack Concannon's bombs will fall short. Syracuse, by 12.

BOSTON U. AT ARMY. Both teams are hurting at quarterback, but where Paul Dietzel has an impressive defensive line, BU has nothing. Army, by 20.

ALABAMA AT GEORGIA. I just happened to pick up the phone the other day and I heard these two guys talking football. I really didn't think much of it but now . . . .Alabama, by 12.

VPI AT KENTUCKY. Half the Wildcats are spohomores, and this is a good way to start out. Kentucky, by 14.

TEXAS A&M AT LSU. The new substitution rule cannot help but hurt LSU early in the season. Improved Aggies will make it a good ballgame. LSU, by 10.

NAVY AT WEST VIRGINIA. Navy looks like the class of the East. Roger Staubach over Jerry Yost in a battle of fine quarterbacks. Navy, by 7.

NORTHWESTERN AT MISSOURI. Many pick the Wildcats biggest of the Big Ten. Missouri's usual strong defense can not offset the loss of Johnny Roland. Northwestern, by 14.

AUBURN AT HOUSTON. Auburn's line is a question mark. But a second-division club in the Southeastern Conference is a first-division club almost anywhere else. A close one. Auburn, by 5.

KANSAS AT TEXAS CHRISTIAN. Kansas has Gale Sayers and he could be the best running back around. But TCU is much improved. Home field means a lot here. Texas Christian, by 7.

The West: Some Fine Backs

COLORADO STATE AT ARKANSAS. A loss to Texas last season prevented the Razorbacks from sharing in a fourth straight Southwest Conference championship. Skinny Billy Gray takes over from Billy Moore, and they may be better. Arkansas, by 25.

WASHINGTON AT AIR FORCE. Junior Coffey regularly picks up five yards a carry. Jim Owens regularly wins seven games a year. This will be one of them. Washington, by 14.

PENN STATE AT OREGON. One of the East's best meets one of the West's best. Mel Renfro, the finest college football player in the country, will be the difference. Oregon, by 3.

SOUTHERN CAL AT COLORADO. Talk about powerhouses! Here's Pete Beathard, Hal Bedsole, Damon Bame, and Willie Brown. And you don't usually find four All-American possibilities on the same team. Eddie Crowder's debut will not be pleasant. Southern Cal, by 18.

OTHERS:

Mississippi over Memphis State
Tennessee over Richmond
Vanderbilt over Furman
VMI over George Washington
Ohio University over Buffalo
California over Iowa State
Wyoming over Montana
Bishop College over Mississippi Vocational

OFFENSE

Offensively, UNC has the horses to match anyone in the league, perhaps anyone on the schedule. The main offense, the one that will be expected to produce the touchdowns, is called Junior Edge, Bob Lacey and Ken Willard. They are complemented in the backfield and at the flanks by Tommy Ward, Hank Barden or Eddie Kesler and John Hammett. These guys and their backup men are UNC's scoring department.

BOB LACEY

Willard, a second team All-ACC pick as a sophomore fullback, was moved to halfback last spring and will probably be used at both positions this season. The 220-pounder rushed 466 yards for a 3.9 average in his rookie year.

Big Ken will be spelled by Ron Tuthill (5-10, 175), a junior who excelled in the spring and Dave Braine. The position they man is called "running back" by UNC coaches and differs from the fullback slot chiefly in name.

At full, the plan was to run Eddie Kesler, a powerful 215-pound junior, thereby achieving a "pro-look" running program with Willard and Kesler side by side. But two things have stalled this manuever.

The first was a pulled muscle Kesler suffered about two weeks ago that kept him out of action for 10 days. The second was Hank Barden.

Barden's defensive ability has never been questioned, and he will be remembered as the man who recovered from a pass defense mistake in time to save last year's game with South Carolina. But until this fall, he had not been thought of in terms of offense.

During Kesler's absence, however, he came along so well that he may start the opener with Virginia as a 180-pound fullback. If Kesler is completely recovered, though, the Tar Heels will definitely go with the two big boys. Jim Eason (6-0, 185) is the third fullback.

Tommy Ward (6-1, 185), another top defensive performer as a soph last season, has also surprised the coaching staff with his running ability. He will start and line up at "wingback" Saturday a yard out and a yard back of the tight end. Behind Ward are co-captain Roger Smith (5-10, 170) and the little (5-8, 165) scatback, Ronnie Jackson.

Junior Edge's qualifications at the fourth backfield post are impressive. Reputed to be the eighth best such statistics in the country last year were his 103 of 185 passes for 1234 yards. The 6-0, 205-pound senior signal caller is ahead of Juniors Gary Black and Sandy Kinney.

Moving to the line, the end position is sturdy and, on one side at least, sure to be sensational at times.

That side is the "wide" side where the "split end" roams. And some people say that the best in the business will be roaming that side for UNC this fall.

His name is Bob Lacey, and if you haven't heard of him by now you're either a freshman or deaf, dumb and blind.

There is not much said about Lacey that isn't true. He caught 44 passes last year for 668 yards and five touchdowns — a rank of seventh in the NCAA. Size (6-3, 210), speed, sure hands, great moves. He's got it all. The guy is a sure-fire pro prospect even if he doesn't make first team All-American.

At tight end, Lacy's counterpart on the other end of the line, will be John Hammett. A 5-10, 197-pound senior, Hammett is a blocker and a consistent two-way ballplayer. The blond Greensboro native sprained his ankle in practice last week, but it should be okay for opening day.

If not, the Tar Heels have found a fine relief man in sophomore John Atherton. He and letterman Joe Robinson are behind Hammett while big (6-2, 205) Frank Gallagher and Neal Clay spell Lacey at split end.

The interior line is well-stocked with veterans and is expected to be the biggest improvement from last year. Aside from mentioning that tackle Vic Esposito is Carolina's best blocker, the story of the line can best be told in the next section.

DEFENSE

Most experts will tell you that football games are won and lost in the line. UNC gave up a staggering total of 206 points last year. That's 20 points a game, Jack, and though much of this ineptitude was attributed to the defensive backfield, the line also came in for some derogative adjectives. Like "porous," "weak," and "terrible."

The situation has been rectified, however, according to Coach Hickey and his staff. "Rugged." "Dependable." These have been the adjectives used this year, and on this very defensive line may rest UNC's football fate.

The same ends remain, with Hammett a standout. Lacey will probably be rested as much as possible as Gallagher takes over when the other team has the ball.

At tackle, Esposito (6-1, 220) is dynamite. He will line up next to Hammett and be relieved by letterman John Hill (5-11, 235).

Co-captain Gene Sigmon moved into the other starting tackle spot when Cole Kortner broke his nose in practice. But both Sigmon (6-2, 220) and Kortner (6-0, 234) will see plenty of action on Gallagher's side.

Last spring, Jimmy Alderman (5-11, 214) and Loren Wells (6-2, 200) were figured to be the two top guards on the squad. But junior Richie Zarro (6-0, 205) and Jerry Cabe (5-10, 205) have moved in and taken over.

The latter two will start against Virginia with Cabe, a wrestler in the off-season, occupying middle guard on the defensive line and Zarro moving back to right linebacker.

Center (the left linebacker spot on defense) definitely was the hardest hit by graduation. And here is where Hickey made his key move of last spring.

CHRIS HANBURGER

With the graduation of 1962 co-captain Joe Craver and team MVP Bob Zaback (both outstanding centers) staring him in the face, Hickey shifted Chris Hanburger, a hard-hitting defensive end, to the vacated position.

Fast and aggressive, Hanburger (6-0, 200) has filled the bill impressively — in practice. How really effective the move is will not be known until after today's game.

Letterman junior Glenn Ogburn (5-10, 204) and rookie Ed Stringer (6-1, 210) are both back of Hanburger.

The offensive backfield, with one possible change, will remain intact on defense.

Hickey will play his fullback and running back at the corner spots on defense. On the left, that will mean Barden or Kesler. At right cornerback, the change will come. Hickey very probably will rest his offensive workhorse, Willard, in favor of Braine

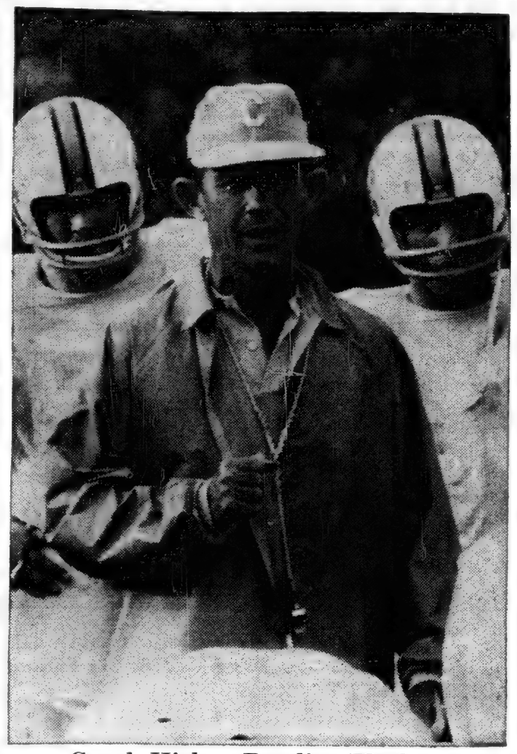
(Continued on Page 5)

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Saturday, September 21, 1963 Page 3



Coach Hickey Readies 'Heels

UNC Analysis–1

Tar Heels Ready

The following is the first in a series of exclusive articles by UNC football coach Jim Hickey. In the coming weeks, Hickey will explain game strategy, analyze the opponent and point out things to look for on the football field.

By JIM HICKEY

We're as ready as we'll ever be for this opener today. I would say the ball club is definitely ahead of where we were at this time last year.

I couldn't have asked for better cooperation this fall, for these guys are confident, their attitude is excellent, and the spirit is sky high.

I have always said that if you're going to have a good football team, the seniors you have must do an outstanding job, both performance-wise and in their leadership. That is why I feel pretty happy about this team — this is the best group of seniors I've ever had here.

As to offensive or defensive strategy in the opener, we'll play Virginia as we'll play everyone this fall — letting the situation determine a passing game or a running game. At this time, I am not thinking of concentrating on on or th other.

I feel we have a fine attack with Edge, Lacey and Willard. Everybody fussed so about Willard being moved from fullback. But his duties, with the exception of a single play, are exactly what they were as a fullback.

Kesler and Hammett have come around and will be ready to start. Whether they do is something I haven't decided. Both Barden and the sophomore, Atherton, have looked very good.

Our defense is very much improved. Let me qualify that by saying we have been tough against ourselves. We need a game badly to find out how much better we really are.

I am almost completely in the dark about Virginia because they have so much new personnel. Of course, we know Sieg and Massie at the halfbacks are strong runners. Todd and Bickers on the line have also impressed us in the past.

We know nothing, however, about the two sophomores in the backfield. The fullback, Prusmack, has drawn raves up there. Coach Elias keeps saying their quarterback, Dunphey, is a fine runner and they wil concentrate on that. I just don't know. He may come down here and throw 30 passes.

There are a lot of other young fellows I know nothing about. We have respect for this team, and I am anticipating a tough football game.

Lacey Makes Bid To Join UNC Elite

That big number "85" you'll see as the split end for the Tar Heels this afternoon is Bob Lacey. He has much the same effect on a football as flypaper has on flies and for this reason he is being considered as a possible All-America.

If he makes it, Bob will become the tenth UNC player and the sixth Tar Heel end to do so. Past All-Americas at Carolina are: guard George Barclay (1934), end Andy Bershak (1937), tackle Steve Maronic (1938), end Paul Severin (1939-40), halfback Charlie Justice (1948-49), end Art Weiner (1948-49), end Ken Powell (1949), center Irvin Holdash (1950), and end Al Goldstein (1958).

Past Stars Here

The past will mingle with the present in Kenan Stadium this afternoon. Among the thousands of spectators will be Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice, recognized as Carolina's all-time greatest, and Bill Dudley, who enjoyed similar fame as a halfback for Virginia.

Also on hand will be several members of the 1903 UNC team which defeated Virginia, 16-0, while compiling a 6-3 record for that season.

27,000 Anticipated For 68th Renewal

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Two old, old rivals meet amidst a "new" environment here today when North Carolina and Virginia open the 1963 Atlantic Coast Conference football season.

The 1:30 game, first to be played in Kenan Stadium since construction placed 17,260 permanent new seats and a second tier there, is expected to draw 27,000.

It will be broadcast locally over radio stations WCHL (Bill Currie and Jim Heavner on "Caronet" — 1360) and WRAL (Ray Reeve and Crowell Little — 1240).

The series between today's foes dates back to 1892. That year, UNC played the Cavaliers twice and split, winning 26-0 and losing 30-18.

Over the years, the schools have played 67 times but, strangely, never have opened a season against each other. Carolina leads the series, 37-27. There have been three ties.

The Tar Heels, attempting to climb back into the national limelight after an absence of several years, think this might be the season.

Their hopes could be justified. In quarterback Junior Edge end split end Bob Lacey, they have a most potent air attack. And running back Ken Willard, a powerful 220-pounder, amply takes care of the ground chores.

The rest of the UNC lineup is a collection of experienced veterans. Tommy Ward, at wingback, Eddie Kesler, at fullback, and tight end John Hammett complete the offensive arsenal.

The starting interior line includes Gene Sigmon and Vic Esposito at the tackles, guards Jerry Cabe and Richie Zarro and Chris Hanburger, a converted end, at center.

Virginia will come into Kenan a somewhat unknown quantity. The Cavaliers are expected to start four sophomores, two in the backfield, two in the line, against UNC.

They are quarterback Bob Dunphey (6-0, 195), fullback Bob Prusmack (5-10, 205), both considered outstanding runners, in the backline, and tackle Bob Kowalkowski (6-1, 210) and end Frank Gigliotti (6-2, 205) on the line.

| UNC | UVA |
|---|---|
| LE—Lacey | Gigliotti |
| LT—Sigmon | Torok |
| LG—Cabe | Bickers |
| C—Hanburger | Todd |
| RG—Zarro | Perry |
| RT—Esposito | Kowalkowski |
| RE—Hammett | Christhilf |
| QB—Edge | Dunphey |
| RH—Ward | Sieg |
| LH—Willard | Massie |
| FB—Kesler | Prusmack |

The other half of the backfield finds two strong, experienced runners in seniors Terry Sieg and Henry Massie.

Sieg (6-1, 187) had a 5.0 rushing average from his right halfback position last year. He is president of the senior class at UVA. Massie (6-1, 180) is a baseball pitcher in the off-season.

Joining sophs Gigliotti and Kowalkowski on the line are four seniors and a lone junior. Ted Torok (6-4, 228) is the junior at the other tackle.

The guards are Duane Bickers (5-11, 205) an outstanding defenseman, and Bruce Perry (6-0, 216). At center is captain Turnley Todd (6-1, 215).

'New' Kenan Seats 42,000

By MAT FRIEDMAN

With the University bursting at the seams, beautiful "new look" Kenan Stadium is all ready to seat 42,000 Tar Heel rooters in style and comfort.

Actually, without end-zone seats being used except on overflow days, the picturesque park will seat about 2,000 fewer than it did last year. But with the addition of a second tier, all seats will be along the sidelines and some will be under cover.

The renovation was made possible by a $1 million gift from William Rand Kenan, who insisted that the "new look" offer first class facilities and that the architecture assure the beauty and uniqueness of the original setting.

Back in 1927, when the original Kenan Stadium was dedicated, it seated 24,000. But 28,000 packed the stands that day to see the Tar Heels score a 14-13 victory over, of all teams, this Saturday's guests, the Virginia Cavaliers.

Built originally as a memorial to Mr. Kenan's parents, the "new" Kenan has the design and comfort to make it one of the nation's finest. Its original cost was $375,000. At that time the student body was about 2,400. Today it is over 10,000.

Last year's seating capacity was somewhere around 44,000. Now, the concrete football memorial boasts an official estimate of 42,012 permanent seats.

Hickey's Staff Remains Intact

Coach Jim Hickey's staff of assistant coaches remains basically the same this year as the five field assistants all return. They are line coaches Emmett Cheek, Joe Mark, Bob Thalman, end coach Vita Ragazzo and defensive backfield coach Bud Carson.

Cheek also serves as head of the UNC scouting team. George Barclay returns for his third year as freshman coach.

Football Horrorscope

The distinguished-looking sage peering from between the lines of this column is Norval Neil Luxon, Dean of the Journalism School and journeyman football prognosticator.

He is the first in a series of surprise guest selectors lined up by the Daily Tar Heel in an attempt to bring its football predictions (translation: blind guesses of the sports staff) up to a respectable level, percentage-wise.

Luxon

Reluctant, at first, to become a part of this nonsense, the noted Dean went about his difficult task with vigor. After glancing through the selected games, muttering "I don't know anything about Houston or Auburn," and consulting his lucky carnation, Luxon ventured forth.

As the results below show, he has not won his far-flung reputation by staying off the limb. The Dean called what may become the biggest upset of the early season — Georgia over Alabama.

The rest of the panel, which is comprised of DTH staffers Curry Kirkpatrick, John Montague, Fred Hobson, Mat Friedman and Al Kaplan, was not so brave.

They will be picking every week which may account for the tendency to conservatism they have shown the first time around. Either that, or they're all yellow chickens.

The selectors, this week, have guessed along the same lines, as the unanimous agreement on nine games shows. They split 3-3 on only two contests.

The "Horrorscope" — an apt title considering the personalities involved and the probable results — welcomes any and all correspondence (both con and con). For comic relief, the following is presented.

| GAMES | KIRKPATRICK | MONTAGUE | HOBSON | FRIEDMAN | KAPLAN | LUXON |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| USC-Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke |
| State-Md | St | Md | Md. | St | Md. | St |
| Clem-Okla | Okla | Okla | Okla | Okla | Okla | Okla |
| Bama-Ga | Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama | Ga |
| Arky-Ok.St | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky |
| Aub-Houst | Aub | Aub | Aub | Aub | Aub | Aub |
| VPI-Ky | Ky | Ky | Ky | Ky | Ky | Ky |
| Navy-WVU | Navy | WVU | Navy | Navy | Navy | WVU |
| Bos.Col-Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra |
| Bos.U-Army | Army | Army | Army | BU | Army | Army |
| Nwest-Mo | Nwest | NWest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest |
| Kan-TCU | TCU | TCU | Kan | Kan | TCU | Kan |
| PennSt-Ore | Ore | Ore | PS | Ore | PS | Ore |
| So.Cal-Colo | USC | USC | USC | USC | USC | USC |
| Wash-AirF. | Wash | Wash | Wash | Wash | Wash | Wash |

Duke Given Edge Over Clemson In Scramble For ACC Laurels

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Football fans will flock to three stadiums this afternoon to watch the curtain go up on what could be the most exciting season in the ACC's 11-year history.

Six of the circuit's eight teams have been tabbed as contenders for the pigskin crown, and five of these hopefuls will begin conference warfare today at College Park, Durham, and right here in Chapel Hill.

N. C. State takes its hard-hitting line and hard-to-pronounce backfield to Maryland, where passing-whiz Dick Shiner leads the always-tough Terps.

Duke, which has monopolized the ACC for the last three years, opens its title defense at home against a bunch of chickens who are talking turkey. These would be the Gamecocks from South Carolina who have plenty of size to go along with flashy quarterback Dan Reeves.

On the local scene, UNC's best team in four years entertains the Virginia Cavaliers, who are expected to be one of the league's two also-rans.

Clemson, the sixth and possibly strongest contender, and Wake Forest, the other also-ran, don't get into league play until October 5. This weekend they are engaged in non-conference skirmishes on somewhat different levels — the Tigers meeting Oklahoma while the Deacons tangle with East Carolina.

With so many teams in the thick of things, even an educated guess becomes an impossibility. So the DTH Sports Staff made an uneducated guess, tabbing Duke to nose out Clemson.

DUKE — Here is a team that has so many weaknesses that it should be a tailender. But, unfortunately, Blue Devils must be Blue Devils and the kind we have aroun here are like a cork in water — they always rise to the top.

This year Coach Bill Murray can't find a quarterback. But you can bet he'll find one, just like he found All-ACC fullback Mike Curtis last season. This 210-pound bulldozer is back as are fleet halfbacks Jay Wilkinson and Billy Futrell. Put the three together and you have the best running attack in the conference.

THE FORECAST

1. Duke
2. Clemson
3. UNC
4. NC State
5. Maryland
6. USC
7. Wake
8. Virginia

Duke's line is bigger than last fall's counterpart and retains enough experience to remain one of the best in the conference.

Overall, Duke has 46 sophs on its 76-man roster and for any other team this would be a rebuilding year. But Duke has two big factors in its favor — that winning tradition and a HOME date with No. 1 challenger Clemson (on Oct. 19).

CLEMSON — Coach Frank Howard is at his boastful best this fall and he has many "believers." Listening to Howard, you'd think he had All-Americans sitting on the bench. Actually Howard doesn't have one on his whole squad, but he has two or three real good football players at nearly every position and this could well spell the downfall of those who oppose the Tigers of the clay country.

Quarterback Jim Parker is the flashiest of the Bengals, whether he's running or passing. Pat Crain, the team's leading rusher in '62, returns to his fullback post and center Ted Bunton is the standout member of a rugged forward wall.

Clemson is given the best chance to topple Duke from its perennial pinnacle. Howard likes hard-nosed football and his team is equipped for it this fall.

NORTH CAROLINA — With Junior Edge passing and Bob Lacey catching, the Tar Heels have the fastest-striking offense in the ACC. This gives Coach Jim Hickey a valuable asset, the ability to come from behind in the final minutes.

If the UNC defense holds up this fall, the Tar Heels will have a good shot at the top. Ken Willard and Eddie Kesler give the Tar Heels running power and wingback Tommy Ward could take the pressure off Lacey as a receiver.

Whatever the answer is, it won't come until late in the season. The Tar Heels' final two ACC games are with Clemson and Duke.

N. C. STATE — The conference darkhorse. Coach Earle Edwards' Wolfpack is two-deep with experienced linemen and the backfield, while not spectacular, is consistently productive. It is composed of quarterback Jim Rossi, fullback Pete Falzarano, halfback Tony Koszarsky and wingback Joe Scarpati. All in all, N. C. State has a good football team, but not quite good enough.

MARYLAND — Coach Tom Nugent has his Terrapins running out of the "I" formation again this year and you can always count on the Terps for coming up with a bag full of tricks.

One surprise won't be quarterback Shiner. He's already established himself as one of the nation's best. Halfback Len Chiaverini spearheads the running attack.

The Terps' line is in the rebuilding stage and this will probably hold them back this year. An early date with Duke (Oct. 5) may tell a lot.

SOUTH CAROLINA — "I've been hearing a lot about South Carolina," says Clemson's Frank Howard, "but of course South Carolina is always good about this time of year."

This has been the story in the past and it should hold true again this fall. The Gamecocks have a much improved squad, but just about everyone in the ACC is better, so relatively USC stays the same.

WAKE FOREST and VIRGINIA — Neither the Deacons nor the Cavaliers have much to cheer about this season. UVA lost quarterback Gary Cuozzo through graduation and Wake lost promising signal-caller Karl Sweetan before he ever played a game.

1963 Schedule

| | 1962 Score |
|---|---|
| Sept. — VIRGINIA—Chapel Hill | 11-7 |
| Sept. 28 — Michigan State—E. Lansing | 6-38 |
| *Oct. 5 — Wake Forest—Winston-Salem | 23-14 |
| Oct. 12 — Maryland—College Park | 13-31 |
| Oct. 19 NC STATE—Chapel Hill | 6-7 |
| Oct. 26 — South Carolina—Columbia | 19-14 |
| Nov. 2 — GEORGIA—Chapel Hill | DNP |
| Nov. 9 — CLEMSON—Chapel Hill | 6-17 |
| Nov. 16 — MIAMI, FLA.—Chapel Hill | DNP |
| Nov. 23 — Duke—Durham | 14-16 |

*Night game Homecoming

Welcome to
Eastgate
Laundromat
OPEN
24 HOURS A DAY
Wash . . . . 25c
Dry . . . . . 10c

Joyner House Welcomes Back The Girls

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery Hours: Monday-Thursday until 11:30 P.M.
Friday-Saturday — until 12 A.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Binkley Memorial Baptist Church
Worships at 11:00 A.M. each Sunday in Gerrard Hall on the UNC Campus.
—VISITORS WELCOME—

Everybody Goes To
Shoney's
HOME OF THE BIG BOY
Durhams Newest And
Finest Drive In-Restaurant
THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A
SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT
½ PRICE ½
GOOD FRIDAY
SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY
Shoney's
Restaurant And Drive In
185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
DURHAM

N. C. CAFETERIA
"HOME OF GOOD FOOD"

Free Seconds on Coffee and Tea
Free Parking in
Merchants Parking Lot
Complete Take-Out Service
Try one of our homemade pies
SERVING HOURS: 11:30-2:00 5:00-7:15
Two doors from Bank of Chapel Hill on Franklin Street
WELCOME STUDENTS

Now Open
Tar Heel Car Wash
"3-Minute Car Wash"
Located W. Franklin Street, E. Main Street
Midway of Chapel Hill and Carrboro
Car Wash $1.75
MOTORS Steam Cleaned $3.50
CARS Washed, Cleaned, Waxed $11.95
Free Pick-up and Delivery
Hours: 8:00 A.M. 'Til 6:00 P.M. Monday-Saturday
Phone 929-1351

To Serve You Better...

CAROLINA CAB
942-3181
HOLLYWOOD CAB
942-3668

Chapel Hill's Two Oldest Cab Companies Combine To Give You Better Service
Here's What Our Radio-Controlled Service Means to You . . .
1. When you pick up your telephone and DIAL 942-3181 or 942-3668 our courteous operator takes your order.
2. Our trained operator then dispatches to your home or business address a Carolina or Hollywood Cab, whichever is in your vicinity.
3. When a driver has completed a call, he immediately contacts our radio-control dispatch office giving his location, so when you call for a Carolina or Hollywood Cab your cab may be just around the corner! This enables us to offer you speedier service and save you valuable time.
4. Remember, when you dial the Carolina number you may get a Hollywood Cab—or when you dial the Hollywood number you may get a Carolina Cab. With either you can be assured of PROMPT, SAFE, COURTEOUS SERVICE.
For Shopping, Business or Social Calls, Depend on . . .
CAROLINA AND HOLLYWOOD CAB SERVICE
Call Us . . . and Count the Minutes!

Welcome U N C

For the best in Esso Service, TRADE WITH Esso
NORWOOD BROTHERS ESSO SERVICENTER
136 West Franklin Street Dial 942-3771 Road Service by Radio-Dispatched Vehicles

Freshmen At State For Baptismal Test

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Coach George Barclay will take a "pro formation" and two "first-string" quarterbacks to Raleigh tonight, hoping for a successful debut of his 1963 freshman football team.

The Tar Babies, with 2½ weeks of practice under their belts, tangle with NC State's Wolfiets in Riddick Stadium on the State College campus. Kick-off time is 8 p.m.

Like Jim Hickey's varsity, the UNC frosh will run from a "pro" type formation which features a split end and a flanking halfback.

The end will be Bobby Knott (6-2 190) from Roxboro. The wingback will be 6-0, 198-pound Tom Lampman, a native of Lynchburg, Va. Both will be pass-targets for two promising quarterbacks, Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver.

Talbott, (6-0, 180) the most sought-after schoolboy in the state last year, is from Rocky Mount. He is rated as a strong runner who also throws the ball real well.

More noted for his passing ability is Beaver, a 6-2, 180-pound Charlotte product. Barclay intends to alternate the two about equally with Talbott getting first call.

The two backs who will handle most of the running are fullback Spencer Barrow (6-1, 220) from Ahoskie and running back Leon Fonvielle. The latter (6-0, 175) is from Tabor City.

With Beaver in the second team backfield are running back Jim Fortune of Brevard, fullback Tim Reardon of Washington, D. C. and wingback Bud Phillips of Charlotte.

Coach Barclay has no idea what to expect from State. He is also uncertain of how his own boys will react in game situations, but he is confident that his team has the ability.

After the opener, the Tar Babies will meet Wake Forest on October 11, Virginia on October 18, Duke on October 25 and Maryland on November 1. The home games are with Wake and Duke.

STARTING FROSH LINE-UP

LE—Bobby Knott
LT—Lee Davis
LG—Dave Erimias
C—John Cornelius
RG—Joe Fratangelo
RT—Ray Meador
RE—Bob Powell
QB—Danny Talbott
FB—Spencer Barrow
RB—Leon Fonvielle
WB—Tom Lampman

UNC Co-Captains Express Confidence

Tackle Gene Sigmon, from Newton, and wingback Roger Smith, from Albemarle, are co-captains of 1963's UNC football team. The following is an exclusive report on their outlook for the coming season.

By GENE SIGMON
And ROGER SMITH

We've had the toughest and best pre-season practice in our four years here.

There is a lot of confidence on the squad because we have a lot of experienced players. The team has the enthusiasm of sophomores to go with the experience of the veterans.

Actually, it wouldn't matter who started, because both the first and second teams are equally strong. We doubt whether you could tell the differnce if they squared off on the field. Perhaps, then, you could say our strongest point is depth.

We have several outstanding players who should be there when the post-season honors are handed out. Their accomplishments speak for themselves.

Junior Edge was eighth in the nation in passing last season. Bob Lacey set a conference record for pass receptions. Ken Willard was second unit all-conference as a sophomore and figures to be even greater this year.

The team lost its top two centers and we thought that might be the weak spot, but Chris Hanburger has been outstanding thus far.

It's going to be a tough schedule but, to use the old saying, we're just going to play them one at a time, starting with Virginia on Saturday.

All in all, it loks like the most wide-open ACC race we've had here in quite a while.

Sketch Class

A public sketch class will be held at the Ackland Art Center this semester, according to course instructor Prof. Kenneth Ness.

"The class will feature drawing and sketching from models, and will be concerned with problems in composition, structure and design", said Ness. "The class will work in charcoal, pencil, pen and ink and color.

"It is an excellent course for the beginning artist, but may also serve as a refresher for the more experienced."

The course, open to all residents and students, will cost $15. Registration will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 210 of the Ackland Building.

- Vintage Year Seen -

(Continued from Page 3)

—a smart, steady defender.

Since UNC's best passer is also it's best pass defender, Junior Edge, though he may be relieved often by Black, will be the right safety.

SPECIALISTS

In recent years, UNC has not drawn too many raves for its kicking game. In 1960, the Tar Heels beat Duke 7-6, but the losses due to kicking have far outnumbered the wins.

This year, due to the emergence of two sophomores, the kicking will be better—far, far better. And it will surprise most people.

Bill Edwards (6-0, 182) is slated to be the punter. There is every reason to believe he can handle his new job capably, but if he can't, Edge (who averaged 36.1 yards in 37 kicks last year) will get the call.

In the matter of place kicking, Hickey must have a hard time keeping himself from doing handsprings. In Max Chapman (5-11, 187), he has a kid that can consistently put the ball in the end zone on kickoffs and has demonstrated in practice a propensity for booting field goals.

There is no question about his ability to get good distance on the three-pointers, and from 15 to 30 yards, he is considered quite accurate.

How much this will effect Hickey's game strategy in certain situations is a moot point. But the kid is there, and it's a good feeling.

Extra point duty will fall to Dave Braine, Hickey feeling Braine is more accurate from in close than Chapman.

Receiving kickoffs and punts and returning same is in the hands of Willard, Ward, Kessler and Barden with occasional help from Tuthill, Smith and Jackson.

Enroll in:

TYPEWRITING

And/or

SHORTHAND

Afternoon and Evening Classes begin Oct. 3, 1963

for information, call or write

TOWN CLASSES Secretarial College

159½ E. Franklin (Over Sutton's)
Chapel Hill
Telephone 942-4797

P. O. Box 615

WE URGE YOU TO SEE IT FROM THE START BECAUSE THAT'S WHEN HE EXCITEMENT BEGINS!

Features at 1:08-3:08-5:08-7:08-9:08
Take 501 East
Turn off at Gregson St.
Northgate Shopping Center
Now Showing

Northgate Theatre

DURHAM

GOODYEAR TIRES

1st Quality Recapping

Wheel Balancing—Alignments

Brake Service—Tune-ups

CHAPEL HILL TIRE CO.

502 W. Franklin St.

"If you can't see your treads, see us"

Under-equipped?

Not at all. The average foreign car requires very little in the way of tools to keep it in top fighting trim. Periodically, of course, we do get some unusual cases, but we manage to take them in stride. The little buggy pictured above, for instance, belongs to an eccentric Scot who claimed he lost ha' penny in the gear box. Believe it or not, we could make change.

FOREIGN CAR CENTER

East Main St. CARRBORO Phone 929-1462

Welcome Back Carolina

SAVE!

VISIT THE RECORD BAR

108 Henderson St.
Chapel Hill

(3 Doors off Franklin Street—Across From Post Office)

Durham

Church & Parrish Sts.

25% Off L P ALBUMS

EVERYDAY

Hi Fi & Stereo L.P's

All $3.98 . . . . . Only $2.98
All $4.98 . . . . . Only $3.75
All $5.98 . . . . . Only $4.50

All 45 rpm's . . . 97c—One Free with 10 (your choice)

UNC OPENING SPECIALS

(Stereo & Hi Fi)
All French LP's ..... 50% off
(Angel & Capital with French Artists & Composers)

All Kingston Trio ..... 50% off

Heifetz LP's ..... 50% off

Nat King Cole LP's ..... 50% off

LATEST RELEASES

FINEST VARIETY

Largest, Most Complete Record Shop

In The South

RECORD BAR

108 Henderson St., Chapel Hill, N. C.
Corner Church & Parrish Sts.—Durham

Everything Guaranteed — Courteous Service Assured

-Mural Manager-

(Continued from Page 1)

port issued by the Intramural office asked that the program be continued. It said that the department felt that "the dormitories under the paid manager program have been successful, in part, in establishing better dormitory espirit de corps."

The budget office was unavailable for comment on the situation, but apparently the money is simply not available to continue the program with university funds.

Dr. O. K. Cornwell, chairman of the Physical Education Department, said the application for the funds included the statistics given above. "The Budget Committee is aware of the success of the program," he said, "but the money just isn't there."

Dr. Cornwell expressed regret that the program may have to be discontinued. He said the department has turned again to Student Government in an effort to secure the necessary funds.

Gerry Good, IDC President, also expressed concern over the situation. "There is a high correllation between the activities available outside the dorms and the cooperation within them," he said. "Dorms which have good intramural programs are subject to less noise and damage than those which do not."

DENTAL DAMES

The UNC Dental Dames will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Victory Village day nursery. The program will consist of a party honoring freshman wives.

AIDS PROGRESS

Progress is being made in combating mastitis in North Carolina dairy cattle through studies financed by Nickels for Know-How funds.

Cosmopolitan Club To Hold Reception At 4:30 Today

The Cosmopolitan Club at the University begins the 1963-1964 academic year with a tea in the main lounge of Graham Memorial today at 4:30 p.m.

The tea is being held to introduce new foreign students to both their host families and members of the University community. Academic personnel, host families, Cosmopolitan Club members, foreign student orientation counselors, student government officers and new and old foreign students have been invited to attend.

The 15-year-old club was originated on October 1, 1948. It began as a result of the feeling that both foreign and American students could benefit through mutual association. The club now has over a hundred members compared to a beginning number of about fifty.

The first real undertaking of the club was in 1949, when a variety international show was presented in the Playmakers Theater. This show was the idea of Shahen Haroutunian (an Iranian who is now an importer of Middle Eastern goods into Hamburg, Germany), and it was so successful that it played to a full house and was later taken to Woman's College.

Later the club began a yearly international display which contained distinctive items from each country represented. Club members were able to get these items from embassies, foreign students at other colleges, missionaries, and their personal belongings.

Five years ago the annual international display was replaced by the annual international dinner, held each spring. From two to three hundred persons usually enjoy the efforts of foreign student cooks preparing native dishes. There is entertainment of an international flavor and door prizes. The newest addition to the club's special events program is an annual formal dance.

THE COMMUNITY CHURCH

Purefoy and Mason Farm Roads

Is a worshipping and working fellowship of people from varied backgrounds and faiths, a church of open membership; a spiritual home in which there is unity in christian essentials, liberty in non-essentials, and charity in all things.

Sunday Services 9:30 A.M. with Sunday School 11:00 A.M.

CHARLES M. JONES
Minister

EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER
Dial 942-2924

214 WEST FRANKLIN STREET
Call 942-3137

– SERVING YOU IN TWO LOCATIONS –

WALKER'S GULF

Pickup and Delivery SERVICE STATIONS Road Service

Welcome! Drive in soon for good Gulf products and fast service

Welcome Students ...

ALL – STAR BOWLING LANES

Open Seven Days A Week

Let's Get Acquainted . . .

Gary French, Manager
Ernie Snell, Counter
Jim Ridout, Counter
Clark Parker, Counter

We're Here To Make Bowling More Fun For YOU!

Eastgate Shopping Center

PHONE 968-4404

Featuring . . .
- Special Rates For Students
- 24 Lanes – All Automatic AMF Equipment
- Meeting Room
- Free Nursery for the Kids
- Ample Free Parking
- Free Professional Instruction

Now Forming . . .

Fraternity
Dormitory
Women's University
And Other Leagues

For Information & Reservations
CALL 968-4404

Welcome Students and Townspeople To Chapel Hill's Newest, Modern

Maximilian's RESTAURANT

Specializing in Fine Foods

- Banquet Facilities
- Catering
- Carry Out

"Food Fit For a King"

Open 7:00 A.M. to Midnight, Seven Days a Week PHONE 942-4262 Next to the Bowling Lanes, Eastgate Shopping Center

UNC Band Membership Is Open

The UNC bands are now open for membership. Anyone interested in joining should see Dr. Herbert Fred, director of bands, at 110 Hill Hall Annex.

The entire band program consists of four separate groups: the marching band, pep band, variety concert band and the symphonic wind ensemble. Membership in any band is open to both men and women.

To further entice band membership, one hour credit per semester is given for participation. Members of the marching band are exempt from physical education during the season.

Regular rehearsals are held Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons at 4:30.

Uniforms and equipment are issued free to all members. Instruments such as drums, tubas and French horns are provided to qualified players.

The marching band will also travel to College Park, Maryland, for the October 12th football game.

Campus Calendar

Campus Calendar items will be accepted at the DTH office up to 2 p.m. prior to the date of issue. Items must be brought to the offices in GM.

TODAY

Any girls interested in typing, newspaper clipping, bulletin board arranging, letter writing, mimeographing, etc., for student government should come to SG offices in Graham Memorial from 2-5 p.m.

The Westminster Fellowship will meet at the student center of the Presbyterian Church 4:00 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 22 after the Virginia game. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided

SPORTS

Football — Virginia, Kenan Stadium, 1:30 p.m.

FUTURE

Seniors, 3rd-year law students, 4th-year medical students will have their Yack pictures made in the Graham Memorial basement from 1-6 p.m. Monday — Friday, Sept. 23-27. Boys will wear dark coats. Girls will wear black sweaters and pearls.

Men's Glee Club Meeting 4 p.m. Monday at Hill Hall Glee Club Room. All regular members and interested newcomers should attend.

Glee Club tryouts will be held Monday afternoon at 214 Hill Hall under the direction of Dr. Joel Carter.

Pat Cusick, Student Peace Union National Field Secretary, will speak on "A Perspective For Student Peace Union This Year" at 203 Alumni Building 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 23.

Alpha Phi Omega will meet at Roland Parker 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, October 1.

Ackland Art Museum needs models, male and female. Classes 8-10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday, inquire at rooms 106 or B18 Ackland. Classes 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, inquire rooms 106 or 208. Pays $1 per hour, minimum.

All Communications Committee members contact Fred Seely at the Daily Tar Heel office in GM any day between 2-5 p.m.

WELCOME STUDENTS

TOWN & COUNTRY BEAUTY SALON

Ready to serve you in Styling
Frosting, coloring and Permanent Waving

Creative Stylists

• MARIAN • CAROLYN • LINDA
• JUDY • LOIS • FAYE • SYLVIA
• NANCY • ELIZABETH • CLARA
NANCY TEMPESTA: Prop.

For Appointment Dial

942-2950

138½ E. Franklin St. Above Carolina Coffee Shop

Welcome To U.N.C.

Class '67

LA PIZZA invites

You to Try the Best Pizza Ever

to Come from An Oven

We Absolutely Deliver

Open 5 P.M.-1 A.M. Daily and Sunday Closed Wednesday

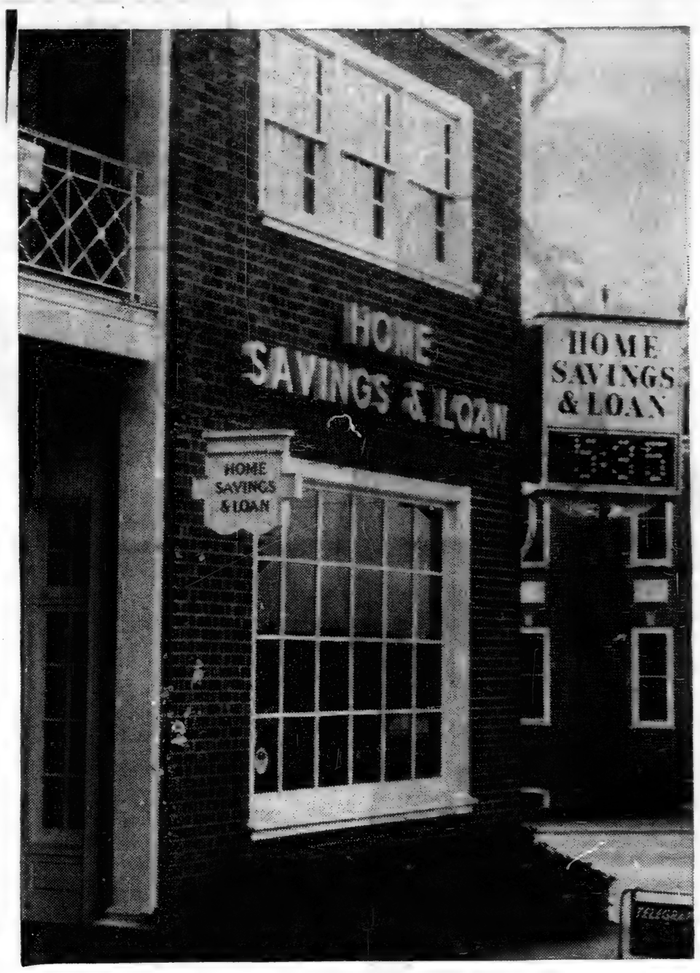
"The Only Pizzeria in Town"

LA PIZZA

Phone 967-1451
Go West on Franklin St.—A Three Minute Ride
406 W. Main St. Plenty of Free Parking



The Place to Save In Chapel Hill!

123 North Columbia St.

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

Welcome To CARRBORO

Come Out . . . Let's Get Acquainted!

We want everyone in the Carrboro trading area to get acquainted with the fact that Carrboro merchants stock a complete line of nationally known brands of merchandise. The welcome mat is always out in our stores and services. Here in Carrboro you'll feel it in the friendly attitude of the people. In our stores you'll recognize it in the cheerful, courteous service that you will receive. There's plenty of free parking, too.

Here in Carrboro we believe that we truthfully represent our merchandise at all times — to all people. We believe that our prices are competitive, and in a great many instances a great deal lower than some of our "city" cousins. We believe that we offer our customers a fair and square deal on everything we sell them. Always remember this . . . We are pleased when we please you!

• LAUNDRY, DRY CLEANING

ECON-O-WASH

Coin-operated Washing Machines and Dryers
Coin-operated 14 Minute Dry Cleaning
Plenty of Free Parking
607 W. Main St., Carrboro Phone 942-2767

• PRINTERS

THE TRIANGLE PRESS

Invitations — Stationery — Pledge Books
—ALL TYPES OF PRINTING—
108 W. Main Street

• TRANSPORTATION

SPARTA MOTOR BIKE RENTALS

Phone 942-3350 108 W. Main St.
Rental By Hour Or Day
Open 12 Noon to Midnight
133 E. Main St., Carrboro Phone 929-1566

• RECREATION

ALLEN'S MOTEL

Extends its invitation to the Carolina students to play
Billiards in the
PLAYMORE RECREATION ROOM
Free Parking in the Rear
403A & 403B E. Rosemary St. Carrboro

• SERVICE STATIONS

CARRBORO ESSO SERVICE

Lubrication — Road Service — Auto Repair
Courtesy and Service to All with Esso Standard Products
208 Main St. Phone 942-4527

RANSON'S SUPER SHELL STATION

Open 24 Hours Phone 942-5910
—We Give S&H Green Stamps—
FREE PICKUP AND DELIVERY
502 W. Main St. Carrboro, N. C.

• TIRES, APPLIANCES, BICYCLES

CARRBORO TIRE & APPLIANCE

Kelly Tires • Recapping
Norge Appliances
Sales and Service on 10-Speed Racing Bikes
136 E. Main St., Next Door to Senter's Drugs Phone 942-2563

• REAL ESTATE

FISHER-FISHER

Phone 942-3462 130 E. Main Street

• LUMBER, HARDWARE, BLDG. SUPPLIES

FITCH LUMBER CO.

"Here Comes Fitch"
309 N. Greensboro St. Phone 942-3153

Plenty of FREE PARKING In 6 Spacious Lots!

Sock'Em Heels
J. B. Robbins
The House of Fashion
In Chapel Hill for the Carolinas

The Fireside
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.
Ladies' Casual Sportswear

Conquer The Cavaliers
SUTTON'S
Drug Store & Toy Cellar
"On the Minute Service"
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Give-'Em-Hell-Heels
Town & Campus
Men's Apparel
Ladies' Sportswear

SMEAR THE CAVALIERS

Carolina

| LE | RG | QB |
|---|---|---|
| Lacey (85) | Zarro (60) | Edge (14) |
| Gallagher (82) | Alderman (65) | Black (12) |
| Clay (84) | Paulos (69) | Kinney (16) |
| LT | RT | WB |
| Sigmon (70) | Esposito (73) | Ward (38) |
| Kortner (79) | Hill (72) | Smith (35) |
| Sadler (75) | Dubis (71) | Jackson (27) |
| LG | RE | RB |
| Cabe (68) | Hammett (81) | Willard (40) |
| Wells (67) | Atherton (83) | Tuthill (29) |
| Eudy (61) | Robinson (88) | Braine (25) |
| C | | FB |
| Hanburger (55) | | Kesler (45) |
| Ogburn (53) | | Barden (30) |
| Stringer (52) | | Eason (32) |

Virginia

| LE | RG | QB |
|---|---|---|
| McWilliams | Parker | Dunphey |
| Ridgley | Perry | McSweeney |
| Molinari | Call | Hodges |
| LT | RT | LH |
| Myers | Kowalkowski | Massie |
| Mason | Torok | Krebs |
| Hough | Longley | Caracciolo |
| LG | RE | RH |
| Bickers | Chrisohilf | Sieg |
| Hrica | Vaughan | Greene |
| Marko | Buff | Pincavage |
| C | | FB |
| Todd | | Prusmack |
| Donley | | Gwynn |
| Wood | | Barker |

Wallop Virginia
Wentworth & Sloan
CHAPEL HILL'S
QUALITY JEWELERS
167 W. Franklin St.

Go Heels
PETE THE TAILOR

All the Way Heels
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

Roast Virginia
THE HUB
of Chapel Hill
"CHECK THE COED CORNER"
103 E. Franklin St.

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL EXTENDS A MOST CORDIAL WELCOME TO

STUDENTS OF U.N.C

CHAPEL HILL'S MOST POPULAR TRADITIONAL OUTFITTER FOR THE COED AND THE COLLEGE MAN

SPECIAL FREE GIFT FOR ALL FRESHMEN AND NEWCOMERS

STOP BY AND GET YOURS TODAY!

GENTLEMEN, LOOK YOUR BEST NATURALLY

Come in and browse among the vast array of traditional vestments now awaiting your approval at THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL.

Our selection of fine suits and sport coats cannot be aptly described by mere words This season THE HUB is offering the greatest panorama of colors and fabrics to be found in the South.

As for sweaters, again we excel on all counts. Camel Hairs, Alpacas, Shetlands and many more blends by the World's most respected sweater makers. These include Thane, Byford, Damon Creations, Jantzen and Town and King to name only a few. No matter what style or size you prefer, you'll find it at THE HUB.

We are the most competent outfitters for gentlemen in the Carolinas, thus we always maintain a more than adequate stock of fine shirts, trousers, belts, shoes, ties and all the additional accessories most have on hand at all times.

One additional feature that THE HUB has prided itself on over the years is that fact that even though we maintain a standard of clothing quality unparalleled in the South, our prices are never unreasonable. Stop in and see us soon.

the Hub
CHAPEL HILL
OF

The Hub Of Chapel Hill

"THE CO-ED CORNER"

THE VERY FINEST IN LADIES' TRADITIONAL WEAR

Featuring

Sweater creations designed to please the most exacting taste. Camel Hair, Shetlands, Florals and Fur blends in all the popular styles including the new V-neck Cardigan.

A Skirt collection that is unsurpassed anywhere in the area is now on display in the CO-ED CORNER. Tdere are so many pleasant surprises that you literally must see them to believe them.

Blouses by Foxcroft are the style setters in ladies traditional shirtings. Every conceivable collar and sleeve style are yours in this magnificent collection. As for colors and patterns, the Foxcroft designers have outdone themselves to bring you a spectrum second only to the rainbow.

Check The Co-ed Corner's
TREMENDOUS SELECTION OF TASTEFUL
ACCESSORIES INCLUDING BERMUDAS,
SLACKS, PARKAS, HANDBAGS AND RAINWEAR

THE CO-ED
CORNER

N.C. Library
rials Dept.
x 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

21, 1963

'Plaudits For DU'

Editors offer congratulations to an award winning fraternity.

The Daily Tar Heel

A Long Afternoon

See page 4

2

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1963 | United Press International Service

UNC Students Influence NSA Congress

Reforms Passed For NSA; Civil Rights Law Is Urged

The 16th National Student Congress of the U. S. National Student Association (NSA) was highlighted by the adoption of reforms in the Association's structure and Congress procedure. Other activity included resolutions supporting national civil rights legislation and condeming the South Viet Nam regime of President Diem.

13 UNC students attended the Congress which was held at Indiana University, August 18-29. Over 400 colleges and universities were represented, including 30 from the Carolinas-Virginia Region.

The Congress voted to abolish the controversial National Executive Committee (NEC) which was a policy-making and administrative body for NSA. Harry DeLung of UNC had been a delegate on the 35 member body.

The NEC was replaced by a National Supervisory Board and a Congress Steering Committee. Both groups are confined to administrative functions. The Supervisory Board is composed of ten members, representing four geographic areas. Mike Lawler, UNC student body president, was elected from the South.

Other reforms were designed to increase communication betwen the NSA national office and member campuses. Two Student Government Vice Presidents were elected to work full-time, visiting and assisting student governments on member campuses.

Positions were created for national staff personnel to work out of NSA's Philidelphia office in areas of student welfare, academic freedom, civil rights, and educational reform. They will research these fields and establish programs on member campuses.

A proposal was defeated by which all schools would be required to elect their delegates to the Congress. It has been the practice at UNC to send the student body president and vice president, and four elected delegates. Additional alternates may be appointed by the president. Many schools have all of their delegates appointed.

The Civil Rights March on Washington was supported by the Congress in a resolution drawn up by a special committee. UNC's Kellis Parker served as chairman of the drafting group, and Mike Lawler was a member.

UNC student body vice president Bob Spearman wrote the resolution supporting parts of the civil rights legislation currently before the U. S. Congress. It endorsed President Kennedy's bill, with amendments taken from the stronger bill proposed by Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier (D-Wis.).

Spearman's bill was passed overwhelmingly by the student delegates. The only dissenting vote in the UNC delegation was Lawler's.

Heated debate was centered on an amendment to the South Viet Nam resolution which urged that all U. S. military aid be cut off to the Diem regime because of its Buddist suppression. The amendment was defeated.

Also highly controversial was a proposed NSA Basic Policy Declaration on national security and civil liberties. An original BPD was passed against the arguments of liberals who claimed it "didn't say anything." The following day, this bill was rescinded and a substitute motion was passed.

The substitute stated, "In time of relative peace, USNSA believes that the free and unfettered exercise of the civil liberties of thought, speech, press, and worship cannot be in conflict with national security." It was introduced as a "compromise with some meaning" by Harvard delegate Steve Roberts.

A resolution establishing an NSA project for higher educa-

(Continued on Page Three)

UNC Is Site Of Lectures

The 1963 Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures, held at a different university in the United States each year, will be delivered Oct. 1, 2 and 3 here.

Chancellor William B. Aycock expressed pleasure that UNC has been selected for the fourth in a series of lectures to be delivered under provisions of the unique gift by the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Professor Arthur E. Sutherland Jr. of the Harvard University Law School will deliver the lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the first three days of October at 8 p.m. each evening in Carroll Hall Auditorium, Chapel Hill. The public is invited.

"Apology for Comfortable Change" is the theme for the three lectures. Dr. Sutherland is Bussey Professor of Law at Harvard. He began his professional career as law secretary to Mr. Justice Holmes from 1927-28.

Separate titles for the three lectures are, "Social Statics and a Restless People," "Education in the Obvious," and "To Grow More Civilized". Along with other Holmes Lectures, these will be published by the Macmillan Company.

Th Oliver Wendell Holmes lectures are given each year by an eminent scholar on a subject broadly related to Justice Holmes' career and thought. They are conducted as part of the Holmes' estate which he left in its entirety "to the United States of America." Originally valued at $225,000, the fund has grown to $450,000. Holmes died in 1935 at the age of 94.

Moderates Are Stronger At Congress

Moderation and increased conservative strength made the 16th National Student Congress unique according to Harry DeLung, UNC student and chairman of NSA's Carolinas-Virginia Region.

"The Congress has made NSA's policies generally liberal in the past," noted DeLung. "But this year the moderate influence was so strong that most every liberal legislation was killed before it got out of committee."

He cited as an example the controversial civil liberties resolution calling for the repeal of the McCarran Act. "Most observers thought it would have an excellent chance of passage at the Congress, but it was overwhelmingly defeated before it even got to the plenary."

On the reforms passed by the Congress, DeLung said, "Most of tehese have been major conservative goals since 1961."

Almost a third of the delegates said they favored Goldwater for U. S. president in a poll conducted by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

DeLung said the most surprising result of the moderate influence was the failure of most civil rights legislation to pass. "Emotional speeches from students active in southern civil rights movements have impressed many past Congresses, but this year, representatives of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and similar groups complained that they were being ignored."

Dan Moore Is 'Progressive'

By JIM NEAL

Judge Dan Moore of Asheville, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, yesterday described himself as "a middle-of-the-road progressive" rather than a liberal or a conservative.

In town for the UNC-Virginia football game, Judge and Mrs. Moore were at the alumni lunch in the Morehead Building.

The Superior Court judge said he was encouraged by Sen. Sam J. Ervin's anouncement of support for him, and expects it will help "a great deal" in the nomination fight.

He stressed "not all mountaineers are wild men," referring to a Greensboro Daily News cartoon which depicted him as a guntotin', jug-swillin' hill-billy.

The Daily News supports rival Judge L. Richardson Preyer for the gubernatorial nomination.

Asked how much competition he expects from segregationist Raleigh attorney Dr. I. Beverly Lake, the judge said he was "not aware of Dr. Lake's plans" and how he will seek the nomination.

Moore was elected to the Superior Court bench from Asheville in 1948.

Two of his children are also UNC graduates.

Chapel Hill Bank Merger Is Approved

The Federal Comptroller of the Currency Friday approved the merger of the Bank of Chapel Hill into North Carolina National Bank.

Bank of Chapel Hill executive vice president J. Temple Gobbel made the announcement Friday. The effective date of the merger, which has been planned since early in the summer, will be as of the close of business next Friday afternoon.

"This merger is in the public interest," said Comptroller James J. Saxon in granting approval of the merger.

Completion of the merger, which has gone through several approval steps within the organization of the Bank of Chapel Hill during the summer, will make Chapel Hill the twelfth North Carolina city in which North Carolina National Bank operates, and will bring the bank's total number of offices to 65.

In addition to its East Franklin Street main office, the Bank of Chapel Hill has branch offices at Carrboro, Glen Lennox, and Eastgate.

According to June 30 figures of the Bank of Chapel Hill and North Carolina National, the two institutions' combined deposits will be $545,915,000. Total resources will be $638,080,000. North Carolina National's capital funds will pass $50 million for the first time, increasing to $50,033,728 with the merger.

Under the terms of the merger, Mr. Gobbel will be senior vice president and trust officer. All members of the present board of directors will continue to serve as members of the Chapel Hill Board, with chairman Collier Cobb Jr. remaining in that capacity.

CUSC Seeks Ban Repeal

The speaker ban will be the topic under fire at a dinner meeting and reception tonight of the Consolidated University Student Council.

The CUSC will meet at 5:30 in Lenoir Hall and at 7 at President Friday's house for an informal discussion to decide what the students of the Consolidated University can do to have the speaker ban repealed.

Plans also will be discussed for Consolidated University Day, Oct. 19. The meeting is part of an effort to make the CUSC more than a social organization according to Johnsye Massenburg, chairman of the UNC delegation.

The speaker ban, passed by legislature this summer, will not come up for possible repeal until the 1965 session.

H. Clifton Blue, speaker of the General Assembly, told a DTH reporter at the Orange County Democratic dinner Friday night that the speaker ban would probably not come up in a special session if it is called this fall.

"I think the special session, if it were brought up, would not repeal it anyway," Speaker Blue said.

UNC Edges Virginia On Late Run, 11-7

—Photo by Jim Wallace

UVA's Henry Massie Scores Untouched

. . . On 99-yard Runback

Junior Edge Hurt; Ken Willard Tallies

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

North Carolina won a ballgame and escaped a scouting report at the same time here yesterday.

Playing three quarters of football without ace quarterback Junior Edge, the Tar Heels came away unscathed with an 11-7 victory over Virginia which was supposed to be far, far easier.

Edge, kicked in the head shortly after the first period ended, watched from the sidelines the rest of the time as his sub, Garry Black, guided UNC inside the enemy 5-yard line on three separate drives before finally putting the winning TD across.

That came with 5:01 left in the game and Carolina down, 7-3.

An estimated 30,000 fans, their patience running out in the sweltering 86 degree heat, screamed in approval when big Ken Willard entered the game and immediately burst off tackle for the deciding six points.

Black passed to Willard in the right flat for a two-point conversion which put it out of any Cavalier field goal reach.

Prior to the decisive score, the contest was largely a case of Virginia's defense coming through when it counted and UNC5s defense coming, through period.

With the exception of a spectacular scoring manuever by Henry Massie, the Cavalier offense was dismally weak, penetrating into UNC territory only twice during the entire game.

The lone Tar Heel defensive lapse of the day put Virginia's Massie into the Atlantic Coast Conference record book and almost cost UNC the game.

Ahead at the half 3-0 on sophomore Max Chapman's 27-yard field goal, Carolina found itself suddenly behind after only fifteen seconds of the third period.

Chapman, himself, shared in the blame. The youngster kicked off and, as UNC sluggishly ran up the field under the kick, Massie gathered the ball in a yard out from his own end zone and started to ramble.

The 6-1 halfback glided up the middle for 20 yards, cut sharply to his left and, behind beautiful blocking, scampered untouched over the Carolina goal for a 7-3 Virginia advantage.

The 99-yard runback tied the ACC record set originally in 1959 by Clemson's Bill Mathis against Georgia Tech.

On the play, the Tar Heels appeared to be hanging back as no one seemed past Virginia's 40 when Massie started upfield.

Other than this, UNC's defense was superb. Both of Virginia's moves past the 50 came on what seemed like flukes.

The Cavaliers were first there when, with less than two minutes remaining in the first quarter, UNC fullback Hank Barden and Edge collided on a handoff that was supposed to go to Willard. The ball fell loose, and UVA's Bill Mason fell on it at the Carolina 39.

Virginia, however, could only get to the 31 from where Tom Shuman's field goal attempt was short.

A pass interference call on UNC's Sandy Kinney in the closing seconds got the Cavaliers to the 46, but it was a last gasp.

Other than that, this opening contest was UNC all the way. The Tar Heels, clad in eye-catching new uniforms and classy helmets, took the opening kickoff and looked like they'd run Virginia out of the stadium.

Starting from its own 19, UNC took the ball to the Virginia 16 in eight plays. Two bootlegs by Edge and two patented catches by Bob Lacey accounted for first downs in the drive.

At the 16, Willard ran twice and got to the 11, but Edge's bullet to Lacey at the two was at the latter's shoetops, and he couldn't come up with it.

Edge then dropped the pass from center on Chapman's field goal try but recovered in time, and the rookie booted it true.

From the opening drive, it looked like the three points would multiply quickly. But Edge went goofy shortly thereafter, and turned a possible rout into a

(Continued on Page 4)

STATISTICS

| UVA | | UNC |
|---|---|---|
| 6 | First Downs | 23 |
| 80 | Yds. Rushing | 193 |
| 0 | Yds. Passing | 137 |
| 4-0 | Passes | 27-14 |
| 1 | Intercepted by | 2 |
| 0 | Fumbles Lost | 1 |
| 8-42.5 | Punting | 5-45.0 |
| 30 | Yds. Penalized | 57 |

TOTALS

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| UVA | 0 | 0 | 7 | 0 | 7 |
| UNC | 3 | 0 | 0 | 8 | 11 |

Scoring:
UNC—FG Chapman 27.
UVA—Massie 99 kick-off return (Shuman kick)
UNC—Willard 1 run (Willard pass from Black).

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

USSR Hits Red China Anew

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union, in the second installment of a government statement on Sino-Soviet affairs, accused Communist China Saturday of 5,000 border violations since 1960 and said this was a "dangerous path . . . alarming."

It said the Soviet Union had repeatedly requested Peking to arrange consultations on the demarcation of certain parts of the frontier in order to avoid misunderstandings but the Chinese have refused to negotiate and are still violating the border.

Taylor, McNamara To Viet Nam

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI) — President Kennedy has asked Defense Secretary Robert B. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to fly to South Viet Nam next week to review the war effort against the Communists.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., believe that "in the present situation it will be helpful to have a review by Secretary McNamara and Gen. Taylor of the military effort against the Communist Viet Cong."

Pope Plans Policy-making Shift

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — In another move aimed at streamlining the Roman Catholic Church for space age, Pope Paul VI Saturday announced plans for overhauling the Roman Curia to place more policy-making power in the hands of the local clergy at the diocese level.

The proposal, the pontiff said, will be discussed at the second session of the Ecumenical Council, opening Sept. 29.

The Birmingham Story: A Cauldron Of Conflict

EDITOR'S NOTE: Months of racial tension in Birmingham, Ala. culminated in one horrifying moment Sunday, Sept. 15. At 10:22 a.m. CST, that day a dynamite blast killed four young Negro girls in their Sunday School class. UPI reporters Al Kuettner, William O. Bryant, Robert Gordon and Leon Daniel trace the buildup of tension, the explosion and the aftermath in the following dispatch.

A UPI Team Report

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. — They call it Dynamite Hill and the people who live there talk about jobs and wages and living and dying.

But mostly they talk about "The Bomber."

Most of the residents of the 15-block square area are Negro and the fear that lives in their heart is born of violence which, in turn, is the offspring of a long campaign for "civil rights."

A mile and a half away is a modernistic city hall, and the up-to-date business district with tall buildings that sit in a valley. On two sides are the hills from which hundreds of tons of iron ore has been removed to feed the steel mills that lie in the valley.

This is Birmingham: population 355,000, known as the "Magic City" which prides itself as the Pittsburgh of the South. It also is a powderkeg and the spark that could explode it is civil rights.

The city bustles by day. At night, a pall of gloom settles. It is laced with tension and motorists avoid some streets. Death has struck seven times in 13 days in this grim setting. Four were young Negro girls in a Sunday School class shattered by a bomb.

Here are some of its people talking:

A. G. Gaston, a Negro millionaire: "I am scared myself. Some nights I sit at home with a gun across my knees. The Negroes don't have confidence in public officials."

Mayor Albert Boutwell: "It's just sickening that a few individuals could commit such a horrible atrocity. The occurance of such a thing has so gravely concerned the public . . ." His voice broke as he talked.

Clarence Allgood, federal district judge: "In recent weeks we have witnessed what amounts to mockery of our laws, a mockery by those who would cut the very roots of our American system of justice; who is doing so would starve the growth of our way of life, and snuff out human life with insane fury and irrationality."

Stella Burke, a Negro maid: "I don't know what's the matter. The devil done got loose, or something."

Against this backdrop of crisis, Birmingham became a city of fear.

Negroes begged President Kennedy to send in troops. Instead, the President named former Army Secretary Kenneth Royall and Army Football Coach Earl Red Blaik as a special team to help Birmingham white and Negro citizens find a solution to the racial struggle.

Royall and Bliak move into the Alabama steel city during the coming week. Monday, Kennedy meets with Birmingham white leaders. He saw Negro leaders last week.

It was Burke Marshall, associate U. S. attorney general, who worked behind the scenes in the explosive demonstrations last May and brought white and Negro leaders together. The action led to formation of the city's first biracial committee. That group is still at work, trying to patch together a workable agreement that will answer Negro demands for desegregation of public facilities.

These were the issues and the timetable of trouble that led up to the racial explosion in Birmingham:

As the transition toward desegregation moved across the South, Birmingham became a "no, never" symbol. The city was run by a three-member commission with a colorful, blunt-talking segregationist named Eugene Bull Connor as police commissioner.

Negroes had succeeded earlier in a drive to desegregate public buses, an event that had produced some violence. It was token compared with that to come.

In the spring of 1963, facing school desegregation under federal court orders, Birmingham changed its system of government to a mayor and council.

Connor was beaten in the mayor's race by Albert Boutwell, a less militant segregationist.

Without waiting for the new government to take office, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and his Southern Christion Leadership Conference moved into Birmingham April 3 with a campaign aimed at desegregation of public facilities including department store tea rooms and better jobs for Negroes.

The city used fire hoses with high pressure nozzles and police dogs to break up huge crowds of Negroes who marched almost daily toward the downtown business section. They were jailed in droves.

At the height of the demonstrations, a committee of 100 leaders met behind closed doors, agreed to formation of a bi-racial committee and produced a temporary settlement that accepted most of the Negro demands. This was May 10 and a shaky and delicate peace returned to the city. A few days later, an explosion shattered A. G. Gaston's motel and angry Negroes fought with police. Somehow, the truce was held together.

On July 30, six downtown stores desegregated lunch counters. Two weeks later a homemade tear gas bomb exploded in one of the stores.

The night of Aug. 20 was warm and quiet. Police were detailed on routine chores. Shortly after 9 p.m., the transquility vanished in the explosion of a dynamite bomb on the garage side of the $30,000 home of Arthur Shores, Negro attorney and member of the new bi-racial group.

Shores lives on Dynamite Hill—an area of upper middle class homes, shabby row houses and small stores.

An estimated 2,000 Negroes poured into the streets cursing and hurling rocks and bottles at police.

Trouble simmered night after night. Groups stood on street corners pitching rocks at passing cars. Sporadic fights broke out between whites and Negroes.

Five Negro children had been accepted for two high schools and an elementary school.

Wallace sent a msesenger to pound on the door of Dr. Theo Wright, city school superintendent, who had buried his phone under pillows in order to get a few minutes rest.

The governor prevailed on the board to close the schools temporarily until the violence stopped.

Telephone lines burned between Montgomery, Birmingham and Washington in the days ahead but Wallace stuck to his guns and promised a fight to keep schools segregated, His troopers turned away the Negroes when they appeared as schools re-opened Sept. 9.

An hour before schools opened the next day, President Kennedy federalized the National Guard. It left Wallace a general without an army.

Faced also with a five-judge injunction forbidding interference with integration orders, Wallace gave up.

Violence in Birmingham traditionally had been a beat in the night, until the daylight hours of Sunday, Sept. 15.

The intermediate class lesson for the day at 16th St. Baptist Church Negro was about Joseph and his coat of many colors. It was a lesson on forgiveness and it was just beginning when a dynamite bomb, deliberately planted beneath the church's side steps, went off. A clock in the church stopped at 10:22 a.m. C.S.T.

Killed were Carol Robertson, Addie Mae Collins, Cynthia Wesley and Denise McNair, all members of the same class. Denise was 10, the others 14.

Cynthia and Carol were youth ushers-hostesses for the other children at their church. Their charges bore flowers from another church on the day of their funeral.

Two more funerals are scheduled Sunday for victims of this revolution who died the same day as the four girls.

Johnny Robinson, 16, was killed by officers who were chasing rock throwers. It was reported that a policeman attempted to shoot at the boy's legs to stop him but aimed too high.

And there was Virgil Ware, a 13-year-old Negro boy, who was shot to death while riding on the handlebars of a bicycle pedaled by his older brother. They had been to look for a bike for Virgil who planned to help his brother with his paper route and had put down a $3 deposit before starting home.

As they passed two white youths on a red motorscooter, a shot rang out and Virgil fell mortally wounded. The two white teenagers have been charged with murder. The toll for Sept. 15. Six dead, at least 20 hospitalized.

The passions that many did not

(Continued on Page Three)

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Great Gold Shortage

It will be sad indeed if what appears to be a highly-successful murals program of a lack of funds to pay dormitory in- is discontinued or restricted because tramural manager.s

Thus we were glad to read that "student government will make every effort to see that the program is continued," according to Vice President Bob Spearman.

Background on the situation, as reported in yesterday's Tar Heel, is that Student Government provided the necessary funds out of student fees last year so the program could be set up on an experimental basis. An agreement was suggested by SG whereby the university might assume financial responsibility for the program if it was successful.

But now, says Tom Johnson, director of UNC's Intramural Office, "we've been told that funds are not available," although "the program was an unqualified success."

If the University just hasn't got the money, well, that's that. As most of us are well aware, every dollar of University money already is supposedly being stretched so hard you can hear George Washington groan.

Still and all, this is a disappointing way to reward success, especially in an area so mutually beneficial to the University and the student body as this one is.

As IDC President Gerry Good said, "Dorms which have good intramural programs are subject to less noise and damage than those which do not."

So while Student Government goes about trying to scare up the needed $3,500.00 or so, we urge the University's budget office to see if it can't kick in at least a little of the necessary scratch.

The Bitter End

We have just returned from the football game, and while being happy about the outcome, we are not what one would call elated. We sat uncomfortably in the sun, and shed first our coat and then our tie. With three minutes and eleven seconds left in the ball game, the sun dipped behind the upper deck and left us in the welcome shade. With two minutes and nine seconds left, the head cheerleader made us stand, and that's the way we finished the game. It was hot, and we are tired, and the rewards of the game somehow don't seem to equal the discomfort with which the afternoon was spent.

When we think of football we think of sitting around the tail gate of a station wagon sipping bourbon on a soft, but cool October afternoon, of walking through the russet colored leaves to the stadium, of women's tailored suits and men's rich tweeds, of mingled smells of pipe tobacco, leather and the moist autumn earth. A feeling of well-being always encompasses us on these occasions, but sadly this was not the case on this sweltering Saturday.

We must confess that another discomfort afflicted us during the ball game, and we have saved it till the end, since that is where it affected us.

Splinters.

If we had a million dollars to spend on a stadium, we would first set aside a small portion of it to sand the seats in the old stands.

When this edition of the Tar Heel is out, we shall hasten to the privacy of our own bathroom, take up our wife's eyebrow tweezers and begin extracting the small slivers of wood we carried from the stadium.

As for advice on the next game: men, take DTHs to sit on and coeds, wear girdles.

Plaudits For DU

The DTH is often accused of being anti-fraternity, which we of course deny vigorously. Whether a fraternity here at Carolina gets pans or plaudits depends on the fraternity, not the editors of the DTH.

We have just learned that the local chapter of Delta Upsilon is in line for our highest compliments. The following is a letter from Dean Long to the national office of DU.

> The University is most gratified to learn of the high honor recently accorded to the local chapter of Delta Upsilon. I refer, of course, to the Directors' Award for Excellence, first place, which your letter of 1 September 1963 announces.
>
> We take considerable pride in Delta Upsilon here at the University. Without question, it ranks very high in our esteem. I am pleased that the national office has accorded this particular recognition.
>
> Cordially,
> William G. Long
> Dean

The award is based on excellence in five areas: membership, scholarship, finances, chapter relations and administration.

The Tar Heel adds its heartiest congratulations. The local chapter is a credit to the fraternity system, and to the University.

EDITORIAL

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors ..... Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor ..... Peter Harkness
Copy Editor ..... Harry DeLung
Photo Editor ..... Jim Wallace
Sports Editor ..... Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor ..... John Montague
Night Editors ..... Joel Bulkley, Jim Wallace
Women's Editor ..... Diane Hile
Features Editor ..... Chris Farran
Science Editor ..... Mat Friedman
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk

BUSINESS

Business Manager ..... Art Pearce

Advertising Manager ..... Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager ..... John Evans
Subscription Manager ..... Brian Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. ..... Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. ..... Sally Rawlings
Sales ..... Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Bombed Out

Morals And College

FROM THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

After several decades of teaching, the time had come for me to retire. Since I happen to be an active athlete, from tennis to swimming, from horseback riding to skiing, and from archery to roller skating — there were those who thought I might try to go on to the end of time.

"What's the first thing you are going to do?" asked a friend.

"I want to travel around and see a variety of colleges. I want to meet students and teachers. A lot has happened since my school days. Today a college education is becoming a part of the demand for our youth."

When I went to grammar school a lot of boys did not go to high school. They got "their working papers" and went out to conquer the world. Actually I wanted to leave elementary school at the end of the sixth year. It was all due to Frank. His father had died. So Frank had to leave and work to support a widowed mother. But when Frank came back to visit us and we saw him in uniform as a Western Union delivery boy and learned he had a bicycle, we knew school was ended for us.

However, a wise father listened to me. "We can buy you a uniform like Frank's. And also a bicycle. Anything else you want?" So I remained in school and then went on for further education in various other institutions.

* * *

May I give you my reactions to what I think is a very important basic situation today on many a campus. We are living in a world that can be wiped out by just one mistake. We are living in a world where technology and science are making possible what was fiction yesterday. And here in this country, we are living in an environment that demands at least a college education for more and more people.

I used to be bothered by an old economics professor of mine: He would say to us in class, "Of course there are moral principles. But we are studying economic laws. One has nothing to do with the other." And then there was a science instructor who insisted that what we were doing was to look for nature's secrets. Probe deep and learn them. I once brought him an old science book written in the early part of the nineteenth century. He was shocked to find a correlationship between the spiritual world and the world of natural science.

I submit we are swinging back to something that was once advocated during the last century, not exactly in the same manner but with the same basic principle considered. Namely, that you just can't divide life into compartments. You — as a student — can't think of yourself as a mathematics specialist, or as a history major, with the moral and spiritual significance to one side. You are an entity — a human being with a variety of interests, skills, and learnings. But since you are a human being you are also a moral person.

And that means but one logical conclusion: It isn't your natural science or social studies that guide your actions as a human being. It is your moral, spiritual and religious side which must be always the master of you and decides what you do with what you have learned. And in my talks both with students and teachers I did find a lot of them beginning to wonder about just where we are headed in today's world. On one thing they were agreed: They didn't want to see this planet wiped out. And neither do I. Rather, I want my grandchildren to be able to book passage to the moon.

If you have ever read any of the old theologians you would understand how they felt about theology It was the guiding point in a life in those days that wasn't so secularized as we are today. A man weighed his actions on a balance scale and wanted to know: "Is it right? Is it wrong?" The sad commentary in today's world is that people still weigh their actions on a balance scale. But they want to know how it stands up on the profit and loss sheet of the company.

* * *

I am definitely encouraged by what I have seen. But I would like to see more of it on the campuses of those college institutions, that pride themselves on the fact that they are nosectarian. There I feel a lot of students are bothered by the moral implications of situations and do want guidance. In fact, they need it. The church is broadening out and from the pulpit you hear more and more sermons discussing the moral implications and troubles of what we face today.

Living on a campus is both a preparation for future living, and a life in and of itself. It is not divorced from reality and it never should be. Otherwise our students will be lost and bewildered.

Letter

Equality For All?

Editors, The Daily Tar Heel,

As a new student to the University of North Carolina, I came across the Daily Tar Heel for the first time today. Congratulations are in order. As a reader of newspapers, I find it important and necessary that the standpoint the newspaper takes is from, as close as possible, the same standpoint as the reader. Granted that the national and international news could be gotten rather completely from a fact sheet printed as objectively as possible, how much more enjoyable and personal it is to read it and see it from the same window one is looking from. The Daily Tar Heel is written by students of UNC for students of UNC and, I for one, can feel this sameness of outlook. Again, congratulations.

Now I would like to raise my voice and express an opinion about a portion of the editorial page of the Wednesday, Sept. 18 issue, and I quote: "While we are militantly for equal rights for all—which includes unremitting support for a Public Accommodations law — we earnestly counsel against demonstration on this or any other football Saturday." I am concerned with the first part. The writer states that "we are militantly for equal rights for all—" and then states "unremitting support for a Public Accommodation law." I think there is a contradiction in this thought. The demand for equal rights in this present day issue, arises, in part, from the fact that the Negro, due to an abundance of prejudice, has been denied the right to choose where he can go, to whom he can speak, to which business he can take his money, in which restaurant he can eat, and so on. The Negro thinks that because the White can choose this certain place that he should also be able to choose it. This sounds nice and has my cooperation as long as it is concerned with going to non-private places, speaking with non-private persons, taking his money to a non-private business, eating in a non-private restaurant, and so on. Once we begin to deal with private persons and their businesses, we are dealing with other human beings who are also given the same and equal right to choose where they want to go; whom they want to speak to; whom, in their businesses, they want to deal with; whom, in their restaurants, they want to serve! We can't speak of equal rights for all when we actually mean equal rights for all but the following listed persons .

The Public Accommodations law contains parts concerned with this private lesson, this private business. These parts are concerned not with further protecting equal rights for all but in denying some rights (like this right to choose) to some individuals in favor of others. How can this editor be "militantly for equal rights for all" and at the same time give "unremitting support for a Public Accommodations law" which actually denys equal rights for all?

Discrimination in itself is not wrong. In fact it is necessary. A person is faced with many choices in his life and his everyday situations and he must be able to differentiate between what is good for his own self or harmful, and then he must put his conclusions into action. It is when a person exercises this discrimination either for or against something without a complete knowledge of the item or idea, that he falls into prejudice. This, in my opinion, is wrong. But it isn't a legal wrong, instead it is a moral wrong. The law must give to all the right to choose, to discriminate, and to live by his own thoughts and beliefs. It must not tell a person how he may do these things. It is then up to the individual to decide how wise a decision he will make. Perhaps it won't be the wisest, the best, or the most beneficial. Even if this is true, the law must protect his decision for freedom in our country is for all, not for just the wise.

The solution to problems like this lies, not in taking the rights of certain individuals away, but in the education and persuasion of those persons who base their decisions on feelings and whims instead of facts and understanding. In a society like ours where every individual must have equal rights, it is only through education and persuasion that the best ends can be met, not in force or at gunpoint.

Howard L. Gebeaux

BILL HICKS

Another Chapel Hill

Most of us who come to Chapel Hill around the 15th of September arrive complete with a well - formed picture of what awaits us. We see, perhaps a bit tritely since there are many other symbols of the same thing, the Old Well, gleaming white, the symbol of over 100 years of scholarship, intellectualism, pledging up and football. If we are returning, we might also see the Book-Ex, filled to the brim with written thoughts, facts and theories, and really, who can scream too loudly at the price of an idea. We see a dorm, perhaps ivy-covered, or new and glittering with elevators and modern furniture.

If we are students, we look forward to a year crammed full, not only with big weekends, but also with knowledge and new ideas. If we are teachers, we look forward to a year of routine classes, if they can ever be routine for a real teacher, and perhaps a sprinkling of excellent students who have not only learned to learn, but have also to question, to explore. And, whether student or teacher, we look forward to Chapel Hill, a sort of Mecca of thought in a land we tend to believe is devoid of thought.

The sad part of all this is that most, if not all of us, never seem to realize that we too are terribly limited, even in this unlimited (except for the Speaker-Ban) world of higher learning around us. The vast majority of us will never see anything but the Chapel Hill of the Old Well, because, although another Chapel Hill exists, it is something totally beyond the context of our existence.

The problem is that most of us are products of an affluent society. We are the cream of today's youth, well-bred and well educated. We have come here, most of us, to become more well-bred and well-educated so that we can assume positions of leadership in the superstructure of that affluency from which we came. But our blindness eliminates the other Chapel Hill only from ourselves, and only as long as the other Chapel Hill is content to let us live in our soundproof rooms.

This other Chapel Hill has a heritage just as real, although more violent, than the heritage of the Old Well. It carries names like "tin top" and "the everglades," and behind these names are a long line of strong despairing young men, who, in a rotgut drunken rage slash each other with razors each Saturday night and then swagger, tight-lipped smile on their lips, through the occasional city court trial—"No suh, ah fell on uh bottle. Yassuh, dat's de way hit happen . . . Case dismissed."

Usually they just patch each other up. No one calls the police in "tin top," it's against the law. This other Chapel Hill is populated with a multitude of people, neither good nor bad, but merely people trying to live. Most of them cannot afford to buy their own homes (rent was something the majority of us never even thought about), but must lease from white landlords who charge them questionable prices and at the same time open only certain geographical areas to them.

Thus, the other Chapel Hill is trapped in an environment filled with violence, hate, poverty, and disease, with their only real choice being to stay and make the best of it or to move to another ghetto somewhere else.

Let's face it, we've all lived in middle class cocoons (yes Mrs. Emery, I think the mind and morals of the middle class man are worthy of little more than contempt) so long that "tin top," or more generally, what the sociologists call a ghetto, makes little or no impression on us except perhaps that we make a mental note to stay away from them.

Most of us here in the Old Well section of Chapel Hill have always felt that America was a fairly close copy of Utopia. Perhaps our America is, although that too is a debatable point. In any event, it is time, just for the fun of it, that we take another look at our utopia and see how it stacks up beside "tin top." After this first look our education may have just begun.

A Gag Law For Virginia?

From the Greensboro Daily News

The public colleges of Virginia, when next its General Assembly meets, may, we gather, be threatened by a law limiting the freedom of their academic heads to admit heretical speakers to the campus.

If so, what position will the Richmond News Leader take? We are led to wonder by a discourse on similar laws adopted in Ohio and North Carolina which reaches the verdict that while such laws are good for everybody else they are not necessarily good for Virginia, where, it seems, "the universities are already fulfilling their implied trust" not to allow Communists to speak. (Wasn't Gus Hall at Charlottesville last year?) "In other states," the News Leader declares with almost oracular certainty, "the facts are undoubtedly different, and we support the efforts of sober-minded citizens to enact a ban if necessary."

We are sorry we cannot reciprocate; but the Daily News devoutly hopes that the Virginia General Assembly will get the signal in time and avoid embarrassing the memory of Thomas Jefferson.

Meanwhile, the News Leader's reasoning is interesting. It supports repressive laws (for others, of course) because "No society can exist without a system of values; and it cannot encourage those who would destroy that system."

That line of reasoning shows, at least, that the division between Virginians who wish to meddle with campus authority and those who wish to keep hands off is not one of principle but of the interpretation of a principle.

We subscribe wholeheartedly to the News Leader's formula that "no society can exist without a system of values," but the threat to those values lies not so much with itinerant Communist speakers as with those who innocently believe in pacts with the devil to work the devil's undoing. The values of Mr. Jefferson's state, as of William Gaston's are the values of freedom, not of expression.

Campus gag laws are not natural expressions of our values. They rather give voice to the values of authoritarians, who refuse dissent a forum on the grounds, apparently, that dissent is a danger. That is because there are many things to hide, many termites in the foundation of a closed system that is shut off from criticism. Authoritarian values are borrowed under the perilous illusion that a free society can, without self-maiming injury, adopt the values of its enemies.

How many advocates of free capitalism, or of political freedom, are speaking this year on Soviet campuses? Few if any, we imagine. How many Communists will speak, this year, on state-supported campuses in North Carolina and Ohio? None, we suppose. What is the difference in values here? How do the friends of gag laws dodge the conclusion that in adopting Communist intolerance they are, in fact, betraying the free 'system of values" without which, as the News Leader so rightly says, "no society can exist"?

Ingenuity

A group of girls at a North Carolina college last year found themselves assigned to a dormitory originally built for rooms at institutions of higher learning, they were happy to get the space.

But it was a moment of high humor when the girls inspected their bathroom facilities and found it equipped with a plumbing fixture which, for their immediate purposes, was as good as wasted.

You may be inclined to think that a few giggles would have ended it. But, if so, you underestimate the ingenuity of today's college students.

These girls found the fixture ideal for goldfish. Changing the water was no problem, though one miscue would have meant "goodbye goldfish."

With minds like these among us, we have nothing to fear from automation.

—The Charlotte Observer

Goldwater's YAF

By DREW PEARSON

The taxpayers don't know it, but indirectly they are subsidizing one phase of Barry Goldwater's campaign for president. This is because two leading lights of "Young Americans for Freedom," a rightwing student group boosting Goldwater, are on the congressional payroll.

They are: Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bauman. Mr. Bauman is chairman of the Young Americans for Freedom, while his wife is managaing editor of its periodical, the "New Guard." Simultaneously Bauman functions as "second assistant manager of telephones" in the House Republican cloakroom, at $10,506 a year. Simultaneously also, his wife Carol is on the official payroll of GOP Donald Bruce of Indiana at $2,912 a year.

Their combined salaries from Congress total $13,418 — not bad for a young married couple. Bauman, who hails from Easton, Md., is in his last year at Georgetown University law school. When he isn't occupied with his studies and congressional job, he spends his spare hours directing student activities for the GOP right wing and Goldwater at YAF headquarters in Washington.

— Birmingham —

(Continued from Page 1)

understand had no respect for age.

There was 10-year-old Sarah Collins, sister of Addie Mae, one of the bomb victims. Doctors operated to remove glass from her eyes but said it will be some time before they can tell the permanent results. She can see a bit now, her doctors said.

There was Dennis Earl Robertson, 16, a white youth struck on the head by a brick. He was hit while riding his motorbike and was unconscious for several days before showing improvement.

Boutwell, with tears in his eyes, called for calm the day of the bombing. When scattered violence broke out—and with sundown approaching—he turned to Wallace for help.

Wallace, still smarting from his reversal on school integration, responded promptly. Three-hundred state troopers and 500 national Guardsmen were placed on alert.

"The church bombing . . . is a tragic event which has saddened all Alabamians. The perpetrators of this vicious crime must be brought to justice," Wallace pledged.

He contributed $5,000 to a reward fund which has since swelled to more than $75,800. There have been hundreds of offers to help rebuild the shattered 16th Street church.

The tension that grips Birmingham almost smacks you in the face when the sun goes down. People drive through some sections of town with their windows up. Heads are hunched down to avoid hurled rocks and bottles.

Small sparks flash in the night. There have been numerous minor fires in Negro areas. Arson is suspected in some. Sporadic potshots are taken at cars. Bricks fly in dark alleys.

Almost daring not to hope for the best, Birmingham awaits the visit of Royall and Blaik.

CLASSIFIED ADS

1963 HONDA MOTORCYCLE, RED, like new—$550 dollars. See at Imported Cars Ltd.

SINCE YOU WENT AWAY

While you were off climbing the Matterhorn and the Schwindligfrauen, all sorts of things have been happening at your favorite bookshop.

Perhaps the nicest is that Betty Smith, who has been friend and advisor to dozens of UNC literary hopefuls, has brought out a new novel. JOY IN THE MORNING, moreover, is back in the 14 carat gold vein, and harvesting sales and praise all over the place. What's more, she has autographed 100 copies, and you can buy one if you come in moderately soon.

LORD OF THE FLIES has been filmed (we saw a sneak preview in New England this summer) and if you'd like to read the book before you see the cinema, we've got 'em, chum, we've got 'em.

Back in the OLD BOOK CORNER, the 97c, 72c and 38c gems have been through their usual shakeup, and we think you'll like the new strata even better than you liked what was there last June. We've bought in a flock of really tempting libraries during the summer, including a big collection of GORY MURDER REPORTS, another on THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION AND THE WAR OF 1812, and still another on RELIGION AND THE OCCULT.

Watch the Tarheel for dates they'll be shown.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 p.m.

Wildcats Win

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Tom Myers befuddled Missouri Saturday with his pin-pint passing to lead Northwestern to a 23-12 triumph in a battle of Big Ten and Big Eight powers.

Myers' aerial artistry accounted for one touchdown and set up two others scored by fullback Steve Murphy. Myers completed 10 of 16 passes for 209 yards.

We Buy, Sell and Exchange all Kind of Text and Other Books

THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.

Everybody Goes To

Shoney's

HOME OF THE BIG BOY

Durhams Newest And Finest Drive In-Restaurant

THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT

½ PRICE ½

GOOD FRIDAY
SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY

Shoney's

Restaurant And Drive In

185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
DURHAM

Graham Memorial Offers Anybody Almost Anything

Graham Memorial Student Union offers almost anything to almost any member of the University community.

Offices, meeting rooms, games, dances, movies, dramas, even concerts ranging from chamber music to hootenannies — you name it, GM's either got it or will have it sometime during the year.

Student Government offices, along with the offices of the two campus political parties, the Daily Tar Heel and the Graham Memorial Activities Board, are located on the second floor.

On the first floor there are a reading lounge, a television lounge and the information and services office.

The Yackety Yack, the student annual, has offices in the basement and the Carolina Quarterly is housed on the north mezzanine. Also in the basement are the barber shop, the Rendezvous Room with its juke box, the pool room, and the photographic darkroom.

The building and its activities are under the direction of the Graham Memorial Activities Board, guided by the student union director. They plan and produce the cultural and social programs for the year.

Among these programs are the weekly free-flick series, combo parties, free dancing in the Rendezvous Room, bridge and dancing lessons and programs of music and drama.

A hootenanny, featuring Carolyn Hester, Mike Settle and the Gaslight Singers, is programmed for Friday, Sept. 27, and the Moscow Chamber Ensemble will present classical music November 1.

The Petite Musicales and the Petite Dramatique offer programs of classical music and present student-produced plays.

GMAB officers for this year are Dan Moore, president; "Punkin" Houston, secretary; and Don Chaplin, vice-president. GM Director is Howard Henry.

The meeting rooms on the second floor are the scene of Honor Council trials as well as the homes of various campus organizations.

The first floor main lounge has newspapers from all over the state and the major magazines of the nation. Music is piped in from the information office next door at request. For virtuosos, there is a piano in the middle of the room.

— NSA Congress —

(Continued from Page 1)

tion for the deaf was introduced by UNC alternate Jim Fullwood. It passed the Congress by acclamation.

A program for student welfare, written by UNC alternate Mike Chanin, also passed overwhelmingly. It cited the inability of many students to keep up with the rising costs of higher education.

Greg Gallow, former student body president of the University of Wisconsin, was elected new president of NSA. His nomination was seconded by DeLung.

Keynote speakers at the Congress included R. Sergeant Shriver, of the U. S. Peace Corps, the Governor of Indiana, Republican congressman Fred Schwengel of Iowa, and the first Negro graduate of the University of Mississippi, James Meredith.

Playmakers Tryouts Set

Tryouts for the musical comedy "Little Mary Sunshine," The Carolina Playmakers' first major production of the season, will be held at The Playmakers Theatre on Monday, September 23, at 4 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m.

Director Foster Fitz-Simons and Musical Director Charles Horton have announced that they will need a cast of 25, including 6 male principals, 7 female principals, and a chorus of 6 men and 6 women. There are several non-singing parts.

The directors have suggested that those interested in trying out bring a piece of sheet music with them which they are familiar. An accompanist will be available at the audition. Scripts are available in the Reserve Reading Room at the University Library, and at 307 Bynum Hall, although knowledge of the script is not necessary in order to audition.

The Carolina Playmakers is a community theatre, as well as being the laboratory theatre of the Department of Dramatic Art, and all members of the Chapel Hill and University communities are invited to participate in its productions.

SCIENCE NEWS

By MAT FRIEDMAN

A paper read at a recent conference at Chapel Hill on the problems preceding birth, reveals that "among women in the usual childbearing ages, infants of women who smoke during pregnancy are on the average about 150 grams (one-third of a pound) smaller than infants of women who do not smoke." The paper further states that there is a higher rate of premature births among heavy smokers. It is pointed out, however, that these statistics may be attributed to factors related to smoking rather than to smoking itself. It is generally felt, for example, that heavy smokers are more nervous than non-smokers.

* * *

Work went on as usual in Memorial Hospital and the University's many science departments during the summer. Some of the more interesting and important developments follow.

* * *

The Department of Hospital Administration is embarking on a two-year study to improve ambulance service in North Carolina before a "full-blown crisis" devlops. The project, according to Dr. Robert R. Cadmus who heads the Department, will attempt to reach solutions "which can serve as a guide not only to solve the immediate problem in North Carolina but also the problem of other states throughout the nation."

* * *

A government science research grant of almost $2 million has been renewed and extended through 1967. Sponsored by the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Department of Defense, the program involves members of the Departments of Physics and Chemistry. It could, in the long run, be a boon to the national space program.

* * *

In other developments, Dr. J. C. Morow of the Department of Chemistry is back at his old post after a year's leave which he spent in Heidelburg, Germany. Joining the staff this year will be two inorganic chemists. William E. Hatfield from the University of Illinois enters as an assistant professor and Bernard F. Spielvogel as an instructor of inorganic.

* * *

Dr. Horace D. Crockford, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, reports that the special summer science program for gifted hign school seniors was an "unqualified success." The program was headed by Dr. Samuel B. Knight.

* * *

Dr. Kenneth J. Ives of England, a specialist in water filtration, will spend the academic year at UNC's School of Public Health. UNC is one of 38 American universities to have a distinguished foreign scientist in residence this year.

* * *

Health department administrators from all over the country attended a course this summer on the control of accidents in the home. The course was given at the School of Public Health.

DU Chapter Here Is Given Top Award

Carolina's chapter of Delta Upsilon has been awarded the national fraternity's Directors' Award for Excellence.

The award, presented at the convention of the national DU fraternity at San Jose State College, San Jose, Calif., Aug. 28 through 31, is based on excellence in five areas: membership, scholarship, finances, chapter relations, and administration. President Don Heacock and Scholarship Chairman Franklin Adkinson attended from UNC.

There are three divisions in which an award for excellence is given, based on the number of fraternities on the chapter's campus. The local chapter of DU is in the middle Directors division which includes campuses with 14 to 24 fraternities.

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY

BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.

at the RANCH HOUSE

Recommended By Gourmet and Duncan Hines

NC 86 AIRPORT RD.
the Ranch House
OPEN CHARCOAL HICKORY PIT BROILING
PRIME WESTERN STEAKS
FLAMING SHISHKEBAB & BEEFKEBAB

All You Can Eat— It's A Cowboy Treat

NEW in EASTGATE

Tire sales & service

RECAPPING

NEW and USED TIRES

No Charge for Balancing

- ALL TIRES FULLY GUARANTEED
- ONE DAY SERVICE on RECAPPING

TIRE SALES & SERVICE

15-501 Bypass at Eastgate . . . . . Phone 942-1951

MENNEN SPRAY DEODORANT. Best deodorant a man can use. For two good man's reasons.

1. Mennen Spray gets through to the skin where a man perspires.
2. Mennen Spray is concentrated. Delivers three times the anti-perspirant power of any other leading men's deodorant.

Mennen Spray Deodorant . . . in the handy squeeze bottle. Try it. (M)

TEXTBOOKS, STUDY AIDS—EVERYTHING
Five Points Durham, N. C.

THE BOOK EXCHANGE

"South's Larget & Most Complete Bookstore"

...and a couple of lab reports

Just about the time you figure your Wordmaster should be running out of ink, unscrew the cap. The new see-thru refill says in no uncertain terms that you've got enough ink left to go on writing for quite a while. You shouldn't be surprised. For even though Wordmaster is slim and streamlined, it has a much larger ink capacity than ordinary dollar pens. And that makes it just about the most inexpensive dollar pen around.

By the way . . . you can get a handsome matching pencil to go along with your Wordmaster. And that's only a dollar, too.

Scripto

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what some scholarly people like to call a decade—from the Latin word deccum, meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as deccum when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel—especially over water—until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, because without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstress the importance of lighting your Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, unlighted, provide, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

You might even call it the limp or spongy sell

I mention Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. The makers of Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels—except on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys and white duck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are primarily fresh water dwellers, although they have been successfully raised in salt water too. Another salt water denizen I'm sure you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny organisms like diatoms and algae and like that which float sluggishly near the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these creatures, microscopic in size, should supply the principal source of food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, I must say, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because it takes the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to gather a day's meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and could, if they tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes in your campus newspaper. I will, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco flavor, that pristine white filter, that supple soft pack, that infrangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. What I favor is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp or spongy sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro in ten full years have not once complained about my desultory sales approach. Neither have they paid me.

But that is of small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboro, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to cast the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs? and "Are roommates sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps, reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for want of trying.

I thank you.

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's unpredictable and uncensored column—and also happy to bring you fine filtered Marlboros, available in pack or box, wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states.

No. 1 Edge TKO'd But No. 2 Black A-OK

By JOHN MONTAGUE

"It ain't a good feeling to have your No. 1 man sitting on the sidelines asking you what his name is."

These were the words of a relieved but subdued Jim Hickey as he faced a gathering of reporters minutes after his Tar Heels had completed a surprisingly hard-fought conquest of Virginia.

His reference was to quarterback Junior Edge who was rendered useless to the Tar Heels early in the second period after receiving a kick in the head.

"He was knocked silly. Couldn't remember a play in our offense. It happens to all football players at one time or another, but this is the first time I've ever had it happen to one of my quarterbacks.

"I found out about it," continued Hickey, "when (Ken) Willard came to me and said Edge had called a '52-straight' but instead of giving the ball to Willard, he gave it to the blocking back (Hank) Barden. You'll remember we fumbled on that play."

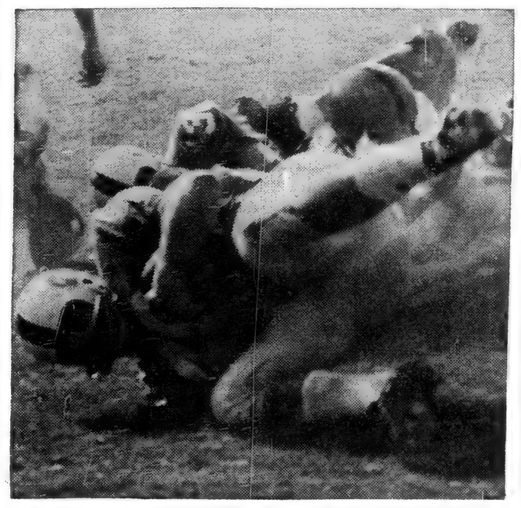
Despite the fact that Edge was still in a state of bewilderment at the end of the game, Hickey didn't seem worried that it was anything more than a mild concussion. Edge was to spend the night in the infirmary.

Edge's replacement was Gary Black, and Hickey was more than pleased with his performance.

"He makes us a better football team," said the UNC mentor, who was also happy over the clutch pass-catching of Joe Robinson and the foot work of sophomores Bill Edwards and Max Chapman.

"Black called all except one play on our touchdown drive. I sent in Willard with that one-yard scoring play and that was all. And Robinson—boy, he caught it when we needed it.

"Virginia had been doubling up on our split end and wingback in order to stop our down-and-out pass. So we pulled a switch and started throwing to our tight end (Robinson) up the middle. You saw what happened."



—Photo by Jim Wallace

Ken Willard Dives For Winner

. . . UNC Back Burst From One

Individual Leaders

| UNC | | UVA |
|---|---|---|
| Rushing | | |
| Willard 17-60 yds. | | Dunphey 12-29 yds. |
| Black 11-48 yds. | | Prusmack 9-21 yds. |
| Passing | | |
| Black 20-11, 97 yds. | | McSweeney 3-0 |
| Edge 7-3, 40 yds. | | Dunphey 1-0 |
| Pass Receiving | | |
| Lacey 5-55 yds. | | |
| Robinson 4-62 yds. | | |
| Punting | | |
| Edwards 5/45.0 | | Massie 7/41.1 |

UVA Offense Nonexistent

By MAT FRIEDMAN

Despite the fact that his team had just dropped an 11-7 decision in the final quarter, Virginia Coach Bill Elias seemed proud and satisfied with the afternoon's work .

"We never gave up on offense or defense," he said, "even though we spent most of the game with our backs to the wall. The boys just played a real good ball game."

Elias could find no fault with John Pincavage's decision to run out a punt deep in his own territory late in the game, a play which opened the door to the winning UNC touchdown. "I think Carolina just covered the punt well," he said. "Apparently he (Pincavage) just thought he had to run. I can't condemn that."

Henry Massie, who tied the ACC record with his 99-yard kickoff return, credited great blocking with giving him the opening. "It was a real thrill for me," said Massie in an exclusive DTH interview. "Someone took out that big number 73 (John Atherton) and I just cut to the left, went to the sidelines and straight up the field."

Elias said that the Cavaliers did not use any special defense to hold the Tar Heels who got near the Virginia goal line several times without scoring. "We used the standard defenses," he said, "with eight men up front. They were just great when they had to be."

– Late Run –

(Continued from Page 1)

close, pulsating victory.

After Massie's runback opened the second half, and put Carolina in the hole, the Tar Heels started to dabble in frustration.

First, Eddie Kesler broke his nose on the kickoff after the TD. Then, with Black at the controls and the crowd wondering what had happened to Edge, UNC started a methodical march which turned out to be a large dud.

Eight plays and four first downs (included was a fine 31-yard burst off right guard by Barden) took the ball from the UNC 24 to the UVA 12.

Here, Barden gained 2, Black overthrew Lacey, and Willard took two plays to get to the six. But the downs had run out, and the ball went over.

Later in the third quarter, UNC controlled for 14 plays starting at its own 49. Lacey caught a nine-yard pass and Joe Robinson, a 10-yarder, for the decisive gains. But the last four downs, all from the Virginia five, gained nothing. Willard, strangely, was not put in the lineup during this time. Again the ball changed hands at the five.

But Virginia twice couldn't get moving, and Massie punted 60 yards to Dave Braine at the UNC 40. He returned it seven yards as 8:30 remained on the clock.

Black then got going and threw the ball three times to Robinson for 17, 18 and nine-yard gains. Ron Tuthill could not move it on two tries from the two, and Willard was sent in. The big guy did the job, and today UNC is 1-0.

Scores

Navy 51 West Virginia 7
Alabama 32 Georgia 7
VMI 14 George Wash. 6
Tennessee 34 Richmond 6
Syracuse 32 Boston Coll. 21
Army 30 Boston U. 0
Villanova 21 West Chester 9
Northwestern 23 Missouri 12
Buffalo 7 Ohio U. 0
Air Force 10 Washington 7

W'Pack, Duke Win; Clemson Shredded

DURHAM, (UPI) —Duke, stunned by an early scoring slap, got extra mileage out of injury-hobbled full back Mike Curtis Saturday and smothered fumbling South Carolina, 22-14.

Curtis blasted short yardage for two touchdowns and booted a 30-yard field goal with a bruised right ankle to pace the Blue Devils.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)— Jim Rossi, a senior quarterback, engineered a versatile ground-air attack Saturday to give North Carolina State an upset 36-14 victory over Maryland.

State ripped off three touchdowns in the first half, the first practically a gift from Maryland.

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The Oklahoma Sooners, suddenly finding the breaks going their way, stormed from behind in the second half Saturday and beat Clemson 31-14.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Ringer, whose fumble had helped Clemson to a 14-0 lead in the second quarter, finally pulled Oklahoma together for a third-period onslaught that forced the Tigers into fatal miscues.

WE URGE YOU TO SEE IT FROM THE START BECAUSE THAT'S WHEN THE EXCITEMENT BEGINS!

Features at 1:08-3:08-5:08-7:08-9:08
Take 501 East
Turn off at Gregson St.
Northgate Shopping Center
Now Showing
Northgate Theatre
DURHAM

The Intimate Bookshop Has Used Copies of The Texts And Paperbacks You Need -

Y. B. Spendthrift?

Our Stock of Used Books has Never Been Larger. Save at
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.

For Your Book Needs Visit
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
Five Points Durham, N. C.
"A Book Store That Is A Bookstore"

Swingline Fables for Fun

When Godiva, that famed lady fair,
Told her husband, "I've nothing to wear,"
With his Swingline in hand,
He stapled a band
And said, "Wear this, my dear, in your hair!"

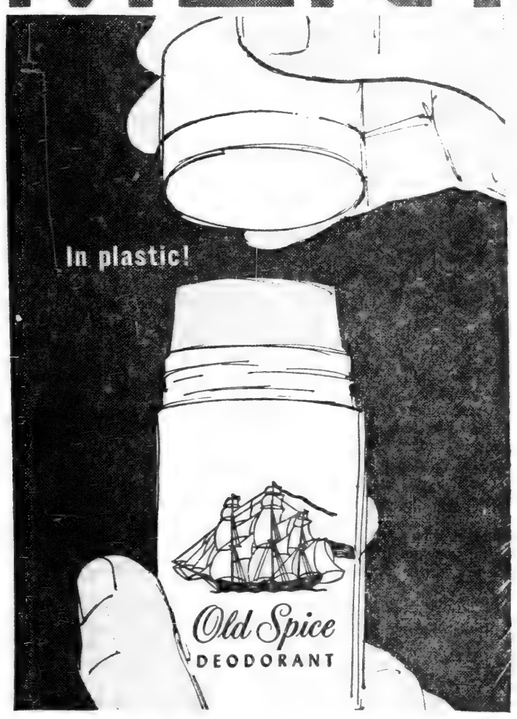
SWINGLINE STAPLER

98¢
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
- Unconditionally guaranteed!
- Refills available anywhere!
- Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
- Send in your own Swingline Fable Prizes for those used

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N. Y.

MEN!



Here's deodorant protection
YOU CAN TRUST

Old Spice Stick Deodorant...fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the man's deodorant preferred by men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant — most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.

Old Spice STICK DEODORANT
SHULTON

Q.
Why buy a pen this good when you might just lose it?

A.
Parker won't let you lose it. If you do, it will be replaced*

*SPECIAL REPLACEMENT OFFER

If you buy a Parker 45 for $5 between now and October 31, 1963, it will be protected against loss for one full year at no extra cost. Just register its purchase by mailing one-half of the Parker 45 Registration Certificate to the insurance company listed on the certificate. Then if the pen is lost, the insurance company will replace it at no charge. All you have to do is mail the other half of the certificate, properly notarized, and describe how the pen was lost.

Here's why this is such a good pen for a college student:

It's "convertible". You can load it with a cartridge or you can replace the cartridge with this ingenious little "converter" and fill it from an ink bottle. Hard to run out of ink during an exam.

Solid 14K gold point. You get a choice of seven widths from extra fine to extra broad. And if you damage a point, your dealer can replace it instantly.

For only $5 you get: The pen, a "converter," a cartridge, and free exchange of any undamaged point within 30 days of purchase. PLUS Parker's special replacement offer. This guarantee against loss will be offered until October 31st only, so better see your Parker dealer right away.

† PARKER—At 75 years—Maker of the world's most wanted pens

The new Parker 45 Convertible $5

1. load it with a cartridge
2. ...or fill it from an ink bottle

GOOD CLASSMATES AT EVERY SCHOOL!

Blue Cross And Blue Shield For Students

Now! From Hospital Care a Blue Cross-Blue Shield Student Certificate that provides comprehensive hospital, surgical, medical and out-patient care benefits. Not just an accidental injury coverage, this is a regular contract developed in response to many requests from subscribers for a low-cost plan to cover sons and daughters still in school who are past the 19-year age limit for family certificates.

Immediately available to full-time college and trade school students, the Student Certificate costs only $2 a month, payable quarterly. It offers year-round coverage both on and off the campus. If you are a college or trade school student between the ages of 19 and 24—or the parent of a student—write today for a free folder giving full details about this special Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.

BLUE CROSS | BLUE SHIELD

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Fill out and mail coupon to 800 S. Duke St.
Durham, N. C.

Hospital Care Association
Durham, North Carolina

Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE
Name ..... Age .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.
'Memo'

See Edits Page 2

The Daily Tar Heel

Frosh Win Opener

See page 4

3

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1963 | United Press International Service

School Spirit Slammed

By BOB SAMSOT

This is the first in a series of polls of campus opinion on a wide variety of subjects.

Carolina student spirit has been severely criticized in past years. Some say the students only cheer when the team wins and stay silent when the team does badly. Some counter with the suggestion that if the team, including the subs, showed more spirit, the fans would be more responsive.

This issue was taken to Lenoir Hall and Y-Court.

Coy Willard, Ehringhaus freshman: "The team could have done better if the student body had shown more spirit. This is our school and we've got to back the team no matter how badly they're doing."

Dianne Littlefield, Cobb junior: "Very poor—but it's hard to have school spirit when there's not too much to back."

John Calhoun, off-campus soph: "Pretty good, but not as good as year before last."

George Anne Moss, off-campus: "It seemed good from where I sat, but the booing was out of taste at times."

Dozier Hasty, Ehringhaus freshman: "It was good when the team was doing well, but that's about all."

Gretchen Schoof, Alderman junior: "I was impressed, but maybe it's because I'm a transfer student from a small school. From what I've heard, it wasn't too good."

Don Curtis, off-campus senior: "I thought the school spirit was good while we were ahead, and the only thing our spirit needs to be excellent is a winning season."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Four Indicted For Intimidation

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—A federal grand jury today indicted four men, including the head of a pro-segregationist group, for interfering with racial integration in Birmingham schools. They were arrested quickly.

Federal District Judge Clarence Allgood disclosed that there had been attempts to "intimidate or influence" the special grand jury which returned the indictments.

Allgood said there were similar efforts to influence him.

Viet Cong Kidnap Two Teachers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Communist Viet Cong guerrillas attacked and kidnaped two British school teachers Sunday near a South China Sea beach resort, then released them when U. S. Army planes and helicopters buzzed the area, it was reported Monday.

The British embassy said one of the teachers, James Duncan Kinnaird, 28, of Cullen Banff, Scotland, was shot and left for dead when he tried to escape the Viet Cong troops. Kinnaird was flown to an American hospital by helicopter for treatment, and doctors said his leg wound was not serious.

The other teacher, Alan Darby, 25, of Barnt Green, England, was dragged into the jungle and held for two hours until U. S. Army airmen, notified by a fisherman who witnessed the kidnaping, forced the guerrillas to scatter and take cover.

Boy, 10, Saved From Ledge

AUGUSTA, Mont. (UPI) — Rescuers plucked a 10-year-old boy from a narrow ledge 125 feet up the face of a cliff, Monday where he had been stranded nearly 18 hours.

The boy, Bruce Krummel, son o Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gill of Great Falills, Mont., was unharmed but cold, wet and scared. He was brought down a hastily built ladder to the base of the cliff.

Bruce had been on the ledge since 9 a.m. Sunday. He had been camping with his parents near Diversion Dam in Home Gulch near here.

Pres. Kennedy Cuts Hiring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Monday that, federal departments and agencies had done an excellent job of holding down on hiring new employees but that he has ordered even tighter targets drafted for the year ahead.

The statement was seen as a new bid to convince Congress, on the eve of House action on his $11 billion tax reduction program, that the administration is economy minded. Kennedy made his statement at a cabinet meeting and then ordered it made public.

Barry's Ban Bid Beaten

By WILLIAM THEIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Sunday overwhelmingly rejected 75 to 17, Sen Barry Goldwater's major reservation to the nuclear test ban treaty and cleared the way for certain ratification of the historic pact with Russia Tuesday.

Only nine Republicans and seven Southern Democrats joined the Arizona Republican in support of his proposal to delay effectiveness of the treaty until the Soviet Union withdraws completely from Cuba under U.N. inspection.

On the roll call vote 54 Democrats and 21 Republicans opposed the reservation.

In disposing of other reservations, the Senate rejected proposals by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., that would have held up ratification until Russia had paid all its U.N. debts. The votes 76-16 and 82-11 respectively.

The showdown vote on Goldwater's Cuban proposal came after several Republicans and Democrats criticized both the reservation and its sponsor, a major possiblity for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the treaty's floor manager, termed the reservation "inappropriate, unwise and irrelevant."

New York GOP Sen. Jacob K. Javits told the Senate it would have a "very grave effect, driving Khrushchev back into Mao Tse-tung's arms." Javits was referring to the Soviet premier's split with the rulers of Communist China.

Senate Republican Whip Thomas H. Kuchel, Calif., asked Goldwater whether he favored severing diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union.

"Yes," replid Goldwater, adding that he had expressed that view for many years.

Student Leaders Gang Up On Speaker Ban

PRAYER MARCH — Approximately 200 people, including 80 whites, marched down Franklin St. Sunday afternoon to commemorate the deaths of four Negro children in a Birmingham, Ala., church bombing September 15. The march, which began at 1 p.m., left from St. Joseph's C.M.E. Church, proceeded down Franklin St. to the post office and then back to the First Baptist Church where a memorial service was held. Five local ministers participated in the march.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

CUSC, SG Delay Action For Trustees

By HUGH STEVENS

Student leaders and administration officials have decided to await the annual trustee's meeting on October 28 before revealing plans for action on the controversial speaker ban. The Consolidated University Student Council and the UNC Student Government committee chairmen met in separate sessions over the weekend.

A brisk discussion of the controversial speaker ban law highlighted Sunday's meeting of the Consolidated University Student Council.

The CUSC, meeting on the Chapel Hill campus, heard President Friday urge education of students as to the implications and importance of the bill. He also outlined the history of the law and announced that the university Board of Trustees will consider the problem on October 28.

"This will be the first opportunity the Board has had to discuss this legislation," he said. "The wisest thing we can do now is to work toward the trustees meeting and act upon their decision."

President Friday aiso urged the CUSC to meet with student leaders and administration in an effort to educate students and public about the university's position on the law.

"There are three ways in which the bill could be eliminated," he continued. "The General Assembly can appeal or amend it, or a test case could come up to test its constitutionality."

Mike Lawler, UNC student body president, spoke briefly concerning the legal construction of the bill, its causes, and the role of students in future developments.

"We must encourage the public and students to find out about the details of the bill and its effects on the university," he said. "They must be made aware of the university's position and how the students feel about the bill's implications."

Following Lawler's remarks, the council adjourned to President Friday's home for further discussion.

Friday prefaced his remarks with an outline of the law's history and of action that has already been taken.

In recounting the history of the law, he reminded the group that the bill passed in swift legislative action without prior notification to the institutions involved.

CURED Conducts Services For Birmingham Children

By JOEL BULKLEY

Chapel Hill joined communities throughout the country Sunday in conducting memorial services for the four children killed in a Birmingham, Ala. church bombing Sept. 15.

Some 210 persons, including about 80 whites staged a silent procession through the downtown business area and then attended brief services at the First Baptist Church.

A bi-racial group of five local ministers shared the service, with Rev. Robert Seymour of the Binkley Memorial Baptist Church giving the meditative remarks. Local ministers had been asked to dedicate their Sunday services to the children of Birmingham.

The march was sponsored by Chapel Hill's newly-reorganized integration group, Citizens United For Racial Equality and Dignity. CURED will meet Thursday night to consider the adoption of the remainder of its proposed constitution and elect a permanent slate of officers. The constitution includes a broad base of goals for the group's operations, including voter registration and total integration of University and community life.

CURED was founded late in August when the Committee For Open Business collapsed due to internal and external dissension. The COB had staged protests against the town's 19 segregated establishments throughout the summer, including one sit-in during which 27 Negroes and seven whites were arrested and numerous sidewalk marches and street demonstrations. The largest march, on July 4 drew an estimated 500 persons.

Speculation has increased about the possibility of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) establishing a chapter here in October. CORE officials in Danville, Va. indicated yesterday they will travel to Chapel Hill later this week to discuss founding a chapter.

The first CORE group was organized in 1942 by James Farmer, currently its national director, and an inter-racial group of students at the University of Chicago who believed that it was time, in Farmer's words, "to substittue bodies for exhortations." They went into service immediately in sit-ins and on picket lines as CORE spread its non-violent techniques to local chapters across the country.

Efforts in recent years have been aimed at desegregating lunch counters, movie theaters, schools, employment, and housing and increasing Negro voter registration.

Tomorrow

Raymond S. Stansbury, a plumber from Hilsboro is the first official candidate for governor. He describes himself as "just a country boy who understands those fellas back in the woods."

Pete Wales, DTH staff writer, describes Mr. Stansbury in tomorrow's Tar Heel.

Ole Miss Negro Student Is Jailed For Carrying Pistol

OXFORD, Miss (UPI) — Cleve McDowell, the only Negro student attending the University of Mississippi, was arrested and jailed yesterday for carrying a concealed weapon.

Conviction on the charge presumably could result in McDowell's dismissal from the university and restore total segregation to Mississippi schools.

Lafayette County Sheriff Joe Ford arrested the 21-year-old Negro student when McDowell emerged from a morning class.

Ford, who said he had been tipped about the gun by a white student, reported that McDowell surrendered a small 22-caliber pistol.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of a $100 fine and 90 days in jail.

McDowell, a law student and an honor graduate of Jackson State College for Negroes, was taken immediately before Justice of the Peace W. H. Jones for a preliminary hearing.

He declined to enter a plea because he was not represented by an attorney.

Ford then lodged him in the Lafayette County jail. The sheriff said McDowell was allowed to telephone Mrs. Contance Baker Motley, an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in New York. Mrs. Motley represented McDowell in his suit to enter Ole Miss.

Ford said the pistol was observed "falling out of his pocket" by another student Monday morning.

Alpha Gams Honor Two

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority has recently announced the award of its graduate scholarships for 1963-1964. Two of these national awards were presented this year to alumnae of U.N.C. and the local chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta.

Miss Ann Diehl of Charlotte, N. C. will use her Founders Memorial Fund grant at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, where she is pursuing a master's degree in physical therapy. Before graduating from U.N.C. in 1963, Miss Diehl served her chapter as treasurer.

Yack Photos

Yackety .Yack .editors .John Howe and Charles Chinnis have announced that pictures are now being taken for the 1964 YACKETY YACK each weekday afternoon in the basement of Graham Memorial from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m. Seniors, 4th year medical students, and 3rd year law students are scheduled for this week, September 23-27.

Dress for the pictures will be dark tie, dark coat, and white shirt for all men; black sweaters and small pearls for senior girls; and black sweaters for all other girls. All students are urged to come early and avoid the rush.

John Knowles: UNC's Writer-In-Residence

John Knowles

—Photo by Jim Wallace

By FRED SEELY

The object of a long search sat in a Bingham Hall office discussing his work.

He is John Knowles, UNC's Writer-in-Residence, the man the New York Times calls "One of the top three writers for college students.", comparing him with J. D. Salinger and William Golding.

An informal committee of students and faculty had been working since last fall to establish a writer-in-residence program.

The program received wholehearted encouragement from the University's Board of Trustees, a favorable resolution from Student Legislature, the blessings of academic departments concerned with the teaching of writing, and most important, full financial support of the project from Chancellor William B. Aycock.

As the proposal evolved over a period of months, it became something very different from the normal writer's residency which has become a fixture at colleges all over the land, and promises to be a boon both to students and the writer himself.

A slight, balding man in the late-30's, Knowles politely declined a cigarette. It was apparent that he hadn't really gotten settled in his new job, and he asked questions about the campus, the faculty, the students.

Yes, he was very impressed with Chapel Hill. In fact, it was one of the three most beautiful campuses he had seen, along with Princeton and Cambridge, England. No, he didn't know many people here. Yes, he looked forward to the coming year.

A former associate editor of "Holiday" magazine, Knowles is the author of two novels. A Separate Peace, published by Macmillan in 1960 for which he won three awards, and Morning at Antibes, published by Macmillan in 1962. He has also written a number of stories and articles which have appeared in the "Saturday Evening Post," "Story," "New World Writing," "Reader's Digest" and "Holiday."

As Writer-in-Residence, he will teach a class in English 34, the course for beginning writers. In addition, he will participate in a seminar for more experienced writers, also lecturing periodically to writing-related classes in such departments as RTV-MP, the School of Dramatic Art and the School of Journalism.

"The opportunity I shall have for my own work remains to be seen, although the schedule I have seems to be most liberal", he said. "I prefer to do my writing in the mornings, and I hope to be able to finish my next book soon.

"The newest one is a series of articles on my experiences in Jordan, Greece and Lebanon. After it is finished I will immediately start on a new one."

What did he think of other contemporary writers?

"Well, I think that James Baldwin is a perfect example of a shouting preacher. He rambles on and on as if he is going to release the final word on something, and then somehow the reader misses the point entirely.

"Salinger is a very fine writer who has developed the same subject matter too long, and Golding's Lord of the Flies bored me stiff. I couldn't finish it."

How does he think that teaching will affect his writing?

"Again, that remains to be seen. I think that I will profit about as much as my students, and I hope that it's quite a bit.

"You know, this is the first time I have done something like this. The last real contact I had with a university was when I was at Yale as an undergraduate."

"The only other Writer-in-Residence I have met was William Faulkner, who spent his last years at the University of Viriginia. He had little contact with students, as he did little more than read from his works.

"I am quite confident that the year will be a good one."

A native of Fairmont, W. Va., Knowles attended Phillips Exeter Academy and Yale University. After graduating from Yale, he worked on The Hartford Courant, Hartford, Conn., for two years and then went to Europe where he lived on the Island of Ischia and at Juan-les-Pins in Southern France.

Knowles spent three years as an associate editor of "Holiday" before resigning in 1960 to devote full time to writing. In the spring of 1961, he gave a series of talks to writing classes at Yale and spent that summer travelling Europe and the Middle East.

Knowles' first novel, A Separate Peace, was first published in England by Secker and Warburg and was highly praised by reviewers. This novel won him three awards: the first William Faulkner Foundation Award "for a notable first novel published in 1960"; the Rosenthal Award of The National Institute of Arts and Letters; and one of the annual awards of the Independent Schools Education Board "for the ten best adult books of 1960 for the pre-college reader."

His second novel, Morning at Antibes, deals with the presence of evil and violence amidst a beautiful and peaceful setting.

Mot's Portrait Comes To UNC

A portrait of John Motley Morehead will be presented to the University here Thursday. Morehead, who is presently visiting his home town of Spray, will be on hand for the portrait presentation.

The portrait of "Uncle Mot" is a personal gift to the University from four trustees of the Morehead Foundation: Hugh Chatham, Norman Cocke, W. Harris Nelson and John L. Morehead.

Chatham will present the portrait and Gov. Terry Sanford will receive it on behalf of the University. It will hang in the dining room of the Morehead Planetarium.

Albert Murray, who painted the portrait, will be present at the formal dinner meeting.

Roy Armstrong, executive secretary of the Morehead Foundation, said that the portrait presentation would be only one part of the program that will be presented during Morehead's brief visit to alma mater.

"The usual purpose for the meeting this time of the year," Armstrong said "is to pay tribute to the new Morehead Scholars and also to recognize the scholars that will graduate this year.

"The senior scholars will present a special skit depicting their four years at UNC," Armstrong noted. "The name of the skit will be "An Uncle Mot Concerto."

Morehead is the donor of over $17 million to the University. It has been used for the construction of the Morehead Planetarium, the Morehead-Patterson Bell Tower and the education of the Morehead Scholars.

An 1891 graduate of UNC, Morehead discovered a method of making calcium carbide economically which led to the growth of the industrial giant, the Union Carbide Corporation.

His Morehead Scholars receive scholarships that pay all expenses for four years of study here. Since the establishment of the Morehead awards in 1951, 303 young men have become Morehead scholars.

A resident of Rye, N. Y., Morehead served as mayor of that town from 1925 to 1930. He then served three years as minister to Sweden. At 92, he still goes to his office five days a week.

He usually comes to UNC three times during the academic year and was here twice during the summer.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Memo To Mssrs. Stone, Phipps & Helms: Please Come By And Express Your Views

With its customary acuteness of discernment, The Chapel Hill Weekly seems to have put its editorial finger on the central difference between those who would leash great institutions of higher learning, such as UNC, and those who are content that it be gently reined so long as the reins are in responsible hands.

It is appropriate that the Weekly did so in the words of a recent UNC graduate, Fred Anderson, one of the best scholars this campus has nurtured in many a year.

Wrote The Weekly:

Fred Anderson, a scholarly young man from Rutherfordton, graduated from the University at Chapel Hill last spring. He went through as a Morehead Scholar, distinguishing himself as one of the finest students ever turned out here, and is now on the way to Oxford University where he will study as a Marshall Scholar. Before he left Chapel Hill, he gave his opinion of the place. Among other things, he said:

"Many young people are genuinely disturbed by rumors that Chapel Hill is a place where young people learn, not the virtues of life in a democracy, but the weaknesses and shortcomings of our system. A lot has been said about dangerous and subversive students, faculty, and even administrators.

"I think I know why this state of affairs has arisen. There are two basic outlooks on life in conflict here, and they are completely irreconcilable. Some people believe that authority — wherever it may be based, in the home, in the state, in the Church, in the free enterprise system — is to be followed and taken as the undisputable truth. Others try to find out for themselves if all these sources of 'truth' are correct. Sometimes their final decision runs contrary to what has been accepted as truth.

"The first group would naturally think of a university as a place where authority is taught. You go to a university to find out what the last word is in religion, politics, ethics, physics, and all other disciplines. Professors would be expected to inform themselves on the current version of the truth and pass it on to their students. The other group would think of a university as a place where an attitude toward thinking is taught. They would stress that knowledge is by no means complete or accurate, and truth is even less so. Analysis of facts cannot be begun until this attitude is present.

"Democracy has been functioning on the second philosophy of learning since it first became a form of government. In a true democracy, a vote is little more than a 'yes-no' summary of an opinion independently arrived at.

"Citizens of North Carolina can be proud that their university has never been seduced into the non-democratic, authoritarian type of education. It has, since 1795, always attempted to teach its students to think independently, and then to attempt a judgment of facts and opinions. . . .

"A democracy is one of the few places where conflicting opinions can be argued. To change this would be a vote of no-confidence in the American way of life. What a supreme irony it would be if our excessive concern with Americanism undermined the very reasons for American success."

Mr. Anderson is a much younger man than Senator Clarence Stone, or Judge L. J. Phipps, or even Jesse Helms, and possibly he might not have all the calm perspective that age sometimes develops. But he has just wound up four years of direct contact, he observed what was going on here, and there is no reason to believe that he has misrepresented or misunderstood what he saw.

On the basis of the evidence, it seems that Fred Anderson's view was clearer and far less distorted than the view from the Senate Chamber rostrum, the American Legion hut, and even from the topmost rung of Raleigh's highest TV tower.

In case you can't place the names of the aforementioned three men, Sen. Stone helped speed the speaker-ban law through the State Senate this summer; Judge Phipps supported the measure in the House, and at least acquiesced in a move by the American Legion, of which he is now State Commander, to "investigate" UNC as a "red nest"; and Jesse Helms is the WRAL-TV editorialist who habitually supports such measures as the speaker-ban and the "investigation."

We must admit that whenever we think of discussing the actions of these three men, and others like them, the most appropriate style that comes to mind is ridicule and scorn.

In this case, however, that would be a self-defeating tactic, as it would only serve to widen the gulf between us, and we would rather the gulf be closed if that is possible.

We therefore invite these three men to come here individually and present their views frankly, then answer questions. Such an exchange of viewpoints might go far toward clearing up our differences.

After all, if we must oppose each other as vigorously as we presently do, then it is in the best interests of all of us, and the State in general, to know not only where each of us stands, but why.

R. S. V. P.?

EDITORIAL

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Copy Editor — Harry DeLung
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editors — Joel Bulkley, Jim Wallace
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk

BUSINESS

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Brian Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

From Vietnam, A Plea For Aid

This letter was written over a year ago by a Vietnamese who was the friend of an American who sent it to a gentleman in Goldsboro. He was kind enough to submit it to The Daily Tar Heel for publication.

The Vietnamese friend was rather reluctant to write down his thoughts but did so at the insistance of the American.

To a good friend of Vietnam,

I do not know who you are, you do not know who I am, but I still write to you. One thing I surely know, you are a good friend of South Vietnam.

I love Vietnam because this was where I was born, where I grew up, where I am living, and where I will fight for Democracy. Our early fathers have built this land for us, therefore we have no right to give it up.

My friend, you have helped us much, we are grateful for that, but we wish you could help us more properly. PLEASE HELP US TO HAVE A REASON TO FIGHT THE COMMUNISTS.

Fighting the Communists is not a hard job to our people. We can even fight them alone, without your help if we really want to. Our history has proved our glorious struggles against the Chinese, Mongolians, French, etc. . . . It takes a slight reason to kill a foreigner, but it must take a strong conviction to kill our own countrymen. So give us that conviction.

We do not ask you to teach the doctrines of Communism and Democracy in order to know which is best. We need a practical lesson, the real advantages of Democracy applied directly to our own life. Our peple have been sick of war, of fighting, of bloodsheds. We want peace, we want to rest for awhile. It is not true that we are indifferent with the Communist threat or what is going on. Being oppressed by the French for almost a century, then came the Japanese, then the long 10-year war with the French. Our people have been so tired and now we have to fight against the Viet-Cong which are our own people. We are really discouraged. However, we still can fight if we have a cause to fight for.

Only very few Vietnamese know that this is an ideological war. Most of them think that the Americans are here to take over the place of the French. You are here, they are glad because you are giving them working opportunities, but they still hate you. The Vietnamese children say hello to your soldiers here because by doing that they can get some candy or money from them. Surely kids do not fight Communists.

The so-called Viet-Cong are also those who revolt against local authorities. They do not exactly revolt but are being forced by Communists together with previous dissatisfactions. At daytime most farmers are oppressed by the ignorant local authorities especially at the countryside being far away from central government. At night they are threatened by the Viet-Cong. The people therefore do not know what to do, whom to ask for protection and whom to obey. They are not indifferent, they only want to be left alone. They will follow whatever side looks like giving them more protection against the other.

South Viet Nam is surely important to you, your friends and especially my people. As a Vietnamese in this time of crisis, standing on the boundary between life and death, we surely have the right to fight for the peace and Democracy of our country.

As I said, we must need a reason to fight for. If you ask a Vietnamese soldier why does he fight, he may answer you undiplomatically, "Well, I fight because I am asked and paid to fight," or "I don't know, I am forced to be in the army."

Some better answers would be, "I fight for President Ngo-Dinh-Diem," or "I fight to maintain the peace of my country." You know we are not fighting for Diem nor the temporary peace of our country, but the rights to live as a man with all his basic rights guaranteed. Why do we have to fight when right now our people are living under a democratic regime, yet we do not have the right to express ourselves as under Communism, we still cannot do so?

Now we have no freedom of the press, no freedom of forming true democratic opposition political parties, no freedom of speech, no complete free election. Under Communism we are still the same. Maybe these freedoms are only available in papers. So why must we die? We surely do not want to die for Diem and his "sister-in-law," Madame Nhu, and their dynasty.

It is good you are giving us military assistance, but take heed, you might be helping Diem to be stronger only among his people. Your help is surely very temporary because you cannot stay here till eternity and when you are tired, you will go away, and this land will also go Communist. So, if you want to destroy Commuism here as well as in Southeast Asia, please cut the root and not the leaf of the Communist tree.

So, before you may leave us, please give us a reason to fight for and a cause to maintain Democracy here. As we know, man does not live by bread alone. We are poor, we are hungry, but we are more thirsty for the freedom to express ourselves under our present government. By speaking up we can protect free election, independence of judiciary and select represented leaders to take care for our human rights and needs.

You may say if we are granted what we asked for, the Communist take advantage of us. That is true, surely we must have preventions. The following are some of our most important requests:

1. We would like to organize political parties safely. Send us your political advisors who will be the counselors of our political parties, who will guide us in a democratic pattern, keep us away from Communist penetration, and most of all, guarantee the party members safety against illegal acts from the party in power.

2. We do not want our press to print the ready written news and being closed suddenly due to speaking somewhat against Diem or his administrators. Please send us your advisors to be counselors of our press. They must then be our press protectors. When we have the two above rights, we will use them to protect many other rights. Any violation of the free election, freedom of speech, and the true democratic form of government will then be protected by the people.

3. Stop giving us things like foods, clothing, etc., but give us sanitary and medical aids, especially directly to the farmers of the countrysides. Our people will surely appreciate that.

4. Give us especially educational aids. Build for us plenty of schools in the countrysides. Build your own universities and colleges at our capital and teach us your own liberal system of education and teach us your democracy. Why can the French have their own education in Vietnam and you not have yours?

If the Communists disturb us from going to school, our blood will surely boil. We will fight till death for our peoples' rights to have education. We know that the Communists will be very afraid if you educate us because through this process, we will hate them. Either they destroy this education or not, they will lose their ground.

Our people pay much respect to education, our history and culture prove that. Anyone who takes it way from us is our enemy. We will learn to protect our human rights through your education established on our land.

5. When you give us something, give it directly and not through any channel for we may not receive anything from you at all. Your armed forces in Vietnam can help you in this project.

The above are our five suggestions. We know that they surely hurt the status quo of Diem. But is his status quo bigger than our survival? Since you are helping us, financially running the government for him, you may have the power to force him to submit himself to the above requests.

We all have the right to survive and we are all related. Today we all need one another and no one can live alone any longer. Each one of us then must sacrifice a little. You have done your part, I will do whatever I am asked. And what about Diem? He is our problem.

Very Sincerely Yours,
Your Vietnamese friend must not be known by Diem.

P.S. Please leave no trace that Diem or his embassy in Washington, D. C. could search for the writer of this letter.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

Student Spirit And Our Values

Editor, The Tar Heel,

Before my arrival as a grad student in Chapel Hill, I had read in the New York Times of the speaker ban imposed in North Carolina. I expected to arrive at a campus in ferment over an unconscionable breach of the freedom of speech and of academic freedom.

What have I found instead? I have found, outside of the newspapers, no discussion movement dedicated to the overthrowing of this offensive regulation. I have found, to my great dismay, an extensive effort to rouse the student body to beat Virginia in a football game. I have seen "Beat Virginia" placards all over; I have seen many students wearing "Beat Virginia" pins; last night I witnessed a massive rally dedicated to winning a game ;this morning I have seen many placards aimed at this afternoon's game. The whole campus community has been aroused by a football game.

I am not in the least condemning football fever or school spirit. This is unquestionably part of college life. But I do question our values. I, for one, think that freedom of speech and the students' cherished right to know are far more important. One of the greatest benefits of a college education is the development of an awareness of the world around us. It is to the educated man that everyone turns for the solution of major problems. We students cannot stand idly by as our rights are being taken from us by legislative fiat.

There is no questioning, for me, that the speaker ban, which denies the man who has invoked the Constitutionally protected right of silence, access to the Constitutionally protected right of speech, is in violation of the United States Constitution. In its invasion of academic freedom, I find it morally repugnant.

The time to act is now. I propose that our student leaders take the following actions to have the gag rule nullified by the courts and/or repealed by the State Legislature.

1. Organize a massive student protest movement — as massive as the pro-football movement. This would involve such things as students wearing "ban the ban" pins, having anti-ban posters prominently displayed throughout the campus and in nearby stores, holding anti-ban rallies with major speakers, and a letter writing campaign directed at the State Legislature. This, of course, must be carefully co-ordinated with anti-ban movements on other campuses.

2. Support a court case which would test the constitutionality of the ban. I am quite sure that an organization such as the American Civil Liberties Union would be glad to lend its aid.

3. Develop anti-ban support among major pressure groups. Alumni, labor unions, commerce, faculty, administration and prominent North Carolinians should all be called upon to speak out against the gag rule.

4. Finally, we must keep pressure constant until we have achieved our goal — repeal of the ban and restoration of freedom of speech.

Kenneth Sherrill
215 Connor

A Complaint On Movie Conduct

Editor, The Tar Heel,

I have never been so disgusted in my life as I was September 21, at the 7:30 showing of "Imitation of Life," in Carroll Hall. The sucklings attending the University of North Carolina make me ashamed to say I attend this place. The honor of the "Honor System" of UNC has been dragged in the dirt and spit on. The general "Who in the Devil cares" attitude of the rest of the Carolina students at the movie may as well have been a big "Go Ahead, We Like It" sign.

When college students make fun of a serious scene in a movie, solely because they think little of anyone but themselves, and that a scene involving anyone of another race is an object for base humor, they degrade everyone. I have seen more immaturity from the Carolina students in this one night than I ever saw in four years of High School.

Any Negro student in the movie must have felt rather surprised about this action. I know that any person with adult morals would know better than to laugh, crack jokes, and cause noisy confusion, during an emotional scene, especially since it involved Negroes and whites (although the whites in this movie showed themselves to be as vulgar as anyone of any race or creed I have come in contact with.)

I must say that I admire the Negroes present in that movie for exercising more self-control and good-judgement than I would have been able to muster at that time. The fact that the Campus Code was flagrantly violated may not seem of consequence, but there could have been more than just a violation, there could have been violence.

Anyone engaging in this vulgarity I am asking publicly, through this paper, refute this article, or consider yourself to have violated the Campus Code. Although I am not asking you to turn yourself in, for I do not know by names who you are, there are those who do. I call for a much more serious attitude from the "grammar school kids" in this "Honor Directed" PIG PEN!

E. James Dale
345 Craige

"What's Our Firm, Unswerving Asia Policy This Week?

A Candid Camera; LBJ Is Unknown

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press International

Since the vice presidential days of Richard M. Nixon, certain authorities on national politics have felt the role of the No. 2 man in government was increasing in importance — and public recognition.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, according to most New Frontiers men, has been given an increasingly prominent role in government by President Kennedy. Johnson, for example, recently concluded an important tour of Scandinavia as the President's emissary. He also plays influential roles in the nation's space program and the promotion of equal opportunity hiring policies in industry.

Thus it would seem that if any vice president were well known, it would be the colorful, hardworking L. B. J.

Fresh from his triumphs in Scandinavia, the vice president has a scalding experience ahead of him.

One of television's top-rated shows, "Candid Camera," begins a new season over CBS on next Sunday. These shows, featuring off-guard filming of John and Jackie public in candid moments, are prepared some weeks in advance.

The season's opener involved filmed interviews with 137 persons selected at random on the street and in places of business in New York, New Jersey and Kansas. These 137 persons were asked if they know who Lyndon Johnson was.

Now, hang on to your vice presidential aspirations if you harbor same. Of the 137 questioned, 44 persons did not know. To some of the 44, the name was vaguely familiar, but they didn't have the remotest idea who Lyndon Johnson was or what he did for a living.

Here are some samples from the sound track of the show:

Interviewer: "Have you heard the name Lyndon Johnson?"
Man: "No sir."
Interviewer: "No? Not familiar with the name at all?"
Man: "I'm a New Jerseyite."
Interviewer: "What—"
Man: "I'm New Jersey."

---

Interviewer: "Do you know Lyndon Johnson? Have you ever heard of Lyndon Johnson?"
Woman: "Who are they?"
Interviewer somewhat alarmed: "What—"
Woman: "What are they?"
Interviewer: "I want to know. Do you know what he does?"
Woman: "No."
Interviewer: "No?"
Woman: "No."

---

Interviewer: "Does the name Lyndon Johnson ring a bell to you at all?
Man: "I reckon it does."
Interviewer: "Who is he?"
Man: "He's a man we just buried a week or so ago."

The Gaslight Singers Will Appear At Friday's Hootenany

Gaslight Singers Top "Hootenanny"

"Hootenanny" is coming to the UNC campus Friday night. The featured group for the Memorial Hall performance of the ABC-TV show will be a fast-rising group known as the Gaslight Singers. Graham Memorial will sponsor the show, and it promises to be an exciting one.

If you happened to be in Washington, D. C. during the week of April 15 to 21, 1963, you were in for a treat; that is, if you got over to Washington's top folk room, The Shadows. If you enjoy an evening of singing and music, you had a marvelous evening. If you are a folk-singing enthusiast, you witnessed an event which you will always carry with you, the sensational premiere of a new folk group — The Gaslight Singers.

In recent years, with the rise in popularity of the folk medium, a great number of folk singers and folk groups have emerged, some to be heard and then fade away, others to eternally inscribe their names alongside the greats in the folk singing field. Names like Leadbelly, Burl Ives, Odetta, Pete Seeger and Joan Baez head the long list. New groups like The Kingston Trio, The Limelighters, the Chad Mitchell Trio, Miriam Makeba and Peter, Paul and Mary have joined their ranks, and now without any doubt and possibly the quickest recognition, The Gaslight Singers can be added to the list which retains only a few names of the many to appear.

Washington realized the event that it was participating in and the crowds of folk enthusiasts turned out en masse, bringing with them those on the fringes of this popularity, knowing that they too would become enthusiastic after witnessing a performance of this electrifying group.

Appeal To Status Seekers

Washington's Evening Star emphasized this fact in a review by Harry MacArthur as he wrote "the Shadows has come up with one of those acts that hold special appeal for the status seekers. It's a troupe called The Gaslight Singers — a pretty girl and three boys — who seem destined for certain fame in the folk music field. See them now at the Shadows and a year from now you can adopt a superior air and say, 'Oh, I knew them when nobody had ever heard of them.'"

"Tore the place apart," says the spy who watched what ultimately will be the historic first show of the Gaslight Singers at the Shadows.

In reality, the Shadows was not the first engagement of the Gaslight Singers — it was, however, their first major night club appearance. They have previously appeared on weekends at a New York Village nitery — The Phase Two, and at the Carnegie Recital Hall, where they performed to a SRO audience consisting of fans acquired during the Phase Two engagement.

Fast becoming one of the most sought after folksinging groups in the nation, the Gaslight Singers expect to make a summer tour of the country to be followed by a college tour in the fall.

The group consists of three fellows — Earl Zimmerman, Al Alcabes and Jeff Hyman — and a very attractive young lady, Martha Velez, all college students. It was as students that they all met and formed the group as it exists today.

Martha Velez

Born in New York City, she is definitely the most attractive of the group. Her soprano voice can distinctly be heard among these of the three other members of the group. Martha attended John Dwyer J. H. S. 60, and received two voice scholarships. She attended the School of Performing Arts and Long Island University as a drama major. Martha has appeared as Emily in "Our Town" and Sabina in "The Skin of Our Teeth", L. I. U. productions; in the off-Broadway production of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" and in the summer stock presentation of the "Bald Soprano."

'Breather' Is Needed In Birmingham

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A delegation of white civic leaders told President Kennedy Monday that local efforts can solve Birmingham's explosive racial problems if there is a brief "breather" from outside interference and agitation.

They made their appeal for "a few short days of peace" at a White House meeting with the President—the first of three he arranged during the day in an effort to snuff out the smouldering fuse of violence in the Alabama city.

The President's other scheduled meetings were with a group of clergymen from Birmingham and then with his specially appointed two man Birmingham peace team —former Secretary Kenneth C. Royall and ex-West Point football coach Earl H. Blaik.

The five Birmingham civic leaders said they suggested no specific time for a breathing spell to Kennedy. But city councilman Don A. Hawkins told newsmen that two weeks might bring "some accomplishments."

They stressed the desire of the city government and others in Birmingham to try to work out a local solution to the racial tension that has gripped the city in recent weeks and which reached a climax in the death of four Negro Sunday school children in a church bombing a week ago Sunday.

The group agreed that the Royall-Blaik mission might prove helpful. The five-man delegation also said Kennedy, in response to their appeal for ending outside agitation, told them he was in no position to prevent anyone from going to Birmingham.

Hawkins was asked if Negro integration leader Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., would be considered an "outsider." He replied that King "is a resident of Atlanta, Ga."

Asked if segregationist Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace would fall into the "outsider" category, W. C. Hamilton, executive secretary to Birmingham Mayor Albert Boutwell, replied: "Everybody is an intruder if he is not invited."

The five-man delegation of civic leaders brought with them a letter from Mayor Boutwell which advised the President: "It is our purpose to bring to your office no added burden but a better understanding so that the solution that we locally devise may promote peace and credit for Birmingham and for this nation which we love as dearly as any citizen anywhere."

Hawkins and others of the civic group said the elimination of outsiders from the Birmingham scene "is the basic and absolutely essential first requirement to reaching a permanent and peaceful solution.

Admission Standards Hiked

Minimum admission standards have been raised on all three UNC campuses, consolidated University President William C. Friday announced recently.

The changes were recommended by the Faculty's Advisory Committee on Admissions and Records after a study of admission statistics for the past several years.

Comparison of last year's freshman class with the year before showed a steady rise in the quality of applicants.

The College Entrance Examination Board's scholastic aptitude tests, consisting of tests on verbal and mathematical aptitude, will continue to be one admission criteria. Top score on each of these is 800.

A prospective student could not be admitted to the University in the past without a special review of his records unless the total of the mathematical and verbal scores was at least 750.

The new standard is 800, with a minimum score of 350 on each of the test's two sections.

The other major standard for admission here is the "predicted grade average," a mathematical formula for comparing an applicants' entire pre-college record, including the College Board score.

Numerical points assigned to previous grades under this formula are four points for an "A," three for a "B," etc. An "F" equals zero.

The minimum predicted grade average for admission under the old system was 1.4, or a little better than a D.

A student must have an overall four years' average of 2.0, or C, to graduate from Carolina.

Under the new system, applicants must have a predicted average of 1.6, or a little less than a C, for admission. Freshmen are required to earn an average of at least 1.25 to return for the sophomore year.

"This predicted grade average standard means that a student who makes the minimum College Board total score of 800 must be well within the upper half of his graduating class to qualify for Carolina," Director of Admissions Charles Bernard said.

"The lower he ranks in his high school class, the higher his College Board scores must be," he added.

Last year, 91 per cent of the freshmen were in the top half of their graduating classes in high school, as compared with 85 per cent the year before. Over half of the 1962 freshmen were in the top quarter of their high school class.

Last year, freshmen from 95 of North Carolina's 100 counties were here. Out-of-state students, limited to 15 per cent of the undergraduate student body, came from all over the world.

Campus Calendar

TODAY

There will be a meeting of all members of the Attorney General's staff who have been assigned to work with the IDC this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in the Council Room of Graham Memorial. Those members who will not be able to attend are asked to contact Bill Davis in 318 Graham Dorm.

FUTURE

The UNC Cardboard will have its first membership meeting at Roland Parker II on Wednesday, September 25 at 7:30. All who would like to work with the preparation of card stunts are invited to attend. Students not able to attend come to Emerson Stadium office any weekday 3:00-5:00.

Any girls interested in typing, newspaper clipping, bulletin board arranging, letter writing, mimeographing, etc., for student government should come to SG offices in Graham Memorial from 2-5 p.m. any weekday.

Alpha Phi Omega will meet at Roland Parker 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, October 1.

Ackland Art Museum needs models, male and female. Classes 8-10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday, inquire at rooms 106 or B18 Ackland. Classes 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, inquire rooms 106 or 208. Pays $1 per hour, minimum.

All Communications Committee members contact Fred Seely at the Daily Tar Heel office in GM any day between 2-5 p.m.

Seniors, 3rd-year law students, 4th-year medical students will have their Yack pictures made in the Graham Memorial basement from 1-6 p.m. Monday—Friday, Sept. 23-27. Boys will wear dark coats. Girls will wear black sweaters and pearls.

Young Americans for Freedom will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Woodhouse Room at Graham Memorial for an important business session.

The Student Party will meet Thursday night at 7:00 in Roland Parker Lounges on the second floor of Graham Memorial. There will be a program on The United States Student Association with a panel of several representatives that attended the Congress this past summer. All those interested in Student Government are urged to attend.

The Interdormitory Council will meet Wednesday night at 7 p.m. on the fourth floor of New East. All members must attend this meeting.

The University Party Executive Committee will meet at 8:30 Tuesday, Sept. 24, in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Di-Phi will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 7:30 in Di Hall on the third floor of New West. The public is invited. All members are expected to attend. The debate topics will be the Public Accommodations section and the N. C. Gag Law.

Ethridge Is New Director Of L. I. Daily

Garden City, N. Y. (UPI) — Mark F. Ethridge, newly appointed editor of Newsday, will be nominated to become a director and vice-president of the board of the Long Island Daily, it was announced yesterday. Ethridge will teach a class at UNC's School of Journalism during the second semester.

Harry F. Guggenheim, president and publisher, said Ethridge will be nominated at a meeting of the board of directors of Newsday, Inc., to be held next week.

Ethridge had been chairman of the board of both the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal and Times before he resigned Sept. 15 to join Newsday.

He stepped into the post formerly held by the late Alicia Patterson. Guggenheim has assumed the role of editor since the death of his wife who used her maiden name in the operation of the newspaper.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Help Wanted – Female

PART-TIME ASSISTANT FOR PROfessional writer. Typing and varied office work. Graduate woman or senior. Phone Mr. Coffman 968-1532.

Sale – Miscellaneous

FOR SALE 1957 WHT. DODGE CONvertible. R&H, PS, PB, V-8. New top. Good cond. Best offer. 968-9111 or 968-9093, Rm. 223.

"THERE IS A SIGNIFICANT DIFference between life insurance companies." Investigate The Northwestern Mutual difference now. Arthur Deberry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates; Telephone No. 942-6966.

you'll like the slim fit of LEVI'S SLIM FITS IN SANFORIZED TWILL

Belk Leggett Horton of Chapel Hill

Enroll in:

TYPEWRITING

And/or

SHORTHAND

Afternoon and Evening Classes begin Oct. 3, 1963

for information, call or write

TOWN CLASSES Secretarial College

159½ E. Franklin (Over Sutton's)

P. O. Box 615 Chapel Hill Telephone 942-4797

Welcome Back Students

T. L. Kemp, Jewelry

THE HOME OF THE OLD WELL CHARM

135 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1331

Carolina

TODAY

PAUL NEWMAN

JOANNE WOODWARD

IN

A NEW KIND OF LOVE

Shows at: 1:00 - 3:01 - 5:02 - 7:03 - 9:04

Varsity

NOW SHOWING

THE MIRISCH COMPANY AND EDWARD L. ALPERSON PRESENT

JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE

BILLY WILDER'S IRMA LA DOUCE

THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY

TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®

RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

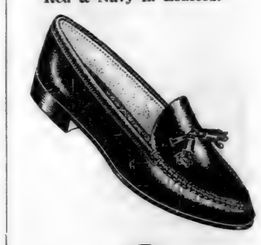
Shows at 1:20 - 3:52 6:24 - 8:26

Bass OUTDOOR FOOTWEAR

WEEJUNS

HIS: Antique Brown, Black, Genuine Cordovan & Scotch Grain

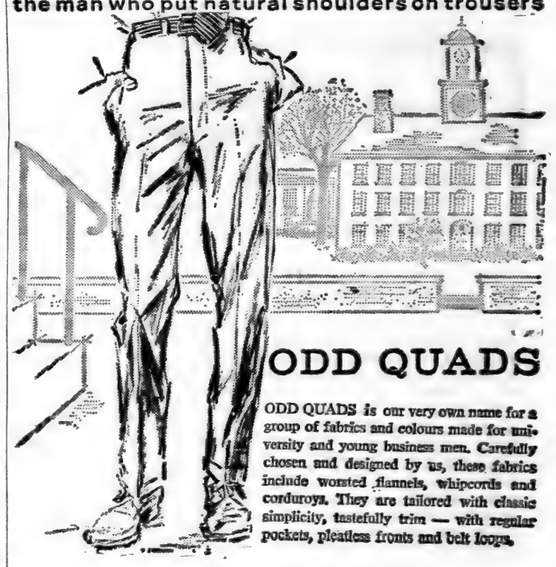
HERS: Stained Brown, Antique Red & Navy in Loafers.



Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

TROUSERED BY CORBIN

the man who put natural shoulders on trousers



ODD QUADS

ODD QUADS is our very own name for a group of fabrics and colours made for university and young business men. Carefully chosen and designed by us, these fabrics include worsted flannels, whipcords and corduroys. They are tailored with classic simplicity, tastefully trim — with regular pockets, pleatless fronts and belt loops.

Julian's

Discount Prices for Alterations on all

R.O.T.C. KHAKIS

Over the N. C. Cafeteria

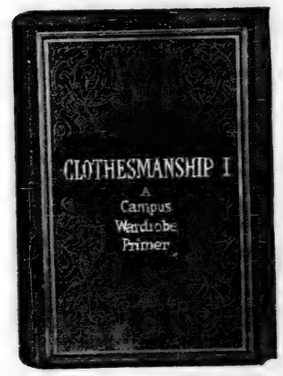
RILEY'S ALTERATION SHOP

Phone 942-3292

THE COMMUNITY OF LAY SCHOLARS

A disciplined group conversation for the purpose of exploring the Christian faith through readings in Paul Tillich, Karl Barth, Reinhold and Richard Niebuhr and the Church Fathers. Primarily for sophomores and juniors. Open to anyone who wishes to inquire into the revelance of Christian faith for our time. Meets weekly for supper and discussion, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday beginning October 1. If interested, call 942-2152.

required course: By CRICKETEER



Bone up for College. Read this campus wardrobe primer for all the specialized data you'll need to pass muster at your college. Based on surveys of college apparel requirements coast-to-coast . . . and prepared by Cricketeer, authority on young men's clothing. Pick up your free copy here.

Varsity Men's Wear

Jeff Beaver Passes Frosh Past Wolflets

By AL KAPLAN

UNC's freshman football team got off to a "flying" start Saturday night as the Tar Babies defeated the Wolflets of NC State, 21-7, at Raleigh's Riddick Field. Quarterback Jeff Beaver filled the air with pigskins, completing 16 of 19 tosses to pace the Carolina attack.

Highlight of the game came in the second quarter when UNC halfback Tom Lampham intercepted a State aerial and bolted 93 yards for UNC's second touchdown.

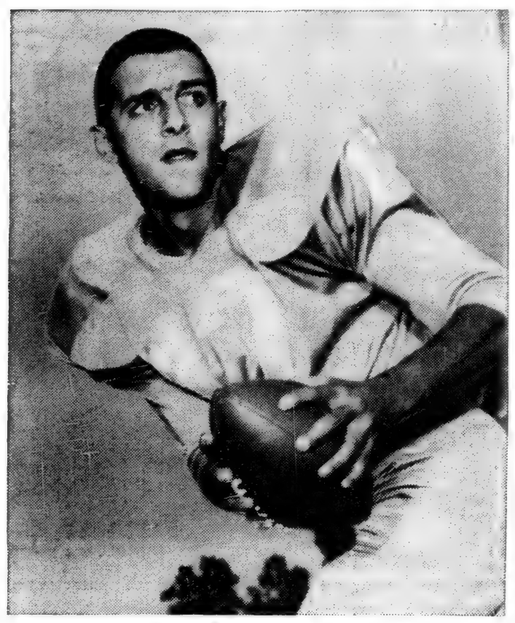
After the Wolflets had taken a 7-0 lead, Carolina marched 68 yards in 13 plays to tie the score. Fullback Tim Reardon bucked the final two yards for the tally. The Tar Babies final tally came when Beaver hit his former high school teammate, end Bud Phillips, with a pass, going 26 yards for the score.

A strong rush led by guards Joe Fratangelo and Dave Erimias held State to minus 25 yards rushing. Time and again Wolflet quarterback Jim Donnan was caught behind his line of scrimmage and spilled for losses.

State's only score came in the first quarter when the Wolflets recovered a fumbled punt on UNC's 20 yard line and moved the distance in five plays.

STATISTICS

| UNC | | NCS |
|---|---|---|
| 14 | First Downs | 7 |
| 118 | Yds. Rushing | -25 |
| 155 | Yds. Passing | 139 |
| 28-19 | Passes | 13-17 |
| 2 | Intercepted By | 0 |
| 4 | Fumbles Lost | 1 |
| 5-32.4 | Punting | 8-32.5 |
| 83 | Yds. Penalized | 80 |



Charlotte's Gary Black, normally a defensive back, stepped in for injured Junior Edge Saturday and did a big job at quarterback for the Tar Heels.

Edge Returns

A fine Edge (Junior) returned to UNC's football practice yesterday.

The ace quarterback, a standout last season, looked very sharp on the Tar Heels' first series of plays Saturday, before being kicked in the head early in the second period.

Edge, groggy and bewildered at what was going on, watched from the bench the rest of the game. He recovered memory about an hour after UNC had defeated Virginia, 11-7.

The Massey Hill senior spent Sunday in the infirmary, but attended classes yesterday. He worked out at his regular post with the first unit as the Tar Heels ran a dummy offense in preparation for Michigan State.

Mural Meet Set For 4:30 Wednesday

By AL KAPLAN

Intramurals Director Tom Johnson has announced a meeting for prospective tag football officials for Wednesday, September 24 at 4:30 p.m. in room 301 Woollen Gymnasium. Those who have had experience officiating and all others who are interested are urged to attend.

To qualify all applicants must attend a three day clinic and take an exam. The Intramurals Council will pay $1.25 an hour to officials, whose duties will cover other activities including wrestling and cake race.

Assistant Director of Athletics Walter Rabb, who served as intramurals director for fifteen years, summed up the program by saying, "The primary function of the Department of Intramural Activities is to promote, organize and administer a broad program of competitive and recreational activities for the voluntary participation of the Carolina student body, both men and women."

The core of the program consists of campus-wide point competition in 11 sports. Dormitory, graduate, fraternity blue and fraternity white are the four divisions in which team competition is held. Fraternity Blue includes the more experienced players whereas Fraternity White is comprised of those less experienced.

The team in each division which has compiled the highest point total at the end of the season is declared the winner.

Last year's winners were the NROTC in the dorm league, Physics Fiends in the grad circuit and Delta Kappa Epsilon in both the blue and white frat leagues. Rules for student participation are available in the Intramural Handbook.

In addition to point system activities, a large number of other sports are offered. This fall's calendar of events lists competition in swimming, golf, handball and squash as open to all students. This year as in the past two the Cake Race, Co-Rec Sports Carnival, Rod and Gun Field Meet, Co-Rec Volleyball and the Grail-Mural Holiday Basketball Festival will be offered.

Point competition will begin with tag football, followed later in the fall by track, wrestling, volleyball, basketball and handball, as well as softball in the spring.

Each of the participating organizations will have an intramural manager who attends the meetings of the Joint Council. All the necessary information about each activity is given to the managers at these meetings and students can become familiar with the activities through their manager.

The entire program is financed by the fees which each student pays at registration. The Intramurals Department urges everyone to exercise the privilege and use the fine facilities made available.

Quarterbacks Sparkle

UPI Sports Wire

While Miami's George Mira was recovering from shock, Roger Staubach (Navy), Tim Meyers (Northwestern) and Pete Liske (Penn State) took an early opportunity to place themselves and their teams in position for national prestige.

A crowd of 35,000, largest to see a football game in Morgantown, W. Va. watched Staubach ruin what many considered to be one of West Virginia's most promising teams. He played only half the game but that was more than enough for the Middies, who had a shutout going until West Virginia scored with 23 seconds remaining.

Myers was equally successful with his pin-point passing as the Wildcats beat a tough Missouri team, 23-12. He completed 10 of 16 passes for 209 yards and one touchdown. His aerials set up two other touchdowns and enabled Northwestern to overcome Missouri's early 6-0 lead.

Liske, a senior, guided Penn State's new "swing-T" offense to a 17-7 victory over favored Oregon and its All-America halfback, Mel Renfro. The new formation featured an end called a "Z-back," split 12 to 15 yards on either side. The eastern champion Lions also used an unbalanced line.

SPORTS Daily Tar Heel

ON THE LEVEL with JOHN MONTAGUE

John McVay is a businessman and his business is scouting football teams. At present his employer is Michigan State University, Carolina's next gridiron opponent. Last Saturday afternoon he did his work from the press box of Kenan Stadium.

Equipped with field glasses, diagrams, numerous form charts and a healthy supply of sharpened pencils, McVay went about his task—deciphering UNC's football team. He did it in a very professional manner. Every play entered his notebook and was accompanied by a multitude of notes. Page after page was filled with "pulling guards," "5-4 defenses," "down-and-outs" and "shooting the gap."

McVay saw a potential All-America—"85" who operated at the split end position ("has a fine pair of hands"). He saw a line-busting halfback—a big fellow who wore number "40" ("the guy they give it to when they need that big yard").

But McVay didn't stop with "85" and "40". He studied Gene Sigmon and Jim Alderman, Dave Braine and Max Chapman, Jimmy Eason and John Atherton, not to mention almost thirty others who were clad in the Carolina blue.

"Of course I couldn't get a whole lot on Edge," said McVay as he stuffed his discoveries into a brief case. "But I did get a good look at Black, which helps. And from what I saw, I'd say that both are pretty good passers. Also that No. 88 (Joe Robinson) did a good job for you. Looked as good as Lacey on that last drive."

Chatting with McVay was a pleasant experience. He is a personable sort of fellow, even if he is working against us. Now in his early thirties, McVay graduated in 1953 from Miami of Ohio, where he was a center for both Woody Hayes (now at Ohio State) and Ara Parseghian (now at Northwestern.) He is in his second year as a scout for Michigan State, and, during the week, he serves as assistant backfield coach.

This week McVay will have his third, fourth and fifth string Spartan charges running UNC plays against the first and second units. And before the MSU boys even saw the practice field yesterday afternoon, they had received a full report on what to expect from North Carolina. This report was prepared by head coach Duffy Daughtery and his staff, who spent all of Sunday examining McVay's analysis of UNC's play against Virginia.

So when the Tar Heels trot into the East Lansing arena next Saturday afternoon, Michigan State quarterback Steve Juday could run right up to safetyman Sandy Kinney and greet him with "Say, I know all about you." And you can thank John McVay for making the introduction, even though he'll be miles away at Ann Arbor, hard at work watching Michigan play Southern Methodist. McVay plays a tough schedule—all his games are on the road.

TASTY TV MENU

Football lovers around Chapel Hill will be spending a lot of time beside the radio and in front of the television set in the coming weeks. The Tar Heels are "away" the next three weekends, but an attractive radio-tv line-up should help to fill the gap.

This Saturday, after listening to the UNC-Michigan State contest, it wouldn't be a bad idea to turn on the television. Two national powers, Oklahoma and Southern Cal, will be getting under way out on the west coast.

The Trojans from USC., last year's national champs, got off to a good start last Saturday, blanking Colorado, 14-0. The Sooners returned to national prominence last fall after several off-years and this season are given a good chance to go all the way to the top. In their opener they undid Clemson, 31-14.

For UNC fans, an interesting angle on the game might be a comparison of Southern Cal's fine end Hal Bedsole with our own Bob Lacey.

The next weekend (Oct. 5) Duke and Maryland will battle it out on the tv screen in the afternoon, followed that night by the airing of the Carolina-Wake Forest contest at Winston-Salem. October 12 will find Minnesota and Northwestern, two powers of the Big Ten, on television at the same time the UNC-Maryland tussle is on the radio.

And of course, there's always pro football on Sunday afternoons. This week John Unitas and the Colts run up against Green Bay Packers, Inc., whose stock has gone up in the last few years. The following Sunday (Oct. 6) will give the Redskins' many followers in this area a chance to see their team in action against the New York Giants.

The Gant Story

We believe that Gant shirts have a certain well-bred look that distinguishes them from all others. Careful tailoring and adherence to a strict tradition are qualities indigenous to Gant. The emphasis here is on meticulous detail in a heritage of conservatism.

Do you like a really neat, well fitting collar? Softly flared collar construction is gently RIGHT. Do you want to hang your shirt up? A trim hanger loop sees to that. Room to breathe? Oversize body construction is the answer. There's a full length box pleat back for trimness, too. Precise stitching lets the easy barrel cuffs roll up at mid-point.

The Gant shirt has been designed to serve you through a lifetime of correct dressing. There is painstaking workmanship in every fine Gant shirt...it comes from the expert craft of New England's finest shirtmakers. The craft explains why the careful details of these Gant shirts have been many times imitated but never duplicated.

©1960-Gant Shirtmakers

Julian's

PROMISING YOUNG MEN

. . . find the answer to today's money problems in our flexible Insured Savings Plan for college men. There's a difference in college students and life insurance companies. Let us show you.

The NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY
"Because there IS a difference!"

Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U.
District Agent
Matt Thompson — R. M. Fountain, Jr.
Jack Nicholson — P. Nields DeVere
Special Agents

1-YEAR'S WEAR OR YOU GET NEW SLACKS ...FREE!

5.99

Blend of 55% Acrilan acrylic, 38% rayon, 7% acetate that wears and wears, keeps its good looks through 12 months, 4 seasons! Choice: flannel or twist weaves. Plain or single-pleat models. Grays, brown, charcoal, navy. 28-40".

Belk Leggett Horton of Chapel Hill

Lady Milton Fair Isle Cardigans

At Very Enticing Quotations for Limited Time. Entire stock regularly at $23.95 now for at a get-acquainted quotation of $12.99.

Group of 1¼" smart leather belts with solid brass buckles, regularly $5.00, now specially priced at $2.50.

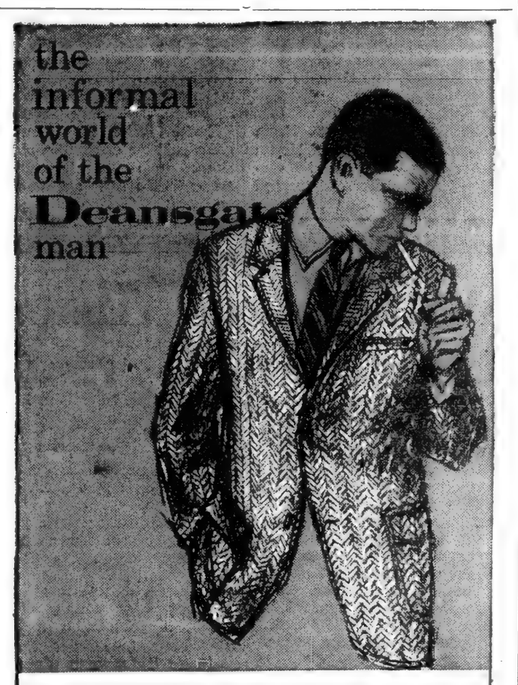
Discover the region's most unusual shoppe where every customer can style her own costume.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill



Is framed in this Shetland sport coat

There's nothing straightlaced about the Deansgate® man. He likes the feeling of natural equilibrium he finds in his Deansgate sport coat. Staunchly but softly tailored with the greatest natural shoulder in America. Could this great look be for you? Decidedly. In tumbleweed and other progressive shades...in imported Shetlands.

Town & Campus

Milton's Fall Sport Jacket Presentations

In the light of increasing clothing costs, Milton's has done an about face resulting in lower prices in some instances and maintaining last year's prices in other categories, all reflecting the smartest in "Old School" traditional with Milton's own inimitable touch.

Our incomparable buy-power-loomed herringbone shetland jackets including new exclusive bone combinations, at only $39.95

Hand-woven imported shetlands in plaids, herringbones or houndstooth—$48.75

Our specially designed Tulloch handwoven shetlands of Lerwick, Scotland, sold by a famous New York traditional shop at $90.00, available at Milton's at $55.00

Hand-woven Irish shetlands in plaids or houndstooth—bold and unusual—$60.00.

Suit selections are most complete including worsted herringbones—two piece Suit starting at $60.00, vested $70.00

If you have enjoyed brand BB, Brand G or Brand S shirts, just try one of our own M-2 perfect roll button-down with finest single needle tailoring, and if you're not convinced it is the best looking and fitting shirt you've ever tried, please tell us about it and we'll gladly refund $1.00 of the purchase price.

Many new heather tones added to our very fine McGeorge of Scotland shetlands, especially in our own higher V neck pullover—$16.95

In addition to the basic must of Bass Weejuns, we have the Cole Haan penny loafer in natural oil-stained finish in burnt ivory, double leather soles at $19.95

You'll Love Milton's New Fall Look!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Hear All About UNC Football

and other sports

On the Bob Quincy Show

at 5:45 — Monday - Friday

From Caravan Sports . . .

Presented by Town & Campus

Hear Quincy, UNC's Sports Information Director and Guests Live From Fetzer Field House

—This week Bob Reports From East Lansing, Michigan—

WCHL—1360

'Into the Fray'
See Edits, Page 2.

The Daily Tar Heel

Soccer Preview
Coach Marvin Allen prophesies a better season than last year's 9-2 effort. See Page 4.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25,1963 | United Press International Service

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Senate Approves Defense Appropriation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted $47.3 billion to maintain the nation's military might Tuesday just a few hours after it ratified the peace-promising nuclear test ban treaty.

The giant defense appropriations bill would provide only $1.7 million less than President Kennedy requested.

The bill passed on a unanimous 77-0 vote, but only after the Senate repulsed surprisingly strong attacks on the continued high level of military outlays.

The money measure, representing nearly half the annual federal budget, now goes to a House-Senate Conference Committee to work out a compromise between different versions passed by the two chambers. The Senate bill would provide $257,698,000 more than was voted by the House in June.

The bill carries funds for the manpower and weapons sought by the armed services for the fiscal year ending next June 30. Final passage came after backers fended off all attempts to cut funds.

The repeated attempts to slash the big money bill reflected the sentiments of some senators toward an appropriation so huge that a staff aide calculated it would take one person spending at the rate of $1,000 a minute, about 90 years to spend the amount in the bill.

Leaders To Discuss Sino-Soviet Split

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikito S. Khrushchev will summon top Communist leaders to Moscow in November to discuss the Sino-Soviet ideological split, informed diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The conference will be held on the occasion of the celebrations connected with the 46th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, Nov. 7-8, they said.

Most of the top Communist leaders of the world were expected to attend but it appeared doubtful that China and Albania would send representatives. For all practical purposes, Moscow and Peking no longer are on speaking terms and have restricted their communications to recriminatory statements and notes.

Peking, meanwhile, planned its own little summit meeting Oct. 1 when it marks the anniversary of the Chinese Communists' accession to power. But it appeared the Soviet Union even if invited would decline to attend.

Troubleshooters Arrive In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—President Kennedy's two racial troubleshooters arrived Tuesday and immediately stepped behind the scenes in an attempt to find a solution to the Birmingham crisis.

Former Army secretary Kenneth Royall and ex-West Point football coach Earl Red Blaik explained upon their arrival that "we are here as friendly guests. We will be here as long as the people of Birmingham want us."

Neither would reveal exactly how they intended to proceed in trying to solve the city's racial problems, but they did say a series of conferences had been scheduled.

Even before the peace talks could get started, new racial trouble appeared to be brewing at Selma, 75 miles south of Birmingham.

State troopers moved into the city during the weekend at the request of municipal officials, who reported racial tensions were growing as a result of a series of anti-segregation demonstrations.

Boutwell read a formal statement saying the Birmingham problem is largely due to "professional outsiders who thrive on the fruits of tension and unrest."

Royall, former secretary of the Army, told Boutwell, "we are here to do what we can to help. We are here to learn the facts."

Fine Arts Degree Over Last Hurdle

Board Of Higher Education Approves New Program For UNC

The University's plan to begin awarding Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees this year cleared its last hurdle early this month when the N. C. Board of Higher Education added its aproval.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday said this new degree will give previously unavailable training to practicing artists in the state. The Bachelor of Arts degree, previously offered, stressed theory rather than the practical aspects of the arts.

The Board also decided to study the curriculum in Negro teachers' colleges toward establishing degrees in history, English and other subjects, rather than in education only.

Dr. Samuel Massie, new president of North Carolina College in Durham, wanted to know how he should handle the controversial gag law passed in the General Assembly under the leadership of Sen. Clarence Stone.

When Friday quickly replied that he would confer privately with Dr. Massie on the subject, the question was hurriedly passed over.

Oliver Carmichael of Asheville was elected new chairman of the Board to replace Major L. P. McLendon. Allen Gwynn Jr. of Reidsville, Joseph Grier of Charlotte, and William A. Dees of Goldsboro were sworn in as new board members. Dees is new vice-chairman; Mrs. Harry B. Stein of Fayetteville, secretary; and Dr. Howard R. Boozer, an assistant board director, recording secretary.

Playmaker Tickets Are Still Available

Only 500 season tickets remain for this year's five-production program by the Carolina Playmakers, officials reported this week.

Remaining tickets are on sale at 214 Abernethy Hall, Ledbetter-Pickards or by mail.

In their 46th season, the Playmakers will present three comedies and two dramas: "Little Mary Sunshine," a musical comedy; "The Busy Martyr," an entertaining comedy; and "Long Day's Journey Into Night" and "J. B.," both dramas, will be held at the Playmakers' Theatre. The fifth, "The Braggart Soldier," a farce, will be staged at the outdoor Forest Theatre.

"Little Mary Sunshine," the first production of this fall, runs October 23-27, including a Sunday matinee. It was written by Rick Besoyan, also author of the book, music and lyrics.

The Southeastern Theatre chose George Hitchcock's "The Busy Martyr" as their current play-of-the-year. "The Braggart Soldier' 'is considered one of Plautus' most exuberant farces. Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," reportedly an autobiographical work, deals with the emotions in the lives of those people who were involved in O'Neill's own life. "J. B." won a Pulitzer Prize for Archibald Macleish for telling in verse-dialogue the dramatic story of the immortal Job in modern setting.

Yack Photos

Yackety Yack editors John Howe and Charles Chinnis announced that pictures are now being taken for the 1964 Yackety Yack each weekday afternoon in the basement of Graham Memorial from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m. Seniors, 4th year medical students, and 3rd year law students are scheduled for this week.

Dress for the pictures will be dark tie, dark coat, and white shirt for all men; black sweaters and small pearls for senior girls; and black sweaters for all other girls. All students are urged to come early and avoid the rush, they said.

Senate OKs Test Ban By Overwhelming Vote

CONFIDENTIAL?—Students in Y Court yesterday afternoon noted with interest this small desk marked "Orientation Information Center," piled with forms titled "Orientation Counselor's Evaluation Report, Confidential — Do Not Show This Report To Student Or Unauthorized Personnel." These forms, apparently part of those filled out by each orientation counselor on the new students in their groups contained such information as the student's name and hometown, and remarks as to a description of the student's general behavior, his reaction to orientation, a guess at his probable future grade average, and his most likely attitude to the responsibilities of student government and the honor system. At the bottom read, "Seal these sheets in the envelope provided . . ." What these "confidential reports" were doing there no one could say, the desk was unattended.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Goldwater, 18 Others Cast Nays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday overwhelmingly ratified the nuclear test ban treaty with Russia, a heralded "first step" that could lead to other tension-easing agreements in the cold war.

The historic action, with every senator but one ailing member present, came on a 80-19 roll call vote. The treaty bans nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in space and underwater. It permits underground tests.

Even as the Senate approved the pact, which President Kennedy called a "small but significant" step toward peace, Secretary of State Dean Rusk was in New York discussing with Soviet and other world representatives what step might come next. There was no immediate prospect that it would come soon.

The President congratulated the Senate for its action and particularly commended "the painstaking work" of both Democratic and Republican leaders and Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Foreign Relations Committee " in bringing the treaty to this highly satisfactory vote."

The treaty was approved with 14 more votes than the two-thirds needed for ratification. Every vote was cast as had been predicted with the exception of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine) whose "no" vote ended a secret she kept to herself until the roll call.

Mrs. Smith's vote against the treay was a difficult one but she did not feel Russia could be trusted. She said the possible harmful effects of rejection of the treaty were, in her mind, outweighed by the "jeopardy that the treaty imposes on our national security."

Distrust of Russia was the chief reason given for opposition durinv 11 days of floor debate by the senators who opposed the pact—11 Democrats, mostly from the South and 8 Republicans.

Housebreaking Hits Highest Point Since '57

"The worst wave of housebreaking here since 1957."

Those were the words of detective Howard Pendergraph, refering to the robbery of five homes here during the past week.

Also during the same period, two cars were stolen. Victor Lee Jones, about 20, of Chapel Hill was charged with auto larceny and later released on $2500 bond. His trial date will be October 4 in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court.

Pendergraph said that three of the thefts took place during last Saturday's Carolina-Virginia football game. "We suspect that the same people are involved in all three of these thefts," he said, "since the thieves seem to be looking for essentially the same thing: guns, radios and cameras."

UP Starts Year's Membership Drive

An annual membership drive, which starts today, will kick off this year's activities for the University Party, according to chairman Mike Chanin. The drive will be carried out until Oct. 10 by UP representatives soliciting new members in the various campus districts. The only requirement for membership is payment of one dollar in dues.

Chanin urged all those who are interested in Student Government and campus politics to take advantage of this opportunity. Chanin said, "This is a chance for everyone to become a part of an active organization in Student Government. By becoming UP members, students can take an active role in campus activities and can see Student Government in action at the grass roots level.

"In addition, there will be numerous committees and groups in which all students can participate," he said.

Chanin also announced that the UP will hold its first meeting of the year on Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. The agenda for this meeting will include a keynote address by Student Government Vice-President Bob Spearman, a brief speech on legislative plans of the UP by floor leader John Ulfelder, and a report by Chanin on the state of the party.

Chanin urged all party members to attend and issued a special invitation to non-party members to sit in in order to gain a better understanding of how the party works and to get a chance to meet the party leaders.

Bob Spearman also issued an invitation to students to attend the meeting: "I feel that all interested students should come to this meeting because it will give them a good view of how a political party operates and a look at the activities and problems of Student Government."

This meeting will be the first of a series of meetings which will be held on alternate Tuesday nights in Gerrard Hall.

These meetings will include speakers and resolutions of current interest to students. Also on future agendas will be legislative plans, by-law reforms, and election planning, Chanin said.

YACK BEAUTY CONTEST

October 29 has been set as the date for the Yack beauty contest. Letters and application blanks are being sent to all campus organizations and dorms according to Sam Blumberg and Gayle Ragland, co-editors of the beauty section.

A limit is being placed on the number of girls who may take part as well as a deadline being placed on the entries.

All entries must be in by October 21. However, if 95 entries are received before the closing date, no others will be accepted.

Each organization may sponsor up to six girls and the fee is ten dollars for each girl.

All contestants are eligible to have their hair done free by Town and Country Beauty Salon for the contest, but they must make their own appointments.

Organizations who don't receive their letter and blank by the end of the week are urged to contact the Yack.

Students Urged To List Cars

All students who are eligible to operate an automobile must register their car at 206 South Building if they have not already done so at registration. Failure to do this will mean a revocation of the privilege TO OPERATE AN AUTOMOBILE ON THIS CAMPUS. Failure to register an automobile can also mean a cancellation of University registration.

Any student (other than the spouse of a staff member) of the University who owns or operates an automobile or other motor vehicle in Chapel Hill is required by University regulations to register it with the Dean of Men, 206 South Building, and to secure and display on the windshield a sticker indicating that he is a student of the University. Registration shall be made each school year as a part of the registration procedure. Automobiles acquired after the time of enrollment must be registered within forty-eight hours of time of acquisition.

ALL FRESHMAN STUDENTS and those Sophomores not having a "C" average are not eligible to keep a motor vehicle in or around Chapel Hill. Students in these categories who are residents of Chapel Hill may NOT operate a motor vehicle between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 7:30 a. m. and 3:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 7:30 a.m. to 1:00 p. m. on Saturday.

All people holding a Bell Tower sticker may park in the Bell Tower lot, the Ram Varsity lot located behind the field house at Kenan Stadium and the lots of Craige and Ehringhaus. These are the only lots where Bell Tower stickers are valid prior to 3:00 p.m.

Wants Meaty Backbone

Country Boy For Governor

By PETE WALES

"I'm just a country boy, raised on the farm. I'm not a king. I just want to do some good."

So said Raymond S. Stansbury as he introduced himself to guests at the Orange County Democrats dinner last Friday night.

The 51-year-old Hillsboro plumber is the first gubernatorial candidate for 1964 who has paid the $250 filing fee.

Stansbury, a big man with black hair and glasses, met guests on the front porch of the American Legion Hut dressed in a dark suit with a string bow tie.

"I'm a poor man. I understand all those fellas back in the woods. I understand them.

"We're overtaxed and we're over insured. A lot of money is going out of the state when it could stay right at home. It's about time someone started tackling something."

Stansbury has worked as a plumber, electrician, gas station attendant, grocer and bartender. He now owns a combination grocery store and gas station in Hillsboro.

Raised in east Halifax County, he has had no schooling.

"I went to school . . . once, in place of my brother."

Stansbury plans to conduct his campaign with his banjo through rural areas and small towns.

"I'll be a'picking and a'singing and a'dancing. That's what I'm used to.

"I've got a lot of planning to do. I figure I'll have my plans before roundup time fall after this coming."

Stansbury decided to run for "a whole heap of reasons."

"We got to keep some meat on the farmer's backbone. The farmer is the backbone of the world. They feed us. I don't want a backbone with no meat on it.

"My main point in my platform is to pay the ex-servicemen a bonus. Also I favor the 'stretchout' system in our textile mills.

"I'm against all this zoning business. We've got to open up the small towns so they can get some of the businesses.

"I'm against the sales tax too. It's not a fair tax."

Stansbury feels strongly about the amount of money paid by North Carolina car owners to car insurance companies in South Dakota. He feels the money should be kept in the state.

"Charity begins at home . . . that's what the Bible says. One way would be to start an insurance division under the State Department. Another way would be to get some corporation to put up a bond . . . someone born and raised in North Carolina. Either way you could pay your insurance and not hurt yourself very much."

On the integration issue Stansbury had "no comment."

"I'm a peace-loving man and I believe in the Constitution of the United States.

"Progress is what I'm looking for. It includes everybody."

Stansbury is strongly against the lack of sympathy shown by highway patrolmen to those they arrest. He is also against quotas on the number of people patrolmen must stop.

"I don't believe in patrolmen hiding in the bushes, stretching a hose pipe across the road, catching a lot of honest people for things that should be overlooked."

Stansbury's credentials for running for governor:

"I'm a poor man. I understand the poor man."

Country Boy Stansbury

. . . Plucking for Governship

CUSC Meet Draws Praise From Heads

By HUGH STEVENS

Student leaders from the three branches of the Consolidated University expressed satisfaction Sunday at the progress made by the CUSC in its weekend meeting here.

"We were very satisfied with the meeting," said Butch Fields, chairman of the N. C. State delegation. "We are impressed with the recent progress of the CUSC, and especially with its reaction to the speaker ban problem."

Similar reaction was forthcoming from Betsy Rogers, head of the Greensboro campus delegation. "We feel that the CUSC has become a far more important organization than it has been in past years," she said. "We are planning action on our campus not only in response to the speaker ban problem, but also to other common problems."

Johnsye Massenburg, chairman of the UNC group, expressed regret that the council has been forced to turn so much of its attention to the speaker ban problem. "I think it has helped the CUSC a great deal, however, and given it a new sense of importance. I only hope we shall be able to devote some of this new energy to other problems in the future," she concluded.

Mike Lawler, president of the UNC student body, said, "I should like to congratulate the UNC delegation and its chairman, Johnsye, for arranging last night's meeting. I think this meeting with Dr. Friday provided us with a basic orientation on the bill and challenged us to define the role of the student in correcting this unfortunate situation."

* * *

"GAG" MEETING SET

Student body presidents from six North Carolina colleges and universities will meet here Friday to confer about the controversial "gag law" enacted this summer by the General Assembly.

Mike Lawler, UNC student body president, arranged the meeting at the National Student Congress in August.

"We discussed this matter at the NSA meeting," Lawler said, "and we felt it demanded additional conferences this fall."

Lawler said the presidents will come from Wake Forest College, North Carolina State University, Greensboro College, Woman's College, and the Duke University men's and women's campuses.

The meeting will be held in Lawler's office at 4 p.m., and the presidents will stay to attend the Hootenanny program Friday evening. Lawler indicated that the meeting will be extended to Saturday morning if necessary.

Vol. 70, No. 4 Wednesday, Sept. 25, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Out Of The Race And Into The Fray

The people of North Carolina seem to have fallen into a bit of luck recently in what would seem to us to be an unprecedented event in North Carolina politics. Bert Bennett, ex-State Democratic Party Chairman and the only bona fide non-candidate in the coming primary, is sounding off like a real old war horse.

Now that he has stepped down from the required neutrality of party chairman, Bennett has been far from timid in voicing his considered opinions on all of the leading personalities in North Carolina politics.

On Dr. I. Beverly Lake: "If he were the Democratic nominee he would be our least chance of electing a Governor."

On Senator Sam Ervin's endorsement of Dan K. Moore: "Sam Ervin was elected to serve as Senator, not to set up a steering committee for electing our Governor."

These are strong words from the man who, a few short weeks ago, could, by virtue of his position, take no sides. Bennett is of course supporting Judge Richardson Preyer in the primary, but such candid comments from a leading politician are more than welcome in these confused and confusing days.

Lest Bennett's opinions be written off as those of just another ardent Preyer supporter, it would be well to remember that the Democratic organization in this state is a product of his energy and initiative. Many of the key contacts in the party are personal friends and many owe him favors, but the true extent of his influence won't be known until after the Spring primary.

Why Bennett resigned as Party Chairman is still a matter of much debate, but we find ourselves unable to be as cynical as the more experienced and time-hardened political analysts. We are more than willing to accept the fact that he resigned to give himself the freedom he wants in backing Judge Preyer and fighting Dr. Lake, to whom he is unalterably opposed. We feel that in so doing he has rendered a very valuable and unselfish service to his state and his party.

There are factors which militate against the candidacy of Preyer, but it would be naive indeed to think that a man with Bennett's political savvy would jump rashly in on the side of a man not well qualified for the Governor's position, or on the side of a man who had little chance of attaining that position.

Wherein Our Ambassador To The Central Government Vs. The Attorney General

One of the longest-running shows in Washington this summer starred Attorney General Robert Kennedy and our own, Inimitable Ambassador to the Central Government, Sen. Sam Ervin.

The setting was the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing room, and the plot under discussion was the administration's Civil Rights proposals.

Old Sen. Sam, aware of the fact that the proposals hadn't a snowball's chance in Hell of being approved by the committee, which is chaired by Sen. Eastland of Mississippi, nevertheless did his best to demnstrate the evils f the measures.

In what soon came to be recognized as a committee filibuster, wherein a Senator exercises his prerogative of uninterrupted questioning of a witness, Sen. Sam cited legal point after legal point to not only prove his case, but to demonstrate—oh, excuse us, to illustrate—that he had lost none of the fabled legal touches which once qualified him to be on the bench of North Carolina's Supreme Court.

The Attorney General, a troublesome sort of a fellow as everyone knows, consistently refused to admit defeat however, and with hideous Northern gall, he kept rebutting Sen. Sam, somehow unaware that Sen. Sam is never wrong, especially where property rights and human rights seemingly conflict.

The only bad part of the show was the commenting and laughter that came from people in the galleries. Sometimes, the commotion was positively disrespectful—like the comments that old Sen. Sam was a victim of the educated man's ultimate tragedy, that of neglecting the spirit of the law in favor of its letter.

Fortunately, however, there weren't too many of these people around, so the show was right engaging.

And by the time it was over, Sen. Sam had done such a good job of showing that the whole Civil Rights package was just a power-grab that even Gov. Barnett of Mississippi and Gov. Wallace of Alabama agreed with him.

Tom Davis Departs

In the rash of resignations lately, the regisnation of Tom Davis as Chaplain of the YMCA here has perhaps gone unnoticed by many of the students.

In his brief stay here he has made himself a vital part of the University and the Chapel Hill community, and has won the respect and admiration of all those who have dealt with him.

We would just like to assure Tom that his presence will be missed on the campus and in the town, and to ask him to come back to Carolina when he finishes his year at Duke Divinity School.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"Of Course, I Abhor Violence—Have A Book Of Campaign Matches, Bud"

Birmingham, A Dead City

An address delivered to the Birmingham Young Men's Business Club on the day following the bombing at the Birmingham church in which four children were killed. Mr. Morgan is a young Birmingham attorney.

By CHARLES MORGAN JR.

Four little girls were killed in Birmingham yesterday. A mad, remorseful, worried community asked, "Who did it? Who threw that bomb? Was it a Negro or a white?" And the answer should be, "We all did it."

Every last one of us is condemned for that crime and the bombing before it and the one last month, last year, a decade ago.

We all did it. A short time later, white policemen kill a Negro and wound another. A few hours later, two young men on a motorbike shoot and kill a Negro child. Fires break out and, in Montgomery, white youths assault Negroes.

And all across Alabama an angry, guilty people cry out their mocking shouts of indignity and say they wonder "Why?" "Who?" Everyone "deplores" the "dastardly" act.

But you know the "who" of "Who did it?" is really rather simple. The "who" is every little individual who talks about the "niggers" and spreads the seeds of his hate to his neighbor and his son. The jokester, the crude oaf whose racial jokes rock the party with laughter. The "who" is every Governor who ever shouted for lawlessness and became a law violator.

"It" is every Senator and every Representative who, in the halls of Congress, stands and with mock humility tells the world that things back home aren't really like they are. It is courts that move ever so slowly and newspapers that timorously defend the law. It is all of the Christians and all their ministers who spoke too late in anguished cries against the violence. It is the coward in each of us who clucks admonitions.

We are ten years of lawless preachments, ten years of criticism of law, of the courts, of our fellow men, a decade of telling school children the opposite of what the civic books say. We are a mass of intolerance and bigotry and shouted indictments before our young. We are cursed by the failure of each of us to accept responsibility, by our defense of an already dead institution.

Yesterday, while Birmingham, which prides itself on the number of its churches, was attending worship services, a bomb went off and an all-white police force moved into action, a police force which has been praised by city officials and others at least once a day for a month or so, a police force which has solved no bombings, a police force which many Negroes feel is perpetrating the very evils we decry. And why should Negroes think this?

Well, after all, there are no Negro policemen; there are no Negro sheriffs or deputies. Few Negroes have served on juries; few of them have been allowed to vote; few have been allowed to accept responsibility, or granted even a simple part to play in the administration of justice.

Do not misunderstand me. It is not that I think that white policemen had anything whatsoever to do with the killing of these children or previous bombings. It's just that Negroes, who, seeing an all-white police force, must think in terms of its failure to prevent or solve the bombings, and think perhaps Negroes would have worked a little bit harder.

They throw rocks and bottles and bullets and we whites don't seem to know why the Negroes are lawless. So we lecture them.

Birmingham is the only city in America where the police chief and the sheriff in the school crisis had to call our local ministers together to tell them to do their duty. The ministers of Birmingham, who have done so little for Christianity, call for prayer at high noon in a city of lawlessness and, in the same breath, speak of our city's "image."

Did these ministers visit the families of the Negroes in their hour of travail? Did any of them go to the homes of their brothers and express their regrets in person or pray with the crying relatives? Do they admit Negroes into their ranks at the chapel?

And who is guilty The moderate Mayor elected to change things in Birmingham and who moves so slowly and looks elsewhere for the leadership.

The business community which shrugs its shoulders and looks to the police or perhaps somewhere else for leadership.

A newspaper which has tried so hard of late, yet still finds it necessary to lecture Negroes every time a Negro home is bombed.

A Governor who offers a reward, but mentions not his own failure to preserve either segregation or law and order.

And what of those lawyers and politicians that counsel people as to what the law is not, when they know full well what the law is.

Those four little Negro girls were human beings. They have lived their years in a leaderless city, a city where no one accepts responsibility, where everybody wants to blame somebody else, a city with a reward fund which "grew like Topsy" as a sort of sacrificial offering, a balm for the conscience of the "good people."

The people whose ready answer is for those "right-wing extremists" to shut up, and the people who absolve themselves of guilt. The liberal lawyer who told me this morning, "Me? I'm not guilty," he then proceeding to discuss the guilt of the other lawyers, the ones who told the people that the Supreme Court did not properly interpret the law. And that's the way it is with the Southern liberals. They condemn those with whom they disagree for speaking, while they sit in silence.

Birmingham is a city in which the major industry, operated from Pittsburgh, never tried to solve the problem. It is a city where four little Negro girls can be born into a second-class school system, live a segregated life, ghettoed into their own little neighborhoods, restricted to Negro churches, destined to ride in Negro ambulances to Negro wards of hospitals, and from there to a Negro cemetery. Local papers, on their front and editorial pages, call for order and then exclude their names from obituary columns.

And who is really guilty? Each citizen who has not consciously attempted to bring about peaceful compliance with the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States; each citizen who has ever said, "They ought to kill that nigger"; every citizen who votes for the candidate with the bloody flag; every citizen and every school board member and school teacher and principal and businessman and judge and lawyer who has corrupted the minds of our youth; every person in this community who has, in any way, contributed during the past several years to the popularity of hatred is at least as guilty, or more so, than the demented fool who threw that bomb.

Birmingham is not a dying city. It is dead.

Dropouts

New Delinquents

School dropouts are delinquents in embryo. Lacking motivation in school, they were unable to learn; lacking education, they are unable to compete for jobs; lacking jobs, they are all too likely to live lawlessly.

This is why it is of the utmost importance to the community, as well as to the individuals concerned, to bring the dropouts back to schol and give them the means and the will to live useful and law-abiding lives. The campaign to do this, sparked by President Kennedy, has had a considerable measure of success. According to school officials, some 550 of last year's dropouts in the District of Columbia have returned to classes this fall or are expected to do so.

But of course very little will be accomplished if these boys and girls encounter again the same sense of inadequacy and frustration that led to their leaving school before. The most common cause given for dropping out of school was lack of interest. That cause will not be cured if the youngsters return to overcrowded classroms, teaching and textbooks unrelated to their own experience and background and a continuing feeling of failure and frustration growing out of their handicaps and disadvantagement.

The handicapped need special help. The listless and indifferent need motivation and incentive. The unruly and difficult need concern and a sense of inclusion in the community. Without these, the dreary round of dropping out and turning to delinquency will almost surely be repeated.

—The Washington Post

The Deep South, A Different Side

By CLYDE WILSON

Many Americans find it hard to understand how millions of their Southern fellow citizens, who share their democratic spirit and sense of fair play, can support the institution of segregation which seems to be a denial of that spirit.

They cannot fathom the motives which prompt men like Governors Wallace and Barnett or a public opinion which supports them. (Let no man chalk it up too swiftly to mere expediency, because they are both honorable men, by their own lights and those of millions of others.)

What does the world look like through the eyes of a Deep Southerner, say a resident of that volatile, hospitable, charming, proud and enigmatic State of Mississippi? A man who is not a dynamiter of churches but a decent, educated, middle - class citizen, a taxpayer, war veteran and churchgoer.

He knows that white Mississippians have been berated, condemned, scorned, ridiculed and screamed at in the vilest terms in the highest places. That they have been the object of the unreasoning fury of battalions of shrilly fulminating men who have preached hatred in the name of brotherhood and have often never even been within the borders of the state they hate.

This hypothetical Mississippian reflects that segregation has been abolished in many Northern and Western states only since World War II, if at all. He reflects that segregation has been an accetped American, not Southern, custom since the Civil War if not since 1619.

If Kansas could only abolish segregation for its miniscule Negro population under court order in 1954, if Illinois could only start to abolish it for its 10 per cent since 1945, then why should men in the North so adamantly insist that Mississippi abolish it for its 45 per cent of Negroes in 1963?

And can any man accept their scornfully presented credentials of moral superiority to Mississippians?

This Mississippi citizen knows that the Northerners of his acquaintance look upon integration with almost as much distaste as he does and avoid it in their private lives wherever they can.

It seems to him that the federal government wants to punish the upright, patriotic and industrious part of the population for the benefit of the immoral and shiftless part.

He reflects that a neurotic beatnik in New York seems to have more sayso than a taxpaying citizen in Biloxi or Meridian.

In other words, he cannot help but regard the entire integration controversy as one vast, hypocritical plot on the part of Northern politicians and press, a plot of which he is the victim.

So Mississippians react unreasonably and even recklessly to an alien and relentless force which seems hellbent on meddling with the two things they regard most highly—their children and their traditions — a force which scorns their pleas for understanding and holds in contempt their values, values which a short time ago were the common property of the nation.

Our Deep Southerner sees that the intellectuals of the nation exhibit more interest in the opinions of Malcolm X than those of the elected leaders of a state.

He believes that saying Gov. Wallace is responsible for the dynamiting of a church by standing up for segregation is analagous to saying that President Kennedy is responsible for labor violence by taking sides in an industrial dispute.

Worst of all perhaps, he knows that the men who are so fanatically bent on changing the relationship between white man and black in the South don't even understand what it is.

They have never discovered the simple truth, for instance, that the relationship is one thing in the city and another thing in the country. Or that there are strong ties which bind the Southern white man and the Southern black man together as well as bonds which separate them.

If our Mississippian is a man who can't say "Robert Kennedy" except between two curses, he may also be a man who drove five miles out of his way this morning to take his black-skinned neighbor to the store or sacrificed a little last Christmas to buy presents for his black-skinned neighbor's children.

It seems to him that he is the one who lives the thing. He is the one who knows. And yet the self-appointed experts in other states do not relent their intent to alter his life.

Now perhaps we can understand something of the mood of frustration and despair, the feeling of being unjustly cast out of the tribe, that causes thousands to cheer for "defiance of the federal government," that could cause William Faulkner, one of the geniuses of the age, to say, "If it comes to war between the United States and Mississippi, I will fight for Mississippi," knowing that his home folks were wrong but perhaps not as wrong as some others.

The truth is that the nation has left Mississippi behind. While men in New York dream of a world state, men in Mississippi pledge the ancient allegiance to a Lost Cause.

They are proudly localistic in an international age. They are dedicated to valor in a time which praises non-violence. (It is interesting that the state has a large number of war heroes.)

They are "culturally backward" because they had rather hunt and fish than attend art galleries and opera halls. They are proud in an age when white men are supposed to be bowed down with guilt toward black and yellow men. They cling to Jeffersonian legalism in a sociological age. They are inclined to judge a group by its performance rather than its potential and to believe that inequality among men is the exhibition of their merit or lack of it.

In short they have all the virtues and vices of the nineteenth century, all the strengths and weaknesses of the frontier American.

But can any man say with certainty that the world in which Robert Kennedy sits down with James Baldwin is a better world than that in which Grant sat down with Lee?

Robinson's Ramblings

(An occasional column by UNC Economics graduate, Mike Robinson, now employed by a leading national business magazine.)

By MIKE ROBINSON

Many business forecasters, both amateur and professional, are having diffculty standing by their predictions of an only moderate improvement in business during the remainder of the year. There may be some who believe we'll see some economic slippage in 1964; but to others the upward movement in business indicators presages activity of at least boomlet proportions.

Examples: If gross national product continues to increase at its present rate, it'll reach the $600-billion mark by yearend. (At midyear it stood at $579.6-billion.) The industrial production index would hit 132 in December, up more than 12 points since January. Private housing starts would be running at a 1.7-million rate, several hundred thousand over a year ago.

Many economists, who contend there are still five substantial barriers to inflation (see below) standing in the way of a runaway price splurge, believe some of these economic projections overshoot their mark. But they assert that while more moderate increase should be expected in the indicators mentioned above, the "margin of shortfall may merely differentiate between a boomlet and very good business."

Thus, the overall outlook: improving business—through 1964, with gently rising prices.

Evaluating present indicators shows at least five barriers to inflation:

• Labor contracts — To date in 1963, wage agreements are trending toward an increase of about 6c/hr., or less than 3%, plus increases in fringe benefits. But productivity in most cases is rising even more rapidly, thus actually reducing unit labor costs.

• Labor surplus — The unemployment rate is still hovering around 5.5%. With so many unemployed, there appears to be little chance of unionized labor pushing for wage increases larger than 3% in the next few months.

• Money and credit — The Federal Reserve Board has already tightened the supply of short term credit. Conclusion: There's not going to be easy money around to bid up prices.

• Imports — Foreign competition is likely to get tougher in the months ahead. Reason: Lower-cost overseas producers have been adding capacity faster than home demand has increased—and are looking hard for new markets to absorb excess production.

• Excess capacity—U. S. manufacturers, on the average, are using about 87% of their facilities —slightly above the 82% of late 1962, but still far below preferred operating rates. So the temptation to push volume, even at lower prices, is still great.

CLASSIFIED ADS

THE PRIDE OF THE NORTHwestern Mutual is the loyalty of its policy holders. Year after year, approximately half of all new insurance has been purchased by previous policy holders—an unequalled record and the finest testimonial possible. Authur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

SERVICES AVAILABLE: WILL keep children in home. Large yard and playroom. Call 968-1574.

PART-TIME ASSISTANT FOR PROfessional writer. Typing and varied office work. Graduate woman or senior. Phone Mr. Coffman 968-1532.

Sale — Miscellaneous

FOR SALE: 1957 WHT. DODGE Convert. RtH PS PB V-8. New top. Good cond. Best offer. 968-9111 or 968-9093, RM 223.

REWARD: SUBSTANTIAL REward for the return of a brown leather wallet lost near Graham Memorial Saturday night belonging to Maj. Eming Ysona. Return to 501 Ehringhaus.

Discount Prices for Alterations on all
R.O.T.C. KHAKIS
Over the N. C. Cafeteria
RILEY'S ALTERATION SHOP
Phone 942-3292

Chilean Student Laments Low Pay

By DIANE HILE

"After my sixth year of college next year—it is required we attend for six years—I will begin teaching school at a salary of 150,000 pesos, or $50 a month," said Chilean coed Cecilia Gajardo Leopold.

Cecelia, who is spending this year at UNC, is one of the six Foreign Student Leadreship Project (FSLP) awardees in the United States. Sponsored by the United States National Student Association, the scholarship is worth about $3,000 from USNSA and $1,000 from the student government of the host school.

Not only will the FSLB scholar return to Chile to work for a mere $50 a month, but it is hard for teachers to find fulltime employment.

"If I manage to get a full 'schedule' as a teacher, I will work through Saturday, six hours each day with 50 students per class," said Cecilia. "We have a severe shortage of schools and I don't expect it to improve much in the next few years. In Chile we have no lack of education projects—just of money."

Cecilia is the first girl to participate in the FSLB program at UNC. Last year Sang Woo Lee was on the campus from Korea. One major difficulty in orienting Lee was that he had only a slight knowledge of English. English

"I became interested in FSLP through a newspaper," she said, "and when my student government received a letter from NSA regarding the program, I began compiling the necessary material requested by the NSA office."

After many events, including her first plane trip and taking an English exam at New York University, Cecilia came to Chapel Hill by way of the annual NSA Congress at Indiana University.

"At Bloomington I met a cross section of college students in the United States. There were student leaders, both male and female, who were interested in more than the next pub date, or ball game, or sports car—although they might have been interested in these things too.

"I saw bitter floor fights and angry clashes between the conservatives and the liberals," she continued, "but the NSA itself is what I found most interesting of all."

Cecilia is coming from a university about half the size of UNC, where the only women in attendance are serious students. She will come from a curriculum where most of her classmates were girls "Because a Chilean man cannot support his family on a teachers salary") to a school where many education majors are men, pointing to a career as dean or administrator. She comes from a country of great student solidarity, where every one of the 40,000 college students is a member of his student government and where every one attending Chile's nine universities is affiliated with the United Federation of the Universities of Chile.

"But I'm sure that I can become a real Southerner in no time," she added with a smile.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

THE DEAN YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Colleges are complicated and bewildering places, filled with complicated and bewildering people. Today let us examine one of the most complicated and bewildering—yet fetching and lovable—of all campus figures. I refer, of course, to the dean of students.

Policeman and confessor, shepherd and seer, warden and oracle, proconsul and pal—the dean of students is all of these. How, then, can we understand him? Well sir, perhaps the best way is to take an average day in the life of an average dean. Here, for example, is what happened last Thursday to Dean Killjoy N. Damper of the Duluth College of Belles Lettres and Pemmican.

At 6 a.m. he woke, dressed, lit a Marlboro, and went up on the roof of his house to remove the statue of the Founder which had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

Dean, Policeman, Confessor, Shepherd, Seer...etc.

At 7 a.m. he lit a Marlboro and walked briskly to the campus. (The Dean had not been driving his car since it had been placed on the roof of the girls dormitory by high-spirited undergraduates.)

At 7:45 a.m. he arrived on campus, lit a Marlboro and climbed the bell tower to remove his secretary who had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 8 a.m. he reached his office, lit a Marlboro, and met with E. Pluribus Ewbank, editor of the student newspaper. Young Ewbank had been writing a series of editorials urging the United States to annex Canada. When the editorials had evoked no response, he had taken matters into his own hands. Accompanied by his society editor and two proofreaders, he had gone over the border and conquered Manitoba. With great patience and several Marlboro Cigarettes, the Dean persuaded young Ewbank to give Manitoba back. Young Ewbank, however, insisted on keeping Winnipeg.

At 9 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with Robert Penn Sigafoos, president of the local Sigma Chi chapter, who came to report that the Deke house had been put on top of the Sigma Chi house during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 10 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and went to umpire an intramural softball game on the roof of the law school where the campus baseball diamond had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 12 noon the Dean had a luncheon meeting with the prexy, the bursar, and the registrar, at the bottom of the campus swimming pool where the faculty dining room had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates. Marlboros were passed after luncheon, but not lighted, owing to dampness.

At 2 p.m., back in his office, the Dean lit a Marlboro and received the Canadian Minister of War who said unless young Ewbank gave back Winnipeg, the Canadian army would march against the U.S. immediately. Young Ewbank was summoned and agreed to give back Winnipeg if he could have Moose Jaw. The Canadian Minister of War at first refused, but finally consented after young Ewbank placed him on the roof of the metallurgy building.

At 3 p.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with a delegation from the student council who came to present him with a set of matched luggage in honor of his fifty years' service as dean of students. The Dean promptly packed the luggage with all his clothing and fled to Utica, New York, where he is now in the aluminum siding game.

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

The makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, don't claim that Marlboro is the dean of filter cigarettes—but it's sure at the head of the class. Settle back with a Marlboro and see what a lot you get to like!

Campus Calendar

TODAY

Students interested in UNC Band meet the director of bands, Room 110 in Hill Hall. 1 credit hour per semester.

Fraternity handbooks are in Y Court.

Chairmen of all international groups meet 7 p.m. at the Y.

Carolina Aquaholics, scuba diving club, meets 730 p.m. on balcony to pool.

WUNC Radio to meet at 4:00 p.m. in room 1 of Swain Hall.

Lost: BA 72 book. Return to 26 Craige or 272 Phillips. Call 942-5591.

Found: wedding band in Lenoir Hall. Contact Mgr. Bill Talbert in Lenoir Hall.

All Juniors and Seniors considering Ministry meet in A&S with Dean Duffy.

Soph Q'Back To Start For Mich. State

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) —Michigan State, for the first time in Duffy Daugherty's 10 years as head coach, will open its football season with a sophomore listed as the No. 1 quarterback.

Steve Juday, a lightweight 19-year-old from Northville, Mich., was given the job Monday, edging out junior letterman Dick Proebstle of Canton, Ohio. The decision, Daugherty said, wasn't an easy one to make.

"Juday will start, and two weeks ago that would not have been so tough a choice to make. But Proebstle has made more progress in the last two weeks than in any other time in his career."

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Jack Lemmon and Lee Remick
"DAYS OF WINE AND ROSES"
Presented by WARNER BROS.
Shows at: 1:00 - 2:56 - 5:04 - 7:12 - 9:20
OPENS FRIDAY
Joseph E. Levine presents
FEDERICO FELLINI'S 8½

Holmes Featured In Talk

A Great Dissenter Views Law

By MICHEL GOODMAN

Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes has often been called "the greatest judge of the English speaking world," and "the great dissenter." He is remembered, not only for his monumental contributions to the interpretation of the law, but for his courage, his understanding, his wit, and his personality.

When Justice Holmes died at the age of 94 he left his entire estate to "the United States of America." From this unique gift has come the Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures, which wil be held this year at the University, in Carroll Hall at 8 p.m. on Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

The lectures will be delivered by Arthur E. Sutherland, Bussey professor of law at Harvard University and one-time law secretary to Justice Holmes. His subject, "Apology for Uncomfortable Change, 1863-1963," is broadly related to the thought and career of Justice Holmes.

Justice Holmes' dissenting opinions have shaped much of our present interpretation of the law, and his wisdom has had a profound effect upon many phases of American life and society. He is, perhaps, best known for some of the following quotations:

On Freedom of Speech —

"The most stringent protection of free speech would not protect a man in falsely shouting fire in a theater and causing panic. It does not even protect a man from an injunction against uttering words that may have all the effect of force. The question in every case is whether the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has a right to prevent. It is a question of proximity and degree.

". . . that the best test of truth is the power of the thought to get itself accepted in the competition of the market, and that truth is the only ground upon which their wishes safely can be carried out. That, at any rate, is the theory of our Constitution. It is an experiment, as all life is an experiment. . . ."

On the Judge —

"I know few qualities which seem to me more desirable in a judge of a court of last resort than this accuracy of thought and the habit of keeping one's eye on the things for which words stand.

"It is the merit of the common law that it decides the case first and determines the principle afterwards."

On Jurisprudence—

"When properly taught, jurisprudence means simply the broadest generalization of the principles and the deepest analysis of the ideas at the bottom of an actual system. It is the same process, carried further, by which the law is carried out from particular cases into general rules. . . ."

On the Jury —

". . . I have not found juries specially inspired for the discovery of truth . . . I have not found them freer from prejudice than an ordinary judge would be . . . (I have found) that they will introduce into their verdict a . . . very large amount . . . of popular prejudice, and thus keep the administration of the law in accord with the wishes and feelings of the community."

"Words express whatever meaning convention has attached to them.

"A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanged; it is the skin of a living thought and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and the time in which it is used."

On the Law —

"The law did not begin with a theory. It has never worked one out. The point from which it started and that at which I shall try to show that it has arrived, are on different planes. In the progress from one to the other, it is to be expected that its course should not be straight and its direction not always visi-

"If we are to speak of the law as our mistress, we who are here know that she is a mistress only to be wooed with sustained and lonely passion — only to be won by straining all the faculties by which man is likest to a god. Those who, having begun the pursuit, turn away uncharmed, do so either because they have not the heart for so great a struggle. To the lover of the law, how small a thing seem the novelist's tales of the loves and fates of Daphnis and Chole.

"Law is human — it is a part of man, and of one world with all the rest.

"But pretty much all law consists in forbidding men to do some things they want to do, and contract is not more exempt from law than other acts.

"We must remember that the machinery of government would not work if it were not allowed a little play in its joints."

On the Lawyer —

"And what a profession it is! . . . But what other (calling) gives such scope to realize the spontaneous energy of one's soul? In what other does one plunge so deep in the stream of life — so share its passions, its battles, its despair, its triumphs, both a witness and actor?"

On the Method —

"If truth were not often suggested by error, if old implements could not be adjusted to new uses, human progress would be slow. But scrutiny and revision are justified."

On the Personal Equation —

"Every calling is great when greatly pursued."

On the Rewards of Life —

"We cannot live our dreams. We are lucky enough if we can give a sample of our best, and if in our hearts we can feel that it has been nobly done.

UNC Prof Aiding San Juan Project

By MAT FRIEDMAN

A top UNC official is helping the government of Puerto Rico plan what will be one of the largest medical centers of its kind in the world.

Dr. Henry T. Clark, administrator of the Division of Health Affairs, is acting as a consultant for a $52 million medical complex in San Juan.

The center, now about two-thirds complete, will be similar in many respects to Carolina's. "There are very few with the range and complexity of our medical center," says Dr. Clark, "but theirs will be even larger. It will be one of the largest and most complex in the world."

Dr. Clark has made twelve trips to Puerto Rico since 1956 in helping with the planning. He first became connected with the project through the Rockefeller Foundation.

"In Puerto Rico, an area of essentially poor economic conditions," he says, "the center serves as an example of what free enterprise can do. Since Puerto Rico is a Spanish-speaking country, it may serve as a bridge between Latin America and the United States.

Dr. Clark has been working with Julio Perez who holds a similar administration post at the San Juan center. "We hope Dr. Clark will continue to help us even atfer the center is open," says Mr. Perez, who visited Chapel Hill on Friday.

Although he has not made any trips here for technical observation, Perez is very grateful for the help he has received. Dr. Clark, though reluctant to accept credit for the planning of the project says, "I think he has gained insights into our center through my description."

POGO

Release Wed., Sept. 25, 1963

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Source of light
5. Vipers
9. Cavalry sword
10. Tell
12. Each
13. Drags
14. Fount
15. Thick cord
16. Ant
20. Agent: abbr.
23. Of England
27. Slightest
29. Right-hand page
30. To appease
32. Affirmative vote
33. Choice group
35. Ceramics worker's equipment
38. Back of the neck
42. Bay window
44. Landed estate
45. Expression of regret
46. Sacred pictures
47. Negative votes
48. Remain

DOWN
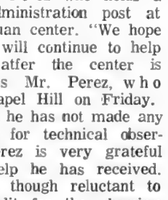
1. Wash
2. Cain's brother
3. Man's name
4. Lever
5. Residue of burned material
6. Frighten
7. —— Alto
8. Pace
9. Fasten with stitches
11. Common suffix
17. Conductor of heat
18. Manganese: sym.
19. Wading bird
20. Lofty mountain
21. Jellylike substance
22. Chinese pagoda
24. South American river
25. Pigpen
26. Garden tool
28. Landscape
31. Brazilian palm
34. Perform
35. Measure of distance: India
36. —— Curtain
37. Italian coin
39. Forest ox
40. Small horse
41. Bitter vetch
43. Lily
44. Prefix meaning "wrong"



Yesterday's Answer

Varsity
NOW SHOWING

THE MIRISCH COMPANY AND EDWARD L. ALPERSON PRESENT
JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BILLY WILDER'S
IRMA LA DOUCE
THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS
Shows at 1:20 - 3:52 6:24 - 8:26

HELD OVER!
Breaking All Previous Box Office Records!
FELLINI'S "8½"
Starring Marcello Mastroianni
Anouk Aimee and Claudia Cardinale
Showings at 2:24, 4:42, 7 and 9:18 p.m.
Art Exhibit: Frank Creech (Duke Varsity Center)
Professional Union (I.A.T.S.E.) Projectionists
RIALTO THEATRE, Durham

THOSE CLEAN WHITE ADLERS

Now you're catching on. Just be "clean white sock" in Adlers. Suddenly everyone sees you as the man who always knows the right thing to do, even if he decides not to do it. So now's the time to grab a motor scooter and a girl, not necessarily in that order. But first, grab the AdlerSCshrink controlled wool sock. In white and a covey of colors. $1.00

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 32, OHIO • IN CANADA: WINDSOR, ROCKEY HILLS, HONDURAS

The Hub Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Town & Campus Varsity Men's Wear

"Better Than Last Year," Says Allen Of Soccermen

By FRED HOBSON

Seven returning starters and a host of outstanding sophomores should make UNC's soccer team a strong one this fall.

Coach Marvin Allen says, "This team should be even better than last year's. We lost only two games last year and most of the same boys are back."

Last year's squad won seven and lost only to Navy and Maryland. (Maryland later lost in the NCAA finals). The only starters missing from that squad are Jim Reston, Herman Prakke, Bill Snyder and Bob Kepner.

Halfback Charlie Battle and wingback Pete Blake will captain this year's 35-man team. Other senior starters will be backs Steve Painter and George Beim and forward Bill Haywood.

Buddy Siegal, who stood out as a sophomore goalie last year, is back. Other returnees are halfback Park McGinty and wingmen Jim Talbot and Marty Kruming.

As good as these lettermen are, the chief reason for Coach Allen's optimism seems to be his fine group of sophomores. Six men up from last year's freshman team are pushing for positions. They are: backs Dick Sayre, Wyatt McCallie and George Butler; forwards Dean Murphy and Billy Reeves; and Max Kelly, who plays an inside left position.

Tom Wright, who starred on the 1961 freshman team, is back in school and will help in the backfield. Edwin Okoroma, a Nigerian transfer student, has looked good at a forward position.

The soccermen open their 10-game schedule against a talented Navy team Oct. 5 at Annapolis. Their first home game is Oct. 14 against Washington University (St. Louis).

THE SCHEDULE

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Oct 5 | Navy ..... | Annapolis, Md. |
| 9 | Davidson ..... | Davidson |
| 14 | Wash. U. .. | Chapel Hill |
| 17 | N. C. State .... | Raleigh |
| 24 | Pfeiffer .... | Chapel Hill |
| 29 | Virginia . | Charlottesville |
| 31 | Belmont Abbey | Chap. H. |
| Nov. 4 | Maryland .. | Chapel Hill |
| 8 | Emory U. .. | Chapel Hill |
| 15 | Duke ..... | Chapel Hill |

(Home games start at 3 p.m.)

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

WITH THE EXCEPTION of scoring touchdowns, there wasn't much North Carolina didn't do a lot of Saturday. From here, the game seemed mostly a dull, dreary affair — largely because of the 86 degree heat but partly, too, because Junior Edge didn't remember where he was.

If nothing else, the Tar Heels this week lead the country in pass defense.

I don't think this is (as some people have been saying) indicative of any improvement in UNC's defensive backfield, though. That still remains to be seen.

Virginia's offensive attack is a pretty good imitation of TV's late Colgate Comedy Hour. The soph quarterback, Bob Dunphey, ran the ball pretty well. But this was probably because he didn't know how to throw it. And if Bill Elias has any ends who can catch the ball, I'll be surprised. Maybe he was looking ahead to Duke.

Carolina, at times, appeared it was looking ahead, too. Though the statistics don't show it (193 yards rushing, 137 passing for 330 total with 23 first downs), the Tar Heels looked very sluggish for a large portion of the game.

Only on the first drive (an eight-play, 65-yard march) and the last (with Garry Black mixing plays nicely) did UNC look really sharp. Both of these resulted in the 11 points needed to win.

The rest of the time was frustrating for those who had come to sit in the sun and watch UNC smash the Cavaliers. It just didn't happen.

By his own admission, Bob Lacey — one of the great ends you will see this year — did not feel up to par. He caught five for 55 yards. But then he didn't feel up to par.

Coach Hickey unveiled two sophomores who looked pretty much up to par. And Max Chapman and Bill Edwards must have read their press clippings, for Edwards punted five for a 45.5 average, and Chapman kicked the 27-yard field goal.

UNC, though, will need more than 11 points this week.

CONTRARY TO WHAT the Cardboard Club has publicized, Carolina plays Michigan State University Saturday (1:30 p.m. EST) at East Lansing.

Whether it shows against UNC, the Michigan State situation is in trouble. This will be the Spartans' opener, and already there are rumblings that Duffy Daugherty is in his last year at MSU.

Daugherty's gift for coaching football has to be questioned. He has developed countless all-stars, All-Americans and professional ballplayers. He has won 53, lost 27 and tied three in nine years at MSU. But the alumni are getting impatient: He has never won a Big Ten championship. Last year he should have.

Daugherty had nine men drafted by the pros last season. Three of them were legitimate All-Americans and are going to make it big in the American Football League (George Saimes and Dave Behrman with Buffalo and Ed Budde at Kansas City). Yet, Michigan State had a so-so 5-4 record (3-3 in Big Ten play).

Further, it is common knowledge that Daugherty and MSU athletic director Biggie Munn do not get along and have been feuding for years.

Hugh Devore, over at Notre Dame, just might be grooming a fine Irish team for Daugherty to take over next year.

But the present is what the MSU head man is doubtedlessly concerned with. His team's prospects have run the pre-season gamut from "contender" to "good . . . but" to "weak." And it faces a towering schedule, the worst member of which may be UNC.

Michigan State, smarting from a 16-13 upset loss to Stanford on opening day last year, pounded Carolina 38-6. And all the points are back.

Ron Rubick is a kid who rushed for 207 yards and three touchdowns against the Tar Heels last season. Both are MSU records, and he won't even start.

Sherman Lewis and 220-pound fullback Roger Lopes scored the other touchdowns, and Earl Lattimer kicked two extra points. They're all back, but the Spartans have a new kicker, presumably a better one.

He is Lou Bobich, last year's punter, who thinks he's a soccer player. He approaches the ball on an angle and hits it with the front side of his foot. His average was 33.7.

If this team is hurting, it won't show from the running backs. Outside of Lopes, they aren't too big. But they are very, very quick.

Lewis (5-8, 154), Rubick (5-7, 179) and Dewey Lincoln (5-8, 185) are called pony backs. The former has won two Big Ten broad jump titles and one 300-yard dash crown.

The line lost a lot, but Matt Snorton (6-4, 245) is one of the toughest defensive ends around . . . and a possible All-American.

SPORTS

Daily Tar Heel

Charlie Battle (Left) And Pete Blake

Mural Program Opens Next Monday

Tag football competition in all divisions of the intramural program is scheduled to begin next Monday, September 30. News of this was learned at the first meeting of intramural managers, held last Monday night.

Turnout for the meeting was excellent and this year's program is expected to be the largest and best in the history of the campus sports.

Registration and practice for the cake race, similiar to cross country, has begun and will last until October 8. This event is divided into two divisions, novice and open.

The novice division contains entrants who have had no varsity experience and who do not intend to run track at UNC. The open division contains runners with more experience who intend to try out for the track team. Runners in the open division may wear spiked shoes while those in the novice division must wear sneakers. Practice and registration is held at Fetzer Field.

The University golf tournament will begin October 8. This tournament is open to all students and faculty members. To qualify all applicants must report to Finley Golf Course before October 6.

The best 32 qualifying round scores will make up the field. Competition is medal play. No entrance fee will be charged but golfers must pay the regular green's fee.

The next manager's meeting is slated for Tuesday, October 11, at 7:30. Teams will be penalized five points toward the final point total for absence from these meetings.

TIGHT END JOE ROBINSON, of Black Mountain, caught four passes for 62 yards against Virginia, including three in the decisive fourth-quarter touchdown march. Robinson, a 6-1, 205-pound senior, is a converted fullback.

Gridders Work Out For 'Toughest' Foe

Coach Jim Hickey had his team run through a brisk two-hour practice session yesterday afternoon in preparation for what could be the Tar Heels' toughest game of the year — against Michigan State Saturday.

Special emphasis was put on the blocking of the guards as the first and second units ran plays against the "green shirts." The latter group, composed primarily of "red-shirts," is wearing green this week, a move designed to make the Tar Heels psychologically ready to bowl over the green-clad Spartans at East Lansing this weekend.

Three players injured in Saturday's victory over Virginia were all back and running with the first team yesterday. They are guard Richy Zarro, quarterback Junior Edge and fullback Eddie Kesler.

Edge looked sharp in a brief passing drill, as did Gary Black, his Saturday replacement.

The Tar Heels also worked on covering punts with Bill Edwards, a mild sensation in his first varsity game, doing the kicking.

The team will hold its last full-scale practice session this afternoon, will go through a light drill tomorrow and will fly by chartered plane to East Lansing on Friday morning.

PEANUTS

St. Louis Cardinals Drop N. L. Pennant

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Without lifting a bat or throwing a pitch, the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday backed into the National League championship thanks to the Chicago Cubs defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3 in a day game at Chicago.

With the Dodgers scheduled to play a night game against the New York Mets, not a player was in Dodger Stadium to let out a cheer as the club clinched its 14th league pennant and second since it moved to Los Angeles in 1958.

In the Dodgers' executive offices on the club level of the 56,000 seat stadium officials of the organization, secretaries and other employees let loose with a few mild cheers, shook hands and told each other, "We've won it."

The players, manager Walt Alston and the Dodgers coaching staff normally do not start arriving at the stadium until around 4 p.m. (PDT), 7 p.m. (EDT) when the club is playing a night game. But at home they were listening to radio programs which carried a full ball and strike account of the game 2,000 miles away.

Alston said he tuned in the radio report of the final inning of the Cubs-Cardinals game at Chicago and was delighted that the regular season battle had come to an end so far as the pennant was concerned.

"Give the credit to the players; they won it," Alston said, "but I'm real happy with the pennant victory. Now we can look ahead to the World Series."

Alston said he would leave it up to his top pitchers to help him decide if they should work in their regular rotations in the remaining six games of the regular season.

Alston said he also would not stand in the way of his star southpaw Sandy Koufax, who has 24 victories, if he wants to try for a 25th win.

"If Sandy is rested and thinks he wants to pitch, I'll give him the chance," Alston said, "but I'll have to talk it over with him before we reach a decision."

Bars and restaurants erupted with whooping shouts as the loss by the Cardinals was announced through broadcasts arranged by local radio stations. But sheriff's officers, police, and the California highway patrol indicated there was little immediate reaction by fans in public places.

With the memories of last year's collapse of the Dodgers' pennant drive in the final week of the season, the club had avoided any premature predictions of victory or advance celebrating, even when it clinched at least a tie last Sunday.

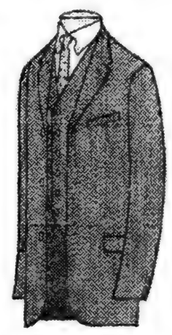
The Dodgers went into first to stay July 2 when they defeated the Cardinals here 1-0. The Los Angeles club had been first twice earlier in the season for two and three day spans, only to drop off the lead.

But from July 2 the Dodgers were never headed and within three weeks, on July 19, they had increased their lead to 7½ games, biggest of the season.



VESTED INTEREST IN HERRINGBONE

This fashion and the weave of the wool have a long history of success. Men of distinction have always included at least one herringbone suit with matching vest in their personal wardrobes. Gentlemen of the sixties should do likewise.

Town & Campus

Old School Herringbones Lead Milton's Hit Parade

Our own special clan Bruce power loomed lightweight shetland sport coats, in our own smarter cut with trimmer lapels and deeper center hook vents, with our patented Old Well linings, choice ½" herringbones in black-gray, beige-dark brown, blue-olive, tan-blue-olive, black-olive, gray-olive, tan-soft olive, gray-blue—at incomparable $39.95.

You'll Love Milton's New Look This Fall.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

JOHN MEYER OF NORWICH

The Perfect A . . . a suit of enduring elegance . . . to be enjoyed now, years from now. The smooth, classic lines are interpreted in a soft country tweed . . . tailored with the accustomed John Meyer concern for detail. Fully lined. Blue, Currency Green, Burgundy, and Paprika. Sizes 6 to 16.

Town & Campus

WANT BOOKS?

Light Summer Reading

All the best-sellers, including autographed copies of SAND PEBBLES, by Richard McKenna.
Last year's favorites mostly on the dollar table.
Plus
A lively collection of cartoon books and whacky college humor.

Serious Reading

Nobody has such a fat and satisfying collection of good non-fiction as the Intimate.
Biography, history, poetry, books on the more humane sciences, nature and sports books — The Intimate has a healthy slice of any subject you like.
Prices run all over the field, but there are lots of good titles on the bargain shelf!

USED TEXTS and Study Aids

The Intimate specializes in used copies of current texts—priced to leave you money for more pleasant reading. Try the Intimate first, and eat well!
We have a large stock of college outlines and study aids—new and used—that sometimes prove just what's needed to cram that stubborn fact into your head.

Children's Books

The Children's Book department at the Intimate is as big as some whole shops.
There you'll find books for tiny toddlers, easy readers, on up to the junior 'teens. Prices are on the moderate side, but chum, the books are really delightful.
Treat yourself to a second childhood in the jolly old Intimate!

Out-of-Print and RARE BOOKS

You haven't really seen Chapel Hill until you've discovered our Old Book Corner.
Here is the dusty loot from many a Carolina attic—ranging from old novels at 38c each on up to rare Carolina and Civil War books you'd never hoped to see!
Discover the joy of old book treasure hunting.

PAPER-BACKS

Now-a-days some of the best literature comes in paper covers—and you'll find most of it at the Intimate.
You'll find most of the quality lines in our stock, and that means most of the books you'll want for class or pleasure.
Easy to carry, easy to ship, and easy to buy—paperbacks from the Intimate are the easy answer for active brains with small budgets!

Visit the famous

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

5

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1963 | United Press International Service

Chancellor Selection Committee Named

Medford Will Serve As Chairman

Consolidated University President William C. Friday yesterday named a 17-member advisory committee to assist him in selecting a new chancellor for UNC. Chancellor William B. Aycock has resigned effective July 1, 1964, to return to teaching in the Law School.

William C. Medford of Waynesville, an attorney, a trusteee and UNC alumnus will serve as chairman of the selection advisory committee, Friday said. The committee, composed of faculty members, alumni and trustees, is scheduled to hold its first meeting on Saturday, Oct. 5 at 10 a.m.

Students in the University will also be given a chance to express opinions and to participate in the recommendation procedure by having Student Body President Mike Lawler meet with the committee in its early deliberations.

President Friday said that in accordance with procedures specified under the University Code concerning the recommendation of persons to be finally named by the trustees, the advisory committee will con-

(Continued on Page Three)

Di-Phi Opposes Gag Law, 14-1

By RICHARD CREAL

The Dialectic-Philanthropic Society opened its 167th year Tuesday night with a debate on the controversial speaker ban law.

The Society overwhelmingly endorsed a resolution protesting the House-originated bill recently enacted by the N. C. General Assembly which regulates visiting speakers at state-supported colleges and universities. The Senate voted 14 to one in favor of the resolution, while the Senate and guests approved it, 44 to 2.

The bill, introduced by Will Bullard and Chuck Neely, stated that the Society must "require complete freedom to discuss and debate openly all ideas with any persons," and "the integrity of the Society, the University, the faculty and the students . . . are hampered in their pursuit of truth by a denial of knowledge of any viewpoint on any questions of politics, religion, morality or any other topic . . ."

Arguments for the resolution brought out in the debate but not mentioned in the resolution itself were that the law violates the Fifth Amendment by requiring prospective speakers to reveal any communist affiliations and that the most effective way of defending ourselves intellectually is to first squarely face opposing ideas.

Opponents of the resolution held that the speaker ban was not unconstitutional as it does not compel anyone to testify against himself. Further, they felt that the reasons given in the resolution were superfluous. It was stated that learning would not be hindered as all opposing ideas are readily available in the library in literary form and that the spoken word should be regulated because its properties of intonation and feeling skillfully used with half-truths could easily sway immature minds. Adolf Hitler was cited as an example.

Limited time prevented a debate on a bill protesting the public accommodations clause in President Kennedy's Civil Rights Bill. This debate is scheduled for Tuesday evening, October 8 at 7:30.

Tuesday's meeting, attended by 15 members and 31 guests, was held in the Di Phi Hall in New East.

Better CU Day Proposed

By HUGH STEVENS

Improvements in the annual Consolidated University Day program were proposed to student leaders yesterday by UNC members of the CU Student Council.

Mike Lawler, UNC student body president, and Johnsye Massenburg, chairman of the CUSC delegation from Chapel Hill, proposed better methods of handling visiting girls from the Greensboro campus.

Under the new arrangement, the visitors would arrive by bus and be routed to girls dorms for a reception before the game. UNC men students would be invited to meet the girls there, thus avoiding the "cow pasture stampede" of previous years.

"In the past, the girls have simply been brought over here and dumped out," Miss Massenburg said. "They have had no chance to rest or be provided with proper introductions to the boys."

She continued that it is essential that we make better arrangements for these guests if CU Day is to be successful.

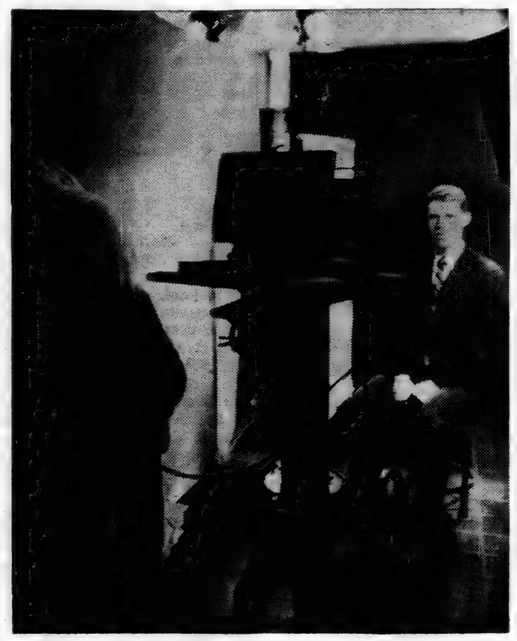
Lawler said that the Greensboro girls are very enthusiastic about the idea, and expressed hope that the local coeds will help make the proposal work.

"There are a lot of bugs to be worked out," he said, "but we are taking the idea to the girls here in hopes that they will be enthusiastic about it also."

Nancy Culler, Chairman of the Women's Residence Council, and Judy Frieder, head of the Carolina Women's Council, indicated they would propose the

(Continued on Page Three)

Administration Offers Mural Program $3,000



HOLD IT — For the next several weeks this will be a familiar scene in the basement of Graham Memorial as individual class photos are taken for the 1964 Yack. Photos of 4th year medical students, 3rd year law students and seniors are scheduled this week. —Photo by Jim Wallace

SL Meets Monday To Introduce Bill

The administration has agreed to finance the dormitory intramural program on a joint funds basis with student government.

The announcement was made at a meeting yesterday between the administration and Mike Lawler, president of the student body.

The continuation of the intramural managers program was thought to have been killed when the administration announced earlier that necessary funds were not available.

Student legislature will determine the program it will follow this year in two meetings, one a special session slated for Monday night at 7 p.m.

Lawler said the program would probably cost about $6,000 and would provide an intramural managers salary for every male dormitory on campus.

He also said he hopes to get the program on a permanent basis through talks scheduled to start in October when he will confer with administration officials and the intramural department.

Bases for selecting managers have not yet been provided for, though the selecting processes will be primarily determined by the IDC and the intramural department.

The exact amount to be paid to the managers will be determined by the bill to be brought before the legislature Monday night.

In 1962-63 student government provided funds to establish a system of paid managers for dorms with money taken from student fees. The program was set up for one year on an experimental basis and an agreement was suggested by student government that the University take over financial responsibility if the program was successful.

Tom Johnson said that the program had been highly successful and that dormitory participation had increased 10 per cent over the previous year.

But the funds needed to continue the program had been announced 'not available."

Now, however, student legislature must swing into action quickly because of the delay caused by the first "no." The special session which has been called for Monday at 7 p.m. is tailored to include the bill for '63-'64's mural manager program so that action might be taken on the bill at the first regular session Thursday night.

Bob Spearman, student body vice president, said the session has been called "because it is imperative that this program be acted upon as soon as possible."

WUNC Radio Will Resume On Oct. 7

WUNC Radio, the "Voice of the University of North Carolina," will begin its eleventh year of broadcasting Monday, October 7.

This fall WUNC, 91.5 megacycles on the FM dial, will broadcast with an expanded schedule both in time and variety. Sunday through Friday the station will go on the air at 6 p.m. During the fall the station will go on the air at 1:30 p.m. Saturdays to carry the Tar Heels' football game. WUNC will remain on the air until midnight every night except Sunday.

Programs will be of all types this year. Classical music will be heard all week on the Dinner Hour and Masterwork. Hillside Jazz, a favorite last year, will again be presented this year for a full hour. Project 60, the program from WBT in Charlotte, will include such shows as "Light in the Clouds" and "Bard of Beech Mountain." Folk singing will be heard live from Swain Hall; local Chapel Hill musicians will participate in the program. From 1100 until midnight on Monday through Saturday, popular programs of the previous week will be rerun.

WUNC Radio broadcasts with a power of 50,000 watts, covering a circular area with a radius of about 100 miles. The station is an educational station, operated entirely by students of the University. The manager of WUNC this year is Frost Brandon, a senior from Charlotte.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Hodges Denies Candidacy

Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges has all but flatly denied any possibility that he will enter the 1964 gubernatorial race in North Carolina.

Speaking at his first press conference after returning from a tour through Europe, Hodges said, "I am not seeking it, never have and I am not going to seek it" when asked about his candidacy. Hodges served as Governor from 1953-60.

He did not give a conclusive answer when asked about his feelings toward a draft movement, but added, "I don't think there is any possibility for that."

The apparent withdrawal of Hodges leaves three major contenders for the Democratic nomination to the state's highest office. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro and Dan K. Moore of Canton have already announced their intentions of entering the race, and there is a strong possibility that I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh will try for the post he missed in 1960, having been defeated by Terry Sanford.

An associate of Hodges had taken a sampling of the State several weeks ago and found a favorable reaction to the candidacy of the former textile executive. At that time Hodges released a statement saying that the poll was taken without his permission.

New Bombings Hit Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Two new bombings and a surge of resentment among Negro leaders hampered President Kennedy's two racial troubleshooters Wednesday in their efforts to get peace talks going.

One Negro leader, the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, made a new demand for federal troops. "They're throwing dynamite anywhere, everywhere. It's clear law and order has broken down."

Shuttlesworth referred to two dynamite blasts which rocked a Negro neighborhood Wednesday morning. No one was injured in the twin explosions, but at least eight nearby homes were damaged.

One blast dug a crater three feet deep and the other sheared a telephone pole. They were the 22nd and 23rd such bombings in the city in recent years.

The President's two personal representatives, Kenneth Royall and Earl Blaik, met in closed session with 11 Birmingham white leaders Wednesday in an effort to find a solution to the city's racial crisis.

While the meeting was in progress, Negro leaders held a meeting of their own and voiced displeasure with the way Royall and Blaik were approaching the problem.

Atty. General Attacks 'New Breed'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy Wednesday unmasked a powerful new breed of racketeer, one who has shed the black shirt and flashy blonde of the 1920's to run a multi-billion-dollar crime business in a grey flannel suit.

Kennedy appealed to Congress for powerful new legal weapons to crush these men and their "private government of organized crime . . . resting on a base of human suffering and moral corrosion."

Law enforcement authorities are only "treading water" in their fight," he said, without power to:

(1) — Grant witnesses immunity from prosecution in racketeering investigations to encourage them to talk, and (2) — use wiretapping as a carefully guarded means of gathering evidence in national security, murder, kidnapping and racketeering cases.

Testifying under the glare of camera lights, Kennedy told the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee the sordid inside story of Cosa Nostra, the supersecret, Mafia-style syndicate of big-time crime.

He predicted, among other things, that "a major underworld power struggle" will erupt soon in New York if kingpin racketeer Vito Genovese loses his appeal from a 15-year sentence on narcotics charges.

Armed Forces Depose Dominican President

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — The armed forces Wednesday deposed and arrested President Juan Bosch in a move they heralded as an anti-Communist coup.

The Communist party was outlawed, the new constitution annulled, Congress dissolved and a provisional government set up.

CDC Head Praises Ott

The progressive program for dormitory improvement proposed by assistant Dean of Men Matthew N. Ott won high praise from the Committee on Dormitory Affairs, in a Tuesday night meeting.

"The college system as set forth by Mr. Ott is a sound one and has the full support of the committee," said Chairman John Roney.

Roney stated that the "Ott Program," in a modified form, has been instituted in "Joyner House" by Head Resident Advisor Bud Broome and has already proven to be a great improvement over previous systems. Praise was extended to Ott, Broome, the Joyner Resident Advisors, House President K. B. Garrison, and the other House Officers by Roney.

CURED

Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED) will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church to elect officers.

The group met last week and began the process of ratifying a constitution, working through roughly one-fourth of an eight-page document.

At last week's meeting CURED, which will take over most of the policies and aims of the old Committee for Open Business, adopted portions of its constitution dealing with organizational aims, membership and officers.

Slifkin Impressed With Oxford Boys

By MAT FRIEDMAN

"It's quite a shock coming back to an American University. The contrast is really striking."

Lawrence M. Slifkin, associate professor of Physics, recently returned to UNC after a year of research at Oxford University in England.

"English college students," says Dr. Slifkin, "tend to regard American students' behavior as very immature, very juvenile. It would never occur to them to behave in public the way we do."

Dr. Slifkin spent a year at Oxford's Clarendon Laboratories on a National Science Foundation Post-Doctoral Fellowship. He did research on "electronic spin resonance," which deals with the behavior of electrons in crystals, the nature of their spin.

"In all the European schools I have visited," he says, "there were practically no sounds. It was unheard of to play a radio loud enough for someone else to hear or to shout to a friend across the quandrangle.

"There were no academic restrictions at Oxford. Students go to lectures when they please and study in whatever manner they see fit. The only thing that really matters is that they pass their exams.

"European college students seem to think that American students behave more like 12-year-olds than as adults. They feel that when a person reaches college age, he should no longer need supervision but should be mature enough to act properly."

The research, according to Dr. Slifkin, enabled him to learn new echniques for use in work here.

He explains that the Oxford and Cambridge science departments are organized much differently than those here. "The department heads there," he says, "have to do pretty much whatever interests the head of the department. Therefore, you find many faculty members working on only one or two lines of research. Oxford actually has three separate Physics departments, with different buildings and different budgets. Here, we have a lot more diversity in research."

Under the NSF fellowship, UNC paid half of Dr. Slifkin's nine-month salary while Oxford paid the balance plus travel expenses for himself and his wife and four children. They took a trip to Israel and Greece during Easter vacation, but Dr. Slifkin spent most of his time on the research.

"It was a great year," he says, "both professionally and non-professionally."

Tomorrow

The week-and-a-half long ritual known as sorority rush has many facets. One of these is the Panhellenic Post Office, operated by the Stray Greeks, where the rushees pick up the bids and invitations.

Pete Wales, DTH staffer and an old hand at sorority girls, tells all about this operation in tomorrow's Tar Heel.

Also, Jim Hickey, Tar Heel football coach, analyzes the Michigan State team and Curry Kirkpatrick, the sage of the DTH, comes out with his worthless predictions in the week-end's games.

SP Meeting To Feature NSA Discussion Panel

The Student Party will begin its 25th year on the Carolina campus with a meeting tonight in Graham Memorial.

The meeting, will be held in the Roland Parker lounges at 7 p.m. The party will hear a panel of Student Party members who attended the 16th National Student Association Congress this summer. The panel includes Neal Jackson, Kellis Parker, Phil Baddour, and Hugo Spechar, and will be moderated by student body president Mike Lawler.

The Student Party was founded in 1938 by a group of six students who, in their opinion, felt "that it was completely unfair for a single campus group to completely dominate Student Government." Prior to 1938, the University Party was the only existing party. One of these six is the present Secretary of the Consolidated University, Fred H. Weaver.

During the next ten years, the Student Party was to form many discussion groups on isues facing students, such as the adoption of the Student Constitution in 1947. Student Party leaders Douglas Hunt, now of Washington, D. C.; James Wallace, now of Chapel Hill; and N. C. State professor of political science and former president of the National Student Association, Al Lowenstein, were very influential in the drafting and adoption of the Constitution.

In 1949, after 11 years of striving, the Student Party was to win its first presidential election with the candidate Bill Mackie, now a professor of history at VPI in Blackburg. Following his election, Student Party Candidates John Sanders, presently director of the Institute of Government, and Henry Bowers, Dean of Students at State College, were also victorious.

From then on, Student Party candidates have been successful on many occasions with such executives as Bob Young, Sonny Evans, Don Furtado, Bill Harriss, and now Mike Lawler.

In addition to their success on the campus here, many past Student Party members are now active in state and national politics. Among these are Joel Fleishman, Legal Assistant to the Governor, Tom Bennet, Republican representative from Careteret County, Dave Reid, State president of the YDC, and Dick Murphey, Assistant Postmaster General of the United States.

New Officers Told For NROTC Unit

A new commanding officer and five new instructors have been named to the staff of the Naval ROTC Unit here.

Capt. Rex W. Warner, a native of Burlington, Iowa, has just assumed his new duties as commanding officer of the unit. He comes to UNC from Quonset Point, R. I., where he was chief of staff and aide to Commander Fleet Air Quonset.

It. Alden Adams comes to UNC from the USS Braine stationed out of San Diego, Calif., where he was chief engineer. He is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and a native of Portland, Me. While at UNC, he will be the Senior Class Instructor.

Lt. (jg) F. James Barnes, III, received his B.A. degree from Washington and Lee University. He received his commission as an ensign after graduation from Officer Candidate School in Newport, Rhode Island. He comes to UNC from the USS Basilone, which toured the Atlantic, Carribean areas.

Lt. Commander Edward H. Hille, a native of Norristown, Pa., comes to UNC from aboard the USS Essex stationed out of Quonset Point, R. I. Among other duties, he participated in the Cuban Quarantine. He is a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology, and will be Junior Class instructor at UNC.

Maj. E. R. Laine Jr., is a native of Windsor, Va. He was commissioned following his graduation from Virginia Institute. Maj. Laine also attended Junior Amphibious Warfare School in Quantico, Va. Prior to coming to UNC he was Logistics Officer of the Third Tank Battalion of the Third Marine Division in Okinawa. He will be Marine Officer Instructor while at UNC.

Lt. (jg) Robert A. McCaughey received his A. B. degree from the University of Rochester, N. Y. He is a native of Pawtucket, R. I. and comes to UNC from aboard the USS Tracer stationed at San Francisco, Calif. He will be Supply Instructor at UNC.

Lt. (jg) Joseph M. Whalen, a native of Little Rock, Ark., was graduated from Vanderbilt University with a B.A. degree. He comes to UNC from aboard the USS Roy O. Hale which operated out of Holy Loch, Scotland. At UNC he will be Sophomore Instructor.

10,704!

(And Not A Cot To Spare)

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

There are 10,704 students enrolled for the fall semester. This is exactly 1,100 more than were enrolled this time last year.

The enrollment figures were released Wednesday by Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey. He said that this year's enrollment figure was the one projected for next year.

Cathey said that 123 students who had pre-registered decided not to attend UNC. Nonetheless, enrollment this year breaks all previous records.

The Housing situation, which was nothing short of chaos when school started, has cleared up somewhat.

"There are just a few students left in the basement of Stacy dorm," Housing Director Jim Wadsworth said. "But we will have them all moved out by Friday."

Wadsworth said that although this was the worst housing shortage he had ever seen, the whole operation went smoother than it ever had. "Special credit should be given to the resident advisors who came back to school early and helped us get the keys out in the most efficient manner ever."

Wadsworth said the major housing problem now was for residents having to adjust to three men in their rooms. He said that the so-called "third man had a rough life because his roommates weren't use to his being in the room.

Concerning the enrollment increase, Dean Cathey said it was due mainly to three factors: "There were 349 more freshmen this year than last." Also there were quite a few more graduate students this year than last.

Cathey said that a combination of men who were entering school following a term in the service plus those students who qualified for re-admission through correspondence courses and summer school accounted for the additional increase in enrollment.

Cathey said that any North Carolina student who makes a minimum grade on the entrance exam is eligible for admission at UNC.

"But," he added, "there are some students who just barely meet the admissions requirements. We quite often counsel that student to go somewhere else and in many cases, the student does just that and later he thanks us for making the suggestion."

Vol. 72, No. 5 Thursday, September 26, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

On The Bravery Of Minor League Hoods Who Draw Their Courage From Anonymity

Just when we begin to feel that man has come a long way from the state of nature, and that life is not short and brutish, we get stopped cold by some action which we can neither believe nor comprehend. It is in this state of incredulity that we write this editorial.

Several days ago there appeared on this page a letter to the editor criticizing the conduct of some of the students attending the Friday night "Free Flicks." The letter pointed out that a few boisterous, selfish students ruined the movie for the rest of the crowd.

Yesterday, the author of the letter received a boldly worded but unsigned letter from someone who obviously found a shoe that fit. It follows as it was written:

"I'm taking bets that you have to be a goddam (sic) freshman here to have the guts to write such a sickening article! Obviously you have not been untied from your mother's apron strings long enough to understand the real purpose of those "Free Flicks." And if you don't, I'll tell you — they're just a means of letting off steam after a week's work around here. If your damned niger (sic) friends are 'embarrassed' why the hell don't they go to school at Greensboro where they belong.

"After such "sucklings" as you have been here a little longer, you'll also realize that there's no such thing as the so called "campus code" to most of the people here — it's admittingly (sic) a farce.

"Why don't you come down off cloud 9 now, huh? You'd just as well try to change the world."

Thanks

We find it difficult to believe that a student at Carolina wrote this letter, but such is apparently the case.

And if this were not bad enough, the author of the original letter to the DTH has had several groups of visitors come to his room to insult him. One group of four or five stayed in his room for a few minutes and just stared threateningly, then left.

One can only admire the bravery of these minor league hoodlums. They come to call in groups, are afraid to sign their letters, and become rude and overbearing only in the protective anonymity provided by a darkened theatre.

So now that these people have ventured forth and accomplished their spohomoronic mission of muck intimidation, we hope they will retreat to their room and not show themselves until it is time for them to regale the audience of a "Free Flick" with their sophisticated wit.

The Peculiar Malady Of Homesickness

It's our experience that one thing most newcomers to Chapel Hill and the University will almost certainly get is a good, rousing case of homesickness.

Doesn't matter if you're a downy-cheeked freshman, a divorced sophomore, a girl (or boy) — hungry junior or a married senior. It even happens to graduate students and professors.

Chapel Hill is like that. All we can promise you is that it's worth fighting and getting over, because Chapel Hill grows on you, and once you're covered with its aura, loneliness is a very infrequent companion.

But believe us, you have to work at it. Get to know the people next door. Join a couple of things you want to be active in, or think you might like. Use the rifle, not the shotgun, technique.

Slowly and unnoticed, the alone-ness of this place departs and suddenly you belong. Once that happens, you'll forget all about those long, grey days and quiet, blue evenings, and the beauty of this place will come through to you.

We know. Our particular case lasted quite awhile.

Leave Us Spike The Water, As Arranged

Chapel Hill's Manning Simons looks from here like sort of a male Otelia Conner.

Simons, apparently short on pastimes, has contented himself for the past three years with holding up fluoridation of the town's water supply by legally outmaneuvering the University.

His suit was dismissed in Chatham County Superior Court a few weeks back, but that didn't stop him. He immediately set about having a new suit drawn up and, if past experience is any guide, he'll keep Assistant Attorney Generals busy for the next three years trying to defeat it.

Let's be clear about this: We admire Mr. Simons' devotion to his cause and all that sort of thing. But many people, including us, are losing out on dental protection for what appears to be no better reason than Mr. Simons' ability to hogtie the judicial process.

That's why we were glad to read that the University plans to go ahead with spiking the water now, instead of giving Mr. Simons another turn at bat first.

After all, if he's really and truly all wet, there's just no sense in the University waiting any longer. And if he isn't, no irreparable harm will have been done.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

Editor Of Quarterly Speaks Out

Editors, The Tar Heel,

It is a fine thing indeed that the University of North Carolina now has a writer-in-residence and it is even more remarkable that students were so largely instrumental in making the program a reality. Very wisely Gil Stallings and the Writer-in-Residence Committee had the presence of mind to give John Knowles a maximum of free time for his own writing since a turgid schedule of lectures and busy-bodying most certainly would have scared off anybody worth having.

The Committee has done its job, but making the program a fruitful one, however, is a vague and long-range possibility that cannot be administered to by any committee, but will rest largely on the somewhat diffident shoulders of that amalgamated mass known as "student body"; for beyond all the exchange of pleasantries and compliments between writer and admirer, what will surely impress a writer most and be decisive in his reaction to his stay at a university is the degree of interest in writing that he sees in students, and, most importantly, the results he sees on paper or in print, clear proof not only that his official duties have aided the student writer, but that the student writer had some interest and enthusiasm for writing in the first place. Unfortunately, I am afraid that Knowles is going to discover that the majority of student writers on this campus need most pressingly a grand and well-placed kick to their listless posteriors.

It is nothing less than extraordinary that in the past school year, the recommendation was made in the Student Legislature that the stipend allotted to The Carolina Quarterly, the only student-staffed and sponsored literary magazine on campus, be terminated, and this fall, the University receives a writer-in-residence because of student enthusiasm for writers and writing. The record of a continual and diligent interest in serious writing here is not very auspicious. Too many magazines of student writing have been started by pan-flashes of zeal only to falter and be extinguished in a matter of months—Spectrum, Parlance, The Carolina Magazine are all now spectral relics of the past.

Fortunately The Carolina Quarterly has received steady financial aid from the Student Legislature. But magazines need more than money to continue to produce a product worth buying and reading. In the past school year I put out two magazines with a multitude of seven or eight staff members who not only had to render the difficult decisions in selecting material for publication but had to persecute and cajole a large number of students into buying a copy.

Many students have been severely critical of the Quarterly, accusing the staff of not publishing much student writing. This accusation is quite valid. Most of the people published in the Quarterly have turned out to be nation-wide apprentice and practiced writers, not because the student staff members of the magazine are adverse to student material, but simply because the quality and insignificant amount of student writing received is almost negligible compared to the returns and relative superiority of writing that comes to the Quarterly office from all over the country.

The Quarterly's first consideration in selecting material for publication is not where it comes from but how good it is. A standard of excellence is set; a challenge to student writers to be published on a national level is offered. Too often that challenge is disregarded. Also disregarded is the fact that the undergraduates who run the magazine offer their time and talents unequivocally for criticizing student writing, offering suggestons for mprovements in hopes that when student work from this campus is published, it will meet the standards of practit cally every literary magazine in the country, not to mention the personal benefits of balanced criticism to the young writer.

The Quarterly's highest concern for the students of this campus is educative, not to offer, as so many less visionary students of other universities do, merely an outlet for the unpracticed, faltering literary efforts of the occasional writer. The latter venture is doomed from its inception, for it cannot sell its hesitant efforts beyond the circle of friends who embody them.

Much of what I have said may seem like personal querulousness. It is quite the opposite. I am deeply and unerringly grateful to the students who have entrusted their magazine and its reputation to me for two years' editorship, but with the end of this school year, I can no longer offer my services to a magazine that has perhaps too often embodied my deepest desires. The future and fate of the Quarterly should be the urgent concern of every student on this campus and those to come. Whether the University that offered its faciilties and enlightened attitude to Thomas Wolfe, Walker Percy and a number of other well-known authors remains to be seen.

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. The Carolina Quarterly is holding its first organizational meeting and the need for new staff members is crucial. For those students whose interest in writing is a persistent devotion to the aesthetic object and to the not always pleasant task of literary criticism, we offer a place for them to conjoin in hard work, the satisfaction of seeing that work well done, and occasionally, the reading of literature whose intuition of fineness beyond the reality experienced can unite them as the celebrants of a communal act. But only when the Quarterly is viewed not as a magazine but as a movement will its proper function be understood and appreciated.

Louis M. Bourne,
Editor
The Carolina Quarterly

An Answer To Gebeaux Letter

Editors, The Daily Tar Heel,

As another new student to the University, I think Mr. Gebeaux's carefully balanced statement (Sunday, Sept. 22) of the "moderate" position deserves some analysis. He argued, the reader may recall, that being ". . . militantly for equal rights for all" but then giving "unremitting support for a Public Accommodations law" was a contradiction on the part of the Editors. Yet there is present in his letter a contradiction of his own. It reveals the usual hidden assumption of white hegemony in this apparent issue of "civil rights" vs. "property rights" and leaves the entire issue bogged down just where it begins.

Mr. Gebeaux made the following key points: 1) the Negro "has been denied the right to choose where he can go . . . (etc.).; 2) the "law must give to all the right to choose, to discriminate, and to live by his own thought and beliefs"; but 3) "Once we begin to deal with private persons and their businesses, we are dealing with other human beings who are also given the same and equal right to choose where they want to go . . . (etc.)." He also asserts that 4) parts of the Accommodations law concerning privately owned businesses opened to the public are "concerned not with further protecting equal rights for all but in denying some rights . . . to some individuals in favor of others."

Some permutations of these four points are rather interesting, but confusing. If (1) and (2) are true, the law 'sides' with the Negro and seeks to end the admitted denial of his 'rights.' But if (2) and (3) are true, the law 'sides' with the private property owner's unlimited 'right', evn to 'unwisely' refuse service, arbitrarily, to Jews or Negroes, and not just, say, to inadequately dressed, noisy, beggerly or drunken clients. If the law at present does not support either side to their clear satisfaction (there are doubts, no?) then "further protecting equal rights" is pointless! WHAT equal rights are there now, if 1) is true?

Mr. Gebeaux is struggling to say that the rights of the Negro and of the white property owner should be equal, but that those of the latter group are "more equal than" (to borrow Orwell's phrase) the former's. This assumption of white hegemony invariably undermines the usual definition of the issue as one of equal but conflicting white and Negro rights. When the courts deal with the issue, someone's rights will become "rights", or more accurately, become limited rights; so the present definition is inadequate and has little future.

I leave others to argue for some hierarchy of "human" over or under "property" rights, or to point out that the minimum wage and sanitation laws already limit the previously "absolute" rights of the private owner. I would point out, however, that this proposed law has the same "form" as did the multitude of Southern laws PROHIBITING integration of public facilities which were privately owned; but the "content" — nondiscrimination rather than segregation—is new. THESE laws restricted property rights. But where, I ask, were the everpresent "constitutionalists" like Sen. Ervin, when these "unconstitutional" albeit popular laws were propagated?

The rest of Mr. Gebeaux's letter onl yadds to the verbal confusion. This popular equivocation on the term "discrimination" likes to confuse impersonal and patterned social restrictions with private, personal, almost random individual choice. The law does not, in the very notion of a bill of rights, grant the unlimited right of a majority GROUP of persons to "choose" at the expense of other person's rights in such issues as religious freedom for Jehovah's witnesses, criminal right and reapportionment.

There ARE limits, you see, to the 'unwisdom' of the people. The fair determination of these limits is our issue, not the pious preservation or destruction of a pattern of unequal rights consistent with our past hegemony.

Robert P. Althauser
Dept. of Sociology

Student Favors A Speaker Ban

Editors, The Tar Heel,

This letter is written to voice a rather unpopular stand, in defense of the state speaker ban law. Before you drop this letter and unleash the valiant reporters to stamp out this new conservative menace to motherhood and liberalism, let me please clarify and publicize. It seems to me, as I'm sure it does to you, that this particular state law is far from perfect. Moreover, we probably agree that it should be revoked or at least radically changed. However, it would seem likely that our common antagonism would spring from very different sources. To me the law represents a faltering, overly-rigid, and only half-hearted attempt on the part of our elected representatives in Raleigh. Your views, it seems safe to say, will be well voiced at other times and in other places.

Of the two most common attacks I have heard against the law, the most popular seems to be an argument that this law endangers this University's "liberal tradition", or at least part thereof. In this, I would agree. The law definitely attacks the "liberal tradition" of Janius (sic) Scales and Larry Phelps, who both have done so much to bring Carolina to the national lime-light. If you were a legislator who annually poured North Carolina tax dollars (and from a rather poor state, at that) into the coffers of our University, you might well feel dismayed when it hits the headlines in the fashion that it does. You might even be so egocentric as to feel that while you paid the piper, you at least had the right to monitor his tunes. Given that the law will probably not obtain many of objectives desired by its legislators, we must at least understand the sentiment behind their actions.

The second attack I have heard against the law is that it constitutes a singularly un-American method of obtaining results. In this I can also partially agree. However, remembering that the philosophy which these men wished to combat is the official philosophy which motivates Russia, at least in part, to her aspiration of world conquest. I do not recommend that we "hear no evil, speak no evil . . ." with our heads in the sand so far as this menace is concerned, but it is certainly within the duty of a University to properly warn its students of the danger they will face and leave with them an abiding sense of the traditions into which they were born.

Given that the present law is imperfect, there are several things that we should learn from its enactment. The first is that it springs from an honest and sincere forboding and a desire to further the best interest of the students. Second, that this forboding is not completely without foundation. And third, that if the University community desires autonomous control, it must provide for its students a responsible academic image and an understanding of the traditions and beliefs for which they may well be asked to pledge their lives, property, and sacred honor.

Warren Ogden

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

"Man, That Looks Like A Real Twister"

The Same Show

By FRED SEELY

No matter what your feelings may be about UNC, you must admit that it is an interesting place. Things happen here as they happen nowhere else.

Consider last year — the demonstrations, the Beat Dook parade, the apartment rule, the furor after William F. Buckley spoke.

Also, the panty raids, the demonstrations against Castro, the appearance of Malcolm X and his Musiums, the Meredith Resolution in the Student Legislature.

But that was last year, and the Big Top has moved on.

What will stir the student's breast this year?

The apartment rule mess will continue, but no one really cares about that anymore. The demonstrations have already started (Sunday's march mourning the Birmingham deaths), but the novelty is gone. The Beat Dook parade will go on, but it will be as pure as a spinster's soul.

So allow us a few predictions.

The so-called "gag law", of course, will occupy everyone's thoughts for the first part of the year. The thing is such a hot political issue that it appears there is no hope for any action in the special session of the state legislature.

This issue will prove a strong test for student government and its leaders. If they realize that the law was proposed by fools, pushed through by fools but, conversely, cannot be attacked in a foolish manner, then there is a chance that it can somehow be beaten.

The flaming hearts of the Student Peace Union may have been somewhat assuaged by the passage of the test-ban treaty, but they are so bent on raising some sort of hell that we will hear from them frequently.

The Carolina Forum always is good for a controversy or two (wait until you hear Truman speak about civil rights!), and the Symposium will be attacked for being left-wing.

The American Legion will not be happy until they clean out the whole school, and those rumors about some sort of States' Right's Party may yet turn out to be true.

The political campaigns will dominate the latter half of the year. Both the gubernatorial and presidential races stack up as being exciting, and there should be enough controversy to satisfy everyone.

The Goldwater fever which seems to be permeating the student mind across the nation should reach UNC before long. Of course, the liberals think President Kennedy is the greatest thing since labor unions, and there is an outside possibility that Rockefeller has a supporter or two. And, hopefully, there is a Ross Barnett man around.

Richardson Preyer and Dan Moore should have a good fight for the Democratic nomination for governor, and Raymond Stansbury and Bruce Burleson will provide all sorts of comedy relief. Of course, there's always I. Beverly Lake, the George Wallace of North Carolina. Lake and Preyer will try to chew each other to bits, and unknown, Moore, just may get the nomination. If he wins, Charles Jonas, the lone GOP hope, will not run. If either of the other two get the bid, look for the Lincolnton congressman to to try for the top state post.

In any case, welcome back to UNC. The Big Top has moved on —but it's the same show.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Head covering
4. Coterie
7. Shove
8. An area of ground
10. Comply
11. Dexterous
12. Close to
13. Not professionals
16. Decorated letter in printing
18. Newt
19. Cebine monkey
20. On the peak
22. Boy's nickname
24. Necessary with hot dogs
26. Ruffled edging
30. To steer wildly: naut.
32. Impolite fellow
33. Away
36. To bowl underhand
38. Collie, for one
39. Severe
42. Toward
43. Saturn's rings projections
44. Ripped
46. Goose cry
47. Bound
48. Sheltered side
49. Old times

DOWN
1. Wheel center
2. On the ocean
3. Aromatic herb
4. Splash
5. German river
6. Anklebone
7. Spud
9. Japanese monastery
12. At a distance
14. Astern
15. "Yes" in Spain
17. Mountain pass
21. Travel to and fro
23. Confer knighthood upon
25. Save from wreckage
27. Fish
28. Shouted in derision
29. Therefore
31. Court
33. King of Bashan
34. Ravel
35. Last
37. City: Montana
40. Domestic servant: Old. Eng.
41. Earth
45. —— Square, Moscow

Yesterday's Answer

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

The Carolina Quarterly, 8 p.m., Grail Room, first organizational meeting for staff members and all interested students.

NAACP, 8 p.m., 205 Alumni.

Attorney General's staff members assigned to work with the Men's Council, 5:30 p.m., Council Room, GM.

Students interested in UNC Band meet the director of bands, 110 Hill Hall, 1 credit hour per semester.

MOVIES

Rialto—Fellini's 8½

Carolina — Days of Wine and Roses

Varsity — Irma La Douce

FUTURE

UNC Men's Glee Club practice sessions, Mondays and Thursdays, 4:15, Practice Room, Hill Hall.

Hillel Foundation, Fri., Sept. 27, Sat., Sept. 28, 10 a.m., Hillel House Day of Atonement services.

Fraternity Handbooks are available in Y Court for any freshmen and transfer student who did not receive one.

Blue Cross Blue Shield

STUDENT CERTIFICATE

Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.

For details mail coupon to . . .

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.

Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

– CU Day –

(Continued from Page 1)

idea to their respective bodies.

"The burden would be on the coeds here to make this work," said Sue Ross of the Dean of Women's office.

Lawler said he felt that more students would come if they are assured proper accomodations.

"The girls in Greensboro have also expressed some discontent with past seating arrangements," he said, "but we are working with the athletic department in an effort to allow girls to sit with their dates without any problems."

"If the details can be worked out, there will be plenty of boys there," he said.

"We proposed this idea first in the CUSC Executive Council meeting last week, and they felt that something should be done. We decided to bring it to the girls here and ask for their co-operation."

Gerry Good, president of the IDC, expressed his feeling that the boys here would cooperate and be enthusiastic about the idea.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (UPI)—The House Wednesday passed the biggest tax cut bill in history—an $11 billion measure that eventually would mean an average saving of 18.8 per cent for the nation's 50 million individual taxpayers .

STUDENT WIVES

The UNC Student Wives Club will hold its first meeting of the year on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge II and III in Graham Memorial. All student wives are invited to attend.

– Selection –

(Continued from Page 1)

sider individuals on faculties inside the State and in other states. The committee will submit three names to President Friday and from these President Friday will nominate one for consideration by the trustees.

"I hope we will receive the advisory committee's suggestions as early next spring as may be possible," President Friday said.

Other trustee members of the committee are Henry A. Foscue, High Point furniture manufacturer; R. D. McMillan Jr. of Red Springs, a lawyer and member of the General Assembly; T. Henry Redding, Asheboro textile manufacturer; and C. Lacey Tate of Whiteville, president of the Bank of Waccamaw.

Alumni members of the committee are Frank Daniels, general manager of the Raleigh News & Observer; C. Knox Massey of Durham, president of Knox Massey & Associates Advertising Agency; Hugh M. Morton of Wilmington, businessman and president-elect of the Alumni Association; State Sen. Lindsay C. Warren Jr. of Goldsboro; and Meade H. Willis Jr., vice president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Company and immediate past president of the Alumni Association.

Faculty members of the committee are George M. Harper, chairman of the English Department and chairman of the faculty; H. E. Lehman, chairman of the Zoology Department; Donald R. Matthews, associate professor of political science; Everett D. Palmatier, Kenan professor of physics and chairman of the Physics Department; Joseph C. Sloane, chairman of the Art Department and director of Ackland Art Center; Dr. Louis G. Welt, professor of medicine; and W. L. Wiley, Kenan professor of French.

UNC Students Win Blanchard $ Aid

Twelve students at UNC have received Blanchard Scholarship awards for amounts of from $250 to $900, Director of Student Aid Dr. Julian Mason has announced. "Recipients of the award are chosen for academic merit and the value of each scholarship is fixed according to the student's financial need," Dr. Mason said.

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by

SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

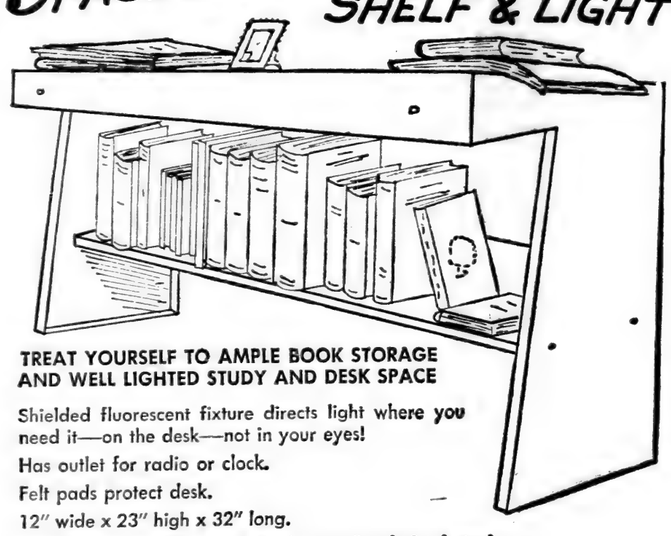
PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.

414 W. Franklin St.

Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463

SPACESAVER SHELF & LIGHT



TREAT YOURSELF TO AMPLE BOOK STORAGE AND WELL LIGHTED STUDY AND DESK SPACE

Shielded fluorescent fixture directs light where you need it—on the desk—not in your eyes!
Has outlet for radio or clock.
Felt pads protect desk.
12" wide x 23" high x 32" long.
Tan duPont baked enamel finish over Bonderized steel.
One package—includes lamp and cord—nothing else to buy.

USE HANDY ORDER FORM BELOW DELIVERED PRICE $27.50

SOUTHEASTERN METAL PRODUCTS, INC.
P. O. BOX 2489
GREENSBORO, N. C. 27402

SHIPPED PREPAID ONLY
NO C. O. D.

I am enclosing $_____for____SPACESAVER UNITS @ $27.50 EACH

NAME_____
ADDRESS_____
CITY AND STATE_____

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

SERVICES: WILL KEEP CHILdren in home. Large yard and playroom. 968-1574.

IN ASSETS, THE NORTHWESTern Mutual is the 18th largest corporation in America. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

Rentals

ONE MORE MAN NEEDED TO share 4 room house with three others. Call Tom Iseley at 942-1525 or 968-0858.

Help Wanted – Female

PART-TIME ASSISTANT FOR professional writer. Typing and varied office work. Graduate woman or senior. Phone Mr. Coffman 968-1532.

Lost and Found

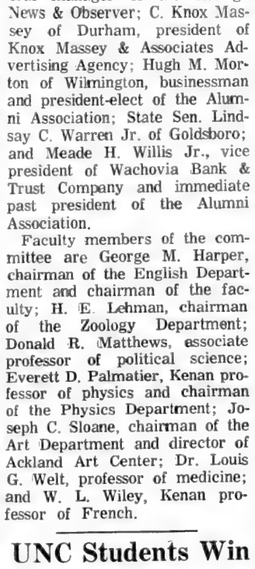
SUBSTANTIAL REWARD FOR the return of a brown leather wallet lost near Graham Memorial Saturday night belonging to Mej. Erning Ysona. Return to 501 Ehringhaus.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

"an orgy that makes the orgy in 'La Dolce Vita' look like a family picnic" —N.Y. Daily News

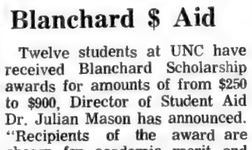


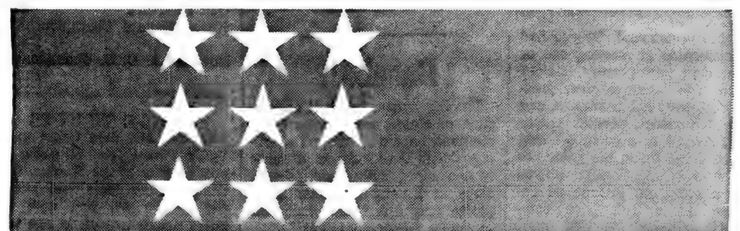
with Silvia Pinal - Francisco Rabal - Fernando Rey

Shows at: 1:30 - 3:19
5:08 - 6:57 - 8:46

OPENS FRIDAY

Joseph E. Levine presents





THE AMERICAN NATIONAL THEATRE AND ACADEMY PRESENTS

THE NATIONAL REPERTORY THEATRE

EVA LeGALLIENNE
FARLEY GRANGER
DENHOLM ELLIOTT
ANNE MEACHAM

The Seagull
BY ANTON CHEKHOV
TRANSLATED BY EVA LE GALLIENNE

The Crucible
BY ARTHUR MILLER

Ring Round The Moon
BY JEAN ANOUILH
TRANSLATED BY CHRISTOPHER FRY

(THREE FULL-LENGTH PRODUCTIONS ROTATING IN REPERTORY)

STUDENT AND FACULTY DISCOUNT — 50% GROUPS OF 10
Pick up Discount Coupons at the Graham Memorial Info. Desk
OPENING OCT. 10 — AYCOCK AUD. WOMAN'S COLLEGE GREENSBORO, N. C.
"The SEAGULL" Thurs., Oct. 10 and Sat., Oct. 12 at 8:30 P.M.
"RING ROUND THE MOON" Fri., Oct. 11 and Sun., Oct. 13 at 8:30 P.M.
"THE CRUCIBLE" Tues., Oct. 15 at 8:30 P.M.
PRICES: ORCH—$5.00, $4.00; MEZZ—$5.00; BALC—$4.00, $3.00, $2.00

Now five kinds of Chevrolets for all kinds of people!

JET-SMOOTH LUXURY CHEVROLET—For luxury-loving people. Rich new styling, finer appointments in all four series and 15 models. Engines up to 425 hp*, manual or Powerglide* transmissions.

NEW CHEVELLE—For pacesetting people. A totally new kind of car with small-car handling, big-car comfort! Styling that makes expensive cars jealous. Three series and 11 models, and a full choice of engine and transmission teams!

CHEVY II—For practical people. Chevy II with new V8 power* for fun-on-a-shoestring. Stretches the shoestring further with 4- and 6-cylinder engines. Chevy II's six models in two series all act like they're bigger, more expensive cars!

CORVAIR—For fun-loving people. More fun than ever from Corvair's new bigger engine! Same Corvair handling and riding ease in 9 models—including the 150-hp Turbocharged Spyders!

CORVETTE—For sports-minded people. Corvette now rides softer, smoother—but loses none of its gusto because its big V8 offers versions from 250 to 375 hp*!

Want to get together with other car-loving people? Go see your Chevrolet dealer. . . . he likes all kinds! *optional at extra cost

CHEVROLET

See five entirely different lines of cars at your Chevrolet Showroom — CHEVROLET, CHEVELLE, CHEVY II, CORVAIR & CORVETTE

by

Laszlo Birinyi

The sights and smells of autumn are a constant reminder of football. But before we get completely engrossed with Bob Lacey or Junior Edge, let us turn back to the sports heroes of last spring — the tennis team.

The last time we looked in on these gentlemen they were making a farce of the ACC Tennis Championships. Championpionships my foot! Carolina could have won the title using only George Sokol, Bitsy Harrison and your Aunt Mabel.

In the individual titles, Sokol was a sure singles winner, and UNC had the two best doubles teams — Sokol and Stoneman and Harrison and Hoehn.

Thus, the only questions left to be answered were which one of the UNC netman would lose to Sokol in the finals, and was Hoehn sufficiently recovered from his appendectomy to win the doubles again.

It was Stoneman who came out of nowhere to almost beat Sokol for the singles and then team with the powerful junior to annex the doubles title over Hoehn and Harrison.

Next Coach Don Skakle's netmen traveled to the Eastern Collegiate Championships.

Here Bitsy showed the great tennis he is capable of when he wants to really play. He reached the finals where he lost to Lex Woods of Florida State and then teamed with Hoehn to beat Woods and John Clayton, 9-7, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. This doubles win gave the Tar Heels the Eastern Championship.

MIAMI AT NATIONALS

At the NCAA Nationals, Carolina ran into some old friends—Miami. The boys from Sunshine U. again proved that no books and all tennis will make Johnny a good player.

Ted Hoehn was the first Tar Heel to fall. After winning his first round match, he met John Karabasz of Miami who beat him for the second time this year.

Harrison also found the going rough as he lost a third round match to Miami's John Hammill at 9-7 in the third set.

However Sokol finally broke the Miami jinx when he beat his old nemesis, Rod Mandelstram, 7-5, 7-5.

In the next round, George had the misfortune of meeting one of the world's best players, Rafael Osuna. The Mexican star, present U. S. National champion, and twice Wimbledon doubles champion, got off to a quick 6-2 lead before Sokol found his game. In the second set, George played like a house on fire as he returned serve with ease completely stunning the USC star. But Osuna came back in the third set to win, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

In the doubles, Stoneman and Sokol drew Osuna and Dennis Ralston for their first round opponents.

The USC team, which is one of the best in the world (they won the Wimbledon Doubles Title when they were only 17) found the going rough before beating the Tar Heel duo, 8-6, 6-2.

After the Nationals, the netmen separated to play in various summer tournaments.

Sokol returned to Philadelphia to play in local tournaments where he compiled an enviable record. First he scored two victories over Harry Hoffman Jr., the nation's 41st seed, 6-4, 6-3, and 6-3, 6-2.

Sokol also beat Hugh Quinn of Miami, 6-2, 6-1, but lost to Ned Neely, 23rd in the U. S., at the Eastern Lawn Tennis Championships and Roger Taylor of the British Davis Cup Team at Nassau.

Harrison's Summer Wins

Bitsy Harrison's summer wins include Mike Green, a nationally ranked player, Jackie Cooper, the best junior in the South, and Herb Fitzgibbons, the best player in New York.

But one of his best displays came at Merion when he lost to Ronnie Fisher, 26th nationally, 6-3 in the third set. Rarely has Bitsy's good shots been so good or his bad shots been so bad.

I managed to get to Merion to see this match and after the tall senior from Richmond hit two blistering backhands followed by two miserable volleys, the gentleman in back of me remarked to his companion, "That tall guy could be great—if he tried."

One netter who did try this summer was Stoneman. After losing in the first round at the Nationals, Keith scored victories over Keith Jennings (who won a set from Chuck McKinley at Merion) and Andy Lloyd at the Tri-State Tourney in Cincinnati. Lloyd is the South's best men's player.

Also playing outstanding tennis this summer was UNC's Charlie Shaffer who beat Jack Cooper and Lloyd Best, the best two juniors in the South.

Thus, the Carolina tennis team had an outstanding summer. Their improvement coupled with Miami's loss of three first stringers could lead to the end of Miami's win skein—a victory record which will be around 130 straight when Dale Lewis' charges come to Chapel Hill this spring for the match of the decade.

Baseball

The big league baseball season may be almost over, but for UNC diamond hopefuls it's just starting. Coach Walt Rabb is presently conducting daily practice sessions in Emerson Stadium with prime emphasis being placed on incoming freshman talent.

Rabb, whose team last year finished runner-up to Wake Forest in the ACC and posted an overall mark of 20-9, emphasizes the need for non-scholarship participants. He urges all interested freshmen to come out for the try-outs, which will continue to October 15.

Smith, Maillet Top Runners' Time Trials

By BILL LEE

Juniors Jerry Smith and Art Maillet led the cross-country time trials Tuesday, preliminary to the opening meet with Wake Forest at Winston-Salem Saturday.

Smith and Maillet, both New Yorkers, tied for firsts with times of 20:39 over a Sophomore-studded team. James Meade, sophomore, took a surprising third, while senior Captain Bob Bennett finished fourth. These men will be expected to place in four of the five finishing places against Wake.

The remaining place probably will be between Sophomore Bob Cromartie, who was absent from practice, and Mike Folk. Folk has been out of competition for a year while he studied in Germany and is not yet in top shape. Sophomore Bob Everett also made a good showing in the trial run.

The time trial of 3.6 miles was held on a part of what is to be a new route for the runners. In past years, meets have been held on the University's Finley golf course.

The new route of four miles will provide the runners with different sorts of terrain. It will begin at Fetzer Field, circle the Navy field, follow Ridge Road to Kenan Stadium, and from there towards the nurses' dorms.

The runners will then follow Manning Drive to a point past Ehringhaus and go back of the dorm up "Dead man's Hill", a mile-long gradual incline, to Ridge Road, backtracking the first mile to Fetzer Field.

The young team, with nine sophomores as compared to only three seniors, is expected by Coaches Joe Hilton and Wayne Bishop to improve greatly as the season progresses. These sophomores, the outstanding freshman team, and carefully-picked high schoo prospect may make Carolina a top cross-country threat for years to come.

THE SCHEDULE

| | |
|---|---|
| Sept. 28—Wake Forest | Away |
| Oct. 5—Clemson | Away |
| Oct. 12—Maryland | Away |
| Oct. 15—N. C. State | Away |
| Oct. 17—Virginia | Away |
| Oct. 23—South Carolina | Home |
| Oct. 30—Duke | Home |
| Nov. 4—State Championships | Raleigh |
| Nov. 11—A. C. C. Championships | Raleigh |

WAKE TICKETS

Student and date ticket to the Wake Forest football game are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Individual student tickets are $2, and date and guest tickets are $4. If you want to sit in a group, you must buy your tickets together. An individual is allowed to buy only his ticket and a date or guest ticket.

UNC plays Wake Forest in a night game at Winston-Salem on Saturday, October 5. Kick-off time is 8 o'clock.

Heels Must Contain MSU Running Attack

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Against Virginia last weekend, Jim Hickey's football team gained (through the air and on the ground) 330 yards. It was an exceptional offensive performance. Hickey was probably very proud.

Then he took a look at Saturday's opponent. That would be Michigan State, and last year against UNC Michigan State picked up 524 total yards — 472 of them on the ground.

This is what he has been working all week long to prevent. For if the Tar Heels do not stop the MSU running attack, or at least contain it to a lesser amount of ground, Carolina may be in for as rough a day as last Oct. 6 when it was smashed, 38-6.

If not all around, the Spartans should be at least as strong in their running attack as the 1962 edition. Sherman Lewis, and Dewey Lincoln, two small but lightning fast veterans, will start at the halfbacks.

Lewis (5-8, 154), considered MSU's outstanding ballplayer, rushed 590 yards for a six-per-carry average and nine touchdowns last season. Lincoln (5-8, 185) was shifted to fullback in the spring but is back at right halfback this fall. He gained 422 yards for a 5.2 average as a junior.

Lincoln was moved to make way for the emergence of Roger Lopes into the fullback slot. Lopes (5-10, 220), a second-string letterman for two years, came along very fast this year and looms as State's sole power runner.

Ron Rubick, (5-7, 179), who broke two school records against UNC when he scored three touchdowns on 207 yards, is MSU's fourth backfield man. Eddie Cotton (6-0, 203) is a sophomore backup man for Lopes.

The major backfield problem for Coach Duffy Daugherty has been quarterback. Not since 1957 (since Jim Ninowski) has Michigan State had a sound, settled quarterback position.

Dick Proebstle, a junior who lettered as a sophomore in 1961 before bing sidelined by injuries last year, was number one in spring drills. But Daugherty announced Tuesday that a sophomore, Steve Juday, will get the opening-day assignment.

This may further hamper State's already weak passing game.

All kicking (punting, kickoffs and placements) may be done by the same man. He would be defensive back Lou Bobich, the regular punter last year, who kicks (soccer style) using the inside of his foot. Bobich had a 33.7 average on 27 kicks last year and takes Earl Lattimer's spot as placement booter this campaign.

MSU Line

Michigan State's line is expected to average 20 pounds per man less than last year. But this average (215) will still be considerably higher than that of the UNC front.

In Matt Snorton (6-4, 245), the Spartans have one of the finest defensive ends in the country. Snorton caught only six passes all of last season but should be used more this year. At the other flank is junior Tom Krzemienski (6-0, 192), a good man on patterns.

Dave Herman (6-1, 236) and Rahn Bentley (5-9, 214) will start at the tackle slots. Herman, a veteran two-time letterman, is considered MSU's best interior lineman. Bentley is a converted guard and the father of twins.

Earl Lattimer (5-11, 218) made the difficult switch from fullback to guard early in spring drills. He is also a two-year letterman and may be used as a kickoff man on occasion. His partner at the guard position will be Steve Mellinger (5-11, 197), still another letter winner of two years.

Junior Don Ross (6-0, 199) was the biggest surprise of the spring when he moved into the starting center spot. However, Ed Youngs (6-2, 227) a letterman tackle last season, could replace Ross on offense.

MSU End Matt Snorton

Everybody Goes To
Shoney's
HOME OF THE BIG BOY
Durham's newest & finest
Drive In-Restaurant
THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT
½ PRICE ½
GOOD FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY
Shoney's
Restaurant & Drive In
185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
Durham

Lady Milton Fair Isle Cardigans
At Very Enticing Quotations for Limited Time. Entire stock regularly at $23.95 now for at a get-acquainted quotation of $12.99.
Group of 1¼" smart leather belts with solid brass buckles, regularly $5.00, now specially priced at $2.50.
Discover the region's most unusual shoppe where every customer can style her own costume.
CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED
Lady Milton Shop
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

START THIS SEASON WITH A TRADITIONAL WINNER

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL
Is showing the finest collection of traditional sports coats ever assembled in this area. Literally hundreds of colors and patterns designed for the college or career man. However, in spite of all these advantages, THE HUB still maintains the most reasonable prices in Chapel Hill. Sports Coats from $29.95
THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

WANT BOOKS?

Light Summer Reading
All the best-sellers, including autographed copies of SAND PEBBLES, by Richard McKenna.
Last year's favorites mostly on the dollar table.
Plus
A lively collection of cartoon books and whacky college humor.

Serious Reading
Nobody has such a fat and satisfying collection of good non-fiction as the Intimate.
Biography, history, poetry, books on the more humane sciences, nature and sports books — The Intimate has a healthy slice of any subject you like.
Prices run all over the field, but there are lots of good titles on the bargain shelf!

USED TEXTS and Study Aids
The Intimate specializes in used copies of current texts—priced to leave you money for more pleasant reading. Try the Intimate first, and eat well!
We have a large stock of college outlines and study aids—new and used—that sometimes prove just what's needed to cram that stubborn fact into your head.

Children's Books
The Children's Book department at the Intimate is as big as some whole shops.
There you'll find books for tiny toddlers, easy readers, on up to the junior 'teens. Prices are on the moderate side, but chum, the books are really delightful.
Treat yourself to a second childhood in the jolly old Intimate!

Out-of-Print and RARE BOOKS
You haven't really seen Chapel Hill until you've discovered our Old Book Corner.
Here is the dusty loot from many a Carolina attic—ranging from old novels at 38c each on up to rare Carolina and Civil War books you'd never hoped to see!
Discover the joy of old book treasure hunting.

PAPER-BACKS
Now-a-days some of the best literature comes in paper covers—and you'll find most of it at the Intimate.
You'll find most of the quality lines in our stock, and that means most of the books you'll want for class or pleasure.
Easy to carry, easy to ship, and easy to buy—paperbacks from the Intimate are the easy answer for active brains with small budgets!

Visit the famous
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St.

Next To The Student Body
Comfortable because it's giveable!
STRETCH-STRAP
bra by
PERMA·LIFT

There's comfort in every move, there's ease in every reach. This is the new Stretch-Strap™ cotton bra by Perma·lift®, with ingenious ¾" knitted Lycra Spandex elastic straps and Lycra elastic sides. Almost everything stretches in this bra except the cotton Self-Fitting cups which take themselves in or let themselves out, to conform to your exact measurements. Be fitted this very day.
Only $3.95. Sizes: A cup, 32-36; B & C cups, 32-38.
Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

This Little Lamb Went To Milton's

Just received a shipment of the finest Gee-long Lambswool v-neck sweaters with better fitting full fashioned saddle shoulder — own Scottish import—beige heather, medium gray heather, blue heather, rich navy, light green heather, olive/tan heather — $16.95
Our own Scottish import in our own design higher V, full fashioned Shetland in 23 fabulous heathers — $16.95.
Five button Shetland cardigans with same fabulous saddle shoulder, Scotch imported — $21.95
Largest and choicest array of fine sweaters found anywhere.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

the bang jumper
Ladybug
Impact depends on simplicity. Unity. A sudden straight clear smash. Like this: Ladybug's square-cut jumper shift, in lined wool herringbone. Add or subtract the sash, a shirt, a pin, to vary the bang. Navy, Brown, Black, Burgundy. 5 to 15.
Town & Campus

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1963 | United Press International Service

6

Tar Heel Rams Into Capitol

WASHINGTON (U P I) — A North Caroilnian created alarm and consternation at the White House Thursday by crashing his truck through a street gate and nearly reaching the famed north portico entrance to the executive mansion.

"I want to see the President. The Communists are taking over in North Carolina," the driver, Doyle Allen Hicks, screamed as he was taken into custody by White House guards and secret service agents.

Hicks, 38, of Waynesville, was later taken to D. C. General Hospital for observation. Police said he was unarmed but the small pickup truck was reported to have it sped through the gate and up narrowly missed a bystander as the driveway to the pillared north portico.

President Kennedy was absent from the White House on his trip to the West but Mrs. Kennedy was on the ground floor of the mansion.

Caroline was attending a first-grade class in the White House at the time, presumably in the upstairs living quarters. John Jr. was out for a ride, a White House source reported.

As Hicks was carried struggling to a patrol wagon, he kept shouting he wanted to see the President.

He kept protesting to the police and secret service men. "I tell you, boys, you'd better get down to North Carolina. I tell you, you'd better get down there and see what's going on, they're killing people like flies."

His abortive effort to break into the heavily guarded White House occurred about noon when lunch-time pedestrian traffic was heavy on the Pennsylvania Avenue side of the President's home.

The two picket-type iron gates at the northwest entry were closed but not locked. The gate is used mainly by newsmen and White House personnel. There is a manned guard house within 10 feet of it and a driveway curves up to the north portico.

An eyewitness said Hicks, driving a truck belonging to the Hicks Heating & Plumbing Co. of Waynesville "came barreling right through, over the sidewalk and through the gates."

Two startled guards at the gate set out in pursuit as the truck sped up the driveway. Another on duty at the north portico rushed down a brief flight of steps to the driveway. Just short of the entry, Hickes brough his truck to a screeching halt and jumped out "screaming and yelling that he wanted to see the President of the United States."

The three guards quickly seized him and turned him over to secret service agents who appeared immediately on the scene.

A welfare official in Waynesville said Hicks, the father of five children, was released from the Broughton State Mental Hospital at Morganton, N. C., last March. He voluntarily committed himself to the institution in November, 1962.

UNC Press Club Plans Breakfast For J-Students

The UNC Press Club is sponsoring a breakfast Sunday, Sept. 29, at 10 a.m. in the student lounge on the second floor of Howell Hall.

All journalism and pre-journalism majors are invited along with interested students in related fields. Special guests are the journalism faculty members.

Besides getting acquainted, the purposes of the meeting are "general bartering of J. 161 quizzes. Cynthia Leonard's shaking up prospect members for dues and getting everyone sobered up at the weekend," Dona Fagg, UNC Press Club president, announced.

The Press Club holds meetings the first Monday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in Howell Hall lounge. Plans are being made for speakers in various areas of communications and journalism to appear. These include news editing, communicators, newspaper editors, editorial writers, public relations work and advertising.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Bomb Provides New Clues In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Birmingham police hinted Thursday that fragments from a shrapnel bomb that exploded in a Negro neighborhood may give them their best clues yet in their search for the city's racial bomber.

"It is a different type of bombing and it does give us something to work on,' 'said Detective Lt. Maurice House.

House said that all physical evidence of the blast, including nails, bolts and other bits of sharp metal that were scraped over a wide area, had been turned over to the FBI for laboratory examination.

"We've always found various substances around the scene, but as far as physical evidence is concerned, this gives us something to work on," House said.

An FBI spokesman refused comment on the worth of the evidence until "the lab looks it over."

The shrapnel bomb exploded early Wednesday morning, just 3 minutes after another dynamite blast was set off a few feet away. Police said the first explosion apparently was intended as a decoy to lure Negroes into the streets, and the shrapel bomb was "made to kill." Frightened residents of the area remained indoors, however, and no one was hurt.

While police pressed their investigation into the new bombings, President Kennedy's mediation team—made up of former Army secretary Kenneth Royall and Ex West Point coach Earl Blaik—continued meeting with white civic and business leaders.

Lodge Rebukes Mme. Nhu In Saigon

SIAGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) —U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge sharply rebuked Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu Thursday for her statements in Rome that junior U. S. military advisers here were "acting like little soldiers of fortune."

Lodge, in a statement released by the embassy said her chage was a "shocking statement."

"These junior officers are risking their lives every day," Lodge said. "Some of them have been killed side by side with their Vietnamese comrades. It is incomprehensible to me how anyone can speak so cruely. These men should be thanked and not insulted."

The outspoken Mme Nhu is sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Her husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, is Diem's chief political adviser and controls South Viet Nam's secret police and a force of 2,000 specially trained troops.

Mme. Nhu was asked while in Rome to comment on the current visit to South Viet Nam of U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"I am glad he McNamara is going to Saigon to see how things are run," she said. 'The junior officers of the U. S. military mission are acting like little soldiers of fortune.

"They don't know what is going on. With their irresponsible behavior they have forced the senior officers into following a confused policy."

Lodge's statement was his first public criticism of Mme. Nhu since he assumed his post here late last month.

Wilson Attacks Denning Report Findings

LONDON (UPI) — Labor leader Harold Wilson lunged to the attack Thursday on the findings of the Denning sex and security report with the demand the prime minister urgently recall Parliament to debate "an apalling state of affairs" in Britian's security.

Wilson launched his attack in a series of Labor - Conservative radio and television appearances shortly before Prime Minister Harold Macmillan went on the air to defend his government in what a London newspaper called the start of a turbulent and dirty" political campaign.

Wilson made it clear he is determined to topple Macmillan's government either by a no-confidence vote in Parliament or at the next general elections due before October, 1964.

The 65,000-word Denning report gave the Macmillan government a clean bill as regards security in the Profumo scandal. But it said he and his top ministers failed in their duty to find out in time that War Minister John Profumo was lying when he said he was not having an affair with call girl Christine Keeler.

The Denning report also noted some "errors" by police and investigating departments and apparent short circuits as regards getting information to the right quarters.

Stray Greeks Play Rush Post Office

By PETE WALES

With sorority rush now in full swing, the Stray Greeks are playing post office.

The girls, members of sororities which do not have chapters on the UNC campus, are performing their annual service to the Pan-Hellenic Council of passing out return invitations and setting up schedules for coed rushees.

Susan Dellinger, president of the Stray Greeks, has her forces up on the second floor of Graham Memorial after each of the five rounds of rush to schedule when the girls will go through each house.

A new service being provided the counsellor program. One girl by the Stray Greeks this year is is stationed in each of the nine women's dorms during rushing hours to answer questions about rush and sororities in general.

"We're getting questions now like, 'Shall I go through rush?' and whether or not to join a sorority at all," Miss Dellinger said. "We don't give yes or no answers, we just advise.

"But we don't try to tell them which sorority to join. This is up to them."

There are 15 new Stray Greeks this year, bringing the total to 35.

Sorority rush began with the Pan-Hellenic reception in Graham Memorial last Friday, followed by the first round of parties on Monday and Tuesday. Rushees were required to go to all seven houses at that time.

Wednesday was the first post office day and the only day in the schedule free of rushing. Girls were allowed to revisit a maximum of six houses (if invited back) during the second round of parties last night and tonight.

Tomorrow is another post office day with afternoon rushing tomorrow and Sunday. The rushees go on house tours at this time and are allowed to visit only five houses.

The post office operates next Monday through Wednesday with rounds four and five and then Bid Day on Wednesday. Girls receive their bids then and put down up to three sororities from which they get bids in order of preference.

The sororities' and rushees' preference lists are compared by South Building Wednesday afternoon and invitations to pledge are sent out in the evening.

The curtain drops Wednesday night when all sororities, reinforced with their new pledges, conduct "Open House" for the heavy end of the Carolina ratio.

Spearman To Head NSA Group

A National Student Association Commission has been formed here to study student government problems at colleges and universities in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Bob Spearman, commission chairman, said yesterday that the body grew out of last spring's Carolinas-Virginia NSA regional meeting.

"At the present time," Spearman said, "we are in the process of making up and sending questionnaires to the other schools in the area. These inquiries will deal with specific areas of student government, and we will evaluate them after they are returned to us."

Spearman said that conferences will be set up next spring to discuss the problems confronting various schools.

"We feel that this group can do much to help solve student problems on the various campuses, and I am certain that we will take some of our difficulties into such meetings," he said.

Spearman indicated that between 50 and 100 colleges will be contacted and asked to review the various phases of student government.

At the present time, Charlie Battle and Ned Martin are concerning themselves with fraternity problems, Gerry Good with dormitories, and Phil Baddour, Whitney Durand and Buzzy Stubbs with judicial areas. Ford Rowan is the coordinator of the entire group.

"Later on," Spearman said, "other areas will be added, including Finances, Sororities, Student Government Structure, and the College Press."

He announced that the next meeting of the commission will be held next Thursday at 3 o'clock in the YMCA.

Bawden Named Assistant Dean

James Wyatt Bawden, D.D.S., M.S., Ph.D., has been appointed Assistant Dean of the School of Dentistry and Coordinator of Dental Research. He will assume the directorship of the Dental Research Center in Chapel Hill. Work will begin on construction of the $1 million Research Center in late fall with occupancy targeted for 1965.

The Selection Committee appointed by Dr. John C. Brauer, Dean of the UNC School of Dentistry considered potential candidates from all sections of the United States prior to recommending Dr. Bawden's name to Dean Brauer.

Dr. Bawden was born in April 1930 in St. Louis, Missouri. He received his pre-dental training and Doctor of Dental Surgery at the State University of Iowa, graduating in 1954. Following graduation from dental school he served in the U. S. Navy as a dental officer with the Fleet Marine Force in Japan and Hawaii. After completing his military duty, he entered private practice for several years in Glenwood Springs, Colorado, and left private practice to pursue graduate study at the Stat University of Iowa from which he received his Master of Science degree in Pedodontics (1960) and a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Physiology (1961).

He is a member of Omicron Kappa Upsilon (Honorary) and Delta Sigma Delta professional fraternities. He is a member of the North Carolina Dental Society, the American Dental Association, and the International Association for Dental Research.

Music $$ Award Open To Freshmen

One year grants covering tuition costs at the University of North Carolina have been awarded to three students who show special talent in music.

The Eric Schwartz Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Steven Fraser Skiles of Webster Groves, Missouri. The scholarship is given in memory of a freshman at the University in 1943-44 who was killed in action in Germany, February 18, 1945. Only freshmen are eligible for the Schwartz Scholarship.

Elizabeth Ann Cameron of Falls Church, Va. and Susan Kerns Benner of Myrtle Beach, S. C., received Piano Clinic Tuition Scholarships. Funds for these award are provided by the annual Piano Clinic held at Chapel Hill in the summer.

Students who receive these two scholarships must show proficiency in music, academic promise, and good character.

Moody Favors Speaker Ban; Lashes Opponents

Claims UNC Doesn't Have Sole Power

Assistant State Attorney General Ralph Moody said Wednesday there is no connection whatsoever between academic freedom and the so-called "gag" law which bans Communist speakers from campuses of state-supported universities.

Moody lashed out at those who say University of North Carolina officials should have full power to run the university without rules and guides enacted by lawmakers. Moody was addressing the Dunn Rotary Club.

He said many persons use the term "academic freedom" as "a sort of blanket or catch-all in justification of their position and as a method of attack upon any governmental requirement or command they oppose or which interferes with their naive or distorted conceptions of freedom."

Declaring that UNC is merely a political agent and instrument of the state subject to legislative control, as held by the state Supreme Court as far back as 1852 —Moody declared "The servant is not greater than the master. There's nothing unusual about that."

Says Argument Absurd

He said the false argument that UNC officials should be given full and final authority with no direction or control from the duly-elected law-making represntatives of the people was absurd.

He criticized Consolidated University President William Friday and other university leaders for failure to enforce statutes enacted in 1941 and 1947 prohibiting speeches by Communists.

"Apparently," he charged, "they paid no attention to these statutes for it is a matter of common knowledge that Hall, Rosen and other hard-core Communists have visited the campus and spoken there."

Assailing editors who accused him of writing an opinion supporting the views of the attorney general, Moody asserted, "I don't operate that way. I favor the ban, but the research was based on cold facts and statistics."

Noting that New York State had ordered its regents to rid its colleges of Communists within and bar those from outside, he said New York's supreme court had held the law valid.

Free To Explore

Declaring that "academic freedom is the freedom of the

(Continued on Page Three)

Features Gaslights

Hootenanny Tonight

Graham Memorial kicks off its fall entertainment program tonight with a full-scale Hootenanny at eight o'clock in Memorial Hall. Admission is by student I.D. cards only.

It has been called "the art of the common man," and folk singing is indeed that, but more recently it has become a grand scale social phenomenon, assuring the immortality and fortunes of hundreds of the doe-eyed, soulful-faced troubadours one used to find only on the sidewalks of Washington Square. "Hootenanny" is the password, and the theme is the pure and simple.

Tonight's program includes one of the fastest rising new folk-singing groups, the Gaslight Singrs. The group, three men and a young lady, has made recent night club appearances in Washington, D. C. and New York, and will appear tonight along with Carolyn Hester and Mike Settle, folk soloists, and various guitars.

Leave your inhibitions behind and whistle a happy tune tonight in Memorial Hall.

Carolyn Hester

Osteen Is First YRC Speaker

Rep. William Osteen, state legislator from Guilford County and House Minority Leader, will speak at the first meeting of the UNC Young Republicans Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, in Howell Hall.

"Osteen is one of the most active young legislators, and we are indeed fortunate to have him," Charles C. Hooks, president of the YRC, said.

The YRC plans to meet every other Tuesday with prominent Republicans speaking at most of the meetings. Buz Lukens, national president of the Young Republicans, will speak sometime in mid-October, and Herman Saxon, state party chairman, will speak in November.

Hooks commented on an article that appeared in the Raleigh News-Observer this summer which claimed the YRC had taken the lead from the Young Democrats Club.

"We plan to keep the lead by expanding our activities to give the conservative Republican students a means of meeting the challenge of the present administration's disastrous policies," Hooks said. "We also plan a precinct workers' school for members. The school will be in conjunction with the National Republican Mobilization of Republican Enterprises program."

The club has just finished a three-day membership drive with a gain of 155 new members and hopes to get 250. Meetings are in Gerrard Hall every other Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The officers for the 1963-64 school year are: Charles C. Hooks, president; Charles Heatherly, vice president; Dan MacIntyre, vice president; Jane Hill, secretary; and Dennis Drummond, treasurer.

COUNCIL VACANCY

Interviews will be held next week for a vacancy in the Men's Council.

Whitney Durand, council chairman, announced yesterday that the vacancy will be filled after interviews on Monday and Tuesday. All male students are eligible, although those from the Upper Quad, Old East, Old West or BVP are preferred. The appointment will last until December.

All those interested are asked to contact the secretary of the student body in SG offices between 2-4 Monday or Tuesday, Durand said.

Civil Service Test Date Is Announced

Applications are now being accepted for the 1964 Federal Service Entrance Examination, the U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced.

This examination, open to college seniors and graduates regardless of major study, as well as to persons who have had equivalent experience, offers the opportunity to begin a career in the Federal service in one of 60 occupational fields.

These positions are located in various Federal agencies both in Washington, D. C. and throughout the United States. Depending on the qualifications of the candidates starting salaries for persons appointed from this examination will be $4,690 and $5,795 a year.

A written test is required except for those candidates who have attained a sufficiently high score on the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test.

Six te sts have been scheduled. The closing date is April 14, 1964.

Management Internships with starting salaries of $5,795 and $7,030 a year will also be filled from this examination. An additional written test is required. Applicants for these positions must file by January 16, 1964.

Details concerning the requirements, further information about the positions to be filled, and instructions on how to apply are given in Civil Service Announcement No. 311. The announcement may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country, college placement offices, Civil Service Regional Offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. 20415.

Large Collection At Jane Haslem Gallery

Now well into it's second year, Jane Haslem Gallery, formerly Paintings Upstairs, has an even larger selection of original art. Works by over forty artists from North Carolina, the nation and Europe are on display at the gallery. Collectors have a choice from over 650 paintings, drawings, graphics and sculpture. Although the gallery has special monthly shows, all works are on display at all times.

Original art for every taste and pocketbook may be found in the gallery. Realistic paintings, including land and seascapes and figure paintings by David Martin, Estelle Phillips, Ogden Deal, Loren Dunlap, Omer Seamon, Francis Moody and Garret Boone, are on display. Along the more representational or impressionistic lines the gallery has the works of Benton Spruance, Jack Bilander, Ann Pollard, Anne Kesler Shields, Virginia Ingram, Mary Goslen, Ray H. French, Robert Broderson, Betty Bell, Rudy Pozzatti, Hans Erni, Elizabeth Zachery, Emilio Tavernanaise, Robert Shannon, Bruce MacPhail, Lynn Deal, Jacquelin Jenkins, Marlene Ginsburg, Loring Walton, Jr., and John Gordon. Artists showing abstract work are Boris Margo, Robert Howard, Helen Killion, Susan Moore, Anne Basile, Zada Miller, Rudy Pozzatti, Ray French, Tim Murray, Dick Mandell, Phyllis Howard, Helen Kendall, Robert Rhoades, Florence Zetlin, Mark Lynch, Ed Johnson and Ola Maie Foushee.

The schedule of special fall shows for the year 1963-64 will include one-man shows by Garret Boone and Rudy Pozatti of Indiana, Leonard Baskin of Massachusetts, Francis Chapin of Illinois and Robert Broderson of Durham. Rudy Pozzatti opens the season with his oil and casein paintings, drawings, lithographs, etchings, engravings, and woodcuts. His show will be on exhibit thru October 16.

Besides the sale of original works of art the gallery offers many other services. For the last year the gallery has offered a rental service whereby it is possible to rent a work of art for a period of one to three months. If at the end of the rental period th person wishes to purchase the item the rent paid is deducted from the purchase price. The rental service enables people to have good original work in their homes at a minimal fee. Custom framing is another service of the gallery. There is a large selection of molding to choose from which many are designed and built by the gallery's own framer. A full schedule of art classes is held year 'round at the gallery offering morning, afternoon and evening instruction to adults, teens and children. Classes in begining art, oil painting, pastel, watercolor, figure drawing and advanced art are offered. Also the gallery offers a complete line of artists materials for the hobbyist and the professional artist. For those unusual items not stocked the gallery is happy to make special orders.

Gallery hours are 10:00-5:00 Monday through Saturday and 2:00-5:00 Sunday. Eleanor Smith, Nancy McMillan and Jane Haslem will be delighted to help you on your next visit to the state's finest commercial art gallery. Browsers and questions are always welcome at the Jane Haslem Gallery.

Vol. 72, No. 6 Friday, September 27, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

What Hath Our Honorable Court Wrought?

Honest men sometimes embark on foolish journeys. Sincere men sometimes mistake lip service for substance. Wise men sometimes get mired in the mental mud of emotionalism.

All these spectacles plus many others, including the out and out ranting of demagogues, followed in the wake of the Supreme Court's decision outlawing required prayer and Bible-reading in public schools.

Thankfully, the uproar has been reasonably mild. Except for dark forebodings about the decision greasing the skids toward increasing worldliness and secularization, the shouting and offerings of constitutional amendments have already begun to subside.

Among the ignorant, the poorly-educated and the unprincipled, the cacophony of concern is, if not justifiable, at least understandable. The people either don't know the significance of what they're saying, can't comprehend its ramifications, or just don't care.

Many of these same people also hold peculiar views on many other things—their chief common denominator usually being a conspiratorial view of recent history, a frightened fear of Communism and a tiny quota of reason.

So these people, by and large, can be written off the worry docket. There just isn't much you can do about them, except to feel sorry at the sight of so much sincere but uninformed concern going to waste.

But what about their fellow hand-wringers? The men-of-the-cloth, the (at least formally) educated? What about their misgivings? Are they valid?

Let's look at a few of them.

Here, for example, is a churchman proclaiming that "the decision is the culmination of this quarter-century of confusion. The tragic lasting effect of that decision is that the right not to worship is now held to be a higher freedom than the right to worship."

Although he meant nothing of the kind, doesn't this churchman in his despair have a point? Their right to do something, anything, implies the right to do just the opposite if one wishes to. Otherwise there would be no right—no complete freedom of choice—involved. How can you have the "right," the total discretion, to act, if you don't also have the total discretion not to act?

Then there's the educated layman, agreeing that the honorable judges have "mistaken mere shadow for real threat," in their fear that today's brook may become tomorrow's torrent.

Yet history is replete with just such happenings. Once a precedent has been established, it is an easy matter to justify is being followed, not because of any studied merit the precedent may possess, but simply because it is the precedent.

Our friend continues: the trouble with the ban is that our society now "seems to say to our young people in their time of maximum uncertainty and need: Religion is a private matter: it is all right for any one who wants it, but it is out of place in the main rushing stream of social and civil life."

Well, now. Does it really?

No, not at all. The decision simply says that no agency of government may require anyone to worship or not to worship. Especially it may not stipulate what they shall worship.

Is this so bad, really? Isn't it quite clear to almost any reasonable person that institutionalizing anything ultimately robs that thing of its vitality, causing it to become stultified and sterile? Besides that, any freedom of individual choice in the matter is taken away, which is the main point.

So all we can do about the informed hand-wringers is hope that they will reflect a little further on this matter. If they do, we are confident they will realize that the Supreme Court has struck a great blow in the direction of greater individual freedom.

In the process, the court has saved prayer from becoming even more of an empty ritual than it has already become in so many of our lives. Prayer is far too precious a commodity to suffer such a fate.

And so is our right to complete religious freedom.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Back In The Chips

Apparently the great gold shortage, which struck the University last week and caused the Intramural Office to announce that the program for paid dormitory intramural managers was being discontinued for lack of funds, has been solved.

Somebody found $3,000 somewhere.

We, of course, would like to think that this new development is due to the power of the press, namely us, but we realize that in fact it is due to a re-examination of the success of the intramural program last year. The Administration has agreed to split the cost of paying the managers with Student Government, and will match any appropriation up to $3,000.

What may be even more important than the continuation of the successful murals program is the new found ability of Student Government and the Administration to work smoothly together for a common goal. No one in Student Government accused any member of the Administration of anything, and no one in the Administration accused Student Body President Mike Lawler of being implacable, a charge often heard last Spring.

We hope this is significant. The relations between the two camps was so bad last year that little or nothing could get done if both had to participate.

The Administration's willingness to change its policy, or dig up the money, whichever was the case, may foretell of better things to come this year.

Change Horses In The Middle Of The Stix?

Needed: A Flower Of Nobler Resolve

By EUGENE PATTERSON
In The Atlanta Constitution

A Negro mother wept in the streets Sunday morning in front of a Baptist church in Birmingham. In her hand she held a shoe, one shoe from the foot of her dead child.

We hold that shoe with her.

Everyone of us in the white South holds that small shoe in his hand.

It is too late to blame the sick criminals who handled the dynamite. The FBI and the police can deal with that kind.

The charge against them is simple. They killed four children.

Only we can trace the truth, Southerner — you and I. We broke those children's bodies.

We watched the stage set without staying it; we listened to the prologue undisturbed.

We saw the curtain opening with disinterest.

We have heard the plea.

We — who go on electing politicians who heat the kettles of hate.

We — who raise no hand to silence the mean and little men who have their "nigger" jokes.

We — who stand aside in imagined rectitude and let the mad dogs that run in every society slide their leashes from our hands and spring.

We — the heirs of the proud South who protest its worth and demand its recognition — we are the ones who have ducked the difficult, skirted the uncomfortable, caviled at the challenge, resented the necessary, rationalized the unacceptable and created the day surely when these children would die.

This is no time to load our anguish onto the murderous scapegoat who set the dynamite of our own manufacture.

He didn't know any better.

Somewhere in the dim and fevered recess of an evil mind he feels right now that he has been a hero.

He is only guilty of murder. He thinks he has pleased us.

We of the white South who know better are the ones who must take a harsher judgment.

We, who know better, created a climate for child killing by those who don't.

We hold that shoe in our hand, Southerner, let us see it straight, and look at the blood on it.

Let us compare it with the unworthy speeches of Southern public men who have traduced the Negro; match it with the spectacle of shrilling students whose parents and teachers turn them free to spit epithets at small huddles of Negro children for a week before this Sunday in Birmingham.

Hold up the shoe and look beyond it to the State House at Montgomery, where the official attitudes of Alabama have been spoken in heat and anger.

Let us not lay the blame on some brutal fool who didn't know any better.

We know better.

We created the day, we bear the judgment.

May God have mercy on the poor South that has been so led.

May what has happened hasten the day when the good South, which does live and have great being, will rise to this challenge of racial understanding and common humanity in the full power of its unasserted courage.

The Sunday school play at Birmingham is ended.

With a weeping Negro mother, we stand in the bitter smoke and hold a shoe.

If our South is ever to be what we wish it to be, we will plant a flower of nobler resolve for the South now upon these four small graves that we dug.

Are Grades A Good Idea?

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
Christian Science Monitor

"The trouble is not the grade itself; it's the fellow who gives it, and the fellow who gets it." So said the registrar of Brandeis University, Charles Duhig, at the Buck Hill Falls (Pa.) Conference on Grading Systems. Mr. Duhig was one of 66 representatives of graduate schools, undergraduate liberal-arts colleges; and educational foundations in the United States who met at The Inn in the Pocono Mountains to discuss college grades.

As Howard M. Teaf Jr., governor of the conference, stated, "It's not a meeting to decide anything, but to talk things over."

For some time now, he indicated, educators have been concerned about grades and grading systems and their effect on both faculty and students. The Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., which also sponsors a yearly workshop on liberal-arts education, supported the Buck Hill Falls conference. And the steering committee, consisting of Professor Teaf (Haverford), Robert C. Birney (Amherst), Marjorie Downing (Sarah Lawrence), and Morris T. Keeton (Antioch), made up the "guest" list and arranged the program.

No two of the 52 liberal-arts colleges represented has the same grading system.

Some of the systems contain as many as 100 different grades (from 0 per cent to 100 per cent), and some no grades at all.

Some use letters (A, B, C, D, F) or (H, HP, P, F, X, I); some use per cents; and some use a number scale (4, 3, 2, 1, 0).

At a few of the colleges represented, the grades are posted in public places. Most of the colleges send grade reports to the students through the mail and at a few colleges the students are not told their grades until after graduation.

* * *

Paraphrasing a famous sonnet, one of the participants said, "How do I grade thee? Let me count the ways." Another referred to the display of statements from each of the colleges represented regarding their grading systems as "the chamber of horrors."

Almost all of the college representatives expressed their surprise at the tremendous variety in grading systems, and many found that their own systems appeared cumbersome and almost ridiculous when compared with the others.

But almost everyone present agreed that both the giving and getting of grades is, at best, a difficult procedure fraught with emotion.

"The origin of a grade," C. Hess Haagen, the registrar of Wesleyan University stated in the opening session, "is often in the personal history of the instructor." He continued spelling out some of the difficulties of grade giving.

"The grade may stem from some sort of educational philosophy, the philosophy of the instructor, or perhaps the department head.

"Or there may be a custom or practice of an institution, such as different grading standards for different curricula. It is even true that, in some cases, the individual instructor is told by his administration that he must distribute his grades in a prescribed manner. For example, so many honors, so many passing, and so many failing, often regardless of the nstructor's own beliefs. (This is known as grading on a curve.)

* * *

"Grade giving may be influenced by the use to be made of grades. This is seen in the high grades traditionally given by schools of education because of the fact that teacher certification calls for a grade of 'C' or more. Or the fact that scholarship status is dependent upon grades often will influence an instructor who is wavering between a 'C' and a 'B'.

"Then, too, if a professor gets tougher than the average, and since grades are important for grade standing and for graduate education, students don't enroll in his courses."

Referring to something called the "halo effect," Mr. Haagen concluded by asking, "How much do attitude and appearance affect grades?"

Although Mr. Haagen did not specifically say so, nor did Robert Birney, associate dean of the faculty at Amherst College, there were many at the conference who hoped that the group might make a start on a way, or ways, of eliminating grades entirely.

But just as the tone of the meeting was moving in this direction, Dean J. P. Elder of Harvard University and Dr. Lawrence W. Hanlon of Cornell University Medical College, who were representing the graduate schools, spoke out in favor of grades and their importance to them in choosing students for admission to graduate school.

Professor Birney, who is a psychologist, spoke about grades as incentives. He made the following observations:

"Failing or near-failing grades often spur effort.

* * *

"A high grade in a low-interest course tends to cause less work on the part of the student, while a high grade in a high-interest couese spurs the student to more work.

"There is a 'settle-for level.' A student will often 'settle' for a 'C' in one course, but strive for an 'A' in another.

"Test-taking ability is often what is graded.

"Cheating sometimes results from grading on the curve and also from making the grade itself seem too important."

In an informal survey, Professor Birney found that more than 70 per cent of the students at Amherst want a change in the grading system, but that none of them had suggested a change. In fact, "We can learn to live with any grading system you devise."

But even in the face of such discrepancies in grading systems and motives for grade giving, the spokesmen for the graduate schools defended their position regarding the giving of grades. One of them remarked, "If we didn't have grades to go by, we would only accept students from those colleges with which we are already personally acquainted."

And on the other side, Robert S. Pasley, professor at Cornell University Law School, stated, "We need grades. Letters of recommendation aren't very helpful. If we could get such letters, or statements, which were reliable, we could do without grades."

* * *

Yet William Parker, professor of physics at Reed College, declared that the students at his college voted overwhelmingly to continue the tradition of not knowing their grades in any of their courses until after graduation.

A further statement by one of the administrators present and echoed by several others was, "Grades are often at odds with the purpose of the study of liberal arts. The means-end relationship is not compatible with liberal arts.

"We have just received evidence on how grades as an end product are used (or misused)—by graduate schools."

As an example of the lengths to which a college will go to to try to make grades seem like a true evaluation, one participant told that at his college there are only 97 different grades used. That is, a professor may use every numerical grade from 0 to 100, but may not use 56, 57, 58, and 59. This comes from the fact that 60 is passing, and since 59 is so close to 60, and because the difference between passing and failing could be just one grade point was offensive, they use a grading system which jumps from 55 to 60!

This brought forth a comment from another whose college awards plus and minus to letter grades. They had decided that "A-plus" just didn't seem correct, so they use "AA" to indicate superior, superior work.

But Mrs. Downing sounded a somber note when she declared that, "A grading system is no trivial matter." Competition and status seeking, she said, must go, and these qualities in our society today affect our grading systems. "We," she said addressing herself to all academicans, "must lead, not follow society."

Book Review

Faulkner: The Last Word

By CHRIS FARRAN

MY BROTHER BILL, by John Faulkner. Trident Press, $4.95.

On July 6, 1962, Nobel Prize-winning author William Faulkner died in his sleep. Less than a year later, his brother John died also, but not without leaving us an informal, funny, personal, highly readable account of the four Faulkner brothers and how they grew.

If William Faulkner's legacy is his own powerful writing, then John Faulkner's legacy to us must be "My Brother Bill," an irreverent tribute to his famous brother and the household in which they grew up.

John Faulkner was himself a with his brother's death. John's haps because these passions paralleled those of his brother, he was closer to William than the other two Faulkner boys—Jack, who lives today in Mobile, and Dean, who was killed in an airplane crash in 1935.

Perhaps the primary value of this book is that we can see so clearly the influences in the small Mississippi town of Oxford which later shaped William Faulkner's writing: the simple but strong values his family bred into him, the simple but strong people he grew up among.

John Faulkner begins his book with his brother's death. oJhn's telephone rang at about midnight, July 6. His wife got up to answer it: "'I heard her answer the phone, and then silence as she listened. Finally I heard her say, 'I don't know how I can tell him.'"

That one quiet remark tells us a great deal about the bond between John and William Faulkner. In the book's succeeding pages, we learn how that bond grew — through one amusing, sad, nostalgic, brothers-will-be-boys incident after another.

Their father was working for the railroad then — the railroad built by the boys' great-grandfather, the first W. C. Faulkner, known to Southern Mississippi as The Old Colonel. The Old Colonel had been shot and killed in the town square at Ripley by a man he had defeated for the state legislature. In the bitterness that followed, the Faulkners moved to Oxford, sold the railroad, and the Faulkner boys' father opened a livery stable.

In that Old South atmosphere, the boys' experiences could too easily become a parade of cliches when put on paper: flying kites from dirt streets, riding mules after the days' chores were done, walking home from school barfoot in the dust, the adventure of The First Motorcar in Oxford.

Yet because of John Faulkner's ability as a writer, and because of the appeal of the stories he tells, the book is much too warm and real to be a cliche.

Faulkner traces a large and complicated family tree, and an equally complex and equally unusual troup of boyfriends, girlfriends, town characters, Negro farmhands, doctors, teachers, stuffshirts and ne'er-do-wells.

A landmark in the boys' young lives was Nancy Snowball, the Negro maid. "She wore a black straw sailor hat winter and summer. When she would come for our wash she would put the sheet load of clothes on her head and her hat on top of the bundle. We used to follow her home just to watch her crawl through a barbed-wire fence with that sheet load on her head and her hat on it and never touch it with her hands."

Another member of the extensive family was Mammy, the boys' nurse and playmate: "There were long winter days she spent on her old black knees in the hall playing marbles with me and letting me win because I would cry if I didn't."

All these exaggerated characters shaped their lives — and Grannie and their Grandfather, and their mother, who tried valiantly to subdue the boys when their father was too proud or too amused at their antics to say "no," and Estelle, who divorced her first husband and later married and greatly influenced William.

There was the time Bill started the Bluebird Insurance Company, which insured students against failing classes, and the time Joe Parks, president of the Oxford bank, "asked Bill why he wrote so tiny. Bill told him that he had so many miles of ink left and he aimed to make as many words out of them as he could."

"My Brother Bill" is not only a remarkable tribute to a great writer, it is a colorful account of a unique time and place in American history, and a chronology of a sprawling, restless family.

Strangely, the reader will come away feeling that John Faulkner has unintentionally stolen the show—as a storyteller and as an perceptive, honest, unassuming man.

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER Daily and Sunday

Call: Charles Lively 942-3007 Chapel Hill, N. C.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER

A new scholarship valued at $500 per year has been awarded to Jerome David Odom of Burlington. The award, established this year, is based on the student's scholastic achievements and financial need.

Mr. Odom, a senior majoring in chemistry, was president of Mangum Dormitory here last year and was a member of the Inter-Dormitory Council. He is also a member of Alpha Chi Sigma chemistry fraternity.

JFK Warns Against Cutting Space $$$

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said in a letter made public Thursday that his suggestion for a joint U. S.-Soviet expedition to the moon should not be seized upon as an excuse for slashing the space budget.

"This great national effort and this steadily stated readiness to cooperate with others are not in conflict," Kennedy told Rep. Albert Thomas (D-Tex.) chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee studying his multi-billion dollar space requests.

The President's letter was an obvious attempt to head off any threat to the program in Congress as a result of his recent proposal before the United Nations.

Thomas wrote Kennedy on Sept. 21—the day after his U.N. address—asking him to clarify his "position with reference to our immediate efforts in this regard." Thomas said the press and many private citizens had interpreted the speech "as a weakening of your former position of a forthright and strong effort in lunar landings."

In a reply, the President vigorously denied any such intent.

"In my view an energetic continuation of our strong space effort is essential," Kennedy wrote, "and the need for this effort is, if anything, increased by our intent to work for increasing cooperation if the Soviet government proves willing."

Kennedy's letter was released amid reports that Thomas was fighting an up-hill battle in his subcommittee against deep cuts in the program. Asked to confirm or deny the reports, Thomas said only that "nothing is final."

Kennedy originally asked Congress for $5.7 billion to finance the Federal Space Agency during the fiscal year that began July 1. Congress approved a ceiling of $5.3 billion and the House and Senate Appropriation Committees now are working on the legislation to provide the actual cash.

One source said Thomas' unit tentatively had decided on a $5.1 billion figure. The subcommittee is expected to report its recommendations to the full committee Oct. 4, with House action scheduled for Oct. 8.

POGO

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Bounder
4. Oriental nurse
8. Russ. mountain range
10. Refrain in songs
11. Arrogance
12. Group of trees
14. Roots of taros
16. Barnyard fowl
17. City train
18. City: Vt.
21. Jaunty
24. Large snake
25. Steamship: abbr.
26. Help
28. Apple seed
30. Close to
32. At the present time
34. Music character
37. Takes out: print.
40. Behold
41. Dutch inlet
42. Melodious
45. Anesthetic
48. Female horses
49. French river
50. Let it stand: print.
51. From —— to riches
52. Exclamation

DOWN

1. To thicken, as milk
2. Dry
3. Part of a pedestal
4. A math subject: abbr.
5. Injure
6. Hawaiian greeting
7. Ports
9. Look askance
11. Sound, as a chicken
13. Finishes
15. Underwater craft: abbr.
19. Spinning toy
20. Lion's den
22. Sun god
23. Cattle: poet.
27. Speck
29. Hebrew letter
30. Lumber-trimming tool
31. Seesaw
33. Marry
35. Rainy and icy
36. Little children
38. Showy tree: Haw.
39. Arithmetic problems
43. Slat
44. American Indian
46. Unit of work
47. Property: L.

Saturday's Answer

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Graham Memorial presents a Hootenanny, featuring Carolyn Hester, Mike Settle and the Gaslight Singers eight o'clock in Memorial Hall. Admission by student I.D. cards only.

MOVIES

Rialto—Fellini's 8½
Varsity—Irma La Douce
Carolina—Fellini's 8½

FUTURE

Hillel Foundation, Sunday night dinner for freshmen and guests, 6 p.m. at the Hillel House, 210 West Cameron Ave.

Newman Club, Sunday night cookout and discussion of "Newmanism Updated and Related to UNC in 1963" 6-7:15 at the Student Center.

W.A.A. Square Dance Club, organizational meeting for square dance enthusiasts with Mrs. Walls, 4 p.m. Monday in the Women's Gym.

W.A.A. Golf Club meeting for all girls wishing to play golf, 4 p.m. Monday in Women's Gym.

Interviews for vacancy on Men's Council 2-4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Student Government offices in GM.

Germans Club meeting Monday night at 7:30 in the Grail Room of GM for discussion of Fall Germans Concert.

Interfraternity Council meeting for all students interested in going through fall fraternity rush, 7 p.m. Tuesday in Memorial Hall.

Hillel Foundation, Sat., 10 a.m. Hillel House, Day of Atonement services.

UNC Men's Glee Club practice sessions, Mondays and Thursdays, 4:15, Practice Room, Hill Hall.

Fraternity Handbooks are available in Y Court for any freshman and transfer student who did not receive one.

–Moody Favors Speaker Ban–

(Continued from Page 1)

teacher or research worker in higher institutions of learning to investigate and discuss problems of his science and to express his conclusions," he said college professors and students "are just as free to explore all phases of communism and the tenets of Karl Marx, Lenin and Stalin is always."

He took sharp issue with "these academicians, heads of institutions, and newspaper editors of the pseudo-liberal type who brand as a "gag law," asserting, "the doctrinaire liberals, these social reconstructionists and evangels of quantitative progress are very skillful in capturing words without thoughts and turning them to their own purposes. . . . They are devotees of rhetorical bromides and slogans used by professional followers of ritualistic liberalism."

. . . Let these intellectual edutors, these liberal, left-wing editors tell us today: 'Where is the academic freedom in the colleges of the Soviet Union, in the colleges of Poland, Yugoslavia, Rumania. . . . These liberal do-gooders may find in the end that Communism was born in Hell and look to it, for some of them shall be the father," he said.

"Lenin and Trotsky first became acquainted with socialism in college," he reminded, "and Stalin first learned about Socialism in a secret club or society in a theological seminary," Moody added.

PEANUTS

Varsity
NOW SHOWING

THE MIRISCH COMPANY presents EDWARD L. ALPERSON presents
Jack LEMMON Shirley MacLAINE
BILLY WILDER'S
Irma la Douce
THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS
Shows at 1:20 - 3:52 6:24 - 8:26

Carolina
NOW PLAYING

Shows at: 1:30 - 3:57 - 6:24 - 8:51

Blue Cross Blue Shield

For details mail coupon to . . .
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

STUDENT CERTIFICATE

Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA
Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.
Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

at VILLA TEMPESTA
1213 E. Franklin St. Chapel Hill 942-2266
LUNCH
DINNERS
For Reservations
DAILY – 942-2266
Sunday Tea — 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. — Live Music
Works of Art and Antiques Bought and Sold

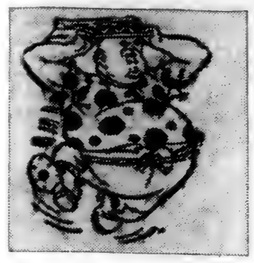
GOING TO SEE YOUR GIRL THIS WEEKEND?



TAKE HER
U.N.C.
STUFFED ANIMALS
BEER MUGS
PENNANTS

Ledbetter Pickard

WANT BOOKS?

Light Summer Reading
All the best-sellers, including autographed copies of SAND PEBBLES, by Richard McKenna. Chapel Hill's own Last year's favorites mostly on the dollar table.
Plus
A lively collection of cartoon books and whacky college humor.

Serious Reading
Nobody has such a fat and satisfying collection of good non-fiction as the Intimate.
Biography, history, poetry, books on the more humane sciences, nature and sports books — The Intimate has a healthy slice of any subject you like.
Prices run all over the field, but there are lots of good titles on the bargain shelf!

USED TEXTS and Study Aids
The Intimate specializes in used copies of current texts—priced to leave you money for more pleasant reading. Try the Intimate first, and eat well!
We have a large stock of college outlines and study aids—new and used—that sometimes prove just what's needed to cram that stubborn fact into your head.

Children's Books
The Children's Book department at the Intimate is as big as some whole shops.
There you'll find books for tiny toddlers, easy readers, on up to the junior 'teens. Prices are on the moderate side, but chum, the books are really delightful.
Treat yourself to a second childhood in the jolly old Intimate!

Out-of-Print and RARE BOOKS
You haven't really seen Chapel Hill until you've discovered our Old Book Corner.
Here is the dusty loot frem many a Carolina attic—ranging from old novels at 39c each on up to rare Carolina and Civil War books you'd never hoped to see!
Discover the joy of old book treasure hunting.

PAPER-BACKS
Now-a-days some of the best literature comes in paper covers—and you'll find most of it at the Intimate.
You'll find most of the quality lines in our stock, and that means most of the books you'll want for class or pleasure.
Easy to carry, easy to ship, and easy to buy—paperbacks from the Intimate are the easy answer for active brains with small budgets!

Visit the famous
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St.

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by
SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.
414 W. Franklin St.
Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463

"Edge-Lacey" Born At MSU

By JOHN MONTAGUE

Spartan Stadium is big. It holds 76,000 persons, but it holds few good memories for UNC's football team. It was here in this giant arena, located on the Michigan State campus, that the Tar Heels came out on the short end of a 38-6 score last October 6. Certainly this is something that is best forgotten.

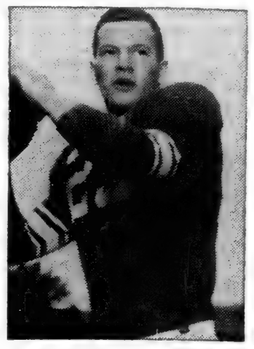
For Junior Edge and Bob Lacey, however, some small bit of pleasure can be derived from October 6, 1962. It was on this otherwise dismal afternoon that the "Edge - to - Lacey" passing team was born. And it came about in spectacular fashion.

Twenty-seven times Edge dropped back and threw the ball. Nineteen times it fell into friendly hands and on ten occasions these hands belonged to Bob Lacey. These three numbers, 27—19—10, stand as all-time UNC records in their respective categories.

Added to this are the 244 yards which were gained via Edge's aerials, another single game individual record for a Carolina athlete. In another category, that of single game-team marks, three records were set. Carolina as a team attempted more passes (36) than ever before, completed more (21) than ever before and gained more from their passing (254) yds.) than ever before.

This year everybody is hoping things will be different, even Edge and Lacey. For a college team does not usually throw the ball 36 times in one game unless its ground attack is unproductive. And most football sages adhere to the principle that, to win football games, a team has to move the ball on the ground.

This is not to say that Edge and Lacey aren't ready to give those fans up in East Lansing a good show. As a matter of fact, their act has improved since that record-breaking October afternoon. Because of this, the script may have a better ending.



STEVE JUDAY

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

MISSISSIPPI VOCATIONAL'S stunning 7-6 upset over previously undefeated Bishop College put the writing on the wall last week. Hereafter, I'd better concentrate on those "de-emphasized" schools and leave the classic intersectional rivalries to someone else.

I was 18 for 25 last week with six fumbles and one juggle — no mean trick when Mississippi draws with Memphis . . . something.

Vocational, East Carolina, Air Force, Penn State, Furman and (I'm going to get shot at home for this) Buffalo beat me. But I am not afraid to stagger on, especially since that ridiculous "Horrorscope" makes me feel like a prophet every week.

DUKE AT VIRGINIA. The only way the Cavaliers were able to score on us was when UNC played dead on a kickoff. They'll be less fortunate this time out. Duke, by 16.

NC STATE AT SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI. Impressive against Maryland, State is yelling ACC Championship. The Wolfpack was humiliated 30-0 by this team last year. They want revenge. It should come. NC State, by 10.

MARYLAND AT SOUTH CAROLINA. Shiner against Reeves. The Terps are hurting, and they'll be hurt some more before this year's over. South Carolina, by 10.

CLEMSON AT GEORGIA TECH. Clemson played good first-half ball against Oklahoma. Then the Tigers got careless. Frank Howard may very well have the best team in the league, but it doesn't play in its own league until next week. Georgia Tech, by 14.

VIRGINIA TECH AT WAKE FOREST. I didn't have the guts to pick East Carolina last week. It was probably the last time Wake Forest will be tabbed to win in this spot. Virginia Tech, by 14.

Further South, 3 In Florida

MISSISSIPPI STATE AT FLORIDA. The Gators have already lost a game, but they still are one of the better teams in the South. Larry Dupree leads the way. Florida, by 10.

PURDUE AT MIAMI. A big surprise was Florida State's 24-0 shutout of Miami. Now Purdue comes to town with the usual top-notch defensive line. What they'll need is a defensive backfield. Mira bounces back. Miami, by 10.

TCU AT FLORIDA STATE. The Seminoles, in only their 16th year of football, are favored due to the great victory over Miami. But TCU has a splendid fullback named Tommy Crutcher. TCU, by 6.

MISSISSIPPI AT KENTUCKY. Kentucky has large tackle Herschel Turner to defend against what should be a fighting mad Rebel contingent. Ole Miss was tied last week. It won't happen this time. Mississippi, by 12.

UCLA AT PENN STATE. The Nittany Lions showed much power in defeating Oregon. Another western team may be just dessert for Pete Liske — the most underrated quarterback around. Penn State, by 20.

WASHINGTON AT PITTSBURGH. One more East-West matchup. This one should be closer. But running backs Paul Martha and Rick Leeson should be too much for the Huskies. Pittsburgh, by 8.

SYRACUSE A KANSAS. Gale Sayers and his Kansas mates lost a tough one to TCU. They'll be ready for an Orange that is going to surprise a lot of people this year. Syracuse, by 6.

INDIANA AT NORTHWESTERN. Northwestern may be rolling to the Big Ten Championship. Indiana, with exciting Marv Woodson, is better. But better will not be enough. Northwestern, by 15.

Notre Dame: Better But . . .

WISCONSIN AT NOTRE DAME. A fine fullback, Ralph Kurek, and a rugged interior line make Wisconsin a power again this year. The Irish will surprise but not this soon. Wisconsin, by 6.

TEXAS A&M AT OHIO STATE. The Buckeyes have two of the Big Ten's finest in halfback Paul Warfield and Matt Snell. This alone should be enough to prevail. Ohio State, by 14.

MISSOURI AT ARKANSAS. The Razorbacks are just a step behind powerful Texas in the Southwest. Missouri lost to a good Northwestern team last week. They will lose to another good one this time. Arkansas, by 10.

LSU AT RICE. The Owls of the Houston school have ruined two straight unbeaten, untied years for LSU. This time, they are not underdogs in doing it. Rice, by 6.

OKLAHOMA AT SOUTHERN CAL. There may not be a better college football game this fall. Both teams are potential poll kings. Oklahoma rolled last week, 31-14 over Clemson. USC stuttered, 14-0 over Colorado. I closed my eyes, stuck my pencil in the paper . . . and broke the point.

broke the point. Southern Cal, by 6.

OTHERS:

Tennessee over Auburn
Cornell over Colgate
Georgia over Vanderbilt
Illinois over California
Iowa over Washington State
Michigan over Southern Methodist
Oregon over Stanford

UNC Analyis

Big Ten 'Human'

By JIM HICKEY
UNC Head Coach

A lot of people look upon Big Ten teams as supermen. I think many of our players were awe-struck when they went out to Ohio State and Michigan State last year. But they found out that those boys are just football players too. They're good, yes, but they're also human.

This year we're a lot better. Not falsely optimistic. The boys just have more confidence in themselves. I would say the main difference between the Big Ten teams and ACC teams is that they have a greater depth of real talent. Also they have a lot of extremely fast backs, most of whom are Negroes.

As for Michigan State's personnel, we don't know a whole lot about them. This is their first game, a factor which might work in our favor. But it could work against us, as they've scouted us and we haven't been able to see them.

From what we've heard, this kid (sophomore Steve Juday) they'll start at quarterback, he is a real good passer. Their team is a lot lighter than last year and they think they'll have to throw the ball a lot.

Now we expect that their big end Matt Snorton will be mainly a target for short passes. He's an excellent blocker, but he's not too fast. The other end (Tom) Krzemienski is fast and supposedly their big long pass threat.

Right off the bat we expect them to go to the outside, and it's going to be up to our ends and corner backs to contain those two fast halfbacks of theirs (Sherman Lewis and Dewey Lincoln).

Their line is bigger than ours and we're going to have to offset this disadvantage by charging quickly with the ball snap. Last week we didn't block as well as we should have, but we've worked on it this week.

In respect to our own personnel, we'll go with the same No. 1 and No. 2 teams as last Saturday. Barden will be at fullback, but Kesler is ready to go. I might start Atherton at tight end in place of Hammett. John is still bothered by a sprained ankle which he got about 10 days before the Virginia game.

I will use Edge about twice as much as Black, but I'm just not sure as to what kind of offensive game we'll play. It all depends on the way they set up their defense. They might decide to stop Lacey, and they can do it. But they'll have to weaken themselves somewhere to do it. If they play us to the outside, as Virginia did last week, then we'll concentrate on running and throwing up the middle.

I've got a lot of confidence in this team and they've got it in themselves. But you never can be real sure just how a team will react. They might go up there and play the best game of their lives. Then again they might play terribly. Psychology is such a great part of football.

Frosh Hopes High In Autumn Sports

By BILL LEE

Athletic Freshmen are getting their first taste of minor sports on the college level, as practices and preparations for the opening meets in cross-country and soccer are well under way.

With the aid of a good recruiting job and several outstanding prospects, the Carolina freshman harriers of Coach Joe Hilton look forward to a highly successful season.

Coach Hilton, himself the AAU javelin champion his last year at Carolina in 1939 (holding a record which was not broken until recent years), states that he has the finest prospects for a Freshman team he has had in a long time. His statement was backed by Assistant Coach Wayne Bishop, who was the ACC cross-country champion in 1958, and is now in his senior year of Law School.

Eddie Daw and Greg Cline, both of New Jersey, will carry a fair portion of the load, but it was emphasized that the team will shine as a whole rather than individually. Stu Matthews and Art Reese are contending for a starting position as only eight may run officially and usually two unofficially for experience.

The first meet will be October 10th at Wake Forest. The harriers run at home against South Carolina October 23rd. In previous years, the three-mile event has been held on Finley Golf Course, but it will be moved to the campus this year.

The freshman soccer team this season has something to shoot for besides goals. They will be attempting to match last season's undefeated record of 7-0-0.

Spirit and enthusiasm has been high as about forty players are trying out for the team. Coach Bill Schieffelin and Assistant Coach Barry Pitts find experienced players, largely from the North where high school soccer is popular, at every position, and are looking forward to a successful season.

CROSS-COUNTRY SCHEDULE

| | |
|---|---|
| Oct. 10—Wake Forest | Away |
| Oct. 15—N.C. State | Away |
| Oct. 17—Virginia | Away |
| Oct. 23—South Carolina | Home |
| Oct. 30—Duke | Home |
| Nov. 4—State Championship | Raleigh |

SOCCER SCHEDULE

| | |
|---|---|
| Oct. 3—University of Virginia | Home |
| Oct 17—Appalachian St. Teacher's Coll. | Home |
| Oct. 19—Warren Wilson College | Home |
| Oct. 21—University of Virginia | Away |
| Oct. 29—Duke | Home |
| Nov. 5—Campbell College | Home |
| Nov. 8—Duke | Away |
| Nov. 22—Guilford College | Away |
| Dec. 9—Woodberry Forest | Away |

Stan, A VP Now, Hobnobs

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Stan (The man) Musial, in a business suit, black hair slicked back, showed up Thursday for his first executive meeting as a vice-president to hobnob with St. Louis Cardinal baseball executives.

The 42-year-old Musial, veteran Cardinal outfielder, was elected Wednesday a vice-president by the Cardinal directors, and Musial didn't waste time in making an appearance at an executive council meeting involving the club's minor league farm system.

Musial returned with the team from Chicago where he took part in his final appearance there wearing No. 6 uniform. His final game at St. Louis will be played Sunday against the Cincinnati Reds. Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick will be among the visitors wishing Musial a final farewell as a player.

Musial announced his final baseball playing seson last August.

FOOTBALL TRIP

Coach Jim Hickey and his football team leave by plane for East Lansing, Michigan this morning to keep a date with Michigan State on Saturday. The 10:00 charter out of Raleigh-Durham airport is expected to arrive in East Lansing at approximately 12:30 p.m. The Tar Heels will stay at the Jack Tar Lansing Hotel and arrive back in Chapel Hill at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday.

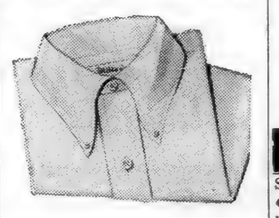
Everybody Goes To
Shoney's
HOME OF THE BIG BOY
Durham's newest & finest Drive In-Restaurant
THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT
½ PRICE ½
GOOD FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY
Shoney's
Restaurant & Drive In
185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
Durham

Stripe It Smart With
Milton's Inimitable M-2



The ultimate in smart shirtmanmanship in our perfect roll M-2 button-down collar in finest single needle tailoring, double pleats at the cuff, 20 stitches to the inch and many other details not found in other quality shirts, tapered silhouette, in new fascinating group of exhilarating stripes. To all this is added Milton's important sartorial touch—the more flattering higher collar for added good looks under a suit or sport jacket.

Combed Greenwood fine white oxford — $5.95. Largest array of stripes imaginable, all at $6.50 despite labor and fabric increases..

Classic 1/8" broad British cluster stripe, white with blue, gray, olive, red or burgundy oxford—$

New wide spaced combed oxford, white ground with stripes at 5/8" intervals of blue, olive, red or gray.

Milton's own new candy corncombed oxford stripe, spaced ¼" apart, corn background with red, blue or brown.

New blue ground set of candy oxfords — ¼" spacing with olive, burgundy or corn Hairline end and end fine broadcloth in blue, olive or gray.

Lightweight woven broadcloth, white with blue, gray, red or olive stripes.

You'll love the New Look at Milton's This Fall Featuring An Unusually Large Group of Fine Exclusives.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

SERVICES: WILL KEEP CHILdren in home. Large yard and playroom. 968-1574.

INTERVIEWERS WANTED: LOcal traffic survey. On-job training Oct. 3-4. Nine men for highway interviewing, Monday through Friday, Oct. 7 to 18. Men and women for home interviewing, Chapel Hill, Carrboro, campus, and environs, Tuesday to Saturday, your own hours, 2 weeks. Neat appearance, accurate and responsible workers only. 4-5 men for 24-hour vehicle classification work, in shifts. Reliability essential. See Lucien Faust, Room 7, Carrboro Town Hall, Monday, or call 942-2805 for appointment.

Lost and Found

SUBSTANTIAL REWARD FOR the return of a brown leather wallet lost near Graham Memorial Saturday night belonging to Maj. Eming Ysona. Return to 501 Ehringhaus.

Help Wanted — Male

HELP WANTED: MALE, ROOM clerk at University Motel, no experience needed, hours—4:30-11:30, 6 days a week, living space and salary furnished. Call 968-4446.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1962 AUSTIN HEALY MKII—21,000 miles, like new, $2395. 929-1462.

1957 PORCHE COUPE, 1600, NORmal recent valve job and transmission overhaul, $1395. 929-1462.

1958 FIAT 600, NEW BRAKES, only 200 miles on major, overhaul, $495. Guaranteed. 929-1462.

YOU'LL LOOK BETTER IN A SWEATER FROM
THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Yes, it's true. THE HUB has the most fantastic collection of sweaters ever shown in Chapel Hill.

Every color, fabric and style that the well dressed college man wants including the new 'Ski' look.

So don't buy a new sweater until you see the great selection at THE HUB.

And remember too, THE HUB has a sweater that will fit any budget. THE HUB's Sweaters are priced from $8.95

THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1963 — Elva Courier | $2600 |
| 1962 — Alpho Romco Sprint | $2500 |
| 1960 — Triumph TR-3 | $1325 |
| 1961 — M. G. Sedan | $1200 |
| 1960 — Renault 4CV | $450 |
| 1959 — Vauxhall | $700 |
| 1960 — VW Panel Truck | $1000 |
| 1953 — Buick Super | $400 |

We Will Trade For Anything You've Got On Any of These Cars. Try Us.

Phone 942-7151

YOUNG MAN
make classics a habit...in
CRICKETEER®

Those accustomed to the always confident manner of the soft-shouldered sportcoat could do no better than make Cricketeer's classic herringbones a part of their habit. In always right grays and a vigorous new brown. Classic herringbone sportcoat.

From $35.00

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

Alan Paine

Superb Sweaters for Men From England

Chester. Handsome V-neck pullover of fine lambswool. Blue mist, fjord, olive mix, hazel mix.
Barton. Luxurious 100% 4-ply camelhair in a six-button cardigan with smart saddle shoulder. Natural camel color only.
Ashford. (Not illustrated) Saddle shoulder V-neck pullover of 100% pure camelhair. Natural camel only.
Richard. The authentic crew-neck Shetland pullover. In new shades of burnt amber, fjord, blue-bronze, greenblue.
Tennis pullover. The original British club-trim sweater classic. White, all wool with true cable, navy/maroon trim.
Tennis cardigan. (Not illustrated) Club-trim cable sweater in popular cardigan version.
Carlton. Six-button cardigan of finest lambswool. Blue mist, fjord, olive mix, hazel mix.

Exclusively at
Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1963 | United Press International Service

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Armored Car Robbery Nets $252,000

LONGFIELD, England (UPI)—A well - drilled gang of eight silent men armed with iron bars and attacking with savagery and speed, smashed the windows of an armored car with bricks Friday and escaped with $252,000 in four minutes.

The robbery, carried out with precision that recalled Britain's recent great train robbery, was the second major theft in 24 hours. A $28,000 payroll was stolen from a safe in a factory in Staines near London during the night.

The eight masked men hurled the bricks through the windshield of the armored car and forced it to halt.

Two of the gang jumped aboard, held an iron bar over the driver and with gestures indicated to other members of the car's crew that they would be killed if anyone moved.

Other members of the gang smashed the car's windows and two climbed in and snatched 7 of the 12 bags crammed with money which had been collected for delivery to a bank.

Four minutes later the robbers were fleeing and savagely menacing the few persons who tried to stop them. They fled so rapidly that one drove his winch-equipped jeep into a ditch. He fled with the others in their truck.

Police speculated that the gang had intended to use the winch to wrench off the armored doors if attempts to smash the windows failed.

U. S. Military Leaders Tour Saigon

SIAGON, South Viet Nam — (UPI) — The United States' two top military leaders left Saigon Friday for a tour of the wild, jungle-covered central highlands. They still had not scheduled a meeting with President Ngo Dinh Diem or his influential brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

The government controlled Viet Nam press agency kept the U.S.-Ngo family feud going, however, with an assertion that Buddhist priest Thich Tinh Khiet had accused the embassy of "meddling with Viet Nam's internal affairs."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, arranged to inspect the Ho Chi Minh trail under which Communist infiltrators and supplies trickle down from North Viet Nam, and possibly a strategic hamlet.

The trail, named for the wily leader of North Viet Nam who drove the French from the country in 1954, follows a circuitous route through Laos to avoid the heavily-guarded bottleneck at the 17th Parallel which divides the country.

Jury Indicts Four Trip Leaders

NEW YORK (UPI)—A federal grand jury Friday indicted four New York City men on charges of conspiring illegally to organize and promote a trip to Cuba despite a State Department ban on travel there.

Three of the four also were charged with illegally traveling to Cuba and back. Joseph P. Hoey, eastern district U. S. attorney, said the indictment stems from a trip 59 Americans—most of them students—made to Cuba last July and August.

Two former students, John Salter of Greensboro and Larry Phelps of Burlington, were among the 59 who made the trip.

The indictment named Lee Levi Laub, 24, Phillip Abbott Luce, 26, and Stefan Martinot, 24, all of whom made the trip to Cuba, and Anatol Schlosser, 26, who did not go but was charged with conspiring to recruit and arrange for the trip along with the others.

Panel Discussion Features SP Meet

By DIANE HILE

Five delegates who attended the National Student Association convention this August spoke on "NSA and its relevance to UNC" during the Student Party meeting Thursday night.

Over 60 students spent more than an hour and a half in a lively discussion that confronted many of the questions and controversies asked about NSA in the past few years.

Student Body President Mike Lawler moderated the panel composed of Hugo Spechar, Kellis Parker, Phil Baddour and Neal Jackson. The panelists discussed the negative and positive points of NSA, the validity of the UNC membership in NSA and their own individual impressions of the Congress.

Civil Rights and the controversy of NSA being a student movement as opposed to it being merely an association of student government was discussed in detail with opposing opinions between and among the audience and the panelists.

NSA was criticized for its recognition of such racist groups as Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and its lack of representation among the schools.

However, in support of the NSA, Parker, Lawler and Jackson explained how valuable the NSA information on the International Students Board, the Student co-operatives and campus political parties has been to the university campus.

In addition to the panel discussion, Party Chairman Neal Jackson explained the open forum policy characterstic to the Student Party.

He also announced the SP membership procedures for voting and vacancies for two legislative seats in Cobb and two in Town Men's 4. Nominations and elections to these meetings will be held at a future meeting.

Council Suspends Student

A student was found guilty and placed on definite suspension for one semester for violation of the Honor Code in a Men's Council open trial Thursday night.

The student, a rising senior, admitted that he had attempted to register in the university even though his academic average made him ineligible.

In entering the university, he admitted that he lied to his parents and to a number of administration officials. The Council held the penalty imposed to one semester because the student turned himself in and admitted the offenses.

The Council explained that his suspension will prevent him from taking correspondence courses or making similar attempts to restore his academic eligibility until the sentence has expired.

Pool Open

Woollen Gym will open all facilities, including the indoor pool, this Monday.

The gym will be open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. On Saturdays it will close at 6 p.m. and on Sundays it will be open from 2 to 5 p.m.

The Monday through Friday hours are an increase over last year when the gym closed at 6 p.m. daily. Chairman of the Physical Education Department Oliver K. Cornwell said that greater student interest had brought about the change.

SCLC Chief Issues New Ultimatum

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. issued an ultimatum Friday stating that unless significant racial progress is quickly made in Birmingham he would recommend demonstrations that will be "bigger and more determined than ever before."

"I have come to the conclusion that within the next two days if something serious isn't done to rectify the situation in Birmingham I will recommend that deonstrations be resumed," the intergration leader said.

King said he would call upon Negroes all across the nation to join the protest.

The president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference SCLC, holding its annual convention here, listed to newsmen four requirements he said must be met to avoid racial demonstrations.

They included:

—That an immediate start of good faith negotiations be made between political leaders and leaders of the Negro community.

—That the Birmingham City Council and the mayor make a public declaration calling for compliance of the law of the land.

—That the city leaders request Gov. George C. Wallace to remove state troopers from the community.

—That the city hire Negro policemen.

"If these are not done in the next few days, I can see no alternative but to resume demonstrations," King said.

The SCLC president said a boycott would be recommended on everything produced in the mill city and all businesses in Birmham.

CURED

Chapel Hill's newly organized integration group will hold a brief meeting Monday night, beginning at eight o'clock in St. Joseph's CME Church, to elect an 11-man executive committee.

Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED) Thursday night adopted the remainder of its proposed constitution.

Indications are that 18 nominations will be submitted to those in attendance and they in turn will elect an executive committee which will include a chairman, secretary and treasurer.

NICKELS FOR RESEARCH

North Carolina farmers contribute a nickel to research and education for every ton of feed or fertilizer they purchase in the state's unique Nickels for Know-How Program.

Scott Blasts Gag Law As 'Outrageous Abuse'

PACKED HOUSE — An estimated 1,900 students jammed Memorial Hall last night to listen to The Gaslight Singers, Carolyn Hester and and Mike Settle premier Graham Memorial's fall entertainment schedule and participate in Carolina's first Hootenanny. The audience responded warmly to a program which included material ranging from artificial humor to let's all sing along together type songs.

—Photos by Jim Wallace

Senator Talks To Meeting Of Legionnaires

State Senator Ralph Scott of Alamance Thursday night called passage of the controversial speaker-ban bill "the most outrageous abuse of legislative process I have ever seen."

Scott said that under the law recently enacted by the 1963 Legislature Fidel Castro could speak on campuses of state-supported colleges.

Adolph Hitler also could have qualified, he said. But Hungarian freedom fighters would be banned from speaking, and so would General Robert E. Lee, Scott contended.

Scott said Hitler would not have fit any of the law's banning provisions.

The law would not prevent Castro from speaking at the State's colleges because he claims not to be a Communist Party member, Scott said.

Robert E. Lee would be banned from speaking, he said, because Lee advocated the overthrow of the U. S. Constitution by force.

And the Hungarian freedom fighters, he said, would be banned because they were communists at one time.

Scott spoke against the law at the Legion Home of Raleigh Post No. 1, which heard Senate President Clarence Stone defend the speaker ban measure several weeks ago.

"To support this bill is to say that you don't believe in the power of human reason to seek out errors," Scott said. "This kind of legislation is always the last ditch stand of fearful people who are afraid to argue with their enemies. . . . When you have to resort to the law to ban the expression of opinion, no matter how objectionable, you're confessing a lack of faith in the system which made us great."

He said that North Carolina is "heading for a dictatorship" if the Legislature allows the speaker ban bill to remain on the books. "For the next time, it will be someone else, finally even the

(Continued on Page Three)

Parking Restricted In Bell Tower Lot

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

Some 100 cars were turned away from the Bell Tower Parking Lot Friday because they didn't display the proper University registration sticker.

The lot, which is for exclusive student use, was being used instead by people who worked in the hospital and by students who hadn't registered their cars.

A barricade was established Friday and a policeman was stationed beside it, checking to see that all entering cars were properly registered.

Campus Police chief A. J. Beaumont said the lot was critically overcrowded when the barricade was erected. "We put up a sign Thursday," Beaumont said, "and told the people that we would be checking the cars on Friday but we still had to turn away around 100.

"The situation was really getting bad," Beaumont said, "Cars were parked all around the curbs, in no parking areas, and practically on top of each other. The situation was becoming worse every day because so many people were parking there that were ineligible. So we had to put up the sign saying this is a student lot."

Beaumont said that a thorough check of all cars on or near the campus would begin Monday.

"If we find a car that isn't registered," he said, "then the owner of that car will have to pay a $5.00 late registration fee, since registration isn't complete until a car is registered.

"Also, he will have to pay the regular $2.50 car registration fee and he might even have his car sent home."

Beaumont issued a special warning to freshmen and inelligible sophomores who have their cars here. "These are the ones who will be in real trouble if they are caught.

"Then too," he added, "many students think because they have registered their cars, that they don't have to put the sticker on them. But they are wrong. A permit in the glove compartment is no good to us. We want to see a sticker."

Beaumont admitted that the parking problem was critical. "There aren't hardly enough parking spaces for the number of cars, so if anybody knows where any hidden parking lots are, I wish they would please tell us. We sure need the space."

Tomorrow

George Mason Miller is a most amazing young man—he skipped four grades of grammar and high school to graduate at 14, received his degree from Livingstone College in 3½ years and is now an 18-year-old Political Science graduate student at UNC. He appeared on a national TV quiz show at 11 and addressed the general assembly of Ghana at 14.

Mickey Blackwell, who repeated about four grades in grammar and high school, describes Miller in tomorrow's DTH.

Also, Curry Kirkpatrick sends an eye-witness report on the UNC - Michigan State football game in East Lansing, Mich.

Football Horrorscope

The long arm of The Law reached out and clutched the selection of games for this week's popular, "Horrorscope. A bit wary because of the below-par performance of last week's guest, The Law crept up on his assignment rather than rushing into it.

Beaumont

"All I know is that North Carolina is going to win," said Arthur J. Beaumont, UNC Campus Safety Director (otherwise known to most students as "Head Cop," or "%&$&$*")

"I'll have to take some time on this," said the transplanted New Yorker. "This really isn't up my alley at all." The Chief was evidently taking the thing seriously — far more seriously than the regular staffers, who look upon it as a ridiculous farce.

But there is method in the madness. It has, in one week, become so ridiculous that it has been moved to the front page where it is among friends. Far, far from the sanity of the sports page.

Actually, last week's debut was mildly successful. Fifteen games were on the board, six men picked — a total of 90 selections. The combined record was 70-20 for 78 per cent.

Curry Kirkpatrick and Al Kaplan were 13-2, Fred Hobson 12-3, and John Montague and Mat Friedman 11-4. Our guest sucker, er selector, Journalism School Dean Norval Neil Luxon succumbed to the pressure. His lucky carnation wilted with a 10-5.

Every man missed the Air Force upset of Washington. Kirkpatrick's other miscue came when Penn State beat Oregon, while Kaplan was mistaken on his pick of Maryland over South Carolina.

This week, newcomer Ron Logan foolishly steps into Hobson's place on the distinguished (?) panel. Chief Beaumont takes the guest seat. All is in order. Ready. Aim. Fire.

| GAMES | Kirkpatrick | Montague | Friedman | Kaplan | Logan | Beaumont |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Duke-UVA | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke |
| State-S. Miss | St | St | St | St | St | St |
| Md-USC | USC | USC | USC | Md | USC | USC |
| Clem-Ga. Tech | Tech | Clem | Tech | Clem | Tech | Tech |
| VPI-Wake | VPI | Wake | VPI | Wake | VPI | VPI |
| Miss. St.-Fla | Fla | Fla | Fla | MState | Fla | Fla |
| Pur-Miami | Miami | Miami | Pur | Miami | Miami | Miami |
| TCU-Fla. St | TCU | FSU | FSU | FSU | TCU | FSU |
| Aub-Tenn | Tenn | Tenn | Tenn | Tenn | Tenn | Tenn |
| Colg-Corn | Corn | Corn | Corn | Corn | Colg | Corn |
| UCLA-Penn St | PS | PS | PS | PS | PS | PS |
| Wash-Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Wash | Wash | Pitt |
| Cal-Illini | Ill | Ill | Ill | Cal | Ill | Ill |
| Syra-Kan | Syra | Kan | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra |
| Ind-Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest |
| Wis-N. Dame | Wis | ND | Wis | Wis | Wis | Wis |
| T. A&M-Ohio St | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU |
| Mo-Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Mo | Mo | Arky |
| LSU-Rice | Rice | Rice | LSU | LSU | LSU | LSU |
| Okla-So. Cal | USC | Okla | USC | Okla | USC | Okla |

Hawkins Is New Di-Phi President

Hubert W. Hawkins, Jr., a senior from Madison, will be inaugurated as president of the Di-Phi Senate in special ceremonies Tuesday evening.

The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Senate Chamber in New West, will feature an address by Werner P. Friederich, Kenan Professor of German and Comparative Literature, on "The Humanizing Influence of Literature."

Hawkins, a Latin major, is a graduate of Madison High School. He was admitted as a sophomore to the Dialectic and Philanthropic Society, UNC's oldest student organization. The Di-Phi dates from the opening of the University in 1795.

Dr. Friederich was born in Switzerland in 1905, and completed his early training there. His university training was at Berne, Paris, and Harvard, where he received his Master's degree in American literature in 1929 and his Ph.D. in comparative literature in 1932.

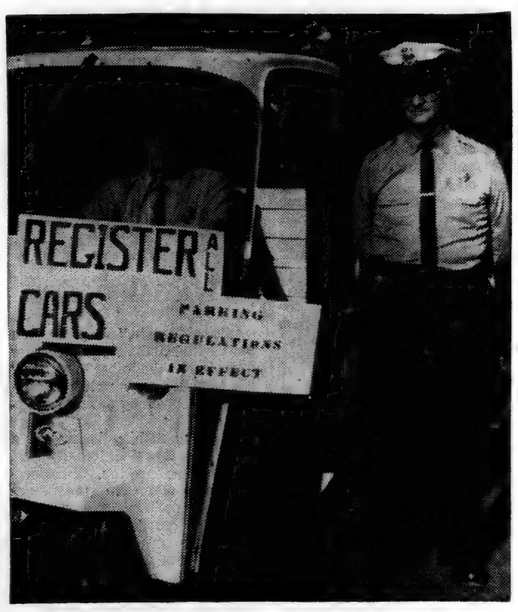
He joined the UNC faculty in 1935, and was awarded a Kenan Professorship in 1959.

Professor Friederich, a former president of the International and American Comparative Literature Associations, is presently on the editorial boards of three comparative literature journals in this country and abroad.

He has been a visiting professor in the universities of Berne, Zurich, and Melbourne, and has taught in the summer schools of Berkeley, Hawaii, and Colorado.

He is the author of various books on comparative literature, including Dante's Fame Abroad and Outline of Comparative Literature. He has also written A Political and Literary History of the United States, published in German.

Other officers for the fall term to be installed Tuesday evening include William Bullard, president pro tempore; Nathaniel Dean, critic; Charles Neely, treasurer; John Freas, sergeant-at-arms; and Wright Doyle, recording clerk.



REGISTERED?—Campus Police are now checking all cars entering the Bell Tower parking lot to make sure that students using that lot have registered their cars with South Building. Any car without a sticker, or with non-student stickers will not be allowed to use the lot.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Holmes Lectures

Three UNC professors of law will preside at the Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures here Oct. 1-3, in Carroll Hall auditorium at 8 p.m. each evening. Harvard Law School Professor Arthur E. Sutherland will be the speaker.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will preside the first night, Tuesday, when Professor Sutherland speaks on "Social Statics and a Restless People."

Dean Henry P. Brandis Jr., head of the Law School, will be chairman Wednesday. Prof. Sutherland will speak on "Education in the Obvious."

Prof. Dan Pollitt, a member of the Law School faculty here and a former student of Prof. Sutherland, will preside the third evening when the speaker's subject is "To Grow More Civilized."

The University was selected as the site of the 1963 O. W. Holmes Lectures by the Congressionally-appointed Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise Committee. Authorized in the will of the late Justice Holmes, the lectures are held at a different university each year. A nationally-prominent authority in law is chosen as the speaker each year.

The central theme for Prof. Sutherland's three lectures is "Apology for Uncomfortable Change."

Prof. Sutherland is a native of Rochester, N. Y., attended Wesleyan College and Harvard Law School. Later he was law secretary to Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. He taught law at Cornell and in 1950 came to Harvard as the Bussey Professor of Law.

Notice

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Monday in Chapel Hill, N. C., and has offices in Graham Memorial. The editors are Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge, and the Managing Editors are Wayne King and Fred Seely. The Daily Tar Heel distributes an average of 8,500 issues each publication day throughout the school year, and is owned by the student government of the University of North Carolina. The business manager is Art Pearce.

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Messrs. Helms & Phipps Reply To Our Invitation That They Come And Speak

One of the charges often leveled at the University is that it invites too many "liberal" and not enough "conservative" speakers to the campus.

The reply from students and UNC officials alike is usually to the effect that they invite "conservative" speakers but many of them can't make it, or that there just aren't that many "conservative" speakers around.

Fresh proof of at least the first half of that answer came in yesterday morning's mail.

As you may recall, a few days ago we editorially invited three noted "conservatives" who support the Speaker Ban law to come to UNC, present their views frankly, and answer questions.

The three were State Senate President Clarence Stone, Raleigh television editorialist Jesse Helms and State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps.

We sent a copy of the editorial, with the invitation paragraph marked, along with a personal note asking if and when they could come, to each of the three men.

Yesterday, two replies arrived. The first was from Jesse Helms. It said:

"Dear Sirs:

"This station's views on the Communist-ban bill and other matters are presented each evening at 6:20 and each morning at 7:25. This would seem to me to be sufficient.

"You may wish to invite J. Edgar Hoover to state his views, in person or in writing, on the subject of Communists appearing on college campuses.

"Cordially,
"Jesse Helms"

Mr. Helms has totally missed the point.

In the first place, the invitation was extended for him to come and speak, then answer questions. Obviously his five minute editorial show does not allow for questions, and this we feel is the most important part of our invitation.

Secondly, whether accurately or not, Mr. Helms' letter indicates he is not sufficiently prepared to defend his Viewpoint on a face-to-face level. It is all well and good for him to sit over in Raleigh and issue pronouncements, but that is not the same thing as coming here and exposing his convictions in person.

Certainly Mr. Helms is not afraid to come — or is he? His reply at least gives reason to wonder.

Thirdly, we asked Mr. Helms to come because he is a supporter of the Speaker Ban law. So far as we know, Mr. Hoover has not taken a public position on the matter.

The second letter we received was from Mr. Phipps. It said:

"Gentlemen:

"I have your note of September 24, 1963 asking me if I can accept your invitation and I do not recall having received an invitation from you.

"Yours very truly,
"L. J. Phipps"

Well, now. Looks like Mr. Phipps caught us with our formalities down. After all, we have not, formally, in a letter, invited him here, so perhaps we deserve to be called down. In an attempt to rectify the situation and salvage a speaker, namely Mr. Phipps, we have sent off a formal written invitation for him to come here and speak. And we sincerely hope he accepts it.

As for Sen. Stone, there's still no answer. But we have our hopes up. We continue to believe that an exchange of viewpoints on this vital matter might go far toward clearing up our differences. And that, after all, is at least partially what academic freedom is all about.

Yale Has Not L ost Her Freedom

Much has been written in the last several days about the abandonment of academic freedom at Yale University. It all began when the Political Union, a student debating society at Yale invited Governor George Wallace to speak before the society.

Yale's acting President Kingman Brewster, Jr. said Wallace's appearance "would severely impair the relationship between Yale and the New Haven Negro community," and the Political Union reconsidered and withdrew the invitation. At this, howls went up from all parts of the country; Yale was running scared, and Brewster should brush up on his academic homework.

The fact is that there was no hint of pressure put on the Union to withdraw their invitation. It was withdrawn after due consideration of all aspects of the problem. Now the invitation has been re-issued by the World Community Association of the Yale Law School and the Yale Law Forum, and President Brewster has said that while he is still opposed to Wallace speaking, he will not attempt to stop it.

We are, of course, the staunchest defenders of academic freedom, but it would be well for some of the attackers of Brewster's actions to realize what academic freedom really is. If the Yale administration had stopped the invitation from being issued, or if they had withdrawn it, it would obviously be a violation of academic freedom, but this is clearly not the case.

Yale still has something very precious that Carolina has lost.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"We Must Face The Ugly Fact That, Step By Step, This Country May Be Led Do wn The Road To Peace"

A Study In Pragmatism: Chief Of The High Court

By SAUL PETT
Associated Press Staff Writer

For one brief moment, the Chief Justice of the United States savored an appetite he could no long indulge. He was sitting in his chambers, a tall, white-haired man of quiet dignity. The place was what you'd expect—a high-ceilinged room, paneled in oak, lined richly with law books, cushioned in stillness, altogether a serene island walled in majestic white marble.

Quietly, Earl Warren had been explaining that the Supreme Court, unlike other branches of Government, cannot engage in public debate or even defend its decisions from attack.

Does he sometimes wish it were otherwise?

His dark blue eyes lighted up and a big hand came down on the desk, slapping it hard, cracking the decorous quiet.

"Oh boy!" said the 14th Chief Justice of the United States. "Sometimes it makes you cringe, to see what other people say and write "

Curtain Is Closed Quickly

There was no doubt that Earl Warren, former district attorney, attorney general and three-time Governor of California, a man who had been a politician most of his adult life, would dearly relish a chance to hit back at his critics. The statement was made not so much in bitterness but in remembered zest, much like an ex-boxer recalling how he would have counter-punched in the old days.

But having parted the curtain momentarily, Earl Warren quickly closed it and returned to the ivory tower, far above the clang of public battle.

"But, of course, we can't," he said. "A Senator or Governor may explain or defend his position publicly, but not members of the Supreme Court. We can't be guided by what people think or say except in legal discussion. We can't be guided by public appraisal. If we did, we'd be deciding cases by other than legal means."

Does the Chief Justice have any escape valve for his suppressed reactions?

"Yes," he said, smiling. "I go to baseball games and football games and get rid of some of my partiality that way. Also, I like to get away with my three sons and go fishing or duck-hunting in California."

A Tenth Anniversary

Next September, it will be 10 years since Earl Warren was appointed Chief Justice by President Eisenhower. Although he is now 72 and eligible for retirement at full salary ($35,000), he has no thought of quitting soon.

He continues to enjoy his job, the judge said in a recent rare interview, despite the fact that he has been attacked more intensely than most of his predecessors. The criticism, which in some quarters has risen even to shrill cries for impeachment, generally stemmed from Warren's opinions on racial segregation in schools, on the rights of individuals in anticommunist investigations, on the constitutionality of State-written prayers in the classroom.

Asked to describe his reaction to this kind of attack, Warren replied quickly and firmly, "My reaction is that I just don't discuss it."

Slamming doors shut on any subject, one gathers, does not come naturally to the Chief Justice. His manner, off the bench, is generally one of warm affability, almost a small-town folksiness.

The Court's Routine

He talked easily of the courts functions and routine. He showed us the large, beautiful conference room adjoining his own chambers where the nine members of the court usually meet on Fridays to discuss and vote on cases after having read all the briefs and heard oral arguments.

These meetings are held in utmost secrecy. Other than the nine justices, no one, not even the clerk of the court, is allowed in during conference. If a law book or document needs to be sent for, the man who delivers it gets only as far as the door. Who on the inside answers his knock?

"By custom, it is usually the newest Justice, in this case Arthur (Goldberg)," Justice Warren said, but quickly added, "This is not any form of hazing, don't you know. If Arthur happens to be busy, another justice goes to the door. But usually it's the newest member."

Does the discussion in conference ever warm up to hot debate?

"You'd be surprised at how little heat there is in our discussions," said the Chief Justice. "That's because we all know what the other man's basic views are and we respect them. But many times there is an accommodation that can be reached.

"It is all very informal and there's very little irritation shown in conference. We take the cases in the order in which we heard them. The Chief Justice starts by stating his opinion on the first case, usually in two or three minutes.

"Then the other justices, in order of seniority, state their individual views without interruption. Then, after some discussion, I ask if we are ready for a vote. By custom, the newest justice votes first and so on up the seniority ladder."

Long Discussion

The length of discussion varies although most cases are disposed of within one day's conference.

"Sometimes the little cases, which you wouldn't think would be any trouble, take an hour and a half or more. Sometimes the important cases go quickly. But in any event, if any one member of the court wants more time to study and discuss a case, we simply put it over to a later conference."

After a vote is taken the Chief Justice, if he sides with the majority, assigns the writing of the majority opinion. He may take the job himself or ask another justice to write it. Among the dissenting members, the senior member in that group assigns the writing of their opinion.

Once written, the opinions are then sent down, again in complete secrecy, to a carefully guarded print shop in the court's basement. Once printed they still remain secret until actually announced from the bench.

It has often been said that the main job of a Supreme Court Justice, that of studying the facts and arriving at an opinion, is primarily a lonely assignment.

"It isn't necessarily," said the Chief Justice. "We talk with one another. We feel free to drop in on other justices. We don't have to sit here and sweat out a decision alone.

"It can be exciting, bringing about agreement, finding a common ground. Sometimes this is very difficul. Justice (Felix) Frankfurter once showed me what was the 34th printed draft of an opinion by Justice (Louis) Brandeis. And this was after conference.

"But the net result was that they finally got a unanimous court on that case. So often men can agree on the result but not on the route by which they reach it."

The Public's Knowledge

Does the Chief Justice think the public suffers from any misconceptions about the court?

"There is a great lack of knowledge about the court and its function even among a large percentage of the bar," he said. "They don't follow our cases very closely. Some of this is due to the nature of our work and the way the public gets news of it.

"We can't discuss cases publicly. We have to be very careful. That's why I go to a minimum of social functions in Washington. Often people I meet ask me questions they shouldn't. Do you realize what a man could have done with the information if he had had advance word on our decision in the Dupont-General Motors case?"

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

Book Review

Youthful Writing

By BILL KEATING

IT IS TIME LORD, by Fred Chappell (Atheneum Press, $3.95)

This first novel by a young North Carolina author is best described as young. Young, not in an immature sense, but in a soul-searching, quicksilver way that is a mixture of humor and pathos. The reader reacts to Mr. Chappell's sporadic tale with nostalgic incredulty.

James (never Jimmy) Christopher, the main character of the novel is searching for some criteria with which to measure his past, which is revealed in a series of episodes that are, at once, vague and connecting. Life in rural North Carolina is portrayed with a heartrending quality that makes one indignant but awfully glad that present North Carolina has changed in its attitude to youth.

His parents are a rather mysterious pair who certainly are not fondly remembered by the young author. It is the grandparents who dominate his childhood and are responsible for his outcome as a "characterless" young man.

The family scenes are endearing in their naivete, even though that is far from the author's purpose; and one looks with some interest on what would be called "back country" today. There is no doubt that the grandparents had an honest and practical sense of propriety which illumines even James's childhood memories and compensates for the lack of communication with the parents.

The action of the book takes place at a crucial time in the protagonist's life. He has just lost his job and is in the process of destroying his home life. One feels the impending action to be in some finely balanced scale that is going to be momentarily thrown out of any order.

Through various flashbacks and present scenes, one is made aware of James Christopher. The reader aligns and retreats from him in the progression of the book, never quite sure where the all-important line of normalcy lies.

In trying to place a value on his past, James entangles his present in a sticky and half-hearted affair with one of the most witless girls in the county, a girl who has a most vindictive husband who is expected to be out of prison any day now and looking for the man with whom his wife has been running around in his necessary absence.

Through it all, Sylvia, his wife, maintains such a beautiful calm that one is hard put to believe the existence of this most faithful of animals. Certainly it is a favorsome plea for a young man to marry his understanding college flame.

Mr. Chappell relies heavily on the signs of the zodiac as character explanations for his family and friends, which is significant considering that James Christopher was born under the sign of Gemini, which is the sign of the arms which denotes balance.

The writing, which is youthful, lapses at times into garrulity and one must be able to extricate the relevancy of these scenes in the over-all plot.

Mr. Chappell's story is more in the telling than in the tale, and his narration is alternately hauntingly poetic, comically abrupt and local. "It is Time, Lord" is much more of a self-revelation than an adventure story and the reader hopes that the writer is satisfied with something. All things considered James Christopher emerges as a cross between Holden Caulfield and Henry Miller.

Reflections

At a Kennedy press conference this summer, a newsman asked him whether he would "seek to abrogate" state anti-miscegenation laws. Confronted with this touchy question, the President put on a sort of nonsyntactical filibuster: "Well, I, the law would, if there was a marriage of that kind you described, I would assume that, and if any legal action was taken against the party then I, they would have a relief, it would seem to me, in the courts, and it would be carried, I presume, to the higher courts, depending on the judgment, so that the laws themselves would be affected by the ultimate decision of the Supreme Court. So that I think that there are legal remedies for any abuses in this field now available."

A Prodding Letter

Editor, The Tar Heel,

Being a freshman at UNC, I know little of the late controversy over the 'Speaker Ban Law.' I note that in today's DTH, Student Body President Mike Lawler stated that: "We must encourage the public and students to find out about the details of the bill and its effects on the University . . ."

This cry has been repeated elsewhere. Yet, nothing seems to be being done. Gentlemen, it seems to me that since the DTH is the one University publication that is uniformally distributed and read by most students, it is your duty to publish the full details of this bill, and possibly, in addition, an unbiased list of the pros and cons with opinions by leaders on both sides.

Your invitation in today's editorial to Mssrs. Stone, Phipps, and Helms to express their views is, indeed, a commendable start.

Needless to say, gentlemen, an article to this effect would certainly enlighten many students.

Scott Bradley
510 Craige

Roommates

"Coincidentally," Judge Dan Moore told a Charlotte Observer interviewer the other day, "my boy shared an apartment with Charlie Jonas' boy down at Chapel Hill."

That, as nothing before, is a sure sign that the 1964 political sweepstakes are on. Nineteen-sixty was of course the great year for political college roommates. Charming coincidence may have thrust young John F. Kennedy into the same Harvard room with young Benjamin Smith, III; but it was more than coincidence that, some two decades later, Mr. Smith succeeded to Mr. Kennedy's U. S. Senate seat.

At the state level, too, the old roommate was doing well. It was said, for instance, that Governor Sanford and his first head of Conservation and Development, Hargrove Bowles, once roomed together at Chapel Hill. At the height of the vogue, it occasionally grew clear that Mr. Sanford did not live in a two- or three-man room, but housed somewhere near the coffee counter on the main floor expanse of Lenoir Hall.

The bearing on 1964's races of the mutual domicile of Young Moore and Young Jonas is elusive.

But the information is a timely reminder to college freshmen who buckle down to their studies this week. The man with political dreams should choose his roommate carefully. Now it seems that even the political aspirant's son will make a more than cavalier appraisal of the man across the room. His daddy may be running too.

—Greensboro Daily News

Cosmopolitan Club Opens To Everyone

Editors, The Tar Heel,

There are two impressions students have about the Cosmopolitan Club. One is the Cosmopolitan Club is only for foreign students and second is that most of the members of the club are graduate students. I would like to say that both impressions are absolutely wrong. Since there are so many people asking me about the function of the Cosmopolitan Club, I think that this will give me a chance to explain something about the club, and hopefully, to correct the wrong impressions.

First, the Cosmopolitan Club is open to everybody who is interested in international student activities. The purpose of the club is not to isolate foreign students, but rather to provide an opportunity to gain understanding of people from other countries. That is, a person from a foreign country can learn something from meeting an American student, and at the same time, the American student can also learn much from the foreign student. The club hopes to provide such an opportunity through its cultural and social activities. From this kind of experience we hope that there will be a greater awareness on the part of each student of a world spirit.

Secondly since most of the foreign students here are graduate students and foreign students are automatically members of the club, there are a number of graduate students in the club, but membership is not only for graduate students. We welcome undergraduates as well.

There is a proverb in China which says, "We are all brothers within four seas." Several thousand years ago ancestors of China thought the earth was composed of a piece of land surrounded by four seas in each direction, and the proverb means all people on this earth are brothers and sisters regardless of nationality and race. This actually is what the word "cosmopolitan" means, and this attitude is the ideal of the Cosmopolitan Club.

Terence Yen

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Combo Party—8-12 p.m., in front of GM, in case of bad weather in Rendezvous Room. Jades will be playing.

Day of Atonement Services—10 a.m., Hillel House.

FUTURE

Cosmopolitan Club—4 p.m., Sun., Roland Parker Lounge, first meeting for members and interested persons.

Newman Club—6-7:45 p.m., Sun., Student Center, cookout and discussion. "Newmanism Updated and Related to UNC 1963."

Hillel Foundation—6 p.m., Sun., dinner for freshman and guests, program "Challenge of Religion."

Lutheran Student Association—6 p.m., Sun., Lutheran Church, Dr. George R. Whittecar speaker.

Interviews for vacancy on Men's Council — 2-4 p.m., Mon. and Tues., Student Government offices in GM.

Germans Club — 7 p.m., Mon., Grail Room, GM. Discussion of Fall Germans Concert.

W.A.A. Golf Club—4 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym, for all girls interested in playing golf.

W.A.A. Square Dance Club, 4 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym, for all square dance enthusiasts.

Student Government Interviews —2-5 p.m., daily the second week in Oct., 210 GM. Interviews are for limited committee appointments.

Attorney General's Staff — 6:30 p.m., Mon., Council Room, GM. For all members assigned to work with IDC.

Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society —7:30 p.m., Tues., 265 Phillips, speaker Dr. S. Y. Tyree, "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sunday, Chapel of the Cross Parish House, "On the Waterfront."

Yack Photos—1-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri., basement of GM, for Freshmen. Senior, 4th year med. students and 3rd year law students will have a $1.00 late fee.

IFC—7 p.m., Tues., Memorial Hall, for all students interested in fraternity rush.

Woodrow Wilson Fellows' Reception, 4 p.m., Tues., Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium.

Journalism and Pre-Journalism majors' get-acquainted breakfast—10 a.m., Sun., Howell Hall Lounge, sponsored by the UNC Press Club.

Tennis Club—4 p.m., Tues., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Splash Club—4 p.m., Tues., Women's Gym, synchronized swimming and water ballet.

Publications Board—4 p.m., Wed., Woodhouse Room, GM. Election of chairman.

Editors Round Table — 4 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker I.

All Juniors and Seniors considering Ministry, 203 South Bldg., see Dean Duffy as soon as possible.

Fraternity Handbooks available in Y Court.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—BA 71 and BA 72 books, return to 26 Craige or 272 Phillips or call 942-5591.

Found—Wedding band in Lenoir Hall, contact Bill Talbert at Lenoir Hall and identify.

Found — Wedding band between cemetery and tennis courts, contact Mrs. Hammond at Y Building and to claim.

HELD OVER!

Federico Fellini's "8½"

No Short — Film is 135 min. long
Professional Union Projection
New Art Exhibit: Frank Creech, Duke Varsity Center
Showings start at 2:24, 2:42, 7 & 9:18 p.m.

RIALTO THEATRE, Durham

Enroll in:

TYPEWRITING

And/or

SHORTHAND

Afternoon and Evening Classes begin Oct. 3, 1963
for information, call or write

TOWN CLASSES Secretarial College
159½ E. Franklin (Over Sutton's)
Chapel Hill
P. O. Box 615 Telephone 942-4797

Blue Cross Blue Shield

STUDENT CERTIFICATE

Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.

For details mail coupon to . . .

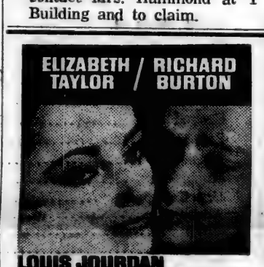
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA
Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.
Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....



LOUIS JOURDAN
ELSA MARTINELLI
NIGHT & SUNDAY ..... $1.00
WEEKDAY MAT. ..... 85c
In Color
NOW PLAYING
The South's Finest Theatre In Durham
The V.I.P.s
Northgate Shopping Center
Northgate Theatre

Registration For '64 Med Students Now

The Association of American Medical Colleges urges students who will be seeking admission to a medical school in September, 1964, to register now for the Medical College Admission Test, which will be given Saturday morning, October 19, in Durham. Application for this examination should be sent directly to the Psychological Corporation in New York City before October 4, 1963.

Information booklets, which include sample questions and application forms, are available at the University Testing Service, Room 019 Peabody Hall, and in the Dean's Office of the Medical School, Room 126 MacNider Building.

Applications to the first year class of the UNC School of Medicine are now being accepted, and students are advised to complete their applications for early consideration by the Committee on Admissions. Interviews for prespective students will begin October 1, Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth, chairman of the Admissions Committee said.

- Scott -

(Continued from Page 1)

American Legion."

He charged that the bill's legislative history "smacks of rottenness."

"The backers of this bill know it was of great public interest, yet they hid it until the next to the last day and kept a great secret. Does that indicate any great trust of the people or their elected representatives?"

He also described the law as "a crude slap at the dedicated" men and women serving on college boards of trustees.

He said that for students to learn the true meaning of freedom and Americanism, they must be free to be exposed to all ideas so they can see for themselves those that are wrong and those that are right.

BLOOD NEEDED

Ollie Fanan, 59, of Chapel Hill, needs blood.

She is currently in Memorial Hospital and can receive any type of blood.

Blood donors must be 21 or have written permission from their parents.

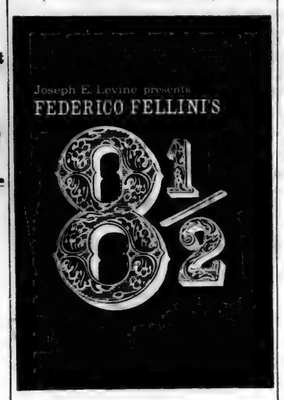
Carolina

NOW PLAYING



Shows at: 1:30 - 3:57 - 6:24 - 8:51

Grad Counselors Aid 1,200 Coeds

The University seeks to solve the dilemma of "To whom can I turn?" for its 1,200 undergraduate coeds through the use of graduate counselors in its women's dormitories.

Fifteen graduate students in their mid 20's will be living in undergraduate dorms this year to offer their advice, guidance, and "good-listening" abilities to the coeds. The girls have been hand-picked by the Office of the Dean of Women and have passed an intensive training program during the orientation period. They continue in-service training throughout the year.

In return for their services, they receive graduate assistantships to continue their own education.

The graduate counselors provide a middle level of help to the coed—somewhere between her roommate and the officials in the dean's office. She lives next door, her advice is informal, she is nearly the same age, she is herself a student. At the same time, she has the experience of her own undergraduate years behind her, she has been trained in structure of the University and can answer most routine questions on organization, customs and rules, she knows where to refer girls with more serious problems.

Although the graduate counselors aid the housemothers in some of the dormitory clerical work and hostess duty, their main task is being aware of situations developing on the halls. Because of their closeness with the undergraduate students they can often tell whether a "depression" on a particular hall is the result of mid-term exams or a prelude to something more serious. They are officially part-time staff members of the Dean of Women's office.

The graduates are advised to limit their counseling to personal and social problems, referring most academic questions to the faculty advisers which the University provides to each student.

The program is quite unique to UNC. Most coed universities provide either full-time dorm counselors in their 30's or middle-aged housemothers; UNC provides both, giving the girls a choice of people to go to with their problems. Naturally, there are times when a coed would rather discuss a difficulty with someone the age of her mother.

The first graduate counselors were used at the University in the early 1940's. The ultimate goal is to have one counselor per floor in each undergraduate dormitories. The larger dorms are already operating under this system.

The Dean of Women has little trouble recruiting outstanding graduate students for the job of counselor. The work can be exciting as well as satisfying, and many of the girls counsel more than one year. Seven out of 15 this year are repeaters. No attempt is made to recruit only UNC graduates, since it is felt that a variety of backgrounds among the counselors can be useful. The girls come from all parts of the United States and from co-educational and women's colleges.

The task a counselor faces depends on the dorm where she works. The nursing dorm houses freshmen, but most of UNC's coeds are juniors and seniors who have transferred to Chapel Hill from other four-year schools or junior colleges or have lived at home during the underclassmen days.

"The freshmen know almost nothing about college life," says Mary Greenwood, one of the three counselors in the Nursing dorms. "They don't know whether to accept a blind date, whether it is wise to take five courses all meeting the same day, or whether it is absolutely obligatory to dress just like everyone else. Freshmen must establish a whole set of college standards. They are in and out of my room all the time, and are wonderful to work with."

Transfer upperclassmen present different problems, according to May Jones who counsels in Cobb. As juniors they have already decided whether they like college and have chosen their standards. The counselor must help them understand the social rules of their new University and handle other small problems as they come up.

May finds that upperclassmen are also more likely to rely on their friends for help, coming to the graduate counselor only in cases of necessity. Graduates of small junior colleges, however, seem to need more aid than transfers from four-year schools, she notes.

All the new coeds are subject to the pressures of "rush" for sororities and come for advice on whether to join or comfort if they are not accepted.

The graduate counselors do not always wait for trouble to come to them.

"Sometimes the grapevine lets us know that a girl has a problem, and we go to offer our aid," says May, "but we are careful not to pry."

Although a girl with a known problem gets special attention from the counselors, they are careful to be impartial and never associate themselves with a clique or a particular group on their hall.

The graduate counselor program assures that no undergraduate coed, no matter what her problem, ever feels alone at UNC. There is always her graduate counselor down the hall with a ready, willing ear.

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by

SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.

414 W. Franklin St.
Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463

One of the seven golden keys to brewing

Budweiser®

WORLD'S GREATEST BREWMASTERS

Brewing beer is a blend of art and science, calling for a skill which Budweiser brewmasters have exhibited for more than 100 years. One more of the seven special things we do to make your enjoyment of Budweiser even greater!

KING OF BEERS • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Hurl
5. Clothes
9. Voided escutcheon
10. French river
11. To run before the wind: naut.
12. Largest continent
13. Minute object
14. Blood vessel
16. Cuckoo
17. Some
18. Five-dollar bill
19. To vote again
21. Saucy
22. Seaport: E. Braz.
24. Plant fungus disease
27. Forward
31. Garment border
32. Girl's name
33. Contend for
34. Capital: New York
36. Burrowing animal
37. Rendered fat of pigs
38. Psyche
39. S-shaped molding
40. —— upon a time
41. Bodies of water
42. Monetary unit: Siam

DOWN

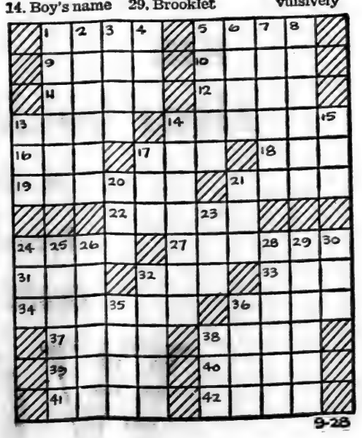
1. Sine of the complement of an arc
2. Northern ocean
3. Great quantity
4. Spread grass to dry
5. Weepy
6. Eject
7. Lament
8. Scorching implement
13. Scratch or damage
14. Boy's name
15. Still
17. Biblical king
20. Warp-yarn
21. Animal's foot
23. Tavern
24. Sheep: Tibet
25. Musical instruments
26. Roundabout proceedings
28. Affirm openly
29. Booklet
30. Scotch river
32. Mountain system: So. Am.
35. Region
36. —— Lisa
38. Weep convulsively

Yesterday's Answer



9-28

Q.

Why buy a pen this good when you might just lose it?

A.

Parker won't let you lose it. If you do, it will be replaced*

*SPECIAL REPLACEMENT OFFER

If you buy a Parker 45 for $5 between now and October 31, 1963, it will be protected against loss for one full year at no extra cost. Just register its purchase by mailing one-half of the Parker 45 Registration Certificate to the insurance company listed on the certificate. Then if the pen is lost, the insurance company will replace it at no charge. All you have to do is mail the other half of the certificate, properly notarized, and describe how the pen was lost.

Here's why this is such a good pen for a college student:

It's "convertible". You can load it with a cartridge or you can replace the cartridge with this ingenious little "converter" and fill it from an ink bottle. Hard to run out of ink during an exam.

Solid 14K gold point. You get a choice of seven widths from extra fine to extra broad. And if you damage a point, your dealer can replace it instantly.

For only $5 you get: The pen, a "converter," a cartridge, and free exchange of any undamaged point within 30 days of purchase. PLUS Parker's special replacement offer. This guarantee against loss will be offered until October 31st only, so better see your Parker dealer right away.

† PARKER—At 75 years—Maker of the world's most wanted pens

The new Parker 45 Convertible $5

Upset-Minded UNC Visits MSU

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The North Carolina Tar Heels, listed as 13-point underdogs, hope to prove the odds-makers wrong and keep their own record intact when they take on Michigan State this afternoon in far-away East Lansing.

An opening-game crowd of 65,000 is expected to fill Spartan Stadium for the contest, scheduled for a 1:30 (EST) start. The weather outlook is for fair skies with temperatures in the 70's.

The game, which is the second meeting between the two schools, will be broadcast locally over two networks. Bill Currie and Jim Heavner will call the game over WCHL (1360), while Ray Reeve and Crowell Little will handle the announcing chores for WRAL (1240).

UNC's main objective will be to bottle up the Spartans' strong outside-running game. Last year the swift MSU backs were able to sweep the ends many times in rolling up a 38-6 victory.

Much of this task will lie with the defensive ends and corner backs. Bob Lacey and John Hammett are expected to start at the terminals, but Frank Gallagher will relieve Lacey much of the time on defense. Joe Robinson and John Atherton will help out Hammett.

The corner back posts will be manned by Hank Barden and Dave Braine. Eddie Kesler will spell Barden on the left side and Ken Willard may occasionally stay in on the right side.

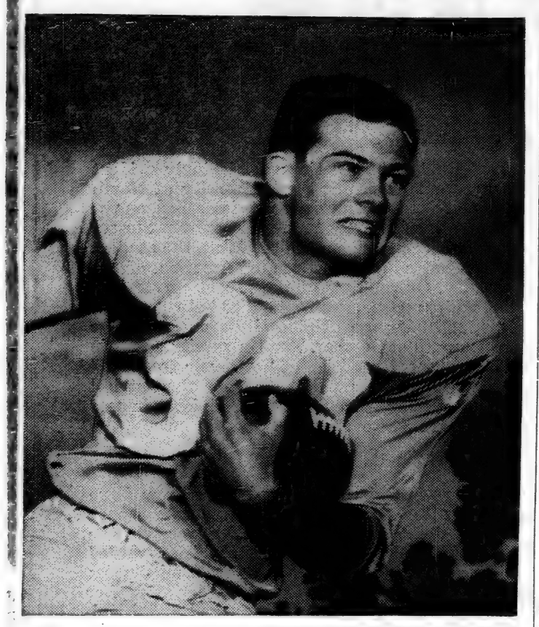
The Spartans for whom they will be especially on the lookout are two slippery halfbacks who run like scared rabbits. They are Sherman Lewis (5-9, 154) and Dewey Lincoln (5-8, 185). Reserve Ron Rubick (5-7, 179) can also cause a lot of trouble. Last year he alone picked up 207 yards in 14 carries against UNC.

Carolina's own attack, though not possessing as much speed, can strike just as quickly. The Junior Edge-to-Lacey aerial provides the Tar Heels with an effective long-range bomb.

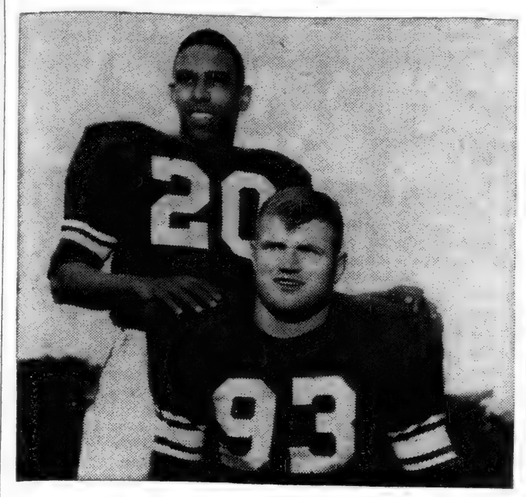
Running back Ken Willard and fullback Barden showed their ground gaining abiilties last week, as did Ron Tuthill, who backs up Willard. Fullback Kesler, who coach Jim Hickey calls "the smartest runner I have," is still hampered by injuries, but should see more action than he did last week when he missed the entire second half because of a broken nose.

Wingback Tommy Ward and second-team tight end Robinson are considered other prime pass targets for Edge.

The interior line of the Tar Heels is composed of tackles Gene Sigmon and Vic Esposito, guards Jerry Cabe and Richy Zarro and center Chris Hanburger. They will be squaring off against a Spartan line which averages 215 pounds. Rahn Bentley (5-9, 214) and Dave Herman (6-1, 236) are the tackles, John Karpinski (5-11, 207) and Earl Lattimer (5-11, 218) are the guards and Don Ross (6-0, 199) is the center.



HANK BARDEN — Starts at fullback today for the Tar Heels. He picked up 54 yards in 11 carries against Virginia.



MICHIGAN STATE CO-CAPTAINS — Sherman Lewis (standing) and Dan Underwood (kneeling) lend speed and beef respectively to the Spartan attack.

The Line-Ups

| UNC | MSU |
|---|---|
| LE—Bob Lacey | LE—Tom Krzemienski |
| LT—Gene Sigmon | LT—Rahn Bentley |
| LG-Jerry Cabe | LG—John Karpinski |
| C—Chris Hanburger | C—Don Ross |
| RG—Richy Zarro | RG—Earl Lattimer |
| RT—Vic Esposito | RT—Dave Herman |
| RE—John Hammett | RE—Matt Snorton |
| QB—Junior Edge | QB—Steve Juday |
| RB—Ken Willard | LH—Sherman Lewis |
| WB—Tommy Ward | RH—Dewey Lincoln |
| FB—Hank Barden | FB—Roger Lopes |

USC Slight Choice

UPI Sports Wire

A nationally-Televised clash between two potential national champions, Southern California and Oklahoma, and the opening games of most Big Ten and Ivy League teams are among the highlights of a jam-packed college football program Saturday.

Southern Cal, the defending national champion, is rated only a one-point favorite over Oklahoma in their important battle at Memorial Coliseum, Los Angeles. Both were winners in their openers a week ago, and both are figured as strong contenders for the No. 1 national ranking.

Only two Big Ten teams, Northwestern and Wisconsin, saw action last week but the league's entire lineup will be playing this week.

Northwestern is a 15-point favorite over Indiana in the only conference game, but other highlights find Wisconsin a 3-point favorite against Notre Dame in the opener for a fighting Irish team rated much improved, Michigan a 7-point choice over SMU, Ohio State 12 over Texas A&M, Michigan State 13 over North Carolina, and Purdue 3 over Miami Fla. in one of the top night games.

Harriers To W-Salem; Face Deacons

UNC's cross-country team launches what should be another highly successful season today as it mets Wake Forest in Winston-Salem.

Coach Joe Hilton's harriers have won the ACC crown for the last three years and have taken five championships in the last seven years.

Juniors and fellow New Yorkers, Jerry Smith and Art Maillet together with senior captain Bob Bennett and sophomore James Meade figure to be Carolina's top entries.

Meade has been the leader among the club's nine sophs. There are only three seniors on the squad so the team figures to get stronger as the season progresses.

A missing face will be, of course, Larry Henry, last season's ACC individual cross-country champion.

The schedule features seven regular season meets, one with each conference rival, plus the state championships on Nov. 4 and the ACC meet on Nov. 11. Both will be held in Raleigh. Strangely, there will be only two meets over Carolina's new course—Oct. 23 and 30 against South Carolina and Duke respectively.

NOTE

Sports Editor Curry Kirkpatrick is in East Lansing today, covering the UNC-Michigan State game. Read his first-hand report in tomorrow's DTH.

Varsity
NOW SHOWING

THE MIRISCH COMPANY AND EDWARD L. ALPERSON PRESENT
JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BILLY WILDER'S
IRMA LA DOUCE
THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS
Shows at 1:20 - 3:52
6:24 - 8:26

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1963 — Elva Courier | $2600 |
| 1962 — Alpho Romco Sprint | $2500 |
| 1960 — Triumph TR-3 | $1325 |
| 1961 — M. G. Sedan | $1200 |
| 1960 — Renault 4CV | $450 |
| 1959 — Vauxhall | $700 |
| 1960 — VW Panel Truck | $1000 |
| 1953 — Buick Super | $400 |
| 1960 — Porche Convert. | $2600 |

We Will Trade For Anything You've Got On Any of These Cars. Try Us.

Phone 942-7151

CLASSIFIED ADS

Automotive

FOR SALE OR TRADE: 1961 4 DR. Dodge Lancer or 1958 Sprite. For sale or trade for motorcycle and equity. Both cars in excellent condition. Desire either Triumph, BSA, Norton, NSU, Honda "300" or Hambey "K" cycle plus equity for trade. Call 942-2742 after 1:00 p.m.

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Services Available

SERVICES: WILL KEEP children in home. Large yard and playroom. 968-1574.

Sale — Miscellaneous

INTERVIEWERS WANTED: Local traffic survey. On-job training Oct. 3-4. Nine men for highway interviewing, Monday through Friday, Oct. 7 to 18. Men and women for home interviewing, Chapel Hill, Carrboro, campus, and environs, Tuesday to Saturday, your own hours, 2 weeks. Neat appearance, accurate and responsible workers only. 4-5 men for 24-hour vehicle classification work, in shifts. Reliability essential. See Lucien Faust, Room 7, Carrboro Town Hall, Monday, or call 942-2805 for appointment.

INTERESTED IN SPIRITUALism? Take a glance through "Ghost Hunter", at the Intimate Bookshop.

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER
Daily and Sunday
Call: Charles Lively
942-3007
Chapel Hill, N. C.

For Bright Chaps with Lean Budgets

After the game, the Intimate invites you to stop in for a bit of sharp-shooting in the old book corner.

You'll find literally hundreds of old books, priced from 15c to 97c—many not available anywhere else.

Anybody can buy a new book—but it takes a lucky collector to find treasure in rare books!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

T. L. Kemp, Jewelry

THE HOME OF THE OLD WELL CHARM
135 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1331

STUDENTS CLIP AND SAVE

La Pizza
Dial
967-1451
CARRY OUT & DELIVERY SERVICE
A LA CARTE MENU
DIAL 967-1451
106 W. Main St. Carrboro, N. C.

| | Small | Large |
|---|---|---|
| Cheese-Tomato | 1.10 | 1.70 |
| Ground Beef | 1:30 | 2.10 |
| Pepperoni | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Sausage | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Mushroom | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Green Pepper | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Anchovy | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Olive | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Onion | 1.30 | 2.10 |
| Shrimp | 1.50 | 2.50 |
| La Pizza DeLuxe | 2.00 | 3.50 |
| (Everything—except shrimp—No changes) | | |
| Added Ingredients | .10 | .20 |

| | |
|---|---|
| Ravioli and Meat Sauce | 1.00 |
| Spaghetti and Meat Sauce | 1.00 |
| Salad with French, Thousand Island, Italian or Catalina Dressing | .35 |
| Salad with La Pizza Roquefort Dressing | .40 |
| Garlic Bread, each order | .20 |
| Spumoni .25 Ice Cream | .15 |

SANDWICHES:

| | |
|---|---|
| Cheeseburger | .50 |
| Hamburger | .45 |
| La Strami (consists of Pastrami, Salami, Provolone Cheese, Lettuce and Tomato, Garlic Butter, Mayonnaise, Oregano) | .75 |
| Sausage Sandwich (Sweet Mild Italian Sausage, Sausage Sauce, Sweet Red Peppers, Oregano) | .55 |
| Hot Pastrami Sandwich with Mustard | .50 |
| Salami Sandwich | .40 |
| Lettuce and Tomato Sandwich | .30 |
| Ham Sandwich with Tomato | .45 |

NOTE: No sandwiches served between 5:00 P.M. and 8:00 P.M. on Saturdays and Sundays.

BEVERAGES:

| | White or Chocolate |
|---|---|
| Lge. Coca-Cola. .15 | Milk, ½ Pint .15 |
| Large 7-Up .15 | White, Quart .35 |
| Large Tru-Ade .15 | Coffee or Tea .20 |
| Cigarettes .30 | |

FLAT DELIVERY CHARGE 40c
FOR ONE OR MORE PIZZAS
Free Delivery on Orders of $5.00 or More
OPEN DAILY & SUN. 5 P.M. TO 1 A.M.
(EXCEPT WEDNESDAY)
DELIVERIES ACCEPTED Up To 12:30 A.M.
For Faster Service—Please Have Correct Change Ready
Allow 45 Minutes for Delivery
NO ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES DELIVERED ON CAMPUS

HUGGINS'
YOUR PET SUPPLIER

Mrs. M. H. Dent, 501 Purchase St., Rye, N. Y., brought her son, David to enter Carolina this fall as a freshman. While in Chapel Hill she visited Huggins' Pet Department with her poodle "Binkley."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

You will most likely find it at Huggins., Try us first.

Free Parking While You Shop with Huggins'
HUGGINS HARDWARE
Self Service or Ask for Clerk Service

Everybody Goes To
Shoney's
HOME OF THE BIG BOY
Durham's newest & finest Drive In-Restaurant
THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT
½ PRICE ½
GOOD FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY
Shoney's
Restaurant & Drive In
185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
Durham

HEAR UNC vs Michigan State
On WCHL

Every Saturday afternoon WCHL joins CARANET, the Carolina Football Network for the play-by-play of the Tar Heels' games.

This play-by-play report with BILL CURRIE and JIM HEAVNER is just one part of the daily coverage of UNC Sports Broadcasts on WCHL.

PLUS:
Hear the Jim Hickey Show
at 12:30 each Saturday
Presented by Bill Colville's
CHAPEL HILL BARBER SHOP

WCHL-1360

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1963 | United Press International Service

8

DR. JACQUES HARDRE

Dr. Hardre Will Receive High Honor

A University professor will receive the famed Palmes Academique given by the French government for distinction in French letters.

He is Professor of French Jacques Hardre, of the Department of Romance Languages, honored for his distinction in French affairs, teaching scholarship, and administration.

Dr. Hardre will receive the rank of Chevalier, one of the three ranks conferred by the society. In the near future, a representative of the Cultural Attache of the French Embassy will come to UNC to confer the decoration on Dr. Hardre.

The decoration was founded by Napoleon I in 1808, and is given to only a few men throughout the world who have distinguished themselves in French letters. In 1955 the statutes were revised to include three ranks, that of knight or chevalier which Dr. Hardre will receive, the officer, and the commander.

Prof. Hardre is national president of the American Association of Teachers in French. He has participated widely in academic affairs and is well known for his distinction in French letters.

A native of Dinan, France, Dr. Hardre received his Baccalaureat Sciences-Langues in Paris, his B.A. degree from Guilford College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from UNC.

Dr. Hardre joined the UNC faculty in 1945. He has published widely in professional journals and is a member of the Modern Language Assn., the South Atlantic Modern Language Assn., and the Association des Professeurs Francais en Amerique.

SUBCOMMITTEE MEMBERS

Dr. Dan H. Martin, internist, of Chapel Hill, and the Rev. Fred Reed, Memorial Hospital chaplain, are members of a Subcommittee on Medicine and Religion of the North Carolina Medical Society.

The subcommittee is planned as part of a nationwide AMA program to "unite physicians and clergymen in total health care."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Donovan Forecasts More Revolutions

CHICAGO (UPI) — New York Atty. James Donovan, the man responsible for negotiating the release of the Bay of Pigs prisoners, has forecast more Castro-type revolutions in Latin America.

Donovan predicted in a speech to the Executives Club yesterday that the uprisings would be in "worse form" than the Cuban revolution. He said they could break out at any time in Central and South America if social and economic reforms were not made immediately. He said the Alliance for Progress program was a "step in the right direction, but inadequate."

The only solution to the problem, Donovan said, was for American businessmen to join together to insure a living wage, better health programs, adequate housing and education for underdeveloped Latin American nations.

Elliott Says Integration Hastening

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressman Carl Elliott of racially-torn Alabama said Saturday bombings and rioting "are doing more than anything else to hasten integration" in the Deep South state.

Elliott called on Alabamians to "face up to the racial conflict with vision, with self-restraint, with sound judgment and with scrupulous dedication to law and order.

"Any other course—even just plain indifference—will have a disastrous economic, industrial and employment impact for many years to come."

Angels To Begin 'Rush' On Monday

No, those 21 girls who appeared on campus Thursday wearing blue and white uniforms and high heels hadn't just decided to all dress alike to help beautify the Carolina campus.

They were all members of a unique organization at UNC—the Angel Flight. The Angels are the sponsor corps of the AFROTC. Sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, the Angel Flight which is a national organization, has three main purposes: to promote interest in the AFROTC, to learn about the Air Force and its functions and to maintain a high morale level in the Cadet Corps.

During the year the Angels carry out a schedule of social and educational events. Among these are coffee hours in the Cadet Lounge, visits to Pope AFB, the Air Force and Military Balls, the annual Christmas party for needy children, and an Area Conclave.

The Angel Flight invites all interested coeds to go through their selecions program. During the week of Sept. 30 through Oct. 6 nominations will be submitted. To be nominated, see an Angel, AFROTC cadet, or call AFROTC headquarters in Caldwell Annex.

The selection process, which will run from Oct. 7 to Oct. 18, consists of the following—a reception for the nominees on Oct. 9, followed by two informal parties.

The final decision is made by a five-member board composed of the AFROTC Cadet Group Commander, the commander of the Arnold Air Society, the commander of the Angel Flight, the Angel Flight Executive Officer, and the Angel Flight Advisor.

YMCA FROSH PROGRAM

A ski trip to western North Carolina and a coed tour of New York in the spring are two of the planned features of the YMCA's freshman program.

Marshall Bellovin, head of the program, announced yesterday that all freshmen interested in taking part in the program should meet in the Y Building lobby at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The meeting will be held to organize the program and form a steering committee.

VANCE TO BROADCAST

UNC Professor Rupert Vance will deliver a lecture, entitled "Internal Migration and Population Change in the United States," to be broadcast over USIA's Voice of America radio service as part of a 19-program series on "The Population of the World."

Notice

The Daily Tar Heel is published daily except Monday in Chapel Hill, N. C., and has offices in Graham Memorial. The editors are Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge, and the Managing Editors are Wayne King and Fred Seely. The Daily Tar Heel distributes an average of 8,500 issues each publication day throughout the school year, and is owned by the student government of the University of North Carolina. The business manager is Art Pearce.

Valachi To Recall Murders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Joseph Valachi, convict mobster who is spilling the deadly secrets of the underworld, will publicly tell of murders he helped commit for the Cosa Nostra crime cartel, Senate investigators said Saturday.

Valachi, who turned vengeful informer on the syndicate when he was marked for death by "boss" Vito Genovese, is expected to testify on his first-hand experience in gangland assassination Tuesday when he resumes testimony before the Senate investigations subcommittee.

The 61-year-old veteran of the Cosa Nostra already is under a life sentence for the killing of a fellow prison inmate whom he mistook as a Cosa Nostra executioner.

During his first open testimony Friday, Valachi matter of factly acknowledged that as a "soldier" in the crime combine, he had carried out murder assignments.

Asked what he had done for the organization, the husky-voiced witness replied: "I'd go out and kill for 'em."

With the crime hearings in a weekend recess Vaalchi returned to the cloistered seclusion of the District of Columbia jail where he is being held by federal prison authorities.

In his testimony, he made it clear that his motive in telling his story to the subcommittee and the nation, was "vengeance" against leaders of Cosa Nostra who are said to have put a $100-000 price on his head.

Valachi's testimony prompted subcommittee member Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., to suggest that prison authorities crack down on Genovese. The Cosa Nostra overlord, Valachi said, not only gave him a "kiss of death" but also ordered the murder of mobster Tony Anthony Strollo Bender from an Atlanta prison cell.

Genovese has since been transferred to the federal prison at Leavenworth. Warden J. C. Taylor at Leavenworth reported that Genovese is hospitalized with a heart condition and high blood pressure. "Indications are that he will never be any better," Taylor added.

LEGISLATURE

It's legislature time again, and the 50-member body will convene tomorrow night to open their 33rd session.

Bob Spearman, vice-president of the student body, will head the group, which is responsible for the sudent budget, produced by $18 in fees assessed on each student.

Meetings are held every Thursday in the Di-Phi hall in New East. The meeting Monday was called by Speaker Spearman to vote on the dormitory intramural manager program.

Spartans Show Power; Maul Tar Heels, 31-0

UNC's Bob Lacey Grabs 25-Yard Pass

. . . . MSU Defender Don Japlinga Had No Chance

—Photo by Etadin "Glue Fingers" Moladnu

Rog Lopes, Lou Bobich Star In Win

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Michigan State may be one of the Big Ten's weaker sisters this season, but North Carolina wasn't too convinced here Saturday.

The powerful Spartans, tearing off ground yardage in large and sometimes spectacular chunks, swept by an outclassed UNC team, 31-0, and the Tar Heels could only be relieved it wasn't more.

Led by 210-pound fullback Roger Lopes and kicking-defensive specialist Lou Bobich, Michigan State dominated play throughout and looked as good, probably better, than last year in the 38-6 rout.

| | UNC | MSU |
|---|---|---|
| First downs | 7 | 21 |
| Yds. Rushing | 30 | 332 |
| Yds. Passing | 4 | 77 |
| Passes intercepted by | 1 | 3 |
| Fumbles lost | 1 | 1 |
| No. of punts | 7 | 5 |
| Aver. distance punts | 40 | 42.5 |
| Yds. penaliezd | 15 | 75 |

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| North Carolina | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Michigen State | 7 | 3 | 7 | 14 | 31 |

Scoring:

MSU — Lewis, 13 lateral pass from Krzemienski, Bobich, kick.

MSU—FG Bobich 35.

MSU—Juday 1 run, Bobich kick.

MSU—Lopes 76 run, Bobich kick.

MSU—Proebstle 1 run, Bobich kick.

Attendance 60,832.

The Spartans scored sensationally in the first and fourth periods and in between contained Carolina and its Junior Edge-to-Bob Lacey passing combination almost to a point of nothingness.

After swift Sherman Lewis had opened the scoring on a pass-lateral play in the first period and Bobich had booted a 35-yard field goal in the second, the 60,832 crowd knew it was all over. For, in between the two tallies, Edge-Lacey had asserted itself, and not only no score, but no real concentrated drive had come of it.

An exchange of punts followed MSU's 7-0 first quarter lead, and Carolina found itself on its own 44.

On first down, Edge spotted Lacey just over midfield but threw the ball a bit to the big end's right and behind him.

With Don Japinga hanging all over him, Lacey turned, juggled the ball with one hand and controlled while racing downfield. He eluded three men before being brought down on the MSU 30.

But this was the only serious imitation of a scoring play UNC was to come up with all afternoon.

Edge's next attempt was incomplete, Eddie Kesler ran for three, and Lewis then batted another pass away from Lacey. UNC faced the fourth and seven by having Max Chapman attempt a field goal from the 35. But it was short as 10:07 remained in the half.

About two minutes later, Carolina got the ball back on the State 46 after holding the Spartans inside their 30.

Lacey again caught a first-down pass as he out-danced two men for the ball and got to the 33. But three plays gained nothing, and Edge threw a fourth-and-ten into the arms of MSU's Bobich. Lacey had his man beaten at the 10, but Edge's pass was short and soft. As it turned out, Carolina never again crossed midfield.

Michigan State was plagued by penalties on its subsequent series, but Bobich soared a 56-yard punt to the Tar Heel 22. Two plays later, the Spartans had the ball right back when Edge's hook-in to Lacey was knocked high in the air and intercepted by John Karpinski at UNC's 35.

Lopes, who gained a total of 157 yards, cracked two times and got a first at the 27, but Carolina held, forcing Bobich to dis-

(Continued on Page 4)

Cuba Ban Defiers To Be Arraigned

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four young New Yorkers indicted in connection with the recent illegal visit of 59 students to Cuba are expected to surrender for arraignment Monday, it was learned Saturday.

U.S. attorney Joseph P. Hoey said he had been informed the four would be surrendered by their attorneys. They will be arraigned the same day in U.S. District Court, he said.

The indicted New Yorkers were Lee Levi Laub, 24; Phillip Abbott Luce, 26, and Stefan Martinot, 24, all of whom made the Cuban trip, and Anatol Schlosser, 26, who did not go but was charged with conspiring to recruit and arrange for the trip along with others.

The indictments were returned by a federal grand jury Friday, and Federal Judge Walter Bruchhausen issued the bench warrants for their arrests.

Convictions could result in as much as 15 years imprisonment and $20,000 fines for the three who took the trip, which was made in defiance of a ban on Cuban travel issued by he U.S. State Department.

BLOOD NEEDED

Ollie Farrar, 59, of Chapel Hill is urgently in need of 40 pints of blood.

She is currently in Memorial Hospital and can receive any type of blood.

Blood donors are urged to contact either the DTH office in GM and leave their name or go immediately to the hospital.

Blood donors must be 21 years or older or have written permission from their parents.

Ole Miss Negro Fined For Pistol

OXFORD, Miss (UPI)—Cleve McDowell was convicted Saturday of carrying a concealed weapon while he was the only Negro Student at the University of Mississippi. McDowell said he carried a pistol because the Justice Department was not protecting him.

Justice of the Peace W. J. Jones rejected McDowell's argument that he was justified in carrying a loaded .22 caliber pistol on campus because of a fear for his safety.

Jones fined him $100. The maximum penalty under the charge was a $300 fine and three months in jail.

"I carried the gun because I had reason to believe my life might be in danger," McDowell testified during the 20-minute trial.

McDowell was arrested Monday by Sheriff Joe Ford after several students saw him drop the pistol while rushing to class.

McDowell, who was a law student, testified he was late for the class because he had visited a Justice Department representative in downtown Oxford to plead for Federal protection.

He said he had delivered a letter to the Justice Department appraising "my safety at the university and in the state of Mississippi in general, and calling attention to my vulnerable position."

McDowell also cited a statement by Gov. Ross Barnett "that the state of Mississippi would not protect me at the University of Mississippi."

U. S. Marshals were on campus until August, when Negro James Meredith was graduated. But none returned last week when McDowell registered for the fall semester. In Washington the Justice Department told United Press International the marshals were here "only to support the court order" in the Meredith case.

McDowell's attorney Jack Young, filed an immediate appeal of the conviction to the Lafayette County Circuit Court.

Young also revealed McDowell was appealing his expulsion to the State College Board.

McDowell was charged under a statute prohibiting students from carrying concealed weapons within two miles of their schools.

The section does not provide for a defense based on justification. Such a defense would have been possible under the regular statute against carrying concealed weapons.

George Miller: At 18, Working On MA

GEORGE MASON MILLER
. . . High School Grad At 14

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

George Mason Miller is a prodigy with a capital P.

He:

—appeared on a nation-wide quiz show when he was 11;

—lectured in Africa when he was 12;

—finished high school at 14;

—spent the following summer at Columbia University;

—graduated cum laude in History from Livingstone College when he was 17.

And now — at the ripe old age of 18 — he's beginning his second year as a graduate student in Political Science here.

While others his age are taking Carolina's library orientation tour as entering freshmen, Miller is preparing to write his Master's thesis.

Yet, being possibly the youngest person ever to enter graduate school here doesn't seem to bother the polite young whiz kid from Mooresville.

He's scheduled to receive his MA degree in comparative government this June. He plans to enter Yale Law School next September and study civil and constitutional law.

His exceptional talents were recognized early in his life and the decision was made to let George skip the first grade.

His progress was so phenomenal that he also was allowed to skip the fourth grade and parts of the seventh and eighth grades.

Now he is attending classes with graduate students that are from five to 25 years older than he is.

And, there are drawbacks to attending classes with those who are much older than himself, George quickly admits.

"I'm not as stable as most of the other graduate students are," he says. "I don't ride things through to the end like most of the older students do. I have to back up and start all over again."

As a Negro he is highly aware of the civil rights "revolution".

The 145-pound youth, who could well double as a voice and diction teacher, pushed back his large-frame glasses when he spoke of the movement.

"I believe," he said, "that nothing will be accomplished by stopping the integration of schools.

"I think Governor Wallace of Alabama is doing what he is doing because of several political promises he made.

"The views that Wallace holds serve only a small part of the population. All he is doing is denying an education to perfectly innocent children.

"The South can truly rise again if it realizes its resources and if the white and Negro youths combine. But the South cannot rise again as a racist South."

George believes the road to decent treatment for all races will come through co-operation from everyone concerned.

"Right now, the communication lines between the races are down. Local officials should take the first steps in mending these lines.

"The New South must be an era of partnership between the races. When the Negro is given what is duly his and when everyone works together through peaceful co-operation, then both races will then indeed be free."

The youth has had many important things happen to him in his short life but the two he remembers most were winning $10,000 on a quiz show and visiting Ghana in South Africa.

"The quiz show was 'Giant Steps'," — George remembers. "It was for children from ages 11 to 17 and the host was Bert Parks. It was very exciting except when I picked up a cookie to eat and found that it had been sprayed with some kind of wax used for commercial demonstrations."

George's other memorable experience began in Washington when he met Mr. Nkrumah, the minister of Ghana when we were both in Washington."

Nkrumah, who was educated in the United States invited young Miller to visit him in Ghana and George happily accepted the invitation.

"I lectured on the United Nations before the Ghanaian Assembly and spoke in several of the elementary schools in the city of Accra," he says.

George is quick to tick off the natural advantages he has been blessed with during his short but fruitful life:

"I have had a tremendous opportunity, people have been nice to me, my parents don't push me and I try to regulate myself and exercise a good deal of self-control."

However, studies don't occupy all of George's time.

He is an amateur sculptor and painter and collects stamps. He builds model airplanes and ships and has a girl friend named Jane.

A former Boy Scout, George's first merit badge gives a good idea of why the young prodigy is where he is today: Scholarship.

Volume 72, Number 8 Sunday, September 29, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Ungentlemanly Gentlemen

And we always thought that "Carolina Gentleman" was more than just an expression.

The photo above was taken at the Hootenanny in Memorial Hall on Friday night. This mob scene is composed of students trying to get the best seats possible when the doors opened.

It is a disgrace. For example, one young lady was pinned against a pillar for some five minutes, unable to move. Another fainted. Heaven only knows how many others were jostled, mauled and pushed about.

By Carolina Gentlemen.
Where the hell was Otelia?

The Spectacle of Ralph Moody: A Vibrant Spirit Gone to Seed

The tragic spectacle of a vibrant spirit gone to seed is clearly evident in our assistant N. C. Attorney General, Ralph Moody.

Consider his educational record:

"He entered UNC in 1917, shunning all curriculums, and taking only the courses in undergraduate school that caught his fancy. College was interrupted by a stint in the Army.

"Returning to Chapel Hill in 1920, Moody passed the law examination and was admitted to the Bar even before he finished his law courses. He left Carolina in 1922 to go into practice with his father in Murphy. He never took a degree."

(Source: News & Observer, Aug. 24, 1958; UNC Alumni Directory, 1795-1953.)

Obviously, Mr. Moody was a capable, independent fellow who probably entertained dreams of rising high after leaving school.

Obviously, he has risen high. He is one of the State's top legal minds.

But what has happened to the fellow's spirit?

Judging from his remarks in Dunn Wednesday, on the Speaker Ban law and academic freedom, Mr. Moody has fallen victim to that incrustation of spirit which bears down on a man, slowly strangling his spirit, making him less of a man than he once was — and leaving him unaware of the change.

For now, he too has made it clear beyond doubt that he has fallen victim to the same generalized frustration that pervades our age.

It is that frustration, and nothing else, which dictated the methods and provided the momentum for the passage of the Speaker Ban law.

Frustration over the fact that communism cannot be stamped out with a flick of the wrist; frustration that things are daily growing more complex and there are no easy answers anymore; frustration, most basically, at the degree and pace of change — human and technological — which the Space Age has ushered in.

Unable or unwilling to face all this, often for perfectly understandable but still invalid reasons, too many Americans have taken cover in a form of withdrawal such as is exemplified by the Speaker Ban.

"If we can't whip 'em outright, then we at least can prevent them from speaking" — this is the reaction of such honorable but misguided men as Mr. Moody.

And without realizing it, what they have done is admit their inability to cope with the continuing existence of Communism, and the increasing pace of change.

This is fundamentally why we are opposed to the Speaker Ban, and the type of mechanistic thinking represented by Mr. Moody.

We haven't had our turn at bat. Like most young people everywhere, we don't like the idea of giving up before we've had a chance to do our best.

We are not at all certain that Communism is "the wave of the future;" or that Mr. Khrushchev can "bury" us.

We do not consider the fact that a handful of students have been able to establish Carolina as a "red nest" in the eyes of many as especially important.

Rather, we consider it thumping proof of our democracy's and our University's strength that thousands upon thousands of Carolina students have not turned to Communism for an answer to the iniquities and shortcomings they see around them, but instead have concluded that Democracy remains mankind's best hope of permanently bettering itself.

Thus it is that we view Mr. Moody's decline from promise to reaction as tragic indeed.

And thus it is that we refuse to accept his philosophy.

We are nowhere near being ready to throw our hands up in despair, as the backers of the Speaker Ban law in effect have done.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

Gag Law, Book-Ex, Rights Bill

Editors, The Tar Heel,

The statement of the State Assistant Attorney General, Ralph Moody, in support of the "gag law" is regretable and unworthy of a man of his high position.

Moody ridiculously feels there is no connection between academic freedom and the law. His understanding of academic freedom is one of the most perverted and distorted imaginable. He feels that "academic freedom is the freedom of the teacher or research worker in higher institutions of learning to investigate and discuss problems of his science and to express his conclusions." Yet how can Moody expect an academic community to discuss problems unless it is allowed to hear all sides of the problem. One does not come to knowledgeable conclusions after hearing only one side of an issue.

Mr. Moody feels he has wrapped his case up when he remarks that, after all, "where is the academic freedom in the colleges of the Soviet Union. . . .?" This is exactly the point Mr. Moody! The gag law would attempt to shut off the free interchange of ideas, just as it is cut off in the Soviet Union. We are thus demeaning ourselves to their low position. If we are to show the world that democracy is a viable system, are we to prove it by imitating the tactics used in the colleges behind the Iron Curtain?

F.D.R. once said that "all we have to fear is fear itself." Certainly, we should not fear to hear the views expressed by those of another political persuasion. Democracy can not defeat Communism by running away from it, but by facing it squarely and proving that the strength of democratic ideas is greater than that of Communist ideas. If Mr. Moody fears the appeal of Communist ideas to American students, he must not have as much faith in the power and appeal of democratic concepts as do I. Let the students of North Carolina come to their own conclusions, for this is the Democratic way.

It must be remembered that one of the first steps Hitler took in his quest for power was to eliminate from the public all ideas contrary to his. This is typical of totalitarian regimes. Let it not be typical of states of the greatest democracy in the world, the United States of America.

Stu Eizenstat
ZBT House

An Answer To Ogeden's Letter

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Although presented in an intelligent and seemingly rational manner, Mr. Odgen's conclusions about, and defense of, the Speaker Ban are based upon muddled and antiquated reasoning that obscures the central issue of debate.

He begins his scrutiny of the problem with the use of the cliche, "Let's see both sides of the problem." After perceptively recognizing that these legislators would like to see University policy agree with theirs, his insight is wasted when he fails to make a judgement upon his observation. Certainly "The sentiment behind their actions" is understandable, but because it is favorable, then let's condone it. If it is detrimental, then it should be condemned. I feel that it is most decidedly in the second category. The time has long since past when legislators can coddle and "guide" an educational institution like a house pet.

Another erroneous generalization lies at the heart of Mr. Ogden's argument. He states . . . "However, remembering that the philosophy which these men wish to combat is the official philosophy which motivates Russia, at least in part, to her aspiration of world conquest." This apparently valid statement is based on the notion that you should not aid your enemies. That seems logical enough, you could say. But the action by the legislators exhibits a prime example of the ambivalence of some conservative thought, namely that the only way to maintain our open and free society is by limiting the freedom of its inquiring constituency. This attitude of "protectionism" reveals the hypocrisy in the concept of freedom held by some people. It is one of the most prevalent double-standards in America today. For the philosophy "these men" really advocate is the careful selection of 'the better things in life" so as to avoid marring the ublemished tableau of capitalistic America.

A final faulty generalization is to be found in the concluding sentence of the same paragraph ". . . but it is certainly within the duty of a University to properly warn its students of the danger they will face and leave with them an abiding sense of the traditions into which they were born." There are, I think, two key fallacies. The first is the appearance of the word "face". For the University in its support or acknowledgement of the Speaker Ban is not allowing the students to face the extremely live ideology of communism. It is fostering a sheltered atmosphere that has little verisimilitude to the actual world. I don't believe this is a claim the University wishes to boast of The second error is the phrase ". . . an abiding sense of the traditions into which they were born." Just because an individual is born in a society which believes in particular traditions does not mean that the individual is obligated to accept them. If an acceptance of these traditions is mandatory for each member of society, then the theoretical "free inquiry" is an evanescent rather than inveterate concept. Connected with this notion of tradition, I sense that Mr. Ogden's basic premise is that an essential task of a University is to propagate a particular idea. This is "alluded" to in his ". . . and leave with them an abiding sense of the traditions . . .". The greatest tradition that America can offer to anyone within or without of its boundaries is the opportunity for each individual to explore, examine, and evaluate as much of the world as he can discover. The present Speaker Ban is hardly in keeping with this tradition.

John Shaffer
333 Craige

The Editors On Individual Rights

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Congratulations on some clear thinking in your editorial discussion (Sept. 27, DTH) of the Supreme Court's prayer and Bible-reading decision. You argue convincingly, that one's

"right to do something, anything, implies the right to do just the opposite if one wishes to. Otherwise there would be no right—no complete freedom of choice—involved."

The argument is well put, and to all thoughtful persons, I submit, if irrefutable. Yet the editors of the Daily Tar Heel, you yourselves, ostensibly refute it by continuing to support the President's Civil Rights Bill. And the most poignant objection to the Public Accomodations Title (II) within this bill is that while creating more freedom for some, it does so at the cost of less freedom for others.

In logic, you will remember, the important thing is the form of an argument; if the form is valid, and the content is true, the argument is sound. The obvious point here is that the argument you put forward in support of the Bible-reading decision is equally applicable to the pending Civil Rights legislation. How then can you justify your position that one has a right to worship or not to worship, as he chooses, while a restaurant owner does not have the right to serve whom he pleases? For in your own words,

"How can you have the 'right', the total descretion, to act, if you don't also have the total discretion not to act?"

Or do you follow me at all?

John H. Atkins
17 Old West

A Gripe We All Understand Well

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Impressions are formed quickly by the entering freshman during their first two weeks of school. And the impression that has so far been given, at least to many students, by the Book Exchange has been anything but pleasant.

Students seeking help in the not-so-easy task of finding the right books for the right course are often disappointed by the curt and unconcerned attitude often taken by the staff. Friendliness should not be too difficult to attain. A certain amount of restraint and understanding would indeed be welcome.

Is the Book Exchange a private enterprise, or is it part of the University? If it is privately owned, it seems that the management could make an effort to be as willing to help the student as the stores downtown are.

Harry Blair Jr.
Bill Harrison
Melville Stephens

Question Of Civil Rights; A Look Into The Future

By ARMISTEAD MAUPIN

Foreword.

Title III of the President's Civil Rights Bill of 1963 introduces a unique concept in the field of race relations.

This section not only provides for the formal desegregation of public schools in the South but also seeks the removal of "racial imbalance" in schools throughout the country. The bill proposes to achieve these goals by vesting broader powers in the Commissioner of Education and the Attorney General.

The Commissioner would be authorized to fix the "rules and regulations" for carrying out programs of desegregation. He would, furthermore, be enabled to take positive steps toward the elimination of "racial imbalance" by the shifting of students from school to school whenever necessary.

The ultimate necessity, of course, would be the development of a quota or ratio system by the individual schools for the maintenance of "racial balance." And it is not inconceivable that such a program might, someday, extend even to the classroom . . .

No one questioned the record of Mary Agnes Faircloth.

For 27 years her diligence and integrity had served as a beacon for younger teachers at Herbert T. Mortmain Junior High School. She was a woman of remarkable intelligence, driven by an iron will and a compulsion for perfection.

Things, however, were far from perfect on the morning of September 29, 1966. A pall of uneasiness overhung the teachers' lounge as Mary Agnes Faircloth conversed with young Miss Applebaum of the Mathematics Department.

"I'm in a rather awkward situation, Stella. As you know, the man from the Commission visits the classroom today, and I have a serious racial imbalance in Elementary Sociology."

"That can't be, Miss Faircloth! Your class was reapportioned months ago."

"I know dear, but the Monroe boys are out with the mumps, and Rotunda Davis got married last week. I should never have let things slip. My ethnic ratio is dreadfully off kilter. And, today of all days, it just doesn't look right."

The words came slowly, with painful certainty. Miss Applebaum made a serious face. Mary Agnes Faircloth patted her bun nervously and continued.

"Stella, I'm going to ask a favor that I've never asked of another soul on this earth. If it isn't all right, just tell me so. We're friends, and I wouldn't impose for the world."

Miss Applebaum's assenting smile and nod passed unseen by Mary Agnes Faircloth. She was staring out the window at nothing. Her hands clamped onto a chair back as her lips forced out the difficult words.

"Stella, could I possibly borrow three of your Negroes?"

Miss Applebaum's face was at once sympathetic and resolute.

"Oh, Miss Faircloth, I'm so sorry . . . I'm barely up to my own quota . . . Why don't you check with Doris? I understand her Marriage and Family Living class has an underbalance of white children. Perhaps you could trade or something."

"Do you really think so?" said Mary Agnes Faircloth, turning to face her colleague. "I should never have let things slip. I should have seen the Dean of Racial Balance days ago. They'll never . . ."

Miss Applebaum gripped the older woman's hand gently.

"You're making too much of this, Miss Faircloth. The Commission can be very generous sometimes."

"Who Do You Think You Are — Indonesians?"

Grapes Of Wrath

By RALPH McGILL

A Trappist monk, deeply moved by the deliberate, planned murder of children in Birmingham by men who dynamited a church at Sunday school time, knowing it would then be filled with young persons, sent the following text: "Qui Tacet Consentire Videture." ("He who is silent is understood to consent.")

Silence is the dilemma of the so-called moderate South and North. The word no longer has its former validity. Today the word "moderate" has come to mean merely one who remains on the sidelines, waiting to see which way to jump. "Moderate" now means to remain silent, to avoid controversy, to make no commitment, to avoid affirming belief in principle.

The Black Muslims, an extremist organization, campaign with the propaganda that the Negro can expect no mercy, no justice; that the white man does not intend to do what is morally right; that laws are meaningless, that while the Christian church here and there has reluctantly agreed to token integration of worshiping God, this is hypocritical window-dressing; that there is nothing to be gained by being moderate. The Birmingham atrocity plays into their hands. As a people we do not like to face the fact that there obviously are Americans who would welcome the opportunity to participate in the equivalent of the late Adolph Hitler's concentration camp tortures and his gas chamber killings.

The excesses of the worst of the White Citizens Councils and of the riff-raff scrapings that make up the lesser organizations of hate every day give ammunition to support the claims of the fanatic Black Muslim extremists. None of Hitler's murderers weremore brutalized than those who decided to kill children at Sunday school as a terrorist act designed to defy this country's laws and court orders. These things seemed far away when they happened in Algeria. Yet, we still hear the so-called moderates saying that "it" is all the fault of the Kennedys or of Martin Luther King or of television or the press. "If only people would quit talking about it," they say of the convulsive social revolution that literally girdles the earth, "it would all die down."

What confronts us is the fact that all along the "moderate" has been mostly myth. By his silence he gave consent to immoderation. We can see, too, what this had done to a once fine, honest word. The moderates, silent on the sidelines, have brought about its undoing. In the near decade since the U. S. Supreme Court's decision on schools, there is nowhere on record a single constructive plan of action by a so-called moderate. Here and there were a few persons who moved from the sidelines into action designed to save schools, to obey law or to prevent violence. They found themselves cursed by phone and letter and looked at askance by many of their church congregations and friends.

These men, by acting as moderates in the deep meaning of the word, found themselves labeled as immoderates. By and large, the so-called moderates in pulpits, in business, in professions, in editorial offices, in education, remained carefully silent and aloof. When a neighboring city managed to affect peaceful desegregation of its schools, these "moderates" said, "We are delighted, but of course we can't do that in our city. We aren't ready." This was precisely what the extremist elements also were saying .

So now—after the bombing of schools, temples, churches, homes and motels—comes the dynamiting of a crowded Sunday school where Negro children, reading the lesson of the forgiveness of love, were killed or maimed. A few resolutions have been adopted. Expressions of horror and regret have been made. All silence falls again.

But, tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow will creep into our petty pace . . .

And until the "moderate" and the great body of Christianity make up their minds whether by their silence they give consent to the Black Muslims, the White Citizens Council or the dynamiters, we shall continue to trample out that bitter vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored.

SUNDAY
4:00 Beyond arth
4:30 Eric Hoffer
5:00 Hear Music
5:30 India
6:30 Israel
7:00 Playwright
7:30 What in World?
8:00 Opera
9:20 Sign Off

MONDAY
8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Math
11:00 Hear Music
11:30 Israel
12:00 Amer Work
12:15 Mid-Day News
12:30 Aspect
1:00 Sign Off
5:00 Algebra
6:00 Dr. Dooley
6:30 What's New
7:00 News
7:30 South, 2 Views
8:30 Encounter
9:30 Sign Off

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER Daily and Sunday
Call: Charles Lively 942-3007 Chapel Hill, N. C.

Law Students

We have just put out a small collection of old law books in our Old Book Case.

Prices are small. Maybe there's a treasure for you here.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.
SAAB STURDY - STYLISH - SWEDISH

| | |
|---|---|
| 1963 — Elva Courier | $2600 |
| 1962 — Alpha Romeo Sprint | $2500 |
| 1960 — Triumph TR-3 | $1325 |
| 1961 — M. G. Sedan | $1200 |
| 1960 — Renault 4CV | $450 |
| 1959 — Vauxhall | $700 |
| 1960 — VW Panel Truck | $1000 |
| 1953 — Buick Super | $400 |
| 1960 — Porche Convert. | $2600 |

imported cars ltd.
PHONE 942-7151

WUNC-TV To Expand Net

Station WUNC, North Carolina's educational television system has announced that three new stations will be added to its network by the end of 1964. The move is expected to increase reception of the station to an area covering 67 per cent of the state.

Previously, WUNC has broadcast from stations located at Raleigh, Greensboro, and Chapel Hill. New stations will be established at Clingman's Peak, Columbia and Concord. The move is subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

The stations will broadcast all National Education programs, as well as special programs originating from the various studios. A series of lectures by Victor Papanek, an instructor at the State College School of Design, is being planned for this fall.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Sale — Miscellaneous

INTERVIEWERS WANTED: Local traffic survey. On-job training Oct. 3-4. Nine men for highway interviewing, Monday through Friday, Oct. 7 to 18. Men and women for home interviewing, Chapel Hill, Carrboro, campus, and environs, Tuesday to Saturday, your own hours, 2 weeks. Neat appearance, accurate and responsible workers only. 4-5 men for 24-hour vehicle classification work, in shifts. Reliability essential. See Lucien Faust, Room 7, Carrboro Town Hall, Monday, or call 942-2805 for appointment.

INTERESTED IN SPIRITUALism? Take a glance through "Ghost Hunter", at the Intimate Bookshop.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

WALGREEN AGENCY

Sutton's Drug Store
159 E. Franklin Street
Since 1923

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Cosmopolitan Club — 4 p.m. Roland Parker Lounge, first meeting for members and interested persons.

Newman Club — 5-7:45 p.m., Student Center, cookout and discussion, "Newmanism Updated and Related to UNC in 1963."

Hillel Foundation — 6 p.m. dinner for freshmen and guests, program "Challenge of Religion."

Christian Science Organization students needing rides to Christian Science church services meet at driveway entrance to the Carolina Inn (Columbia St.) at 10:45.

Student Peace Union — 5 p.m., 203 Alumni Bldg., election of a steering committee for the 1963-64 year.

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m., University Methodist Church, Sunday Evening Common meeting which includes the showing of Federico Fellini's film "La Strada."

Murdoch School For Mentally Retarded Committee — 2 p.m., Y Court, orientation program for interested students.

Lutheran Student Association — 6 p.m., Lutheran Church, Dr. George R. Whittecar speaker.

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Chapel of the Cross Parish, showing of "On The Waterfront."

Journalism and Pre-Journalism majors Get Acquainted Breakfast — 10 a.m. Howell Hall Lounge, sponsored by Press Club.

MOVIES

Carolina — Fellini's 8½
Varsity — Irma la Douce
Rialto — Fellini's 8½
Northgate (Durham)—The VIP's

FUTURE

IDC meeting — 7 p.m. Wednesday, 4th floor New East.

Chi Mu Alpha (music fraternity) — rush meetings 7-9 p.m., Sept. 30-Oct. 2, chapter room, second floor Hill Hall.

Informal dormitory meetings — sponsored by Carolina Christian Fellowship in the lounges of Avery, Winston and Joyner, Mon. night at 10 p.m. Speakers include Rev. Fred Evans, Roy Putnam and Jim Raines.

Interviews for vacancy on Men's Council — 2-4 p.m., Mon. and Tues., Student Government offices in GM.

Germans Club — 7 p.m., Mon., Grail Room, GM. Discussion of Fall Germans Concert.

W.A.A. Golf Club—4 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym, for all girls interested in playing golf.

W.A.A. Square Dance Club, 4 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym, for all square dance enthusiasts.

Student Government Interviews —2-5 p.m., daily the second week in Oct., 210 GM. Interviews are for limited committee appointments.

Attorney General's Staff — 6:30 p.m., Mon., Council Room, GM. For all members assigned to work with IDC.

Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society —7:30 p.m., Tues., 265 Phillips, speaker Dr. S. Y. Tyree, "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sunday, Chapel of the Cross Parish House, "On the Waterfront."

Yack Photos—1-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri., basement of GM, for Freshmen. Senior, 4th year med. students and 3rd year law students will have a $1.00 late fee.

IFC—7 p.m., Tues., Memorial Hall, for all students interested in fraternity rush.

Woodrow Wilson Fellows' Reception, 4 p.m., Tues., Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium.

Tennis Club—4 p.m., Tues., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Splash Club—4 p.m., Tues., Women's Gym, synchronized swimming and water ballet.

Publications Board—4 p.m., Wed., Woodhouse Room, GM. Election of chairman.

Editors Round Table — 4 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker I.

All Juniors and Seniors considering Ministry, 203 South Bldg., see Dean Duffy as soon as possible.

Fraternity Handbooks available in Y Court.

YMCA Freshman program — 7:30 p.m. Mon. Y Building, organizational meeting to form a steering committee.

'ON THE WATERFRONT'

Winner of eight academy awards, the movie "On The Waterfront" will be shown at the Chapel of the Cross Parish House at 6:30 p.m. tonight.

The film is sponsored by Canterbury, an Episcopal student organization.

This Columbia picture stars Marlon Brando as a dockworker whose realization of the corruption in his invironment leads to soul-searching and commitment, Eva Marie Saint as his girl, and Karl Malden as a waterfront priest. The film's controversial ending is typical of Bull Schulberg, who has written other outstanding movies including "What Makes Sammy Run," novels including "The Disenchanted," and numerous articles for Esquire magazine.

"On the Waterfront" is directed by Elia Kazan.

Future Canterbury film presentations include "A Raisin in the Sun" on December 15 and "The Mouse that Roared" on November 10. Admission is free and refreshments will be served according to chairman Frank Welsh.

Housing Scarce For Atoms

By MAT FRIEDMAN

The squeeze for space has begun to affect radio-active materials as well as students.

Raymond C. Pfleger, the University's chief radiation officer, reports that the old radioactive burial ground at the Chapel Hill airport is full. Therefore, a new one has been started behind the Mason Farm near Morgan's Creek. Although Mr. Pfleger admits there is some possibility of radioactive seepage into the creek, he says there is no danger of any harm being done. The "hot" materials, he explains, are buried four feet deep, in accordance with government regulations. Mr. Pfleger's department has had a virtually perfect safety record.

Few people realize how the use of radioactive materials on the campus has been increasing. Last year brought a 20 per cent increase and, according to Pfleger, a similar increase is expected this year.

* * *

For those who think that earthquakes are strange, faraway occurrences, take notice! The Department of Geology's seismograph picks up several tremors in North Carolina every year. They are, of course, only small quakes, and occur mainly in the mountains, but they are of great interest to Tar Heel geologists. The Department's Dr. Gerald R. MacCarthy is, in fact, studying the history of earthquakes in North Carolina.

* * *

An oral contraceptive program conducted in Chapel Hill for two years, ended last June an apparent success. Of the 227 Victory Village and Glen Lennox wives using the pills, there were no pregnancies reported.

* * *

Items from the Department of Physics:

Wayne A. Bowers, professor of Physics, is at Cambridge University in England this year studying on a National Science Foundation Science Faculty Fellowship. He is doing research on vibrations in crystals.

The Department has a visitor from Beirut, Lebanon. Prof. Zahlen, who is doing research in solid state physics, spent a year at Stanford University and will also be here for a year.

Two new faculty members contribute to the international flavor of the Department. Assistant Professors Song Il Choi from Korea and Hendrik Van Dam from the Netherlands have joined the staff.

Everett D. Palmatier, chairman of the Department, reports that the one-half million dollar renovation of the old wing of Phillips Hall should be complete by next fall. It will modernize and air-condition some 120,000 feet of floor space and should be a great boon to the Physics, Mathematics and Statistics departments.

"It will give us more modern floor space," says Dr. Palmatier, "which we will be able to put to very good use."

* * *

More building news:

It now appears that the new geology building, originally scheduled to open in time for the fall term, will not be ready until November, reports Dr. Roy L. Ingram, Chairman of the Department. The building, which will contain everything from a rock pulverizer to a seismological station, will open as soon as the casework is complete.

"For the first time in 20 years," says Dr. Ingram, "we will have space to turn around in. We hope the improved facilities will attract more top geologists and students to the University. There has actually been no real research in the last 20 years but that will now change."

The Department, incidentally, is in the midst of spending a $44,000 National Science Foundation grant for the improvement of research facilities.

SCIENCE NEWS

Dr. Clayton Is YMCA Speaker

Dr. John S. Clayton, of the RTVMP Department, will speak Thursday night at the organization meeting of the YMCA.

As chairman of the YMCA Board, Clayton will make introductory remarks on the nature and spirit of the YMCA in the students' campus life.

Kellis Parker, vice-president of the Y, will outline the organization of the YMCA, and the various possibilities open for student participation.

Joe Burns will discuss the opportunities of working with the YMCA in community services such as the Hi-Y, Dix Hill Hospital, Campus Chest and the Catholic Orphanage.

John Dunne, International affairs chairman, will discuss exploring international affairs through such Y-sponsored organizations as CCUN, Foreign Students Commission and the supper forum. Dunne will also discuss the newly initiated writer-in-residence program and out of town seminars to be held in New York and Washington.

Marshall Bellovin, head of the freshman program, will give a brief resume of what the Y can offer the incoming student. He will conduct a meeting for Freshmen on Monday night and give a full description of the Y's campus activities.

Cleopatra, with feminine guile,
Said to Tony, "Let's barge down the Nile!"
When she reached for an asp,
Her belt lost its clasp,
So she stapled it up Swingline style.

SWINGLINE STAPLER

98¢
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
- Unconditionally guaranteed!
- Refills available anywhere!
- Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
- Send in your own Swingline Fable Prizes for those used

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N. Y.

Speed Stick, the deodorant for men! Really helps stop odor. One neat dry stroke lasts all day, goes on so wide it protects almost 3 times the area of a narrow roll-on track. No drip, never tacky! Fast! Neat! Man-size! Mennen Speed Stick! (M)

All it takes is one clean stroke daily!

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by
SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.
414 W. Franklin St.
Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Annamese measure
4. Fold over
7. Child's bed
8. Incite
10. Geol. vein angle
11. Melody
12. Cooked
13. Division of a play
14. Mother: colloq.
16. Signs as correct
17. Expression of disgust
18. Enemy scout
19. To lie at rest
21. Detest
22. Tuber: So. Am.
23. Father: affect.
24. Injure
26. Transmitted by hand
29. Skill
30. Girl's name
31. Confederate general
32. Yes: dial. var.
33. Small explosive sound
34. Yugoslav
35. Den
37. Desert in Asia
38. Warbled
39. Genus of lily
40. Grain
41. Church bench

DOWN
1. Send, as by boat
2. Helper
3. Fetish: W. Afr.
4. Door catch
5. Touch end to end
6. Writing implement
7. Strangle
9. Entice
12. June bug
13. Mature
15. Yes
17. United States of America
18. Bow of a saddle
20. Eight: comb. form
21. Chinese dynasty
23. 24 hours
24. Cured grass for fodder
25. Russ. mountain range
26. Chance
27. Ghostly
28. Young society girl
30. Smithy
33. Abounding in firs
34. Fish
36. Rhine tributary
37. Breach

Saturday's Answer

Everybody Goes To Shoney's
HOME OF THE BIG BOY
Durham's newest & finest Drive In-Restaurant
THIS COUPON GOOD FOR A SHONEY'S BIG BOY AT
½ PRICE ½
GOOD FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY
Shoney's
Restaurant & Drive In
185 By Pass At Avondale Dr.
Durham

Varsity
NOW SHOWING

THE MIRISCH COMPANY and EDWARD L. ALPERSON present
JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BILLY WILDER'S
IRMA LA DOUCE
THIS PICTURE IS FOR ADULTS ONLY
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®
Shows at 1:20 - 3:52
6:24 - 8:26

YOU CAN DO IT, CHARLIE BROWN!
by
Charles M. Schulz
Only $1
At your college bookstore now.
Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

Blue Devils Win; Deacs Lose Again

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) —Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke University overpowered inexperienced Virginia 30-8 Saturday with a ground-air attack engineered by sophomore quarterback Scotty Glacken.

Glacken, from Bethesda, Md., scored one touchdown, passed for another and ran for a two-point conversion.

Virginia's sophomore quarterback Bob Dunphey scored the Cavaliers' only touchdown on a six-yard run midway in the final period. Then he picked up the two point conversion on a run.

WINSTON-SALEM (UPI) — Junior quarterback Bob Schweickert sloshed for two touchdowns and set up another with a 63-yard run Saturday to help Virginia Tech wreck Wake Forest, 27-0. It was the 12th straight loss for the Deacons.

The Gobblers parlayed a Deacon fumble and a 55-yard drive into a first period 25-yard field goal by junior Dickie Cranwell. Late in the period Tech mounted a 69-yard march capped by a one-yard plunge by wingback Tommy Walker.

Schweickert, a 6-foot-t, 190-pound flash, set up Tech's second touchdown in the third period with a 63-yard rollout which was halted by a diving tackle on the Deacon 10. Three plays later, the quarterback dived over from the one.

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel
Page 4- Sunday, September 29, 1963

—Heels Bow—

(Continued from Page 1)

play his strange soccer-style type of kicking on something other than a punt.

The 6-0 junior booted his 35-yard field goal true, and UNC was down 0-10 with 2:02 left in the half.

Earlier, Michigan State's offensive lokoed as good as Carolina had seen all last year. This was due mainly to Lopes, Lewis and the Spartans' sophomore quarterback, Steve Juday.

Friday's beautiful 78 degree temperature had turned to an overcast and chilly 55 when Michigan State took Chapman's opening kickoff and rolled 73 yards in seven minutes plus.

It took Juday and the Spartans 13 plays to record the TD, and they looked like a powerhouse doing it.

Lewis picked up two first downs, Lopes one and Juday one in the drive that also saw Carolina lose end John Hammett on a re-injured ankle.

The clincher came from the 20 when Juday, a splendid fake-artist, surprised UNC's defense and pulled off a spectacular play that counted seven points.

Tom Krzemienski, an elusive flanker, went three yards straight out from his end position, caught Juday's look-in pass and went to the Carolina eight where he was stopped. But, as Krzemienski was falling, he lateraled to Lewis on his left, and the little back went in untouched. Boboch's conversion was on target, and MSU was 7-0 with 7:25 remaining.

The second half reminded the Tar Heels of last year up here, and it was not pleasant.

Michigan State got a big break midway through the third quarter when the center snap on a UNC punt attempt was too high for Bill Edwards to control.

The locals tackled Edwards on the Carolina 26 and moved easily for the score in nine plays, Juday sneaking over from the one.

This came after 9:47 of the period, and the UNC cause turned from dismal to hopeless. The Spartans were marching to another TD later in the quarter, and Juday seemed certain to get it when Carolina's John Atherton knocked a pass in the air and Jimmy Alderman caught it on the UNC 20.

But when the teams changed ends to start the final period Edge, now desperate, had three passes go incomplete (one was overthrown to Lacey who again had Lewis beaten) and the Tar Heels had to punt.

MSU, from its 17, gave the ball to Lopes three times. He got better in succession, moving one, six and then bursting 76 yards for a touchdown. The big Hawaian was safely escorted the last 50 yards by two obliging teammates who could have played catch all the way.

Bobich then kicked-off over the end zone—he accomplished it at least three times during the day —and this alone showed Carolina where it stood.

UNC's next series was interrupted when Bobich again intercepted an Edge pass, this one a home run bomb to Lacey which the MSU defender caught over his head at the Spartan 20. Lacey immediately put a smashing tackle on Bobich, probably angered that the brilliant grab had outshone even his first-quarter catch.

The Spartans didn't score on the following drive, but waited for two series later when the second unit went 25 yards in five plays. Quarterback Dick Proebstle sneaked from the one for the final TD.

The Lacey-Edge combo wasn't the only UNC weapon to be humbled. Ken Willard carried only 4 times, picking up 10 of Carolina's sorry 30-yard rushing total. MSU's Lewis gained 58 yards on his 11 carries.

Edge was 10 for 26 and 84 yards through the air. Lacey caught six of them for 58 yards.

Georgia Bulldogs Rip Up Vanderbilt

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Senior quarterback Larry Rakestraw passed for one touchdown and sneaked for another to lead Georgia to a 20-0 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday in a rain-swept Southeastern Conference football game.

The Bulldogs scored all three of their touchdowns in the first half. The hapless Commodores threatened only once and then not seriously.

Rakestraw hit halfback Bob Taylor with a bullet pass near the sideline when the game was six minutes old and Taylor raced for a touchdown on a play that covered 44 yards

Fullback Leon Armbruster Jr. helped Rakestraw set up the second-period Bulldog touchodwn by ripping off key yardage. But it was Rakestraw who took the ball across on a quarterback sneak from the 6-inch line.

The second Bulldog touchdown came after 4½ minutes in the second period.

Georgia tallied for the third and final time three minutes later when halfback Fred Barber intercepted a pass by John Cleveland and raced 42 yards to score behind excellent blocking.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Auburn quarterback Jimmy Sidle spotted Tennessee a 10-point lead with a costly fumble Saturday, then stormed back in the final minutes to give Auburn a 23-19 Southeastern Conference victory.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Quarterback Sonny Fisher broke out an inspired passing attack in the closing minutes of the game Saturday to earn Mississippi State a 9-9 Southeastern Conference tie with surprised Florida.

TODAY'S NFL SKED

Balimore at Green Bay
Chicago at Detroit
Dallas at Washington
Los Angeles at Cleveland
New York at Philadelphia
St. Louis at Pittsburgh
San Francisco at Minnesota

Bill Lothridge, 27 Clemson Tigers, 0

ATLANTA (UPI) — Triple-threat quarterback Billy Lothridge took to water like a duck Saturday, leading Georgia Tech to a 27-0 win over Clemson in heavy rain.

Lothridge threw three touchdown passes, kicked two field goals and added three extra points to give him a personal hand in every point scored in the game before he retired to th esidelines midway in the third period.

The Yellowjacket quarterback put his team on the road to victory midway through the first period with a 37-yard touchdown pass to end Gary Williams. Just before the period ended he kicked a 40-yard field goal into driving rain to give the Jackets a 10-0 first period lead.

Late in the first half Lothridge threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to end Ted Davis and converted to give Tech a 17-0 halftime lead. The play was set up moments earlier when tackle Tom Ballard blocked a Clemson punt and covered the ball 22 yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Lothridge came back after intermission with a clean shirt but just as water-proof as before. He punted dead on the Clemson 11-yard line and when Tech recovered a fumble on the following play, Lothridge threw a 9-yard scoring pass to end Billy Martin and converted.

At this point, with Tech leading 24-0, Lothridge left the game but returned several minutes later when the Yellow Jackets couldn't move without him and kicked a 36-yard field goal to complete the scoring.

THE SCOREBOARD

Oklahoma 17, Sou Cal, 12
Pitt 13, Washington 6
Penn State 17, UCLA 14
Army 22, Cincinnati 0
Navy 28, William & Mary 0
Yale 3, Connecticut 0
Harvard 0, Mass. 0 (tie)
Penn 47, Lafayette 0
Dartmouth 20, Bucknell 18
Princeton 24, Rutgers 0
Holy Cross 6, Buffalo 6 (tie)
Colgate 21, Cornell 17
VPI 27, Wake Forest 0
Citadel 28, Davidson 6
Furman 29, Geo. Washington 14
Auburn 23, Tennessee 19
Florida 9, Miss. State 9 (tie)
Georgia 20, Vanderbilt 0
Ohio State 17, Texas A&M 0
Illinois 10, California 0
Wisconsin 14, Notre Dame 9
Northwestern 34, Indiana 21
Michigan 27, SMU 16
Nebraska 14, Minnesota 7
Kansas 10, Syracuse 0
Iowa 14, Wash. State 14 (tie)
Boston College 22, Wichita 16

Murals Sked Starts With Tag Football

By AL KAPLAN

The campus intramurals program wil shift into full swing this week with tag football and the cake race on the schedule. Monday is the football kick-off date with five games slated and the cake race will be run on Tuesday.

In the grad league an extremely important game will be played, pitting the Peacocks, a team expected to be a contender for the championship, and Med School 1, last year's second place team in football.

SAE, Sigma Nu, and ATO, who finished in that order in the Fraternity Blue division, all have games on Tuesday, as do the 1962-63 dorm football champs, the Manly Riverrats.

Golfers who are interested in the University golf tournament still may enter. Qualifying rounds must be played before October 6. The site of the tourney is Finley Golf Course.

The second manager's meeting of the year will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 in room 301-A Woollen Gym. Teams are penalized 5 points toward their total score for every meeting that their manager misses.

Tar Heel Runners Rout Deacs

By BILL LEE

The cross-country team of Carolina overwhelmed Bill Jordan's Wake Forest harriers this morning at Winston Salem by a score of 15-43 on a course of 4½ miles.

Led by Art Maillet and James Meads, the blue-clads captured the first five places in piling up the victory margin. Junior Maillet and sophomore Meade crossed the finish line together with winning times of 22.31.1.

Junior Jerry Smith and seniors Mike Folk and Bob Bennett rounded out the scoring positions for the Tar Heels. Captain Bennett and Dave Turner of the Deacons battled the last mile for fifth place with Bennett gaining the advantage when he reached the final 200 yards.

Maillet's and Meade's finish drew praises from Coaches Joe Hilton and Wayne Bishop as the winning time was just 22 seconds over the course record set by Jerry Nourse of Duke in 1961.

1. James Meade (UNC) 22.31.1
   Art Maillet (UNC) (tied)
3. Jerry Smith (UNC) 22.38
4. Mike Folk (UNC) 22.43
5. Bob Bennett (UNC) 22.44
6. Dave Turner (WF) 22.53
7. Ron Taylor (WF) 23.18
8. Bill Via (WF) 24.02
9. George Adams (WF) 24.06
10. Worth Helms (UNC) 24.13

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING

Shows at: 1:30 - 3:57 - 6:24 - 8:51

Blue Cross Blue Shield
For details mail coupon to . . .
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

STUDENT CERTIFICATE
Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA
Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.
Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

KEMP'S
FALL
EXTRAVAGANZA
ONE BIG WEEK
MONDAY Thru SATURDAY
ALL RECORDS
Reduced
30%, 40%, 50%
PILOT PHONOGRAPHS NOW IN STOCK
EXOTIC AND EXCITING GIFTS FROM THE FAR EAST
CHESS SETS OUR SPECIALTY
KEMP'S
Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Individual Leaders

RUSHING

| UNC | MSU |
|---|---|
| Edge, 12-12 yds. | Lopes, 19-157 yds. |
| Kesler, 6-11 yds. | Lewis, 11-58 yds. |

PASSING

| | |
|---|---|
| Edge, 10-26, 84 yds. | Juday, 6-17, 67 yds. |
| | Proebstle, 1-5, 10 yds. |

RECEIVING

| | |
|---|---|
| Lacey, 6-58 yds. | Krzemienski, 2-27 yds. |
| Willard, 4-26 yds. | Lewis, 1-16 yds. |

PUNTING

| | |
|---|---|
| Edwards, 7/40 yds. | Bobich, 5/42.2 yds. |

HURRAY!!
Contemporary CARDS
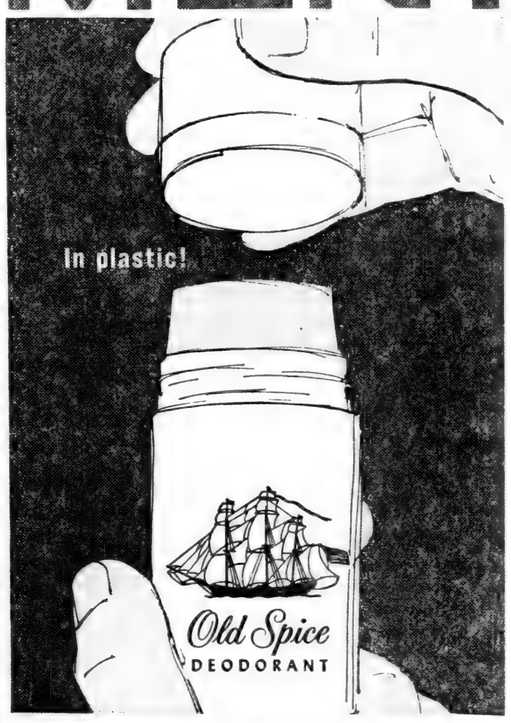
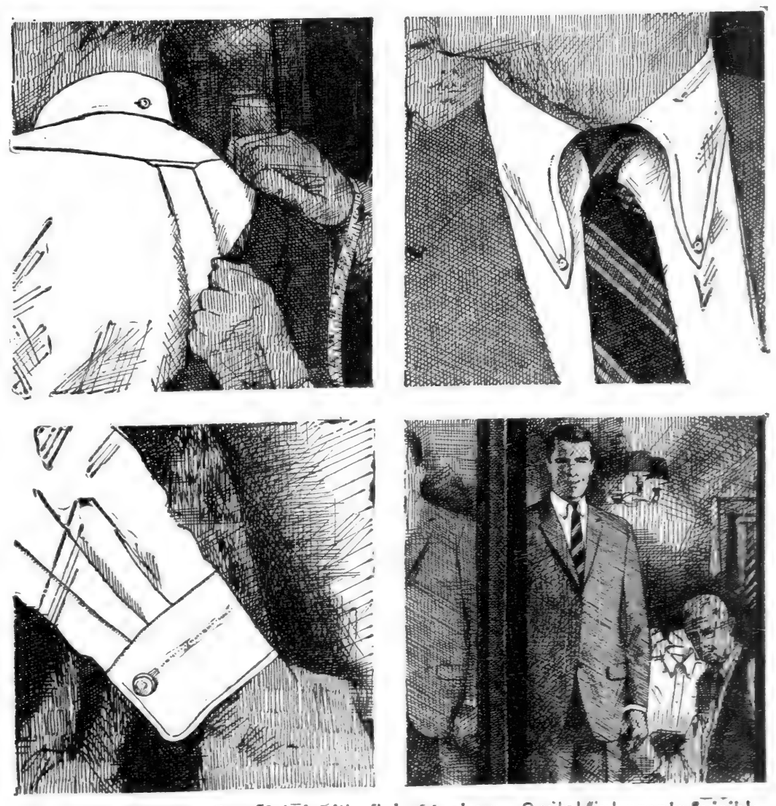
Ledbetter Pickard

MEN!



Here's deodorant protection
YOU CAN TRUST
Old Spice Stick Deodorant... fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the man's deodorant preferred by men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant — most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.
Old Spice STICK DEODORANT
SHULTON

what's a Shirt?


To Gant, it's more than fabric; it's flair, fit, show—3 vital "inherents," visible only when a shirt is worn. Gant is finicky about shirts—fit and roll of collar; proper amount of "show" when jacket is worn. Gant is finicky about drape; fold, trim; all must "homogenize" to achieve flair—that viable ingredient which gives the wearer comfort and aplomb.
Been taking your shirts for granted? Many men do. Try Gant; we think they'll be a tradition with you. At discerning stores.
GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1963 | United Press International Service

9

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Rights Commission Expresses Hope

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Rights Commission reported Monday that for the first time there is growing hope the nation's racial problems can be solved if there is "full-mobilization of America's moral resources."

The commission, in a report to President Kennedy and Congress, cautioned however against complacency. It said the increasingly bitter battle to end discrimination could drive Negroes and whites apart, leaving a legacy of "hate, fear and distrust." The 274-page report summarized the situation with these words:

"Negroes throughout the nation have made it abundantly clear that their century-old patience with second class citizenship is finally at an end.

"The nation in turn, gives evidence of recognizing that the current civil rights crisis constitutes a grave challenge. For the first time, then, the commission is able to report an atmosphere of genuine hopefulness. But if there is reason for hope, there is no cause for complacency."

The report cited civil rights problems that exist in a number of fields such as voting, education, housing and employment.

"Yet government alone, at whatever level, cannot hope to solve the nation's civil rights problems," the commission said. "A full mobilization of America's moral resources is required at this time."

Gun Fire Greets Taylor in Ben Cat

BEN CAT, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Gen. Maxwell I. Taylor flew into this Communist-imperiled area 30 miles north of Saigon Monday to the sound of 105 millimeter howitzer shells exploding in the nearby jungle to keep Communist guerillas at bay.

A sniper's bullet cracked past the open door of a helicopter flying in newsmen when it dropped out of low clouds to land on the edge of town ahead of the plane flying the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Taylor and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara postponed their return to Washington for 24 hours for one more inspection by Taylor before they present their top secret report to President Kennedy on the anti-Communist war here.

McNamara visited Ben Cat when he was here on an inspection tour in May, 1962. Then there was no firing. Monday the sound of mortars was heard, and military authorities said some of the mortar crews had run into sniper fire.

Observers also heard the rattle of automatic weapons fire and the sound of exploding grenades a couple of miles distance.

An American-flown B26 bomber circled overhead during the Taylor visit and his talks with his Vietnamese counterpart, who predicted victory over the Communist Viet Cong in 1964 with American aid.

Writer Says Air Strike Proposed in 1954

PARIS (UPI)—French Author and war correspondent Jules Roy said Monday John Foster Dulles proposed a U. S. Air Force strike with atomic bombs to relieve the besieged French fortress of Dien Bien Phu in Indo-China in the spring of 1954.

But he said president Eisenhower, after first giving the late secretary of state the green light, ruled that only a joint allied operation would be possible and that later Sir Winston Churchill vetoed the entire project.

The French author gave this version of events leading up to the fall of the fortress in a 500-page book "The Battle of Dien Bien Phu" published Monday.

In Washington, the State Department said it had no comment

He said that with Eisenhower's full approval, Radford proposed that 60 B29 heavy bombers escorted by 150 fighters from the U.S. 7th Fleet should attack and crush the Communist Viet Minh positions around besieged Dien Bien Phu.

But, Roy said, Dulles soon afterwards proposed that instead of dropping 500 tons of bombs on the Viet Minh a number of atomic bombs should be dropped. Roy said however that when the French cabinet on the night of April 4-5 sent an urgent appeal for the Air Strike to be launched at once, Dulles backed down.

"The situation no longer seemed as simple to him as when, to prepare public opinion, he made his Overseas Press Club speech," Roy said. He said that congressional leaders with whom Dulles conferred refused to approve anything stronger than "joint action by the free nations."

Historic Feat Announced By AEC

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) announced an historic space feat Monday — the first fully operational use of nuclear power in space.

The AEC said it had launched a satellite, fully powered in space by a nuclear generator, from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., in what was described as "a complete success."

The nuclear device, Snap-9a is a lightweight radio-isotope-fueled generator. It is designed to provide 25 watts of direct electrical current for some five years of orbiting the earth. The satellite containing the generator will circle the earth for at least 900 years before plunging out of orbit.

The AEC stressed that the power plant, although operated by nuclear energy, posed no danger to earth inhabitants.

Spearman Keynotes UP Meeting Tonight At 8

The University Party will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. The meeting will feature a keynote address, "Student Government and the UP: Problems and Opportunities," by Student Government Vice-President Bob Spearman.

Following Spearman's address, John Ulfelder, UP Legislative Floor Leader, will present "Legislature: Past and Future."

Mike Chanin, UP party chairman, will talk on the state of the Party. The meeting will close with a question and answer period and the formation of two special UP ad-hoc committees.

The two ad-hoc committees that are planned will be a grievance-type committee and an academic affairs group.

The first of these, the grievance group, will be based on last year's Grievance Committee which met in various areas of the campus to hear student gripes concerning living conditions, campus conditions, and any other problems that students wish to make known.

The second committee will deal with certain academic problems. Tentative plans for this group include an investigation of the drop-add procedure, a study of the reading period before exams and the possibility of re-installing such a period at Carolina, possibilities of a tutorial program whereby members of campus scholastic honoraries would tutor students, and a study of the future library plans and how they fit student needs.

"These committees will be open to all interested persons regardless of class or experience," said Chanin.

Chanin also urged all students to attend the meeting. "All interested persons are sincerely invited to attend this meeting to learn about the UP and to hear its leaders at first hand."

'Bomb The Ban' Say Top Students

By HUGH STEVENS

Student leaders from 11 North Carolina colleges expressed opposition to the speaker ban bill in a meeting here Friday.

After a basic orientation and discussion of the bill, the student body presidents and other officers agreed to return to their respective campuses and take suitable action aaginst the bill.

Suggested actions included letters to legislators, educational campaigns, and meetings with college officials.

UNC Student Body President Mike Lawler, who served as host for the meeting, said "it is our duty to make other students and the public aware of the bill and our stand on it."

"We must elevate discussion of the issue above the area of communist against non-communist," he said, "for the issue is more complicated than that."

The bill, which bars known Communists from speaking on the campuses of the Consolidated University, is being opposed by students on the grounds that it infringes on the freedom of the university.

Bill Reviewed

Roger Foushee, UNC graduate student in Political Science, discussed the background of the bill and the ways in which it may affect state institutions.

"The bill," he said, "grew out of a number of attitudes prevalent in the state during the summer, including the general unrest created by the 'social revolution of 1963.'

"Furthermore," he said, "there has long been a tendency to attack the so-called liberalism of state-supported institutions. Many persons throughout the state have the idea that students who come here are corrupted by liberal influences."

He discussed the passage of the bill, saying it was characterized by "hastiness, secrecy, and slyness." He compared its history to that of a controversial bill on the teaching of evolution introduced in 1925.

"In that instance," he said, "the bill was sent to committee, and the opponents of the issue were able to gather their forces and defeat what would have been an unfortunate law. This time we were not so fortunate."

In listing the possible effects of the bill, Foushee said it could "impair the quality of the faculty, especially as the university continues to grow." He also said the issue could be important in the 1964 gubernatorial race, depending upon the candidates who enter.

Following Foushee's remarks, Lawler called for general discussion on the bill. He expressed the hope that the meeting would give the visitors a basic orentation sufficient for them to initiate action on their campuses.

Action Urged

Lawler urged the students to meet with their college officials and take any suitable action against the bill. "You can move in where the university's students cannot," he said.

Delegates from Appalachian State Teacher's College, headed by Howard Foster, said they had circulated a petition in opposition to the bill, obtaining the signatures of 40 per cent of the student body.

"We feel that this bill is,

(Continued on Page Three)

Four Gain Fulbrights

Four University students are recipients of Fulbright grants awarded during 1963 for travel or study and research.

The recipients are Richard Harvey King of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Paul H. Lewis of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Jimmy Franklin Burke of North Little Rock, Ark.; and William George Friedrich of Chapel Hill is the recipient of a Fulbright travel grant which accompanies a Danish Government Award.

King graduated from UNC in June with a B.A. degree with highest honors in history.

Lewis received a B.A. degree in political science from the University of Florida in 1960 and has been studying at UNC since under a National Defense Educational Act Fellowship.

Burke received a B.A. degree from the University of Arkansas in 1961 and received an M.A. in Spanish from UNC.

Friedrich, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., received a M.A. degree in 1961 from UNC.

SORRY!

SUTHERLAND HARDRE

The Tar Heel regrets its error in yesterday's edition in switching the photographs of Dr. Jacques Hardre and Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland. The photo of Prof. Sutherland, who is scheduled to give the Holmes lectures beginning tonight, appeared above the story on Dr. Hardre, who is to receive the famed Palmes Academique from the French government for distinction in French letters.

Holmes Lectures

A Harvard Law Professor will deliver the 3-day Holmes lecture series here starting tonight.

Arthur E. Sutherland, Bussey Professor of Law at Harvard will speak on the change of the American economic system by constitutional and political means.

Suthrland's three-lecture series will be given at Carroll Hall at 8 p.m. tonight, Wednesday and Thursday.

His central theme will be "Apology for Uncomfortable Change," while his separate lectures will be on "Social Statistics and a Restless People," tonight, "Education in the Obvious," tomorrow night and "To Grow More Civilized," Thursday night.

Chancellor William Aycock will preside at the first lecture.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures were made possible by a provision in the will of the late Supreme Court Justice O. W. Holmes.

A different University is selected every year to hear a nationally prominent speaker. The lectures are controlled by the Holmes Devise Committee, appointed by the U. S. Congress.

Favorable Fraternity Report Issued By Long

Richard Dyer-Bennet

Dyer - Bennet Performs Tonight

A modern minstrel whose ballads and folk songs have been sure-fire entertainment for audiences throughout Europe and the United States for many years, Richard Dyer-Bennet, his Spanish guitar and his repertoire of more than 600 melodies from around the world will meet students and faculty this afternoon at an informal reception in Graham Memorial at 4 p.m.

Tonight at 8, Dyer-Bennet will present a lecture-demonstration, "The Art of the Self-Accompanied Singer," in the Hill Hall Rehearsal Room.

Students may attend free; the general public will be admitted at 7:45 if there is space. Admission for the public is a dollar.

Wednesday night at 8 in Memorial Hall, Dyer-Bennet will make his final appearance at the University with a concert of folk and art songs of many ages. The general public will be admitted for a dollar if space is available at 7:45.

His appearances on campus are presented as the second in the entertainment series sponsored by Graham Memorial.

Born in England, Dyer-Bennet grew up in California where he became a star soccer player, playing on the Olympic Club Soccer team in San Francisco. At one time he was about to become a professional soccer player, but he decided to find a career in music, particularly in folk music.

He studied in Sweden and gained a repertoire of song-stories, love-ballads, adventure songs, sea-chanteys, and lumbermen and soldiers songs.

Besides being a singer and a guitarist, Dyer-Bennet is an entertainer. His performances are expected to include touches of humor and historical background. His songs come from many ages; there are pieces from the little-known music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

2 Ku Kluxers Suspected In Birmingham Bombings

BIRMINGHAM (UPI) — State police Monday interrogated two white men, both with Ku Klux Klan backgrounds, in a series of racial bombings here including a church explosion Sept. 15 that killed four girls.

Col. Al Lingo, head of the Alabama state police, after earlier refusing to identify the two suspects, Monday afternoon identified them as R. E. Chambless, 59, and Charles Cagle, 22, both of the Birmingham area.

Lingo would say only that, "those are the men being held in connection with the bombings."

Concerning the state investigation, he said, "We are not through yet."

The pair was taken into custody early Monday on an open charge and spent the night under intensive questioning at the district state patrol headquarters on the city's outskirts. They were later transferred to the city jail after the interrogation.

Questioning of the two men and their movements, were surrounded in secrecy. The two suspects concealed their faces with laundry packages when they were rushed to the city jail from the patrol station before dawn.

Both Chambliss and Cagle have Ku Klux Klan backgrounds. Cagle was arrested near Tuscaloosa in June a few days before the University of Alabama was integrated. He was charged with carrying a concealed weapon but a date was never set for his trial.

Cagle was also among a group of men, some of them members of the klan, who were picked up near Tuscaloosa en route to a klan rally.

Chambliss has a record of several arrests in connection with various Klan activities, but no convictions. He was a city employee in the late 1940s but was dismissed in 1949 for smashing a newsman's camera at a Ku Klux Klan rally. He was one of the signers in the 1950s of a petition to incorprate a klan group known as the Alabama Ku Klux Klan, Inc.

Including $5,000 posted by Gov. George C. Wallace, rewards totalling nearly $80,000 have been offered for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons responsible for the city's recent bombings.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. arrived in the city before noon, one hour ahead of schedule, to confer with integration leaders on possible new demonstrations.

King issued an ultimatum to city officials last week demanding that Birmingham's racial differences be improved soon and said he would recommend demonstrations if they were not.

About 2,000 Negroes were arrested and jailed in massive demonstration earlier this year.

One city official has threatened King's arrest if demonstrations commence again. Two Negro leaders later issued a joint statement deploring King's threat and asking that the present negotiations be continued.

Fraternities have received an unaccustomed lauding in a report issued by the office of the Dean of Men.

The report, entitled "The Positive Side of the Greek Coin," was written by Dean of Men William G. Long. It was the result of a questionnaire distributed among the University's 24 social fraternities last spring.

"Fraternities provide a small group living experience," the report stated, "so often a vital service for certain students; they provide an experience in self-government quite in keeping with this institution; they provide an important and often necessary social outlet for their members . . . they provide . . . the equivalent of a third multistoried residence hall."

The report, to be published soon by the Dean's office, also cited encouragement of members to enter student government, to improve academic performance, participation in intramurals, public service and financial support to the town of Chapel Hill.

The questionnaires had been distributed last spring and were returned by 21 of the 24 fraternities. Long declined to identify the three who did not participate, commenting "There was such a good response that it is my belief that it was accidental that the questionnaires were not returned."

The report started with a discussion of some of the criticisms often leveled at fraternities. It mentioned anti-intellectualism, an excess of social life, perpetration of adolescence, breeding of social differentiation and discrimination through the so-called "blackball" system.

It then discussed each at length, drawing heavily on the figures gained through the poll. The questionnaires revealed that 1,574 fraternity men participated in either student government or other extra-curricular activities.

The anti-intellectual charge was considered at length.

The report said that fraternities ". . . . make a significant effort to encourage responsible academic performance. . . . For example, 60 per cent of the fraternities reporting have compulsory study halls for their pledges, 25 per cent have chapter contests with a monetary reward for the active or pledge demonstrating the greatest academic excellence for any given semester or year, . . . 75 per cent have tutoring servics provided by members of the fraternity, 85 per cent keep old quiz files, 35 per cent maintain a fraternity library and 35 per cent have faculty discussion groups at times within the house."

The report also revealed that the fraternities contributed a total of $928,880.59 to the "general economy," including private expenditures of $809,482.02.

APPOINTMENTS

Miss Daryl Farrington of Short Hills, N. J. and Miss Sue F. Ross of Fayetteville have been appointed assistants to the Dean of Women.

Miss Farrington is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and has worked as a journalist and a teacher of drama at the Barnard School in New York.

Miss Ross graduated from Queens College in Charlotte, and is presently taking her Master's degree in English at UNC.

Mrs. Allen G. Thurman and Mrs. Marie Kah will serve as hostesses in the Nursing School Dormitory and in Alderman Dormitory.

Mrs. Thurman attended the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She has formerly worked as a real estate agent in Washington, D. C.

WAKE TICKETS

Student and date tickets to the Wake Forest football game are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Individual student tickets are $2, and date and guest tickets are $4. If you want to sit in a group, you must buy your tickets together. An individual is allowed to buy only his ticket and a date or guest ticket.

UNC plays Wake Forest in a night game at Winston-Salem on Saturday. Kick-off time is 8 o'clock.

Rushing Meeting Tonight

All students interested in going through fall fraternity rush, which begins next week, will meet tonight at 7 in Memorial Hall.

"The meeting is strictly voluntary," Interfraternity Council Rush Chairman Bobby Gray said, "but it will be extremely worthwhile for all who are going through rush."

Dean of Men William G. Long will lead off the meeting with a briefing on fraternities in general. The talk will cover some of the problems and benefits of joining a fraternity and the things to look for in individual houses.

IFC President Charlie Battle will follow with an explanation of rushing rules and procedures. There will be a question period after Battle's talk.

Gray will add some of the more specific procedures followed by another question period.

"This is an excellent chance for the men to come and learn what rushing is all about," Battle said.

"They will need to know the rules and procedures in order to keep up with the pace of rush week.

Glee Club To Split Up

UNC Men's Glee Club will be split into two clubs this year, according to director Joel Carter.

There will be a touring group of between 40 and 45 members who will be the "first string" of the club.

A second group called the Glee Men will be made up of younger men with less singing experience and will be unlimited in size, he said.

The two will combine in all campus engagements while the first group will do all the travelling.

The first date for the combined Glee Club will be University Day, Oct. 12. The time and place of the concert has not yet been decided.

"Down in the Valley," a folk opera, will be presented in Greensboro late in October by the Woman's College Glee Club and veterans from last year's UNC club.

The touring group will make their annual fall tour late in November, making nine appearances in Virginia, Maryland and Washington, D. C. where they will sing at the Pentagon.

The spring semester will be highlighted by an Intercollegiate Festival including glee clubs and chorus groups from all over the state. It is tentatively scheduled to be held in Greensboro.

Officers for the 1963-1964 season are: Don Farthing, president; Bill Masten, vice-president; Bob Reddick, secretary; Alsey Hunter, treasurer; Scott Silliman, tour manager; and Whitney Joyner, publicity manager.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Rep. Phil Lacy, Republican of Greensboro, will speak tonight at the year's first meeting of the Young Republicans Club in Howell Hall at 7:30.

Rep. William Osteen, another state legislator from Guilford County, was originally scheduled to speak but could not come.

YRC President Charles Gold urged all club members and guests to attend.

Rep. Lacy will speak on party organization in North Carolina.

Volume 72, Number 9 Tuesday, October 1, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University
North Carolina
which first opened its doors in January
1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

About Those Inconsistencies

We have been asked two important questions in that portion of the great debate over the President's Public Accommodations proposals that is occurring on the campus.

First of all, a reader wanted to know, how can we be for equal rights for all and also give unremitting support to the accommodations bill? The reader professed to see a basic inconsistency in our position.

Secondly, we have been asked how we can support the Supreme Court's ruling outlawing mandatory Bible-reading and prayers in classrooms, and support the accommodations bill.

Normally we don't answer readers' letters. For one thing, it inhibits letter-writing, as the authors are apt to feel they can't win; and secondly, if we answered every letter we get, we'd have time for nothing else.

However, these two questions are important, and on the minds of more than just the two people who posed them, so we shall try to explain our reasons for supporting the accommodations law.

* * *

First of all, 31 states of the union already have Public Accommodations laws —many of them far more stringent than the one under consideration by Congress.

Beyond that, under English common law, one of the bases of our own legal system, an inn-keeper was required to serve all well-mannered and orderly persons who requested service.

Furthermore, there already exist many laws regulating private property, such as Minimum Wage and Hour laws, Zoning laws and laws regulating sanitary conditions of facilities serving the public.

All this does not mean we need an accommodations law. But it does point out that regulating private property is not a radical new concept, and it plus the concept of equal treatment in places of public accommodation was not discovered by President Kennedy in June, 1963.

Now, having put this question into some perspective, what about our readers' two arguments?

The first one, about our being for equal rights for all and also supporting the accommodations law, only seems to be an inconsistency on our part.

For what the accommodations bill would do is to recognize in law the natural right of all men to be judged as men, as individuals, not solely as a member of a certain race, creed or color.

The bill does take away the segregationist owner's freedom to blanketly discriminate against ten per cent of the population he is licensed to serve, simply because he wishes to. But is that a higher right than the right of a man to be judged on his own merits?

Only a person whose values are in serious need of re-ordering will argue 'yes' to that question; only a person whose commitment to Christian principles is in great doubt.

That brings us to the Supreme Court's ruling outlawing mandatory Bible-reading and prayers in the classroom. The second letter-writer asked how we could support that ruling and also support the accommodations law.

What our friend overlooked is the substantive difference between religion and public accommodations.

Prayer and religion are essentially a private matter. They are between a man —or a child—and his conscience, and we believe they should remain that way.

A restaurant owner, however, is licensed to serve the public by the state. Thus, this is essentially a matter between that man and the state—a public matter.

Now, this accommodations law would not stop that man from having his prejudices. It would simply prevent them from being, in fact, public policy. This law therefore recognizes that private property has its responsibilities as well as its privileges.

* * *

There are some further considerations involved.

One is that the basic evil involved in all this is the use of a double standard by segregationist proprietors. Persons licensed to serve the public have the right to refuse service to objectionable customers—but they have the responsibility to apply the same standard in all cases, not just when it suits their whim.

Thus this bill does not attempt to legislate morality. It attempts to legislate behavior, which is what all laws are for.

A second consideration is that this accommodations bill serves far more than just a moral purpose. It provides many small town store-owners with an honorable way out of the racial dilemma.

These are the owners who see the Civil Rights handwriting on the wall, but know they'll be ostracized by their more reactionary townsmen if they let down their segregation barriers.

These men know that unless those barriers come down, demonstrations are the only remedy the Negro has at present.

This law gives such small town store-owners the excuse they need to go ahead and do what should be done, without forcing them to leave town immediately afterwards. And it gives Negroes an alternative to disruptive demonstrations.

* * *

These are the main reasons we see no inconsistencies in our position. And these are the reasons we urge others to consider in their own evaluation of this gripping problem.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Academic Freedom In Germany

By ROBERT POWELL

Note — This column was sent to The Tar Heel by Bob Powell from Gottingen, Germany this summer.

"Academic Freedom" is the key word in the German University system.

In the Germany of 1800-1810 two important factors were making themselves evident: the new desire for personal liberty and free government that had spread from France, and the gradual emergence under the leadership of the Prussians of a national consciousness of the concept of a German people.

It is in this general background that the present-day German university system was founded. Through the writings of Fichte, Schleiermacher, and Wilhelm von Humbolt, brother of the scientist and explorer of South America, there emerged the outline of a plan for a new, reformed type of higher education.

At the heart of the system lay two axioms: the unity of research and teaching, and academic freedom. Von Humbolt later became Minister of Culture in Prussia and in 1810 founded the Friedrich Wilhelm Universitaet in Berlin. Fichte and Schleiermacher accepted chairs there and the new system was put into operation. The Friedrich Wilhelm Universitaet quickly became the leading academic institution in Germany and remained so until the Second World War. The historic university lies now in East Berlin. The name has been changed to honor Humbolt, although any resemblance between the ideas taught in this university now and its namesake is not only coincidental, but probably also suspect.

* * *

The two central concepts of the Humbolt system, as it has come to be called, are central also in our system, but under different interpretation. For example, in America the principle of the unity of research and teaching means that the college instructors also do research. In Germany it means that the scholars and scientists also give lectures. This is an important distinction as we will later see.

On the other hand, our interpretation of the principle of academic freedom cannot pretend to compare with the broadness of the German interpretation. In the German university there are very few restrictions upon the student. There is, for example, no such thing as a "required course." Theoretically, the student may pick and choose from the great storehouses of knowledge exactly what he wants and needs to meet his particular ends and to answer his particular questions.

* * *

Papers are written only in the later semesters, and then with nowhere near the frequency to which we are accustomed. Homework is limited almost exclusively to mathematics courses and quizzes are given only sporadically in certain fields, rarely more than one per semester. Attendance is required only in seminars in the later semesters. Examinations must be faced only twice; once to establish candidacy for the degree itself. Both sets of exams stress broad comprehension of the field rather than specific facts in specific contexts.

The practical operation of the system goes something like this. Sometime before the start of the semester, a "Description of Lectures" is published by the University and put on sale in all bookstores in the town. The students buy it and decide what is for their requirements interesting and necessary. Lectures begin theoretically on Nov. 1 or May 1, but usually start about a week later. The first thirty days of the semester constitute a sort of a period of grace during which any lecture can be visited by any student to determine the answers to a number of questions: such as whether he is really interested in the subject, whether it is fitted to his level of sophistication, whether the quality of the lecture is sufficient to merit time and effort being spent on it, and a host of others.

Sometime during this period the student must belegen — a German word for which there is no good, simple translation in this context. It means the student declares officially to the university his intention of hearing certain lectures. These lectures are entered into his "Study Book," which must be signed by the respective professors. This is the official record of what the student has done and is reviewed at the examinations. It also serves to fix the amount of his fees, since these are regulated by the number of hours of lectures the student hears. (The lecturers themselves, incidentally, get a cut of this money themselves, making their income partly dependent on the number of people willing to listen to them, which is actually not such a bad idea.)

Finally, a student may belegen as little or as much as he desires. He is his own boss in this matter and although each department publishes a one- or two-page list of the subjects in which it prefers that its degree candidates have some proficiency, no one in the administration even attempts to influence the student in his choice. The restraint, however, lies in the fact that one day the student will have to face his examinations and if he has not "heard" enough lectures, he will be denied candidacy. On the other hand, if he hears more than usual, he will have taken more time to get his degree, a factor which is today increasingly more important to German students. This student is also likely to find the scope of his examinations, parts of which are oral, perhaps broader than he had expected.

* * *

Just as the system here is different, so is the university environment also different. There is, for example, no "campus". The university buildings are scattered all over the town, necessitating about a fifteen minute walk in order to get from anywhere to just about anywhere else. There are also relatively few opportunities for communal living. Most students live in single rooms in town.

The number of extra-curricular activities open to the student is also much smaller. The student-faculty ratio is much higher than in America, about 50-1 in Goettingen. Furthermore, these faculty members are virtually inaccessible except to students doing what we would consider high-level graduate work. Classes are huge, running as high as 600 students. Seminars with 80-100 students are not at all rare. There is recommended reading, but rarely a text. The asking of questions in class is virtually unheard-of.

The German student is no more satisfied with this system than his American counterpart is with the American system. If anything, perhaps he is a bit more dissatisfied, and with reason. Topping the list of complaints is the lack of contact between students and professors and the relative lack of concern of the latter for the former. As one German student said to me, one gets the feeling that the university could function equally well without students. The professors could do their research, give their lectures and go blithely about their business without ever seeing a student. There is no doubt that some do.

The next most frequently belabored subject is size of classes. Most students soon give up trying to "get anything out" of their classes aside from an over-all outline of the subject, and devote their time to group efforts with other students to fill in these outlines from reading and discussion. Seminars, except on the highest level, are likewise disappointing to most students because of the large number of participants. In general, the student adopts a "Why fight it?" attitude and resigns himself to getting his education outside class on his own hook.

* * *

German students also decry the conditions they are forced to live under. These include generally high rent, lack of space, poor light, and draughty, ill-heated rooms. Also, the student living by himself has a difficult time meeting and getting to know other students.

In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries students banded together into organizations similar to our fraternities for mutual social benefit. Today, these organizations have come to be identified with militarism and National Socialism (although they were banned under the Third Reich), as well as snobbishness, the old aristocracy and certain political opinions. These are qualities which leave the average German student more or less unenthusiastic. Today there is increasing demand for something better. More Studentenheimer, dormitory-like buildings, usually catering to a certain field (Law, Theology, Medicine, etc.), are being built and more universities are experimenting with "student villages," smaller housing units (30-40 students) in village-type arrangements.

In the light of social and economic structure of today, there seem to this observer to be other shortcomings of the systems. The tremendous industrial and economic expansion of the past half-century or so have wrought certain social changes which are most apparent in the United States and which have been attested to by a veritable mountain of literature, ranging from the semi-popular writings of Packard and White to the more scholarly treatises of David Riesman, et al.

Although Germany has been set back in this development by two devastating global wars, and although the gigantic force of European tradition has served in general as a bulwark to these influences, Germany has nonetheless made strides in this direction since the war and certain symptoms of these developments can be noted in the post-war generation, many of whom now are in college. (As a parenthetical comment, these social changes are bemoaned by the older generation as due to "the American influence.")

* * *

One of the necessities in a highly industrialized society is a relatively highly educated white-collar force to man the burgeoning bureaucracy which inevitably accompanies the rise of a mammoth economic complex. Thus, a college education for the majority of students becomes a necessary requirement for later success and security, rather than a marvellous adventure into which one enters purely for the love of learning. Thus the modern student feels compelled to acquire his diploma in the shortest possible time, in order to get down to the real business of life-getting ahead, raising a family, providing for security in old age, etc. In light of these tendencies, which are observable now in Germany and are the source of a good deal of concern in some quarters, and which must inevitably increase as they have in the United States, the Humbolt University system is robbed of many of its advantages and its disadvantages are to some extent exacerbated. The tremendous opportunities to broaden ones sphere of knowledge go virtually unused, as students busy themselves almost exclusively with those subjects which are necessary to the acquisition of the diploma.

If a student changes his university it is primarily because he did not like it there. It is much easier if one remains at the same university for four years, since one can acquire in this period a good impression of what certain professors consider very important and what will probably be included in the examination. The lack of social communication among the student body has an increasing negative effect in a world in which more emphasis is continually being placed on social skills. This phenomenon coupled with the unapproachability of the faculty and the tendency to take the word of the professor as the declaration of a natural law also inhibit the free exchange of ideas and the development of the capacity of intelligent criticism.

In short, for the outstanding student who contemplates entering the academic community as a profession, the Humbolt system can be a continuing adventure, allowing him to satiate fully his thirst for knowledge. Thomas Wolfe would have loved it. For the average student, the student who wishes merely to gird himself for the coming struggle to get ahead, it can be (it does not have to be) a lonely, time consuming, and frustrating experience.

* * *

In comparison, the American college system stands up as well suited to turn out the great number of well-qualified, intelligent, solidly capable B.A.'s which are needed to keep the gigantic system from collapsing, while at the same time maintaining enough flexibility that the outstanding student is not completely stifled. We can certainly draw some good ideas for increasing this flexibility from the German system, but one must not forget that the purpose of the university has changed a good deal in the last 50 years. The American college system, through a combination of good fortune and good planning, has been able to meet the challenge of the age somewhat better than the German.

"Would You Repeat That, Sir? The Afternoon Bomb Explosion Jarred The Microphone A Little"

Power Structure

By JAMES RESTON
The New York Times

The feeling against the White House in Birmingham especially among business leaders is savage and plural. "The Kennedys" are the enemy, and if anything, the Attorney General is denounced more fiercely than the President.

Birmingham didn't like Franklin Roosevelt either. He introduced the Fair Employment Practices Commission and the Fair Labor Standards Act, both designed to help Negroes get work at decent wages, but there was a difference then.

Roosevelt's economic policies were getting through. They were visibly helping the city get over the economic depression, and were thus a counter-force to his pro-Negro policy. But Kennedy's economic policies are not getting through the Congress. They are bitterly resented, particularly by the United States Steel Corporation subsidiary here, which is the largest employer.

Accordingly, "The Kennedys" are denounced for both their economic and racial policies by precisely those community economic leaders who alone have the power to effect a compromise on the race issue.

This community is not without its leaders in the bar and the church who are opposed to the present situation on moral and legal grounds. David J. Vann, an ardent young lawyer from one of the largest and most respected families of Alabama, led the fight that recently turned out "Bull" Connor and the others in the old city administration.

Two other young lawyers, C. H. Erskine Smith and Charles Morgan, have also spoken out for compromise, but it is significant that Vann was virtually forced out of his law firm as a result and Morgan, who denounced the established order here publicly this week, is now looking for a job elsewhere.

The point, then, is not that Birmingham is lacking in young leaders, and not that it is lacking in biracial committees, but that the real power structure of the city — the older men who run the industries, banks and insurance companies that in turn influence the stores and big law firms—are not leading the peace effort.

There are about a dozen men in this group, some of whom have worked quietly for a compromise, some of whom have tried and then withdrawn. But at no time have they all worked together.

They are: Gen. John C. Persons, chairman of the First National Bank William J. Rushton, president of the Protective Life Insurance Company; Claude S. Lawson, chairman of the United States Pipe and Foundry Company; Frank P. Samford Sr., chairman of the Liberty National Life Insurance Company, and Lee C. Bradley Jr., a lawyer.

Other influential leaders who have tried to help and are still important are Clarence B. Hanson, publisher of The Birmingham News; Frank A. Plummer, president of the Birmingham Trust National Bank; Sidney W. Smyer, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, who helped negotiate the lunch counter dispute last May; W. H. Sterne, an investment banker; Arthur W. Weible, president of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Division of United States Steel; William Engel of the Engel Companies; and Douglas Arant and Bernard Monaghan, lawyers.

There is general agreement here that these men, working together with the leaders of the local clergy of both races, could do more to produce a compromise in a month than Federal troops, Federal officials and all the national Negro organizations put together could in years.

The question is who, if anybody can get them together. They damn "The Kennedys" and concede that Senator Goldwater would carry Alabama against the President tomorrow, but even this prospect only creates a new dilemma.

For, ironically, the power of the Democratic party, which most of the leaders of this community deplore, also helps them dominate the chairmanships of the key committees of Congress and this Southern domination of the Congressional chairmanships is probably their most powerful force against President Kennedy's integrationist policy.

The Birmingham power structure wants the racial problem to go away. It wants a states' rights President in the White House and segregationist Democrats running the Congressional committees. It wants law and order but not Federal law and order. And it is absolutely sincere about all this which is what makes the problem of compromise so difficult.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

'Tar Heels All' (Almost)

By PETE IVEY

"Native Tar Heel" seems to be the medical watchword at the University as 69 of the 72 members of the freshman class in the School of Medicine enroll from towns and cities in this state.

However, at least one of the out-of-state medical freshmen has a name that has the ring of Old North State in every syllable. Te is Zebulon Baird Vance. The son of Z. B. Vance of Macon, Ga., the future Dr. Vance is a descendant of the Civil War governor of North Carolina, Zeb Vance.

Dean W. R. Berryhill, presiding in his final year as head of the School of Medicine at Chapel Hill, has stressed medical treatment and service to the people of North Carolina—which means educating enough doctors to staff the hospitals and clinics and serve the public in every section of the state. The UNC Medical School is far in the lead in sending doctors graduated at Chapel Hill into practice of medicine inside the state of North Carolina. The enrollment this year points to a continuation of the trend.

Dr. Berryhill referred to other statistics about the School of Medicine enrollment this fall. Total enrollment in the four classes in the four-years School of Medicine here is 263. The enrollment grows larger each year.

The students attending the medical school are not only predominantly North Carolinians, but every part of the state is well represented. Of the over three score freshmen, over half of them came from the eastern and western sections of the state. Twenty-five came from counties west of Charlotte and Winston-Salem. Sixteen more came from east of Raleigh. There are four students from Rutherford County and four from New Hanover. They come from 49 places in 42 North Carolina counties, and from three other states.

In the freshman class are future doctors who did their undergraduate work at nine different colleges. More came to the university at Chapel Hill for their first three or four years than any other school. After that comes Davidson College.

Dr. Berryhill said that an increasing number of entering students in medical school are coming now under the arrangement which takes a qualified boy or girl after his third year in college. Twenty-two of the 72 medical freshmen have taken advantage of the three-year undergraduate pre-medical course of study.

Ten per cent of the medical freshmen will be eligible for a bachelor's degree in medicine after one year's work, and will already have begun work towards the M.D. degree. The three-year program cuts one year of time and expense from the older program.

Seven students seeking medical education at Chapel Hill are John Motley Morehead scholars who have been at Carolina three or more years. This brings the medical school's total enrollment of former Morehead scholars to 27.

Dr. Berryhill also points with pride and interest to the fact that he is enrolling, in this freshman class, two medical students whose fathers also were taught by Dr. Berryhill. These two second generation of medical students taught by Dean Berryhill are Frederick Da Costa Austin III of Charlotte, son of Dr. F. D. Austin Jr., and Rhoderick Thomas Williams Jr. of Farmville, son of Dr. R. T. Williams. Both the fathers were in the two-year School of Medicine here from 1933 to 1935, and got their M.D.'s at Vanderbilt.

Even prior to the present entering class, the record of taking North Carolinians and encouraging your doctors to practice in the state has been good. Beginning with those admitted in the first graduating class of 1954, a total of 943 students have been enrolled in th School of Mericine. Better than 96 per cent were North Carolina residents.

That represents almost 50 per cent of all state residents who have entered all medical schools in the United States during this 10-year period, and more than 50 per cent of those who have attended medical schools in North Carolina.

Over 90 per cent of those graduated from the UNC Medical School who have completed their graduate medical training and military obligations have entered practice in North Carolina, from the coast to the mountains.

The School of Medicine here was established in 1879, and in 1900 was made an integral part of the University of North Carolina, having a two-year medical school with graduates going for the final two years to medical schools in other states. The School of Medicine was expanded to a four-year school in 1952 under Dr. Berryhill's leadership. There are some 250 faculty members of the School of Medicine. The North Carolina Memorial Hospital is a part of the school, affording teaching and treatment and other clinical facilities. The new Research Wing, recently completed, will enable the expansion of the multi-million dollars a year program of medical research which is largely supported by the federal government and other foundations and agencies.

Student Aid Fund Exceeds $½ Million

By MICHEL GOODMAN

More than half a million dollars was loaned last year by the University to students who needed funds to continue their studies.

"This was the largest student loan program in the history of UNC," said Julian D. Mason Jr., director of Student Aid. "And it is undoubtedly the largest in the entire State."

A total of $588,865 was loaned to more than 1000 students from July 1, 1962, to June 30, 1963, who could show a need for money to remain in school, and maintained satisfactory academic records.

The National Defense Student Loan Program contributed over half of the money loaned; the rest came from funds contributed by alumni, friends of the University, and industry.

A total of $467,360 has been committed this year to students in need. However, due to a reduced amount from the National Defense Program and increased student enrollment, the student aid office has been forced to turn down some marginal requests this year.

Mr. Mason explained it this way: UNC has qualified for the maximum of $250,000 from the National Defense Loan Program for the past three years. But this year, more North Carolina schools than ever requested funds from the program, which reduced the amount to UNC to $233,890, or 70 per cent of the amount UNC needed. UNC is required to match the federal contribution with about $25,000.

A total of 44 different loan funds are available to students, including the National Defense Student Loan Program and one consolidated fund that encompasses some 43 smaller funds. These private funds make up the remainder of the money available to UNC students.

According to Mr. Mason, however, the entire student loan program might be in jeopardy in 1964 when the National Defense Program is presently scheduled to expire if the Congress does not extend it. "Without this money, the student loan program at UNC will be in hot water," he said.

The Junior Omnibus Education Bill is now before the Congress. Passage of this bill will enable schools like UNC, not only to continue with their present programs, but to meet the present financial needs of qualified students who must have financial assistance to complete their educations.

The ratio of money going out to students to money coming back in repayment for loans was 5 to 1 last year, said Mr. Mason. Student loans collect only 3 per cent interest, and are not required to be repaid while the student is in an institution of higher learning, the armed services or the Peace Corps. It will be many years before the present loan program can support itself in a revolving fund.

When the National Defense Student Loan Program was authorized in 1958 under the National Defense Education Act, it opened a new door to the area of student aid. Private persons and organizations patterned their loan programs after it, and the amount available to students increased greatly. The Act reoriented public thinking regarding student loans and enabled more needy students than ever before to seek higher education.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

UNC Debate Team — 7:30 p.m., debate room in Bingham Annex, reception for all students interested in intercollegiate debating.

Young Republican Club — 7:30 p.m., Howell Hall, speaker is Rep. Phil Lacy of Guilford County.

Young Democratic Club Executive Committee — 1 p.m., upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Interviews for vacancy on Men's Council — 2-4 p.m., Student Government offices, GM.

IFC — 7 p.m., Memorial Hall, for all students interested in fall fraternity rush.

Woodrow Wilson Fellows' Reception — 4 p.m., Faculty Lounge, Morehead Planetarium.

Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society — 7:30 p.m., 265 Phillips, speaker Dr. S. Y. Tyree, "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

Splash Club — 4 p.m., Womens Gym, synchronized swimming and water ballet.

Tennis Club — 4 p.m., Womens Gym, organizational meeting.

Outing Club — 7 p.m., 302 Woollen Gym, for students interested in outdoor sports.

Fencing Club — 7:30 p.m., 304 Woollen Gym, election of officers, re-organization of Varsity Recognition Committee.

Yack Photos — 1-6 p.m., til Fri., basement of GM, for freshmen. Seniors, 4th year med. students and 3rd year law students will have a $1.00 late fee.

Woollen Gym and Swimming Pool are open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mon.-Thurs., from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Sat., and from 2 to ' p.m. on Sun.

Angel Flight Interviews — Till Fri., in individual Angel's dormitory rooms.

Oliver Wendell Holmes Lecture— 8 p.m., Carroll Hall, presiding Chancellor W. B. Aycock, speaker Arthur E. Sutherland Jr., Bussey Professor of Law of Harvard, "Social Statistics and a Restless People".

All Juniors and Seniors considering Ministry, 203 South Bldg., see Dean Duffy as soon as possible.

Pre-med counselling in the College of Arts and Sciences — 4:30-5:30 p.m., offices of the College of Arts and Sciences, for all students considering a career in medicine.

UNC Philological Club, 7:45 p.m., faculty Lounge of the Morehead Planetarium, speaker Ransom Tayor, "Thoman Mann, Bourgeois and Confidence Man — A Paradox of Ironic Disengagement".

MOVIES

Carolina — The Children's Hour
Varsity—The Condemned of Altona
Rialto — Fellini's 8½

FUTURE

Editor's Round Table — 4 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker 1.

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Wed., Woodhouse Room, GM, election of chairman.

IDC — 7 p.m., Wed., 4th floor New East.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., Wed., upstairs Lenoir Hall.

Student Government Interviews — 2-5 p.m., second week of Oct., 210 GM.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Palm starch
5. Trots
9. Talon
10. Hillside dugout
11. Long for
12. Laments
14. Fisherman's spinner
15. Constrain
16. Wire service
17. Army Post Office: abbr.
18. Seine
19. Swaggers
23. Mister, in Madrid
24. Bird of prey
28. Herbaceous plants
30. Jump
33. Foot-like part
34. Pronoun
35. Want of feeling
37. Title of respect
39. Biblical mount
40. An indicator
41. Back of the neck
42. Rod and ——
43. Observes
44. New Zealand parrots

DOWN
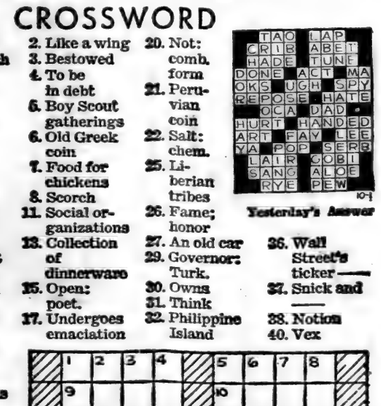
1. Qualm
2. Like a wing
3. Bestowed
4. To be in debt
5. Boy Scout gatherings
6. Old Greek coin
7. Food for chickens
8. Scorch
11. Social organizations
13. Collection of dinnerware
25. Open: poet.
17. Undergoes emaciation
20. Not: comb. form
21. Peruvian coin
22. Salt: chem.
25. Liberian tribes
26. Fame; honor
27. An old car
29. Governor: Turk.
30. Owns
31. Think
32. Philippine Island
36. Wall Street's ticker ——
37. Snick and ——
38. Notion
40. Vex



Yesterday's Answer

-Gag Law-

(Continued from Page 1)

among other things, an insult to the intelligence of students and administration alike," they said.

Other delegates asked questions and discussed possible actions that could be taken, including letters to opponents and supporters of the bill. All schools indicated interest in the bill, and said they would meet again in the near future for further action.

"We were here more to learn than to give aid," said the Salem College representation. "We have learned a lot, and we will make every effort to acquaint our students with the issue."

Sally McKay, president of the Duke Women's College, said that the issue was being widely discussed on her campus, and expressed the hope that some positive action can be taken.

The Appalachian delegation said they were disappointed that no more action was taken at the meeting, but called the discussion "very helpful in outlining the issues."

Colleges represented in Friday's meeting included ASTC, Atlantic Christian, Duke, Salem, Elon, Wilmington College, Greensboro College, J. C. Smith University, and the three branches of the Consolidated University.

WUNC-TV SCHEDULE
Tuesday

| | |
|---|---|
| 8:55 | News |
| 9:00 | U.S. History |
| 9:30 | Phys. Science |
| 10:00 | World History |
| 10:30 | Math |
| 11:00 | Brit. Calendar |
| 11:15 | South, 2 Views |
| 12:15 | Mid-Day News |
| 12:30 | Aspect |
| 1:00 | Sign Off |
| 3:30 | Parlons |
| 4:00 | Parlons |
| 4:30 | Sign Off |
| 5:30 | Young People |
| 6:00 | Deaf Lang |
| 6:30 | What's New |
| 7:00 | News |
| 7:30 | What in World |
| 8:00 | Shakespeare |
| 9:30 | U.S. History |

PEANUTS

There's always a lot of humidity this time of year, with losing coaches and old grads crying.

Official Frisbees 88c

Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER Daily and Sunday
Call: Charles Lively 942-3007 Chapel Hill, N. C.

Law Students
We have just put out a small collection of old law books in our Old Book Case.
Prices are small. Maybe there's a treasure for you here.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

THE MIRISCH COMPANY PRESENTS A WILLIAM WYLER PRODUCTION
AUDREY HEPBURN SHIRLEY MacLAINE THE JAMES GARNER CHILDREN'S HOUR
Because of the mature nature of its theme—this motion picture is recommended for adults only.
TODAY ONLY
CAROLINA
Shows at: 1:00 - 3:00 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00
SOON: LESLIE CARON IN "THE L SHAPED ROOM"

Hear the
BOB QUINCY SHOW
at a new time
4:45 P.M.
Monday thru Friday
WCHL-1360

Varsity
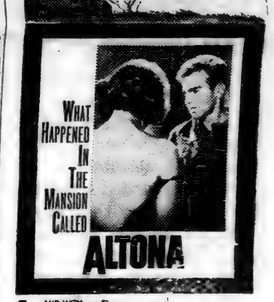
NOW PLAYING
SOPHIA LOREN MAXIMILIAN SCHELL
FREDRIC MARCH ROBERT WAGNER
"THE CONDEMNED OF ALTONA"



AND WITH FRANÇOISE PREVOST
Directed by VITTORIO DE SICA
Inspired by a play by JEAN PAUL SARTRE
Shows at 1:00 - 3:07 5:14 - 7:21 - 9:28

Richard Dyer-Bennet
The 20th Century Troubador
TWO DAY CAMPUS VISIT
Tuesday, 4:00 p.m. Graham Memorial
Informal Reception. All invited to meet Mr. Dyer-Bennet in person.
Tuesday, 8:00 p.m. Hill Hall
LECTURE-DEMONSTRATION
"The Art of the Self Accompanied Singer"
Presented with the co-operation of the Musicalogicd Society and the N. C. Institute of Folk Musi
ADMISSION FREE
Wednesday, 8:00 p.m. Memorial Hall
CONCERT
UNC students free, spouse $1.00; General public $1.00 after 7:45 P.M. if space is available
Graham Memorial Presentation
Hurok Attractions

CO-EDS
See or Call
GRACE E. THORTON
at
Esquire Tailors
For your sewing needs — Alterations — Restyling and Dressmaking.
140½ Franklin St. Ph. 942-6067

LOUIS JOURDAN
ELSA MARTINELLI
NIGHT & SUNDAY ..... $1.00
WEEKDAY MAT. ..... 85c
The V.I.P.s
In Color
NOW PLAYING
The South's Finest Theatre
In Durham
Northgate Shopping Center
Northgate Theatre

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available
SINCE ITS ORGANIZATION IN 1857, The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company has returned to its policyholders, as dividends, an average of 25% of the total gross premiums received. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C. L. U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive
1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Economical Living — Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C., Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill, J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street, Phone RO 2-0411, Wilmington, N. C., D. D. Browning, Owner

FALL COURSES
IN EVELYN WOOD
READING DYNAMICS
CHAPEL HILL HIGH SCHOOL
Oct. 8, 7:30-9:30 P.M.
For further information contact
MR. DONALD B. BROOKS,
812 Louise Circle, Durham 286-2683

Blue Cross Blue Shield
For details mail coupon to . . .
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

STUDENT CERTIFICATE
Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION, DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA
Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.
Name ..... Address ..... City ..... State .....

FINAL CLEARANCE

Our own trim-Traditional Poplin Slacks.
Crisp Dacron-cotton blends in the better colors of Olive, Blue, Tan and Putty. A full selection in sizes 28 to 42. Regularly priced to 11.95 now as low as $7.99
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

Immortality shaved like any other man Sunday. Then he went out and played the final game in one of baseball's great careers.

I was born in St. Louis in 1943, two years after the guy started it all. I remember St. Louis as I was growing up. Like trips to the St. Louis Zoo in Forest Park where the features were elephant, lion and monkey shows. Like all the commotion around me when Dewey was elected President. Like all the sadness when they gave it to Harry instead.

I remember the suffocating heat in the summertime, too. But most of all, I remember Him.

In 1946, when the Cardinals won the pennant and beat Boston in the World Series, I really didn't know what was going on. But it wasn't too long afterward that I found out.

My Readin', Writin' and 'Rithmetic consisted of reading box scores, scoring ballgames and figuring batting averages. I didn't consider it strange to plaster 15 pictures of Him all over the walls of my room at the same time I was listening to Him get a key double over the radio.

Fights used to ensue when some kid would say Williams was better, or DiMaggio was better. I knew they weren't.

St. Louis had the Browns then, before the wheels threw Bill Veeck out of baseball, and it was standard procedure for the sides of the family to break along a line separating the Browns and the Cards.

My grandparents had season tickets for a long while, and their love for the Cardinals was exceeded only by their hatred for the Brooklyn Dodgers. It was ingrained in me that the "Bums" were somewhat akin to Nazis and must be treated as such. Anud they were by my grandparents.

Many was the time they went to Busch Stadium (it was Sportsman's Park then) to cheer for St. Louis against any and everyone. But, more often, it was to yell and scream for Dodger blood. The attendants had a heckuva time down that third base line, for the folks did everything short of heave bottles.

I was a bit different.

I guess most kids, as they grow up and mature, switch from worshipping a single man on their favorite team to rooting for the club as one, and all the players on it. I have never fallen into the vice. Baseball, to me, meant Stanley Frank Musial.

All Of Baseball Loves Stan

From the day he wandered down from the iron mining town of Donora, Pa. to the day two weeks ago when the final, frantic pennant race was over, Stan Musial has shared a love affair with the city of St. Louis, indeed with all baseball, seldom seen anywhere.

He commanded more respect, more idolatry and probably more money than any man who ever played the game.

When he said (as he often did), "Just putting on a major league uniform every day is the greatest thrill I could possibly have," people had a hard time believing he meant it. But he did.

Any review of Musial's career must be founded on two words—statistics and durability. In recent years they had to bring out a computer every time he came to bat. His records are legion, and a lot of them didn't come solely off the big and dangerous stick.

More than his records, the boyish enthusiasm he displayed for the game through two decades of manhood will endear him to most people. I spell the guy's name C.L.A.S.S. and I wonder what it will be like without him.

The unique stance that someone once said looks like "a kid peeking around the corner to see if the cops are coming" will be gone

The big, red number "6" on the white Cardinal uniform will be gone.

The high-pitched laugh and the picture swing from the nice guy who finished first will be gone.

The Guy Has Had One Big Ball

Every year for the past five, it seems, Stan has said he would retire. Now that it is real, the departure seems unreal.

Baseball has been one big ball for Musial. This last year, though around .250, was one of the best for him. The colorful Cardinals excited the country and turned a dull season into a pulsating drama when they won 19 of 20 to catch the Dodgers.

In the final series, it was only justice that Musial would tie the first game with a home run; that Musial would break up Sandy Koufax' no-hitter in the second; that Musial would go four-for-ten when St. Louis could get only about ten hits all-told.

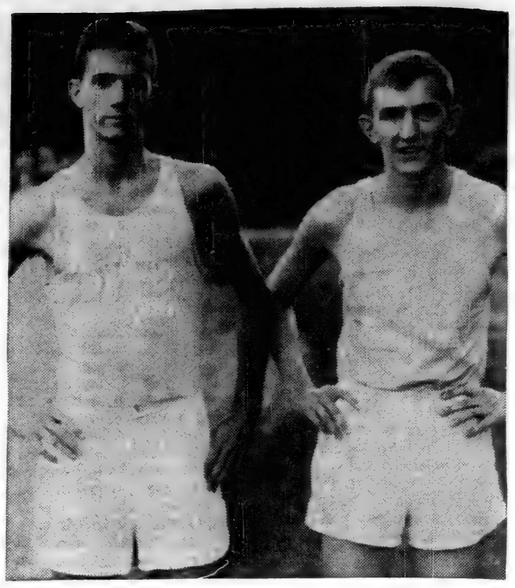
But justice failed The Man when Los Angeles took all three and put the pennant away.

As sportscaster Joe Garagiola said before it was over, "Fate will have the Cardinals win the pennant, face the Yankees in a series which will go seven games with Stan hitting a five-run home run in the ninth to win it."

The names of most of the ballplayers I rushed to get autographs from in those early days of St. Louis will fade away someday.

Guys like Jim Rivera, Ned Garver, Jim Delsing, Sherm Lollar and Roy Seivers. Others like Marty Marion, Enos Slaughter, Red Schoendienst, Al Brazil and Del Rice. But the last of the big ones will always be a legend.

With the departure of Stan Musial, baseball may remain unchanged. But, to me at least, the St. Louis Cardinals will never be the same.



ART MAILLET JIM MEADE

UNC's tall junior and surprising sophomore tied for first place in the Carolina-Wake Forest cross-country race Saturday in Winston-Salem. The two finished in 22:31.1 as Coach Joe Hilton's runners coasted, 15-43.

SPORTS Daily Tar Heel

Page 4- Tuesday, October 1, 1963

Ford, Al Downing Tabbed For Duties

NEW YORK (UPI)—Manager Ralph Houk announced Monday that Whitey Ford, his southpaw ace would pitch the first game of the World Series for the New York Yankees against the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday with Al Downing, another lefthander, starting the second game.

Houk's announcement came at a press conference after a Yankee workout in which Jim Bouton, expected to start the third game of the series when it shifts to Los Angeles on Saturday, had his final tune-up.

In Los Angeles, manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers announced that Sandy Koufax would start the first game for the Dodgers and that he "leaned" toward Johnny Podres, another southpaw, in the second game.

The first-game duel matching two of the finest left-handed pitchers in baseball also could serve as a pivotal test around which the whole World Series may revolve.

The second contest will provide a study in contrasts of southpaw hurlers.

Downing, a youngster of 24, came up to the Yankees from Richmond a bit before mid-season and proceeded to pick up a slumping Bomber staff.

Podres, the polished veteran, was a hero of the 1955 series when he shut out New York, 2-0, in the deciding seventh game.

SWIMMERS MEET

Coach Pat Earey will meet all varsity and freshmen swimming prospects this afternoon in room 304 of Woollen Gym. Separate meetings have been scheduled—at 4 o'clock for the freshmen and at 5 o'clock for the varsity.

Last year the Tar Heel tankmen finished in a three-way tie with N. C. State and Maryland for the ACC championship.

Our distinctive offering of Sport Coats patternings for the Fall Season is now complete.

We have an astounding selection sure to please the most discriminating taste.

By Cricketeu, Kingsridge, Hart Schaffner & Marx.

Prices from 35.00

VARSITY MEN'S WEAR

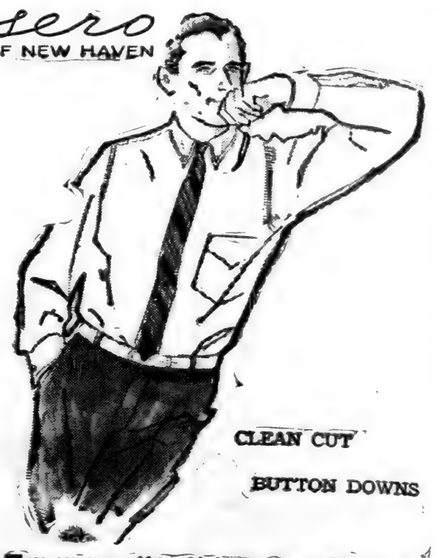
147 E. Franklin St.

Sero OF NEW HAVEN



CLEAN CUT BUTTON DOWNS

These are many shirts with button down collars, but few achieve the brilliant, perennial propriety of Sero. This is the traditional flare with back center button made in marvelous domestic and imported fabrics.

Town & Campus

Oklahoma Number 1 After Upsetting USC

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oklahoma is back on top for the first time in five years.

The Sooners, upset winners of Southern California's defendig national champions last Saturday, were voted the nation's No. 1 college football team today in the season's first weekly ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

Alabama was second and Texas third in the ballotting of the 35 leading coaches whose ratings have become accepted as the most authoritative in college football. Two Big Ten teams, Northwestern and Wisconsin, were next in the fourth and fifth spots.

Southern California, which was ranked tops in the land last year after a 10-0 season and a Rose Bowl victory, were no higher than ninth this week, behind Georgia Tech (No. 6), Navy (No. 7) and Pittsburgh (No. 8).

TIED FOR 10TH

This week's top 10 group actually was a "top 11" as Ohio State and Nebraska finished in a tie for 10th place.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners received 22 first-place votes from the 35-man UPI rating board. Alabama was the top choice of seven coaches; Texas was picked by three and Northwestern, Navy and Pitt by one each.

This season's first two victories over Clemson and Southern California indicate that Oklahoma is back on football's glory road.

The Sooners won national championships in 1955 ad 1956, dropped to fourth in 1957, to fifth place in 1958, and then went unranked three straight seasons. They moved up to seventh place last season with an 8-2 record.

SOONERS IDLE SATURDAY

Coincidentally, the last time Oklahoma topped the UPI weekly ratings was exactly five years ago on this date, Sept. 30, 1958.

The Sooners are idle next Saturday and then resume play against third-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on Oct. 12.

With points distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to the 10th places, Oklahoma had 324 out of a possible 350. Alabama had 270 points, Texas 245, Northwstern 182 and Wisconsin 176.

THE TOP TEN

| Team | Points |
|---|---|
| 1. Oklahoma 22 (2-0) | 324 |
| 2. Alabama 7 (2-0) | 270 |
| 3. Texas 3 (2-0) | 245 |
| 4. Northwestern 1 (2-0) | 182 |
| 5. Wisconsin (2-0) | 176 |
| 6. Georgia Tech (2-0) | 134 |
| 7. Navy 1 (2-0) | 108 |
| 8. Pittsburgh 1 (2-0) | 87 |
| 9. Southern California (1-1) | 76 |
| 10. Tie Ohio State (1-0) | 57 |
| 10. Tie Nebraska (2-0) | 57 |

Second 10 teams: 12, Mississippi, 41; 13, Penn State, 34; 14, Air Force, 32; 15, Oregon State, 20; 16, tie, Michigan State and Missouri, 16 each; 18, Texas Christian, 9; 19, tie, Duke and Rice, 8 each.

Parker Beats Graham, 7-0

Intramural tag football action got underway yesterday with games in the dormitory and graduate divisions. The 4 o'clock contests saw the Town Lodgers forfeit to the Aycock Aardvarks and Parker defeat Graham, 7-0.

Ray Harding's touchdown pass to Roger James in the opening minutes produced the lone score in the Parker-Graham game. Bud Dillon kicked the cnversion.

YESTERDAY'S SCORES

Aycock 1, Town Lodgers 0 (forfeit)
Parker 7, Graham 0
Med School I 6, Peacocks 0
Old West 21, Mangum 6
Joyner 17, Teague 7

FINAL CLEARANCE

Our own make, and famous make Half Sleeve Shirts.
Wide assortment of stripes, solids, checks & plaids in our famous roll Button-Down collar. Regularly priced to 5.95 now only

$2.99

Varsity Men's Wear

DO THE FAIR DAMSELS TELL YOU THAT YOU HAVE

SLAX APPEAL?

WELL IF NOT YOU'RE MISSING SOMETHING.

However, you need not despair any longer. THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL has hundreds of finely tailored traditional trousers in an array of fabrics and colors. That is unequaled in the area.

Right now at THE HUB you can get exactly what you need at the most reasonable prices in town.

THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

Bass OUTDOOR FOOTWEAR

WEEJUNS

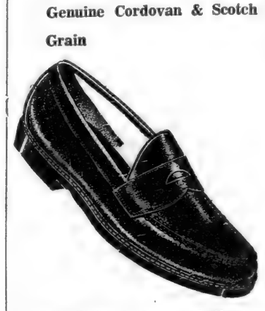
HIS: Antique Brown, Black, Genuine Cordovan & Scotch Grain



HERS: Stained Brown, Antique Red & Navy in Loafers.

Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

Milton's New Luxury Woollens Enhance Our Choice Old School Suit Collection

Let's start with basic worsted 3/16" herringbones in char gray, medium gray, navy or deep olive —$60.00

The lightest weight fall suiting of superfine yarns, the ultimate in basic yet exotic fabrics, in worsted flannel twills or miniature herringbones—char gray, brown olive, blue heather, banker's gray, dark navy—$75.00.

The new country look in worsted Saxony ½" herringbone with the feel of cashmere, in light gray, banker's gray or brown olive — $70.00.

The Cupboard rage—new six harness bopsack in golden gray or medium gray—a smart new effect ours alone — introductory price $72.50.

You'll Love Milton's New Fall Look.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

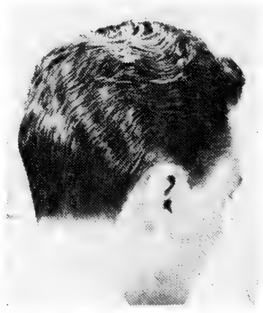
Downtown Chapel Hill



The Executive

The Standard

Ivy League

The Continental

Flat Top

You Have a Choice Here

Handle bar mustaches and one style haircuts went out 30 years ago. Now smart men demand smart haircuts.

Haircuts that emphasize your strong features, top off your personality and add confidence in Knowing Your Appearance Is Correct.
Any one of our six barbers can create any of the Men's Hair Styles shown here and many more. Why be satisfied with just a haircut when you have a choice. You are invited to come in and State Your Style or ask for our suggestion. It's our business to know.

Carolina Barber Shop

FREE PARKING 131 EAST FRANKLIN

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1963 | United Press International Service

10

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Senate Extends Rights Commission, 70-15

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved a stop-gap extension for the U. S. Civil Rights Commission Tuesday with only token opposition from Southerners who are girding for a major civil rights battle later in the session.

The Senate granted the commission a one-year lease, just half a day after the last two-year extension expired at midnight.

The vote to extend the commission was 70 to 15, with all opposition votes cast by Southern Democrats. Voting in favor of the extension were 45 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

The bill now goes to the House where passage is expected sometime next week.

Supporters of the commission, which studies and investigates discrimination in all fields, wanted a permanent extension with additional powers. Southerners wanted to see the commission die.

Selassie Calls For World Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, who nearly three decades ago sounded a futile plea for the League of Nations to act against aggression, Tuesday opened a state visit to the United States with a new call for world unity in the face of "common danger."

"The same fate awaits us all if our efforts fail," the 73-year-old Selassie told President Kennedy at a red carpet train station welcome.

In one of the warmest greetings ever given a visiting head of state, the President praised Selassie, saying there was no other guest who could give the United States greater satisfaction.

Kennedy hailed the emperor for his life-long fight for collective security. His "place in history is already assured," the President said.

House Grants Military Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress sent President Kennedy the largest military pay raise in the nation's history Tuesday.

The legislation would provide a $1.2 billion increase for almost two million members of the armed forces, effective Tuesday.

The final roll call vote was 332-5. Voting "no" were Reps. Omar Burleson, (D-Tex); Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.); Alvin O'Konski (R-Wis); John R. Pillion (R-N. Y.); and W. R. Poage (D-Tex.)

The House acted after less than an hour of debate. The Senate voted last week to approve the compromise which calls for a pay hike for all those in the military service except 742,000 low-ranking draftees and enlistees still serving their two-year military obligation.

For other enlisted men, the pay boost would range from $12 a month for privates to $70 a month for senior master sergeants. For officers, the increases would range from $49 to $110 a month.

Dozens Killed By Chinese Reds

MOSCOW (UPI)—Chinese Communist authorities were reported Tuesday to have machine-gunned to death dozens of men, women and children in a crowd seeking permission to cross the border into the Societ Union in May, 1962.

The report came from Maj. Gen. Zanun Tayipov, a former major general of the Chinese army, who fled to the Soviet Union nearly three years ago. Tayipov, said the shooting incident occurred in the northwest fron- into the Soviet Union in May, 1962.

The report reached here as the Communist party newspaper Pravda disclosed that a Soviet government statement accusing the Chinese of border violations and making war an instrument of national policy would be mass-distributed in a brochure.

Gen. Tayipov reported the shootings broke out after 300 persons, members of minority groups living in Sinkiang massed in front of the province's Communist party headquarters, and demanded permission to go to the Soviet Union.

Three Charged In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala (UPI) — Three men were charged with illegal possession of dynamite Tuesday in connection with Birmingham's racial bombings.

One of the suspects, R. E. Chambliss, 59, later was ordered released on $300 bond.

Chambliss and Charles Cagle, 22, have been held on an open charge since Sunday in connection with the bombings.

The third suspect, John W. Hall, was named when officials filed the illegal possession of dynamite charges. Hall had not been taken into custody at the time the charges were disclosed.

Attorneys for Chambliss won the order for his release on a writ of habeas corpus obtained from criminal court Judge Wallace Gibson.

Attorneys for Cagle will go into court Wednesday in an attempt to get a similar habeas corpus writ.

Illegal possession of dynamite, a violation of Birmingham city law, is a misdemeanor.

Asked if the charge was a manever to hold the men pending further investigation, Col. Al Lingo, head of the state police, would say only that "our investigation is continuing."

Under Alabama law, police can hold suspects only 72 hours without filing specific charges against them.

DYER-BENNET CONCERT

Richard Dyer-Bennet, folk minstrel, will make the last of his three appearances on the University campus tonight at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Tonight's concert is expected to be taken from a repertoire of over 600 folk melodies from all parts of the world and of all ages. Songs popular as early as the 16th and 17th centuries will be performed. Dyer-Bennet is a renowned folk singer and balladier in both Europe and the United States.

Students will be admitted by ID cards only. A one dollar admission charge will be levied on the general public, if space is available at 7:45.

Legislators Play Twenty Questions

The controversy in Student Legislature last Monday night concerned 20 questions.

The questions were on parliamentary procedure. According to student by-laws, the Rules Committee must give a quiz to the legislators each year on this topic.

Rules Committee Chairman Sam Himes (UP), however feels that the quiz is superfluous.

"The legislators have shown a proficient knowledge of parliamentary procedure in past meetings and I felt the quiz was unnecessary," Himes said.

"So I told the legislature that I would give the quiz only because of pressure from certain legislators and the Student Body President."

Many of the legislators were grumbling over the quiz yesterday and some thought they had failed it.

Himes had corrected about half the tests by yesterday afternoon and said the results "so far are quite good."

The passing mark is 75 and Himes already has two grades below 70. Full results of the quiz will be published in tomorrow's DTH.

No legislator can lose his seat as a result of failing the quiz, but Himes will give the quiz over again tomorrow night to all who failed.

Date Tickets Cut For Miami, Georgia Games

The price of date tickets for the UNC-Miami and UNC-Georgia games will be sliced in half, according to Athletic Director Chuck Erickson.

The announcement was made yesterday to a Campus Affairs Committee representative.

Erickson also said he would ask the Athletic Council about the possibility of reducing the price of date tickets for the Clemson game as well, but said that the other game is CU day with N. C. State.

Women's College as well as the Chapel Hill student body will be admitted free, leaving few seats for faculty and alumni and cutting the possibility of reducing date ticket prices.

All funds for UNC's whole athletic program are furnished from football revenue and athletic association fees.

Every student is a member of the Carolina Athletic Association (CAA) and pays a $10 fee for the privilege.

Erickson said this fee has remained stationary since 1914 and that he hopes to keep it so. He noted that no money is received from the state to equip or finance any field, team and much of the intramural program.

The $10 yearly fee paid by UNC students is among the lowest of major colleges. Wake Forest students pay about $45 and Duke students hand out about $30.

Erickson also said that every effort is being made to finish the new basketball arena in time for the 1964-65 season.

The new court will seat over 9,000 and will be of an all-purpose nature so that speeches and other programs can be held there.

He said that he would like to have an arena capable of seating more than 9,000 but that anything larger would be impossible to finish at this time.

STUDY ROOM OPEN

Dean of Men William G. Long yesterday announced that 15 classrooms and two dormitory basements will be open this fall for all-night studying.

The following rooms will be open: 01 Alumni, 104 Hanes, 105 Hanes, 106 Hanes, 210 Hanes, 105 Peabody, 22? Phillips, 212 Phillips and 222 Phillips.

Also 110 Saunders, 111 Saunders, 101 Murphy, 107 Murphy, 102 Bingham, 108 Bingham, Mangum basement and Graham basement.

CURED Picks Executive Committee

Two University seniors and a physics professor were elected to the 11-member executive committee of Citizens United for Racial Equality (CURED) Monday night.

John Dunne of Brecksville, Ohio and Kellis Parker of Kinston were elected along with Prof. Joseph Straley of the Physics Department to serve a 12-month period on the bi-racial governing body of Chapel Hill's newly re-organized integration group. Six Negroes and five whites were elected.

Others elected include Robert V. N. Brown, Rev. W. R. Foushee, of St. Joseph's CME Church, William Carter, Father Clarence Parker, Pete Leak, Ruby Farrington, Rev. Charles M. Jones of the Community Church and Hilliard Caldwell.

The executive commitee is expected to meet within the week to elect a chairman, secretary and treasurer. Another open meeting is being planned for early next week to map plans for CURED.

WAKE TICKETS

Students and date tickets to the Wake Forest football game are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Individual student tickets are $2, and date and guest tickets are $4. If you want to sit in a group, you must buy your tickets together. An individual is allowed to buy only his ticket and a date or guest ticket.

Legislature Gets Bill To Provide Mural $$

Who's behind that eight-ball? Can't say for sure. All we know is that it's on one of Graham Memorial's new pool tables, a full report on and about which will be upcoming soon by DTH Photo Editor, Jim Wallace, who took this picture.

University To Match SL Funds

A bill to provide $2,219.50 in matching funds for dormitory intramural managers was introduced in a special session of Student Legislature Monday night.

The bill will go before the Finance Committee at 3 p.m. today and is expected to come up for a vote in tomorrow's meeting of Legislature.

Don Carson (UP) and Clark Brewer (SP) introduced the bill for the intramural managers.

The funds will be matched by the administration under an agreement made last week. The agreement said that the administration would put up matching funds for any appropriation under $3,000.

It was announced that John Morris had been appointed by Student Body President Mike Lawler as chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee. Approval of Morris' appointment will also come up tomorrow night.

Morris, last year's Tours Scholar, has recently been appointed Director of Cultural and Educational Affairs of Student Government by Lawler.

He was also appointed student representative on the Faculty Committee on Scholarship and Student Aid. Neither appointment requires approval of Legislature.

The Rules Committee will meet at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow to discuss a bill giving power to the Inter-Fraternity Court to try individuals as well as houses. The bill was introduced last spring by Sam Himes (UP), chairman of the Rules Committee.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The first Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) meeting of the year will be held at 9:00 in 304 Woollen Gym Thursday night. All varsity athletes and freshman participants are invited to attend. Basketball Coach Dean Smith will be advisor of this year's group, and Al Long, former UNC athlete, will be in charge of meetings.

CADET COMMANDER

Walter M. Crumpler of Wilmington has been selected as the Cadet Commander of the AFROTC Cadet Corps here for the fall semester.

As Cadet Commander, Crumpler will be responsible for the discipline, training and morale of the entire corps and it's activities.

The Third Man Theme: Sad Song For Cramped Students

By ALAN WHITELEATHER
In The Durham Herald

In the University of North Carolina's growing student body—now tallied at 10,704—some variations are being written to the Third Man Theme.

Here at the University's Chapel Hill branch, the third man is the odd fellow in a dormitory room designed for two occupants. He's a product of the World War II baby boom and he's been teaching college administrators a few quirks of student life.

His welfare, academically, pyschologically and physically, in his overcrowding living conditions continually has aroused the genuine concern of the administrators.

Speaking of the three - man rooms, Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey observed: "I think the worst aspect of it is that it sets up a circumstance for someone to be in the minority in his living situation—it would be better to have four in a room.

"In every proposition, you have the possibility of a two-to-one division, whereas, if you had four in there, it might be a stand-off."

But an uncounted number of third men don't seem to mind. For instance, Cathey said, 30 men were offered the opportunity to move into less crowded quarters during the last school year. They declined.

"I guess they must make friends with each other," Cathey observed in puzzlement.

In fact, Cathey detects a changing outlook among students on dormitory life. "You know, we've quit calling them dormitories. They're residence halls now," Cathey said.

"The dorm in the minds of some of them (students) suggests a barracks life. If you call it a residence hall, it suggests maybe they should have curtains on the windows, a rug on the floor and some appropriate color scheme," he added.

The nomenclature change, in part spurred by student wishes, appears to be accompanied by high morale. The new school term, about two weeks old, already has produced handbooks written by students about their residence halls—including organization charts, names of all residents, names of student government representatives, student duties and privileges and a list of dorm activities.

Cathey foresees the over-crowding spanning the decade of the 1960s. While the students may be happy with their lot, the booming college-age population poses titanic problems to administrators like Cathey.

Even with a planned 825-man residence hall, due to be opened in September 1965, the University will be crowded—and have to turn away a growing number of applicants. "As a public institution, we've had to approach this very carefully," Cathey noted.

The approach was quality — a word invariably linked with North Carolina education these days.

We're interested in the quality of our entering students. We don't care if they come from the lowest or the top levels of society," Cathey said, emphasizing he meant academic quality. To get that quality, the University is skimming off the top of the high school graduates.

"Ninety-five per cent of our entering freshmen graduated in the top half of their high school or preparatory school classes. That's well up over past years; 4 percentage points over last year," Cathey added.

Some of the unsuccessful candidates inevitably will be sons or daughters of influential people; nearly all of them will be children of voters. This can produce potent medicine for a school dependent upon Legislature-voted public funds.

"I think the people should see what our situation is. We're busting out the seams and we can't take everybody," Cathey said.

"I think the public should be reasonable and join us in saying that we should take the best (students). The University operations should make a play for quality because this is in the best interest of North Carolina," the dean added.

He concluded by extending hope to the prospective students who will be turned away. "Many people who were in the lower half of their high school classes now are given an opportunity to go to community colleges, where they may find the stimulation to spur them on to be more efficient students," Cathey said.

"And we enter students on all levels," Cathey added, referring to opportunities for transferring to the University after beginning college work elsewhere.

For Cuban Trip

Hang The Students Or Praise Them?

By BOB SAMSOT

Hang them? Commend them? What should be done with them?

Over the summer a group of students traveled to Cuba against the wishes of the U. S. State Department. They recently testifi- before the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC)

A recent poll of UNC student opinion as to what should be done to the students showed varying reactions.

Paula Winstead, Chapel Hill: "Nothing should be done. This is a basic question of the freedoms of America. The government has no right to restrict movements of citizens."

Richard Gonzales, Puerto Rico: "I think their going to Cuba against U. S. wishes has done them harm enough. They'll have a hard time getting along with the rest of the people."

Jaene Yeager, Winston-Salem: "I think the act was foolish, but I don't think there should be any legal prosecution."

Dave Braine, Grove City, Penn.: "I think we ought to string them up by their thumbs. Not only was it morally wrong for them to go, but they did the country great harm."

Carl Taylor, Gatesville: "We shouldn't do anything. They wanted to go—It was OK."

Jim Szymaitis, Canonsburg, Pa.: "I think we should socially ostracize them and make it hard for them to get a decent job."

Tim Snider, Connecticut: "Since most of them were evidently far out, I think we ought to give them about 30 days hard labor to try to bring they back in."

Lee Bagget, Mineola, N. Y.: "We should publicize the issue and who the people involved were so as to make the rest of the nation look down on them. This would probably prevent anything like this from happening again."

John Dunne, Cleveland, O.: "I think they should be exonerated because I don't believe that restrictions should be put on Cuba because it has a Communist government. Their government is their business."

John Hoechster, Brooklyn: "They should be forbidden from ever coming to Brooklyn."

Says Holmes Lecturer

Economic Reform Slow, Painful

By PETE IVEY

Restlessly and impatiently, and sometimes painfully, the American people in 100 years have gradually changed the economic structure of the United States by proceeding "step by step to subject it to their control" by Constitutional and political means, Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland of Harvard University said last night.

The second of the three-part Holmes Lectures, entitled "Education in the Obvious," will be delivered tonight by Prof. Sutherland at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall. Dean Henry P. Brandis of the Law School will preside.

Citing changes in the Constitution which paralled changes in the kind of lives people have led in their work and in accordance with the structure of society emerging from agriculture to balanced industrial and economic complexity, Prof. Sutherland cast his remarks in relation to the life and opinions of Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, "The Great Dissenter."

"The life of the law has not been logic; it has been experience" quoted Sutherland from Justice Holmes.

Sutherland added: "The experience of the United States — before and after the Civil War — has of course governed the course of its law, including the underlying part of our law we call the Constitution. A great part of this has been the effort of the American people to dominate for their collective benefit the operation of their increasingly interrelated and complex economic and political system."

The process, said Prof. Sutherland, "inevitably tended to economic levelling, painful to those whose possessions and power are downgraded."

A century ago the traditions of America "were not those of material egalitarianism" said Sutherland. The American land of opportunity in the early 19th century was a place where "an energetic, acquisitive and sometimes ruthless man could go out and get himself a fortune." The west was "there for the taking by the strong and venturesome," he said.

The U. S. Government gave grants of millions of acres of land, granted transportation monopolies, chartered banks and granted other privileges.

"Then, Government having thus granted charter, was to stand aside and let a man run things to suit himself, unless of course the indians, or the British on the Northern border, or the Bons in the Spanish southwest, made trouble beyond the abilities of the neighbors to settle things with their rifles. In that case the enterpriser might ask the Government for troops!"

Full sway was enjoyed by speculators, oil combines, "coal barons," steel magnates, mining kings, said the Harvard lecturer, and these men came to look upon their gains as natural and right, somehow Heavens-derived. They seemed to feel, said Sutherland, that "God would not have given them so much if they had not deserved it."

The agricultural depression of the 1870's and the rising of the Grange, with regulatory acts limiting the power of the previously powerful came as a painful shock to the "bewildered great proprietors," said Prof. Sutherland.

Reviewing regulation of railroads, breaking of trust, prevention of unfair competition, control of food and drugs, and banning deceptive acts in business, Sutherland also told of advances made in curbing child labor. He referred to the Federal Reserve Banking Act of 1913 as one means of supervising the nation's complex banking system.

The 16th Amendment to the Constitution, relating to the income tax was one of several pieces of "social legislation" passed that "in the long run has had and will have the greatest effect on American life," said the Holmes lecturer.

"With all the battling to and fro that had gone on over the details of the federal income tax, the main, decade by decade, it has increased," said Sutherland. "It has tended to prevent the accumulation of the great fortunes characteristic of industrially successful operators at the turn of the century."

Prof. Sutherland said that the United States, like England, "does things a little at a time." Private property has not been confiscated, he said, but the net effect of federal and state income and inheritance taxation has been to cut down peaks of accumulation by the most successful and to furnish the federal and State governments more to distribute in one form or another.

"If this had not come about gradually, we should have become startled by it all," said Prof. Sutherland, "If it had all been sponsored by one party, opposed by another, we should have had slogans, and name-calling — much more than we have had. The process of a century would have been dramatized. Instead we have completely altered our way of providing for one another the things we want. This has been an excellent way to bring about a profound change. Little by little we have revolutionized our material system of life, so avoiding the discomfort of intellectual confrontation, so going on our way only half-aware of the progress, like people reading last month's magazine on an airplane journey."

He suggested that the American people may now be in the midst of profound social change. "Are changes so profound and so pervasive that we, to some extent, fail to notice them as I suppose marine creatures are unconscious of the gulf stream's current?" he asked.

People may be unaware of social change, so gradually has it come, and is "so encompassingly obvious," said Sutherland. "Do we sometimes fall into personal and constitutional error because we take no account of change?" he asked.

Volume 72, Number 10 Wednesday, October 2, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

New Game: 'Watch David Deteriorate'

Newspaper readers around the country have become silent participants in a tragedy called, "Watch David Deteriorate."

The David involved is David Lawrence, syndicated columnist of the New York Herald Tribune. He seems to make a fetish of reading into any event, action or movement, aimed at helping people to improve their lives, the worst possible interpretation. He is undoubtedly one of the top negativists around.

The excerise of a constitutional freedom, in the form of a superbly orderly March on Washington, he calls "a day of public disgrace—a step backward in the evolution of the American system of government."

Undoubtedly he is also opposed to Social Security, Child Labor laws, labor unions, the minimum wage—and to white people, as well as those of other colors and creeds, who are concerned about situations where principle does not correspond with practice; persons aiming for honesty and justice in our national as well as individual lives, looking for guidance from men like him but finding instead only the rankest sort of reactionary wisdom.

It is not a pretty sight to watch David deteriorate, especially so publicly. He does not have to. He could make quiet visits to places where bodily injury is a daily reality if you try to register and vote, instead of wailing from on high about the terrible inconveniences the Washington marchers caused many of their own more privileged countrymen.

The only satisfaction men of attempted good will can take in watching David deteriorate is the grim one of knowing that as he, and the Strom Thurmonds and others like him and them, grope ever more desperately for rationales to support their reactionary views, there is strong evidence that they are running out of arguments against progress, and the days of their political lives are numbered.

Signs Of Bumper Crop Continue To Abound

The signs continue to abound that this should be a bumper crop year for student-administration cooperation here at Carolina.

Hot on the heels of the University's agreement to help support the intramural manager program has come a report from the Dean of Men which attempts to assess "The Positive Side of The Greek Coin."

Not the least to be said in favor of Dean Long's report is the fact that it was made available for publication prior to rush, so that potential pledges have some authoritative assesment of fraternities and sororities to aid them in deciding whether or not to apply for membership.

The report thus fills a large vacuum which heretofore has been—and, probably, hereafter will again be—filled by more heat than light.

The Dean's report acknowledges that there is another side to the great continuing debate over the value of the fraternity system. And the resulting picture his report draws, if not altogether attractive, does give credit where credit is due.

A $14,000,000 Assault On Poverty Begins

Maybe we're supposed to have the poor with us always, and maybe the $14,000,000 assault on North Carolina's poverty and ignorance won't break our cycle of poverty. Nobody can know whether this program announced yesterday by Governor Sanford will even come close to doing what everybody must hope it will do, because nobody has ever tried anything like it before.

That's the real secret, the real thing of praise in the North Carolina Fund program, the fact that it is something new, that there is this wonderful willingness to venture in behalf of people who can't help themselves. This answer is trying to say that there must be nothing inevitable about poverty and about ignorance, and that there must be some sort of an answer somewhere for such things this side of the golden streets and the milk and honey of the hereafter.

Make no mistake about it: The answers won't come from the $14,000,000 which has been contributed by Ford, Reynolds, Babcock and others for this assault on poverty and ignorance. Answers just don't come that easily. But from this program there can come the beginnings of some answers, can come the beginnings of dignity in some people who don't even know now that there is such a word. There can come the beginnings of some reading and some writing and some arithmetic.

And, if we get those beginnings from these fourteen million dollars and from the vision of men such as Governor Sanford and the members of this Fund board, we will have gotten one of the great bargains in North Carolina history.

We'll always have poverty-stricken people, both black and white. And we'll always have ignorant people, both black and white. But this North Carolina Fund program can say to all men of North Carolina that they don't have to be poverty stricken if they don't want to be. And, it can say to all of them that they don't have to be ignorant if they want to learn. That is the message this program can get to all our people.

It is now imperative that the channels for the communication of this message be set up, and be set up well. Those who dreamed of this program and who brought it into being have, in those major things, done just about all they can do. The job now must be in the hands of those of us in the towns and in the counties where the actual work must be done. If those local jobs are done with heart and with conscience, the message will get through to those who need it.

There is such a job in each town and in each county. Those jobs can be done, and this North Carolna Fund holds out the opportunity and the encouragement and the help to get them done, or at least to get them started.—The Raleigh Times

EDITORIAL STAFF
Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors
Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Bruce Williamson, Desk
Dona Fagg, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
BUSINESS STAFF
Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

Questions, Advice And Opinions

Otelia's Back!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Several days ago some older woman came up to me and said she was Lucille Elliott, former Law School Librarian. She said she wanted to thank me for my work here with the students. She said she didn't think much of it when I began, but she had been converted. The students used to let the doors slam on her, and many other things that were rude and thoughtless, but, now she continued, they open doors for me, and ask me to get in line, and a general improvement all around. She was very complimentary.

I thanked her and told her I thought they had improved, as I told CBS when they called me from New York, in every way except their table manners. None of them, I said, have any backbone. They have to prop their bodies up with their elbows and their feet up on chairs. I wish there was some way the University could see that everyone of them took sitting-up exercises for fifteen minutes everyday. One student told me one day when I remarked on their propping themselves on their elbows, that their muscles were weak, that they didn't do anything but lean over books. I am sure that is true.

Another woman spoke to me yesterday, I didn't ask her name, She said she wished I would get after them about the way they dressed. She was referring specifically to the many boys who wear their shirt-tails out. I said they looked like they had just gotten out of bed, and should be sent back for a bath and to put their shirt-tails in. She said her two sons taught in a Catholic University, and that the students had to dress to come to class, she didn't think the University here should allow the students to come on the campus with their shirt-tails hanging out.

I like to see students, boys as well as girls, comfortable and cool in summer, but they should show some sense. I have gotten after them about so many things, that I don't like to start on their clothes. I don't know what the University can do about it but I think the students should start a crusade, demanding that the boys show more discretion in their apparel on the campus.

One student back from Paris, a Rhodes Scholar, said he wished I would write about the students never taking a bath. In Paris, he said, a bath was at a premium, while here, with a bath at everybody's elbow, the boys never bothered to take a shower.

One woman asked me to get after the girls about going to church bare-headed. The Episcopal church requires that women wear some head covering in church, and this woman said she didn't care what they wore, a veil, a flower, or what-not, so long as they wore something.

This week I saw one of the students, whom I am very fond of, and think highly of, across the aisle at Lenoir. I hadn't seen him since Commencement, so when I finished eating I went over to speak to him. He remained slouching in his seat while I stood. I said to him, "You stand up and speak to me." I though I was going to have to take him by the collar and yank him up, but he managed to pull himself up. He is a mature student, and no beatnik. He is just plain lazy when it comes to getting on his feet before a lady. I don't expect, or want men, to stand every time they are confronted by a lady, but there are times, and this was one of them. As President Kennedy says, "You have to make a judgment."

Well, I am just passing along what has been handed to me. Keep on improving, young people, you are headed in the right direction.

Otelia Connor

Manners?!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Last Sunday U.N.C.'s notorious mistress of etiquette, Mrs. Otelia Connor, was seen in Lenoir Hall in her best "Bib and Tucker" stirring her coffee with a soup spoon.

It is our sincere belief that before one can dictate manners or morals she first should be cognizant of the rules of proper etiquette.

How about it Mrs. Connor???

R. K. S.
A. M. G.
G. M. S.

Crowd At G.M.

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Last Sunday the editors of the Daily Tar Heel inveighed against the "ungentlemanly" conduct displayed by UNC students at last Friday night's Hootenanny. They were right, of course, in deploring what amounts to what one might expect from an ordinary mob. But they told only half the story—the negative.

Let us look at the positive: Why?

It is quite possible that at least the majority of UNC's 10,704 students wanted to see the concert. It is only quite certain that they indeed had prepaid for it. Yet they had to angle for the 1,800 seats in Memorial Hall in a one-shot attempt to do so. Even with the aisles and windows jammed with people, no more than 2,000 people could see the solitary show.

100 per cent of us paid for it —20 per cent of us got to see it. Results: a mob. My opinion: One really can't blame them for being at least out of temper with the situation.

What to do? Would it not be possible to schedule two or three performances of a given show, given the fact that UNC has no public hall large enough to hold more than one-fifth of the student body at one time, could we not schedule at least another performance to insure that at least a near majority of us cash-paying customers could get to see what our dollars brought down here in the first place? As I remember, when Peter, Paul and Mary were here last spring there was an afternoon and night show.

This may well be an old idea. It may well have its many problems, to wit — the performers would probably demand a greater fee for another show and etc. This may well cut down the number of people we can afford to have perform here. This may well give the GMAC people a few more headaches.

This may also lead to some money. But the point is that perhaps then we might achieve what we have set out to do: To bring people here that students will enjoy hearing and seeing. And if we can't please all of the students all of the time, it would seem that we could plan to do better than 20 per cent.

This lack of opportunity, gentlemen, is the cause. The mob is merely the effect. And society has little use for the Otelias in this case, (lest you join the ranks!) it needs, greater opportunity.

Steve Lindell
118 Mallette

More On Crowd

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Sunday's TAR HEEL carried an editorial on the crush at the "Hootenanny" Friday night. Perhaps the editors, and the students as well, remember that this is not the first occasion on which there has been a mad scramble. In fact, for almost every event, whether sponsored by G.M. or the Chapel Hill Concert Series, there has been something of a race for a good seat.

Would not reserved seats be an answer to the problem? If printing costs are high, charge five or 10 cents a ticket. I.D. cards or some special cards issued each semester for the purpose could be stamped appropriately as they were shown to get the tickets. Then the crowds would be formed and dissolved long before the actual performance and we could walk to our places with the decorum befitting Carolina ladies and gentlemen.

Grace Stoddard
311 Whitehead

No More Rats!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I jest want to praise them fellers in the state legislature who passed thet law whut sez thet commies and biologists and rats like thet can't speak on campus. Them commies are trying to overthrow the govimment, and them biologists are always talking about dirty things. Our Southern wimmenhood shouldn't ought to have to listen to such things. Also them biologists try to tell us man come from the ape and other commie ideas.

This is a free country and by God this is supposed to be a free university and them commies like Larry Phelps and Charles Darwin who are against freedom shouldn't be allowed to peddle their lies in a free university.

John Carswhupple

P.S. I don't come from no ape!

For Or Against?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Last Saturday (Sept. 28) I had the dubious pleasure of listening to the UNC-Michigan State game as broadcast over station WCHL of Chapel Hill. The game was announced by Bill Currie, the so called "Voice of the Tar Heels." It is the opinion of many of those who listened to this broadcast that Bill Currie is the "Voice Against the Tar Heels." He gave what was undoubtedly the most prejudiced account of a football game ever broadcast over any station.

For instance, Mr. Currie constantly praised Mich. players and low-rated Tar Heel players. At one time, early in the game, a Mich. back was tackled, and Currie was heard to give this account of it: "It took six of 'em to bring him down. Remember, he only weighs 160." About a similar play he announced: "They're finally bringing him down!"

The Tar Heel defense was not the only object that rated Mr. Currie's disapproval; the offense was continually being slighted by the "Voice of the Tar Heels." The following comments on the UNC offense were heard during the first half. "The Tar Heel offense has not really looked flashy yet. . . ."; "Lewis, with a gazelle-like spring, batted it down. . . . Lacey is 6' 2", Lewis is only 5' 9"." In addition to such biased comments, Mr. Currie would quote the score immediately after any Tar Heel gain.

And, as if the above comments weren't enough, Mr. Currie persisted in making unnecessary amends for Michigan State. "But of course this is only the opening game for the Spartans and the second for the Tar Heels," is an example of the "neutral" stand taken by the announcer. When Bobich of Mich. State booted one of his long punts, Mr. Currie was heard to infer that Bobich "didn't get much of a running start. . ."

Mr. Currie also capitalized the passing of both teams. When a Spartan receiver missed a pass at one point in the game, Mr. Currie stated, "It was over his head; one more bowl of Wheaties this morning and he would have had it!" In contrast, if a Tar Heel missed a pass, the ball soared (according to Currie) high above his head. To Mr. Currie, all Spartan passes were either tremendous or narrowly off target and all UNC passes were completely out of reach unless they were complete.

The preceding comments were heard during the first half of the UNC-Michigan State game. The second half was no different. An announcer of any sports event is supposed to render an unbiased account of the event taking place before him. It is apparent to many of us that Mr. Currie did not present such an account.

Harry Singleton
115 Graham

Reflections

Here is what one observer claims he heard in President Kennedy's office as the Chief Executive talked on the phone with Martin Luther King:

"Yes Martin . . . but Martin . . . but . . . but . . . but Martin . . . no Martin . . . but . . . but Martin, we've been calling it the White House for years."

* * *

The KAs announced yesterday that they have found a new housemother by the name of Christine Keeler. That should keep the boys in line.

"Latest Reports On The Non-Free Areas"

Beacon Of Truth Is Threatened?

By CHUCK NEELY

Tuesday night saw two hours of debate before a jammed Di Hall climax in the passage of a resolution protesting H.B. 1395, (for the unenlightened, the speaker ban law enacted by the North Carolina General Assembly this summer.)

This blow for academic liberty and freedom of speech was struck by the oldest campus debating society in the United States. The action by the Di-Phi adds but one more voice to the multitude already clamoring for the repeal of the speaker ban.

Perhaps we should take a closer look at this law and examine the consequences of the General Assembly's over-hasty action.

H.B. 1395 is entitled "An act to regulate visiting speakers at state supported colleges and universities." The bill is primarily aimed at three groups: members of the Communist Party, those who advocate the overthrow of the U. S. Constitution or the State of North Carolina, and those who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in regard to Communist or subversive activities. The act states that all of the above shall be forbidden to speak at any state supported school and that the law will be enforced by the governing bodies of the respective state institutions of higher learning.

The proponents of this unfortunate law are undoubtedly men of good intention. Their aim, the elimination of Communism in North Carolina, is a laudable one. But the means they have chosen to implement their aims are not worthy of this great state or this school, the oldest state university.

The traditions of this university are those of intellectual freedom and Jeffersonian libertarianism as manifested in the Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution. The University of North Carolina has always stood as an intellectual lighthouse projecting a beacon of truth over what has been all too often in the past a dark sea of miserable ignorance.

H.B. 1395 is a law which threatens to dim and perhaps extinguish this beacon.

A university has but one purpose—to teach its students to find the truth for themselves. Its purpose is most certainly not to indoctrinate its charges with one line of thought as is done in the Communist bloc countries.

We fear that the legislature of North Carolina, in its overly zealous attempt to wipe out Communism, has reverted to the methods of Communism and has duped itself into the fallacious belief that the ends justify the means. In a free society, the ends do not justify the means. On the contrary, if the extermination of totalitarian thought is bought at the price of making the United States a totalitarian nation, then the entire concept of our Constitution has been subverted, and we have been reduced to the level of our adversaries.

By the passage of this law, a principle has been laid down which could mean the ultimate curtailment of all free speech and free expression of any kind at Carolina. If the legislature can deny us the right to hear Communist speakers, it can also deny us the right to read Communist literature in our libraries and to buy books by Communists in our campus bookstores. Indeed, if this principle is extended to its ultimate end, we can be forbidden the right to hear or read any points of view other than those laid down by a provincial and narrow General Assembly. The repercussions of this law are boundless.

In the fight of capitalism against communism, of free democracy against absolute totalitarianism, of good against evil, only the truth can prevail. But truth can only survive when it is allowed to combat falsehood in full view of the public sight.

This university has based itself on the precepts of freedom of speech and academic liberty for one hundred and sixty-eight years. It has grown great and strong based on the bulwarks of libertarianism. To remove these bulwarks now must lead to the degradation of UNC.

We urge the General Assembly of the State of North Carolina to come to its senses, to awaken to its responsibilty, and to repeal H.B. 1395, a law whose continued exisitence can only mean academic oblivion for the University of North Carolina.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

The Carrie Heath Schwenning Scholarship has been awarded to Mary Elizabeth Moeslein of Charlotte, it was announced recently by Julian D. Mason, director of student financial aid.

The award, given by the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Association of University Women, consists of $150 given each year to a woman graduate student.

NEW FACULTY

New members of the UNC faculty will be honored at two annual receptions given by Chancellor William B. Aycock.

The receptions will be held at the Morehead Building at 7:45 p.m. on October 9 and October 16.

Each new full-time faculty member is being invited to both of the receptions and will be accompanied by his dean, departmental chairman or director.

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER
Daily and Sunday
Call: Charles Lively
942-3007
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Everything for Linoleum Block Printing
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

Important Notice
Students, youll save money if you buy it at Grants.
Everything, Man!
W. T. GRANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

LOUIS JOURDAN
ELSA MARTINELLI
NIGHT & SUNDAY ..... $1.00
WEEKDAY MAT. ..... 85c
The V.I.Ps
In Color
NOW PLAYING
The South's Finest Theatre
In Durham
Northgate Shopping Center
Northgate Theatre

N. C. PREMIERE OF THIS NEW BRITISH HIT FILM
Today

Showings at 12:45, 2:52, 5, 7:07 and 9:15 p.m.
RIALTO THEATRE
DURHAM

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

CWC — 6:30 p.m. second floor of GM.

Cave-Climbing Club — first meeting of the year, 7 p.m., room 304 A Woollen Gym.

Oliver Wendell Holmes Lecture— "Education in the Obvious," by Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland, Harvard University, 8 p.m. Carroll Hall.

Richard Dyer-Bennet — 8 p.m. Memorial Hall.

N. C. Hospital Women's Auxiliary — 10 a.m., talk by Dr. Robert Ross, head of the Department of Obstetrices.

SP Advisory Board — 7-9 p.m., 203 Alumni.

Chess Club — 8 p.m. Roland Parker, GM.

All Juniors and Seniors considering Ministry, 203 South Bldg., see Dean Duffy as soon as possible.

Pre-med counselling in the College of Arts and Sciences — 4:30-5:30 p.m., offices of the College of Arts and Sciences, for all students considering a career in medicine.

Editor's Round Table — 4 p.m., Roland Parker 1.

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM, election of chairman.

IDC — 7 p.m. 4th floor New East. Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., upstairs Lenoir Hall.

Student Government Interviews for limited committee openings —2-5 p.m., until second week of Oct., 210 GM.

Woollen Gym and Swimming Pool are open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mon.-Thurs., from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Sat., and from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sun.

Yack Photos — 1-6 p.m., til Fri., basement of GM, for freshmen. Seniors, 4th year med. students and 3rd year law students will have a $1.00 late fee.

Angel Flight Interviews — Till Fri., in individual Angel's dormitory rooms.

Class Ring Sale — Thurs. and Fri., 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Lobby of the Y Building, sponsored by the Grail.

Student Legislature Finance Committee — 4 p.m. Roland Parker 2 of GM, hearing on a bill to appropriate $2219.50 for a paid dormitory intramural manager program.

FUTURE

Student Legislature Rules and Judicial Committees — joint meeting Thurs., 3 p.m. Grail Room of GM, to consider IFC court reform.

Carolina Forum committee — 4 p.m., Fri., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Amateur Radio Club — meeting of all old members and interested students 7:30 p.m. Thurs., Caldwell Hall.

NSA Commission on Student Government Problems — Thurs. 3 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

Fellowship of Christian Athlete — meeting of all varsity and freshmen participants, 9 p.m. Thurs., room 304 Woollen Gym. Description of FCA and a film will highlight the meeting.

LOST

A brown alligator purse, containing a watch I.D. cards etc. was reported lost this week. Finder contact A. Gordon Appell at the GM Information Desk for a reward.

A London fog windbreaker and prescription sunglasses were reported lost in either the Undergraduate Library or Lenoir Hall. Finder contact Jim Coleman, 245 Craige.

FOUND

A wedding band was found recently in Lenoir Hall. Owner can recover it by contacting Asst. Mgr. Bill Talbert, in Lenoir Hall and identifying it. A wedding band was found between the cemetery and the Cobb tennis courts. Owner contact Mrs. Hammond at Y Building and to identify it.

ACLU Fights Buffalo Ban On Red Talks

The American Civil Liberties Union last week denounced a New York Supreme Court injunction prohibiting Communists from speaking at the University of Buffalo.

The union said the injunction "constitutes both an unwarranted intrustion into academic affairs and an unconstitutional prior restraint on the rights guaranteed by the Bill of Rights."

The court declared last year that it was state policy that a Communist party member may not address students at a state-operated university.

While acknowledging the absence of specific laws to that effect, the court held that such a public policy was established in state laws declaring the Communist party subversive and its members ineligible for state employment.

The civil liberties group takes issue with this decision in a friend-of-the-court brief to be filed today with the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court in Albany.

Applications Available For NROTC Test

Applications are now available for the Navy's eighteenth annual NROTC qualification test, according to the Professor of Naval Science at UNC. The nationwide examination will be given December 14, 1963, and all eligible male high school seniors and graduates may apply.

On the basis of this test, personal interviews, physical examinations, and other factors, the Professor of Naval Science explained, over 2000 young men will be given college educations as midshipmen in NROTC units in 52 well-known colleges and universities throughout the country.

Registrations for the test will close November 22. Informational bulletins and applications are available from Department of Naval Science or the nearest U. S. Navy Recruiting Station.

A successful applicant receives financial aid for four years of college. This includes tuition, books, uniforms, miscellaneous expenses, and a $50.00 per month retainer fee. After successfully completing college degree requirements and naval scienc training, NROTC midshipmen become commissioned officers in the U. S. Navy or Marine Corps.

During their training, Regular NROTC midshipmen enjoy three summer cruises with various naval units, including visits to foreign ports. These cruises help them learn more about the variety of interesting and challenging oportunities availabel to them as naval officers.

Male citizens of the United States who will be over 17 but not yet 21 on June 30, 1964, and who are now high school seniors or graduates, are eligible to apply for the December 14, 1963, NROTC qualifying test. Those who attain qualifying scores will be interviewed and given physical examinations next February.

Shows at: 1:00 - 3:00 - 5:08 - 7:12 - 9:15
TODAY ONLY
Carolina
SOON
LESLIE CARON
in
"THE L SHAPED ROOM"

16 TONS BREAKFAST
Choice of Juice
3 Hot Cakes, 2 Eggs (Any Style)
Choice of Bacon, Ham, or Sausage
Coffee or Tea
90c
MAXIMILIAN'S RESTAURANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

If That Ain't Enough, Your Roommate Buys Lousy Cat!

By CHRIS FARRAN

The traditional picture of college-bound youth is that of the boy kissing his mother and his dog goodbye and bundling off to the university.

Colleges approve of Moms (they help pay the bills), but they frown on dogs—or pets of any kind.

Nonetheless boys at college—particularly where the girls are scarce—have a hard time getting by without a dog, or a cat, or a bird—something to give and receive affection.

Cats are curious animals—curious mainly to see how far they can push you before you snap. If you ever fall in with the type roommate who goes out and buys cats, you will be surprised at how much tension the human psyche can take.

It begins to get difficult when you are studying at 3:30 a.m. for an important test the next day and you notice that the cat is padding around the room.

Not disturbing you—in fact, being very careful NOT to disturb you — just padding around the room. Very quietly. Veeerrryy quietly.

"Get that damn cat out of here!" you scream at your roommate.

Your roommate looks hurt. "The cat is being very quiet," he says.

"Yes, he's being quiet," you scream, "he's being so damn quiet I can't take my eyes off him!"

This outburst of anger is a mistake. Now that the cat knows he has you on the thin edge, he will redouble his efforts.

You will wake up in the middle of the night, sweating, and those calm, yellow little eyes will be staring out of the darkness at you from the foot of your bed.

On the morning when you have a roaring hangover, you will be shaving slowly when the furry little friend will sneak up behind you and brush against the back of your legs. As you step backward, startled, the cat shrieks and darts into a closet. When you look back into the mirror, trembling, you notice you have cut off your ear.

Cats also make your room smell funny. Of course, your roommate won't admit it, but you know its there when the laundry refuses to do your shirts and people won't sit next to you in a class.

Other guys at school collect birds or dogs. Birds are all right, except when they try to sound cheery on the mornings when you don't.

Dogs are the easiest to live with at college. They have the compassion to keep their mouths shut during trying times.

However, do not credit their owners with as much decency. Their owners often mix the dog-food in the bathroom sink, where it hardens overnight. Then you come in in the morning, weak-kneed and puffy-eyed, and there is this thick red goo in the sink where you are sure somebody has had some unspeakable accident.

Life at college is not easy, filled as it is with the disappointments of poor grades, instructors who don't understand, girls who don't appreciate your inner qualities.

But the hardest test of all, the one that separates the grad students from the frosh, so to speak, is the steely nerves needed to live with animals.

And their owners.

Tension Mounts In Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Tension mounted Tuesday in Caracas as the government stepped up its "gloves-off" campaign against the Communists and the radical left.

With an undisclosed number of top Communists and other leftists, including five congressmen, in custody, police searched for 10 other Red members of congress.

Reaction by the underground Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN) to the government crackdown was limited Tuesday night to the explosion of five small bombs. None did any damage.

Economical Living — Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C., Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill, J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street, Phone RO 2-0411, Wilmington, N. C., D. D. Browning, Owner

PEANUTS

NOW PLAYING
Shows at: 1:00 - 3:00 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00
Varsity

To Write On Film

Maggie Dent, who worked as a secretary at the Y here, has been asked to write the chapter "The Rise of the Art Theatre in the United States" in a book on the art film to be released in late November.

Other contributors include film historians Richard Griffith, James Card, Parker Tyler, William K. Everson and film critics Arthur Knight and Pauline Kael.

The book will be published in paperback form as a Clarke-Way book and will sell for $1.95.

The book is still untitled.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

SINCE 1857, WHEN IT WAS chartered, The Northwestern Mutual has based its operations on principles of economy, simplicity, and a responsible feeling of trusteeship, all for the benefit of its policyholders. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Trucks — Trailers

50' BY 10' SKYLINE MOBILE Home with 10' by 24' room attached; fireplace; air conditioning; washer; furnished or unfurnished; located at edge of town on private lot; good neighborhood. Call 968-5811 before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
FARES — $135.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

Blue Cross Blue Shield
For details mail coupon to . . .
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

STUDENT CERTIFICATE
Comprehensive health protection for college and trade school students under 24 years of age and in good health. Individual or Family Plan.
HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA
Please send me information on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield STUDENT CERTIFICATE.
Name .....
Address .....
City ..... State .....

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Inquires
5. Hit
9. Gasp for breath
10. Bee house
11. Hautboy
12. Hebrew measure
13. With less speed
15. Egyptian goddess
17. High: mus.
18. Flit
20. Exclamation
21. Burden
23. Green light direction
24. Harem room
25. Obtained
27. Flap
29. Owing
31. From
33. Good Queen
36. Like
37. Water bird
39. River: Scotland
40. Unload
42. Purify
44. Infrequent
46. Sorrows
47. An excuse
48. Sea eagle
49. Prophet
50. Soaks flax

DOWN
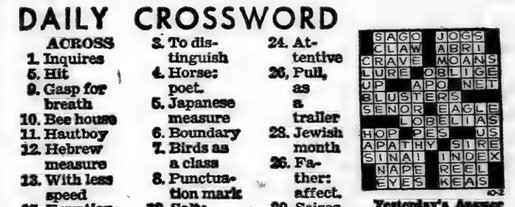
1. Father of Orpheus
2. War-time danger to factories
3. To distinguish
4. Horse: poet.
5. Japanese measure
6. Boundary
7. Birds as a class
8. Punctuation mark
13. Salt: chem.
14. Tattered cloth
16. Tibetan sheep
19. Decay
22. Perform
24. Attentive
26. Pull, as a trailer
28. Jewish month
29. Father: affect.
30. Seizes without right
32. Distant
34. Becomes aware of
35. Observe
37. Frolic
38. More recent
41. Masculine
43. Golfer's cry
45. Auditory organ



Yesterday's Answer

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

Barden Out 3 Weeks; Hill, Jackson Moved

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Junior fullback Hank Barden will be sidelined for three weeks with a broken wrist, it was learned yesterday. Barden, who had been the Carolina starter at his position the first two games, suffered the injury in UNC's 31-0 loss to Michigan State. Eddie Kesler has moved up to number 1 fullback.

Three other changes in the starting lineup, two of them in the line, were announced yesterday by Coach Jim Hickey at his weekly press conference.

Ronnie Jackson has stepped in for injured Tommy Ward at the wingback position for the Tar Heels while Joe Robinson and John Hill have also been elevated to the first unit.

Robinson is expected to start the Wake Forest game at tight end in place of John Hammett, out with a re-injured ankle. Hill has replaced Vic Esposito at a first-string tackle slot.

The broken wrist suffered by Barden is the third such injury to hit a UNC gridder this fall, Guards Charlie Davis and John Harmon were the others.

Kesler, whose nose was broken in the Virginia game, is "finally all right" according to Hickey. Frank Bowman has replaced Jimmy Eason behind Kesler.

Hickey said he expects "something completely different from the Wake Forest offense with (quarterback Karl) Sweetan in there.

"For the past two years, Wake has thrown something new offensively at us that they didn't use in previous games. We expect the same thing will happen this year."

The UNC blocking that has come in for much criticism in both games "has not been due to lack of effort or ability," Hickey commented.

"We have just been blocking the wrong man much of the time," he said. "You must remember that both of our games have been 'openers' in that we knew nothing of Virginia and Michigan State beforehand.

"State used only one defense we expected them to use. The rest were all new to the boys. Thus, the blocking mistakes. This week, we will know what the defenses will be."

The UNC coach agreed that Junior Edge had an extremely bad passing day against the Spartans, but he accounted for it somewhat strangely.

"Edge got knocked on the head pretty bad the week before, sure," Hickey said. "But he worked out all last week. What people don't know is that (Bob) Lacey didn't work out at all. He pulled a groin muscle in the first game, and we wanted him to rest it. Edge threw to him only one day last week. Whether that was the reason for the poor performance, I don't know."

Hickey said he feels no differently now about his club than he did on the first day of practice. "I still think we're a darn good football team," he said. "We put a lot of effort into the Michigan State game both as a staff and as a squad. It was a terrible disappointment, but I think this team can bounce back."

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

A FUNNY THING happened to the Los Angeles Dodgers on the way to the National League pennant this year. They won it.

But it's actually the way they won it that amazes most people—especially Cardinal fans. They just didn't act like the Dodgers. They won every big game, every big series, they had to win.

Although splitting 9-9 with the San Francisco Giants, Walter Alston didn't have to explain the losses, for they didn't come in the big games. They canned the Gaints in a three of four string in late August, and shut up the writers' "choke" signs for all time.

Rushing into first place on June 2 with a three-game sweep of the Cardinals in L.A., the Dodgers played championship ball the rest of the way.

A big noise came out of St. Louis the first half of September when the Cardinals won 19 of 20 games and climbed within one game of first place.

The Dodgers and 15,000 writers and broadcasters hustled there two weeks ago to see if it was real. It was. The two teams fought and scrapped for three days, but, when it was all over, St. Louis was 19 of 23, and the Dodgers were IN.

The Yankees are a little different story. Their scriptwriters don't go in for drama. Houk took out the first team in June to rest them for the series.

They are what is usually called a "money" team. This does not necessarily mean they make the most money (which they do), are the biggest tippers (which they are), or the highest livers (which they also are). But, instead, that when the money is on the line, they win the big game and, thus, the big money.

This year, NBC Television pays a flat $3.5 million to the series participants. Radio will contribute anywhere from $5.5 million (four games) to $7 million (seven games). This is big money—and these are big games.

Last fall—in the big games for the big money—Bobby Richardson batted .148, Roger Maris batted .174, Elston Howard batted .143, and Mickey Mantle went one for three in the final game to lift his batting 34 points to .120. The Yankees, as a team, hit .199 and Whitey Ford, "the greatest World Series pitcher of all time," had an earned run average of 4.05.

This season, the Bombers have been better as their .252 team average shows. The powerful Dodgers almost matched this with a .251 mark. (The Cardinals, meanwhile, hit around .275).

This Yankee record, therefore, does not strike fear into the hearts of the Dodgers as it did to the White Sox, the Twins, the Orioles and those other Triple A teams.

The Dodgers are not afraid. Maury Wills, the noted thief, has been quoted as saying "If Willie Davis and I can get on base, we will show the Yankees some things they haven't seen in their league."

There are, of course, many things one doesn't see in the American League. Like crowds. Nor do you see the Mets who have replaced the Marx Brothers.

But Wills is right. He and Davis are masters at the art of pilfery. Davis, in fact, would be the greatest ballplayer alive if he could just do one of two things. Hit or catch a ball.

But Wills & Davis have never run on Whitey Ford either. This will be one of the neater match-ups in the classic.

Ford has a lot of personal matters to settle in this one. Besides dueling with Wills, he has to decide if Sandy Koufax is the best pitcher in baseball while pitching against him. This is going to be pretty tough.

When they told me not to, I cried because I couldn't pick the Cardinals over the Yankees. But that other team had Koufax on its side, and that isn't fair.

It's the same way here. If Koufax can beat Ford in the opener today, it'll be a good, perhaps a great, series. If he can't, it's the YANKEES—IN THREE.

YESTERDAY'S SCORES

4:00

| | |
|---|---|
| DKE 31 | Sig Ep 0 |
| Zeta Psi 26 | St. A's 0 |
| Sigma Nu 26 | Phi Gam 0 |
| Chi Phi 10 | AKPsi 6 |
| SAE 50 | Beta 0 |

5:00

| | |
|---|---|
| Pi Lamb 1 | Sigma Chi 0 (forfeit) |
| Kappa Sigma 6 | Kappa Psi 0 |
| ATO 30 | Kappa Alpha 0 |
| DU 7 | Lambda Chi 0 |
| Delta Sigma 13 | TEP 2 |

Dodgers, Yankees Open Series Today

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The New York Yankees are 7-5 favorites to win their 21st World Championship as baseball's annual glamour show opens today in a familiar setting—bunting-draped Yankee stadium.

On paper the Bronx Bombers, who manager Ralph Houk calls "the best Yankee team I've ever seen," seem an even surer bet to dispose of the Los Angeles Dodgers. But the World Series is not played on paper, and this year's AL champs have a few kinds in their armor which may bring bliss to Yankee-haters and prove costly to the bookies.

Chief concern in the Yankee camp centers around weakened condition of their two big guns, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris and the lack of a proven relief pitcher, particularly a left-handed one.

Statistically this has been a good year for the M&M boys, but physically they have had more than their share of problems. Mantle missed more than half the season after breaking his foot in early June and is still considered far from being in top shape. Maris has been in-and-out of the line-up all season, troubled by a bad back. It would not be a surprise to see either or both come up lame in the series.

The bullpen weakness is more definite. Last season Houk could call upon Marshall Bridges. The year before he had Luis Arroyo. This year "The Major" has had several inexperienced men turn in adequate performances (Hal Reniff, Bill Kunkel and Steve Hamilton), but none carries the reputation of being a "stopper." That Houk realizes this is evident in the fact that he is considering using last year's series hero, Ralph Terry, as his relief man.

But here is the catch—Terry is a right-hander. And if Houk follows his announced plans and uses two lefties, Whitey Ford and Al Downing, as his No. 1 and No. 2 starters, he is going to want a lefty in the bullpen. The reasoning here is logical. LA manager Walt Alston likes to platoon his players, using a right-handed line-up against southpaw pitching and lefty - swingers against right - handed hurling. When Houk starts a lefty (Ford or Downing), Alston thus will have a wealth of left-handed hitters on the bench. If Houk is forced to bring in Terry it will make Alston's job a lot easier.

As far as the front liners go, the Yanks hold a definite edge in all phases of the game except pitching and speed. Joe Pepitone, Bobby Richardson, Tony Kubek and Clete Boyer give the New Yorkers not only an airtight infield, but also a quartet of good clutch hitters.

Against lefties Alston usually goes with Bill Skowron at first along with Jim Gilliam, Maury Wills, and Ken McMullen. Ron Fairly replaces Skowron when a right-hander is on the mound. Wills is a slick fielder, but the others all fall short of their Yankee counterpart. A good series by ex-Yankee Skowron (particularly in the Stadium) would be a big boost to the Dodgers. Skowron has been anything but spectacular this season.

In the outfield the Yanks' only weakness seems to be the sharpness that Mantle's injury took off his fielding. Tom Tresh is a capable left fielder and Maris can win as many games with his glove as he does with his bat. The Dodger's fly-chasing trio is composed of Tommy Davis, the NL bat king, in left, Willie Davis, the fastest man in baseball, in center and Frank Howard, the biggest man in baseball, in right. Wally Moon will start in right when the Yanks start a righty hurler.

No matter which three the Dodgers use out there, the Yankees will have the edge in fielding. Despite his speed, Willie Davis is not considered a real good centerfielder. He is given the tag "erratic" as is Howard. Tresh and Tommy Davis are about equal in left, but Tresh is accustomed to playing left in Yankee Stadium and Davis isn't. The October shadows make this position extremely tough dhring the Series.

Behind the plate Elston Howard is a better catcher than John Roseboro, and is also a better hitter. Roseboro does hold a big advantage over Howard in the speed department, however. Alston may use Doug Camilli against left-handed pitchers, but he is more likely to simply drop Roseboro to eighth in the batting order.

In the important pitching department, the nod goes to the Dodgers. As good as Ford is, Sandy Koufax is better. And the experienced Johnny Podres figures to be a surer bet than Downing, the Yanks' 24-year-old flamethrower. In the third game, Don Drysdale, though not the pitcher he was last year, is still rated one of the game's best and rates a little better than Jim Bouton, another young, up-and-coming Yankee.

The ace of the Dodger relief corps is southpaw Ron Perranoski, the best in baseball this year. Larry Sherry and Bob Miller are available as right-handers. But it is the lefty (Perranoski) that Alston will need, especially in Yankee Stadium where that short right field wall seems to get even closer in the late innings, particularly when a Yogi Berra or Johnny Blanchard is at the plate.

Over-all the Yankees have a slight edge in the ability to get men on base, a big advantage in power, and in fielding, plus a better-rounded bench. The Dodgers' plus-signs are in speed, in front-line pitching and in relief pitching.

With a great many reservations (and respect for the long ball), here is a vote for pitching—the DODGERS in seven games.

TODAY'S LINE-UPS

| LA | NY |
|---|---|
| Wills, ss | Kubeck,ss |
| Gilliam, 2b | Richardson, 2b |
| W. Davis, cf | Tresh, lf |
| T. Davis, lf | Mantle, cf |
| Howard, rf | Maris, rf |
| Skowron, 1b | Howard c |
| McMullen, 3b | Pepitone, 1b |
| Roseboro, c | Boyer, 3b |
| Koufax, p | Ford, p |

STAFF PICKS

| | |
|---|---|
| BLANCHARD | Yanks (6) |
| ETHRIDGE | Dodgers (5) |
| KIRKPATRICK | Cardinals (4) |
| MONTAGUE | Dodgers (7) |
| FREIDMAN | Dodgers (7) |
| KAPLAN | Yanks (5) |
| BIRINYI | Yanks (6) |

Freshman Gridders Ready For Deaclets

By BILL LEE

If the Freshman football team is any indication of years to come, then a fine recruiting job combined with the team's hustle and desire to play gives Carolina a promising football future.

The initial contest against N. C. State brought a 21-7 victory, but mistakes were noted that have kept the team busy in practices. Head Coach George Barclay pointed out that they were not aggresive enough in kick-off and punt return.

"Our running game needs improvement," he said, "and we are making minor changes in our pass defense."

He praised the protection given the passer and the outstanding ground defense which limited the Wolflets to minus 25 yards rushing. Guard Joe Fratangelo of New Jersey was credited with a fine defensive game.

George Barclay has no first team. Either of two teams, headed by quarterbacks Jeff Beaver and Danny Talbott, are capable of doing the job on offense or defense. In the State game, Beaver took charge of the passing while Talbott handled conversions and punts and shared the kick-off honors with Ronnie Faircloth.

Leon Fonvielle and Jim Fortune are stand-outs at halfback, while Spencer Barrow handles fullback duty. Fortune has hurt his knee in practice and is a questionable starter for the Wake Forest game. If he does not start Wrennie Pitt will take over his chores.

Bob Powell and Bo Wood have looked good at tight end and will be co-captains against the Baby Deacs. The game will be played at Kenan Stadium Friday, October 11, at 2:00.

GANT

STRIPED BUTTON-DOWN

Certainly you can't afford to be without this perfectionist. It provides a variation on the classic design—muted stripes giving an individual distinction to the most favored of designs. Add that to the fine oxford—appreciate the comfortably flared button-down collar... and you have the most authoritative look a man could wish for.

Julian's Chapel Hill, N.C.

Enroll in:

TYPEWRITING

And/or

SHORTHAND

Afternoon and Evening Classes begin Oct. 3, 1963

for information, call or write

TOWN CLASSES Secretarial College

159½ E. Franklin (Over Sutton's)

Chapel Hill

P. O. Box 615 Telephone 942-4797

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by

SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.

414 W. Franklin St.

Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463

*T.L.C. Is the Hidden Secret In Milton's Fabulous M-2

*Tender Loving Care!

1. Perfect roll collar.
2. True single needle tailoring.
3. Twenty stitches to the inch.
4. Non-breakable buttons that will not yellow.
5. Tapered body and chest.
6. Taller more flattering collar.
7. Double pleat on barrel cuff.
8. Buttons sewed on with lock stitch.
9. 330 weight in the white combed Greenwood oxford.
10. Eleven inch tapered sleeve on all M-2 half sleeves.
11. Die cut for perfect sizing and shaping on collars and bands. (The die cutting insures the painstaking uniformity of fit and protects against the sloppy bulge commonly referred to as the "arch flair")
12. Die cut, hand turned and then pressed on blade especially cut for this purpose.
13. M-2 is completely hand-pressed.
14. Every shirt is triple inspected.
15. Extra stitching at collar point to insure sharp point.

All these important steps are accomplished at $5.95 for white combed Greenwood oxfords and $6.50 for solid colors and our fascinating multitude of candy stripes

16. Made by our own shirtmaker in model Singer plant.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

How come you always buy Keds Court Kings every Fall? Why can't you be like me and try new things—like KEDS' new 'WALKING TWEEDS'?? They're the AUTHENTIC Scottish 'Fannich' check, loomed by Guilford in washable wool, and EXCLUSIVE WITH KEDS!! Why don't you ever try new things, hm?

I guess I just like COURT KING, that's all.

LOOK FOR THE BLUE LABEL*

Keds

*Both U. S. Keds and the blue label are registered trademarks of United States Rubber

Rockefeller Center, New York 20, New York

NINE TIL NINE DAILY

KEMP'S FALL SALE – ALL RECORDS 30% 40% 50% OFF

NOW – One Week Only – Ends Saturday Phonographs, Tape Recorders on Special Sale

KEMP'S

Chapel Hill, N. C.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY,, OCTOBER 3, 1963 | United Press International Service

SG Is Responsible To All-Spearman

By FRED SEELY

A strong plea for a broad view of student government's responsibilities was voiced Tuesday night by Bob Spearman, vice-president of the student body, in the keynote address of the University Party meeting.

Speaking with Spearman in the meeting were John Ulfelder, UP floor leader, and Mike Chanin, UP chairman. Approximately 100 students attended.

"We must accept the view that student government has a total responsibility to the academic, cultural and social welfare of the student community and the University at large," Spearman demanded. "We must also progress from this view to direct and concrete actions to meet these problems and utilize the opportunities presented to student government."

He discussed the pitfalls of student government, saying that ". . . we cannot work only to perfect our own operations in terms of reworking by-laws, rewriting election laws and protesting elections to the constitutional council.

"We must continue to assert student rights, but we must not let this blind us to the possi-

(Continued on Page Three)

Education Is Key Says Sutherland

By PETE IVEY

One of the several major great changes in American life is the "ending of a lower status among us of some of our citizens because of the race of their birth," Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland of Harvard University said last night.

The final of the three Holmes Lectures will be given tonight at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall. "To Grow More Civilized" is the subject. Prof. Dan Pollitt of the Law School, a former student of Prof. Sutherland at Cornell University, will preside.

Sutherland pointed to four great changes in American thinking in the past 100 years: (1)—changes in attitudes of people respecting distribution of material things, (2)—change from a farm people to a city people, (3)—impossibility of being in "splendid isolation" from the rest of the world, and (4)—change in our sympathies, so that we are "unable to contemplate with content the spectacle of pain and sorrow anywhere" and a sensitivity to the unhappiness of others owing to discrimination against them because of their race.

"Education in the Obvious" was Prof. Sutherland's topic. Pointing to a series of court decisions doing away with discriminatory practices because of race, Sutherland said, "surely by this time the train of decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on the racial question has become so consistent, has gone on for so many years, has become so predictable, that one can confidently say that the interpretation of the 14th and 15th Amendments has become an obvious matter.

"The process of amendment of the Constitution is available where a sufficient sweep of public opinion supports it," he said. "Processes of resistence other than this now denigrate the entire structure of orderly government which is essential to all freedom. Constitutional freedom is all of one piece. We cannot encourage our people to disregard some constitutional rights without jeopardizing the rights of everyone under our Constitution, the foundation deed under which we all hold."

Readjustment to the change of treating all citizens equally under the law is painful, said Prof. Sutherland, but it is inevitable and is supported by the Constitution and by Supreme Court decisions that for many years foreshadowed the High Court decision of 1954 which held that the Constitution of the United States forbids either a state or the United States to maintain schools in which students are separated by race.

After reviewing court cases from the Plessy-Ferguson decision of 1896 to 1941 "separate facilities" case involving railroads, to a 1944 case excluding Negroes from a political party primary, to the 1950 cases regarding admission of Negroes to law schools in Texas and Oklahoma, and other cases, Sutherland compared the passing of legal discrimination in schools and in other facets of public life with the passing of the old-fashioned Negro minstrel show.

The resistance to the Supreme Court's 1954 unanimous decree has taken three forms, Prof. Sutherland pointed out:

(1)—Old-fashioned, complicated delay — for example, individual court litigation in regard to school admissions.

(2) — "Unconvincing classification"—a device turning on the obvious fact that equal protection of the laws does not require that the State treat everyone alike, in such instances as treating children differently from the way adults are treated, or laws affecting women in ways different from their affect on men, or differences in the way a university will treat the brilliant and the average student. Such discrimination is just, "The device of unconvincing categorization consists of the effort to make a governmental distinction, imposed by reasons of race, appear as though it were in fact imposed for some other and more constitutionally tolerable reason." Pupil placement laws which are genuinely administered according to traits of the pupil other than race, such as intelligence, previous education, and other bona fide qualities, will stand constitutionally. If it is applied in such a way as to favor one race over another, it falls afoul of the federal Constitution.

(3)—The power of Congress to legislate concerning interstate commerce brings into focus the difference between discrimination in private arrangements and discrimination enjoined the state.

Granting that court battles are wearisome, Prof. Sutherland said, "If this litigation has become wearying to the bystander, it must be desperately wearying to Negro participants, as war is wearying to the soldier. It is wearying for the same reason that the war in Euorpe was wearying in the winter of 1944 and

(Continued on Page Three)

YRC Hears Rep. Lacy

In a talk to UNC Young Republicans, State Rep. Philip L. Lacey said last night he does not "see anything wrong in lowering the voting age to 18."

Rep. Lacy urged the Young Republicans to get active in precinct politics. "The State of North Carolina is going to be one of the biggest battlegrounds in the election for President of the United States," he said.

Rep. Lacy cited 1962 Republican victories in Guilford County, where he lives, as coming from active organizing and the willingness of people to offer themselves as candidates.

About 50 girls at Woman's College in Greensboro even gave up dates to participate in political organizing, he said. "Whenever the dean let them off the campus, they came to work for the Republican party."

"Too many of our community and business leaders who are aching in their hearts for the Republican party to take over the national and state governments are not willing to get out and work on the precinct level," Rep. Lacy added.

Rep. Lacy spoke to the UNC Young Republican Club, recently re-organized for the new school year. About 45 persons heard the speech.

Lacy urged all conservatives to unite behind the Republican Party and "get into the fight for better government."

Lacy said that "the Republican Party will, without question, provide the responsible leadership here in the State and the Nation.

"We will give the people of America the means of understanding the issues. We do not do this by 'me tooing' the New Frontier ideas and approaches, but rather, by giving the people their choice between socialism as given forth by the New Frontier candidates, or personal freedom, free enterprise, and human dignity as given forth by the

(Continued on Page Three)

TOMORROW

Hugh Stevens, DTH student government reporter, discusses the controversial speaker ban law passed by the state legislature this year in the first of a three-part article.

Furry Curry Kirkpatrick continues his outstanding coverage of the World Series from his on-the-spot armchair in front of a GM television set.

And there still isn't a Woman's Page.

Koufax Is Magnificent As Dodgers Win, 5-2

BILL SKOWRON — TONY KUBEK

Yankee hustle beats wide throw from shortstop Maury Wills in eighth inning of yesterday's World Series opener. Kubek was credited with a single, one of only six hits off Dodger star Sandy Koufax in LA's 5-2 victory.

—UPI Telephoto courtesy of WTVD

Sandy Fans Fifteen For Series Record

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dandy Sandy Koufax downed the mighty and favored New York Yankees with record book pitching and a three-run homer blast by John Roseboro Wednesday for a tense 5 to 2 victory which gave the Los Angeles Dodgers the opening game of the World Series.

The slender southpaw with the blazing fast ball struck out the first five hitters to face him, fanned a record total of 15 hitters and allowed but six hits before a roaring crowd of 69,000 whose cheers shook massive Yankee Stadium.

And the supposedly anemic bats of the battling Dodgers hammered out nine hits — including that payoff blow by Roseboro—to send Whitey Ford down to defeat. Ford gave up eight hits and five runs in five innings to suffer a record sixth series loss.

There were a hatful of heroes for the underdog Dodgers as they jumped into the lead by capturing the classic's opening contest.

Cheers resounded for Bill (Moose) Skowron, Yankee himself at this time last year before he was traded away, as he drove in the first run and, in addition to that, the final one.

Frank Howard started the Dodgers rolling by crashing a 460-foot double in that big second inning.

And Roseboro played a major role with, in addition to his home run, a total of 18 putouts on strikeouts and fouls to smash the record of 14 formerly held by baseball greats Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers and Roy Campanella of Brooklyn.

But the big man was Koufax—even though Tom Tresh walloped a home run with one on in the eighth inning to spoil his shutout.

Because Dandy Sandy, as he fired a final third strike past pinch-hitter Harry Bright with two out in the ninth, with a total of 15 strikeouts erased the 14-strikeout record established by Carl Erskine of Brooklyn just 10 years ago to the day.

And when he set down the first five hitters in a row as the game got underway — including Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris — he matched a mark established by Mort Cooper of the Cardinals a long 20 years ago.

It was a devastating day for the record books and the total of 25 strikeouts by the two teams — 15 by Koufax and 10 among Ford and the two who succeeded him, Stan Williams and Steve Hamilton — breaking the record of 22 established by the Cardinals and erstwhile St. Louis Browns in 1944.

But the biggest record to the Dodgers was that final score as they jumped into the lead against a Yankee team which was favored to win its 21st world championship.

Labeled a weak-hitting ball club, the Dodgers looked mighty muscular to Ford when they staggered him with four hits for four big runs in the second inning.

The gigantic Howard lit the fuse when, with one out, he smashed a 460-foot cannonshot over Mantle's head which struck the centerfield wall, appropriately painted black. The six-foot, seven inch outfielder was held to a double by Mantle's swift retrieve.

Then it was Skowron, traded

(Continued on Page 4)

Legislature Will Consider Intramural Bill Tonight

By HUGH STEVENS

The paid intramural manager's bill is expected to be the first order of business at tonight's Student Legislature meeting.

Bob Spearman, speaker of the legislature, said the Finance Committee has been considering the issue and is expected to send it to the floor with no trouble.

Spearman also said that a bill will be introduced to provide for the appointment of a Fine Arts Festival Chairman.

"As it is now proposed," he said, "the Fine Arts Festival would be run in the spring to alternate with the Symposium. It would include performances and exhibitions of student and faculty art, as well as some artists from off campus."

"The purpose of the festival would be to better acquaint the student body and faculty with developments in the fine arts, and especially to point out the opportunities for participation in the arts on campus."

Spearman said a series of meetings were held last spring by those interested in such a festival. Students and faculty from the Playmakers, RTCMP, Journalism, English, Music and Art departments participated. They agreed that such a festival is needed in view of the efforts being made by other schools in the field.

"Festivals of this type have been held at East Carolina, WC, and other schools around the state," Spearman said. "Most were very successful."

The Judicial Committee and the Rules Committee are considering a bill concerning the creation of an IFC Court, and that issue may come before the body also. The bill was introduced by Sam Hines.

Other business scheduled to come up tonight includes the election of a File Clerk and a new Budget Committee member.

YMCA Meets Tonight

"The YMCA has plans of continuing and extending its open platform in which any issues may be discussed," Bill Von Glahn, publicity chairman of the Y said yesterday. "Emphasis will be placed on the student's life in the University — both academic and social."

The Y is now conducting a membership drive. Committee chairmen will be told about their committees at a meeting Thursday in Gerrard Hall at 7:30 p.m.

"Our idea is not to be concerned with one phase of the Christian life, but rather to include anything which may confront him as a student. The program is to cover internal as well as external relations with strong emphasis on the UN. We also plan to have a number of supper programs, discussion groups in which problems can be discussed freely.

"We also have plans for trips to the UN, Washington and possibly an informal trip to the mountains for freshmen only," said Von Glahn. "We would like more coed programs in which we would work with the YWCA."

The YMCA has no particular emphasis on any religion or faith. Contributions are its source of capital. Officers for this year are Bruce Cooper, president; Rick Edwards, vice president; Kellis Parker, Secretary; and Von Glahn, publicity chairman. John Clayton is the advisor.

McKissick—Civil Rights Firebrand In Lawyer's Suit

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Floyd McKissick

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

DURHAM — The law office of McKissick and Berry is tucked away in a quiet nook at 113½ W. Main Street.

From its entranceway appearance, one would never guess that it is one of the principle civil rights headquarters in North Carolina. And the appearance of the office itself does not hint that its occupant is one of the state's most successful constitutional lawyers.

But it is out of this small upstairs office that Floyd B. McKissick, the first Negro to enter a previously all-white North Carolina public school and now national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), directs his organizations' anti-segregation efforts.

McKissick himself is a quiet, mild-mannered person. He decided when he was 14 years old that he would spend as much of his life that it took to fight for equality for the Negro.

"It all started when I was 14," McKissick said as he brushed a speck of dirt from his light brown suit. "I was a Boy Scout at the time. I was helping to direct traffic in Asheville. We all had on skates so we could get around to the various intersections.

"I was doing what I thought was a good deed when suddenly this white policeman comes up and asks me what I'm doing there.

"I told him I was doing what I was told to do. He told me I didn't have any business being there, and then without any reason at all, he hit me across the face with a glove that had three large reflectors on it.

"There was another policemen with him. He asked the one policeman to quit hitting me, but he didn't stop.

"Then he really started beating me and whipping me for no reason at all. I kept telling him I thought I was doing what was right and he kept saying, 'We don't want any niggers around here'.

"All I could taste was blood and asphalt," McKissick continued. "I hollered for someone to come and help but no one would. It seemed like the policeman would never stop beating me . . . but after what seemed like an eternity he did.

"Up until that time I was trying to decide whether to be a preacher or lawyer. I knew from then on that I couldn't be a preacher, so I decided to be a lawyer.

"I voted to do what I could so that no other member of my race would ever have to go through what I did on that day."

McKissick's physical fright from the beating has long since passed.

Now he is tall and lean, and speaks with an air of sincerity and simple emotion. He is not a forensic shouter but when he speaks, crowds perk up and listen.

"North Carolina has made progress in the Civil Rights movement," McKissick said. "But I will not be pleased until every bit of segregation is abolished and until we can live as citizens and people without regard to race."

Asked about Governor Sanford's remark that a march on Raleigh would not be a good thing, McKissick said, "Let's face it, there has never been a demonstration held at the right time or the right place in the eyes of the people we are demonstrating against.

"When they admit there is a right time to demonstrate, there will be no need to demonstrate . . . but there is a need to demonstrate now because the state legislature has not gotten the message yet.

"They say, 'Give us more time'. We say, 'We've given you enough time'."

McKissick's personal opinion of Gov. Sanford is somewhat complimentary.

"I think he's been fair and objective, but unfortunately he doesn't have power to do as much as some governors do.

"He is limited in making appointments with regard to race, color or creed, and then too, he doesn't have the veto power to block those laws which aren't in the public interest.

"For example, the General Assembly just increased the penalty for trespassing. This was clearly aimed at demonstrators.

"So, by this, and other things, you can see the inequalities that we suffer as a result of the acts of the General Assembly."

McKissick, whose four children are attending desegregated schools in Durham, doesn't put the blame for "inequality" entirely on the back of the white man.

"Many Negroes have given up the fight because the odds are too much for them. They are defeatists.

"Some Negroes who work for segregationists won't express their true feelings because they are afraid they will lose their jobs. He sells part of himself for a small bit of security. In other words," McKissick said, "he sells his self-respect."

McKissick has been in the middle of the Civil Rights fight for over 25 years. He believes that many of the battles have been won by the Negro, but he also says that the fight is far from over and the Negro is far from giving up.

"The Negro will win his fight," says McKissick. "Many people don't realize just how determined he is to win.

"The Negro wants his freedom. He doesn't care whether the white man loves him or not, but he does care whether he respects him . . . He's not asking for love, but he is asking for freedom.

"Integration is the only street that the Negro must go down to achieve this total freedom. He sings songs of freedom not only for himself but for his white brother who wants to associate with him.

"The only solution to this present problem is a complete and totally integrated society. There must be mutual respect based solely and exclusively upon ability.

"Much of this is coming now. Many church schools are opening their facilities to Negroes . . . but there are still a few court battles that have to be fought.

"There will be more demonstrations and a combination of all these factors working together to bring about the change for equality."

Volume 72, Number 11 Thursday, October 3, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Messrs. Stone & Phipps Reply To Our Invitation That They Come And Speak

Well, the waiting is over. All three of the Speaker Ban-backers we invited to come to the campus have responded.

Here is Senate President Clarence Stone's reply:

"In view of the comments in your editorial, I do not feel it would serve any good purpose for me to come to Chapel Hill and express my views. May I suggest that you contact the Attorney General's office in your effort to have someone explain to you House Bill 1395, banning Communists from speaking on the campuses of State-supported colleges and universities."

And here is State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps' reply to our formal, written invitation:

"Please let me know under whose auspices I will be speaking, where the meeting will be held and approximately how many and who will be invited to attend."

As you recall, our third invitee, Raleigh television editorialist Jesse Helms, turned down our invitation with the irrelevant suggestion that we invite J. Edgar Hoover to express his views "on the subject of Communists appearing on college campuses."

* * *

To say we and the University community, plus many citizens around the state, are disappointed at the refusal of Messrs. Stone and Helms to come and speak is an understatement.

The only bright spot is Mr. Phipps' indication that he is inclined to come, once proper information about the setting of his address is communicated to him. We are in the process of securing that information, for however much we disagree with what we believe to be Mr. Phipps' point of view, we do sincerely want him to come and state his views. We believe we can assure him a large and attentive audience.

We will let you know if and when he definitely accepts our invitation.

* * *

In the meantime, what gives with Sen. Stone and Mr. Helms?

We invited them here because we disagree with them. They refuse to come on the general grounds that we do.

That makes little, if any, sense to us.

We would like to believe that both men are bigger in spirit than their refusals to accept our invitation indicates.

Hoping that their future actions will bear out this hope, we shall hold our invitations to them open.

Especially Sen. Stone's. He and the University are old friends.

Wherein Jack Horner Has A Good Point

Our sports friend in Durham, Jack Horner, often uses his daily newspaper column to do a little head-cracking, sometimes justifiably, sometimes not.

Yesterday he did some of the justifiable variety on the most unlikely of objects, The Carolina Fan.

Said Horner:

"There's nothing wrong with the football team a couple of victories over Wake Forest and Maryland, Carolina's next two opponents, couldn't cure. If the Tarheels can go into the N. C. State home game here Oct. 19 with a 3-1 season record, it'll give them a lot of confidence for their last six foes, all tough nuts to crack.

"The futile showing at Michigan State was a disappointment to the team's legion of followers everywhere, and the second guessing quarterbacks among alumni and other fanatical faithful are having a field day.

"Naturally the brunt of their ire is aimed at the little fellow who is running the football show, Jim Hickey, in his fifth season as head coach.

"While this roving reporter was a witness to the second straight Carolina failure at East Lansing, it could be that the Spartans are a whale of a ball club. They were quite impressive to this onlooker. We will know how good they really are after Friday night when Michigan State invades Los Angeles to do battle with Southern Cal.

"This is a critical year for Hickey and his assistants, it's true, but they need help and cooperation from everyone and not verbal abuse right here in the middle of the season.

"For this reason, I'd love to see the Tarheels start winning and silence some of this behind-the-scenes criticism. The team has played only two games and it deserves a better chance to show what it can do.

"This corner has a sneaking suspicion the Tarheels are going to make their presence felt in a bigger way from here on out."

Amen, Jack. Amen.

Only 1 Thing Wrong

There is only one thing wrong with WUNC-TV's newest programming addition, the Huntley-Brinkley Report. That is that the University is not taking advantage of the unparalleled opportunity to tell its story between the news segments of the half-hour show.

As thousands of state viewers have discovered, the commercials that go with the NBC show are cut out due to WUNC-TV being an educational station. In their places WUNC-TV inserts promotional items about itself and upcoming educational shows.

Clearly, some of the commercial time should be used for such promos. But not all of it. The University ought to start using some of those valuable minute-segments for brief, interesting bulletins about what it is doing. If it does not, it is wasting a very valuable opportunity.

None of this, of course, should be taken as a reflection on the Huntley-Brinkley Report. The National Broadcasting Company and WSJS-TV in Winston-Salem have rendered the University and the State a great service in making the newscast available for WUNC-TV transmission.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"It's An Entirely Different World—Like Birmingham"

Letters On Everything...

More Whupple

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I think the speaker ban law is a very good law. A white Christian American law. The only bone I got to pick with it is that I don't think its broad enuf. Everybody knows thet a lot of commies are underground spies for Red Russia. J. Edgar Hoover sez they are everwhere. I think the only way to keep these underground commies off campus and keep them from brainwashing us is to make a broader law thet will cover all of the more suspicious sort of people.

A druggist down in Carrboro told me the other day thet colored people are all commies. I think the law ought to keep colored people from speaking on campus. And also furriners—EVERYBODY knows thet furriners are unAmerican.

But the most important thing is to make them perfessers shut up. Them perfessors (pewfessers, I calls um) and them students. Karl Marx was a pewfesser. Lenin and Stalin and Franklin D. Roosevelt were all students at one time or another. This shows how dangerous students and pewfessers are. If we want to be safe from commie brainwashing we better pass a law saying thet students and pewfessers can't speak on campus. If they is really serious about getting eddications instead of just using the university to spread commie propaganda then they should be able to get their eddications without speaking. They ain't got no right to be speaking at the tax payers expense. If they GOTTA speak, they can go to the Men's room or out in the woods or something.

Dr. W. C. Georgewhupple

The Honor Code

Editors, The Tar Heel,

As freshmen we have been exposed to numerous lectures, discussions, and articles on the Honor Code, in which Carolina students and faculty members take such pride. The Honor System seems to be sound and quite commendable, appealing to the adult character and intelligence in each student. We have been quite favorably impressed by the expectation of maturity which the Carolina system of government has in its students. There is, however, a requirement in this system which is in complete contradiction to the mature level of the rest of the code; and that is the requirement that a student write in full the honor pledge on every test or paper that he turns in. We feel that this requirement is an insult to our integrity and intelligence.

Even in our high schools, where similar pledges were expected of every student, the student's name was a seal of honor in itself and accepted as an adequate pledge of honesty on all tests or papers.

Certainly, if a high school student can employ his signature as a pledge of honesty, the Carolina Honor Council cannot reject a college student's signature as an inadequate pledge of honesty. Can the Student Government not amend this paradox to the principle of its Honor Code?

Susan Eskildsen
232 Spencer
Sheridan House
227 Spencer

Carrier Current

Editors, The Tar Heel,

In the first edition of The Daily Tar Heel an article appeared concerning the establishment of a carrier current broadcast system which would provide the dorms and some fraternities with programming of various types provided by a new student station.

The idea of a carrier current system is a very good one, and not unusual at large universities, but the planners of the G.M. Campus Affairs Committee are entering into an area of much larger scope than can be provided for through recruition of voluntary personnel to run the station, the problems of setting up the whole new station, including control room and record procurring, and, of course, sufficient money from the Student Legislature.

The University already has a fine station run by students, but which broadcasts on FM, and therefore is unavailable to the many students who do not own FM tuners. It would seem much more reasonable to make the programs of WUNC-FM, already an established concern, available to the dormitories and fraternities on the AM band.

This would be far simpler and cheaper, if not just or more desirable as far as the end product is concerned. I urge the Campus Affairs Committee to ask for passage of a bill to provide WUNC-FM with sufficient funds to install transmitters (fed from the telephone lines) in the dorms.

Thurman L. Smith
209 W. Franklin St.

The Liberal Mind

By CLYDE WILSON

Last year's incident of mistreatment of African students in Communist Bulgaria shed light on a beautiful example of how the Liberal Mind conjures up unnecessary disadvantages for America in the cold war.

The Liberals, pursuing the diplomacy of "world opinion", insist that unless our diplomatic and domestic policies please the "uncommitted nations" and darker peoples of the earth, they will rush headlong into the arms of Communism.

This sort of thinking has been at the bottom of some very stupid moves — our Congo policy and the injection of "world opinion" into our domestic racial question being a case in point.

In dealing with diplomacy and the racial situation in America the Liberals are guilty of three mischievous false assumptions:

1) That the Soviet countries possess virtues which they do not. 2) that a bad opinion of America will cause a country to go Communist or a favorable opinion prevent it. 3) that world opinion, if it exists, is important enough to be wooed by slavish concessions to every demand.

An Ethiopian student at the Negro North Carolina A. & T. College a few years ago told a newspaper reporter that Africans had an extremely exaggerated view of the mistreatment of Negroes in America. They got this view, he said, primarly from Americans.

Here we see the defeatism of the Liberal Mind at work. In Africa we could have been pointing out that Negro Americans own more automobiles than all the people of Russia and have a higher percentage of college students than the people of Great Britain. Or that millions of Communists would gladly swap places with the humblest sharecropper in Alabama.

Instead, our propaganda agencies have conceded without a murmur that, if America had failed of perfect brotherhood, Russia had achieved it, and grovelled in the dust begging Sekou Toure to forgive us our sins and give us time to make America more as he would have it.

If there is any African who has heard of North Carolina he more than likely thinks it is a place where Negros are not allowed to attend any school, or hold any but a menial job and live in mortal fear of lynching every day of their lives.

He may have heard this from local Communists. He may have heard it from some radical leftist in the American information service who believes it himself.

Let's bring that African to North Carolina and show him the truth: The thousands of Negro schools and five Negro colleges maintained by the state of North Carolina.

The Negro doctors, lawyers, preachers, professors and businessmen. The cars and TV sets and washing machines and homes and farms owned by Negros. The friendly terms on which most black and most white North Carolinians live together.

I'll wager he will conclude America is the most wonderful country in the world and never believe in the USIA again.

It is utterly without logic to maintain that because black men are discriminated against by white men in Atlanta, black men in Abidjan, yellow men in Rangoon and brown men in Havana must choose to enslave themselves to white men in Moscow.

The Liberals, suffering from the enthno-centric notion that everybody thinks as they do, fail to understand that there is no reason why an Arab Moslem should like a Japanese any more than he like a Frenchman, or a South African of Asian decent like a Bantu any more than his Afrikaner neighbor does.

They have exaggerated the disabilities suffered by the Negro in America and tacitly accepted Communist claims of perfect brotherhood.

Not only have they conceded an unneccessary defeat in the battle for men's minds, they have also injected that defect as a false issue iinto domestic conflicts.

As usual they have over-estimated Russia and under-estimated America.

Whatever we do about our racial problem let's do it because it is right for America and not because we are worried about what the Angolan rebels might think.

Fraternities Are Drifting In The Wrong Direction

By FRED SEELY

One of the more interesting documents that came by my desk this week was a report on fraternities from the office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

Entitled "The Positive Side of the Greek Coin", the report deals at length with facts obtained through a questionnaire distributed last spring. The 11-page document first discusses some of the criticisms of fraternities and then proceeds to break each one down with a cool efficiency rarely seen outside the writings of William F. Buckley and Murray Kempton.

The criticisms quoted are anti-intellectualism, an excess of social activity, the perpetration of adolescence, the breeding of snob groups and the so-called "blackball".

The report takes the questionnaires and discovers interesting things. For example, 68 of the 105 Morehead Scholars in the top three classes are fraternity men, 60 per cet of the fraternities have a compulsory study hall for their pledges, 75 per cent provide tutoring services by members of the fraternities.

Also, fraternities give men valuable experience in self-government and self-management, provide some 735 living units (Ehringhaus has 725), constitute the backbone of student government, participate at a far greater percentage than dormitories in the intramural program, and furnish a goodly amount of public service, such as Greek Week, campus chest, Carolina Symposium and visits to orphanages and the like.

As a fraternity man, I naturally look at a report such as this with favor. However, I recognize that it is the result of a poll which deals only in material matters and must bypass such intangibles as brotherhood and friendship.

Many of UNC's fraternities are in trouble — not financially or scholastically, but within the house. They are gradually losing all visage of the true meaning and purpose of a fraternity, namely, the friendship and brotherhood so important to their existence.

I do not mean to say that they will die off due to this. They will gradually turn into glorified eating clubs as are at Princeton. Their purpose will vanish, and the campus will be left with small cliques of strange people who infrequently wander out of their nests.

Status is all important to a fraternity — it is its life-blood, as the higher its standing the better the quality of members it will entice. It must be respectable, and must have more to offer than combo parties or quiz files or hell-raising.

Many fraternities at UNC are realizing this, and are changing to meet this possible crisis. But many are not, and the crumbling will begin soon.

A fraternity must be well-rounded and extend beyond its house. It must grasp the world and work for the common good of the entire brotherhood and solidify itself.

An aimless fraternity can only be a poor fraternity. There are fewer more boring things in the world than the week after week drudgery of the same faces, the same activities, the same conditions. The grind of the classroom is enough for most people, and there must be a realization that a varied life is necessary for a person to achieve the highest possible level of character.

This, of course, has been a diatribe against conformity, and may sound much like some frat-baiter enclosed in his dormitory room giving the True Word to all who will listen. But it is also an attempt at an honest criticism of the main challenge facing today's fraternities.

Fraternities are needed, as "The Positive Side of the Greek Coin" proves so well. Let's keep them sound.

Record Review

Story Of A Lover

By JEFF BYRUM

Hector Berlioz: SYMPHONIE FANTASTIQUE Columbia ML 5648 (monaural), MS 6248 stereo) Eugene Ormandy, The Philadelphia Orchestra

In 1827, Hector Berlioz, a true romantic, fell passionately in love with the English actress Harriet Smithson after seeing her in a Paris Shakespearean production.

Her rejections of his advances, in adidtion to his failure to win the Prix de Rome, the failure of his concerts, and the opposition of his parents to his career, prompted him to write a great symphony that would dramatize the pain of his passion and establish him as a great composer.

According to Berlioz' own notes, the symphony, in five movements, is the story of the young lover who attempts to poison himself, but succeeds only in drugging himself into a deep sleep and dreams of his beloved, who recurs as a haunting melody, the famous idee fixe.

The first movement, "Dreams; Passions," expresses his longings and joy at the appearance of his beloved, first entrance of the idee fixe). The second movement, "A Ball," is an unusually enjoyable waltz, interrupted twice by the idee fixe.

The third movement, "Scene in the Fields," is a quiet interlude, beginning and ending with the horns of shepherds. His hope grows but a somber tone concludes the movement. In the fourth movement, "March to the Scaffold," he dreams that he has killed his beloved and is to be executed. The march is both triumphant and wild, and concludes with a final memory of the idee fixe and then the death blow.

In the fifth movement, "Dream of a Witch's Sabbath," he is surrounded by horrible spirits who have come for his funeral. As they dance, a vulgar parody of the idee fixe is heard. The Dies Irae enters and is heard with the dance.

Needless to say, Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra do their usual outstanding work. Romantic music is known as one of Mr. Ormandy's specialties, and he brings a vivid interpretation into this performance. The highest point in this recording is the fourth movement. Each separate section of the orchestra can be heard moving with precision and yet with great feeling. The percussion is particularly good in this and the last movement. The solo work is also pleasing in these two movements.

The second movement stands out as a result of the sparkling performance of the string section. Technically, tone balance and stereo balance are of the high quality to be expected in a Columbia recording.

Complicated Social Life

By BEAUCHAMP CARR

Sartorial superiority on the Carolina campus is achieved by relieving oneself of items usually considered necessary in some cases and adorning oneself with unnecessary items in others, and in both cases the purpose is to identify a personality with some group. Many students try to identify themselves with a group to which they do not naturally belong, and it is quite ironic: the students who appear on the surface to come from a snobbish Northern prep school are often products of southern high schools and who, for some reason, want to be in Ivey League society, and many of the sloppy, madras-clad boys who tread around the campus socklessly and look like the real North Carolinians are, in fact, the real Northern preps.

This disparity in clothing modes is engendered by the great variety in social and economic backgrounds and geographical distribution of UNC students. Although there are no statistics available on this particular point, it seems likely that variety of background is greater here than anywhere else in the nation. As a state university, UNC has students who cannot afford private schools and it has students whose homes are near the campus. As one of the most reputable schools in th South, UNC has become intellectually and socially fashionable for students from all over the country. No other university could have so many very intelligent students from far away and yet so many of moderate ability coming from the immediate area.

The variety of personalities is reflected by the many extra-curricula clubs as well as the numerous clothing trends. Here again, many native Carolinians are trying to be as sophisticated as the out-of-state students by joining intellectual organizations, while the out-of-state students are not so active.

As the sociological significance of striving for group identification is a difficult thing to determine, the trend does have the effect of making UNC a very interesting place. Any student can find his favorite social ilk here, but understanding the often ironic methods of acceptance is prerequisite.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

NSA Commissions on Student Government Problems—3 p.m. Woodhouse Room.

Student Legislature Rules and Judicial Committees — joint meeting, 3 p.m. Grail Room, GM, to consider IFC Court reform.

Student Party Legislators — 6:30 p.m., Roland Parker 1, caucus.

UNC Debate Team—6:30 p.m., Debate room of Bingham Annex.

YMCA Cabinet — 6:30 p.m., Y Building.

YMCA Membership meeting—7 p.m., Gerrard Hall, introduction of Cabinet and discussion of future plans.

Alpha Epsilon Delta—7 p.m., 226 Medical School.

Christian Science Organization— 7 p.m., Woodhouse, GM.

Amateur Radio Club—7:30 p.m., Caldwell Y, for old members and interested students.

Campus Affairs Board — 9 p.m., second floor, GM, Yack pictures may be taken.

Oliver Wendell Holmes Lecture— 8 p.m., Carroll Hall, Arthur E. Sutherland Jr., "To Grow More Civilized."

UNC Men's Glee Club — Afternoons, 214 Hill Hall, tryouts see Dr. Joel Carter.

Pre-med Counselling in the College of Arts and Sciences — 4:30-5:30 p.m., offices of the College of Arts and Sciences, for all students considering a career in medicine.

Class Ring Sale — Today and Fri., 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Lobby of the Y Building, sponsored by the Grail.

Angel Flight Interviews — Till Fri., in individual Angel's dormitory rooms.

Yack Photos—1-6 p.m. till Fri., basement of GM, for freshmen. Seniors, 4th year med. students will have a $1.00 late fee.

Woollen Gym and Swimming Pool are open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mon.-Thurs., from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Sat., and from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sun.

State Affairs Committee—5 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Fellowship of Christian Athlete— Meeting of all varsity and freshman participants, 9 p.m., 304 Woollen Gym. Description of FCA and a film will highlight the meeting.

International Students Board—3 p.m., Y Building.

MOVIES

Carolina—Love at Twenty

Varsity—For Love or Money
Rialto—L-Shaped Room
Northgate—VIP's

SPORTS

Freshman Soccer — Virginia, 3 p.m., Fetzer Field.

FUTURE

Carolina Forum — 4 p.m., Fri., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Baptist Student Union Supper and Study Group—5:45 p.m., Fri., Rev. Jim Cansler, "Biblical Foundations of Faith"

Student Government Interviews— 2-5 p.m., 210 GM, starting next week.

Co-eds interested in working for the Daily Tar Heel at the desk on Saturdays from 1:30-5 p.m., apply at the Daily Tar Heel office in Graham Memorial during the afternoon.

For Regular Door to Door Dorm Delivery of the NEWS and OBSERVER Daily and Sunday

Call: Charles Lively
942-3007
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The many ways of young love...

JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents
LOVE AT TWENTY
AN EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE

Shows at: 1:00 - 3:05 - 5:10 - 7:15 - 9:20

TODAY ONLY

Carolina

SOON
LESLIE CARON
in
"THE L SHAPED ROOM"

WHAT'S NEW IN THE OCTOBER ATLANTIC?

"Speed and Women": While convalescing from his accident, Stirling Moss, legendary racing driver, spent many hours with Ken W. Purdy. In this exciting Atlantic Extra, the two talk about some of the fears, problems and temptations that beset a racer.

ALSO

Vance Packard: Mr. Packard foresees a dramatic improvement in TV fare due to new cable TV, pay TV, tape TV to buy or rent, and other new techniques.

"Britain's Policy if Labour Wins": Labor Party leader Harold Wilson tells what Britain's new foreign policy would be under a Labor Prime Minister.

Poetry: by Robert Graves, Theodore Roethke, Stanley Kunitz.

"Saying What One Means": Freya Stark tells why accuracy of language is the basis for any writing style.

Month in and month out The Atlantic's editors seek out exciting expressions of new and provocative ideas. And whether these expressions take the form of prose or poetry, fact or fiction, they always attain a remarkably high level of academic value and literary interest. Make room in your life for The Atlantic. Get a copy today.

ON SALE NOW

Largest Stock of Adult Games and Games of Chance in Town.

Billy Arthur

EASTGATE

Important Notice

Students, youll save money if you buy it at Grants.

Everything, Man!

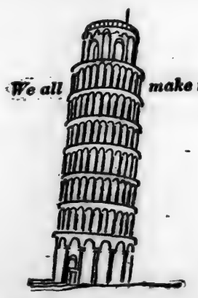
W. T. GRANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

Economical Living Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES

409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

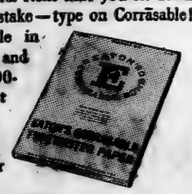


ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRASABLE BOND

Typing errors never show on Corrasable. The special surface of this paper makes it possible to erase without a trace—with just an ordinary pencil eraser. Results: clean-looking, perfectly typed papers. Next time you sit down at the keyboard, make no mistake—type on Corrasable!

Your choice of Corrasable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrasable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper



EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

22 Of 33 SL Members Flunk Procedure Quiz

Two-thirds of the legislators taking the parliamentary procedure quiz last Monday night have failed, according to Sam Himes, Rules Committee chairman and administrator of the quiz.

Nine were absent as 11 of 33 legislators present bettered the passing grade of 75.

Bob Spearman, student body vice-president, set the passing mark. "To require the legislators to get three-quarters of the questions correct is not very stringent," he said.

"We were quite liberal in the grading," Himes said. But the fact that so many failed is not too significant since the passing grade was perfectly arbitrary."

Bo Edwards (UP) got the highest grade with 99. There was a tie for second place at 89 among Munny Yates (UP), John Ulfelder, UP floorleader, and Clark Brewer (SP).

Phil Baddour, SP floorleader, in contrast with Ulfelder scored a 70. Nine other legislators made between 71 and 74.

All who failed the quiz and all absentees will have to take the same quiz in tonight's meeting of Legislature, Himes said.

Friederich Addresses Di-Phi

"Students must nurture their literary interest throughout life," commented Dr. Werner Paul Friederich, the featured speaker at the Dialectic-Philanthropic Society inaugural ceremony Tuesday night. Dr. Friederich, Kenan Professor of German and Comparative Literature, spoke on "The Humanizing Influence of Literature."

"Students whose literary interests end with graduation may become intellectually and spiritually stagnated in later years, and these students may then suffer memories of past happiness, past chances, past unfulfilled promises."

"The reading of great literature reassures us of our dignity and individuality," he said. "This reassurance is necessary in the modern trend toward regimentation."

Hubert Hawkins, newly inaugurated president of the Di-Phi Society, followed Dr. Friederich. Hawkins, a senior Latin major from Madison, succeeded Nathan Dean for the executive position and delivered his inaugural address. He emphasized the importance of learning to listen to other's ideals and to speak their own.

Other officers installed were: William Bullard, president pro tempore Nathan Dean, Critic; John Freas, sergeant - at - arms; and Charles Neely, treasurer.

Ralph Moody Speaks Here

Assistant State Attorney General Ralph Moody will speak on the gag law here next month.

He will give his view of the need for the law and explain how it will be implemented throughout the state.

Moody will address the UNC-Chapel Hill branch of the American Association of University Professors on November 4, according to Dan Okun, president.

Moody attended UNC but was admitted to the Bar before he finished his law courses. He left UNC in 1922 to go into practice in Murphy.

He has prepared a comprehensive statement of his views on the speaker ban which can be obtained from the office of the state attorney general.

The speech will be open to all faculty members, according to Okun.

Peace Hikers Will Visit Chapel Hill

About a dozen members of the Committee for Nonviolent Action's Quebec-to-Guantanamo "walk for peace" will appear on the steps of the Post Office here tomorrow night.

Among speakers from the group will be Bradford Lyttle. The Committee for Nonviolent Action sponsored a San Francisco-to-Moscow "walk for peace" last year, and also has sponsored the entry of private vessels into mid-ocean nuclear test zones.

The Nonviolent Committee's walk for peace started from Quebec last May and expects to reach Guantanamo by Christmas. Pat Cusick of Chapel Hill, field secretary for the Student Peace Union, is coordinating the walkers' appearance in Chapel Hill, Durham, and Raleigh. The walkers' appearance in Chapel Hill is sponsored by the UNC chapter of the Student Peace Union.

Mr. Cusick said Mr. Lyttle and his colleagues would speak from the Post Office steps in protest against the "gag law," which prevents persons with communist affiliations, or persons who have plead the Fifth Amendment, from speaking at State-supported institutions.

Ben Bella Moves Vs. Rebels

ALGIERS (UPI) — Army reinforcements loyal to the strongman regime of President Ahmed Ben Bella were rushed Wednesday to rebel-held areas in Algeria's rugged Kabylia Mountains.

The army also formally pledged its loyalty to Ben Bella, who has been pushing a drive to set up a Cuba-style "people's republic," and denounced the dissident movement seeking to overthrow him.

In Paris, the French government threatened reprisals against Algeria after Ben Bella in a gesture of defiance, seized all remaining farmlands still owned by Frenchmen in Algeria.

The government announced its ambassador in Algiers, Georges Gorse, had delivered an angry protest against what it denounced as "discriminatory" measures. Gorse warned the Ben Bella regime that nationalization of all remaining French property would have repercussions on already strained relations between the two countries.

Fresh troop reinforcements rolled out from Algiers in trucks this morning along the highway toward Tizi-Ouzou, 60 miles east of Algiers, and capital of the rebellious Kabylia region.

The city of Tizi-Ouzou was reported to be held by government troops after a series of see-sawing bloodless thrusts by insurgent and loyal units.

Ben Bella's police set up five roadblocks on the highway from Algiers to Tizi-Ouzou, where civilian and military rebels Sunday launched the dissident movement that brought this newly independent North African nation to the brink of civil war.

All passing vehicles were halted and searched at the roadblocks and drivers' papers were checked.

–Sutherland–

(Continued from Page 1)

the spring of 1945. The senselessness of continued resistance was as obvious as the ultimate outcome. The particular tragedy relates to those killed in the last battles which should have been needless. Decision for change was made in 1865 and in 1868 and in 1870. The change is going on all around us. Much, much of it is uncomfortable as is all change. All of it is insistent, all of it obvious. And as a people, we must accept education in the obvious."

Prof. Sutherland based last night's address title on a statement from Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes "It seems to me at this time, we need education in the obvious more than investigation in the obscure."

–Spearman–

(Continued from Page 1)

bilities of cooperation with the administration," he added. "As the University and the student population grows larger such cooperation grows increasingly more important."

"The justification for student self - government is interwoven with the philosophy of democracy itself," he stated. "Once this is realized our responsibilities to the total academic community are clear."

Nlfelder outlined the function of the legislature and the UPs participation in that body. He also discussed proposals for the coming year.

Chanin reviewed his term in office and urged the party to take ", . . initiative, action and leadership in the coming year."

Chief James H. Woody, veteran of 21 years of naval service including three years at UNC, will be honored today by the campus NROTC batallion in a retirement ceremony.

Woody will inspect the battalion and then the batallion will pass in review for him. The campus unit will also present him with a plaque honoring him for his years of service in the Navy.

Woody plans to settle in Pittsboro and work for a local air conditioning company.

–YRC–

(Continued from Page 1)

Republican Party," he added.

Lacy commended the work of the Young Republicans and called on all those who wish to continue to have a voice in their government to "get out of the grandstands and into the arena of political action."

Lacy spoke to the UNC Young Republican Club, recently reorganized for the new school year. About 45 persons attended the speech.

LAW STUDENTS

There is a clump of old law texts —mostly case books — in our Old Book Feature Case. They look sad to us, but maybe you'll like them. At any rate, they're cheap.

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

MEDICAL STUDENTS!

There's a clump of back-number medical texts in our Old Feature Case.

If they interest you, they're cheap!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

REPAINTED GOLF BALLS
39c each or
$4.50 dozen
PLASTIC PINT FLASKS
$1.49
(Also Available in ½ Pints)

ROSES VALUE - VARIETY
109 E. Franklin

Majoring in the classics? Get lean, lithe Post-Grads in 65% DACRON* and 35% cotton. Solid-citizen pockets and regular belt loops make your old school try authentic...$6.95. Other favorite fabrics $4.95 to $10.95. And get new torso-tapered h.i.s shirts $3.95 to $6.95. At stores flying h.i.s label.

*TM for Du Pont Polyester Fiber know the answers... h.i.s post-grad slacks

He was hired to Mate them ...but not to Date them!!!

KIRK DOUGLAS
MITZI GAYNOR · GIG YOUNG

What happens when a Bachelor plays Matchmaker... for 3 luscious sisters!

'FOR LOVE OR MONEY'

In Eastman COLOR

CO-STARRING
THELMA RITTER · LESLIE PARRISH
JULIE NEWMAR · WILLIAM DEMAREST · RICHARD SARGENT

Written by LARRY MARKES and MICHAEL MORRIS
Directed by MICHAEL GORDON · Produced by ROBERT ARTHUR

A Universal Picture

NOW PLAYING
Shows at: 1:00
3:00 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00

Varsity

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Girl's nickname
4. Source of light and heat
7. Metal mounting of a scabbard
9. Angry
12. Seraglio
13. Work
14. At one time
15. Entire
16. King of Bashan
17. Winter driving hazard
18. Attempt
19. Girl's nickname
20. Trusted
22. Days gone by
23. Reason
25. Sinuous
28. Units of weight
32. Mimic
33. Pirate's drink
34. Senility
35. Natrium: sym.
36. Fuel
37. Capital: Switz.
38. Pay another's check
40. Patients
41. Rung of a ladder
42. Subside
43. Primary color
44. Your: dial.

DOWN
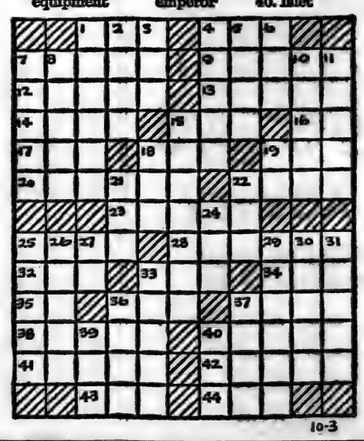
1. Deep-groove hair wave
2. Fencer's foil
3. Hope Diamond, for one
4. Absurd
5. Russian river
6. Salsa
7. Group of singers
8. Haunch of an arch
10. Carpenter's equipment
11. Disease of rye
15. Difficult
18. Beverage
19. Music note
21. Very cold
22. Enclosure
24. Total amount
25. Requirements
26. Aside
27. Norse god
29. Roman emperor
30. Wading bird
31. Meaning
33. Appraised
36. Bestowed
37. Infant
39. Organ of hearing
40. Inlet

Yesterday's Answer

10-3



CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

THE NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL has always been a purely mutual company, thus furnishing life insurance at actual cost. There are no stockholders. The company is owned by its policyholders. Arthur DeBerry Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Trucks — Trailers

50' BY 10' SKYLINE MOBILE Home with 10' by 24' room attached; fireplace; air conditioning; washer; furnished or unfurnished; located at edge of town on private lot; good neighborhood. Call 968-5811 before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
SIZZLING CHARCOAL STEAKS
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ---------- $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

La Pizza
ANNOUNCES
HAPPY PIZZA HOUR
9 P.M. - 10 P.M. ONLY
ONE FREE BEER TO EACH PERSON BUYING ONE PIZZA. (IF TWO PEOPLE SPLIT A LARGE PIZZA—ONE BEER EACH.

Booters' Opener Is Against Tough Navy

By RON LOGAN

The University of North Carolina soccer squad takes on the Naval Academy in the first game of its ambitious schedule Saturday afternoon in Annapolis.

Coach Marvin Allen's booters will be out to avenge a 4-0 defeat at the hands of the Middies in last season's opener, but the Tar Heels will have to play their hearts out if they are to top the powerful service foe.

The two teams had three common opponents last fall — Duke, Virginia, and national runnerup Maryland—and each team defeated Duke and Virginia only to lose to the Terps.

The Tar Heels have eight lettermen starters: goalie Buddy Siegel; halfbacks Park McGinty and Steve Painter; fullback Charlie Battle (co-captain); and forwards Jim Talbot, Bill Haywood, and Pete Blake (co-captain). Sophs George Butler, Tom Wright and spectacular Drew Murphy will round out the first team.

Murphy is trying to fill the shoes of last years standout center forward Jim Reston, and Coach Allen says that already Murphy "can do things that Jim never could."

Murphy scored 12 goals for the undefeated freshman team last season, just one less than Reston scored for the varsity.

Navy is returning one of the strongest teams in recent years, and will be led by All-America Karl Kaeser who holds down the inside right position.

Coach Glenn Warner of the Navy squad has a host of outstanding lettermen in addition to Kaeser and several sophomores who are expected to be bright spots in the 1963 season.

In addition to Navy, the UNC squad will take on powerful Washington University (St. Louis), Maryland, and pesky conference foes Virginia and Duke. If Carolina can win three of those games the season will be a success.

Davidson, N.C. State, Pfeiffer, Belmont Abbey, and Emory University are also on the schedule, but they aren't in the same class with the other teams mentioned.

The UNC booters will be hard pressed to match last season's 7-2 mark, but Coach Allen believes that this edition will be superior to the 1962 squad in experience and overall ability.

This year's roster shows quite a cross-section of hometowns. Fifteen states and two foreign countries are represented with Edwin Okoroma of Nigeria and George Butler of Jamaica coming from outside the U.S.

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel
Page 4 Thursday, October 3, 1963

Reed, Segrest Star As SAE Rolls, 50-0

By AL KAPLAN

SAE, 1962 Fraternity Blue champs, extended their winning ways in the current campaign as they mauled Beta, 50-0, Tuesday.

Led offensively by Brooks Reed and All-Campus Back Bob Segrest, SAE's victory was never in doubt. Reed put on a strong offensive and defensive performance, scoring two touchdowns, a conversion and a safety. Segrest also tallied two six pointers and a conversion.

Chi Phi eked out a 10-6 victory against AK Psi in another Frat Blue game. The winning score came on Joe Burns' TD. Chi Phi also scored on two safeties, one by Tom Thompson and the other by Bud Burns. The loser's six came on Bill Bauer's score.

Led by Jeff Praker's two touchdowns, Sigma Nu rolled to an easy 26-0 victory over Phi Gamma Delta. Sigma Nu's other scores came on six pointers by Bill Bogache and Dick Bramley and conversions by Skip Dunn and Warren Price.

In other murals action on Tuesday, DU slipped past Lambda Chi 7-0 as Ted Edwards provided the scoring. Charles Elrod's touchdown proved to be enough for Kappa Sigma as they edged Kappa Psi, 6-0.

Upsets were on the agenda in Monday's action. In the grad league, Med School defeated the Peacocks, considered one of the strongest teams in preseason consensus, 6-0. Bill Jarman made the only tally.

With Irwin Brillian leading the way on two touchdowns, Old West upended the Mangum Redskins, 1963 football runnerups, 21-6. Bill Weems provided another six points by intercepting a pass and racing all the way for the score. Andy Holland of Mangum also scored a touchdown.

NOTE — The University Golf Tournament will be held October 8. Those who are interested still have time to turn in a qualifying round.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The first Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) meeting of the year will be held at 9:00 in 304 Woollen Gym tonight. All varsity athletes and freshman participants are invited to attend. Basketball Coach Dean Smith will be advisor of this year's group, and Al Long, former UNC athlete, will be in charge of meetings.

Description of the FCA and a movie will highlight the meeting.

YESTERDAYS SCORES

A forfeit to Pi Lamb over Sigma Chi was incorrectly reported by the Intramural Office yesterday. The contest between the two will be played after rush.

4:00

Aycock 25, Everett Grossmen 0
Emerson 53, AFROTC 0
Parker 28, Lewis 6
Town Rats 13, Winston 6
Graham 1, Ruffin 0 (forfeit)

5:00

Old East 18, Everett Rogah 11
Craige B 30, BVP 0
Navy 14, Alexander 6
Manly 19, Victory Village 0

MISTER K

| LOS ANGELES | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Wills, ss | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Gilliam, 3b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| W. Davis, cf | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| T. Davis, lf | 4 | 0 | 3 | 0 |
| Howard, rf | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Fairly, rf | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Skowron, 1b | 3 | 1 | 2 | 2 |
| Tracewski, 2b | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Roseboro, c | 4 | 1 | 1 | 3 |
| Koufax, p | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 35 | 5 | 9 | 5 |

| NEW YORK | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kubek, ss | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Richardson, 2b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Tresh, lf | 3 | 1 | 1 | 2 |
| Mantle, cf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Maris, rf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Howard, c | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Pepitone, 1b | 4 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Boyer, 3b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Ford, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Lopez | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Williams, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Linz | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Hamilton, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Bright | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 33 | 2 | 6 | 2 |

a—struck out for Ford in 5th.
b—struck out for Williams in 8th.
c—struck out for Hamilton in 9th.

L. Angeles .. 0 4 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—5
New York ... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Koufax | 9 | 6 | 2 | 2 | 3 | 15 |
| Ford | 5 | 8 | 5 | 5 | 2 | 4 |
| Williams | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 5 |
| Hamilton | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 |

W—Koufax ..... (1-0)
L—Ford ..... (0-1)

— Roseboro's Homer Big Blow In Win —

(Continued from Page 1)

away last November by the Yankees, stepping in to face his former teammates. And the Moose, a .203 hitting failure with the Dodgers this season, slashed a single to center which sent Howard lumbering home with the ice-breaking run.

Skowron moved on to second when Dick Tracewski followed with a single to center and now it was Roseboro coming up.

John had struck only nine home runs all season and none of those off a lefthander. And in six previous series games his batting average was a lowly .095. But he compensated for all that frustration, lofting the ball through the bluish haze of smoke drifting out of the stands for a home run. As it dropped into the lower right field seats, Skowron and Tracewski scampered home in front of him and the Dodgers led, 4 to 0.

Koufax blazed his way into the record books for the first time when, after striking out the side in the first inning, he fanned Mantle and Maris to start the second.

Twenty years ago Mort Cooper turned the same trick against the Yankees. Koufax matched it this time by getting Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson swinging and Tom Tresh on a called strike in the first.

Then he set down Mantle with a sweeping curve and matched Cooper's record of Oct. 11, 1943, by pouring a fast ball past the fruitlessly swinging Maris to start the Yankees' half of the second.

The Dodgers ran their lead to 5-0 in the third with three more hits for another run.

Koufax was sailing along with apparent ease in the Yankee fifth with two outs and 10 strikeouts already to his credit when suddenly he found himself in a bases-loaded jam. Ellie Howard and Joe Pepitone touched him for back-to-back singles to right field and Clete Boyer singled off Tracewski's glove behind second base, filling them up.

That's when the Yankees derricked Ford.

Whitey left the scene when Hector Lopez came in to pinch-hit with three men straining on the bases and hoping finally to crack through Koufax's shutout pitching. But Sandy reached back and fired a rally-killing third strike past Lopez.

But the cheers hardly had faded when Tresh drove a home run into the left field stands in the eighth inning to score Tony Kubek ahead of him, cut the Dodger lead to 5-2 and cost Koufax a shutout on the heels of a season in which Sandy posted 11 for an all-time record for southpaws.

Koufax was laboring in the ninth but Manager Walter Alston stayed with him — and held his breath at various intervals.

Ellie Howard laced a drive which Tracewski speared at second. Then Pepitone rifled a single to right field.

Boyer hit a long fly to center—the only Dodger outfield chance of the game — for the second out and then Koufax wrapped it up by fanning Bright for the record 15th strikeout.

"There was only one word for this game — Koufax," said Yankee Manager Ralph Houk. "He was great."

Houk reiterated that he would go in Thursday's second game with left hander Al Downing, who had a 13-5 record this season after being called up from the minors.

Alston will try to make it two in a row by pitching Johnny Podres, a 14-game winner who was the hero of the Dodgers' first world championship in 1955.

Applications are now available for the Navy's eighteenth annual NROTC qualification test, according to the Professor of Naval Science at UNC.

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

Applaud Her
The discrimination of the lady in our A.H. slacks deserves applause. She recognizes the artistry of A.H. styling, A.H. taper. Authentically man-tailored to seam pockets and fly front, yet she knows A.H. proportions are pure female. If you're in the mood for applause, see our A.H. slack collection today. Gentry woolens, sizes 8-18.
Town & Campus

AND CHECK

A most colorful selection of shirt creations await your approval at THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL. We're sure you will give our new shirts for fall your overwhelming vote of confidence.
Priced from five dollars
THE HUB
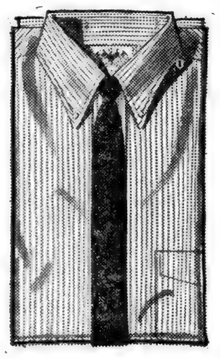
OF CHAPEL HILL



Eagle Shirtmakers answer to the perfect roll Button-Down collar. Available from our stock in an overwhelming assortment of solids, stripes and new Gingham checks. From 5.95 to 8.95.
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

OUR TRIM TRADITIONAL WORSTED SLACKS . . .
. . . tell quite a story to the wearer and observer. The difference is tailored fit, permanent creasing and the finest materials obtainable in new, rich Fall colorings. We have a complete and large selection from 13.95 to 32.50.
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

TO MAKE ROOM
for our new
TROPHY DEPT.
Wide Selection
Trophies, Plaques, Etc. and
ENGRAVING SERVICE
We have found it necessary to acquire additional space by reducing our record stock . . . and so offer—
All LP — Stereo & Mono
RECORDS
ALL LABELS
Pop — Classical — Opera — Jazz — Country & Western — Shows & Sound Track at
2 FOR 1
THE PRICE OF

the Sport Shop, inc.
"It Pays to Play" CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
151 East Franklin

Our Camel Hair Jacket Mellows with Age!
Of all the sports jackets we know, our Stroock camel hair is the most long-lived. It is the only fabric we know that actually mellows with age! That is why some men wear their camels for years and years . . . and enjoy boundless luxury with each wearing! In natural, of course.
JUST ARRIVED —
Handsome new collection of H. Freeman Suits & Topcoats in Shetlands, Plaids, Herringbones and Heathers.
BANGOR by H. FREEMAN & SON PHILADELPHIA expressly for
Julian's College Shop

Lady Milton Fall Fashion Shirt Story

Many of our new fall shirts have squared off tails yet long enough not to hike out of skirts.
You'll want to see our new white ground candy stripe with stripes at 5/8" intervals of red, blue, olive or gray—in long sleeve button-down at $6.95.
New candy corn series in choir boy or button-down, either with long sleeves—corn with 3/16" stripes of red, blue or gray—$6.95.
These are but a few of the many interesting exclusive shirtings you'll find in our inimitable Lady Milton Shop.
But the most important difference is the extreme accent on quality—when you compare our shirts with brand V which is no better made than a $3.98 brand S&S, and compare it with brand CS, you will literally be amazed of how much finer quality you receive in our entire stock of shirts. The same workmanship that goes into our men's M-2 shirts goes into our Lady Milton shirts. Brand V has double needle tailoring—you will find a ridge at the shoulder seam—our brand is finest single needle tailoring with smooth shoulder seams. After many many launderings our Lady Milton shirts look good as new whereas brand V or CS cannot make this claim.
LADY MILTON SHOP
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Walgreen AGENCY
ONE CENT SALE
BUY ONE ITEM AT ITS REGULAR EVERYDAY PRICE...
ADD 1 CENT AND GET 2!
SUTTONS Drug Store
159 E. Franklin St.
YOU'RE ALWAYS WELCOME AT YOUR Walgreen AGENCY DRUG STORE
BEGINNING TODAY

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HLL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1963 | United Press International Service

Podres, Dodgers Continue Yank Mastery, 4-1

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Johnny Podres reached eight years into the past Thursday to prove again his mastery over the New York Yankees with a 4-1 triumph that gave the battling Los Angeles Dodgers their second straight World Series victory.

On the heels of Sandy Koufax' brilliant opening game triumph, the 30-year-old Podres once again showed the Yankees the class and courage with which he beat them in 1955 to sweep the Dodgers to their first world championship.

His blue-gray shirt soaked with the perspiration of determination and labor, one of the last of the Old Dodgers of subway series days lived up to the press-agent glitter of their new movieland home by pitching his way out of three jams.

He couldn't quite make it all the way. The last time he was only 23. The eight years had taken their toll and the strength and stamina weren't quite there to finish it up.

Gets Thunderous Ovation

But blond Johnny got them to within two outs of this coveted second victory before Hector Lopez touched him for a double. The stakes were too big for a sentimental gamble although Podres had given up only six hits to that point.

So Johnny walked to the dressing room in a thundering storm of cheers — and relief ace Ron Perranoski came in with a fresh left arm to give up a hit which lost the shutout but went on to clinch the win.

It also hung the defeat on fireballing young Al Downing, who was touched for seven hits and three runs in five innings by those supposedly weak Dodger bats—including a home run by former Yankee Moose Skowron in the fourth inning.

The Yankees were distressed in defeat before a cheering throng of 66,455 spectators because they gave up two runs in the first inning on three hits, including a gift double, and a stolen base. Also in the third inning right fielder Roger Maris suffered a muscle bruise of the left arm when he crashed into the right field fence.

But standout of the day was Podres, who three times pitched himself out of jams before he had to hand the ball to Perranoski.

The Yankees ran at him in the second inning when, with one out, Elston Howard singled off second baseman Dick Tracewski's glove and Joe Pepitone drew a walk. But Johnny reared back like that kid of 1955 and fanned both Clete Boyer and Downing.

They were chewing away at him again in the sixth with two out when Tom Tresh singled to left and — with Mickey Mantle menacing Podres at the plate—Johnny missed a pickoff attempt for the first error of the series and Tresh galloped on to second base.

Pitches To Mantle

Podres and the Dodgers showed questionable courage there by pitching to Mantle with first base open. They might have rued it, too, when Mantle lofted a long drive to left field which Willie Davis took at the 430 foot mark.

But it was the big third out for which Podres had been looking and, as long as it was, it counted.

Then, in the seventh, those frustrated Yankees had their hopes raised again as Lopez led off with a ground rule double when the ball bounced into the right field stands. But Podres held them there as the next three hitters—Howard, Pepitone and Boyer—all flied out to left field.

Even a partisan Yankee crowd was cheering for him as they went into the ninth. Podres got Mantle on a fly to deep left but then Lopez reached him for a second straight double.

It was a tired Johnny now, the flannel shirt clinging to his chest and back, and Perranoski was brought on to save it for him. Ellie Howard touched Perranoski for a single which scored Lopez, but then Pepitone forced Howard and Boyer went down on strikes to wind it up and send the Dodgers home to Los Angeles — where the best of seven game series resumes Saturday — winners of two games and losers of none.

The Dodgers jumped into their 2 to 0 lead in the first inning with three hits and the aid of that leaky Yankee defense.

Wills Starts Trouble

Wills started with a single over over second base and, on the first pitch to Jim Gilliam, stole second base. Pepitone's high throw drew Bobby Richardson past the bag when it appeared that Downing might have had the Dodger speedster who cracked the immortal Ty Cobb's base-stealing record, picked off first base.

Gilliam followed with a single to right, Wills racing to third and then taking a long lead toward home. Maris threw to the plate but Wills retreated to third but Gilliam took second on the throw.

Willie Davis now loosed a drive to right field which it appeared that Maris would catch. But it sank on him and as it sliced in toward the right field fence the Yankee outfielder fell. By the time he retrieved it as it caromed off the wall—the same wall that was to be his nemesis again later—W. Davis wound up on second with that gift double and Wills and Gilliam had raced across the plate.

The wall proved double trouble for Maris in the third when with two out Tommy Davis sliced a drive into right field. Chasing it furiously, Maris skidded into the low steel wire railing. By the time he retrieved the ball and lobbed it in, Davis went all the way to third and time was called as Maris knelt, clutched his left arm and finally left the game. All this went for naught when Downing struck out Frank Howard.

Moose Bombs One

The "Moose" padded the Dodger lead in the fourth when he rapped Downing for a wrong-field home run, slicing the ball into the lower right field stands. An anemic hitter with the Dodgers this season, that drive he curled just inside the foul pole was only his fifth homer of the year. But it had to be the biggest.

The dashing Davis boys gave Podres another lift in the eighth —Willie lacing out his second double and Tommy driving him home with a long triple to left center that made it 4-0.

It was a victory which made the Dodgers—who opened as 7½ to 5 underdogs in this 60th classic—sudden 3 to 1 favorites to win their third world championship in 11 starts. But the odds-makers, probably as unbelieving as the twice - humbled Yankees, still made the Yankees 11 to 10 favorites for the third game.

In that one it will be a pair of righthanders, Yankee Jim Bouton with a 21-7 record against Dodger Don Drysdale, who was 19-17 on the season.

But Dodger Manager Walt Alston wasn't making any predictions of victory.

"It takes two more," he said.

YDC Member Drive Will Continue

The UNC Young Democratic Club began a campus-wide membership drive Thursday with a goal of signing up 500 or more students for what promises to be one of the club's most active years.

Important primary contests this spring, including the gubernatorial primary, will set the stage for the elections of 1964. The UNC club will be active in all phases of political activity, according to a spokesman.

Plans are being made to have the various Democratic candidates for Governor appear on the campus during the year under YDC sponsorship to speak on the issues which will decide who the next North Carolina Governor will be.

YDC membership booths will operate today, Saturday and Monday at Lenoir Hall, Y Court and in downtown Chapel Hill. The Lenoir Hall booth will be staffed from 11 a.m. through 1:30 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.; Y Court from 8:45 a.m. through 12:45 p.m. and the downtown booth from 11:30 a.m. through 1 p.m. and from 4 through 6:30 p.m.

Co-ordinators of the membership drive are undergraduates John McMillan and Same Himes of the ATO House.

SG INTERVIEWS

Student Body President Mike Lawler announced Thursday that interviews for limited positions on student government committees will be conducted next week. He especially urged freshmen and transfer students to apply.

Lawler said interested students should sign up at the SG offices, 210 GM, from 2 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

Five-minute interviews will be held Tuesday through Thursday from 2 to 5 p.m. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Mike Lawler will conduct the interviews.

Speaker Ban: Part I

'A Shot In The Stomach'

By HUGH STEVENS

(This is the first of a three-part series on the history and background of the controversial speaker "gag law" passed this summer by the N. C. General Assembly.)

June 25 dawned as a bright and beautiful Tuesday in Chapel Hill—the type of day one traditionally likes to associate with the placid quadrangles and weathered bricks on the Carolina campus. A gentle but humid breeze stirred the leaves of Davie Poplar, still the main attraction after 170 years.

In his office, Consolidated University President William C. Friday began a typical summer day.

In Raleigh, another of the Consolidated University's campuses basked in the sun. Down the street and around the corner, the members of the 1963 N. C. General Assembly were thinking about going home, for adjournment was imminent, despite the fact that redistricting had not yet been considered.

Then, shortly before noon, a call went out from the new State House to President Friday in Chapel Hill. A resolution had just been introduced in the House of Representatives, and one of the biggest and most controversial stories of 1963 had begun. By nightfall, the sunny day would become gray and dreary in the minds and hearts of many who love the University, and the gentle breeze would fan a bonfire of tension and anger.

Thirty-one minutes after the phone rang in Friday's office, he charged up the State House steps with Dean Fred Weaver in tow. Joe Doster, writing in the Charlotte Observer three days later, said Friday "looked as if he had just been shot in the stomach."

Friday and Weaver had rushed to Raleigh in an attempt to halt passage of a bill that would outlaw speakers on the campuses of state-supported schools who were known Communists or suspected of being Communists. They were too late.

The resolution had already been rushed through both houses of the legislature, with the help of secrecy, apathy, and pre-adjournment nonchalance.

The atmosphere inside the State House at the time of the resolution's passage was definitely not that of the typical deliberative body. In their efforts to abandon Raleigh to the critics and commentators, legislators had already packed their bags and cleared their desks for the trip home. The normal rules of procedure had been suspended, and bills of a local nature were being introduced during the lull, thus avoiding the often fatal trip to the Calendar Committee.

In their eagerness to adjourn, many of the delegates considered the legislation before them carelessly—hurrying from one issue to another, joking with partisan friends and foes alike, reading and signing letters at their desks.

It was the sort of situation that House Speaker Clifton Blue termed the danger period of the legislature.

"When you can't get their attention, when tempers start getting short and they are not alert, it is time to go home," he said.

Into the din and excitement came Rep. Phillip Godwin of Gates County with his resolution to ban known Communists, Fifth Amendment pleaders, and others from the college campuses. The bill was co-sponsored by Rep. Ned Delemar of Pamlico County.

Godwin asked for the usual suspension of the rules so that his resolution could be considered without being sent to committee. Most resolutions, duly routine and insignificant, are handled in this manner whatever their subjects.

Whoever paid attention to Godwin—and apparently there were few—either did not grasp the importance of his action or were unsuccessful in finding anyone else who really cared.

There were some, however, who acted, and still others would come to the fore later. Opposition, though, was weak and widespread.

One man who tried to stop the bill was Rep. Paul Story, who called it unconstitutional. But his efforts were in vain, and the bill quickly passed the House with only a smattering of opposition.

Godwin then headed for the Senate chamber with the bill, and arrived to find debate going on. He talked to presiding officer Clarence Stone while the talk continued. When the debate ended, Senator Garland Morris of Montgomery County called for a suspension of the rules so the bill could be considered in the Senate.

The issue was swiftly read, even more swiftly called to a vote, and passed over a few stringent objections from the floor.

Senators Lunsford Crew, Robert Morgan, and Perry Martin objected to the bill's introduction for a variety of reasons. Generally, they agreed that the bill had implications not readily apparent in a simple reading. No one, however, seemed to have a copy for study.

Still others tried to get the attention of the chair, but Stone pounded them into silence with his gavel.

Sen. Luther Hamilton attempted to protest the action, but he was informed that he would need a two-thirds majority to override the chair. Hamilton was reluctant to make a further attempt, and the issue was quieted for the day.

The University officials were stunned. They lamented the swift action that had given them no opportunity to be heard, and declared that the matter was "injurious and unnecessary." They said they would encourage the University trustees, scheduled to meet July 8, to seek repeal of the law.

The one sincere effort against the bill failed on Wednesday. An effort to bring the bill back from the Enrolling Office for reconsideration lost on a 25-19 standing vote in the Senate.

Opponents of the measure in both the Senate and the House then filed statements of dissent from the passage of the resolution. Thirteen Senators and 14 Representatives went on the legislative records in opposition to the law as dangerous to free speech and a slap at the state's higher education system, especially the Consolidated University.

(Tomorrow the reaction of the citizens of North Carolina will be highlighted in the second part of the series).

Machine Wins Out In Totalling UNC Enrollment

By PETE IVEY

A mechanical brain won out over the human brain in totalling the 1963 Fall enrollment here.

Announcements last week that 10,704 students are enrolled proved today to be incorrect.

The real total is 10,887, or 183 more than first reckoned.

IBM equipment used in the University's Central Records Office has produced figures which necessitate upward revision of registration totals.

The error happened when registration personnel, hastening to get the total after the registration decline, did not wait for the electronic equipment to complete its computations.

The mistake was in subtracting from the Graduate School total the registration from the School of Public Health. Owing to a change in submitting totals from professional schools, figures had been subtracted, in one instance, rather than added.

Ray Strong, Director of Central Records, got on the phone and obtained totals from deans of several professional schools, but did not take into account the new way of submitting totals from the schools. That's where the slip-up occurred.

Haste was the culprit. In justice to Ray Strong, it ought to be said that he was being subjected to extreme pressures from state newspaper reporters, by the University News Bureau, Chapel Hill Weekly, the Daily Tar Heel and others to hurry up with the enrollment figures on the largest registration in Carolina's history.

Knowing that it would take several days for the IBM equipment to give enrollment breakdowns — statistics by schools and departments, classes, sex and other categories — Strong did the calculations with pencil and paper and by consultation with deans of schools.

Private Enterprise Not As Private As Supposed

Sutherland Says In His Final Speech

Private enterprise in the United States in many cases is more public than we think, according to Arthur Sutherland, Bussey Professor of Law at Harvard University, who delivered the third and last in a series of Oliver Wendell Holmes Lectures here last night.

While there has been a movement from private to public control during the past century, public enterprises have begun to behave more like those traditionally private, said Prof. Sutherland.

Along with an increasing population and an increased technology, goes a continual increase in the degree of political control, all dominant characteristics of life in today's America, according to Prof. Sutherland.

He said that the future century will continue to see expansion in population, technology and man's dependence upon technology, and an increase in "the volume and intimacy of government."

Things to look for in the future and perils that lie ahead, according to Prof. Sutherland, include: the extent to which political direction will substitute itself for the present degree of our governance which we like to call private; the fate of private universities; dangers to academic freedom; the prospect of war; more military posture; and the danger of expecting absolutes, that is of, not accepting failure.

He called on a statement written by Justice Holmes in "The Law and Court" in 1913 in which Holmes recognized the property which is socially administered and advised that men give up thought of labels or words to think instead of things: ". . . drop ownership, money, etc., and to think of the stream of products; of wheat and cloth and railway travel . . . the great body of property is socially administered now, and that the function of private ownership is to divine in advance the equilibrium of social desires which socialism equally would have to divine, but which under the illusion of self-seeking, is more poignantly and shrewdly foreseen."

Emphasizing that all men are governed to a large extent all their lives by their immediate supervisors, he said that the main point to consider about the century ahead is not whether man will be governed more but how far political direction will substitute itself for the present degree of our governance which we like to call private.

He pointed out that even though the individual citizen of the century ahead might lose some sense of local initiative there is yet a certain protection of the individual against the political mass in the separation of power in the United States.

PEACE MARCHER Bradford Lyttle, coordinator of the Committee for Non-Violent Action's peace march from Quebec to Guantanamo speaks on the post office steps last night before a group of about 150 persons. The speech was given in front of the post office in protest of the "loyalty oath-type speaker ban now in effect here," according to Lyttle. The dark streaks above Lyttle's head are the result of several eggs that were thrown at him during the speech. —Photo by Jim Wallace

150 Attend 'Peace Rally'

A 35 year-old leader of the Quebec—Guantanamo March for Peace Thursday night called on University students to do what they can to "get rid of the loyalty oath-type speaker ban now in effect here."

Bradford Lyttle, coordinator of the Committee for Non-Violent Action - sponsored peace march, claimed there is more academic freedom at the University of Moscow, and even more at the University of Arizona in Tempe, Ariz., home of Republican Senator Barry Goldwater than there is at the University of North Carolina.

Lyttle addressed a group of about 150 persons gathered in front of the Post Office on Franklin St., in a program sponsored by the campus chapter of the Student Peace Union.

Original plans were for the group to speak on the campus but rather than subject themselves to questions about their prior political affiliations, as required by the recently enacted gag-law, they spoke at the post-office across from the campus mall.

Lyttle explained the Walk's purposes saying it hopes to promote better relations between the United States, Cuba and Russia by asking the removal of all foreign troops stationed there and thus decreasing the tensions that could lead to a nuclear war.

"We usually don't have any trouble finding a place to sleep when we arrive in a new town," Lyttle said of his 17-member group. Usually we send someone ahead to set everything up.

"But we couldn't find a place to stay in Greensboro. We got some bad publicity there from the newspapers, so we had to pitch our tents, and sleep in them but we didn't mind."

Lyttle said that the group had undergone harrassment during their trip, but he added that the few warm welcomes and the amusing incidents that had occurred have helped keep the walkers' morale up.

"Near Scranton, Pa." he said, "people were throwing firecrackers, tomatoes and bottles at us, and in Binghamton, N. Y. someone shot a rifle at us.

"One of the happiest parts of the trip was when a Canadian boy and an American girl who met on the trip got married," Lyttle said.

What Bleachers??

By MAT FRIEDMAN

The great bleacher mystery appears to have been solved. Only there wasn't any mystery in the first place, except how the whole thing started.

It all began last April, when the old bleachers were taken out of Kenan Stadium. The University, in standard procedure, put them up for sale to North Carolina's high schools and some were sold. Things were still quite peaceful.

In late August, however, Chapel Hill High School expressed an interest in renting or buying the old seats because 1000 were needed in its football stadium. But the price was too high and besides, the leftover bleachers were being used by the University on Navy Field and at the swimming pool. And that was that, or so it appeared.

Then someone (and no one in Chapel Hill seems to know who) accused the University of having treated the High School unfairly. He (or she, or they) said that the bleachers should have been offered for less or just given to the High School.

Anyway, whoever it was didn't seem to be very familiar with laws regarding North Carolina state property.

"Chapel Hill High never complained to us about the matter," says Chuck Erickson, the athletic director who seems to get blamed whenever there is no one else around to blame. "When the seats were put up for sale in April, very few people showed much interest. Chapel Hill High didn't show any until late August. I don't know what the dispute is all about. You simply can't give away state property. They put you in jail for that."

Superintendent of Schools Howard Thompson confirmed this. So did the High School's football coach, Robert Culton.

"The University has always been very good to us," says Culton. "When one of our boys is injured, the UNC trainers have always been glad to help out. If we need a piece of equipment they have always been happy to lend it to us. When old equipment is put up for sale, we always get first crack at it.

"This whole thing seems to have been built up out of proportion. We've always had a wonderful relationship with the University and I would hate to see it change."

"When the bleachers were put up for sale," says Dr. Thompson, "we turned them down because the price was too high. It was a standard state sale. As far as I know, that's all there is to it."

And as far as DTH knows, he's right.

Oh, and by the way, if anyone happens to come across 1000 cheap bleachers anywhere, call up Chapel Hill High and let them know. They still need them.

To Men's Residence Council

IDC Proposes Name Change

By KERRY SIPE

An even two-thirds majority vote of the Interdormitory Council Wednesday night, passed an amendment changing the name of the organization from the IDC to the Men's Residence Council. The bill is pending before the Student Legislature and is expected to be voted on by the student body in a November referendum.

The measure was passed as a token of the future revitalization of Residence Hall Administration. "We intend to change the entire concept of Residence Hall living," said Council President, Jerry Good, who left the chair to speak in favor of the bill.

Good said that the intramural appropriations bill endorsed a week ago is the first of a number of moves that will make Residence Hall living more attractive to the University student.

He expressed his hope that the present Residence Hall system would evolve into a Residence College system similar to those of the Ivy League schools.

Don Carson, author of the bill, said that "a complete change in the present image of the Men's Interdormitory Council is necessary if its purposes are to be accomplished."

"The dormitory men," he said, "lack the continuity of the fraternity social system. We want to give the dormitory a little social desirability."

Opposition to the bill was expressed by some council members on the grounds that the change in name would accomplish little significant good. Proponents for the bill argued that the IDC already has its reputation while the MRC has a reputation to build. "Nothing is ever accomplished without change," said Carson.

Carson said that the present student image of the Residence Hall was "just a place to take a shower and go to bed." It is the hope of the newly renamed Men's Residence Council that this image can be changed.

Dean of Men, William G. Long, recently gave his support to the measure. "The word 'dormitory,'" he said, "denotes a derogatory impression to the student. It is very much like the word 'barracks.'" Long said that it was the duty of the Council now, to "do more than change the name." He believes that the change is a "symbol of movement forward" in residence hall life.

Volume 72, Number 12 Friday, October 4, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Peace Marchers Visit Chapel Hill

We would have preferred to welcome the Quebec - to - Guantanamo "Peace Marchers" with open arms as they passed through Chapel Hill last night. But a strong awareness of reality prevented us from doing so.

We are, of course, nothing short of awed at the marchers' willingness to back up their convictions in such a personally strenuous manner.

However, we cannot escape the gnawing suspicion that in their zeal for peace, the marchers have neglected to realize why there is no peace.

The reasons, to be sure, are complex and confusedly intertwined, and we do not profess to know them all. But we do know that these reasons for the lack of a just peace have to do with a basic conflict in men's beliefs about how their lives, and the lives of their fellows, should be ordered; with a basic conflict in the very value which the proponents of the differing political systems assign to life itself; with a basic conflict in belief about the means that can properly be used to secure desired ends.

It could be that we ourselves are guilty of not realizing the value of having someone, somewhere, hewing unwaveringly to the ideal, and shouting about that ideal to all within earshot. This is the sort of thing that a fellow called Jesus did two thousand years ago, and look what He accomplished.

However, He was divine, or so the majority of us consider Him. And we are not; nor are the "Peace Marchers." Indeed, the only time we approach that storied state of being is when we properly use our most divine-like capacity, our mind. And using it in this case, properly we hope, tells us that the peace we all so ardently desire will not come simply because we all profess to want it.

Nor will it come by withdrawing Soviet troops and U. S. Marines from Cuba, as the "Peace Marchers" seem to believe. At least, not now anyway. When it comes to peace, all the nations of the world still resemble infants far too much to try such a one-shot step.

Still and all, the "Peace Marchers" deserve our sympathetic consideration, not our scorn. They, at least, are willing to do something about their convictions. That is more than can be said for many.

Cambridge, Md.: A Helluva Time To Stand On Principle

Of all the twists and turns our Civil Rights revolution has taken in its course toward righting a national wrong, none is more disappointing than the failure of Cambridge, Md., Negroes to come to their own assistance.

Largely at the behest of their leader, Mrs. Gloria Richardson, who felt equal service in places of public accommodation to be a constitutional right and therefore not a fit matter for referendum, Cambridge Negroes stayed away from the polls in large numbers.

The Public Accommodations law thus failed of passage, 1,994 to 1,730—a difference of 274 votes.

If this were a perfect world, or anything approaching that state of affairs, we could hardly fault Mrs. Richardson's stand on principle. But it is not, and her stand has hindered, not helped, the great drive for equality in which the vast majority of Americans are increasingly participating.

Perhaps the saddest part of the whole sorry episode, however, is the fact that the much-maligned white moderate—in this case, of Cambrige—was let down with a jolt.

Great numbers of those white moderates voted for the law, else the vote would not have been so close.

Mrs. Richardson has done much good in Cambridge. Now she has done much harm, not only in Cambridge, but everywhere else where people are closely divided on this crucial matter of racial equality.

What will happen to Cambridge now, we have no idea. We fear the worst. But our hope is that what has happened there will be an object lesson for other civil rights leaders, so that Mrs. Richardson's costly mistake is not repeated.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Campus Affairs
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Counterattack

Busy with their microscopes and slide rules, scientists don't often take time out to rebut charges about their scientific activity. But when they do, they're usually pretty convincing.

Of late, for example, a groundswell of noisy charges about wasteful government research spending has been coming from scientifically ignorant Congressmen.

Now, however, a noted Dartmouth biologist and kidney expert, Dr. Roy P. Forster, has put the matter into perspective.

Said the news story, in essence, about Dr. Forster's speaking visit to UNC:

Sometimes people don't understand why scientists perform expensive experiments with rats, frogs and other animals, but some simpler forms of animals have certain bodily functions that are kin to the same things in men. Studying these animals and organisms is not only easier, it often makes dangerous experimentation on human beings unnecessary.

Thus kidney research on the tadpole, for example, may end up saving your life.

Concluded Dr. Forster: "It is the unawareness of the practical value of these preparations that provokes such gales of derisive laughter when professional know-nothings in public office read to the backwoods constituents selected titles of government-sponsored research projects to point out the essential silliness of scientists and the irresponsible waste of taxpayers' money that comes from supporting their frivolities."

Letters To The Editors

Students Speak Out - And How!

Editors' note—All letters to the Editors must have the name of the writer and his or her address with the letter. In case the author does not want his or her name printed, The Tar Heel would be glad to comply. However, we must have your name.

Hat In Church?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Wednesday's Daily Tar Heel contained a letter from Otelia Connor in which she stated that women wear some head covering in church." The Episcopal church makes no requirements in this area and I defy Mrs. Connors to document her statement. Mrs. Connor should perhaps spend more of her Sundays in church, and less of them in Lenoir Dining Hall. I am sure that she would there find "the doors opened" for her.

Jon Arterton
108 Graham

C'mon Otelia!!

Editors, The Tare Heel,

Did you read Time this summer and discover Oteliaquette? Did you read the Daily Tar Heel Wednesday, October 2nd, and if you did, did you notice in Otelia's editorial that she said, "They had improved . . . in every way except their table manners."

On July 4, 1963, I went to Lenoir Hall for lunch. Upon entering the main dining hall, I noticed Otelia Connor sitting down to eat. I realize that it is impolite to watch someone eating, but when I noticed Mrs. Connor, I was fascinated to the point of staring at her. She began cutting her ham into many small pieces, then with the fork still in her left hand and upside down she took one bite. She put the fork down just long enough to switch hands before she put her switch hands before taking the next bite. After she devoured several pieces of ham she put her fork down, picked up a piece of cornbread, broke it, dipped one end into her coffee (or hot tea), and placed it in her mouth. She did not have her elbows on the table, but does she practice etiquette?

Reginald Harrison Jr.,
Delta Upsilon House

Editorial Critic

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I admire the straightforward way in which you have defended your views on Civil Rights. In the face of resolute opposition you have not hedged, and to the charge of inconsistency you have responded in kind. Specifically, the Oct. 1 editorial rebuttal was as vehement as it was inspired. Additionally however, it was as unconvincing as it was unprecedented.

By appealing to the Christian ethic, and advocating its forceful application under law to all spheres of commerce and business, you jeopardize the very freedom of association which the Constitution is designed to protect. Instead of turning to constitutional principles—principles which were framed by Christian men with a regard for the separation of church and state—you merely invoke the authority of the Bible, and would give that authority teeth with government action.

Consequently, if you can so justify forced association in business, why not extend it to make other acts of discrimination unlawful? Would you really be in favor, for example, of a compulsory, integrated fraternity quota system?

Under the Public Accommodations Title, the only 'right' left an innkeeper would be the 'freedom' to obey or disobey the law: if he should choose the latter, that is, continue to discriminate, he would be subject to federal injunction, fine, or imprisonment without the benefit of trial by jury. This is a provision in the law you champion. Your position is, at best, a most able defense of the largely indefensible.

John H. Atkins
17 Old West

A Hideous Plot

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I don't expect anybody'll pay much attention to this here letter because its about the dirty commies and since North Carolina is a dirty commie police state and a satellite of Cuba most people are afeared to criticize the commies. Terry Sanford and Chancellor Aycock both take orders from Larry Phelps.

Also I heard the other day that colored students have taken to carrying concealed pistols now. I'm gonna carry a gun with me from now on to protect myself frum them. Larry Phelps and President Friday have got a commie cell in the basement of the Law school and the colored students go out at night and catch white girls and lock em up behind the bars of thet commie cell and brainwash them and worse.

Also there have been plenty of mysterious deaths recently. Nine Whupples, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of these Whupples were murdered by commies: everybody knows thet commics hate Whupples. I writ a book about this whut is on sale at John Carswhupples's drugstore.

The last thing I want to say is thet I wuz walking down the path behind Spenser Dorm the other evening and I heard whispers coming from the bushes in the Arberetum. I think it wuz some commies having a secret underground meeting. I think we ought to get the F B.I to investigate the Arberetum

ery Whupple

The Girls Too!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

In the Sunday edition of the Daily Tar Heel, there appeared a column and picture entitled, "The Ungentlemanly Gentlemen," which dealt with the rude behavior on the part of University students at the Hootenanny held last Friday night. This article was severely critical of the manners of Carolina Gentlemen while they were entering the Hall. The article gained impetus as it told of girls being shoved, jabbed, and trampled by unruly "gentlemen."

I was at the Hootenanny and must differ slightly with the general idea presented by the editorial. This is my argument: I, along with other male Carolina students, stopped on at least one occasion to permit a girl to get through. I did this for two reasons (1) hopefully, our parents have taught us some manners, and (2) the concept of a Carolina Gentleman is very real to me. The rub came when, as I had stopped and was waiting for this girl to enter the door, another female, her head high in the air, rushed through the crowd, pushing the first girl's face against the edge of the door, and jabbing several people with one elbow while the other elbow, which held a heavy handbag, used its instrument as a "lethal" weapon. My point is that gentlemen behave in a gentlemanly fashion when ladies demand it. Until girls act like ladies, certainly don't believe boys are all going to be chivalrous. And I think Otelia will agree!

To be sure, not all the ladies were behaving like the she-devil described; but then again, not all boys had completely released their social graces as the editorial so implied.

Frank Hodges

HELP!!

Editors, The Tar Heel

What is this "Carolina Gentlemen" business? My peers in the lower ranks of the student body would, I think, like to live up to the title of a "Carolina Gentleman," that is, one of some high standards of behavior. We look to the gentlemen that have been to Carolina before us for guidance. From them we see that the ability to drink and/or "act" drunk, the bragging of using only the minimal amount of time for study, the condemnation of everything, the constant dissatisfaction, the professed maturity and expressed immaturity, and the open disrespect for authority is the "Carolina Gentleman's" way of life.

Even in high school, I do not think I've seen as childish a display as that which took place at the Hootenanny with the near riot at the front door and the paper battle. Or, what about the free-flicks, in which each and every imperfection is met with hisses and boos; this type of conduct does not exist at the movie houses on Franklin Street. Or, "I hate this professor or that instructor." Or, "Why should I be quiet? I'm not studying."

"Yes," you say, or "No," you say, but during orientation we were told that we must detine and redefine gentleman as we see fit. We have done this with the help of the civilized world: but somehow, the definition of gentleman is different here on campus.

So I make this appeal to my older and wiser superiors: "Help! What is a Carolina Gentleman?"

John Moulton
239 Ehringhaus

A Bad Problem

Editors, The Tar Heel,

There is a problem on this campus which outranks all others. The "gag law" is nothing compared to it. It is even more important than one's decision on joining the Student Peace Union and having one's allowance cut off or not joining and having a guilty, if solvent, conscience. The problem is, how does one maneuver through the mob trying to go from class to class.

If you are one of those uncoordinated, flabby weaklings, this problem is especially acute, as I know from experience. There are, however, ways to overcome this basic disadvantage. For the benefit of freshmen, tranfers, and other interested people, I would like to list them:

First of all, try to get behind a football player. For sheer speed, nothing can match following in the wake of a football player. This method of transportation does have its disadvantages, though. Stumbling over the mangled bodies can be hard to one's stomach and football players seem to meet —and stop to talk to—an uncommonly large number of their friends. Naturally, this could strand you in the middle of Polk Place and cause you to miss many classes. This method is really advisable in emergencies only.

Secondly, fall in behind an attractive, but aloof, coed. Although she moves much more slowly than a football player, there is seldom, if ever, the chance of her stopping to talk to anyone. One moves slowly, but steadily, gets to class promptly, and has an unexcelled view. Fortunately, Carolina abounds with aloof coeds, so one never has to wait long for transportation.

The best way to get from building to building is to follow Otelia Connor. Mrs. Connor moves through crowds rapidly and can maneuver well. The primary advantage in following her is that no one ever steps in front of her; no one dares. There are disadvantages: She is rarely going in the right direction and also has a habit of stopping to talk to almost anyone. The advantages, however, far outway the disadvantages.

One word of warning: never, but never, follow either pregnant women or old women. They, out of necessity, move slowly and cannot maneuver well. More than that, they are the ones most likely to be trampled in the stampede. If they are trampled, stepping over them is difficult, awkward, and messy, as a rule.

If all else fails (that is, if one sees neither football players, aloof coeds, nor Mrs. Connor), walk in the street. The street is quicker, safer and the police are there to protect you. Good luck.

Jim Jordan
601 Craige

A Challenge

Editors, The Tar Heels,

Hunting for a conservative professor on this campus is very much akin to the proverbial search for the needle in the haystack. So it is in searching for a conservative student. Well, the other day Mr. John Shaffer found his needle snuggled safely in the haystack of the Daily Tar Heel. With a consuming sense of civic duty, he placed his foot directly upon his new discovery.

Needless to say, this position is most uncomfortable for me, the needle. And since Mr. Shaffer was so public-spirited as to point out to me the error of my ways, I should like to extend to him the opportunity to bring to others on campus "the truth". Accordingly I should like to ask him to address the un-enlightened at a time and place of his choice, in conjunction with a debate (there's always a hitch, isn't there).

It is gratifying to know, all joking aside, that there are students who are sufficiently interested to respond to the letters of others with whom they disagree. However, due to the size and complexity of our subject it would be ludicrous to attempt full explanation via our esteemed public newspaper. It is with this feeling, and the urging of several conservative friends, that I address this challenge to Mr. Shaffer.

Warren C. Ogden, Jr.
213 Hillcrest Dr.
Carrboro

The Good Side

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Since arriving on campus, I have read the "Letters to the Editor" column every day. At first I thought that many of the gripes aired in the column were certainly justified, having experienced many trying situations myself. Certainly every person on this campus has had at least one experience which he could call unpleasant.

What seems to me to be the appalling factor is that not once have I read one article of praise in this column. Therefore:

The minute I arrived on campus, I was impressed by the beauty of the buildings, the neatness of the lawns, and the impression of academic quiet which prevails on campus. My first meeting was one with a student in the basement of Ehringhaus who took time from unloading his own car to show me where my room was, and helped me to carry my luggage up, who helped me to get the key to my room, and told me when the cafeteria would open, plus helping me to obtain a map of the campus. Not only that student, but also every other person has been more than helpful in the process of "orientating" one very lost freshman.

Now that I am nearly sure where I am most of the time, I can begin to see the friendliness which permeates every person on campus. Given, not every person is a class-one-true-blue friend but, those who are not (as the people in the Book Exchange, as mentioned earlier) are more than balanced out by those who will go out of their way to help, to advise.

With the hope that I can be half as friendly as those I have met, I end Constructive Letter No. 1, and ask other freshmen to contribute their good opinions about Chapel Hill.

James W. Sturges
530 Ehringhaus

A Compliment?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

My sincere gratitude goes out to the North Carolina General Assembly for envoking the "Speaker Ban". You see, I have not learned the advantages of our way of life as opposed to the Communist way. And so, being a very docile individual, my mind might be led toward this evil system.

I would also like to recognize the wonderful efforts of the Attorney General of this state because his attitudes so clearly resemble the "backwoods" attitudes I want so much to adhere to, but might not be able to if any evil Communist were to talk to me.

Alan Bridgeman
118 Everett

Scratch One . . .

Subscription Manager, Tar Heel,

Thank you for The Tar Heel. I have enjoyed it. Please cancel my subscribtion.

Mary McIver Stanford
Redfields, R. I.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

Good Behavior? Avenge Us Otelia, In Our Hour Of Need!

EASTER VACATION CRUISE

NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
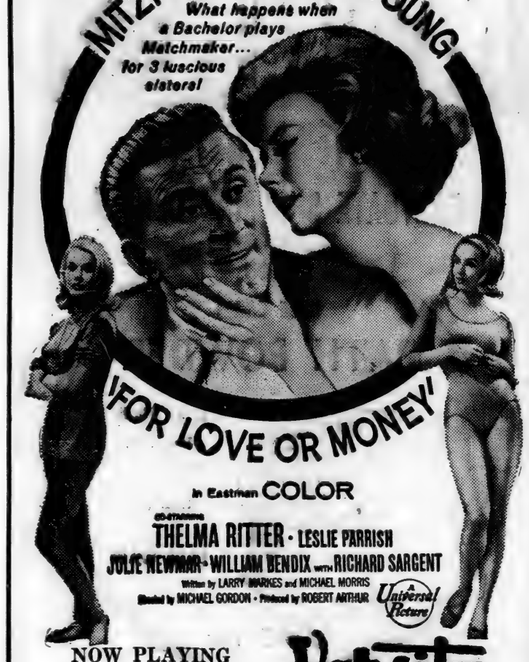
PHONE 942-4151

He was hired to Make them ... but not to Date them !!!
KIRK DOUGLAS
MITZI GAYNOR · GIG YOUNG
What happens when a Bachelor plays Matchmaker... for 3 luscious sisters!



'FOR LOVE OR MONEY'
In Eastman COLOR
co-starring
THELMA RITTER · LESLIE PARRISH
JOLIE NEWMAR · WILLIAM BENDIX with RICHARD SARGENT
Written by LARRY MARKES and MICHAEL MORRIS
Directed by MICHAEL GORDON · Produced by ROBERT ARTHUR
A Universal Picture
NOW PLAYING
Shows at: 1:00
3:00 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00
Varsity

Campus Calendar

TODAY

Carolina Forum — 4 p.m., Woodhouse Room.

Wesley Foundation — 6 p.m., Supper, Wesley House. Call 942-2152 for reservations.

Student Government Coop Committee Organizational meeting — 2-5 p.m. Grail Room.

Baptist Student Union Supper and Study Group — 5:45 p.m., Rev. Jim Cansler, "Foundations of Faith."

Yack Photos — 1-6 p.m., Basement of GM, for Freshmen. Seniors, 4th year med. students will have a $1.00 late fee.

Class Ring Sale — 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Lobby of the Y Building, sponsored by the Grail.

Hillel House — 8 p.m., Services for the festival of Succos. Collation and social hour following.

Opera Workshop — 7:30 - 9:30 p.m., Hill Hall, Director Dr. Wilton Mason.

Lecture — 8 p.m., 111 Murphey Hall. "The Reception of William Faulkner in Europe," by Dr. Heinrich Straumann of the University of Zurich, Switzerland.

Free Flick — Wild River, 7:30 and 9 p.m., Carroll Hall. Admission by ID card only.

Combo Party — 8 p.m., the Monzas, GM.

FUTURE

Physical Therapy Club — 6:30 p.m., Mon., Clinic Auditorium of NCMH. Speaker Robert Lasiter of N. C. Society of Crippled Children and Adults.

Dix Hill Committee, YM-YWCA —3 p.m., Tues., Roland Parker II, GM.

Student Government Interviews— 2-5 p.m., 210 GM, starting next week.

Student Peace Union — 3 p.m., Sun., 203 Alumni. Chairman John Dumne will review "The Limits of Defense" by Arthur Waskow. A discussion will follow.

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m. Sunday Common Meeting in basement, University Methodist Church. Discussion of "Faith, Doubt, and Reason."

Graduate Student's Mixer — Sun. Temple Emanuel, 713 N. Greene St., Greensboro. Combined graduate mixer for UNC and Woman's College Hillel.

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Chapel of the Cross Parish House. Mr. Jerrold Baab will lead discussion and criticism of recording of the "Jazz Mass."

CLASSIFIED ADS

NEEDED: FOURTH MAN FOR apartment near campus. For information call 942-6840.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Trucks — Trailers

50' BY 10' SKYLINE MOBILE Home with 10' by 24' room attached; fireplace; air conditioning; washer; furnished or unfurnished; located at edge of town on private lot; good neighborhood. Call 968-5811 before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

REPAINTED GOLF BALLS
39c each or
$4.50 dozen
PLASTIC PINT FLASKS
$1.49
(Also Available in ½ Pints)
ROSES
VALUE - VARIETY
109 E. Franklin

After Six Tuxedos
For Rent
Varley's
MEN'S SHOP

Important Notice
Students, you'll save money if you buy it at Grants.
Everything, Man!
W. T. GRANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

LAW STUDENTS
There is a clump of old law texts —mostly case books — in our Old Book Feature Case.
They look sad to us, but maybe you'll like them. At any rate, they're cheap.
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

(Advertisement)

BEAUTY NOTES

BY ALICE STONE

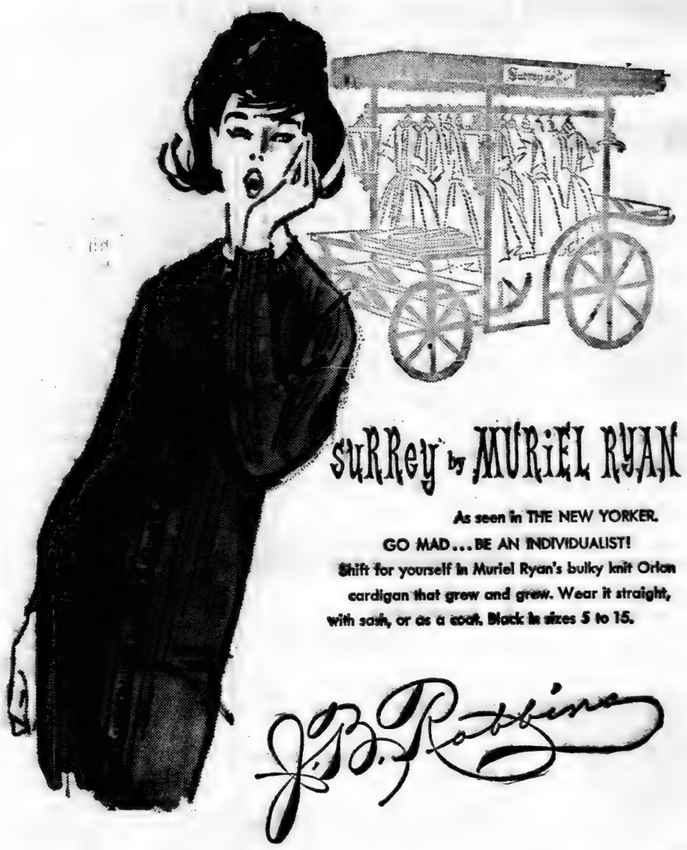
Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon announces a new staff member: Faye Pittman of Selma, N. C., a recent graduate of Virginia Farrell Academy of Advanced Hair Styling in Detroit, Mich. She has had 16 years experience in hair styling and beauty techniques.

Woman's preoccupation with beauty is as old as mankind itself.

At any rate, we are going to look into the business of beauty in the weeks ahead. We wil lsee how the search for bauty has progressed down through the centuries and take a quick look at some of the artful dodges that have graced this popular feminine pursuit. We hope you will like our efforts.

We hope, too, that you ladies will think of Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon in most matters pertinent to personal beauty and good grooming. As far as the hair is concerned our stylists are the best this side of Hollywood. Whether your need is for a simple manicure, a tint, or hair styling of uncommon charm, you can't go wrong at Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin Street —Phone 942-4355.

THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL HINT: To give cut flowers a little added life, vases should be scrubbed now and then with hot soap or detergent suds. Follow with a thorough hot water rinsing.



surrey by MURIEL RYAN
As seen in THE NEW YORKER.
GO MAD... BE AN INDIVIDUALIST!
Shift for yourself in Muriel Ryan's bulky knit Orlon cardigan that grew and grew. Wear it straight, with sash, or as a coat. Black in sizes 5 to 15.
J. B. Robbins

Progress in the Bell System...

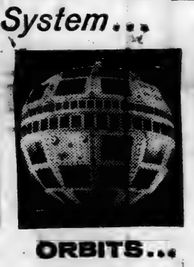
SWIMS...



ORBITS...

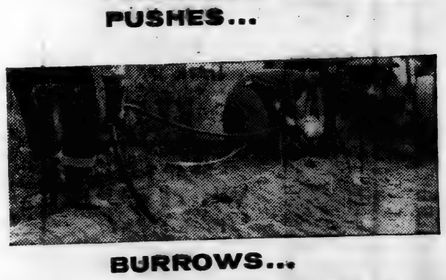
BEAMS...

FLASHES...

PUSHES...

PULSES...

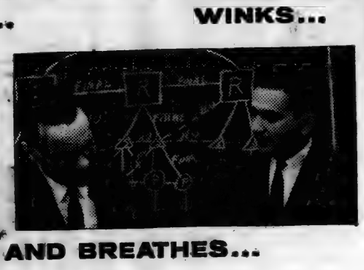
TALKS...



BURROWS...

WINKS...

BLINKS...



AND LIVES AND BREATHES...

Progress takes many shapes in the Bell System. And among the shapers are young men, not unlike yourself, impatient to make things happen for their companies and themselves. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing phone business.

Bell Telephone Companies

ONLY 6 MORE DAYS
OCT. 10 — Deadline for Enrolling in

STUDENT ACCIDENT & SURGICAL INSURANCE PLAN

FULL 12 MONTH COVERAGE — $8.00

Call 942-4358 or See

George L. Coxhead
Over The Dairy Bar

We are pleased to have been selected again by the University Administration and the Student Government to provide this protection for the students of the University.

THE PILOT
Pilot Life Insurance Company
Greensboro, North Carolina

New Arrivals Daily NOW AT LAST
Peter, Paul & Mary Vol. 3 — 30% Off
ALL LP's REDUCED 30-40-50%
emp's
Franklin St.
Chapel Hill

WAKE TICKETS

Students and date tickets to the Wake Forest football game are now on sale at the Woollen Gym ticket office. Individual student tickets are $2, and date and guest tickets are $4.

Pipes

COMOY—DUHILL—GBD

Tobaccos

Tobacco Jars

Pouches

Smoker's Requisites

Varley's Mens Shop

Since 1938

Imported Cars Ltd.

301 East Main St.

Carrboro, N. C.

SAAB

1963 — Elva Courier .... $2600

1962 — Alfa Romeo Sprint ..... $2500

1960 — Triumph TR-3 .... $1325

1961 — M. G. Sedan ..... $1200

1960 — Renault 4CV ..... $450

1959 — Vauxhall ..... $700

1960 — VW Panel Truck .. $1000

1961 — MGA—Perfect .... $1500

imported cars ltd.

PHONE 942-7151

DIRTY CAMEL BLAZER

A new fall coloring in our traditional worsted flannel blazer — Rustic Dirty Camel. Tailored for a natural fit with patch and flap pockets, center vent and brass buttons. 45.00.

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin

Counter Attack!

JOHNNY REMEMBERED HOW!

| LOS ANGELES | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Wills, ss | 4 | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| Gilliam, 3b | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| W. Davis, cf | 4 | 1 | 2 | 2 |
| T. Davis, lf | 4 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| F. Howard, rf | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| b-Fairly, rf | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Skowron, 1b | 4 | 1 | 2 | 1 |
| Tracewski, 2b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Roseboro, c | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Podres, p | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Perranoski, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 34 | 4 | 10 | 4 |

| NEW YORK | AB | R | H | RBI |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kubek, ss | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Richardson, 2b | 4 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Tresh, lf | 4 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Mantle, cf | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Maris, rf | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Lopez, rf | 3 | 1 | 2 | 0 |
| E. Howard, c | 4 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| Pepitone, 1b | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Boyer, 3b | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Downing, p | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| a-Bright | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Terry, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| c-Linz | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Reniff, p | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 34 | 1 | 7 | 1 |

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Los Angeles | 200 | 100 | 010—4 |
| New York | 000 | 000 | 001—1 |

| PITCHING | IP | H | R | ER | BB | SO |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Podres | 8 1/3 | 6 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 4 |
| Perranoski | 2/3 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Downing | 5 | 7 | 3 | 3 | 1 | 6 |
| Terry | 3 | 3 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 0 |
| Reniff | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

W—Podres 1-0; L—Downing 0-1

MEDICAL STUDENTS!

There's a clump of back-number medical texts in our Old Feature Case.

If they interest you, they're cheap!

The Intimate Bookshop

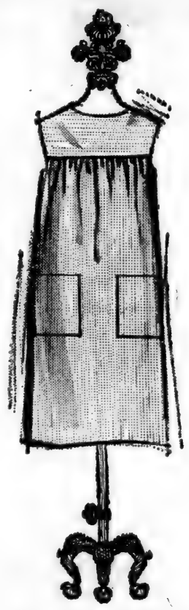
119 East Franklin Street

Open Till 10 P.M.



Corduroy Pouf

There's something distinctly royal about the flowing movement, the sweep, the calm, the stateliness of VILLAGER'S Pouf in corduroy. Wide-wale corduroy, glowing like a jewel. Sleeveless, leaving it wide open to a choice of shirts and blouses beneath. Variable sash. Tawny, Madder Red, Blewter, Brolive, or Champagne. Sizes 6 to 16.

The Villager

Town & Campus

Maris Gets Arm Bruise; OK, Though

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rightfielder Roger Maris of the New York Yankees suffered a muscular bruise on the left arm that forced him from the game in the third inning yesterday, but the Yankee physician said he would be ready to play again Saturday.

Maris was hurt when he lunged into the wire fence along the right field foul line while chasing Tommy Davis' third inning triple.

Frosh Are 4-1 Winners

By ETADIN MOLADNU

Freshman John Loud scored four times here yesterday as UNC's soccer Tar Babies thrashed Virginia, 5-0.

The easy win was the eighth straight over a two-year period for a UNC rookie booting team. Carolina won seven consecutive matches last year.

Loud, center forward in Carolina's offensive attack, was credited with nine shots on goal in this opening contest. Left Inside Jack Writer tallied the other score on seven attempted shots.

Coach Bill Schieffelin praised both his defense and offense for its outstanding play.

"Our offensive ball - handling was excellent," said Schieffelin. "The boys took advantage of their many scoring opportunities pretty well. But if we had followed our shots better, we could have scored about five more goals."

UNC was given 35 shots by the official scorekeeper while the mediocre Virginia team got only five shots on the Carolina goal.

The Tar Babies' next start will be against Appalachian State on Thursday, Oct. 17.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| UNC | 2 | 2 | 1 | 0—5 |
| UVA | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0—0 |

at VILLA TEMPESTA

Vocalist – Guitarist

MARTHA MUNDFORD—Friday Evening

FOREST COVINGTON—Saturday Evenings, Sunday afternoon

LUNCH DINNER

Reservations — 942-2266

1213 E. Franklin Street

GOING TO SEE YOUR GIRL THIS WEEKEND?

TAKE HER

U.N.C.

STUFFED ANIMALS

BEER MUGS

PENNANTS

Ledbetter Pickard Stationers

HIS CODE WAS TO SNARE Everything

BIG-BOLD-BOB MITCHUM IS ON A- RAMPAGE

TECHNICOLOR

with Elsa MARTINELLI · Jack HAWKINS a SEVEN ARTS Production from WARNER Bros.

Produced by WILLIAM FADIMAN · directed by PHIL KARLSON · screenplay by ROBERT L HOLT and MARGUERITE ROBERTS from novel by ALAN CALLOW

OPENS TODAY

Carolina

Shows at: 1:00 - 2:56 - 4:52 - 6:48 - 8:44

SOON: LESLIE CARON IN "THE L SHAPED ROOM"

UNC Analysis—3

Wake: Must Game

By JIM HICKEY
UNC Head Coach

Well, tomorrow night we play Wake Forest and I think it's pretty obvious to everybody that this is one we've got to win. But despite Wake's showing in its first two games, it's not going to be easy.

The always play a little harder against Carolina teams, whether it's football, basketball or ping pong. And they've got this new fellow (quarterback Karl Sweetan) who missed most of the first two games because of a hand injury. I understand he can really throw the ball. We already know he's a good punter. He showed that against Virginia Tech.

One thing we do know about Wake Forest that we didn't know about Virginia or Michigan State is the kind of defense they use. We know their basic defensive pattern and it would probably be to their disadvantage more than ours if they changed it. Sure they'll have some different alignments, but the basic pattern will stay the same.

Wake Forest has a good-sized line, but I don't believe their speed is quite as good as ours. Certainly they're no quicker.

Concerning our own personnel, John Hammett, Hank Barden and possibly Tommy Ward will all be unable to play Saturday night. Joe Robinson has moved into the tight end slot in place of Hammett and Ronnie Jackson will start at wingback, replacing Ward. I had planned to start Eddie Kesler at fullback anyway. He's our No. 1 man there, but has been troubled with all kinds of injuries. Barden did a good job in his place, but I feel that Kesler is really ready to go now.

John Hill has replaced Vic Esposito at right tackle. He's been playing better ball all around both as a blocker and as a defensive man. Esposito just hasn't been playing as well as he should.

Lady Milton Designers' Unlimited!

Designers' heaven is the shopping excitement awaiting all our Lady Milton patrons who enjoy the challenge of creating their own ensembles. Our skirts and shirts are made to Milton's own exacting specifications and designs, allowing you to be the prime designer of your casual costumes. Shirts from 5.95 and skirts from $7.95

LADY MILTON SHOP

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Intramurals

By DAVE ETHRIDGE

Ed Daw of Ehringhaus and Vance Barron, running as an independent, won the Intramural Department's open and novice division cake races, respectively yesterday.

Due to an official scorer's mistake, Ruffin's great 1-0 forfeit victory over Graham Wednesday was incorrectly printed as a Graham win.

YESTERDAY'S SCORES

4:00

Zeta Psi 19 Kappa Alpha 0.
Sigma Nu 27 Sig Ep 0.
Phi Delt 46 PiKa 0.
DKE 1 Phi Gam 0 (forfeit).
Valachi 43 McClellan 7.

5:00

ZBT 14 Beta 6.
Chi Psi 13 Phi Kap 12 (overtime).
DU 17 Pi Kap Phi 6
Kappa Sigma 26 Pi Lamb 0.
Lambda Chi 14 AKPsi 0.

Natural Shoulders A Traditional Suit Do Not Make

This is the all-important starting point, but to this add the difference-telling details that have enhanced Milton's own "Old School Traditional" model. Namely, the soft narrow lapels, proper rounding of the shoulders, just the right amount of body taper, giving you added smartness without sacrifice of comfort. Our new fall collection are in this smarter more flattering model.

Complete range of tempting fall wearables from $60.00, vested $70.00.

The only other Cupboards that can offer you the vast and choice assortment of "Old School" are Milton's other three Cupboards in Atlanta (2) and Dallas.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Sanitized® for Hygienic Freshness.

This Look of Elegance Can Be Yours

All it takes is you and any one of the impeccably tailored suits From THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL. THE HUB has the most complete selection of fine suits in a wide range of sizes including shorts, longs and extra longs. This is the time to buy that new fall suit while the selections are the greatest. And remember at THE HUB you always find the most fashionable prices in town.

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Economical Living Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW

MOBILE HOME SALES

409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

16 TONS BREAKFAST

Choice of Juice
3 Hot Cakes, 2 Eggs (Any Style)
Choice of Bacon, Ham, or Sausage
Coffee or Tea
90c

MAXIMILIAN'S RESTAURANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

MANN'S DRUG STORE

EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

SUTTON BLUE CARRI BATH POWDER

In All Plastic Box With Fluffy Lamb Wool Puff

$1.75 VALUE

99c BOX

Weekend Specials

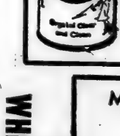
DISCOUNT PRICES

HAIR SPRAYS

$2.00 Value
Just Wonderful
99c

$1.50 Size
ADORN
99c

$1.98 Size
BRITE SET
77c



$1.19 Value
HALO HAIR SPRAY
77c

$1.49 Size
WHITE RAIN HAIR SPRAY
99c

YOU AWAYS SAVE WHEN YOU SHOP AT MANN'S

MAYFAIR PORTABLE TRANSISTOR TAPE RECORDER

Complete Nothing Else To Buy For Only $12.88

The DRIFTWOOD CLUB

Live Music Friday Night — The Villagers with a Big Hootenanny

A NICE PLACE TO BRING A DATE!

Under New Management

(3 Miles West From Durham On Hwy. 70)

Saturday Night The MONZAS (Live Combo)

(Open Every Thur.-Fri.-Sat. Nights – $1.00 Cover Charge)

The DRIFTWOOD CLUB

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

13

The Daily Tar Heel

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1963 | United Press International Service

The Speaker Ban: II

By HUGH STEVENS

(This is the second in a series of three articles concerning the controversial ban bill passed this summer by the N. C. General Assembly.)

Within hours after the gavel had fallen on the 1963 session of the N. C. General Assembly, it was apparent that the speaker ban which had been sneaked past the legislature was not going to sneak past the citizens of the state.

The bill was passed on Tuesday, June 25 and defeated in a reconsideration effort on Wednesday. On Wednesday afternoon the University officials called the bill "injurious and unnecessary." That same day a group of legislators who opposed the bill went on record as dissenting from its passage. By Thursday morning the state's newspapers had informed the public.

The Greensboro Daily News, in an editorial entitled "Trifling With Academic Liberties," said the bill was objectionable "on every parliamentary, educational and constitutional count." The manner in which the bill was rammed through, it commented, "only mocked the legislative process."

"The issue is not whether Communists should be allowed to speak on state campuses. It is rather who is to decide whether they may speak or not," the paper continued.

Insult To Intelligence

The Charlotte News said the bill "insults the intelligence of North Carolina's collegians, to say nothing of the good judgment of those honorable and partiotic administrators of North Carolina's colleges."

An editorial appearing in 14 North Carolina newspapers said "the General Assembly followed a course much more characteristic of the Communists, themselves, than of a democracy."

Another widespread printed comment was that the law whittles away a little more at the personal and collective freedom of all of us," and that has been whittled down a lot."

Party Leaders

Bert Bennett, speaking "personally", and not as State Democratic Chairman, spoke out against the law on June 29.

"If it was a good bill, it should have been introduced earlier in the session, when there would have been a chance to debate it," he said.

"The fact that presidents of the state-supported colleges, and the University of North Carolina had no chance to be heard, is different from and contrary to North Carolina's way of doing things," he continued.

William Osteen, floor leader of the Republican delegation in the General Assembly, sided with Bennett. He termed the law "at least a beginning in the breakdown of our system of free speech."

College presidents also joined in the criticism of the bill. Dr. Leo Jenkins of East Carolina said the law "has one aspect that may well diminish the great advances made by our colleges in combatting hostile ideologies."

Meredith College President Carlyle Campbell called the action "unnecessary."

Resolution

On July 19, the North Carolina Board of Higher Education met in Raleigh and released a unanimous resolution on the bill.

"The Act," it said, "represents a departure from the traditional freedom and responsibility delegated to the trustees, administrators and faculties to manage the educational affairs of our institutions."

"It limits the freedom of the University and the colleges to encourage their students and faculties to pursue colleges to encourage their students and faculties to pursue the truth in the atmosphere traditionally characteristic of colleges and universities worthy of the name," the resolution continued.

The resolution ended by suggesting that the bill be amended or repealed.

Across the state, from Murphey to Manteo, the ban became a favorite topic at dinner tables, in gas stations, and in virtually hundreds of civic club addresses. There were many who cried out not against the bill, but against the tactics used to pass it. Others said the idea was acceptable, but the bill itself was ambiguous and foggy.

Sen. Perry Martin said the bill was "dignifying Communism."

Most important perhaps, the issue began to boil down to one of "Communists" against "non-Communists." In poolrooms and in parlors, it was common to hear the argument that opponents of the bill were in favor of Communism, No matter what they said about "Academic Freedom."

The tension and anger boiled higher. The University trustees, meeting on July 8, agreed to comply with the law because it was on the books, but there was no doubt that they were displeased with both the letter and intent of the bill.

The state papers spoke against the bill, the University officials made their opposition known, and politicians of both parties told of their dissatisfaction. But in the homes and factories of the state, and in such organizations as the American Legion, they heard the word "Communism" and it blotted out reason and common sense. It was soon apparent that a long, hard battle was under way.

(In tomorrow's third installation of this series, the actions taken against the bill will be discussed.)

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

HB 1395

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED AN ACT TO REGULATE VISITING SPEAKERS AT STATE SUPPORTED COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

Section 1. No college or university, which receives any state funds in support thereof, shall permit any person to use the facilities of such college or university for speaking purposes, who:

(A) Is a known member of the Communist Party;

(B) Is known to advocate the overthrow of the constitution of the United States or the state of North Carolina;

(C) Has pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the constitution of the United States in refusing to answer any question, with respect to communist or subversive connections or activities, before any duly constituted legislative committee, any judicial tribunal, or any executive or administrative board of the United States or any state.

Sec. 2. This act shall be enforced by the Board of Trustees, or other governing authority, of such college or university, or by such administrative personnel as may be appointed therefor by the Board of Trustees or other governing authority of such college or university.

Sec. 3. All laws and clauses of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This act shall become effective upon its ratification.

Goldberg Scores Critics Of Court

By STU EIZENSTAT

Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg scored Americans who criticize the Court for its interpretation of the Constitution Thursday night at Greensboro.

Goldberg, in his last of three lectures delivered at Women's College, defended the Court's right of judicial review, saying it served the idea that we are a government of law working through men, not men without law.

He explained that judicial review is the right of state and federal courts to rule on the constitutionality of legislation, executive action or administrative action.

Pointing out that judicial review is of fundamental importance because the Constitution does not intertpret itself, he said that chaos would result if each individual were allowed to interpret the "law of the land" himself.

He asked that thought be given to the consequences which would arise if the reviews are discontinued.

He asked if we were ready to let the privacy of our home be decided by local law enforcement officers without judicial warrant or if business was ready to say the President could decide on what his powers were with regard to business.

Goldberg conceded the Supreme Court is not infallible, as he spoke but, he said, "The mistakes are solvable."

He claimed only men "who are trained in the law and ex parte," rather than the Congress or state legislatures can accurately interpret the Constitution.

"It is morally certain that if the community at large departs from the idea that we live under the law, then I don't believe judges can preserve the Constitution for the people," he said.

JOHN KNOWLES

John Knowles, UNC's writer-in residence, will have regular office in 312 Bingham for any students wishing to see him. He may be seen 2-4 Tuesday afternoon or by appointment.

TOMORROW

Hugh Stevens, the DTH speaker ban expert, concludes his series on the controversial law with a discussion of the action taken by various groups around the state.

The UNC-Wake Forest football game receives on-the-spot coverage from Honest John Montague, and Curry Kirkpatrick combines with the wire machine for highlights from the third World Series game.

Chancellor Committee To Meet With Friday

Sixteen Members Expected To Attend First Meeting

The 17-member committee which will nominate three men for conscideration as the next Chancellor of the University will meet for the first time this morning at 10.

After the committee makes its three nominations, which is not expected for several months, Consolidated University President William C. Friday will nominate one of the three for final approval by the Board of Trustees.

William B. Aycock will end a seven-year tenure as Chancellor July 1, 1964. He will then return to his professorship in the Law School.

The main purpose of today's meeting is for the members to get acquainted with each other and to divide themselves into several sub-committees, Friday said.

The committees, members of the faculty and interested alumni will make suggestions as to who they would like to be the new Chancellor, he said.

The sub-committee will then eliminate some of these names and eventually the entire committee will present three names for Friday's consideration.

The committee will get together for an informal lunch at the Carolina Inn following their closed-door meeting today. All but one of the committeemen, Meade H. Willis Jr., are expected to attend.

Students in the University will also be given a chance to express their opinions and to participate in the recommendation procedure by having Student Body President Mike Lawler meet with the committee in its early deliberations.

Trustee members of the committee are Henry A. Foscue, High Point furniture manufacturer; R. D. McMillan Jr. of Red Springs, a lawyer and member of the General Assembly; T. Henry Redding, Asheboro textile manufacturer; and C. Lacey Tate of Whiteville, president of the Bank of Waccamaw.

Alumni members of the committee are Frank Daniels, general manager of the Raleigh News & Observer; C. Knox Massey of Durham, president of Knox Massey & Associates Advertising Agency; Hugh M. Morton of Wilmington, businessman and president-elect of the Alumni Association; State Sen. Lindsay C. Warren Jr. of Goldsboro; and Meade H. Willis Jr., vice-president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Company and immediate past president of the Alumni Association.

Faculty members on the com-

(Continued on Page Three)

NEW KITCHEN — Workmen hurry to finish setting up the new cooking facilities in the Rat to replace those lost in a fire last summer. The Rat will be open again on Monday.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Legislature Okays Mural Appropriation

By GENE WHISNANT

In a near-unanimous vote Thursday night, the UNC student legislature approved a bill to appropriate $2,219.50 for financing intramural managers.

The University has offered to jointly finance this program and will match this amount.

The Intramural Department and the Interdormitory Council will select twenty-three managers to be paid $193 during this school year. Each undergraduate dormitory will have one manager except Ehringhaus and Craige which will have 3 and 2 respectfully.

Clark Brewer, (SPP-DM I), and Donald Carson, (UP-DM II), introduced the bill since this year no money was made available to pay the managers.

Negotiations

The legislature recommended that "negotiations between the president and vice president of the Student Body, the president of the Interdormitory Council and the University Administration begin at once in order that the financing of this program on a permanent basis can be assured."

Donald Carson, (UP-DM II), introduced a bill for the Men's Interdormitory Council to rename it on Men's Residence Council.

The Men's Interdormitory Council, wishing to establish a complete new concept of residence hall living, voted in favor of the name change.

The council wants the change to be voted on by the student body in the fall election.

A bill to establish a Fine Arts

(Continued on Page Three)

Singed Rat Opens Monday--Finally

By SUE FRENCH

Last August 22 an apparently unexplainable fire gutted the Rathskeller, an institution familiar to UNC students.

Around 7:30 p.m., the cooks behind the grill at the Rat noticed an unusual amount of smoke and heat, but could find nothing wrong.

They continued cooking until the smoke drove them out. About 180 customers were eating at the time. They were quietly ushered out without panic. In fact, according to the owner, Ted Danziger, even with the fire department there, the people remained outside in hopes of returning to their dinners.

When the firemen pulled away the covering over the wooden rafters, they were faced by billowing smoke and a mass of charcoal. With the aid of fire extinguishers, and the sprinkler system, the blaze was finally doused.

Damage to the Rathskeller and to the Old World Gift Shop directly above it was extensive. The kitchen of the Rat was burned; the gift shop upstairs, also owned by the Danziger family, had 20,000 gifts severely damaged by smoke. Also damaged were several paintings in the Rathskeller.

When reopened Monday, the Rathskeller will have a somewhat different appearance. Danziger has installed all new equipment, including tables, booths and a new range. The kitchen, in a nw location, has been completely fire-proofed with one-inch thick asbestos—"The only kitchen in North Carolina so completely fireproofed," according to Danziger. In accordance with the wishes of the fire department, a new fire exit also has been installed.

Built in 1948 as a one-room addition to the Old World Gift Shop, the Rathskeller at first sold only beer. Gradually the enterprise grew into three rooms, with emphasis, as in the European tradition, more upon food than upon beer.

In Europe, the local rathskeller was always in the basement of the city hall for the council members to cool off in after heated debates. Invariably, since the rathskellr held such an important position in the community, it served the best food in town.

The Danziger family also operates the Ranch House and the Zoom-Zoom, which Danziger says will be expanded soon. The Old World Gift Shop re-opened Wednesday with a fire sale.

AAUP URGES REPEAL

GREENSBORO (UPI) — The local chapter of the American Association of University Professors at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro has adopted a resolution urging repeal of a 1963 law banning Communist speakers at state-supported institutions of higher learning.

It was learned today that the action came Monday following a recommendation of the group's executive committee.

Press Club Hears Creed

Dick Creed, news director of WSJS Radio and Television in Winston-Salem, will be the first of a series of monthly speakers at the UNC Press Club's meeting Monday, Oct. 7.

Creed will speak at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge at Howell Hall. The Press Club is comprised of journalism and non-journalism students and meets on the first Monday evening of each month.

Creed has been reporter, copy editor, and assistant city editor of the Winston-Salem Journal. His talk will include a description of the Winston-Salem newspapers' successful summer "intern" program.

Jonas, Rowe Resign Posts

Two University Party officers have submitted their resignations effective immediately, party chairman Mike Chanin announced Friday. Chanin said Dick Jonas, treasurer, and David Rowe, sergeant-at-arms, resigned because of heavy academic loads.

He said Sam Himes and Don Carson have been appointed acting treasurer and sergeant-at-arms by the UP Executive Committee until elections can be held. Chanin added that permanent replacements will be elected at a regular party meeting Oct. 15.

The University Party has six vacant seats in five legislative districts, Chanin said. They are: TM IV, two seats; TM I, TW, DM VII (Ehringhaus), DM I (Craige), one each.

Interviews will be held from 3-5 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday in the Wodhouse Room of GM.

He added, "The Party has six vacancies and we are anxious to have them filled with qualified people as soon as possible. Interested freshmen are especially encouraged to interview for these positions." John Ulfelder, legislative floor leader, will conduct the interviews.

Workshop Party

The Carolina Playmakers have scheduled a "workshop party" for Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

Larry Warner, advanced graduate student in the Department of Dramatic Art and coordinator of the theatre workshop this year, has invited all parties who have an interest in working on this program to attend.

He stressed the fact that the theatre workshop is not limited to Dramatic Art majors, but is open to anyone who has an interest in the theatre. Warner also stated that he would need people who are interested in the technical aspects of play production, such as scenery and lighting, as well as actors.

Although the workshop party will also serve as a preliminary organizational meeting, it will be primarily a social function. Refreshments will be served in the theatre Green Room, and entertainmnt will be provided on the Playmakers stage.

WUNC Begins 11th Year Monday With 'Spectrum'

WUNC Radio, the "Voice of UNC," will begin its eleventh year of broadcasting Monday.

"Spectrum" will be one of the new weekly features, beginning the season Monday at seven, with a show from the African Broadcasting Company entitled "Birthsuit." It will deal with pregnancy and childbirth in Africa.

Next week will be "The Soul of the White Ant," adopted from a book by Gene Marceis.

On Oct. 14, "Porgy and Bess" will be presented and on Oct. 21, "My Son the Nut" will be heard.

Starting Oct. 15, a weekly show, "Hootenany," with Kent Evans, will feature local talent from the campus area.

Every Thursday from 10:15 to 1115 p.m. Frost Branon will present "Hillside Jazz," featuring popular jazz.

Another new program this year is "The 11th Hour Showcase" from 11 to 12 which will feature repeats of some of the top shows of the previous week.

Project 60, from WBT in Charlotte, will present "Light in the Clouds" this week with John Charles McNeil.

WUNC will broadcast with an expanded schedule. Sunday through Friday the station will go on the air at 6 p.m. During the fall the station will go on the air at 1:30 Saturdays to carry the Tar Heel football game. It will remain on the air until midnight every night except Sunday.

Football Horrorscope

Mrs. Douglas M. Fambrough, Sweetness Incorporated of Graham Memorial's information desk, goes considerably to the left when picking football games.

Considering she doesn't do it too often, her liberal guesses are not surprising. But considering the scientific way she goes about it, they are.

The first female member of the DTH's distinguished guest staff had a ball on her excursion. "I'd pick ANYBODY over Duke," "I'll take Georgia Tech — I used to go to dances there." and "the military should be able to beat the churchmen (Air Force - SMU game)" were just a few of her candid comments of wisdom.

The Horroscope as a whole (mess) went down in humble defeat last week after a surprisingly strong first week. The combined record of the six selectors was 73-41-6, woefully below the 70-20 of the week before. The percentage to date is 143-61-6 for .696.

Representative of the failure was Al Kaplan's ridiculous 9-10-1. Kaplan, with Curry Kirkpatrick, had led the staff the first week. Kirkpatrick and Ron Logan tied for last week's top spot with 14-5-1.

Guest star Chief Arthur Beaumont turned in the third best card with a 13-6-1 while John Montague (who alone picked Kansas' victory over Syracuse) was 12-7-1 and Mat Friedman 11-8-1.

For the season, Kirkpatrick is on top with 27-7-1 followed by Logan's one-week total (14-5-1). Montague's mark and the combined guest record (featuring Beaumont and Journalism Dean Luxon are both 23-11-1.

| GAMES | KIRKPATRICK | MONTAGUE | FRIEDMAN | KAPLAN | LOGAN | FAMBROUGH |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Duke-Md. | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Duke | Md. |
| State-Clem | St | Clem | St | Clem | Clem | St |
| USC-Ga. | Ga | Ga | Ga | USC | Ga | Ga |
| UVA-VPI | VPI | VPI | VPI | VPI | UVA | UVA |
| Ky.-Aub. | Aub | Aub | Ky | Aub | Ky | Aub |
| Ga. Tech-LSU | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech |
| Ore-WVU | Ore | Ore | Ore | Ore | Ore | Ore |
| Rice-PennSt | PS | PS | PS | Rice | PS | Rice |
| Cal-Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Pitt | Pitt |
| HolyCr-Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra | Syra |
| Nwest-Illini | Ill | Nwest | Ill | Nwest | Nwest | Ill |
| OhioSt-Ind | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | Ind |
| Navy-Mich | Navy | Navy | Navy | Navy | Navy | Mich |
| Army-Minn | Minn | Minn | Minn | Minn | Minn | Army |
| N.Dame-Pur | ND | ND | Pur | ND | ND | ND |
| TCU-Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | TCU |
| AirF-SMU | AirF | AirF | AirF | AirF | AirF | AirF |
| Bay-OreSt | Bay | OreSt | OreSt | OreSt | OreSt | Bay |
| UCLA-Stan | UCLA | UCLA | Stan | UCLA | UCLA | UCLA |
| Iowa-Wash | Wash | Wash | Wash | Iowa | Wash | Wash |

Volume 72, Number 13 Saturday ,October 5, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1000, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

'Keep America Safe From Democracy' —Meaning Of The Speaker Ban Law

One of the great harms of the speaker ban law, which its proponents seem to be unable to fathom, is that intelligent, honorable and patriotic men may find the law so repugnant that they would refuse to speak on this campus because of it.

We are speaking of men who have never taken the Fifth Amendment and never advocated the overthrow of anything so small as a PTA refreshments committee; men who have not yet suffered that failure of spirit which characterizes the bill's defenders, but men whose faith in democracy and optimism in its future dictate that they answer no questions concerning their political affiliations because such questions have no business being asked in our country.

These men do not suffer from the narrowness of vision that has suffocated the courageous and venturesome spirit of democracy in our state legislature. These men are not given to acrimonious attacks on those who disagree with their views. They do not hold such a cynical view of man's motives that they are forced to equate' dissent with treason, and more, they are not afflicted by that debiliating fear which causes men to close their minds lest their basic convictions be ruffled.

The United tSates has been a leader in the world-wide struggle against governmental censorship of man's right to free speech. But, said Alexis De Tocqueville, writing in the 1830's, "I know of no country in which there is so little independence of mind and real freedom of discussion as in America." "In America the majority raises formidable barriers around the liberty of opinion . . ." and man at length yields, "overcome by the daily effort which he has to make, and subsides into silence, as if he felt remorse for having spoken the truth . . ."

This was the tyranny of the majority, but men have always been free to challenge this tyranny, and many brave men have. Now, however, our elected representatives have committed to themselves the care of our minds. Even if we wished this to be the case, we could not abandon ourselves so completely.

And if we are secure enough to realize that we do not know all there is to know, no arbitrary and ill-conceived law can possibly subdue the appetite for learning. Our convictions are strengthened by successfully meeting challenges to them, and the only way we can meet these challenges successfully is through knowledge of what we speak.

We might accuse our opponents, the law's defenders, of fearing that they hold their convictions so weakly as to be overcome when confronted by dissent, but this would be absurd. None of these men have the faintest notion that their beliefs could be shaken by any argument. Why then. do they believe that ours could? We would heartily deny we are less intelligent, less able to judge a matter on its merits, or more prone to be swayed by the emotional appeals of a foreign doctrine.

We too realize that we are in a life or death struggle with Communism. We fully recognize the devious tactics employed by the Communists, and are aware of the fact that college students are one of their prime targets, but we again deny that we provide any more fertile ground for the cultivation of communist ideology than does any other segment of our society. On the contrary, we would submit that if our University is left free to teach us to question, we will present a barren ground for Communist cultivation.

Political 3-Year-Olds And Peace Marchers

The great University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was represented Thursday night as a kindergarten for political three-year-olds and aspiring fascists .

The occasion was the Post Office meeting of the Quebec-to-Guantanamo "Peace Marchers." Bradford Lyttle, coordinator of the group, attempted to explain the motives behind the group's long trek. The major response he drew were three thrown eggs and a host of questions reflecting more political naivete than we have ever seen in one place at any given time.

It is to Mr. Lyttle's credit that he restrained himself and continued to attempt to reason with what was, for the most part, a very ignorantly hostile audience.

Said one girl standing nearby, as stupid question was followed by stupid question: "This sounds like South Carolina, not North Carolina."

To be sure, most of the questioners were sincere enough. Apparently most of them felt that Mr. Lyttle was unjustifiably downgrading America's majesty, and they owed it to their sacred honor to stand up and be counted.

And so they stood up, and we counted them. And we ended up with a sum very close to a big fat zero.

The point here is not whether Mr. Lyttle was right or not. We have already stated our feelings on his mission. The point is, rather, that here was a man practicing democracy in its very best sense and most of his audience couldn't have cared less.

They were too busy giving vent to gut reactions, and just plain showing off, to stop and assess his message and methods. Yet this is where he was vulnerable.

Thus, in coming out for Mother and Country so vehemently, our unreasoning classmates ended up confirming Lyttle's thesis that misunderstanding and little else is the central reason for a lack of peace, a thesis we seriously question.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Latin-American Showcase

Are The Russians Trying To Stall Our Moon Trip?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International

Some administration officials believe the Russians are deliberately trying to stall the U. S. Apollo program to land men on the moon before 1970.

The $20 billion Apollo project has been described as the most difficult ever undertaken. The schedule is tight. It was only in the summer of last year that a lunar flight plan was selected.

All of the big practical problems have yet to be solved and the solutions tested. Space engineers are convinced, however, that the project is feasible and that the difficulties can be overcome.

The greatest uncertainly, according to high space authorities, is whether Congress and the public will give Apollo the sustained support it must have if it is to succeed.

This is where the Russians come in. Until recently no one doubted that the Russians were headed for the moon and, eventually, the planets. The two great powers were in a race which each needed to win.

Then Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's famous radio astonomer, came back from a trip to Russia with a report that Soviet scientists were not sold on manned exploration of the moon.

He was quoted last July as saying "the Americans are racing themselves to the moon." Recently he told United Press International that he was not against the Apollo project. But he favored "an international effort to land a man on the moon."

* * *

Lovell kuoted Mstislav Keldysh, highly respected chief of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, as saying Russian scientists saw no current solution to the problem of protecting moon travelers from solar radiation and of getting them back from the moon.

Then on Sept. 1, in New York, Soviet academician A. A. Blagonravov reverted vaguely to the international cooperation theme. From the first this country has been in favor of international cooperation—which, considering the realities of space flight costs, means U.S.-U.S.S.R. cooperation.

Appearing before the United Nations on Friday, President Kennedy repeated his bid for a joint U.S.-Russian expedition to the moon. He said the nations at least should explore the possibility of "sending some day in this decade to the moon not the representatives of a single nation but the representatives of all humanity."

This echoed a previous plea for cooperative space ventures in which Kennedy said: "Together let us explore the stars."

That was in 1961. Since then, the United States and Russia have agreed upon a relatively modest program of cooperation involving weather and communications satellites and space mapping of the earth's magnetic field.

But at no time has the U.S.S.R. ever made any positive or official proposal for merging American and Russian programs to put men on the moon.

This would require on Russia's part the stripping away of military secrecy about Soviet rockets and spacecraft, and there has never been any sign that the U.S.S.R. has any intention of doing that.

It would also require the most meticulous engineering effort to mate U.S. and Soviet rockets and spacecraft, a job so difficult that space experts see no successful way of doing it.

Putting this country's Mercury spacecraft to the Atlas missile was a stupendous task, and it was not complicated by differences in language and measurement systems.

U. S. statesmen still hope that eventually spacecraft labeled U.S.-U.S.S.R. will fly in space. In the meantime, however, lunar exploration is entering midstream.

A change of horses now—or, rather, an intermarriage of spacecraft and rockets—would bring both Apollo and whatever program the Russians have to a standstill for years to come.

It also would relieve the pressure of Apollo on the federal budget. If it were certain that the Russians are not pushing a manned lunar project, for whatever civilian and military and world prestige rewards it might entail, then perhaps this country, it is argued, could afford to relax and spend less.

Among those who are convinced by all available indications that the Russians do have a strong lunar program going is Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the aNtional Aeronautics and Space Council. U.S. travelers to Russia, moreover, have come back with opinions exactly opposite Lovell's.

Welsh believes the Blagonravov-Keldysh remarks may well be part of a studied Soviet propaganda effort to drain the Apollo project of the urgency which has sustained it so far. In any case, he believes the United States must go to the moon, whatever Russia does.

Keldysh's reported statement of the unsolved problems of lunar travel does not impress U.S. space authorities. They have been living with these problems for some time. They are real, and Keldysh, as quoted by Lovell, did not come close to exhausting them.

But whatever Keldysh thinks, American space engineers are convinced that the problems can be solved. They are convinced that, with continued support by Congress, they can get some Americans on the moon before 1970 and bring them safely back.

WHUPPLE!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I jest want to say thet I'm sick of all them fellers like John D. Whupple and John Carswhupple and Dr. Georgewhupple who go around talking about Americanism and UnAmericanism. I think they're unAmerican themselves.

I think all white men are un-American commie furriners and, thet they ought to go back to Soviet England where they belong.

Chief Hialathawhupple

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

Desegregation Studied In Southern School System

By SUSANNA McBEE
The Washington Post

The story of the South's school desegregation can be told in terms of the little white girl in New Orleans who informed her Negro classmate she would not play with the Negro because her mother had forbidden her to.

But then, a few minutes later, she disobeyed her mother.

It can be told in terms of the teacher who realized she had accepted integration only after she raised her voice at a Negro girl, as she would have at any white student.

It can be told in terms of the strongly segregationist white boy who decided to better his grades after several Negroes entered his class because "I couldn't let them beat us out."

To those whites and Negroes who have lived through the initial difficulties of newly desegregated schools, the event is more than a political struggle or a social phenomenon; it is a series of individual experiences.

Some of these experiences and a few conclusions are recorded in a 25-page pamphlet, "The Desegregation of Southern Schools: A Psychiatric Study," by Dr. Robert Coles, a child psychiatrist of Atlanta.

The report, based on Dr. Coles' two-year study mainly in Atlanta and New Orleans, was published yesterday by the Southern Regional Council and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Dr. Coles also did research in Charlotte, Asheville and Burnsville, N. C.; Clinton and Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Little Rock, Arkansas.

He concluded that medically and psychologically, Negro students found their admission to white schools "stressful but not incapacitating."

Also, he said, none of the white children suffered medical or psychiatric damage from integration. "Regardless of their views they have all continued in school and graduated or been promoted."

Dr. Coles added, "Even the strongly segregationist children we have followed for two years have continued their studies without impairment."

Academically, it is better to start desegregation in the ifrst grades because attitudes in younger children are more flexible and educational disparities are fewer in the lower grades, he said.

The key question, however, was, "Do changes occur among the attitudes of the white and Negro children as they go to school together?" Dr. Coles indicated the answer is yes, but he added cautiously that "time renders any judgment dangerous indeed."

That happened in the case of a Negro girl in Atlanta who had gone through a year of "continued silence, isolation, occasional insult of word and even deed in a white high school.

On the last day of school she was approached by more than 15 classmates who asked her if they could autograph her yearbook.

"Dear Martha, . . . I'm sorry not to have been able to get to know you better, but that is just the way it turned out . . . I guess that you can understand why I haven't become better acquainted with you. But I personally think that I have missed a great opportunity."

Not all children, however, changed their views. Three of the white children studied retained their strong dislike of Negroes, and one Negro boy was quoted as saying of white students:

"I hate them, all of them, and when I can help it, I try to stay clear of them. They cause trouble whenever they can, and they're the ones who are dirty . . . I'm here to claim this school because it's as much ours as theirs."

The moral of Dr. Coles' report seems to be that both races have survived and made progress in integrated schools. Apparently, the "particularly enraged" person does not nurture his rage over integration, or at least the one who does is rare. "Too long have those who are committed to many customs and traditions besides racial ones allowed this one problem to dominate all others," the psychiatrist observed.

As with war, concentration camps, and pestilence, "life gathers itself together, often makes needed changes and goes on," he said.

Book Review

Talented Writer

By LINDA GRIFFITH

Reynolds Price, The Names and Faces of Heroes, New york, Atheneum, 1963.

Reynolds Price's second book, The Names and Faces of Heroes. is a collection of seven short stories, deceptively simple and moving tales of North Carolina. Some of these stories produce an effect like those of Eudora Welty, but Mr. Price has his own style and themes.

Most of these stories seem to some degree to be autobiographical. The author remembers vividly how it was to be a boy in his native North Carolina; he knows how awful it is to step on a snail with your bare feet, how a sensitive boy feels when he can't play baseball or make friends easily. In "Michael Egerton," he gives fresh insights into the emotions of a child of divorced parents, a child who now has two fathers. "Troubled Sleep" treats with sympathy and humor the fears of two cousins in the woods at night. One of the boys, Edward Rodwell, speaking about his cousin, says, "he never went out after dark without speaking The Shields non-stop—'Who' and 'Help' and whatever else made him breathe out because with his warm breath, he claimed, came enough germs to hold off anything the night could offer." The title story, also told by a young boy, discusses his search for a hero to serve as a pattern for his life.

In "Uncle Grant" Mr. Price recalls his memories of an old family servant, creating more of a character sketch than a story. Another servant is the subject of "The Warrior Princess Ozimba," which begins, "She was the oldest thing any of us knew anything about, and she had never been near a tennis court, but somewhere around the Fourth of July every year, one of us (it was my father for a long time but for the past two years, just me) rode out to her place and took her a pair of blue tennis shoes."

An elderly Southern lady tells of her lover, Pretty Billy, who died in an accident two days before their wedding was to be held, in "The Anniversary." This story, with its theme like that of an old ballad, gives an excellent picture of Miss Lillian Belle, her family, and the period of her youth.

The heroine of Price's first book, A Long and Happy Life, appears again in "A Chain of Love" The story relates an earlier episode in Rosacoke Mustian's life. While staying with her grandfather in the Raleigh hospital, she becomes sympathetically involved in the illness and death of the man across the hall, a man very much like the author's own father who died a few years ago.

Mr. Price is a very talented writer, and he often brings the reader up short with the accuracy of his descriptions: "He was beginning to talk the way everybody does when they are leaving somewhere—loud and with a lot of laughing." His images are unusual and to the point, sometimes humorous, often unexpected, the words simple. The author has a marvelous ability to recreate North Carolina talk and idioms, and his characters in all levels of society are real and memorable. His small touches can show so much; for example, Miss Lillian Belle's father had engraved on his tombstone, "J. B. Carraway—A Baptist—A Democrat."

Reynolds Price, who teaches now at Duke University, won the William Faulkner Foundation award in 1962 for his first novel, and though these stories do not all measure up to the excellence of A Long and Happy Life, they reveal a writer of perception and sensitivity.

Modern Laundry

By JIM WALLACE

The University Laundry, that part of the academic community operated for students who want to buy a new set of clothes each year using the excuse, "All I have to wear are rags", has it headquarters in a large and impressive building at the end of W. Cameron Avenue.

The 1932 Carolina Handbook carried an ad for the laundry stating: "Every possible effort is made to serve you efficiently," (this meaning if you are lucky, you may get your clothes back in pieces no smaller than a dime). "Here will be found the most complete and modern of laundries", (two large stones for beating clothes on the nearby creek bank). Show your interest by visiting the laundry to know that we regard your welfare and comfort", (visiting hours are from 4:16 to 4:17 a.m. on odd leap years) "Yes indeed, we sew on buttons", (if you scream long and loud enough).

But 1932 was somewhere back in the Stone Age. Now the laundry is really modern. Clothes now are returned in pieces no smaller that a fifty cent piece, how about that for progress?

And those two old stones have been replaced by a hydraulic press capable of beating more clothes faster than ever before.

The greatest new development in years however, is a machine of which all the Campus can be proud . . . a triple stroke, double action, fluid drive, micrometer regulated, astro-timed, sure fire button breaker.

Yessir, never before in the history of modern science has it been possible for one operator to completely smash so many buttons in so short a time. But then that's just one more example of how service to the student is their most important product.

The University Laundry, 99 and 44/100 per cent pure . . . something.

Ohio Escaped

"The First Bad Fruits of a bad Law," is the captain of a recent editorial in the Charlotte Observer.

It reports that a distinguished English biologist, Dr. John Burdon Haldane, will not accept an invitation to speak on the University of North Carolina campus because he got an "inquiry" from the university about his possible previous Communist connections.

This "inquiry" was made necessary by tne "gag law" adopted at this year's session of tne North Carolina Legislature.

Similar restrictions on speakers at state universities in Ohio were narrowly avoided when our Senate finally modified a bill which had been passed in the House and which banned any speaker with the slightest taint of communism in his back-ground. In the end, discretion was left to the boards of trustees of the universities.

Ironically, the bill passed in North Carolina was practically a word-for-word copy of the one proposed in Ohio. But ample discussion resulted in modification of the Ohio measure while legislative leaders in North Carolina rammed their bill through in great haste before the opposition could mobilize.

Witnessing what is already happening to restrict full access to knowledge on the thankful that the white spotlight of publicity and discussion took the gag out of the gag law in Ohio.

—The Akron Beacon Journal

Sorority Pledges

The following is a list of fall sorority pledges as submitted by the Dean of Women's Office.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Bazemore, Bernie; Boggs, Glenn; Briscoe, Clare; Butler, Bonnie; Cannon, Alice Mae; Grice, Gwendolyn Lee; Herndon, Karen and Hooper, Pamela.

Also Houston, Joanna Baker; James, Frankie; Keedwell, Shirley; Landis, Suzanne Clary; Littlefield, Dianne; Morgan, Sandra LeVoy; Reed, Martha Anne; Roper, Mary Eileen; Rumley, Patricia; Smith, Judy J.; Snyder, Jean Olive; Strickland, Anita and Tucker, Judy Gay.

CHI OMEGA

Anderson, Snow T.; Atkins, Katharine Grier; Beckwith, Rosa; Brown, Alice M.; Buice, Edith M.; Campbell, Nelson Whitaker; Deupree, Margot; Elmore, Sally Gallant; Frye, Nancy Rutledge; Gillam, Verna Roberson; Goode, Susan French; Gholson, Matilda Lamb; Howie, Elizabeth Stewart and Hussey, Nannie Daughtry.

Also Iuliucci, Sandra Ann; Lackey, Mary Elizabeth; Martin, Barbara Sue; McDonald, Ann Mebane; McDonald, Linda Aline; McMillan, Elizabeth; Micaud, Suzanne; Moore, Jane Morrison; Ramage, Nancy; Sperber, Janice Lynn and Wright, Cydne.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Betts, Patterson Cochran; Brown, Mary Ann; Dukes, Margaret Erwensten; Frost, Holly; Kesler, Patricia Allen; Little, Hilda Hardison; Schwender, Sue Ann; Tannery, Camilla Anne and Whitehead, Helen Whitcomb.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Adams, Susan Elizabth; Anderson, Barbara Jeannie; Anderson, Ruth Grove; Bradford, Betsy Hight; Brauch, Carolyn Ann; Bruecken, Sally; Cain, Joye; Chambliss, Betsy; Craig, Lynn Oberlin; Dillin, Jean H.; Esau, Elizabeth Ann; Findley, Margaret Hanna and Grape, Judy.

Also Grubb, Nancy Jane; Harper, Bonnie G.; Hollis, Rosanne; Harris, Sherrie Anne; Holt, Carol Ann; Johnston, Carol Elizabeth; Levan, Salli Elizabeth; Levine, Leah Deborah; Lindon, Virginia Gail; Miller, Carole Joan; Munroe, Sylvia Gayle; Parrott, Ruthie and Rhodes, Judith Ann.

KAPPA DELTA

Anderson, Jean L.; Barnhardt, Sarah; Counts, Diane Sandra; Daniel, Josephine Louise; French, Susanne; Gilkeson, Ellen D.; Hladys, Virginia Ann; Hull, Peggy; Hutson, Martha Y.; Liebscher, Ilse Louise; McDaniel Marty and Mattox, Eumice Hoyle.

Also Meissner, Ann; Moore, Jennie; Neblett, Jane A.; Renfrow, Jean; Saunders, Denise; Shields, Sylvia; Stafford, Mary Elizabeth; Stephenson, Ella; Teeter, Jean Hayes; Timberlake, Rebecca and Whitley, Evelyn Ann.

PHI BETA PHI

Bilbro, Myrtle Moon; Bond, Mary Ion; Cowman, Judith Ryder; Craver, Sarah Elizabeth; Dallen, Jane Baldwin; Hoyle, Madelyn Kay; Hubner, Alice B.; Kelly, Linda; Leak, Mary Stella; Leggett, Virgilia B.; Long, Melinda and MacDowell, Dorothy D..

Also Patterson, Julia Shirley; Patterson, Priscilla; Phillips, Karen Adelle; Pierce, Frances Allen; Raines, Lou Bonner; Roper, Sarah H.; Shackford, Margaret; Truitt, Shirley; Ulmer, Alice Palmer; Walters, Camilla H.; White, Bettie F. and Worth, Diana.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Best, Nancy Goode; Cordell, Betty Anne; Cornelius, Chattye; DeVane, Constance F.; Freeze, Parks; Hambright, Ann; Herring, Diane Carol; Huntsberry, Edith Ann; Lamm, Betsy Dunn; Leibold, Jean Ellen; Light, Harlan; McKenzie, Barbara and Menefee, E. Louise.

Also Peabody, Sondra Jane; Price, Jane Katherine; Roux, Georgia; Stanley, Sherry; Stokes, Margaret Caroline; Teague, Mary Gray; Tribble, Virginia W.; Weddle, Pamela C.; Willis, Ann; Young, Rosa Howell.

Around The Campus

By PETE WALES

Chip Lenz, junior from Charlotte, was elected president of Craige dormitory this week as four dorms held elections for officers.

Sophomore Armistead Maupin and second-year law student Al Gilliam were elected presidents of Grimes and Carr dorms. Senior Alan Goldsmith's appointment by the IDC as president of Alexander was approved by that dorm last week.

Other Craige officers elected are: Ron Hendron, social vice-president; Steve Mazoff, academic vice-president; and Bill Woodall, secretary-treasurer.

In Alexander, Jim Wygand was elected vice-president and Bud Cohoon secretary-treasurer. Grimes elected Bob Brace, vice president; Harold Berry, secretary-treasurer; and Rick Donor, IDC representative.

Carr, a graduate dorm, elected Jim Renger, vice-president; Bill Holye, secretary; Andy Giles, treasurer; and Bill Thornton, IDC representative.

Teague, the only dorm without officers now, will meet for elections Monday night.

* * *

Zeta Beta Tau's new house at 240 Finley Golf Course Road is near completion.

The house, built at a cost of inearly $250,000, will be ready for ocupancy Nov. 15, according to Pete Jason, ZBT president. The roof has just been completed and the interior is receiving finishing touches.

The two-story house, begun last April, is on a 1½ acre plot to find a brick wall built the and will house 44 boys in two-man rooms. The dining room, which doubles as a party room, will seat 175 to 200 at a time. ZBT's are also proud of their "sunken" living room.

* * *

In other fraternity construction, Beta Theta Pi has already begun to use its unfinished backyard bar and party room.

Designed by Beta alumnus Arthur Cogswell, a Chapel Hill architect, construction on the one-room building began last April under the direction of John L. Currie, now a first-year medical student.

The building is constructed on a platform and looks now something like an oriental pagoda. Doors, windows and paneling are scheduled to be added later this fall.

* * *

Chi Psi brothers returned during orientation week this fall length of the front of the property.

Jack Crane, vice-president of the house, decided the "Lodge" needed a wall and had it built with his own money, about $2,500 worth.

The wall is stepped to fit the contour of the land and ranges three and four feet high. It is about 380 feet long.

Notice

FELLOWSHIP GRANTS

A check for $7,950 representing cost-of-education grants and stipends for four graduate students in city planning has been presented to the University by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

F. E. Patton, manager of Sears-Roebuck & Co. of Durham, representing the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, made the presentation to Prof. John A. Parker.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Informal sorority rush will begin on Oct. 11. If interested, sign list in Dean of Women's office between Sat. morning and noon Tues.

Medical Science Lecture Series — 11 a.m., Dr. Gerhard Giebisch, "Renal Tubular Transfer Mechanisms of Na and K as Studied in Single Nephrons."

Free Dancing — 8:30 p.m., GM.

MOVIES

Carolina — Rampage
Varsity — For Love or Money
GM Free Flick — Light in the Piazza
Rialto — The L-Shapel Room

LOST AND FOUND

Lost — gold charm bracelet with three charms, reward offered. Sharon Ranson, 223 Nurses Dorm, 968-9009.

Lost — London Fog windbreaker and prescription dark glasses in undergraduate library or Lenoir Hall. Contact Jime Coleman, 245 Craige.

Lost — brown alligator purse containing identification, reward offered. Bring to GM. Information Desk.

Lost — black framed glasses in a black leather case, in vicinity of police station. Contact Jim Oldham, 942-9785.

Lost — two spiral notebooks at main entrance of Emerson Field. Contact John Kausch, 112 Mangum, 968-9065.

Found — wedding band between cemetery and tennis courts. Contact Mrs. Hammond, Y-Bldg. and identify.

Found — wedding band in Lenoir Hall. Contact Bill Talbert at Lenoir Hall and identify.

FUTURE

University Baptist Church Student Forum — 5:45 p.m., Sun., Dr. John W. Dixson, "Religion and Art".

Graduate Students Mixer — 3 p.m., Sun., Temple Emanuel, 713 N. Greene St., Greensboro, for UNC and Womans College Hillel.

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Chapel of the Cross Parish House. Mr. Jerrold Baab will lead discussion and criticism of recording of the "Jazz Mass."

Physical Therapy Club — 6:30 p.m., Mon., Clinic Auditorium of NCMH. Speaker Robert Lasiter of N. C. Society of Crippled Children.

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m. Sunday Common Meeting in basement, University Methodist church.

UNC Student Hospitalized

A University student was hospitalized last night after police said he cut his wrist with a razor blade. The wound was described as not serious.

Campus police said the incident occurred early last night in Parker Dormitory. Police said the student had apparently been drinking and when his roommate attempted to pacify him the student cut his wrist.

DRAMA MANAGERS' CONFERENCE

A conference for Outdoor Drama Managers and Promoters meets here this weekend it was announced recently by William C. Troutman, director of the UNC Institute for Outdoor Drama. Drama.

- Legislature -

(Continued from Page 1)

Festival committees was introduced by John Ulfelder (UP-TM 1).

This committee will hold a Fine Arts Festival in the Spring, alternating with the Carolin Symposium. A successful festival was held here in the 1940's.

"The festival will consist of performances and exhibitions of student and faculty art in the fields of music, literature, drama, painting and sculpture and within fields the committee may select. Outside contributions may be included," the bill stated.

Introduced was a bill to regulate the change of a party affiliation by a member of the student legislature. In the past no means have been presented by which one could do this.

Honor Council

Paul Dickson of Everett was submitted by Mike Lawler to fill the seat on the Honor Council. This appointment will be voted on at the next session.

The appointment of John Morris as chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee was approved. Elected were Judy Anapol, file clerk, and Hugh Blackwell, member of the budget committee.

A special session to consider a speaker ban will be held Thursday at 4:00 p.m.

—Selection—

(Continued from Page 1)

mittee are George M. Harper, chairman of the English Department and chairman of the faculty; H. E. Lehman, chairman of the Zoology Department; Donald R. Matthews, associate professor of political science; Everett D. Palmatier, Kenan professor of physics and chairman of the Physics Department; Joseph C. Sloane, chairman of the Art Department and director of Ackland Art Center; Dr. Louis G. Welt, professor of medicine; and W. L. Wiley, Kenan professor of French.

Phelps Plays Billed

Two short plays by Jon Phelps, graduate student at UNC and Durham Herald staff writer, will be presented by the Durham Theatre Guild at Allied Arts in Durham, tonight at 8:30 p.m.

The first of the two plays, "Old Lady Who Lived" was presented originally at the Playmakers Theatre in August under the title, "Ten Cars Before Hope."

The second play, "Catch Fire," was written under the auspices of the Department of Drama.

"Old Lady Who Lived" is the story of an old woman who tries desperately to regain her life in the loneliness of a rest home where she has been confined. The play discusses the current problem of geriatrics.

The original cast for the Carolina Playmakers production are repeating their performances in the Durham production. Myra Lauterer, Mary Kyle Watson, John McNinch, and Kathy Mintz, all of Chapel Hill, compose the cast. The director is Blair Beasley of Pittsboro.

"Catch Fire" deals with the effect on a Negro family of the arrest of their only daughter in a "sit-in" demonstration. The crisis that evolves from this incident leads to a crisis in the personal life of the Reverend, her father, and her mother, who are opposed to the Freedom Movement.

The cast from N. C. College includes Hein Reed Monroe, Harold Zoster, and Daris George. Kathy Noyes of Durham is directing.

Those of the Durham Theatre and the Carolina Playmakers assisting with this double-bill production are James Zellner, Buck Roberts, E. Kenestrick, Ann Rogers, and Bradford Guise.

There is no admission charge.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Mandarin tea
4. Flatfish
7. Exhibit
8. Burmese premier: poss.
10. Crown of head
11. Upright support
12. Bog
13. Placed in chairs
15. Core of British Empire
17. Before
18. Tiny
19. Jumble
20. French river
21. Division of calyx
23. Location of "Leaning Tower"
26. Father: dial.
27. Body of water
30. Beverage
31. Large-billed bird
33. Fashioned, as of clay
35. Classify
36. Look askance
37. Nobleman
38. Wound mark
39. Spirited
40. Attempt
41. Alas: Ger.

DOWN
1. To buy, as on account
2. An inn
3. Solemn wonder
4. Tricked
5. Celebes ox
6. Comedian —— Keaton
7. Backbone
9. Severe
12. Cage for hawks
13. Cut with tiny strokes
14. Scotch river
16. Mimic
20. Chemical suffix
21. Samarium: chem.
22. Mulberry
23. Knave of clubs in loo
24. Sacred images
25. Choose
27. Burn
28. Betimes
29. Pantry invader
31. American commodore
32. —— Newton, Eng. physicist
34. Costly
37. Epoch

Yesterday's Answer

PEANUTS

Weekend Special Sale

55 x 10 3 Bedroom Mobile Home
Completely Furnished $3695

Economical Living — Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW

MOBILE HOME SALES

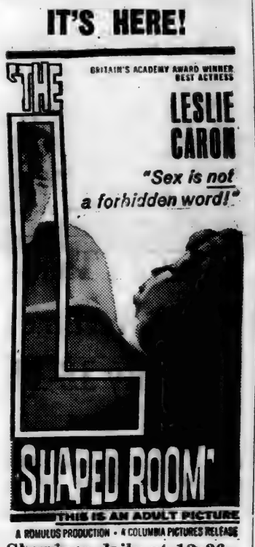
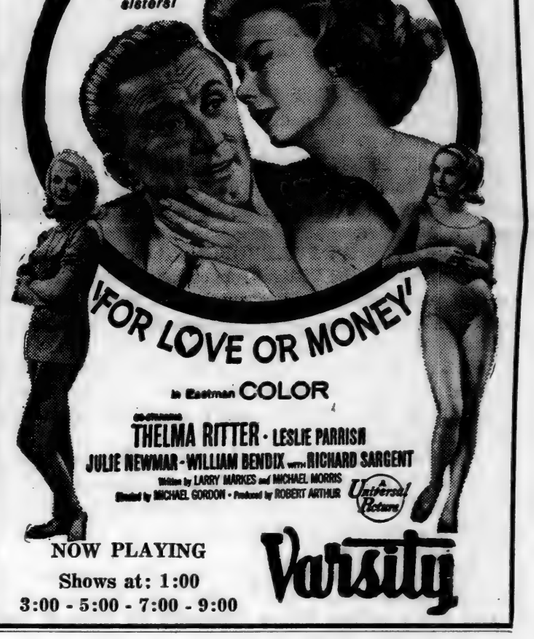
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

IT'S HERE!



A ROMULUS PRODUCTION • A COLUMBIA PICTURES RELEASE
Showings daily at 12:36, 2:45, 4:55, 7:05, 9:15 p.m.
RIALTO THEATRE
DURHAM



NOW PLAYING
Shows at: 1:00
3:00 - 5:00 - 7:00 - 9:00
Varsity

Robert Mitchum Elsa Martinelli Jack Hawkins
RAMPAGE
Screenplay by ROBERT J. HOLT and MARGUERITE ROBERTS
Directed by PHIL KARLSON A SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR® Presented by WARNER BROS.
Produced by WILLIAM FADIMAN
Shows at: 1:00 - 2:56 - 4:52 - 6:48 - 8:44
NOW PLAYING
Carolina
SOON
LESLIE CARON
in
"THE L SHAPED ROOM"

CLASSIFIED ADS

NEEDED: FOURTH MAN FOR apartment near campus. For information call 942-6840.

PART-TIME, DURHAM - CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

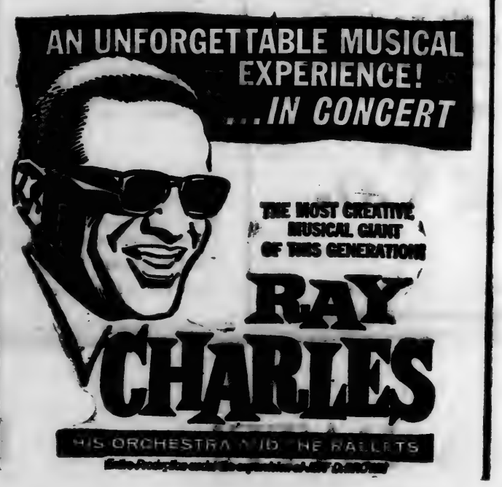
Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Trucks — Trailers

50' BY 10' SKYLINE MOBILE Home with 10' by 24' room attached; fireplace; air conditioning; washer; furnished or unfurnished; located at edge of town on private lot; good neighborhood. Call 968-5811 before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m.

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA — Raleigh
One Show — 8:30 P.M.



Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; Bender Drug, Fayetteville.

If your roommate has his radio turned
To some anthropoid type
of battle
And the chap next door
lets his hi-fi roar
Till all the windows rattle,
Then there's only one thing
a civilized chap
Can do—and not go loopy—
Come spend your Saturday afternoon
With Shakespeare, Poe—and Snoopy.

The Intimate Bookshop
of Chapel Hill
119 E. Franklin — Open Till 10 P.M.

it's invisible, man!

It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in.
Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code10.
It's *in*visible, man!

code 10
HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN

UNC Out To Sour Sweetan, Candy Deacons

By JOHN MONTAGUE

North Carolina will be looking for a new lease on its football life tonight when it takes a slightly revised starting line-up to Winston-Salem to face win-hungry Wake Forest. The kickoff is set for 8 o'clock in Bowman Gray Stadium, located across town from the Wake Forest campus on Stadium Drive.

The Tar Heels, hoping to bounce back from last week's embarrassment at Michigan State, rule a 14-point favorite to win their second ACC game. The hapless Deacons tied a school record last Saturday by losing their 12th straight game and are said to be very much "up" for tonight's battle. Their last victory came on November 25, 1961, when they defeated Carolina, 17-14.

The contest, which will be the 60th meeting between the two schools, will be carried over two local radio stations — WCHL (1360) and WRAL (1240).

Coach Jim Hickey has made four changes in his starting line-up, three of them necessitated because of injuries. Joe Robinson, a pass-catching hero in the win over Virginia, will start at tight end, replacing John Hammett, who re-injured his ankle last Saturday.

Speedy Ronnie Jackson, who scored twice against the Deacons last year, will be at wingback in place of Tommy Ward, also injured against the Spartans. At the fullback post Eddie Kesler, considered the No. 1 man before he injured his leg in pre-season drills, replaces his replacement, Hank Barden, who will be out for three weeks with a broken wrist.

Hefty John Hill, the biggest man on the squad at 235 pounds, has moved Vic Esposito out of his starting right tackle slot.

Elsewhere the Tar Heel allignment will remain the same. Bob Lacey, who currently ranks No. 2 among the nation's pass receivers ((11 grabs for 113 yards), will be at split end. On the left side of the line wil be tackle Gene Sigmon and guard Jerry Cabe. Center Chris Hanburgers is the anchor man, with guard Richy Zarro and tackle Hill on his right.

With Kesler and Jackson in the UNC backfield will be quarterback Junior Edge and running back Ken Willard. Both had a rough time of it against Michigan State, but are still considered to be the key threats, along with Lacey, in the UNC attack.

The Demon Deacons are hinging most of their hopes for victory on a spectacular debut by quarterback Karl Sweetan. The heralded Texas junior college transfer was in for a few plays against Virginia Tech, but this will be his first start. He suffered a broken wrist during pre-season practice, but reportedly is completely recovered.

Sweetan is considered a good passer and an excellent kicker. He is supported in the backfield by halfbacks Sammy Decker and Jimmy Bedgood and fullback Brian Piccolo.

Sophomore Decker (5-11, 169) has replaced Wayne Welborn, who started the first two games, at left half. Bedgood (6-0, 166) is a junior and will start at right half. A leg injury kept him out of action most of last season.

Piccolo, the team's leading rusher last fall when he netted 324 yards in 77 carries, is a doubtful starter, after injuring his leg against Virginia Tech. His replacement, if needed, will be another soph, Don Davis (5-9, 175).

Up front Coach Bill Hildebrand has a pair of big tackles in Jim Mayo (5-11, 224) and William Salter (6-4, 240). Mayo is a converted guard and Salter is a soph who has come along quickly.

Left guard Farrell Egge (6-0, 203) is considered the best man in the forward wall. Lewis Duncan (5-11, 204) is the center and Ron Kadon (6-1, 198) is the guard on the ohter side.

At the end positions are Richard Cameron (6-4, 195) and Jim Tejeck (6-1, 197). Both are considered good receivers, but Sweetan will probably throw most to Tejcek.

SSTARTING LINE-UPS

| UNC | | Wake |
|---|---|---|
| LE—Lacey | ..... | Cameron |
| LT—Sigmon | ..... | Mayo |
| LG—Cabe | ..... | Egge |
| C—Hanburger | ..... | Duncan |
| RG—Zarro | ..... | Kadon |
| RT—Hill | ..... | Salter |
| RE—Robinson | ..... | Tejeck |
| QB—Edge | ..... | Sweetan |
| LH—Willard | ..... | Decker |
| RH—Jackson | ..... | Bedgood |
| B—Kesler | ..... | Piccolo |

WEEKEND TV SPORTS

Today
12:00 Duke vs. Maryland football (WTVD, 11)
2:45 3rd Game of World Series (WTVD, 11)
Sunday
12:30 Washington Redskins vs. New York Giants pro football (WTVD, 11)
2:45 4th Game of World Series (WTVD, 11)
3:35 Houston Oilers vs. Kansas City Chiefs, pro football (WRAL, 5)

Karl Sweetan (inset)

Carolina's gigantic (235-pound) tackle, moved up to a starting position this week, will be one of the principle defenders concerned with stopping

UNC's John Hill

Wake's highly-rated but unproven transfer quarterback in tonight's ACC game in Winston-Salem.

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

YOU CAN'T EXPECT to do too well in this game when you pick against the Big Eight's best (Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri) all in one week. So it was surprising that the first week's 18-6-1 turned to 18-5-2 this time as a result of blind guessing.

Also beating the odds and me were Auburn (23-19 over Tennessee) and Colgate (21-17 over Cornell). Mississippi State surprised Florida with a 9-9 draw, and Iowa tied Washington State at 14-14 to bring the season's percentage to .766.

DUKE-MARYLAND (RICHMOND). CBS felt this would be a pretty good ballgame to show around the country. After all, a team with Dick Shiner can't be all bad. Yes it can. Duke, by 17.

NC STATE AT CLEMSON. Wa'll shut mah mouth, said Frank Howard, as Oklahoma and Georgia Tech did. Back in Death Valley and back in the league, Clemson will be tough. But State is tougher. NC State, by 6.

SOUTH CAROLINA AT GEORGIA. With Dan Reeves hurt, the soph from Charlotte, Jim Rogers, has done a good job. But Larry Rakestraw is a lot of Bulldog. Georgia, by 12.

VIRGINIA AT VIRGINIA TECH. West Virginia used to be the only Southern Conference school to embarrass the ACC. Now comes Bob Schweikert. VPI, by 10.

KENTUCKY AT AUBURN. Charlie Bradshaw is a rough, hell-for-leather coach who plays in a rough, hell-for-leather league. Weekly, he gets the hell beat out of him. Auburn, by 14.

GEORGIA TECH AT LSU They say Billy Lothridge has already won the Heisman Trophy. The guy is bringing Tech to the top of the national polls. Georgia Tech, by 10.

OREGON AT WEST VIRGINIA. Oregon, with Mel Renfro, has lost one game already. This is a powerful ballclub. It won't lose too many more. Oregon, by 15.

RICE AT PENN STATE. The Nittany Lions were the team to beat Oregon. They've got a match this week. But it shouldn't disturb them more than twice. Penn State, by 7.

CALIFORNIA AT PITTSBURGH. The running backs were supposed to be Pitt's strongest asset this fall. But a fine quarterback, Fred Mazurek, has turned up. The erratic Panthers have turned predictable — and strong. Pittsburgh, by 12.

HOLY CROSS AT SYRACUSE. The Orange were stalled last week in the march back to national glory. They'll get back in high gear against the Crusaders. Syracuse, by 25.

NORTHWESTERN AT ILLINOIS. Tommy Myers and his fourth-ranked playmates were mighty scared by Indiana. Illinois is a young, improving team with the country's best center in Dick Butkus. A surprise for NW. Illinois, by 6.

OHIO STATE AT INDIANA. Backfield flashiness to be exhibited here. But it's two (Paul Warfield and Mat Snell) to one (Marv Woodson) in favor of the Buckeyes. Ohio State, by 10.

NAVY AT MICHIGAN. It isn't often a Big Ten team goes underdog to an eastern independent. But Navy deserves the role. Staubach is a star back. Navy, by 10.

ARMY AT MINNESOTA. Army has yet to prove itself. Wins over Boston U. and Cincinnati have shown little. Big and bad Minnesota will show much. Minnesota, by 14.

NOTRE DAME AT PURDUE. The Irish could have easily won their game with Wisconsin. Hugh Devore has done a fine job. His team should get better and better. Notre Dame, by 7.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN AT ARKANSAS. The Razorbacks were stunned by Missouri last week. Texas Christian has defeated two very good teams in a surprising show of power. This could be the weekend's best. Arkansas, by 3.

BAYLOR AT OREGON STATE. The Beavers have the splendid pass-catching of Vern Burke, and they will be favored. Don Trull, though, may be the best in a year of "great" quarterbacks. Baylor, by 5.

OTHERS:

Air Force over SMU
Tennessee over Mississippi State
Colgate over Boston University
Kansas over Wyoming
Mississippi over Houston
Texas A&M over Texas Tech
UCLA over Stanford
Washington over Iowa

UNC To 'Defense' Navy Soccer Team

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—UNC's powerful soccer team opens against a rough, tough Navy squad here today.

Marvin Allen's men will be hard-pressed to avenge last year's 4-0 opening defeat. The sailors, led by All-America Karl Kaeser, have one of their strongest squads in years.

A backbreaking schedule, not lack of talent, may make it hard for the booters to equal the 7-2 record of a year ago. They face two national powers in Washington of St. Louis and Maryland.

The Tar Heels have eight lettermen back and a potential star, Drew Murphy, to fill the shoes vacated by Jim Reston. Murphy, according to Coach Allen, "can do things Jim could never do."

Allen is working on a new approach to Navy—it's called "defense," something the booters have lacked against Middie teams.

"Navy is sound defensively," he says, "and I don't think any team or anyone else for that matter is going to score more than a couple of goals against them. So obviously we're going to have to hold them, too." He has been pounding away at defense all week.

Why does UNC play such a tough schedule? "It's a matter of needing competition," says the coach. "Our big foe is Maryland, the Atlantic Coast champ and a national power. To get ready for that game, one must tangle with top foes."

The international flavor, in evidence wherever there are good soccer teams, is quite strong in Chapel Hill this year with Edwin Okoroma from Nigeria and George Butler of Jamaica joining the squad.

Chi Phi's Take Close Overtime Game By 13-12

By AL KAPLAN

In the first overtime game of the young football season Chi Psi defeated Phi Kappa Sig 13-12 Thursday.

During the overtime period, the Phi Kaps scored first on a long pass play with Gary Roser the receiver. Chi Psi came right back with a 50-yard TD pass going from quarterback Dick Graves to John Angell, who accounted for all of Chi Psi's scoring. Chi Psi was declared the winner when they infiltrated inside Sif's 50-yard line on the last play of the game.

Led on offense by Bud Vinroot, Law School trounced the Dental School 33-0, in the grad league.

Bobby Cox and Jerry Chaffin were just too much as Emerson Cardplayers dealt Air Force a losing hand 53-0. Cox, no stranger to intramural sports, scored four touchdowns, Griffin tallied twice, and Ted Hoehn added four conversions.

In other action the Town Rats squeaked past Winston Reds 13-6 on touchdowns by Jack Dunn and Paul Moore. Al Jernigan supplied Winston's lone tally.

Everett, usually in contention for top honors every year, lost twice this week. Aycock slammed the Grossmen 25-0, and Old East upended the Rogahs 18-11.

Phi Delta Theta crushed Pi Kappa Alpha 46-0, this week. O. H. Parish put on a one-man offensive show as he scored three touchdowns and converted twice.

Led by the tallies of Jerry Curtis and Butch Lovett the Navy Midshipmen, 1962 Intramural Champions, sunk the Playboys of Alexander 14-6. Kent Hays provided the only scoring for Alexander.

Note: Squash rackets competition is scheduled to begin next week. Those interested in participating must register before 5:00 p.m., October 9.

'Loaded' Runners At Clemson

By MAT FRIEDMAN

"Loaded" is the word for UNC's cross-country team which ventures over the Clemson course today.

The Big Five Bob Bennett, Jim Folk, Jerry Smith, Art Maillet, and James Meade—have high hopes of repeating last Saturday's sweep over Wake Forest when all five ran under 23 minutes. As far as anyone knows, that had never been done on Wake's course.

The Harriers are without Larry Henry but, according to coach Joe Hilton, "any one in the top five is capable of coming up to him. I would say," says Hilton, "that all five are now running on a par with the way Henry ran last year.

"They finished within 12 seconds at Wake Forest and when that happens, you've got to have a good team. There was a big gap—1:46—to our next three men, but they are all sophomores and figure to improve quite a bit as the season get on.

"Actually, I'd say that our strong point is in our six- seven, and eight men. We have a lot of depth we did not have last season."

Hilton named Meade as the outstanding member of the squad's nine sophs, many of whom have shown talent that no one knew was there. "Meade is a great runner," he says, "and has made great strides. The other sophs have made tremendous progress too. Actually, the freshman team was not so good but as it turned out, there is quite a bit of talent."

Hilton feels that Clemson has a much improved team over the one the Harriers swept last year. "They have everyone back," he says, "and two other good middle distance runners joining the squad."

BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL

Essays by

SARAH WATSON EMERY

About the book . . .

The forces of moral and spiritual disintegration are glaringly evident in these documented studies of recent events at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. As the pole for the American flag is defiled, as the story of the Christ Child is given a lewd rewrite, as a philosophy professor sows the seeds of racial discord, as blood spills on the Old Well, the student DAILY TAR HEEL whoops up a hatred of the South, of America, of the middle class, of Christian morality. Only a few of the recent mysterious deaths are discussed here. Nine white males, ages 20-46, died between September 23rd and Christmas Day, 1961. Six were University-connected. Five of the six met their deaths in the month of October. The University excels in its mortality rate as well as in its vaunted tradition of "academic freedom." But is there any freedom here? And where must it end? On the ant hill described by UNC Press author Roderick Seidenberg? The sinister import of BLOOD ON THE OLD WELL cannot be overlooked.

About the Author . . .

Sarah Watson Emery was born in Ohio. After graduating from Cave Spring High School in Georgia she attended Agnes Scott College and Emory University. At Emory she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the A.B. degree. She later studied at Ohio State University, which awarded her the M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy. She has taught at all academic levels: in an elementary school and a high school in rural Georgia, later at Packer Collegiate Institute, Syracuse University, Hollins College, and Duke University. Her published work includes poetry and essays in various journals. She contributed book reviews to the DURHAM (N. C.) MORNING HERALD (1953-1956) and play reviews to the CHAPEL HILL (N. C.) WEEKLY (1956-1958). Her first book, TRUCK ROADEO (1961), is a story for children. She lived in Chapel Hill for fourteen years (1948-1962). Now a resident of Dallas, she is a member of the American Philosophical Association and the Texas Poetry Society.

PAPER $2.00 CLOTH $4.50

Colonial Drug Co.

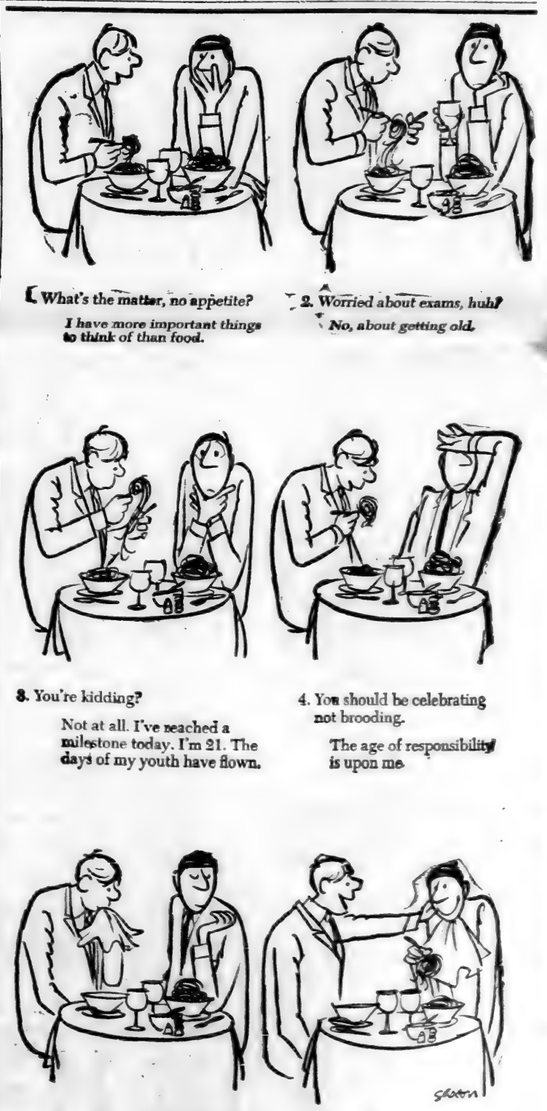
414 W. Franklin St.

Open Nightly 'Till 11 Phone 942-4463



For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N. Y. ©1963

The DRIFTWOOD CLUB

Saturday Night The MONZAS (Live Combo)

A NICE PLACE TO BRING A DATE!

Under New Management

The DRIFTWOOD CLUB

(3 Miles West From Durham On Hwy. 70)

(Open Every Thur.-Fri.-Sat. Nights – $1.00 Cover Charge)

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

14

L. A. Just One Game From Sweep

(See Story, Page 4)

★ ★ ★
Late City Edition

The Daily Tar Heel

Weather
FAIR AND COOL

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1963 | United Press International Service

The Speaker Ban: III

By HUGH STEVENS

(This is the last in a three-part series concerning the history of the speaker ban bill passed by the 1963 N. C. General Assembly.)

As July melted into August, the speaker ban controversy melted into the so-called "basic issue" of "Communists" and "non-Communists." There were cries of "Keep the Red Rats Out" from the bill's supporters and "Don't Take Away Academic Freedom" from those who opposed it.

In the offices of college officials the bill was lamented, in the state papers it was blasted, and in American Legion meetings it was virtually worshipped.

But throughout the confusion and the name-calling, there were those who saw the picture clearly, those who did not fall for the "Communism - is-the-real-issue" bait. They saw the bill as a deviation from the history of the University as a citadel of the right to hear speak and to listen. To them, the bill was filled with good intentions but it was poor legislation, and it had to go.

In opposing HB 1395, these people took the logical first step of examining the bill closely. They found the speaker ban law to be a rather soggy piece of legislation shot through with ambiguities and loopholes.

Legal Twists

For example, Section 1 denies speaking facilities to anyone who "is a known communist of the Communist Party." The question that the bill's opponents asked was "Which Communist Party?" All evidence so far suggests that the bill will be interpreted as meaning ANY Communist party, anywhere.

The same section bans those persons from speaking who are "known to advocate the overthrow of the constitution of the United States or the State of North Carolina." The words "by force and violence" normally attached to such a phrase do NOT appear, with only the term "overthrow" left to suggest subversion or illegality.

The question asked by dissenters from the bill concerned the connotation of the word "known." Did it mean COMMONLY known, known to the government, or what?

The first section also prohibits persons from speaking who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution at any time.

Legally, however, the Fifth Amendment, as such, can ONLY be used in a federal investigation and not in a state.

Finally, opponents of the law pointed out that no penalties are provided for in the event the law might be violated.

All these legal implications are readily apparent to the layman upon a simple reading of the bill, and represent only the major legal loopholes uncovered by attorneys.

Scott Blasts Law

State Senator Ralph Scott pointed out in a speech to the American Legion in Raleigh last month that under the law Fidel Castro could speak on state - supported college campuses, and Adolph Hitler would also have qualified.

"Castro has said he is not a member of the Communist Party," Scott said, "and he has not violated any of the other provisions."

In addition to the technical criticisms of the law, there were other attacks leveled by its opponents.

Among the criticisms was one which said the bill was unnecessary, calling attention to General Statute 14-11 of 1941. This law says "it shall be unlawful for . . . any institution supported in whole or in part by state funds to be used by any person for the purpose of advocating, advising or teaching a doctrine that the government . . . should be overthrown by force, violence, or any other unlawful means." Critics said this law makes HB 1395 superfluous.

Another attack was based on the large burden of enforcement placed on the Trustees of the University.

It was also pointed out that

(Continued on Page Three)

★ ★ ★

Senator Warren Lashes Gag Law

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

State senator Lindsey Warren Jr. said Saturday that the General Assembly made a grave misteke when it passed the controverial gag-law.

"There was little opportunity to consider the bill," the Goldsboro senator said. "It was brought in, the rules were suspended, and it was made into a law. No one had time to examine the implications of the bill and no one had a chance to discuss it.

"This was indeed a bad way to legislate," Warren said. "And as a result, the University is going to be denied the opportunity to hear many people speak on various subjects.

Warren made his views known on the bill in an interview here Saturday. He is a member of the 17-man committee that met Saturday to consider the first steps in choosing a successor to retiring Chancellor William B. Aycock.

Warren continued with his views on the gag-law.

The effects of "legislation of this type is similar to what the Russians do when they won't let Americans speak in their country," he said.

Warren expressed hope that the law would be repealed at some future date, but he said it probably wouldn't be in the upcoming special session of the Assembly.

"This session will be limited to the re-districting problem," Warren said. "If repeal of the gag-law is brought up, then lots of local legislation will be presented and the line just has to be drawn somewhere.

"But," he continued, "it will most certainly come up during the 1965 session of the General Assembly."

Warren has been mentioned as a possible campaign manager for gubernatorial hopeful L. Richardson Preyer. "That's is only a rumor," Warren said. "Anyway, I'm not in a position to manage his campaign." Warren has a private law practice and is chairman of the N. C. Courts Commission.

Sunday Cinema

Ingmar Bergman's "Sawdust and Tinsel" (also know as "The Naked Night") will be this fall's first Sunday Cinema presentation. Showing will be in Carroll Hall at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. tonight.

"Sawdust and Tinsel" is the story of a circus owner who has forsaken his family for a horsewoman. When she allows herself to be seduced by a young actor, the circus owner attempts suicide. After losing in a fight with the actor, the man and his mistress move on to an uncertain fate in the "naked night" which engulfs the caravan.

Mrs. Taylor Named To Head Relations Group

The Mayor's Committee on Human Relations elected Mrs. Margaret Taylor as its new chairman Thursday.

Mrs. Taylor, the wife of University history professor George V. Taylor, replaces the Rev. Loren Mead as chairman. Mr. Mead resigned to spend a year in England. He leaves Chapel Hill tomorrow.

The committee also installed two new members, Dean Henry Brandis of the University School of Law, and Warren Wicker of the Institute of Government. One vacancy on the committee has been filled by an appointment from Mayor Sandy McClamroch. However, the appointee has not yet accepted.

The committee heard a report that its open letter urging closer communications between Town civic groups and civil rights leaders had drawn one response. Mr. Mead said the Junior Service League had requested speakers from integration groups. The committee decided to send more letters.

In other business the committee discussed but took no formal action on public accommodations ordinances and received a reply from Stanford Brookshire of Charlotte, chairman of the North Carolina Mayor's Cooperating Committee. Mr. Brookshire said in reply to the committee's request for help and suggestions that his committee had very little information available at present.

FRAT ALUMNI TO MEET

The Piedmont Carolina Alumnae Club of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity will hold its annual Founders Day Banquet Thursday, October 10.

The dinner will be at 6 p.m. in the Garden Room of Schrafft's Country Club Inn on the Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard.

Any interested Alumnae in the area are asked to contact Miss Frances C. Patton before tomorrow for further information and reservations.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Jonas Declines Draft Movement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Charles Raper Jonas (R-N. C.) asked Saturday that a campaign to draft him as a Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina be discontinued.

Jonas said he had not been consulted about the campaign and that he had learned of it only from news reports.

"While I greatly appreciate the interest and good intentions of my friends in starting 'Draft Jonas' movements," he said, "I must respectfully ask that they be discontinued."

Jonas said he had promised state GOP Chairman Herman Saxon that he would not announce his plans for the 1964 campaign until the latter's return from Europe.

The congressman said he did not wish to spell out his intentions until he had talked with Saxon. At that time, he said, he would make a full statement on his plans for next year.

Jonas declined to answer directly when asked whether his request that efforts to draft him be discontinued meant that he was not interested in being a candidate.

Protests May Be Resumed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — A Negro leader said Saturday his people may resume massive racial demonstrations without waiting for the findings of President Kennedy's two racial troubleshooters.

The two presidential representatives, Kenneth Royal and Earl Blaik, concluded their fact-finding mission here Friday and said they would report to the White House "within a few days."

"We will not necessarily wait for the report," said the Rev. A. D. King, brother of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC),

Heard Is Installed At Vandy

Cites Civil Rights As Greatest Problem

Dr. George Alexander Heard pinpointed civil rights for Negroes as the most important issues in the nation at his formal installation Friday as chancellor of Vanderbilt University.

Heard, 45-year-old former dean of the Graduate School here, is Vanderbilt's fifth chancellor since the institution was founded 90 years ago.

"For our country," he said, "the most tenacious and important issue of our time is the struggle of American Negroes for fuller freedom. I am proud to follow the leadership of Vanderbilt Board of Trust in its voluntary decisions, taken before my time, that qualified students shall be admissible to all of Vanderbilt's schools without regard to race or creed.

"And it goes without saying that all students are treated alike by Vanderbilt, without regard to race or creed.

"The university is now the central thinking institution of our society—more an explorer, more an inventer, more an interpreter, and more concerned with the outcome and the meaning of it all.

"Beyond these, the university is also the ultimate wellspring of educational advance at many levels, for many purposes, all about the globe. The watchword of the future everywhere is education—education in how to read and write, education in technical skills, education in professional competences, education in technical skills, education in professional competences, education in the arts and science of government, education in a richer inner life, education of every kind . . .

"Everywhere on our planet education is marching. At the head of the procession is the inquiring university," he said.

UNC-YAF To Attend State Meet

A delegation from the UNC Young Americans for Freedom will attend a meeting to create a state-wide organization for the conservative group today in Durham.

Delegates are also expected from Duke University, Davidson and Catawba Colleges and Aberdeen High School.

Fred Coldren of Washington, D. C., national organizational director of YAF will be present. State officers and directors will be elected and a constitution adopted.

The film, "A Generation Awakens" will be shown.

The UNC Chapter will begin a membership drive this week in Y Court and Lenoir Hall.

"The YAF group here has already been very active in toning down the ultra-liberalism of the campus," said chairman, Clyde Wilson.

"We still have important work to do in organizing the latent conservatism of the students and making sure the University gives an equal hearing to conservative views. Most important we have to begin organizing now for a Goldwater victory in 1964.

"We are planning several good speakers to bring the conservative message to the campus this fall," Wilson said.

The UNC chapter was organized in the spring of 1962.

ELISHA MITCHELL SOCIETY

Dr. S. Y. Tyree, professor of Chemistry at the University, will be guest speaker at the 586th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society on Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in room 265, Phillips Hall.

His topic will be "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

Dr. Tyree received his B. S. and Ph.D. degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He joined the UNC faculty in 1946 and has been professor of chemistry since 1958.

Carolina Wins Second; Shuts Out Wake, 21-0

Wake End Jim Tejeck Sandwiched By UNC Defenders

UNC defensive backs Ronnie Jackson (27) and Eddie Kesler (45) move in to stop Demon Deacon flanker in first half action of last night's ACC game. Play was one of only four completed passes made by Wake Forest all evening as Carolina handed the Deacons their 13th consecutive loss on a 21-0 shutout.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Edge, Black Guide Heels To 3 Scores

By JOHN MONTAGUE

WINSTON-SALEM, — Using a 72-yard touchdown pass from Junior Edge to Ronnie Jackson as the igniting spark, UNC finally pulled out the choke on its offensive machine and sped to a 21-0 victory over inept Wake Forest here Saturday night.

Coach Jim Hickey's Tar Heels, who have been something less than spectacular in their offensive effort in recent years, rolled up a total of 436 yards, handing the hapless Deacons their 13th consecutive setback, a new school record.

With Eddie Kesler banging off the tackles for 83 yards and Edge and Garry Black hitting five different receivers for a total of ten completions, the Tar Heels netted 268 yards on the ground and 168 more through the air.

| UNC | | WAKE |
|---|---|---|
| 16 | First downs | 7 |
| 268 | Yards rushing | 88 |
| 168 | Yards passing | 4 |
| 10-19 | Passes Comp. | 6-23 |
| 1 | Passes Inter. by | 2 |
| 6-38.7 | Punting | 10-41.3 |
| 72 | Yds. penalized | 53 |
| 1 | Fumbles Lost | 0 |

UNC ..... 0 7 7 7—21
WF ..... 0 0 0 0— 0
Scoring: Carolina — Edge 1 UNC—Edge 1 run (Braine kick) UNC—Jackson 72 pass from Edge (Braine kick) UNC—Atherton 6 pass from Black (Braine kick)
Attendance: 12,000

Despite the impressive totals, UNC looked sluggish through most of the first half and held only a 7-0 advantage at intermission.

But everything changed when, on the second play after taking the second-half kickoff, Edge faked a handoff to Ken Willard at the UNC 28, looked downfield and found Jackson all alone in back of the Deacon secondary. Edge's lofty aerial was taken by the Rocky Mount speedster on the WF 40 and he zipped unmolested to paydirt.

Dave Braine booted his second of three conversions, and UNC led 14-0.

For the next ten minutes, neither team threatened but UNC was on the march as the third period ended.

With a first and 16 on his own five, Black picked up 13 yards on a keeper play and two plays later used the same device for a 22-yard gain, placing the ball on the UNC 42 as the third quarter ended.

Hickey put his first unit in the game to open the final frame, and Edge responded with a keeper of his own good for 24 yards. Kesler rammed up the middle for three, and a 12-yard swing pass from Edge to Williard gave the Heels a first and ten on the Wake 19.

But a 15-yard holding penalty stalled the drive and an interception by Wally Bridwell, his second of the night, ended the march altogether at the Wake 26.

Moments later, another UNC threat failed to materialize into a score as the Heels were stopped on downs on the Wake 27.

When the Deacons couldn't move the ball from here, Karl Sweetan, who averaged 41.3 yards on 10 punts, booted the ball to Ron Tuthill who made a fair catch on his own 25.

This is when junior Black and sophomore end John Atherton got togeher and moved UNC to its third and final TD of the chilly evening. Black threw to Atherton for a 16-yard gain to the Wake 38, and, after Tuthill twisted for eight yards, Black hit his soph receiver again for a nine-yard gain to the 21.

A personal foul against Wake on the next play moved the Heels to the nine. Black ran for three

(Continued on Page 4)

Sorority Rush Slow, Statistics Indicate

By DONA FAGG

Participation in fall sorority rush showed an apparent decline this year, according to statistics released by the Dean of Women's office.

Approximately 48 per cent of the women who participated in rush this fall pledged one of Carolina's seven sororities, while 56 per cent pledged last year. This year there are 151 pledges, while at this time in 1962 there were 162.

This year 341 women expressed an interest in rush and 314 who actually participated. Last year there were 315 women expressing an interest and 292 participating in the round of parties.

This year 48.1 per cent of the women who participated in rush pledged compared with a percentage of 56.2 for last year.

Another set of figures presents a sidelight to the rush situation. There was an increase of girls dropping out after the first round of parties of 6.4 per cent, compared with last year's figure of 2.7 per cent. During rush there was much speculation as to the number of girls dropping out after the first or second round.

The rushes themselves offered these explanation for dropping out:

A junior transfer said, "I felt I was wasting my time. Sroities don't mean that much on this campus. My roommate wasn't going through, and she and I did a lot of talking about rush. My mother had been a sorority girl, but she said that she didn't care whether I pledged or not. So I dropped out.

"I will say this, I did enjoy meeting the girls but after a while it got to be a pain to smile."

Another girl expressed her concern, "I heard that a couple of houses already had their members picked, not dirty rushing you understand, but already picked."

There was also some concern over the hectic schedule. One said, "You really don't get to know anyone in that short time. Rush, ideally, should be conducted during the second semester after things have settled down. I just don't see much of a need for a transfer to pledge."

A junior transfer from Smith offered the observation that "a lot of girls came here with their heart set on one sorority and when they were cut were disappointed."

"I was kind of pushed along with the tide so I'm still in. On a campus as big as this you need a place to fit in instead of just being drifting," a junior from Atlanta said.

Also still elated with the round of parties was a Durham junior. "I've enjoyed it. It's an experience in itself whether I pledge or not."

One sorority member expressed her feelings vehemently, "It would suit me fine if I never heard the word again."

SG INTERVIEWS

Student Body President Mike Lawler announced Saturday that interviews for limited positions on student government committes will be conducted next week. He especially urged freshmen and transfer students to apply.

Lawler said interested students should sign up at the SG offices, 210 GM, from 2 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

Five-minute interviews will be held Tuesday through Thursday from 2 to 5 p.m. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Lawler will conduct the interviews.

BOMB THREAT

A telephoned bomb threat interrupted a meeting of representatives of the Committee for Non-Violent Action's Quebec-Guantanamo Walk for Peace on the State College campus in Raleigh Friday evening.

The meeting, according to Pat Cusick, national Student Peace Union field secretary, was moved from the YMCA to a nearby classroom building. About 60 townspeople and students heard speakers explain the purpose of the 3300 mile walk. Speakers included Fleming Jenson, Danish youth leader and representative of the Danish press, and Marvin Davidov, formerly with U. S. Counter Intelligence Agency, both members of the walk.

MURAL SLOTS OPEN

Students interested in being dormitory intramural managers this year may pick up applications from 1-5 p.m. daily in room 315, Wollen Gym. Applicants should sign up interviews when submitting applications.

All 23 positions are available to anyone who would like to apply, according to Jerry Good, president of the IDC. The salary for those selected will be $193 for the year. Each undergraduate dormitory will have one manager except Craige and Ehringhaus which will have two and three respectively.

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Who You Callin' Savage, Savage

A new chapter of the Ku Klux Klan has come to North Carolina, and we are greatly heartened by the assurance of R. L. Mabe, exalted cyclops of the klavern, that he "can honestly say it's a fine organization . . ."

Mabe said the klavern was established about a month ago in Greensboro as an affiliate of the United Klans of America, with headquarters in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, and that it was a fine organization because the members had been carefully screened, and the klan of course doesn't allow any Negroes, Jews or Catholics in. (These are known as fraternal organizations.)

Neither does the klan allow Indians, and this has caused it considerable trouble here in North Carolina. Back in 1959, under the leadership of grand wizard 'Catfish' Cole, an outspoken advocate of violence, the Klan managed to get the Lumbee Indians on the warpath.

This was a bad mistake, as most remember, because the Lumbees, usually a docile group, attacked a klan rally at Maxton. 'Catfish' went to jail for two years for inciting a riot, and klan popularity declined sharply thereafter. After all, fighting Indians can be a tricky business for a group like the klan. Their sheets show up well at night, their burning crosses give away the position of their camp and bull whips and nooses are rather impotent at more than three yards. It is also impossible to win popular support for their cause by branding the Indians as unAmerican, so the klan has nowhere to turn.

Unhappily, we feel singularly at a loss in opposing the klan in any meaningful manner, so we can only hope that the Battle of Maxton was not the last chapter in the great history of the Indian Wars.

Barry May Run Out Of Feed On This One

Barry Goldwater may be making the first political mistake of the 1964 campaign. In a speech at Coronado, Cal. the other night, the Arizona conservative again blasted the recent Test Ban treaty, and apparently tried to rationalize his vote against it.

He said, "What makes these international liars anymore trustworthy than they were twelve months ago . . ?", and that we were working for a Soviet-American mutual aid society.

Aside from using two words which to him are profane ("liars" and "international"), Sen. Goldwater's presentation of the treaty seems to be an exceptionaly shoddy trick of rhetoric.

In the first place the treaty is not based on trust of the Soviets, and elaborate precautions are being taken to prevent the Russians from violating the Test Ban without our knowledge. Sen. Goldwater knows this full well, and hopefully, so do his audiences. Consequently, he may find the political hay he reaps from attacking the treaty woefully insufficient to sustain his admiring herd through the winter.

At USC, Idiocy Afflicts Trustees, Too

Apparently one of the hardest things to do these days is to get possession of a copy of "Democracy and Communism in World Affairs."

One of the easiest things to do, however, is to roast the persons who wrote it—and preferably without having ever seen their handiwork.

The document in question was prepared by the Institute of International Studies at the University of South Carolina at the behest of the American Bar Association. It was to be used as a guide for high school teachers in the teaching of communism.

In August, a Richmond newspaper gained possession of a copy, read it and roasted it. The editorial and "numerous complaints" on the teachers guide came to the attention of South Carolina's Sen. Strom Thurmond, who criticized it for "lack of scholarship," and "generally ineffective presentation."

He did not say at the time whether he had read it. In justification, neither did he call for the heads of its authors.

That demand has now been made, and by a man who openly, almost proudly, admits he has never laid eyes on the guide. The would-be executioner, USC Trustee Hugh O. Hanna, wants the professors who had a hand in writing the syllabus to be fired, "even if it means closing down the whole Institute of International Studies."

In a letter to several other persons who agree with his somewhat handicapped "view" of the document, Mr. Hanna scrupulously noted that "every man is entitled to a hearing (trial to me)," but it is fairly evident that he prefers the "trial" to come after, rather than before, conviction.

The Richmond newspaper criticized the document on several grounds, including the points that its title omitted the word "against," that it presents communism as an alternate social system which has enough "good points" to hold the allegiance of millions and that communism has "mysterious appeals" which must be understood to be countered effectively.

As we noted, the editor had at least read it. Not having yet gotten our hands on a copy, we will reserve judgment now.

In the meantime, skeptics may wonder whether there is a need for any kind of teaching guide on communism. You can watch unthinking people use the system's methods every day, right here in the United States. (The Charlotte Observer)

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Movie Reviews

'L-Shaped Room': Two Views

By NINA KING

Bryan Forbes' "The L-Shaped Room" is burdened with many of the new cliches of the Dirty Teacup School of British neo-realism as well as several of the more traditional ones of the sentimental melodrama. It is, nonetheless, a completely adult and extremely effective film. The plot concerns a 27-year-old French girl (Leslie Caron), pregnant as the result of a weekend excursion to rid herself of her "cumbersome virginity," who awaits the birth of her child in a seedy boarding house in a London slum.

The L-shaped room is her attic retreat, reduced to those dimensions by the landlady's avaricious creation of another rentable space from a tiny section of the upper floor. In this lives Johnny (Brock Peters), a West Indian jazz musician. In the room below, Toby (Tom Bell), a young writer of sorts, drearily confronts his battered typewriter.

In the L-shaped room the inevitable love affair between the Frenchwoman and Toby develops, and there it ends when Toby is unable to accept the mother of another man's child. She returns with her baby to France, he with new power to his typewriter.

Except for a leering and expensive would-be abortionist (Emlyn Williams) and one or two bit players, the characters in "The L-Shaped Room" are all residents of the boarding house run by simpering Doris (Avis Bunnage). They are Johnny, Jane and Toby; Mavis (Cicely Courtneidge), a faded variety actress; and two prostitutes (Patricia Phoenix and Verity Edmett).

None of these is exactly an original character, but each is redeemed from stereotype by understanding and skill on the part of the performer and interesting twists of characterization on the part of the writer. Mavis conceals not only a heart of gold 'neath her wrinkled and painted exterior but also a history of loyal lesbianism. Johnny is perhaps the first West Indian in film history with a moral code; and one of the prostitutes is an Hungarian refugee.

To those for whom the name Leslie Caron is synonymous with such gems of duo-syllabic cuteness as Lili, Gaby, Gigi, Fanny, etc., the British Film Academy's choice of her performance as the best of the year must appear as overly patriotic enthusiasm for a recently naturalized Englishwoman. Such, however, is not the case. The perennial waif has disappeared—to be replaced by a mature actress of warmth and perceptiveness. Furthermore, she is now called Jane.

As Toby—master of the quick quip and the face-saving gesture if not of the written word—Tom Bell displays intelligence and compassion. Brock Peters (last seen in "To Kill a Mockingbird") brings warmth and skill to a sympathetic but very demanding role. As well, he perfectly captures the wonderful prose-calypso cadence of West Indian English.

Bryan Forbes' second directing job shows him to be a sensitive, if somewhat over-enthusiastic artist. Though the cinematic techniques used in "The L-Shaped Room" do not measure up to the standards set by Tony Richardson and others of the English "nouveau vague," there are only a few disturbingly obvious cliches.

In general, the film combines the sensitivity of the current European cinema with a few of the least obnoxious Hollywood excesses, and the result is both artistically and emotionally satisfying. "L" stands for Love, Lust, Lucre, Loneliness, and an excellent reason for a trip to Durham.

By LEON CAPETANOS

"The L-Shaped Room", produced and directed by Bryan Forbes. Now playing at the Rialto Theatre in Durham.

"Sex is not a forbidden word" spouts the advertisements for "The L-Shaped Room" and when the public horror of these words comes from everybody's "Gigi", Leslie Caron, we are forced to gasp and decry a major moral catastrophe. But don't let the posters fool you. It's a serious movie in the best vein of modern British cinema.

A young French girl discovers that she is pregnant after a half-baked affair. London has some squalid slums and she plays her dilemma against the paper thin walls of her bug-infested room. She falls in love with a young writer but doesn't let him in on her little secret. Things go rosy during the suspended time of romance but our French girl's neighbor, a moralistic giant from the West Indies, spills the beans. As we know, there are no secrets in a tenement house. Anyway, the girl needs help but everybody wants her to do away with the unborn child. She finds this a little sickening. So here comes the crisis. The young writer can not accept her with another man's child. Before he says au revoir he hands her a copy of his story of their love (titled "The L-Shaped Room". Poetic justice?).

Before you decide you'd rather not take on this plot, I must let you in on something. The script is excellent and well paced. The acting, especially by Tom Bell as the young writer, is uniformly good. The film technique lags behind the other elements of this film, yet its close, emotional style is antiquated, if sufficient.

Bryan Forbes, producer-director, has assumed a tough cinematic job. A love story is a love story. There are so many cliches to be avoided that the script usually looks like a dissected frog after re-write. The excellence of this film hinges on the reality into which the cliches are placed. Reality, at best ,is half melodrama anyway. But the film sparkles with dialogue that tells us somebody has been watching and with moments that speak of the subtlety of love, the essence of affection.

""The L-Shaped-Room" is a very good example of fine cinema writing. Although the directing doesn't take advantage of the camera, it does produce through the actors some memorable emotional scenes. And for those of you who don't care a hoot or a madras beer about film as art, there is an added attraction. You get to see the fall of Leslie Caron in all its pulsating, sensual, barbaric, lusty, and sexy truth. It would have to be a vicarious sensation, but isn't that how you do it most of the time, you gay dogs?

Pay And Play

The decision of a California court, that a football player drawing compensation from his college for his play is a state employe entitled to unemployment compensation, naturally has made the heads of all colleges a little nervous.

The California situation may not in any way apply to young men receiving athletic scholarships in North Carolina. Still President Bill Friday seems to be building his case on almost comic foundations when he says that the boys who get athletic scholarships at Carolina do not legally even have to go on the practice field.

Somehow the word gets around, however, that those who pick up their checks had better also pick up the ball.

—From The Raleigh News & Observer

We are all capable of more than we do.
—Mary Baker Eddy

* * *

Men love to wonder, and that is the seed of science.
—Ralph Waldo Emerson

"You Mean Help Americans Twice In One Year?"

Yale Student Disagrees With Editors On Facts

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Today I received a copy of the DAILY TAR HEEL editorial of Sept. 28 on Yale and Gov. Wallace from a friend of mine attending the University of North Carolina. I do not know where you received your information but it is fallacious in regard to the Provost's role in the affaire Wallace. (By the way, Kingman Brewster is the acting President and not the President of Yale University as you call him in paragraph 3.)

Freedom of speech and inquiry does still exist at Yale but Provost Brewster cannot claim credit for it after the events of the last week. You state "the fact is that there was no hint of pressure put on the Union to withdraw their invitation" to Gov. Wallace. However, the YALE DAILY NEWS pointed out clearly in its editorial pages that the Provost had indicated to the Political Union that the use of a Yale building might be denied Wallace and/or plans for a permanent headquarters for the Political Union would be forgotten about if the invitation was not reconsidered (i.e. — withdrawn). The ensuing uproar by faculty and students alike resulted in a softening of the Provost's position. However, the damage has been done as it was a week later when Gov. Wallace was reinvited to Yale. Bey that time, the Alabama Governor had finalized his plans to speak at northern universities and it is extremely doubtful if he will come. So the Yale Administration can still ballyhoo freedom of speech but their immediate goal of keeping Gov. Wallace off the Yale campus has been accomplished.

I suggest that the DAILY TAR HEEL make a concentrated effort to obtain the facts first about an event 1000 miles away before commenting on it with such purported definitiveness on the editorial page. I wish you every success in establishing freedom of speech at Chapel Hill, but I would remind you that you are a state supported institution and, as such, the people of North Carolina through their elected state representatives do have the final voice.

Victor H. Ashe
Yale University

Still More!

Editors, The Tar Heel

I jest want to praise them fellers who spoke out in yer stoodent opinion poll against them commie stoodents who went to Cuba. One feller said we ought to OSTRACIZE em. I don't know what thet means but I'm sure its a good idea. Another feller said we ought to string em up by their thumbs. Thet's a great idea I think we also oughtta tar and feather em and stick em in concentrashun camps and boil em in oil and burn em at the steke and chop their heads off and line em up aginst a wall and shoot 'em. Thet would learn em: I bet they'd think twice before they'd go to Cuba again!

I think the travel ban law is a good law. The only bone I got to pick with it is thet I don't think its broad enuf. I went to the American Legion meeting the other nite and Mr. Phipps showed us a movie about "Communism on the Map". This movie said thet Mexico and Japan and England and France and thet wop country, Italy, are commie slave states jest like Cuba. I don't think stoodents should have the right to go to them countries either. Especially England: I hear them Englishmen got wild atheistic free love jest like Red Russia.

I read in the newspepper thet even their leaders chase nekkid wimmen around the streets. We shouldn't ought to let our Southern wimmenhood get near them English. Also there's them French fellers: EVERBODY knows about them. Our boys and girls will all go to Hell fer sure iffen they gets around French fellers. And do we want our Southern wimmenhood kickin up their heels over in Africa and Asia around all them COLORED BOYS? The purpose of the travel ban law is to keep stoodents from going to unAmerican commie places. I think thet all furreign countries are unAmerican and thet we shouldn't ought to let American stoodents travel abroad at all! However I guess if they wants to go to Spain or Alabama or South Vietwhupple thet'll be O. K. since Mr. Phipps sez thet they're still free countries.

Ima Whupple

P.S. I only got one thing to say to you parlor pink liberals who is aginst the stoodent travel ban: How would YOU like YOUR daughter to marry a furriner?

Agreement

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I am writing to back up the statements set forth by Mr. James W. Sturges in the October 4th edition of The Tar Heel, in which he praised the friendliness which he found here at Carolina. (He is undoubtedly a Yankee!) For I used to live up North and know that the Carolina attitude is one example of that good ole Southern hospitality. (It's wonderful, isn't it?)

Ted Etherington
312 Mangum

A Prayer

By CHARLES HEATHERLY

WE thank thee Oh Great Legislature for the haste in which you acted to protect us from dangerous exposure to Communism.

WE are grateful for the sacrifice which you made in ignoring your constitutional duties to act in our interests.

WE realize that it was without deliberation that you decided to rid us of Communist speakers, partakers of the fifth, and in general those who advocate the overthrow of our government. For, after only four minutes consideration in the Lower Body and 15 minutes in the Upper, you suspended the rules and passed this bill in our behalf, hardly giving dissenters enough time to open their mouths to register a protest, much less time enough to formulate a counter argument.

WE are aware of the shallowness of our perception and our inability often to discern between good and evil and therefore recognize the inherent threat of listening to proponents of Communism and without their presence, the danger of succumbing is completely removed.

WE are happy that you have taken away the need for us to make such a decision for ourselves.

WE commend thee for the sacrifice you made for us, in neglecting your constitutional duties to protect us from these evil spirits: that in the closing hours of the legislative session when you should have been considering redistricting yourselves as required by the constitution, you gladly overlooked your own interests and acted in ours.

WE offer these expressions of our gratitude for being safe to walk about campus free from fear of a Communist jumping from behind each tree, or leaping down upon us as we pass underneath the Davie Poplar, or threatening to marry our sisters and daughters, or even attempting to sway our feeble and immature minds with his doctrine from the stage of Memorial Hall.

TO thee Oh Great, Wise, Courageous, Unbiased, Unprejudiced and Unequivocating Legislature of impeccable integrity and competence, we give thanks.

Amen

We Are Not That Naive

By RON HENDREN

It seems to me that the haste and manner in which the so-called Gag Law was passed in the recent session of the state legislature calls for a closer inspection of the law as it compares with our basic ideas and American Principles.

There was a time when Americans believed that our strength lay in our freedom, not in the lack of it, in justice and equality, not in prejudice, hate and fear. There was a time when we held that the only defender of freedom is freedom itself; yet today there are those who would profess to protect freedom by bottling it up. This implies a weakness in the very foundations of the nation. So it is with the Gag Law.

Freedom of education, the expression of ideals and freedom, the exchanging of beliefs, plays a major role in keeping a free America and working toward a free mankind throughout the world. And we cannot afford to hamper institutions of education by limiting their ability to present to students all ideas and ideals, even though they be contrary to American beliefs, for this is the very backbone of education.

The law seems to imply that we are to force Americanism upon students, even as the Communists force Marxism upon their youth. This will not work; it is entirely contrary to that which we propose to believe. Rather our strength comes from Americans choosing freely the democratic way of life and government. And through history who has proved the stronger: He who is dedicated by force through ignorance and prejudice; or he who is dedicated by choice through freedom of education? The Gag Law is one of the first steps toward limiting that freedom, and this is why it is against the best interests of students, the University, North Carolina, and freedom. We are paying for our education; let's do all in our power to see that we get as complete an education as possible.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Informal sorority rush will begin on Oct. 11. If interested, sign list in Dean of Women's office before Tues. noon.

University Baptist Church Student Forum — 5:45 p.m., Dr. John W. Dixson, "Religion and Art."

Graduate Students Mixer — 3 p. m., Temple Emanuel, 713 N. Green St., Greensboro for UNC and Woman's College Hillel.

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Chapel of the Cross Parish House, Mr. Jerrold Baab will lead discussion and criticism of recording of the "Jazz Mass."

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m. Sunday Common Meeting in basement, University Methodist Church.

Student Peace Union — 3 p.m., 203 Alumni Chairman John Dunne will review "The Limits of Defense" by Arthur Waskow. A discussion will follow.

FUTURE

Physical Therapy Club — 6:30 p.m, Mon., Clinic Auditorium of N. C. Memorial Hospital, speak- Robert Lasiter of Society of Crippled Children.

Attorney General's Staff Members. assigned to work with I.D.C.— 6:30 p.m., Mon., Council Room of G.M.

Student Government — 2-5 p.m. daily interviews for limited committee, apply 210 Graham Memorial.

University Party — 3-5 p.m., Tues. and Wed., Woodhouse Room GM, Interviews for six vacancies in Student Legislature.

Faculty Club — 1 p.m., Tues., Prof Federico Gil, "The Diplomacy of the Social Revolution."

WRC — 6:45 p.m., Tues., Grail Room.

Elisha Mitchell Society — 7:30 p.m., Tues., Room 265, Phillips Hall, Dr. S. Y. Tyree, "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

YM-YWCA Dix Hill Committee, 3 p.m., Tues., Roland Parker 2 for all interested students.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital,$1 charge.

Intramural Managers get applications — Starting Mon. 1-5 p.m., 315 Wollen Gym, 23 positions to be filled. Sign up for interview when submitting application.

NAACP—8 p.m., Mon., business meeting.

Collegiate Council for The United Nations — 5-6:30 p.m., Mon., Roland Parker Lounge, organization and planning meeting.

Divisional Directors of Student Government Activities—3 p.m. Mon., Office of the President of the Student Body, organizational meeting.

WAA Council Meeting—5 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym, Very important that all members attend.

Golf Club—1 p.m., Mon.

Splash Club—7 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym.

Square Dance and Folk Dance Mixer—7 p.m., Tues., Women's Gym, Bring a partner and swing away.

Tennis Club—3:30 p.m., Tues. & Thur., Women's Gym.

Hockey Club—4 p.m., Thur., Women's Gym, Organizational meeting.

Hillel Student Cabinet Meeting —scheduled for Monday has been changed to next Monday, Oct, 14, 7 p.m.

MOVIES

Carolina—Rampage
Varsity—For Love or Money

Sunday Cinema—Sawdust and Tinsel, 7:30 and 9 p.m., Carroll Hall.

Rialto—The L-Shaped Room

WUNC-TV Opens News Analysis Show Monday

"News in Perspective," an hour-long program of news interpretations, presented monthly by The New York Times and National Educational Television, premieres Monday on Channel 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Each edition of the program is designed particularly to clarify the complexities of current history and features a distinguished three-man team from The New York Times offering summary and interpretation of major new developments throughout the world and providing a background for better understanding of probable future events.

In addtion to its debut on Oct. 7, "News in Perspective" is insured by Channel 4's new scheduling policy two repeat dates — on Tuesday, Oct. 8 at 11:15 a.m.: and Sunday, Oct. 13, at 5:30 p.m.

* * *

SUNDAY

4:00 Beyond Earth
4:30 Eric Hoffer
5:00 Hear Music
5:30 South, 2 Views
6:30 Israel
7:00 E. Kazan
7:30 What in World?
8:00 Firkusny
9:30 Sign Off

MONDAY

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Hear Music
11:30 Uganda
12:00 Amer. Work
12:15 Mid-Day News
12:30 Aspect
1:00 Sign Off
5:00 Algebra
6:00 Dancer's World
6:30 What's New
7:00 News
7:30 Perspective
8:30 Encounter
9:30 Goldberg
10:15 Sign Off

Tar Heel Writers On Forum Panel

Does the writer have a responsibility to society? This is one of the many questions to be discussed Friday, October 25, by the first North Carolina Writers Forum for Charlotte.

"The Writer's Obligation to Truth" is the theme of the two-hour forum, to be sponsored by the Charlotte Junior Woman's Club, with the Charlotte Observer and Queens College as co-sponsors.

A panel of four North Carolina writers will offer their ideas on the writer as a responsible human being. Members of the audience will be given an opportunity to question, argue and present their own ideas.

The panel members are:

Paul Green, of Chapel Hill, Pulitzer Prize playwright and author of the new book of essays, "Plough and Furrow." Mr. Green has been called "a writer with a social conscience."

Russell Brantley, of Winston-Salem, director of communications for Wake Forest College, former newspaperman and author of the controversial, "The Education of Jonathan Beam". Mr. Brantley is now at work on a second novel.

Robert Mitchum Elsa Martinelli Jack Hawkins
RAMPAGE
Screenplay by ROBERT I. HOLT and MARGUERITE ROBERTS
Directed by PHIL KARLSON A SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR® Presented by WARNER BROS.
Produced by WILLIAM FADIMAN
Shows at: 1:00 - 2:56 - 4:52 - 6:48 - 8:44
NOW PLAYING
Carolina
SOON
LESLIE CARON
In
"THE L SHAPED ROOM"

— Speaker Ban —

(Continued from Page 1)

many speakers who had absolutely no Communist ties might refuse to speak at the University rather than submit to the embarassment of an affadavit concerning their political activities.

Thus armed with legal criticism and ideological comments, the crusaders against the speaker ban went forth seeking repeal, revision or amendment. They found their job a hard one indeed.

Efforts at immediate repeal or amendment have met with a number of obstacles.

Special Session

The possibility that the issue might be reconsidered in the special fall General Assembly session was ended by the announcement that only redistricting would be discussed. The General Assembly does not meet again until 1965.

It is doubtful, however, that a real attempt could or would have been made had the legislature not stopped the issue itself. A repeal requires a strong case for the opposition, lest such an attempt meet with disaster. Such an occurrence would probably mean the end of repeal or revision attempts.

If the bill's opponents are reluctant to wait until 1965 to have the bill considered, the only other real weapon is a test case in the courts to establish the constitutionality of the law. But court efforts are also tedious, and often extend over months or years. Thus many of those who oppose the bill fear that it could be tied up in the courts when the General Assembly convenes in 1965. In addition, there is a widespread feeling that a test case would be dangerous to the University, and such a move will come only as a last resort.

Meanwhile, efforts are being made. Letters are being written, students are conducting educational campaigns, and plans are being laid. Those who oppose the law are aware of the task that lies ahead of them. The elections of 1964 will be important, and the speaker ban will no doubt be an issue.

The general feeling, however, is that the law cannot stand if the citizens of North Carolina are made aware of the position of the University—the position that the freedom to speak and to hear, and most of all the freedom to conduct its own affairs, is the lifeblood of her ideals and her aspirations.

WUNC Schedule

WUNC Radio goes on the air Monday night at 6 p.m. for the 1963-64 school year. Programs will run until midnight every night except Sunday. Turn your FM radio dial to 91.5 megacycles and listen.

MONDAY

6:00 The Dinner Hour:
Bach—Partita No. 3 for unaccompanied violin
von Weber — Overture to Oberon
Beethoven — Leonore Overture No. 3
Verdi—Overture to La Forza del Destino
Mozart — Overture to the Marriage of Figaro
Rachmaninoff—Prelude in G Minor
6:55 News
7:00 Spectrum: African Broadcasting Corporation —"Birth Suit" and "The Soul of the White Ant"
8:00 Masterwork:
Brahms: Academic Festival Overture
Bach: Italian Concerto
Mozart: Eine Kleine Nachtmusik
Beethoven: First Symphony No. 1
Beethoven: Sonata No. 2
Lalo: Symphony Espagnole
10:00 Ten O'clock Report
10:15 Stars for Defense
10:30 American Adventure
11:00 Hillside Jazz Premier: Frost Branon with Music
12:00 News

Weekend Special Sale
55 x 10 3 Bedroom Mobile Home
Completely Furnished $3695
Economical Living Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

HURRY ON DOWN
New Studio Cards
Ledbetter Pickard
STAY ON IT

PEANUTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Corpulent
4. Christmas month: abbr.
7. In this place
8. Metallic rocks
10. Category, as art
11. Slants
13. To form and occupy a camp
15. Lamb' pen
16. Certain playing cards
17. Close to
19. Girl's name
20. Communist
21. Punish severely
23. Dens
24. African animal
27. Insane
30. Actress ___ Gardner
31. East Indies: abbr.
32. Govern
33. Weeps
35. Unadorned
37. Peered
39. Performed
40. Period of time
41. Swerve
42. Pigpen
43. Blunder

DOWN
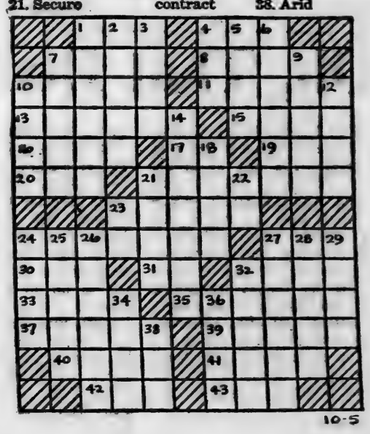
1. Enclosed, as a playground
2. Tapestry
3. Abound
4. Speck
5. A Great Lake
6. Basement
7. Consequently
9. Prick painfully
10. Equipment
12. Rational
14. Peaceable
18. Ripped
21. Secure
22. United States: abbr.
23. Music note
24. Pant
25. African export
26. Hydrophobia
27. Assemble, as troops
28. Change
29. Land contract
32. American snake
34. Membership
36. Own
38. Arid

Yesterday's Answer



Exciting Art First! Exclusively at The Intimate
Collector's Choice of the World's
GREAT DRAWINGS
Reproduced in the Most Exacting COLOR and Detail
INCREDIBLE VALUE AT 1.00 each

DR177. (Frame B)

DR153. (Frame A)

DR174.

LATEST WORD from trend-setting art collectors and decorators .... "Drawings are definitely IN! They have a charm all their own, add a warm, distinctive touch to any room and give endless pleasure." Now, at the INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, we're first with the best color facsimiles of fine drawings and watercolors at this low, low price.

EVERY DRAWING in this fabulous collection is an acknowledged masterpiece—spontaneous, spirited ... by Rembrandt, Dürer, Goya, Degas, Cézanne, Picasso, and other masters. In fascinating combinations of pencil, ink and colored chalk; charcoal, sepia and crayon; wash and watercolor, pastel, tempera and other media. Beautifully printed on heavy, antique art stock — with all the delicacy and detail of the originals.

Choose from classic figure drawings and marvelous portraits, from airy landscapes and bold modern lithographs. Each drawing comes in a folder that contains its own prefitted mat to save you effort and expense. Frame them and arrange them on your walls to lend sophistication to your decor.

Choice 14" x 18" subjects listed below may be ordered by mail or phone, or come in and see the entire collection including many in 12" x 16" size.

GREAT DRAWINGS (Size 14x18")
v (vertical) — h (horizontal)
DR101. Rubens: Young Woman with Crossed Hands (v)
DR102. Blake: Laocoön (v)
DR103. Botticelli: Abundance, or Autumn (v)
DR105. Dürer: Study for St. Apolonia (v)
DR107. Gainsborough: A Woodland Valley (h)
DR108. Goya: Charles V Fighting the Bull at Valadolid (h)
DR109. Kuhn: Pleasant Evening (h)
DR110. Li T'Ang: The Return of Duke Wen of Chin (h)
DR111. Lorrain: Tree and Vines (v)
DR112. Lorrain: Landscape (v)
DR113. Luini: Virgin with the Christ Child & St. John the Baptist (v)
DR114. Maillol: Female Nudes (v)
DR116. Pereda: St. Jerome Writing (v)
DR117. Rubens: Study for a St. Magdalen (v)
DR118. Rubens: Study for River God (h)
DR119. Soyer: Reclining Woman (h)
DR120. Tao-Chi: House Among Pines (v)
DR121. Titian: Portrait of a Woman (v)
DR122. Titian: Rider and Fallen Foe (v)
DR123. Lautrec: Woman Sleeping (h)
DR124. Yuan-Ch'i: The Wang-Ch'uan Villa, after Wan Wei (h)
DR125. Van Gogh: The Blue Cart (h)
DR126. Gericault: Fighting Horses (h)
DR127. Lautrec: Portrait, Jane Avril (v)
DR128. Picasso: Mother and Child, Four Studies for a Right Hand (v)
DR130. Van Dyck: Study for Christ Crowned with Thorns (v)
DR131. Van Dyck: Studies of a Woman Sleeping (h)
DR132. Rembrandt: The Return of the Prodigal Son (v)
DR133. Degas: Giovanna Bellelli (v)
DR134. Degas: Ballet Dancer Facing Inward, Hands on Hips (v)
DR135. Degas: Houses Upon Cliffs Overlooking a Bay (h)
DR136. Cézanne: Study, Card Players (v)
DR137. Gauguin: Breton Bather (v)
DR138. Rubens: Portrait of Isabella Brant (v)
DR140. Ley: Man in a Turban (v)
DR141. Verrocchio: Head of a Woman with Elaborate Coiffure (v)
DR142. Breu: Portrait of a Young Woman (v)
DR143. Breughel: Landscape with Rest on the Flight into Egypt (h)
DR144. Whistler: Maud Reading (v)
DR145. Da Vinci: Study of Woman's Head (v)
DR148. Buffet: Interieur (h)
DR147. Kollwitz: Mother and Child (h)
DR148. Jongkind: Le Pont De Leguieres (h)
DR149. Boucher: Nude with Child (h)
DR150. Ingres: Study for The Iliad (v)
DR151. Cézanne: Still Life with Pears and Apples (h)
DR152. Boudin: Marine Scene (h)
DR153. Picasso: Blue Boy (v)
DR154. Morisot: Portrait Studies of Jeanne Pontillon (v)
DR155. Homer: Study for "The Wreck Of The Iron Crown" (v)
DR156. Gainsborough: Landscape with Resting Men (h)
DR157. Boucher: Girl with Jug (v)
DR158. Chardin: Reading Woman with Child (h)
DR160. Liotard: Profile of a Woman (v)
DR161. Luini: Lady with Fan (v)
DR162. Modiglioni: Portrait of Woman (v)
DR163. Dürer: Praying Hands (v)
DR164. Renoir: La Promenade (v)
DR165. Renoir: Torso of Woman (v)
DR166. Degas: Ballet Dancer (v)
DR167. Pascin: Two Seated Women (v)
DR168. Goya: Man Taming a Horse (v)
DR169. Jongkind: Landscape (v)
DR170. Picasso: Head of a Boy (v)
DR171. Turner: Landscape (h)
DR172. Seurat: The Stonebreaker (h)
DR173. Reubens: Seated Woman (v)
DR174. Reubens: Head of a Boy (v)
DR175. Düren View of Salzburg (h)
DR176. Manet: Seaside Villa (h)
DR177. Constable: Coast Scene with Ships (h)
DR178. Watteau: Woman Standing and Seated (v)

Very Special! Beautiful Frames (with Glass) for These Drawings
The framing service is FREE while you wait, if you wish
Designed by an art gallery consultant and made by a leading custom-framing house to bring out all the character and beauty of your drawings. Size 14" x 18".
Style A: Gold foil, ¾" molding. Rich sheen and classic simplicity, with lift-up clasps in back (no nailing required).
Only 3.95
Style B: Gilt rim, 2" molding of gray linen, white inner lip, lift-up clasps.
Only 4.95

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin Street
Please send the following Great Drawings @ 1.00 ea.:
_____ _____ _____ _____
_____ _____ _____ _____
Send _____ frames Style A @ 3.95 ea.
Send _____ frames Style B @ 4.95 ea.
Name _____
Address _____
City, State _____
☐ Charge my acct. # ☐ Check or M.O.

Navy Spoils Opener Of UNC Kickers, 6-0

By RON LOGAN

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Powerful Navy kept UNC's booters bottled up in their own territory much of the match here yesterday and went on to a relatively easy 6-0 win.

The Midshipmen, tabbed "my best Navy soccer team" by Coach Glenn Warner, scored two times in the first, third & fourth quarters while keeping Carolina on the defensive throughout the contest.

The fine play of Buddy Siegel in goal, and George Beim and Park McGinty at the halfbacks was all that prevented Navy from making it a complete rout. Beim played the Middies' All-American inside right, Karl Kaeser, man for man and almost completely nullified his effectiveness.

Kaeser did score Navy's second goal in the first period, but it was a headed rebound shot that neither Siegel nor Beim had any chance on.

Wingman Paul Daulerie got the Midshipmen started in the opening quarter with a 15-foot liner at the 9:20 mark. Kaeser added his score just before the end of the period at 19:08.

UNC and Navy went scoreless in the second quarter. Carolina, as was to be the case throughout, never mustered an offensive threat. Siegel made several brilliant saves in the period.

But Navy got moving late in the third quarter and scored two goals within three minutes to put it away. Wingmen Jim Checkett and Bob Vance tallied at 16:58 and 19:25, respectively.

The Midshipmen added two other insurance scores in the final quarter. Vance scored his second goal at 9:17 to make it 5-0 and fullback Dick Stark concluded with a successful shot at 14:25.

Coach Marvin Allen summed up UNC's troubles adequately.

"We couldn't control the ball enough to take the pressure off our defense," said Allen. "I was pleased with the defensive play, though. Siegel, McGinty and Beim were outstanding."

Though Allen didn't mention it, sophomore George Butler also played excellently in his varsity debut at left fullback.

Siegel was credited with 14 saves for the ball game as Navy kept the ball in UNC territory for something close to 80% of the time.

Navy Coach Warner said UNC was extremely tougher than Virginia which the Midshipmen beat by the same 6-0 score last week. "UNC had a noticeably better scoring threat than Virginia provided," said warner.

SCORING

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| NAVY | 2 | 0 | 2 | 2 | —6 |
| UNC | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —0 |

FIRST QUARTER: Navy—Daulerio (9:20); Kaeser (19:08) SECOND QUARTER: No Scoring. THIRD QUARTER: Navy—Checkett (16:58), Vance (19:25) FOURTH QUARTER: Navy — Vance (9:17), Stark (14:25).

Harriers Sweep So, So Easily On 15-51 Rout

CLEMSON, S. C. — North Carolina's fine cross-country team scored another lopsided decision here yesterday as Coach Joe Hilton's runners smashed Clemson, 15-51.

Jimmy Meade and Art Maillet, the two men who tied for first place in last week's easy win over Wake Forest, deadlocked for the top spot again today. But this time, they had the company of teammate Jerry Smith.

Scores

EAST
Buffalo 14 Villanova 7
Penn State 28 Rice 7
Pitt 35 California 15
Syracuse 48 Holy Cross 0
Oregon 35 West Virginia 0
Colgate 6 Boston U. 6
Dartmouth 28, Penn 0
Harvard 28, Rutgers 0
Princeton 7 Columbia 6
Brown 12 Yale 7
SOUTH
NC State 7 Clemson 3
Duke 30 Maryland 12
VPI 10 Virginia 0
Georgia 27 South Carolina 7
LSU 7 Georgia Tech 6
Auburn 14 Kentucky 13
Memphis State 28 Tulsa 15
Mississippi State 7 Tennessee 0
Florida 35 Richmond 28
Davidson 10, VMI 10
MIDWEST
Illinois 10 Northwestern 9
Ohio State 21 Indiana 0
Navy 26 Michigan 13
Minnesota 34 Army 8
Purdue 7 Notre Dame 6
WEST
Arkansas 18 TCU 3
UCLA 10 Stanford 9
SMU 10 Air Force 0
Iowa 17 Washington 7

—Jackson's TD Catch Features Win—

(Continued from Page 1)

yards, then shot a pass straight up the middle to Atherton in the end zone for the six-pointer.

First UNC Score

Two key runs by second-team fullback Frank Bowman, coupled with two penalties against Wake Forest late in the first quarter, set up the Tar Heels' first TD, which came with 1:50 gone in the second period.

After both teams had matched ragged play for most of the opening quarter, quarterback Sweetan caught the UNC defense off guard on a fourth-and-six situation from the UNC 40.

The big junior college transfer let fly what appeared to be a TD pass to halfback George Emmons. Emmons had streaked down the left sideline, slipped past safetyman Black and was all alone at the 10, only to drop Sweetan's beautiful aerial.

Carolina took possession and, on the first play, Bowman ripped off 16 yards up the middle. After a five-yard penalty against the Deacons, Black rolled out for a five-yard gain. Another penalty against Wake Forest, this time a 15-yarder, placed the Tar Heels on the enemy 19.

Bowman, getting good blocking, plowed off tackle and down to the 13 as the quarter ended.

The first team came back into the game at this point, and Willard attempted an end sweep for no gain. Edge had bettter luck, sweeping left end for nine yards and a first down on the Wake four.

It took UNC three plays to score from here, Edge finally doing it on a one-yard sneak after Willard and Kesler had gained one and two yards, respectively, off tackle.

Late in the half, a 36-yard burst by Kesler took the ball down to the Wake 44, and another TD was envisioned by UNC fans. But three plays later, Deacon Wally Bridwell picked off an Edge flat pass at the 30 and raced down the sidelines untouched until Edge caught him at the UNC 14.

Here, the UNC defense held, and Sweentan was forced to try a field goal from the 16. It was off to the right and the half ended with UNC deep in its own territory.

Wolfpack In Upset; Duke Stages Rally

CLEMSON, S. C. (UPI) — End Ray Barlow took quarterback Jim Rossi's desperation pass in the closing minutes of the first half Saturday for the touchdown that gave North Carolina State a 7-3 Atlantic Coast Conference upset over Clemson.

The speedy Barlow, a junior from Crewe, Va., broke into the clear when his defender, sophomore halfback Joe Sellers, slipped and fell. Barlow was all alone at the State 40 and loped the rest of the way on a 77-yard touchdown play.

Clemson, getting good yardage from fullback Pat Crain and Bob Swift, moved the ball everywhere but across the goal. State gained fewer than 30 yards on the ground and, except for its long scoring toss, only a few more in the air.

RICHMOND, Va. (UP) — The Duke Blue Devils, led by sophomore quarterback Scott Glacken, exploded for three fourth-period touchdowns Saturday to take a 30-12 victory over Maryland in the nationally televised 15th annual Tobacco Bowl.

Glacken, starting for the first time in his career, displayed the finesse of a veteran as he led defending champion Duke to its third consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference win of the season. Glacken, a native of Bethesda, Md., a few miles from the University of Maryland ran for one touchdown, passed for another and engineered a third.

Maryland led 12-10 going into the final quarter, but the Blue Devils unleashed a powerful offense to roll over the Terrapins.

PAYING JOBS IN EUROPE

Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, Oct. 2, 1963 — The American Student Information Service is accepting applications for summer jobs in Europe. Openings include office jobs, lifeguarding, factory work, shipboard work, child care work, resort and sales work. Wages range to $400 a month.

ASIS also announced that residual funds permit the first 4000 applicants travel grants of $165 each. Interested students should write to Dept. O, ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxembourg City, Grand Duch of Luxembourg, requesting the ASIS 24-page prospectus with job selection and travel grant and job applications. Send $1 for the prospectus and airmail postage. The first 8000 inquiries receive a $1 credit towards the new book: Earn, Learn and Travel in Europe.

CLASSIFIED ADS

PART-TIME, DURHAM - CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

NEEDED: FOURTH MAN FOR apartment near campus. For information call 942-6840.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Sale — Miscellaneous

A BARGAIN — A COLUMBIA CONsole, Hi-Fi phonograph. Plays 33, 45 or 78 records. Bought new last year, will sell at half price. Phone 942-3953 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.

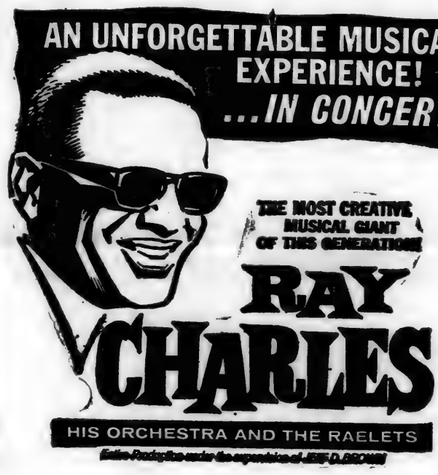
1963 — Elva Courier .... $2600
1962 — Alfa Romeo Sprint ..... $2500
1960 — Triumph TR-3 .... $1325
1961 — M. G. Sedan ..... $1200
1960 — Renault 4CV ..... $450
1959 — Vauxhall ..... $700
1960 — VW Panel Truck .. $1000
1961 — MGA—Perfect .... $1500

imported cars ltd.

PHONE 942-7151

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA — Raleigh
One Show — 8:30 P.M.

AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE! ...IN CONCERT



THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS

Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; Bender Drug, Fayetteville.

Oh, That Dodger Pitching!

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dodger Don Drysdale took advantage of one tainted run and broke the backs of the New York Yankees Saturday with a three-hit 1-0 victory which gave Los Angeles its third straight series triumph.

The towering righthander continued the peerless pitching which has been the Dodger trademark in all three games as he fanned nine hitters. He even shrugged off a seventh-inning fiasco by his mates in a two-men-on-third burlesque which was right out of their old daffiness days in Brooklyn.

But while those days were filled with travail, this time it all had a happy ending as the Dodgers hung the defeat on young Jim Bouton. A roaring crowd of 55,912 in baseball's glittering new Taj Mahal watched the Dodgers put themselves in a roseate spot where now they only need one more win and have four games—if necessary—in which to do it.

The Dodgers made only four hits—yet Bouton had only himself to blame for defeat in a pitching performance which would have won most games.

The Dodgers blew the pennant last year and it has dogged them ever since, even though they came through valiantly all this season. Yet, going into the series, they were the underdogs.

But once again in this series they jumped off on top—and then left it up to the guy on the mound.

There was one man out in the first inning when Bouton sealed his doom by walking Jim Gilliam. The lean Gilliam held first when Willie Davis flied to right but then, with Tommy Davis up, Bouton uncorked a wild pitch and Gilliam raced down to second.

Tommy Davis, the National League batting king, slashed a single off the glove of Bobby Richardson and when the ball bounced into short right field, Gilliam rushed all the way home with the run.

That was it for the whole ball game. But Drysdale found that one run enough as he fanned nine hitters — Mickey Mantle twice—and pitched himself out of three jams for victory.

The Yankees appeared as if they might get to big Don in the second when they got the first two men on with none out. Mantle, hitless in seven trips to the plate, attempted a bunt and, as Gilliam raced in from third, the ball blooped over his head for a cheap single. Now Drysdale let loose a pitch which struck Joe Pepitone on the leg and two Yanks were on the sacks.

But big Don was master of the situation. He fanned Elston Howard and John Blanchard hit a ground ball which advanced Mantle to third and Pepitone to second, Clete Boyer was given an intentional walk to fill the bases and then Drysdale, his fast ball moving and his curve a thing of tantalizing aggravation, struck out Bouton.

Tony Kubek led off the Yankee third and was safe at first when Maury Wills waved at his grounder for an error. But big Don picked him off base and that ended that.

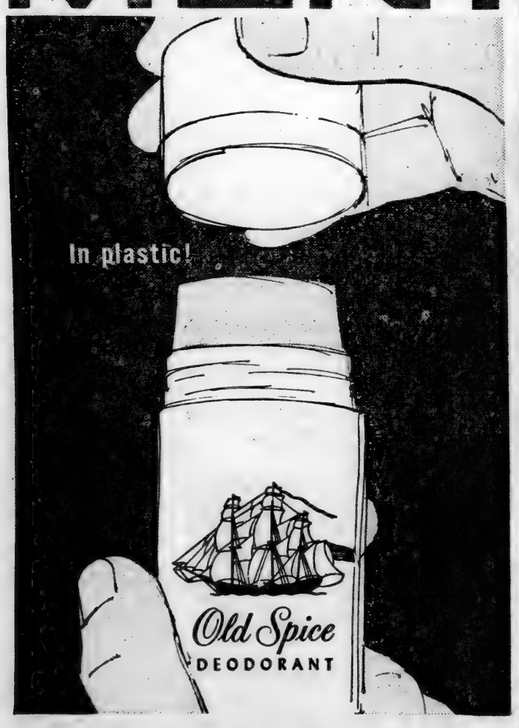
"This was the big one," said Dodger manager Walter Alston.

"It's getting better all the time."

"We're simply not hitting," analyzed Yankee skipper Ralph Houk.

He wasn't too optimistic about Sunday's fourth game, either, where he'll shoot with Whitey Ford, beaten in the first game.

MEN!



Here's deodorant protection
YOU CAN TRUST

Old Spice Stick Deodorant... fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the man's deodorant preferred by men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant — most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.

Old Spice STICK DEODORANT
SHULTON

Swingline
Fables for Fun

Confucius say, one day in fun,
To a friend and Number One Son,
"With my Swingline I'll fuse
Your most honorable queues
Because two heads are better than one!"

SWINGLINE STAPLER

98c
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
• Unconditionally guaranteed!
• Refills available anywhere!
• Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
• Send in your own Swingline Fable. Prizes for those used.

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N.Y.

SALUTING OUR PHARMACISTS

YOUR LOCAL DRUGGIST . . . A KEY MEMBER OF OUR NATION'S HEALTH TEAM

Every week of every year, approximately 117,000 pharmacists serve the American family in a tremendously vital area — health. Now, during National Pharmacy Week, we pause to honor the pharmacist for his dedicated and efficient around-the-clock service. To him we gratefully say, "Thanks for a job well-done."

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
159 E. Franklin
PHONE 942-5161

On Campus with Max Shulman
(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

WORDS: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

Today let us take up the subject of etymology (or entomology, as it is sometimes called) which is the study of word origins (or insects, as they are sometimes called).

Where are word origins (insects) to be found? Well sir, sometimes words are proper names which have passed into the language. Take, for instance, the words used in electricity: ampere was named after its discoverer, the Frenchman Andre Marie Ampere (1775-1836); similarly, ohm was named after the German G.S. Ohm (1781-1854), watt after the Scot James Watt (1736-1819), and bulb after the American Fred C. Bulb (1843-1912).

There is, incidentally, quite a poignant little story about Mr. Bulb. Until Bulb's invention, all illumination was provided by gas, which was named after its inventor Milton T. Gas who, strange to tell, had been Bulb's roommate at Cal Tech! In fact, strange to tell, the third man sharing the room with Bulb and Gas was also one whose name burns bright in the annals of illumination—Walter Candle!

The three roommates were inseparable companions in college. After graduation all three did research in the problems of artificial light, which at this time did not exist. All America used to go to bed with the chickens, and many fine citizens were, alas, severely injured falling off the roost.

Well sir, the three comrades—Bulb, Gas, and Candle—promised to be friends forever when they left school, but success, alas, spoiled all that. First Candle invented the candle, got rich, and forgot his old friends. Then Gas invented gas, got rich, bankrupted Candle, and forgot his old friends. Then Bulb invented the bulb, got rich, bankrupted Gas, and forgot his old friends.

Candle and Gas, bitter and impoverished at the ages respectively of 75 and 71, went to sea as respectively the world's oldest and second oldest cabin boy. Bulb, rich and grand, also went to sea, but he went in style—as a first-class passenger on luxury liners.

Well sir, strange to tell, all three were aboard the ill-fated Lusitania when she was sunk in the North Atlantic. And strange to tell, when they were swimming for their lives after the shipwreck, all three clambered aboard the same dinghy!

Well sir, chastened and made wiser by their brush with peril, they fell into each other's arms and wept and exchanged forgiveness and became fast friends all over again.

For three years they drifted in the dinghy, shaking hands and singing the Cal Tech rouser all the while. Then, at long last, they spied a passing liner and were taken aboard.

They remained fast friends for the rest of their days, which, I regret to report, were not many, because the liner which picked them up was the Titanic.

What a pity that Marlboros were not invented during the lifetimes of Bulb, Gas, and Candle. Had there been Marlboros, these three friends never would have grown apart because they would have realized how much, despite their differences, they still had in common. I mean to say that Marlboros can be lit by candle, by gas, and by electricity, and no matter how you light them, you always get a lot to like—a filter, a flavor, a pack or box that makes anyone—including Bulb, Gas, and Candle—settle back and forswear pettiness and smile the sweet smile of friendship on all who pass!

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

Etymology is not the business of the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, who sponsor this column. We deal in rich tobaccos and fine filters. Try a pack soon.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Late City Edition
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Fair and Warmer

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1963 | United Press International Service

Cuban Premier Relaxes With Visiting Students

FIDEL CASTRO, shirtless and surrounded by American students and members of his revolutionary army takes on one of the visitors in a game of ping-pong during a day at Varadaro Beach, Cuba.

—Photos by John Salter

John Salter in Cuba: I

A Quiet, Courteous Boy, Salter Is Also 'Very Proud Of Cuba'

By GARY BLANCHARD

To all appearances, former UNC student John Salter, 22, is a most unlikely candidate for an allegedly illegal trip to Cuba.

Mild-mannered and courteous, he came to UNC from the Greensboro Quaker school of Guilford College in the middle of his junior year. His Guilford classmates remember him, if at all, as a slight, quiet young man who never bothered anyone and never attracted attention to himself.

He lived in Burlington until he was 16, then moved to his present home of Greensboro with his parents and teenaged sister.

He transferred to UNC "because I wanted to take Journalism courses and avail myself of a wider range of activities than I could at Guilford," he says.

He wasn't at Carolina long before the 1962 spring elections were held. Suddenly the campus knew him as an independent candidate for the student body vice-presidency. His running mate was Larry Phelps of Burlington, who graduated from UNC last June.

(Phelps, Salter and a handful of other UNC students later formed a campus chapter of the Progressive Labor Club, a Marxist-Leninist group, and gained control of the New Left Club, a discussion group "for anyone left of Kennedy." Both organizations have since apparently folded.)

Salter and Phelps ran on a platform of total universal, as opposed to unilateral, disarmament; complete, but not instant, integration; and de-emphasis, or abolition if necessary, of intercollegiate athletics.

They proposed a debate, which never occurred, between themselves and the nominees of the campus' two political parties, "on issues other than trivial campus affairs."

JOHN SALTER, former UNC student from Greensboro, who was one of 59 American students who went to Cuba last summer in defience of a State Department travel ban.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

At the polls, both students got swamped. Phelps captured 241 votes out of 3,788 cast for the presidency; Salter got 203 out of the 3,819 cast for the vice-presidency.

Afterwards, Salter dropped back into relative obscurity and remained there until he and Phelps revealed the following fall that they were part of a group of American and Canadian students invited to Cuba for Christmas by the Castro government.

The trip was cancelled, however, as the U. S. State Department allegedly pressured the Canadian government into refusing to allow the students to leave from Canadian soil.

Soon thereafter, Salter dropped out of UNC because of low grades. His next foray into the news came early last summer when the UNC summer school newspaper learned from Washington sources that he had joined the 5-day flying trip to Cuba of 59 U. S. students.

"I went," says Salter, "to see what was happening for myself, and as a direct confrontation of the Travel Ban.

"The charge that we overlooked the national interest depends on what you consider the national interest. I personally think it is in the national interest that Americans be allowed to go to countries such as Cuba and see what's happening for themselves."

Since returning home he has visited Chapel Hill several times, so he's "run into students mostly. They've been very receptive to my views and impressions of Cuba," he says.

"My parents, of course, knew I was going to go. They were concerned with my safety in Cuba, about what would happen to me when I came back, and the fact that I was defying the State Department.

"They preferred I not go. But I more or less felt I couldn't pass up the opportunity."

His immediate personal plans are to find a job and take correspondence courses so he can improve his grades and re-enter UNC, next spring if possible.

Also, he says, "I plan to make up a slide show—I took over a thousand pictures—and show it at colleges and universities around the state. I'm supposed to speak at the New Left Club at Duke University sometime in the next few weeks.

"I certainly hope this (the trip) isn't going to hurt my future," he adds. "The only thing I want to do is finish college. I might go to graduate school in sociology if I can. I don't have any particular career in mind."

Salter says he was "interested" in socialism before he came to Carolina. "Carolina just gave me an atmosphere in which I was free to think.

"I didn't find any socialist professors there. But I met people who were able to put into words many of the concepts I'd been mulling over in my mind, pertaining to socialism.

"Yes, I've encountered this reaction of 'Oh well, he's just a young kid.' I certainly believe my views will change as time passes, but I think I'll always basically be a socialist."

Asked why he came back to the U.S. if Cuba so impressed him, Salter says:

"I came home because it wasn't my country; because it wasn't my revolution; it wasn't my culture.

"But if I were a Cuban, I think I'd be very proud, as most of them are."

JOHN SHERILL, of Acme, N. C., one of four North Carolina students on the Cuban trip, is shown while on tour in Cuba. Sherill attended Guilford College in Greensboro while Salter was a student there.

Piano-Violin Duo Will Open Series

Harold Cone, internationally acclaimed pianist, and his wife Madeleine Carabo-Cone, violinist, will appear here in the first Tuesday Evening Series Concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The Cones will perform the same program of sonatas by Handel, Brahms, Debussy, and Prokofiev with which they made their debut as a duo-sonata team in New York's Carnegie Hall in June.

Although Harold Cone is best known to world musical audiences as a leading soloist with such orchestras as the London Royal Philharmonic, the London Philharmonia, the N.Y. Philharmonic,and the Paris Conservatoire Orchestra. He is regarded as one of the favorite musical sons of North Carolina.

Cone's childhood piano studies began with Mrs. T. Moody Stroud of Greensboro, and were continued in Chapel Hill at UNC with Professor of Music, Emeritus, Jan P. Schinan, and Professor and current department chairman Glen Haydon. Cone has appeared a number of times with the North Carolina Symphony and was featured soloist at last July's "Governor's Week-End," with the Brevard, N. C., "Transylvania Symphony."

After leaving UNC, Cone studied composition with Aaron Copland and Walter Piston, and piano with Harold Bauer and Clarence Adler, graduating Summa Cum Laude and as a Phi Beta Kappa from Harvard University. Since his successful New York debut piano recital, Cone has appeared with numerous orchestras throughout the Americas and the Orient in addition to orchestras in England and on the continent.

The independent career of violinist Madeleine Carabo-Cone is no less distinguished than that of his husband's. She was the first woman to be admitted to the first violin section of the Cleveland Symphony and later became a familiar and popular figure of New York's recital halls in concerts featuring the violin sonatas of Ives, Cowell, Harris, and other American composers. Last year she presented the entire cycle of Beethoven violin sonatas to New York audiences.

The Chapel Hill appearance of the Cones is sponsored by the Department of Music. Admission is free.

NASA Grants UNC $24,853

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded a $24,853.00 contract to UNC for a Space Science Audio-Visual Media Workshop to be conducted by Kenneth M. McIntyre, director of the bureau of audio-visual education.

During this Workshop a team of eighth grade science teachers, audio-visual media and curriculum specialists will select, produce and evaluate audio-visual media and other materials for a new space science curriculum for eighth grade instruction in North Carolina schools.

The Bureau of Audio-Visual Education is cooperating on this project with the State Department of Public Instruction's Science and Audio-Visual Media staffs who will assist in the selection of the teachers who will participate in the Workshop.

The staff and facilities of the Morehead Planetarium will be used to provide a space science environment for the Workshop, in cooperation with the Bureau of Audio-Visual Education. The workshop will be conducted in Chapel Hill in June, 1964.

A primary objective of the Space Science Workshop is to produce a system of audio-visual materials which may be field tested by pilot teachers in the fall of 1964 when the new eighth grade space science instruction is scheduled to begin.

UNC Graduate At Paris Stopover

LARRY PHELPS of Burlington (left) a 1963 graduate of UNC, with other American students in Paris on their way to Cuba. Phelps and Salter ran for UNC offices in the spring of 1962. Both lost by large margins.

Cuba Hearing Postponed

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A hearing at federal court in a claim by a Middlefield man that the State Department's ban on travel to Cuba is unconstitutional was postponed Monday until Nov. 18.

Louis Zemel, in a suit last month in U.S. District Court, charged that the department's rule requiring special validation of passports and the congressional law giving the department travel ban power violated the U.S. constitution.

U.S. Atty. Robert C. Zampano, who will present the government case, said the hearing was postponed.

Zemel cited a news release from the secretary of state who said that American citizens could not travel to Cuba without having their passports validated for that purpose.

He charged that his application for special validation was denied by the department.

Zemel's suit also cited the Justice Department's warning that it would prosecute anyone seeking to re-enter the United States after illegally traveling to Cuba.

Helms Denies Asking Editors To Speak

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Test Ban Formally Signed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Monday signed four documents formally ratifying the historic nuclear test ban treaty for the United States and called it a "first fruit of hope" for world peace.

The President promised that this country would follow "the letter and the spirit" of the pact outlawing all but underground nuclear tests. He urged all other nations to do the same to ensure that the fruit of hope will be followed by "larger harvests."

At the same time, he added, Americans "can and must still keep our vigil while pressing with others toward peace."

Senate Democratic Secretary Resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Secretary Robert G. Baker resigned Monday amid increasing public disclosures of his financial interests in business firms, now the subject of an FBI investigation.

The announcement of Baker's resignation from his influential Capitol Hill position was made by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

It became known in recent days that Baker and his wife had ties with a vending machine company operating in aerospace industries with government contracts, the FBI, it was learned Monday, is investigating the situation.

High Court Faces Record Agenda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nine Supreme Court justices opened their new term Monday with a brief 22-minute session packed with historic ritual, then began tackling the record-breaking work load that faces them.

Race relations and legislative reapportionment promise to raise the most significant issues of the 1963-64 term.

At the first business session next Monday, the court will begin announcing which cases will be accepted for arguments and ultimate written decisions.

In addition, the court will begin hearing oral arguments on one of the key issues up for decision this year—a group of "sit-in" appeals involving the right of a private business owner to bar Negroes from his premises.

Mme. Nhu Continues Viet Controversy

NEW YORK UPI—Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, South Viet Nam's glamorous first lady, flew to the United States Monday night to defend the policies of her nation's government in the current religious and political crisis.

Her visit to this country came at a time when the policies of her brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, are under sharp attack in Congress and the United Nations.

Mme. Nhu fanned the flames of thie simmering controversy just before boarding a New York-bound plane in Paris when she denounced U. S. newsmen for their "criminal" coverage of the latest burning of a Buddhist monk in Saigon.

"I cannot understand the criminal and incredibly cruel attitude of American correspondents," she said.

CORE

Six members of the University community were elected last week to head a local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). The CORE chapter was formally established Wednesday night with the election of officers.

Pete Leak of Bynum and John Dunne of Brecksville, Ohio, were named co-chairmen. An executive committee of Al Amon of the Physics Dept., Ben Spalding of Wilmington, Ronald Ross of Winston-Salem, and Cora Hodge was also selected.

The group said it plans to meet Wednesday nights and interested students can contact one of the officers for further information.

Future plans for the chapter were not announced.

Supporter Of Ban Meant Offer For President Friday

By JOEL BULKLEY

Controversy arose here Monday after a Raleigh television executive denied he had invited Daily Tar Heel editors to discuss the speaker ban on WRAL-TV.

Jesse Helms, vice-president and editorialist for WRAL-TV, said Sunday in a recorded interview for radio station WCHL he would cancel prime time to allow DTH editors a confrontation on the speaker ban on the air.

Helms said yesterday that the offer to speak on the controversial law was meant for "Consolidated University President William C. Friday or any other responsible person for the other side."

He had earlier declined a student-issued invitation to come to the campus here to speak on the speaker ban law passed by the 1963 General Assembly at an open meeting.

He then referred the newspaper to his daily newscast and editorials, saying his views on the law had been widely circulated. He also suggested the paper inivte FBI chief J. Edgard Hoover to the campus to explain the dangers of communist speakers.

Helms said Sunday he found the nature of this student invitation both distasteful and vague and added that he didn't see why other people weren't invited. He suggested that the introducers of the bill, Phil Godwin and Ned Delemar; the author of the bill Secretary of State Thad Eure; and attorney general Wade Bruton be invited.

Daily Tar Heels editors Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge stated Sunday that the local branch of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) had already invited these people and that there was no need to bring them back. They added that the basic purpose for issuing the invitation was to give students at the University here a chance to ask questions of proponents of the law and thus be able to better assess it.

Helms indicated yesterday that "nothing would suit us better than to have Chancellor William B. Aycock or President Friday come here (Raleigh) to talk with supporters of the bill." He added that the editors could come if President Friday agrees.

WUNC-TV

Tuesday

| | |
|---|---|
| 8:55 | News |
| 9:00 | U.S. History |
| 9:30 | Phys Science |
| 10:00 | World History |
| 10:30 | Mathematics |
| 11:00 | Brit. Calendar |
| 11:15 | Perspective |
| 12:15 | Mid-Day News |
| 12:30 | Aspect |
| 1:00 | Sign Off |
| 3:30 | Parlons, Yr 1 & 2 |
| 4:00 | Parlons |
| 4:30 | Sign Off |
| 5:30 | Young People |
| 6:00 | Deaf Lang |
| 6:30 | What's New |
| 7:00 | News |
| 7:30 | What in World? |
| 8:00 | Court Reason |
| 9:00 | Probing Mind |
| 9:30 | U.S. History |
| 10:15 | Sign Off |

Di-Phi Debates Rights Bill

Ambiguities in the wording of the public accommodations section of President Kennedy's Civil Rights Bill will be the subject of debate by the Di-Phi Society tonight.

The meeting will be held at 7:30, 3rd floor New West.

The Di-Phi Senate resolution, submitted by Wright Doyle, urges defeat of Title II H.R. 7152 because it "would erase distinctions between public and private enterprise, eradicate the institution of private property which is basic to our culture and form of government, and deny the right of trial by jury to alleged offenders."

The resolution noted that "the ultimate fruits of this bill would not be justice but tyranny, not freedom but slavery for all Americans of whatever race or color."

Copies of the resolution shall be sent to the President, Attorney General, and all N.C. senators and representatives in Congress.

Vol. 72, Number 15 Tuesday, October 8, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Comments On Comments Welcome

In today's edition we begin a four-part series on former UNC student John Salter and the trip to Cuba he made with 58 other American students last summer in defiance of the State Department.

For readers interested in another view of the affair — that of CIA undercover agent Barry Hoffman — we suggest the October 5, 1963, issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

Starting Thursday, we will reprint the pro and con remarks of various columnists who commented on the trip, and of course we look forward to printing our readers' remarks and observations on the matter.

Our own position is that the trip was not in the best interests of U. S. foreign policy, and most of the people who went could hardly be called objective observers. Nevertheless, we are as anxious as everyone else to find out whether a State Department regulation is sufficient to abrogate the basic American right of freedom to travel.

On Tastes In Football And The Arts

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine who happens to be a trustee of his college invited me to attend the "homecoming" football game with him. I replied that I don't understand football and that a high school game looks as good (or bad) to me as a Rose Bowl championship.

He snorted derisively. "That's a silly statement," he said. "A little experience and close observation would give you the fine points of the game. Let me tell you, football is quite an art and nobody who knows the game could mistake a great team from a poor one."

He is right, of course. But what surprises me about men like him is their unwillingness to apply the same objective standards to other fields, in which they have little or no knowledge.

He would defend his liking bad music instead of good as "merely a matter of taste." He would defend his attendance at ill-made plays as "one man's opinion," and call me a cultural dictator for insisting that only knowledge gives us a right to hold an opinion.

When the situation is reversed, however, he has no doubt that his evaluation of football teams is better than mine — as, indeed, it is. He has studied the game, knows its fine points, and appreciates things I do not even see on the field.

Then why do so many people have a terrible defensiveness about the arts? Painting, music, drama, literature — these are all crafts, like football and baseball and sailing. They have their rules, their standards, their form.

If it is a matter of fact that Notre Dame's football is better than that of Siwash Gulch High School, it is equally a fact that Beethoven's music is better than Grieg's, and Picasso's paintings better than Grandma Moses.' To become an expert in music or painting is merely to learn the reason why.

In some things, of course, there is no disputing taste. If I like chocolate ice cream and red-headed women, and you like vanilla ice cream and dark-haired women, there is no "better" or "worse."

But all the arts and crafts, from football to music, have their own levels of value. We can make objective judgments, in a broad sense. We cannot say Beethoven is "better" than Mozart, but we can say that either of them is better than Humperdinck — just as Notre Dame and Northwestern may be roughly equal, but either is better than Siwash.

Most people, of course, defend "personal taste" in the arts because it permits them to be lazy and ignorant without losing face. But they are the same people who look upon me with great contempt because I can't see the plain fact that one team is infinitely superior to another.

With Autumnal Cups O'erflowing

Autumn brings to the campus cool weather, sweaters, and knee socks. Leaves turn to bright reds, yellows and browns, and bright madras skirts turn to plain wools and tweeds. Weejuns bulging with the unaccustomed socks swish down leafy paths.

The campus is a disorganied kaleidoscope of color, and the air is full of football and football weekends. Dates nestle in furry things and furry things scurry for winter food. Students flock through Y-Court more quickly since stone steps are cooling to thin slacks, and birds fly farther south overhead.

Autumn is upon us bringing crisp joy and crackling bonfires. And the litterbug trees are a welcome change to the warm weather students who litter the campus with their far less colorful, far less attractive:

PAPER CUPS.

Autumn weather brings decreased desire for the morning soft drink in Y-Court, the ice cream sandwich in Graham Memorial, the milk shake in the Monogram Club. The campus is notably cleaner (with the exception of football weekends), and it becomes a real pleasure to show to our visitors and off-campus dates.

But our joy is short-lived, for soon the transfers will discover Y-Court coffee and the freshmen, hot chocolate. Soon all students will discover, or rediscover, that it is just as easy to make a mess of Carolina's natural beauty in any season. And then of course there's always next year's spring.

Those of you who rejoice in your autumnal cups, please use the waste basket.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Book Review

Knowles Novel - A Great Work

By JOHN B. DUNNE

A Separate Peace — by John Knowles, 1959, Dell Pub. Co.

Adolescence—no other time in a man's life are passions felt so deeply by himself, and taken so lightly by the rest of the (adult) world. The child, shielded from the tragic brutality of man to man by the comforting nest of innocence, sees, yet refuses to face, these walls rapidly falling away to the ground, and leaving him defenseless, alone, and afraid. He desperately tries to reassert the innocence he is losing by "breaking the rule," almost challenging the rules to a duel of responsibility—as long as his actions have no great consequence in another's life, he can maintain his delusion of childhood lack of responsibility.

At the same time, he is beset by growing insecurity and fears of his own weaknesses and inadequacies for coping with the growing reality of the complex and brutal turmoil of adult life. He casts about desperately for a friend, for someone who is the fulfillment of that which he fears is lacking in himself. As their love grows in intensity, the friends become extensions of each other. Each then imagines in the other those negative aspects of his own personality, which he finds too difficult to recognize in himself. And once thought to be manifest in the other person, these traits become the source of the confused jealousy, hate and rivalry which characterize so many adolescent relationships. If, then, a man is not forced to confront himself as he is, in the context of the world's reality, and thus learn the responsibility which he has to every man, for his every action, he becomes the material of future wars and human suffering.

This self-confrontation, in which boy becomes man, is the focus of John Knowles' brilliant first novel, A Separate Peace. It is set during World War II, in the highly competitive life of a New England preparatoy school, Devon (a close facsimile to the Phillips-Exeter Academy of the author's own experience; the town of Exeter, England, is located in Devonshire.) In many respects, the school is a microcosim of the real world which constantly threatens to engulf it. The war, symbolic of the frightening and sudden involvement with mankind into which graduation will hurl the students, hangs over the school like the grey clouds and cold mists of a New England November. The fierce rivalry among the students differs from the war in one aspect only—the consequences of each skirmish are not yet so great.

The novel begins with the return of Gene Forrester, the narrator, to Devon, fifteen years after his graduation. There are two specific places on the campus which he visits: First Building, over whose entrance is the Latin inscription, "Here boys come to be made men," and a tree hanging out over the Devon River, which we later learn was used as a jumping platform by the students during the war in their military training.

From there we return to sixteen years before, when Gene was a sixteen-year-old student in the summer session. He and Phineas (Finny), the school's top athlete, are roommates. As underclassmen, they are forbidden to jump from the tree, and so naturally, a series of dares results in their forming a jumping club, which has nightly meetings at the tree.

Near the end of the carefree summer, the intensity of their friendship has increased considerably, and at the same time, Gene has begun to be suspicious of the sincerity of Finny's professed affection for him. He imagines that Finny is engaged in a brutal competition with him for prestige, using any means at hand, including "friendship," to take his mind off his studies.

Then one night an accident occurs at the tree, when the two of them are about to leap into the river (or the mainstream of life) together. Finny is badly injured and can never again play the sports he so loved. Gene, aware that he has become terribly resentful and suspicious of Finny, fears that he himself is responsible for the accident. The remainder of the book deals with his gradual self-confrontation, leading to a haunting midnight courtroom scene in first Building, where Gene is tried for purposely causing the fall from the tree; thus forced to face his best friend's guilt, Finny's illusion of an ideal world of love is broken, and he dies.

In the development of their friendship, Gene and Finny became extensions of each other. When Finny is incapacitated by the fall, he begins training Gene for an imaginary 1944 Olympics, saying "You're going to be the big star now." . . . "You can fill any gaps or anything." And at Finny's funeral, Gene says that he didn't cry; "I could not escape a feeling that this was my own funeral, and you do not cry in that case." Gene, like all the others at the school except Finny, invested his friend with those aspects he most feared finding in himself; . . . "there was always something deadly lurking in anything I wanted, anything I loved. And if it wasn't there, as for example with Phineas, then I put it there myself."

"But for Finny, love is love, and a friend is a friend, and wars couldn't exist because they shouldn't. It is only when the war-inspired insanity of another friend and the betrayal of Gene are forced upon him as cold reality in the trial, that Finny's harmonious and ideal world is shattered, and 'the marrow of his bone flows down his blood stream to his heart,' and he dies.

Trying desperately to explain his guilt to Finny, Gene says, "It was just some ignorance inside me, some crazy thing inside me, something blind, that's all it was."

In the same way, Mr. Knowles suggests, greater human conflicts and suffering are created; ". . . it seemed clear that wars were not made by generations and their special stupidities, but that wars were made instead by something ignorant in the human heart."

These two parallel themes are finally brought together in the closing paragraph of the novel:

Pineas, constructed at infinite cost to themselves these Maginot Lines against this enemy theq thought they saw across the frontier, this enemy who never attacked that way—if he ever attacked at all; if he was indeed the enemy."

Mr. Knowles' theme is not new, nor is his setting, but in A Separate Peace he has put together a novel of unprecedented insight, which rises above its personal basis and the relatively shallow recreative characterization and social commentary of a book like Salinger's The Catcher in the Rye, to a universality and significance worthy of its being placed on that all-too-limited shelf reserved for the few great works in a nation's literature.

Confidence In The Law, Or Another Birmingham

North Carolina would do well to study the sequence of events which led to the tragedy at Birmingham's 16th Street Baptist Church.

The lessons have been set forth eloquently by Mr. Reston of New York Times and Mr. Royster of The Wall Street Journal. Because North Carolina's militant Negro leadership has announced an impending "march on Raleigh," somewhat in the vein of last month's Washington demonstration, the observations of these two keen observers have more than passing impact on some of our racial problems in the Old North State.

A major casualty at Birmingham, as Mr. Reston notes (above and beyond the loss of the lives of little children), is confidence in the law. The crisis pitted order against anarchy. Both races are now at the mercy of a few hoodlums. The Negro community is proceeding to protect inself on "Dynamite Hill" by establishing "their own community protective organization, with their own weapons, observation posts and communications system." And the white community generally, including the membership of two Jewish temples, employees at hotels, the newspapers—and even the White Citizens Council, fear Negro retaliation.

Wherever one may place the major blame for the terrible church murders — whether on the Negro leadership which tried to move too far too fast or Governor Wallace whose demagoguery incited terrorism and made it respectable — the fact remains that law and order are the real victims and when they break down the whole community is at the mercy of primitive fear.

Writing to this point Mr. Royster of the Journal comments:

. . . In every city or state, in every group of people — white or Negro — there are some scum, eager in any case to express their frustrations or anger in violence. When such people hear their public officials and spokesmen, even the governor of the state, tell them that their anger is justified, set before them an example of defiance and show them that others who have acted violently have gone unpunished, then the stage is set. . . .

Our society provides ways for the adjustment of grievances be they those of Negroes who feel oppressed or white people who feel overwhelmed. Those ways are often slow, and in the best of circumstances there will be some so impatient as to prefer lawlessness to law. There is no magic to make this an easy road.

But it will become a tragic road indeed if the people's leaders, white or Negro, lend their leadership to the lawless. For the sure wages of inciting men's base instincts is exactly what we have seen Birmingnam — violence and sometimes murder.

How does this apply to the growing differences between North Carolina's militant Negro leadership and Governor Sanford's courageous effort to find a peaceful, co-operative approach?

It has direct application. For now the Negroes have announced their plans to "march on Raleigh"; and the Governor has replied by saying, "I do not expect there to be any march on Raleigh and the Governor's Mansion and such a march would be foolish and would produce nothing good. . . . Let it be clearly understood that I insist a march on Raleigh would be extremely unwise."

Why has the Governor responded thusly? Because he knows that North Carolina already is moving as rapidly and as co-operatively as it can move toward removing Negro grievances. To march on Raleigh now would simply make his job thrice as difficult because it would deny him the assistance of many fair-minded North Carolinians who believe that negotiations can accomplish far more than demonstrations in the streets.

But even beyond is the fearful specter of Negro immoderation spawning overwhelming white immoderation. And this extremism could make its potency effective through political channels. It could affect the special session of the General Assembly (which convenes in Raleigh next month). It could nominate and elect a racist candidate for Governor next year. And at that point North Carolina might head down the road toward its own Birmingham, its own incitement to violence, its own bombings, even murders.

Let no one believe that it can't happen here. North Carolina's good fortune, so far, has been a combination of felicitous circumstances. There have been enough hard-headed, fair-minded leaders on both sides to keep power out of the hands of the zealots. No Governor of North Carolina has been spewing demagougory or egging on violence. No Governor has stepped in to overrule local school officials, as Governor Wallace did in Alabama. But in the future North Carolina could get sufficiently fed up with the extremist on one side to sample the wares of the non-compromisers on the other.

That is the source of North Carolina's real danger in these times. When absolutism takes over — whether personified by a King or a Farmer or a Wallace or a Barnett — then law is endangered by anarchy. And the bitter fruits of anarchy are still on display at Birmingham's 16th Street Baptist Church.

—From The News & Observer

Almost Everyone Is Friendly At Carolina

Tourism And Gold

By MURRAY J. BROWN
United Press International

The average American tourist probably doesn't realize how important a role he — and his dollars — play in the overall international picture.

But it's true. There is nothing personal involved, but where he decides to go and how much he will spend is a matter of interest to governments around the world, including his own.

International tourism already is a multi-billion dollar business and still growing. It is vitally important to many governments since it can often spell the difference between black or red ink in their international balance of payments books.

In a number of countries, including Mexico, Italy, Spain and Austria, for instance, tourism is a major source of revenue, surpassing income from any single export.

It's a different story as far as the United States is concerned. For example, American tourists spent about $2.5 billion overseas in 1962 while foreign visitors to these shores shelled out about $1 billion. That's a "travel gap" of $1.5 billion — a matter of serious concern in Washington.

To help plug the gap and end the drain of its gold reserves, the United States has been promoting a worldwide "Visit the U. S. A." program.

Many domestic and foreign airlines, shipping companies and travel agencies are cooperating with the U. S. Travel Service in its efforts to make tourism a two-way street. More foreign visitors are coming to the United States.

The P&O-Orient liner Canberra recently docked in New York with about 1,700 Britons and Europeans on a special "Visit the U. S. A." cruise. But more Americans are traveling overseas than ever before, too.

An appeal to other nations to relax "unnecessary restrictions" on travel by their nationals abroad was voiced at the recent U. N. — sponsored International Conference on Tourism by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

The importance of tourism was evidenced by the fact that delegates from 7 nations took part in the 15-day conference in Rome.

Hodges noted that the United States has refrained from curtailing travel by Americans to foreign lands despite the balance of payments deficit. On the contrary, he said, the United States was doing everything possible to encourage tourism for the benefit of all nations.

"Where a country's balance of payments problem is so serious as to make extraordinary measures absolutely unavoidable, travel restrictions should be the last to be applied," Hodges said.

"The more people travel, the more they want to travel, and the broader they tend to range over the world. Increasingly, Americans are seeking new vacation and travel destinations, and this trend can be fostered by the less-developed and emerging countries."

The conference discussed a wide range of topics relating to tourism. But it could only make recommendations and proposals which will be submitted to the United Nations and the participating governments to act on as they choose.

Among other things, the conference defined a tourist as one who visits another country for more than 24 hours for reasons of recration, holiday, health, education or sports without receiving pay from within that country.

The formalities commission said it was not feasible at this time to abolish passports on a worldwide basis. It suggested progressive easing of world travel by reducing requirements for passports, visas and other necessary documents to a minimum.

It also recommended easing of customs regulations and inspections, liberalization of currency and exchange procedures, and standardization and improvement of health guarantees.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Informal sorority rush will begin on Oct. 11. If interested, sign list in Dean of Women's office before noon today.

Faculty Club—1 p.m., Prof Federico Gil, "The Diplomacy of the Socinal Revolution."

Intramurals Managers' Interview Applications—1-5 p.m., 315 Woollen Gym, sign up for interview when submitting application, salary of $193 offered.

Secretariat Interviews—2-4 p.m., through Thurs, see Bonnie Hoyle in Student Government Offices.

UP Interviews for vacancies in Student Legislature—3-5 p.m., today and Wed., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Dix Hill Committee of YM-YWCA—3 p.m., Roland Parker II.

Tennis Club—3:30 p.m. Thurs., Women's Gym.

Wesley Foundation Scholars—6 p.m., today and Thurs., Wesley House, interested persons call 942-2152.

Flu shots are now being given at the infirmary 9-11:30 and 2-4:30 Mon. -Fri. Dr. Edward Hedgpeth urges students to take advantage as soon as possible to give the shots time to take effect. Those who had them last year require only one this season, others two. Shots are $1 each.

WRC—6:45 p.m., Grail Room.

Square Dance and Folk Dance Mixer—7 p.m., Women's Gym, Bring a partner and swing away.

Finance Committee of Student Legislature—7 p.m., Roland Parker II.

Elisha Mitchell Society — 7:30 p. m., Room 265, Phillips Hall, Dr. S. Y. Tyree, "Compound Formation by the Rare Gases."

Wesley Foundation Freshman Seminars—9 p.m., today and Thurs., Wesley House, interested persons call 942-2152.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital,$1 charge.

Yack Pictures — 1-5 p. m., through Friday, for Juniors, Nursing Students, General Nursing Students, and Physical Therapy Students.

Student Government — 2-5 p.m. daily interviews for limited committee appointments, apply 210 Graham Memorial. Five-minute interviews will be held. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Lawler will conduct them.

Sonata Recital—8 p.m., Hill Hall, Harold Cone, Pianist, Madeleine Carabo-Cone, violinist.

FUTURE

Wesley Foundation—7:15 a.m., Wed., Wesley House, Communion.

Beta Gamma Sigma—4 p.m., Wed., Faculty Seminar Room in Carroll Hall.

Elections Board—4 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker III, GM.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., Wed., Upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Physics Club Meeting—7:30 p.m., Wed., 263 Phillips Hall.

Hockey Club—4 p.m., Thurs., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Christian Science Organization —7 p.m., Thurs., Woodhouse Room, GM.

MOVIES

Carolina—Rampage
Varsity—Hatari
Northgate—VIP's
Rialto—The L-Shaped Room

CO-EDS
See or Call
GRACE E. THORTON
at
Esquire Tailors
For your sewing needs — Alterations — Restyling and Dressmaking.
140½ Franklin St. Ph. 942-6067

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
(Over the Dairy Bar)
Phone 942-4358

NEW YORK LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

TODAY ONLY!
"HATARI"
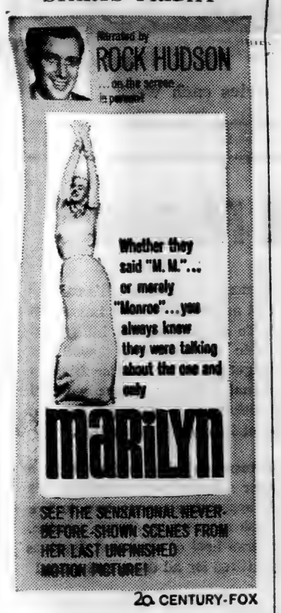
in Technicolor
starring
JOHN WAYNE
Varsity
STARTS FRIDAY



PART-TIME, DURHAM - CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

SINCE IT BEGAN BUSINESS IN 1857, The Northwestern Mutual has furnished life insurance at such a low cost that its record is unexcelled by other companies. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Sale — Miscellaneous

A BARGAIN — A COLUMBIA CONsole, Hi-Fi phonograph. Plays 33, 45 or 78 records. Bought new last year, will sell at half price. Phone 942-3953 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

UNC Placement Bureau Offers Extended Program

Donald M. Cook, corporate manager of college relations for the Radio Corporation of America, will be the guest speaker at a career program for all seniors and graduate students Thursday night.

The meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall, will be conducted by the University Placement Service, and is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Psi and Delta Sigma Pi fraternities.

The Placement Service urges all men and women students who will be looking for jobs following graduation or after completion of military service to attend the meeting.

Cook, a graduate of Pennsylvania State University, is a former head of Penn State's University Placement Service.

Any student who has satisfactorily completed two semesters of work at UNC is eligible to register with the Placement Service.

Students are urged to register early in order to participate in the employment interviews conducted through the Placement Service from mid-October through April.

Job couseling and career information are also available to students, and permanent personal files are maintained for every individual registered with the office.

INTERVIEWS

Interviews for the Secretariat will be held from 2-4 Tuesday through Thursday in Student Government offices. All interested students should apply to Bonnie Hoyle, secretary of the student body.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Tower of Shinar: Bib.
6. Convalesced
12. Playing marble
13. Serious
14. Civil wrong
15. Seize
16. Meaning
20. Kettle
23. Overturn
27. Perfect
29. Little island
30. Permeate
32. Parrot: New Zealand
33. Musical study
35. Indigent
38. TV's Marshal Dillon
42. Touches end to end
44. Harshness
45. Science of atmosphere
47. Covered with fine earth

DOWN
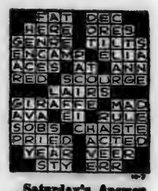
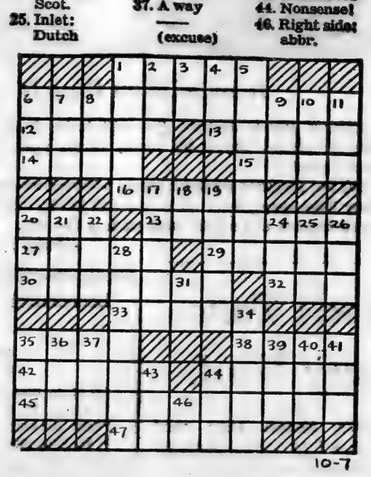
1. Large casks
2. Imitate
3. Exist
4. Unit of work
5. Liberal giving
6. Rodent
7. Self
8. Lobster box
9. Road topping
10. Girl's name
11. Society girl: shortened
17. Notoriety
18. North America: abbr.
19. Watched secretly
20. Apple seed
21. Poem
22. Territory: abbr.
24. Family: Scot.
25. Inlet: Dutch
26. Greek letter
28. Prevented
31. Dutch: abbr.
34. One of the Bronte sisters
35. Knave of clubs in loo
36. Fetish: W. Afr.
37. A way
(excuse)
39. Past
40. Dress up
41. Attempt
43. French cole
44. Nonsense!
46. Right side: abbr.



Saturday's Answer



10-7

WUNC Schedule

WUNC Radio goes on the air every night at 6 p.m. Programs will run until midnight every night except Sunday. Turn your FM radio dial to 91.5 megacycles and listen.

6:00 The Dinner Hour: Saint Saens: Bacchanale from Sampson and Delila, Carnival of the Animals, Capriccioso for violin and orchestra; Bizet: L'Arlesienne Suite No. One; Debussy: Clair de Lune.
6:55 News
7:00 France Applauds
7:30 Dutch Light Music: "Holland Festival"
8:00 Hill Hall Concert: Harold Cone, pianist and Madeleine Cone, violinist. The program will be of sonatas by Handel, Brahms, Debussy, and Prokofieff.
9:30 Converse College Choir.
10:00 News
10:15 Hootenanny
11:00 Project 60: "Light on the Clouds"
12:00 News

Robert Mitchum Elsa Martinelli Jack Hawkins
RAMPAGE
Screenplay by ROBERT I. HOLT and MARGUERITE ROBERTS
Directed by Phil KARLSON A SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR® Presented by WARNER BROS.
Produced by WILLIAM FADIMAN
Shows at: 1:00 - 2:56 - 4:52 - 6:48 - 8:44
NOW PLAYING
Carolina
SOON
LESLIE CARON
in
"THE L SHAPED ROOM"

Bass OUTDOOR FOOTWEAR
WEEJUNS
HIS: Antique Brown, Black, Genuine Cordovan & Scotch Grain

HERS: Stained Brown, Antique Red & Navy in Loafers.

Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Don't meet your Waterloo at the typewriter—perfectly typed papers begin with Corrāsable! You can rub out typing errors with just an ordinary pencil eraser. It's that simple to erase without a trace on Corrāsable. Saves time, temper, and money!

Your choice of Corrāsable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin in handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

Available At Ledbetter Pickard Eaton Paper

Exciting Art First! Exclusively at The Intimate

Collector's Choice of the World's

GREAT DRAWINGS

Reproduced in the Most Exacting COLOR and Detail

INCREDIBLE VALUE AT 1.00 each

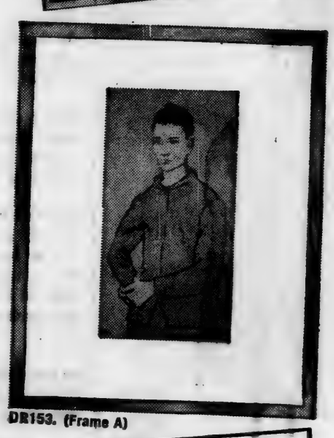
DR177. (Frame B)



DR153. (Frame A)

DR174.

LATEST WORD from trend-setting art collectors and decorators ... "Drawings are definitely IN! They have a charm all their own, add a warm, distinctive touch to any room and give endless pleasure." Now, at the INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, we're first with the best color facsimiles of fine drawings and watercolors at this low, low price.

EVERY DRAWING in this fabulous collection is an acknowledged masterpiece—spontaneous, spirited ... by Rembrandt, Dürer, Goya, Degas, Cézanne, Picasso, and other masters. In fascinating combinations of pencil, ink and colored chalk; charcoal, sepia and crayon; wash and watercolor, pastel, tempera and other media. Beautifully printed on heavy, antique art stock — with all the delicacy and detail of the originals.

Choose from classic figure drawings and marvelous portraits, from airy landscapes and bold modern lithographs. Each drawing comes in a folder that contains its own prefitted mat to save you effort and expense. Frame them and arrange them on your walls to lend sophistication to your decor.

Choice 14" x 18" subjects listed below may be ordered by mail or phone, or come in and see the entire collection including many in 12" x 16" size.

GREAT DRAWINGS (Size 14x18")
v (vertical) — h (horizontal)

DR101. Rubens: Young Woman with Crossed Hands (v)
DR102. Blake: Laocoön (v)
DR103. Botticelli: Abundance, or Autumn (v)
DR105. Dürer: Study for St. Apolonia (v)
DR107. Gainsborough: A Woodland Valley (h)
DR108. Goya: Charles V Fighting the Bull at Valadolid (h)
DR109. Kuhn: Pleasant Evening (h)
DR110. Li T'Ang: The Return of Duke Wen of Chin (h)
DR111. Lorrain: Tree and Vines (v)
DR112. Lorrain: Landscape (v)
DR113. Luini: Virgin with the Christ Child & St. John the Baptist (v)
DR114. Maillol: Female Nudes (v)
DR116. Pereda: St. Jerome Writing (v)
DR117. Rubens: Study for a St. Magdalen (v)
DR118. Rubens: Study for River God (h)
DR119. Sayer: Reclining Woman (h)
DR120. Tao-Chi: House Among Pines (v)
DR121. Titian: Portrait of a Woman (v)
DR122. Titian: Rider and Fallen Foe (v)
DR123. Lautrec: Woman Sleeping (h)
DR124. Yuan-Ch'i: The Wang-Ch'uan Villa, after Wan Wei (h)
DR125. Van Gogh: The Blue Cart (h)
DR126. Gericault: Fighting Horses (h)
DR127. Lautrec: Portrait, Jane Avril (v)
DR128. Picasso: Mother and Child, Four Studies for a Right Hand (v)
DR130. Van Dyck: Study for Christ Crowned with Thorns (v)
DR131. Van Dyck: Studies of a Woman Sleeping (h)
DR132. Rembrandt: The Return of the Prodigal Son (v)
DR133. Degas: Giovanna Bellelli (v)
DR134. Degas: Ballet Dancer Facing Inward, Hands on Hips (v)
DR135. Degas: Houses Upon Cliffs Overlooking a Bay (h)
DR136. Cézanne: Study, Card Players (v)
DR137. Gauguin: Breton Bather (v)
DR138. Rubens: Portrait of Isabella Brant (v)
DR140. Ley: Man In a Turban (v)
DR141. Verrocchio: Head of a Woman, with Elaborate Coiffure (v)
DR142. Breu: Portrait of a Young Woman (v)
DR143. Breughel: Landscape with Rest on the Flight into Egypt (h)
DR144. Whistler: Maud Reading (v)
DR145. Da Vinci: Study of Woman's Head (v)
DR146. Buffet: Interieur (h)
DR147. Kollwitz: Mother and Child (h)
DR148. Jongkind: Le Pont De Leguieres (h)
DR149. Boucher: Nude with Child (h)
DR150. Ingres: Study for The Iliad (v)
DR151. Cézanne: Still Life with Pears and Apples (h)
DR152. Boudin: Marine Scene (h)
DR153. Picasso: Blue Boy (v)
DR154. Morisot: Portrait Studies of Jeanne Pontillon (v)
DR155. Homer: Study for "The Wreck Of The Iron Crown" (v)
DR156. Gainsborough: Landscape with Resting Men (h)
DR157. Boucher: Girl with Jug (v)
DR158. Chardin: Reading Woman with Child (h)
DR160. Liotard: Profile of a Woman (v)
DR161. Luini: Lady with Fan (v)
DR162. Modigliani: Portrait of Woman (v)
DR163. Dürer: Praying Hands (v)
DR164. Renoir: La Promenade (v)
DR165. Renoir: Torso of Woman (v)
DR166. Degas: Ballet Dancer (v)
DR167. Pascin: Two Seated Women (v)
DR168. Goya: Man Taming a Horse (v)
DR169. Jongkind: Landscape (v)
DR170. Picasso: Head of a Boy (v)
DR171. Turner: Landscape (h)
DR172. Seurat: The Stonebreaker (h)
DR173. Rubens: Seated Woman (v)
DR174. Rubens: Head of a Boy (v)
DR175. Dürer: View of Salzburg (h)
DR176. Manet: Seaside Villa (h)
DR177. Constable: Coast Scene with Ships (h)
DR178. Watteau: Woman Standing and Seated (v)

Very Special! Beautiful Frames (with Glass) for These Drawings

The framing service is FREE while you wait, if you wish

Designed by an art gallery consultant and made by a leading custom-framing house to bring out all the character and beauty of your drawings. Size 14" x 18".

Style A: Gold foil, ¾" molding. Rich sheen and classic simplicity, with lift-up clasps in back (no nailing required).
Only 3.95

Style B: Gilt rim, 2" molding of gray linen, white inner lip, lift-up clasps.
Only 4.95

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin Street
Please send the following Great Drawings @ 1.00 ea.:
_____ _____ _____ _____
_____ _____ _____ _____
Send _____ frames Style A @ 3.95 ea.
Send _____ frames Style B @ 4.95 ea.
Name _____
Address _____
City, State _____
☐ Charge my acct. # ☐ Check or M.O.

ON THE LEVEL with JOHN MONTAGUE

WITH A RESOUNDING crash — the most deafening since "Black Friday," 1929 — the mighty New York Yankees have fallen. Most visibly, or rather audibly shaken was the "Voice of the New York Yankees" who was having as much trouble with his broadcasting as his idols were having with the baseball deliveries of Sandy Koufax.

Mel Allen is as much a part of the Yankee organization as Mickey Mantle or Whitey Ford or Yogi Berra. For years he has been behind the microphone, living and dying with the Bronx Bombers. Actually he did very little dying with them. . . . at least not until last Sunday.

To be sure there have been dark days. There were rude interruptions by Johnny Podres in 1955, by Lew Burdette in 1957 and by Bill Mazeroski in 1960. There were the Cleveland Indians in 1954 and the Chicago White Sox in 1959. But these were all flukes. At least They seemed that way. One always had the feeling that if the game or season were replayed, the Yanks would win it. But not this time.

The Yankees probably wouldn't score more than ten runs off Koufax if he threw baseballs to them from now until Ralph Houk's birthday, which happens to be August 9. So thorough was the mastery of Koufax, Podres and Drysdale, the pin-striped terrors were able to muster only one run during the whole Series which had even momentary importance. This came on Mantle's fourth-game homer — a dying gasp.

The Dodgers themselves were not over-powering at the plate, but they didn't need to be. Their pitching was so near perfect that, for the first time in baseball history, the New York Yankees lost four straight games in a World Series.

As they fell, it seemed fitting that babbling Mel Allen should surrender his mike and retire to the back of the booth — throat trouble. Mel was silenced — the Yankees were silenced. But even laryngitis isn't as bad as four runs in four games and a .170 team batting average.

Wait a minute, though. The story doesn't end here. It won't be long now before the magazine racks at Jeff's are filled with publications proclaiming the "End of the Yankee Dynasty." Only trouble is — it just ain't so, even though Al Lopez is sure to say it is.

This year's Yankee squad is a young team with a good future. There's Joe Pepitone (23 years old tomorrow) and Tom Thresh (25) and Jim Bouton (24) and Al Downing (22). Then there are the "oldesters" like Clete Boyer (26), Tony Kubek (27), Bobby Richardson (28), Ralph Terry (27) and Mel Allen (loud). No Mantles or Fords or Berras among them, but they'll get the job done. So cheer up, Mel. Wait 'til next year!!

UNC Offense Finally Wakes Up

CAROLINA STUDENTS who have been impatient to see some long gains should have been at the game Saturday night. The Tar Heels made plenty of mistakes, but they also managed to provide some thrills.

There was nobody near Ronnie Jackson as he waited for Junior Edge's pass to descend. The three-second wait was intolerable. Would he drop it? Ronnie had time enough to think about dropping it, but he didn't. Away he flew toward the UNC goal, clutching the ball and glancing over his shoulder to see who was going to come in second.

The whole play covered 72 yards, which is just six yards short of the all-time UNC record. The mark was set way back in 1929 when Phil Jackson tossed to Yank Spaulding on a 78-yard play which helped sink Maryland, 43-0.

But the whole show didn't belong to Jackson and Edge. Local doctors finally located enough parts to put Eddie Kesler back in working order, and the Salisbury fullback responded with 83 yards in 10 carries, including a 46-yard burst off left tackle. The run was UNC's longest from scrimmage in the last two seasons.

Gary Black and John Atherton also enjoyed themselves at the Deacons' expense. Black had great success with his roll-out runs, picking up 50 yards in nine hauls. He completed four of six passes, all four were on the same drive—to Carolina's third TD. Atherton, who same drive — to Carolina's third TD. Atherton, who didn't catch a single pass against Virginia or Michigan State, picked up 46 yards on the receptions.

One thing the Deacs did do well — cover Bob Lacey, especially during the first half. Even when he caught his lone pass of the night, the Baptist defenders held him to a 13-yard gain.

MURAL SCORES

4:00

Salter's All Stars 12, Helms' Pourmouths 6
Navy Mermen 35, Aycock Aardvarks 7
Parker Panthers 25, Grimes Gallants 6
Everett Hustlers 1, Grimes Gigolos 0 (overtime)
Navy Sea-Lions 14, Alexander Bunnies 12
Winston Terps 7, Craige A 6 (overtime)

5:00

Ruffin Rogues 1, Ehringh A 0 (forfeit)
Ehringh C 37, Craige Steelers 0
Everett Grossmen 28, Teague Terrors 12
Everett Rogah 30, Avery Admirals 0
Craige Casanova 32, Ehringh B 6

TODAY'S GAMES

4:00

1. Ehringh Scums-AFROTC
2. Town Rats-Alex. Poobahs
4. Peacocks-Law School 2
5. Geology Grads-Law School 4

5:00

1. Joyner Giants-Navy Mermen
2. Alex. Playboys-Town Lodgers
3. Old East Primo-Stacy Studs
5. Med School 2-Den School 3
4. Med School 1-Law School 3

Stasavich Sidelined By Heart Attack

GREENVILLE (UPI) — Clarence Stasavich, head coach and athletic director at East Carolina College, was hospitalized today with a heart attack.

College authorities said that his first assistant, Odell Welborn, will take Stasavich's duties as head coach and athletic director during his illness.

East Carolina President Leo Jenkins said "we are all distressed at coach Stasavich's illness. I know of no one in the athletic world who is more highly respected than this man. He has earned the love and admiration of people throughout the state and his reputation as a coach dedicated to the men under him is known throughout the nation."

Stasavich, who still uses the single - wing football formation, has guided his team to three wins and one defeat this season. His team had a 3-4-2 record last season.

Stasavich was brought to East Carolina after coaching consistent winning teams at Lenoir Rhyne, which won seven straight Carolinas Conference championships. He was hired here as part of East Carolina's campaign to bolster its athletic teams and win admission to the Southern Conference.

Bobby Cox' 24 Points Leads Mural League

By AL KAPLAN

Bobby Cox, who led the Emerson Cardplayers to a 53-0 win over Air Force, is the leading scorer at the end of the first week of tag football play. Cox has tallied four touchdowns for a total of 24 points.

Phi Delta Theta's O. H. Parrish is second with three six pointers and two PATs for 20 points. John Biddle of Aycock and Brooks Reed of SAE occupy the third position with 18 points on three TDs.

On the calendar this week is the University Golf Tournament scheduled to start today. Squash entries are due by Wednesday, Oct. 9 at 5:00. All participants must sign sheets on the bulletin boards on the Ground Level of the Gym.

In tag football this week the schedule is limited to Dormitory Division games and those in the grad circuit. Frat teams will remain idle due to Rush Week.

Top games this week pit undefeated Aycock against the Mermen of Navy, the Alexander Bunnies and the Navy Sea Lions, the Cardplayers of Emerson and The Eringhaus B Knights, and in the grad division Law School 1 and Law School 4.

The Joint Intramural Council, an important organ of the whole murals program, is accepting nominations for the coming elections.

To date those nominated include Jack Cassels, Bob Vanderberry, Mike Aldrich, Sam Hunt and Dick Jones for President. Running for Vice-President are Bob Crook, Jim Durston, Charles Ives and Dan Fowler. J. T. Shively, Bill Henshaw, Carl Swann and Stu Eizenstat plan to run for Secretary.

The top teams in football after the first week are Kappa Sig, Zeta Psi, DU, DKE, and Sigma Nu. All have identical records of 2-0. In the grad league Law School I and Med School 1 are the current pacesetters.

Tag Football entries for the Fraternity White Division, the Junior curcuit, are due no later than Monday, October 14.

For offense-plagued teams, a pamphlet of basic football plays is available to you. These plays are especially helpful during the practice sessions.

Applications are now available to boys interested in the Intramurals Manager Program. No experience is necessary for your qualification. For the first time these managers will be paid. All managers except those of frat teams will receive a total of $193 paid in bi-monthly installments.

Ronnie Didn't Drop It

RABBIT Ronnie Jackson, the swift junior from Rocky Mount, made the biggest play of his varsity career against Wake Forest Saturday night.

The 5-8, 170-pound wingback caught a 72-yard touchdown pass from Junior Edge shortly after the second half kickoff which provided the needed impetus as Carolina went on to a 21-0 win.

—Photo by Kono Pontiac

Heels Take Easy Work

UNC's football team went through a light workout yesterday in preparation for Saturday's game at College Park with Maryland.

Coach Jim Hickey's crew looked over Maryland's offensive setup and made some defensive adjustments for it. The Tar Heels ran a light workout before quitting early.

Jay Malobicky, switched from center to guard for the Wake Forest game, came in for some high praise from Hickey for his work at the new position.

COLLEGE TRY

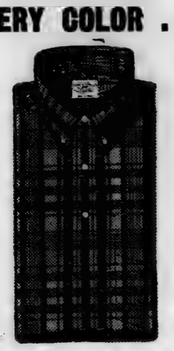
A hearing on the Saturday Evening Post's motion for a new trial in the $3,060,000 libel award to former Georgia football coach Wallace Butts has been set for Oct. 16.

COLOR ME EVERY COLOR . . .



BECAUSE THAT'S WHAT I AM Yes it's true, the beautiful new madras shirts at THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL are available in all the popular madras plaids for fall.

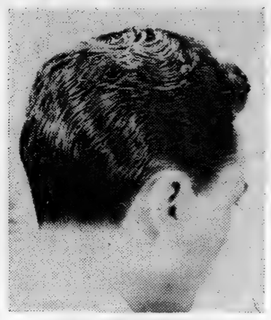
These long-sleeved beauties are an asset to any wardrobe, so get yours today.

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

SHIRTMANSHIP

Make the grade with this fall's new look in shirt wear. The classic hard pink. Our own with the perfect roll B.D. collar and box vent pleat. A must for the best dressed. From 5.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin



IS YOUR head and face long or oval? Is your chin receding? Ears large? Are you tall or stout? Here's just a few important questions to be answered before shaping your hair.

THE EXECUTIVE

The Executive, with minor variations, is one of the few styles that improve any man's appearance. Come in and try this or any of the other masculine styles which fit you best. Our barbers can create any of them.

Carolina Barber Shop
Free Parking 131 E. Franklin St.
Following this series each week

Economical Living Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

Farmer Boy's Breakfast
Choice of Juice
1 Hot Cake, 2 Eggs (Any Style)
Choice of Bacon, Ham, or Sausage
Coffee or Tea
80c
Maximilian's Restaurant
Eastgate Shopping Center

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA—Raleigh
One Show—8:30 P.M.

AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE . . . IN CONCERT
THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS
Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

"It May Cost A Little More, But we do it a Little Better"
—WORK DONE BY MASTER TAILORS—
"Every man to his business, but indeed the craft of a tailor is beyond all doubt as noble and as secret as any in the world."
Pete The Tailor
133½ E. Franklin Street

Brief Manor
Brief Manor, the makers of a finer Chesterfield Coat, at popular prices, offers you both the fabric and the color that will make Chesterfield Coats a must for any wardrobe.
Town & Campus

DIAL M FOR FASHION

It's no accident that Milton's is synonymous with fashion. It's so much more fun trailblazing with the smartest and most unusual in our own version of "Old School Traditional". To accomplish this Milton and his brain trust of three knowledgeable Cupboard cognoscenti—the Chapel Hill, Atlanta and Dallas managers, hold several conferences a year prior to the start of the two main seasons, design many of our own patterns in suitings, sport jackets, and shirtings, bringing our devotees a wide refreshing scope of irresistible exclusives.

Many shops take a safer aproach to merchandising and highlight a theme color that the national sportswear guild or cloth manufacturers come up with. We don't dare try this approach since we love to live dangerously and stick our necks out with our own inimitable version. In this manner we are assured of a large host of dedicated devotees who look for us to keep them smartly attired for all dress and casual occasions.

Take a simple item like a ½ herringbone—a classic that almost any good, bad or indifferent store can come up with—so what does Milton's do in this given situation—they come up wth new exclusive tones not found elsewhere such as navy-white; beige-navy; beige mid-olive.

Milton's felt a need for a new interesting suit idea and came up with the country suit that feels equally at home on campus, a country weekend or for smart town appearances. The two main fabrics involved are a cashmere feeling saxony in a new larger suit size ½ herringbone in light gray-white; charcoal-gray; cognac-olive or the new six ply sturdy yet lightweight hopsack in a rich golden gray or medium gray.

We stand alone in shirts with our own nationally famous M-2 customized self roll button-down. absolutely the living end in a fashionable shirt, superbly detailed to our exacting specifications.

When it comes to sweaters, our Cupboards look to the bonny, bonny Banks of Loch Lommond and come up with many new unusual heathers each fall—the new winners this year are blond havana, havana brown, azure brown, azure blue, green mist, autumn gold, gray-blue and many other heathers made for us alone in our own higher V-neck shetland with better fitting saddle shoulders. You won't find fad tones such as bottle which we feel is much more at home in the hip pockets, but new tones that sometimes don't reach the national market for years.

Is it any wonder that so many wonderful folks swear by Milton's and come hundreds of miles out of their way, call us long distance from California, and order by mail all over the Free World.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

BRADY'S RESTAURANT
Open Every Day 11:00 A.M. to 11:30 P.M.
The Perfect Place to Bring a Date
Features . . . Complete Lunches and Dinners
Excellent Food, at Reasonable Prices
LOCATED ON THE DURHAM ROAD
PHONE 942-5392

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

16

Farm Edition
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Cloudy and cooler.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1963 | United Press International Service

Castro's Isle Looks Normal--Except...

Salter In Cuba: Part II

By GARY BLANCHARD
Second of four articles.

(Ed. Note: It was incorrectly implied in yesterday's story that the Progressive Labor Club formed by Salter, Larry Phelps and a handful of other students during the summer of 1962 was an official campus organization. This was not the case. The club never sought or received University accreditation. In addition, it was not a club with officers and by-laws, but rather a group of like-minded people who met informally and irregularly. The New Left Club, however, met University requirements for accreditation and was therefore officially recognized as a matter of routine.)

"Havana, Cuba, looks normal enough by U. S. standards," says a former University of North Carolina student who spent the summer there.

Normal, that is, except for the Hungarian buses, the one-eyed cars at night, the Soviet ships crowding the harbor, and the men and women taking turns toting submachineguns and rifles outside the buildings in which they work, guarding against counter-revolutionary bombings.

Otherwise, says John Salter, 22, one of the 59 American students who violated the State Department's Cuban travel ban, Havana looks much like any southern, palm-treed, U. S. city.

"The people were all well-dressed and wearing shoes. Parking places seemed to be a premium and there was plenty of traffic on the streets, although most of the cars are no newer than 1958 models.

"There is a great lack of spare parts, but not of ingenuity. At night about 30 per cent of the cars had only one headlight. The roads were slick in places from oil leaks.

"The bus service seemed to be more than adequate. You had to wait only a few minutes to catch a bus to any point in Havana.

"We were told that the buses are largely old U. S. models bought through Canada, and they cost the Cuban government about $25,000 each in American money. Perhaps twenty per cent of the buses we saw were new and made in Hungary."

The slightly-built, soft-spoken Greensboro resident, who dropped out of UNC last spring because of low grades and is now job-hunting, says Havana's shops were "well-stocked with clothing and shoes.

"The streets on the whole are no more clean or dirty than those of Durham," he adds.

"I didn't see any beggars on the streets, but I did see men and women in militia uniforms standing in the doorways of nearly every large building.

"We were told that these were store personnel who contribute something like one day out of every two weeks to the militia, guarding the buildings they work in against counter-revolutionary bombings that once were such a threat to Havana.

"They ranged in age from young men and pretty girls to old women, sitting in a chair with a rifle laid across their knees and nodding to everyone who goes in."

Salter, who hopes to get his grades up via correspondence courses and return to UNC next spring, said he saw and talked to "hundreds" of Cuban soldiers, but "at no time did I see a Russian in uniform.

"We did see many Russians but they were almost always dressed very casually in Cuban sport shirts. From what I was able to tell, the Soviets mix with the Cuban people to a very large degree, and from what I could observe, they were usually well-accepted.

"In Havana bay," he noted, "I could see Soviet ships everywhere. I saw one that was unloading what appeared to be several score tractors."

Salter also had a chance to sample Cuba's socialized medical system when he developed a touch of flu a few days after his arrival in Havana via Prague, Czechoslovakia.

"A student guide from the University of Havana took me to the Camillo Cienfuegas Clinic. We took a place on a bench in a hall. There was no nurse or attendant to take our names. Patients just went in to see the doctor in order of arrival, unless it was an emergency.

"After a 40 or 45 minute wait we went in to see the doctor. He was puzzled that I had to have someone translate for me.

"The doctor examined me and made out a prescription. Then the guide told him that I was one of the American students and instantly his face was wreathed in smiles. He began pumping my hand and saying that all of Cuba was proud to have us and that during our stay we would be their sons and daughters.

"He seemed very enthusiastic about the reforms the government has made in medicine. He said his pay was 800 pesos a month, based on a forty-hour

(Continued on Page Three)

A CARAVAN OF TRUCKS carrying the visiting American students and their guides enters the courtyard of the Minas del Fria school, high in the Sierra Maestra Mountains. These mountains were a Castro-stronghold during the early days of his rebellion against the Batista regime. The students traveled through the mountainous terrain in the backs of trucks. Accordcording to Salter, the "Welcome Students" sign in the center of the picture was typical of the reception they got everywhere.

—Photos by John Salter

AMERICAN STUDENTS in a 3½-hour meeting with Cuban Economics Minister Che Gueverra, one of several top Cuban leaders with whom the students met during their stay in the country. Gueverra is in the right foreground. Salter appears fifth from the right, directly above Gueverra's head. Gueverra, long one of Castro's favorites, is responsible for the economic policy of the government.

ROBERT WILLIAMS, formerly of Monroe, N. C., and now in Cuba as a propagandist for the Castro Government, is shown with some of the visiting students. Williams, voice of "Radio Free Dixie" is wanted in North Carolina in connection with the alleged kidnapping of a white couple during racial unrest in Monroe in the summer of 1961.

IN THE "MARTYRS' ROOM" at the University of Havana. Salter is blurry in the right foreground. The flag to the left is the Cuban; The American flag, on the right, was hung in honor of the American visitors. Normally, with the flags of other countries, the American flag is hung on its own right.

—Photo by John Salter

Phipps Tentatively OKs Speaker Ban Meeting

Stone, Helms Decline

State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps "tentatively accepted" yesterday a Daily Tar Heel invitation that he come to the campus and explain his reasons for supporting the recently-enacted Speaker Ban law.

Phipps agreed, according to DTH co-editors Gary Blanchard and David Ethridge, "subject to our agreeing on a mutually-accepted date and time.

"He is not able to set a definite date at this time because of prior commitments," they said.

The co-editors said they plan to meet with Phipps in the next few days to work out details of the meeting.

Phipps, a resident of Chapel Hill and long prominent in Orange County Democratic Party politics, represented Orange County in the 1963 General Assembly which passed the law.

Phipps is one of three prominent supporters of the law who were editorially invited by the DTH to come to the campus and express their views on it.

The other two men, State Senate President Clarence Stone and Raleigh television editorialist Jesse Helms, both turned down the invitation.

Helms has countered with an offer for "Consolidated University President William C. Friday or any other responsible person for the other side" to discuss or debate the bill in prime time over WRAL-TV.

Blanchard and Ethridge said in announcing Phipps' decision that they "look forward to a free and full discussion of the law, in the best traditions of a great University."

They said arrangements for Phipps' visit will be announced when they are completed.

SPU To Demonstrate Against Foreign Policy In Vietnam

By JOEL BULKLEY

Some 50 persons are expected to participate in a protest demonstration against United States foreign policy in South Vietnam on the University campus this afternoon, according to Pat Cusick, national field secretary for the Student Peace Union.

The demonstration here is part of nation-wide protests, coordinated jointly by the Student Peace Union (SPU) and Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), against U. S. economic and military support of the Diem regime in South Vietnam. The Student Peace Union will sponsor the demonstration in Chapel Hill.

John Dunne, chairman of the campus chapter of the SPU, said the protest is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. on the steps of South Building and proceed to the downtown business area.

Cusick said the visit of Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, first lady of Vietnam, to the U. S. to gain support for the Diem government marked an occasion for the protest.

In New York, Mme. Nhu spent her first day in this country in silent seclusion. She chose to remain in her mid-town hotel room all day resting and preparing speeches for her forthcoming cross-country trip. Her three-week lecture tour will take her throughout the United States and will include a day stop in Raleigh.

Indications are the SPU chapter here, and other groups in North Carolina, will be on hand to protest U. S. government policy in Vietnam when she speaks at State College Thursday, Oct. 17.

Dunne issued a prepared statement Tuesday saying, "We contend that the U. S. should withdraw all aid to the Diem regime; the United Nations should then be authorized to administer all economic aid to the peoples of both North and South Vietnam, and to hold free elections to determine the government of both countries. We strongly urge all those who oppose U. S. support of this tyrannical dictatorship to join with us in protest."

Demonstrations will also be held in Washington, New York, Chicago, Houston, Denver, Louisville, Oberlin, Ohio; Bloomington, Ill.; and Philadelphia, Dunne said.

Six Seats Open In Legislature

A Student Party official Tuesday announced plans for filling six SP vacancies in Student Legislature. Phil Baddour, SP floor leader, said there are two seats open in Dorm Women's Four (East and West Cobb), and two in Town Men's Four (men residing in the area outside corporate limits of Chapel Hill and Carrboro). There also is one vacancy in Dorm Men's Three (Alexander, Joyner, Connor, and Winston) and one in Dorm Men's Seven (Ehringhaus).

"These seats were won in the spring election by the SP and under the General Election Law these seats may be filled by the SP," Baddour said.

The SP chooses these members through election by the entire party. SP bylaws state that these vacancies must be announced the meeting before the election. The vacancies in Cobb and Town Men's Four were announced at the last meeting.

The other vacancies will be announced at the next meeting, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. in the Roland Parker Room of GM .

"A person does not have to be a member of the SP to run and anyone interested is encouraged to run," said Baddour. Additional information can be obtained from Neil Jackson, 7 Old West and Baddour, 303 Everett.

Fine Arts Bill Up For Review

The bill to establish a Fine Arts Festival (BW 35-13) will start its journey to ratification this afternoon when it will be considered by the Ways and Means Committee of Student Legislature.

The bill would set up a Fine Arts Festival committee which would hold a festival in the spring of every other year, alternating with the Carolina Symposium.

It would consist of performances and exhibitions of student and faculty art in the fields of music, literature, drama, painting and sculpture. In addition it would include contributions and performances by outside artists.

The bill, introduced by John Ulfelder (UP, TMH), will be considered by the committee at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

"We hope that all students interested in this legislation will appear before the committee and speak on it", commented Neal Jackson, committee chairman. "Many people have expressed feeling on the bill—both pro and con — and we want to have all viewpoints considered."

Police Issue Report On Missing Boy

Chapel Hill police have issued a missing person report on Edward M. Moriarity, 19, who has been missing since October 1.

The Highway Patrol also issued an all-points bulletin on the Sykesville, Md. youth. Moriarity's parents have been notified of their son's disappearance.

Moriarity was living in Parker dormitory at the time of his disappearance. One of his suite mates reported to police that his car was missing. The report came the day after Moriarity's disappearance.

Moriarity left with all of his belongings except an NROTC uniform.

Police released this description of Moriarity: five feet, nine inches; 155 pounds; brown hair and brown eyes and fair complexion.

The car that disappeared at the same time that Moriarity did was described as a 1963 Pontiac with Alabama license number 27-14332.

Playmakers Rehearse 1st Production

The Carolina Playmakers are rehearsing this week for their first major production of the current season, "Little Mary Sunshine," a musical spoof of operettas.

Casting was completed last week, and rehearsals are underway for the October 23 opening. Directed by Foster Fitz-Simons, with Charles Horton as musical director, the production will run for six performances through October 27.

Peggy Jones of Durham has landed the title role of Mary Potts (alias Little Mary Sunshine). Miss Jones has appeared with the Durham Theatre Guild, the Triangle Summer Theatre, and the Grass Roots Opera Company. A medical secretary at Duke Hospital, this is her first appearance in a Playmakers production.

The role of Captain Jim Warrington, a forest ranger, will be played by Randolph Umberger of Burlington. He has appeared in numerous productions on the Playmakers stage, and will be remembered for his portrayal of Sky Masterson in last year's musical, "Guys and Dolls."

Muriel Wilson of Durham plays Madame Ernestine, a glamorously delapidated opera star, and Robert Ivey, also of Durham, portrays the comic role of Billy Jester, one of the forest rangers.

Others in the cast are: Graham Pollock, Gatesville; Janice Moore, Beaufort, S. C.; Larry Warner, Rocky Mount; Ben Jones and Sandra Wilson, Wilmington; Hy Field, Charlotte; Roberts Batson, Manzanillo, Dominican Republic; Tom Byrd, Asheville; George Gray, Gastonia; Tommy Henley, Chuck Von Busch, Judy Logan, and Dorothy Silver, Chapel Hill; Pascal Tone, New York City; Barbara Tarlin, Belmont, Mass.; Betsy Crawford, Lumberton; and Gail Patterson Wright, Mt. Airy.

Business Manager John W. Parker has announced that season tickets are still available for the Playmakers' five major productions this year. They are on sale for $8.00 each at The Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall, and at Ledbetter-Pickard. Individual tickets for each production will be $2.00.

Following "Little Mary Sunshine," The Playmakers will present "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "The Busy Martyr," "J. B.," and "The Braggart Soldier."

World News Briefs

Commerce Group Passes Accommodations Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Commerce Committee Tuesday approved a public accommodations bill aimed at outlawing racial discrimination in all but small neighborhood businesses.

The measure, passed by a 14-3 committee vote, would in effect leave it up to the courts to define which privately owned establishments catering to the public would be exempted.

The controversial bill also would give local facilities 30 days to desegregate voluntarily before the attorney general or a complainant could file suit in court.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) the committee chairman, said the discrimination ban would not extend to shops or stores that are not part of a chain operation, that primarily serve the neighborhood trade and that do not do business with interstate travelers.

King Issues Ultimatum To Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. issued an ultimatum Tuesday demanding that Birmingham officials hire 25 Negro policemen within two weeks or face more demonstrations.

The Southern integration leader demanded that Birmingham City Council enter "face-to-face" negotiations with Negro leaders for the hiring of clerks, firemen and other civil employes as evidence of a "good faith" start at lowering the city's rigid segregation barriers.

He promised "bigger and more determined" protests if the demands are not met, and threatened a huge civil rights march similar to the one in Washington in August.

Govt. Files Suit Against Louisiana

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government filed suit against Louisiana Tuesday seeking to block it from using voter registration application forms to discriminate against Negroes.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said the suit was filed in the U. S. District Court at Baton Rouge. The suit asked the court to declare unconstitutional provisions of the state constitution and state laws requiring use of the application as a registration test.

The complaint, filed under the civil rights act of 1957 and 1960, said the history of Louisiana's adoption and use of the test demonstrate that it was deemed as disengranchising Nedeemed as disenfranchising Nesupremacy in the state.

2,500 Dead Or Missing In Haiti

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—Haiti's health secretary said Tuesday that 2,500 persons are dead or missing in the aftermath of hurricane Flora and that the final casualty count may be double that figure.

Secretary Gerard Philippeaux said all of Haiti's Atlantic Coast villages have "disappeared" in an area populated by nearly 130,000 persons.

Material damages are running betwen 40 per cent and 100 per cent, or total destruction, Philippeaux said.

House Approves Record Defense Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today approved a "no letdown" defense spending bill—second largest in peacetime history — by a 335-3 vote. The measure would provide $47.2 billion to keep America in fighting trim.

The bill now goes back to the Senate for final concurrence and then to the White House.

Vol. 72, Number 16 Wednesday, October 9, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Close S. C. State? A Blueprint For Chaos

South Carolina's reputation for meeting racial change with dignity and intelligence may soon be smashed if the news out of Orangeburg, S. C., is accurate.

The reports say state officials are considering closing South Carolina's all-Negro State College if the students continue to emphasize anti-segregation demonstrations rather than classroom studies.

The reports further state that students at church-supported Claflin College, another all-Negro school nearby, are as angry at the threat as are the State students, and both plan to increase the tempo of their demonstrations if the report is accurate.

The only definitive word on the matter thus far has come from Gov. Donald Russell. "No final action has been taken," he is quoted as saying.

Be that as it may, the practical realities alone of the threatened closing should be enough to convince the most implacable of South Carolina's segregationists that the action would be pure folly.

Close the school and the entire student body will undoubtedly be out demonstrating. Add this prospect to the fact that 1,000 people already have been arrested in anti-segregation demonstrations in Orangeburg, and it is clear that South Carolina could easily have a Birmingham to cope with.

The answer to the whole problem, as usual, is ridiculously easy to state: Recognize the actual causes of the demonstrations and act to remove them.

South Carolina's immediate future may hinge to a large extent upon whether this remains merely the obvious course of action in Orangeburg and elsewhere, or whether it is actually done.

If it is not done, Orangeburg could well be the spark that ignites South Carolina's segregation-weary Negro citzens into something other than quiet, non-violent protest.

We do not envy Gov. Russell and other responsible state officials as they attempt to chart a course through the churning sea of white and Negro militancy that engulfs South Carolina.

The only certainty, practical and moral, which faces them, however, is that the State College must not be closed.

What'll Make Charley Run?

We have rarely found ourselves able to enjoy the misfortune of others, but in the case of the North Carolina Republican Party, we find ourselves morally strong enough to overcome this fundamental defect in our character.

While Judge Richardson Preyer and Dan K. Moore, not to mention Orange County's own banjo-picking candidate, are getting their campaigns underway for the Democratic primary this spring, the Republicans seem to be having trouble just getting a campaign started to get a candidate to run.

For the past few months the Republicans have had to content themselves with looking hopefully at each other and asking, "Will he?", "Won't he?", and "What are we going to do if he doesn't?"

The "he" is Charles Raper Jonas, and although all Republican hopes rest on this man, he has not yet indicated his intentions. Not only has he not indicated his intentions, he has asked the movers of the 'Draft Jonas' campaign to call it off.

The problem is that it is too late to call off the campaign. 15,000 petitions have already gone out and thousands upon thousands of bumper and windshield stickers are waiting to flood the state from Manteo to Murphy, but Jonas remains uncommittedly aloof.

If this weren't enough, the state Republican organization can't really get much steam in it's million dollar fundraising drive since most donors would like to know who the money will go for.

It's a sad day for Republicans when they can't even lure a horse into the paddock, while the Democrats have several on the track and running. What a great and glorious, bright and shiny day of jublication it would be if they could only hear those wonderful words of romance, "Jonas is willin."

Amusing Reading

Besides aiding understanding, reading things closely is often quite amusing. Take Saturday's Tar Heel for example.

On page one, in a story about Student Legislature approving the dormitory intramural managers' money bill, it is noted that "Each undergraduate dormitory will have one manager except Ehringhaus and Craige which will have 3 and 2 respectfully."

Wonder if he meant "respectively?"

Then, the other day, the story on Dean Long's fraternity report noted that one drawback of fraternities is that they "perpetrate" adolescence.

On whom, we wondered, as we surmised that "perpetuated" must've been what was meant. But somewhere between the report and publication of our story, the words got switched.

The classic, though, was on yesterday's Sports Page. Said Track Coach Joe Hilton of our outstanding cross-country runner, James Meade, who has really come along this season: "Meade is a great runner and has made great strides."

Ohhhh. Brother.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Carrying Goldwater On Both Shoulders

Letters To The Editors

Otelia, Debates And Complaints

Otelia Answers

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I don't as a rule bother to answer letters to the editor concerning myself, but I am glad that Reginall Harrison, Jr. has called attention to what the English consider a silly habit, namely, zigzagging the knife and fork from one hand to the other, caused by the American style of holding the fork in the right hand when we eat. It makes much more sense to cut several portions of meat before laying down the knife and picking up the fork with the right hand. Try it, Mr. Harrison, and see if you don't agree that it facilitates this business of eating meat.

As for dipping my corn bread in my tea, I have explained to those who have called me on that habit that dunking is a good old English custom—their houses are cold—their food gets cold, but they always have a hot pot of tea to correct that discrepency. And so do I find that a hot cup of tea warms up my bread which often gets cold before I get to my table and get around to eating it.

About this subject of wearing hats in church, it is an ancient custom, but like other customs it has been modified. (This from our rector). However, it is a custom that some people like to have preserved, like standing up when in the presence of a lady.

I use the large spoon, rather than the tea spoon because I like it that way.

Next!

It is an encouraging sign that the young people here are beginning to give some thought to this aspect of their education, for as I have quoted Dorothy Thompson before, "The distinguishing mark of an educated man—he can be counted on to behave as a gentleman."

Otelia Connor

Who Is Otelia!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

There are those of us attending Carolina who have just recently been exposed to the personage of Otelia Connor. She is much like Fitzgerald's character Gatsby, in that many know of her, but few know about her. After reading several articles in the Daily Tar Heel concerning some of her more commonplace activities around the campus, a series of moot questions arise.

Who is she? Rumor has it that she is really the Chancellor's wife, a public health worker, Mr. Proctor's wife, a divorcee from Durham, a chow-hound, the mother of an alumnus, a cafeteria supervisor, a teacher, a private citizen of Chapel Hill . . . the list could continue indefinitely.

Is red her favorite color? Upon entering Lenoir Hall for dinner, one is immediately attracted (or distracted) by a sanguine object amidst the rather conservative Ivy League colors. Six out of the seven days of the week, Miss Connor may be seen wearing that incarnadine hue which is known to incite anger in bulls (and some students). From a psychological standpoint this author wonders what her motives for tormenting bulls (or students) are.

Is she an authority on etiquette? Our library does not list her book with those of Emily Post and Amy Vanderbilt, though I'm certain it must be shelved somewhere. However, I believe she will find the etiquette situation the same throughout most American universities. The majority of us are not in college with the idea of a "gentlemen's finishing school" in mind. When we study, we study hard; and when we eat, we like to enjoy our victuals.

Must she always be the first in line for dinner? After a full day's efforts at getting an education, the more ambitious of us prefer to get ahead of the evening meal rush. Upon our early arrival to Mother Lenoir, we find the Number One spot already occupied, and we fall in behind gravely disillusioned. Miss Connor's pattern is quite consistent: When she has gone through the line, she eats her dinner at a "reserved" place halfway between the door and the line, and then sits pensively staring into space (or at students), incessantly puffing her cigarette.

My comrades and I are presently in dispute over these and other similar questions and would appreciate a sincere answer. We haven't as yet decided whether she is a harmless old fogy or a critical "voice crying in the wilderness." We are certain of this, however: No other university in America is privileged with her presence, and we feel that she (and whatever she stands for) will eventually evolve into the heritage and tradition that is Carolina.

Cecil Albright
207 Graham

Jab To Right

Editors, The Tar Heel,

In regard to the letter by Mr. Warren C. Ogden Jr., on October 4, 1963: The number of needles in this haystack of 10,000 plus is much greater than one, and I am glad to count myself in that number. I also back up Mr. Ogden and any others who would attempt to put at least a small hole in the rather grotesque balloon of nonsense which many people would like to see envelop (I say smother) the entire campus. One of the main sources of the once hot, now odious and heavy vapours that fill this balloon is that noisiest authority and proponent of liberalism, that slightly-tinged-with-yellow (I didn't say pink) journalistic enterprise, our own Daily Tar Heel.

It would seem that this University deserves a less one-sided representation of campus opinion and "news" than is propagated by this paper. Not everyone here rushes downtown or to Raleigh or to Washington to join a demonstration. Not everyone believes Birmingham, Alabama to be the world's capital of violence and depravity. Nor does everyone try to be the first in the stampede of the hypnotized faithful to shout, "Yes, yes" with vigah to every imitation pearl of wisdom to drop from The Brothers K (& Co.) And I am certain that out of the large number of those who refuse to go along with "the crowd", very few are the type of senile know-nothing or brainless clod The Tar Heel has seen fit to equate with The Conservative, by means of its randomly thrown vitriolic attacks on such as David Lawrence and Jesse Helms, and in the recent rash of "Whupple" letters.

Much has been said in the past about student apathy to public affairs and campus politics. It is a fact that most of us came here to get an education, not to become a martyr for the downtrodden or a junior pillar of freedom; to give first importance to classroom lectures rather than talks by occasional speakers, be they subversive or otherwise. Could be that most of the "apathetic" students are just too busy with their studies. Could be also that those who produce The Tar Heel could afford to stop trying so hard, put a little more time on academics, and come out with a better paper, to boot.

I hope this has been a jab in the right direction.

W. S. Berryhill Jr.
Fairview Road

Otelia And Hats

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Upon reading the letter to the editors written by Mrs. Otelia Connor which appeared in the October 2 edition of The Tar Heel, I could not help but be disturbed about her desire that girls be required to wear some head covering in church. Perhaps my own concept of the church is wrong, but I cannot help but feel that at this particular point, Mrs. Connor's sincere campaign to reform this generation of college students has missed its mark.

Perhaps we who claim to be genuinely interested in the church should be more concerned about whether or not our co-eds are even in church, and if they are, just why they have come and what the church has to offer them. This seems to be much more relevant to an "improvement campaign" than worrying about whether or not girls attend church wearing hats. I am sure that God has no intention of turning them away if they do not conform to this particular point of Oteliaquette.

David B. Craig
127 Mallette St.

Incongruity

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Consider the following reasons in favor of a Speaker Ban:

1) Other states have passed laws which in one way or another regulate freedom of speech. Therefore this is not a radically new concept.

2) There exist Federal Court interpretations ruling against freedom of speech. For example, freedom of speech does not give a man the right to scream 'fire" in a crowded theater. Communists are, in effect, screaming "fire". Let's not rock the boat.

3) The Speaker Ban recognizes the widely accepted concept of "higher rights". That is, even though a man has freedom of speech, there are certain responsibilities which must be fulfilled in return for that freedom. If a man is to be allowed the right to freedom of speech, he must speak only the truth. Is it not a higher right that men not be exposed to lies and malice which might corrupt them

4) This law does not prevent a man from holding these undesirable views, but only prevents them from becoming public policy.

5) The Speaker Ban serves more than the moral purpose of restricting immoral doctrines; it enables many small towns to have an honorable way to silence Communist agitators without being accused of abridging freedom of speech.

I should hope that the foregoing discussion has enraged at least some of you. Now consider this. The arguments I just gave in favor of a Speaker Ban are almost identical with those given by our editors in support of further regulation of private property via the Public Accomodation Sector of the Civil Rights Bill. This argument in favor of a Speaker Ban is certainly invalid, yet virtually the same set of premises is considered valid enough to support a limitation of property rights. In general, any argument against one right can be used—and if you have followed the Speaker Ban controversy you know it has been used—against any other right. Erode one right and you necessarily erode the others.

Property rights and Freedom of Speech are the two implementations of the one basic right—the right to life. If a person does not have a right to expound his beliefs, then his life does not belong to him. If a person does not have the right to dispose of his property (whether real or personal), then that person is a slave. Furthermore, there cannot be a right to restrict the right to Freedom of Speech. There is no such thing as a "higher right" which under certain conditions (to be determined by whom?) enables a person or group to restrict the right to property. There are no such things as rights to enslave.

This brings up the question as to how can the editors in one breath, but out of different sides of their collective mouth, simultaneously demand that rights not be encroached upon by anyone and that under certain conditions rights can be encroached upon.

I suggest that the editors' view of this dilemma is one of myopic pragmatism. Legislate the damn thing and it will go away. Just one more law then everyone will be happy. No one will be refused service. Perhaps the desirability of their goal—that all men be judged as to their individual merits—leads them to believe that the end justifies the means, that a few rights here and there aren't enough to matter. I hasten to remind the editors that "in a free society the ends do not justify the means.

On the contrary, if the extermination of totalitarian thought is bought at the price of making the United States a totalitarian nation, then the entire concept of our Constitution has been subverted, and we have been reduced to the level of our adversaries." (Chuck Neely, "Beacon of Truth Is Threatened?" DTH, Oct. 2) This concept is equally applicable to those who would erode property rights. The end does not justify the means.

And finally, "The real test of freedom is really how far a person or institution goes in defending the right of a perfectly obnoxious person to dissent . . . ." ("The Acid Test of Liberties," Greensboro Daily News, October 3) In taking this test, our esteemed editors do not go far enough and consequently fail.

Bill Good
213 McCauley St.

A Letter Home

Editors, The Tar Heel,

A letter for all the people who write letters to the editor and haven't had a chance to send one home.

Hello Muddah,
Hello Faddah,

Here I am at Carolina.

I think it's very entertaining. Because I know they'll never want to stop complaining.

Only freshmen are supposed to say good things.

A lot of people even complain about the complainers.

They don't like a charming complainer named Otelia. They don't think she eats right. So they want her to do something else besides eat with them on Sundays. Maybe she could run a hat stand.

A bunch of students have whispered to me that the student paper is red. They said they would rather be caught dead than read.

Actually, I know they're wrong. The paper is a unique combination. It is blue, red, yellow and has a lot of nice white ads. It also has complete coverage of world news. Yesterday the World Series game was the only world news.

Last week the paper showed a picture of a bunch of boys shoving girls up front so they could get inside Memorial Hall first.

The paper said these boys were certainy not Carolina Gentlemen.

This week the paper had a picture of a "peace talker". Apparently several students didn't see eye-to-eye with the speaker because they missed him when they threw eggs at his head.

Nobody said anything about the egg-throwers. I guess they were Carolina Gentlemen.

Yesterday, as I was pushing my way through the masses of eager learners, I spyed an unshaven youth wandering inside the traffic circle around the Old Well. I asked him if I could show him where the men's room was but he said "No."

"I haven't been able to break out of this circle to get to class," he wept. I took him to the gym and told him to wait right there until the next registration.

Please file this letter with the rest of my papers which will be published as part of my memoirs. I have decided to change the title. Instead of "Flood From The Old Water Fountain," it will be called "God and Ban at Carolina."

Bill Hagen
Fairview Rd.

Writers Debate

Dear Mr. Ogden,

I accept your challenge to a debate, and am extremely pleased with your openmindedness. It is a quality that is an anomaly in the conservative mind. I hope our discussion can prove to be an extension of the intellectual inquiry that is becoming a scarce commodity in academic life.

I do not propose to preach to the "un-enlightened masses", as you phrase it. I make no singular claim on any measurable degree of enlightenment, but rather possess an insatiable desire for illumination from any source. If I achieve some new insight as a result of our talk, I shall be most appreciative. I earnestly hope that our "debate" can be a broadening rather than a constricting experience for both parties.

As to time and place, I think this Friday, October 11, at 3:15 p.m. near the flagpole on main campus would be a suitable place. Thank you for the opportunity to exercise a fundamental principle of our society, public expression of intellectual conflict. I am looking forward to seeing you on Friday.

John Shaffer
333 Craige

Litterbugs

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Having read the letter of a Mr. James Sturges in which he requests "other freshmen to contribute their good opinions about Chapel Hill," I am moved to write this letter.

First, I would agree with Mr. Sturges about the beauty of this campus. I am particularly struck by the beauty of the shrubs, trees, and grounds. These things impressed me most when I visited the campus for the first time this summer and when I came back this fall. However certain articles of refuse are beginning more and more to mar the beauty of the campus. Soft drink cups, cigarette packages, candy wrappers, old notebook papers are example of the trash littering the campus.

Now, I am possibly over sensitive about this matter since it was the cardinal sin against the student council to commit the atrocity of littering the grounds at my high school, but it does seem to me that we have something beautiful here, something of which to be proud. Therefore, I feel we should all be as conscious of where we throw our trash as possible. Thank you.

Lee (Otelia) Caruthers
536 Ehringhaus

An Obituary

Editors, The Tar Heel,

The University of North Carolina once had a history professor He talked slowly in a deep drawl, but his rate of speech was no reflection of his degree of intelligence. He had a reputation for flunking forty percent of his students. He swore frequently, became enraged rarely, and was a gentleman in the true sense of the word. His students were invited into his home; they were offered dinner if they arrived at the right time; and, if they would not accept, he would wait until they had departed to take his own meal. He believed in God. He was a good man. Above all else, he was truly kind. He was known to most of us as "Blackjack." His real name was Mr. J. B. MacLeod. He died last Tuesday night.

William Siebos
101 Graham

Med School May Produce Jonas Salks For Future

By MAT FRIEDMAN

Future Jonas Salks may be at work in the UNC School of Medicine.

But even if it is a while before they discover anything like the polio vaccine, their work could conceivably aid the cause of medical research in North Carolina and the United States.

Dr. Robert H. Wagner, associate professor of pathology, is directing a program on medical research for undergraduates in the University. UNC was a pioneer in this sort of program which began here in 1948. Generally, two students participate each year.

"We try to get students who are on the verge of finishing college work," says Dr. Wagner, "but who still need some credits and are interested in research. They are largely premed and generally very fine students."

Over the years, the 21 participants have engaged in a wide variety of research ranging from the genetics of hemophilia in dogs to methods of blood analysis. They work with a member of the medical school faculty who is doing work in a field in which they are interested and learn techniques which, hopefully, will lead to independent research in the future.

"Naturally," says Dr. Wagner, "none of the projects have been initiated by the students but most have had articles published as a result of their work here. For most, it was the first time they had done this sort of thing."

The students begin work the summer before their senior years and continue through the following summer. Most go on to medical school, and, hopefully, into research after the fifteen months here.

"Most of the participants," says Dr. Wagner, "have gone into research. I would say that the program has certainly increased the number of medical researchers in North Carolina. It's the sort of thing you get very little opportunity to do in medical school. We give them a chance to find out whether they like it.

"With the exception of two or three, they have been very glad they spent the year this way. The others just discovered that research was not for them. John Kirkland and Bill are taking part this year."

Every attempt is made, according to Dr. Wagner, to make the work as stimulating as possible. The past summer, two of the students made several field trips to the coast to collect specimens.

"The idea," he says, "is to give them real research. We try to avoid deadening work. I think that everyone who has taken part is better because of it, even those who have not gone into research. The more training a person has, the better a physician he will make."

Casey Gains YAF Honor

A state-wide organization of the conservative Young Americans for Freedom was established Sunday at a meeting in Durham. UNC student Noel Casey of North Bergen, N. J., was elected vice-chairman.

The meeting was attended by YAF members from UNC, Duke, Wake Forest, N. C. State, Salisbury, Kinston and Aberdeen.

Casey is also vice-chairman of the UNC chapter. David Walker of Duke was chosen state chairman.

A constitution providing for an annual state convention in the spring was adopted. The state officers were authorized to seek prominent Carolina citizens to serve on the board of advisors of the state organization. Rep. Charles R. Jonas of North Carolina is a member of the national board of advisors.

The UNC YAF members will man membership solicitation booths today from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Y Court and from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in Lenoir Hall.

They will also be seeking signatures and $1 contributions for the National Draft Goldwater Committee.

Attending the Durham meeting from the UNC chapter were Clyde Wilson, Barry Craig, Martin Wilson, Casey and faculty adviser Dr. C. E. Philbrook.

North Carolina is the 18th state to be organized on a state-wide basis by the YAF. Fred Coldren, national organizer from Washington, D. C., left Durham Sunday to attend a similar meeting in Columbia, S. C.

FLYING — Senior AFROTC Cadets James Poole of Lumberton and Larry Snoody of Liberty, are congratulated shortly after their first solo flights in a Piper Colt training aircraft. With them are Maj. William H. Klinker Jr. and Flight Instructor Robert H. Edwards Jr. Poole, who soloed last Saturday was further "congratulated" by his fellow cadets yesterday afternoon with a traditional dunking in Woollen Gym's Indoor pool. Snoody soloed yesterday afternoon. Poole and Snoody along with 13 other cadets in the Air Force's Flight Instruction Program will be assigned to pilot training after graduation next June. Under FIP cadets receive 36½ hours of flying time in light aircraft and may qualify for their private pilots license.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

— Salter In Cuba —

(Continued from Page 1)

week. But he said he often worked twelve hours or more a day as there weren't enough doctors and he felt he should do his part.

"I took the prescription out to a booth and handed it to a young man. He hardly glanced at me and filled the prescription from shelves filled with medicines.

"He wrapped the drugs—two bottles of penicillin and an antihistamine and some cough syrup—and handed them to me and we left. As far as I could tell, I'd been treated exactly as any Cuban would have been, except for the doctor's response."

Salter, who terms himself an "American Socialist," said his group was shown the "showplaces" of Cuba—schools, factories, housing projects, hospitals and clinics—but "the important thing is that this took up only a very small percentage of our time in Cuba.

"By far the largest part of our waking hours," he says, were spent talking to the Cuban people—many of them can speak pretty good English—all over Cuba.

"All of our expenses were paid by the Cuban Federation of University Students," he adds, "and although some of the American students took part in voluntary labor programs, it was in no sense an act of payment but an act of friendship and a chance to see another side of Cuban life."

(Tomorrow: Timetable of the Cuban Tour).

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Informal sorority rush will begin on Oct. 11. There will be an extended period for all interested to sign list in Dean of Women's office. Any girl who discontinued or was dropped during rush is eligible.

Ways and Means Committee of Student Legislature—4:00 p.m., Roland Parker II.

University Party—3-5 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM. Interviews being held for UP vacancies in Student Legislature.

Cheerleaders — 4 p.m. today and Thurs., Kenan Stadium, for all freshman girls interested.

Physics Club—8:30 p.m., Phillips Hall Loung.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., Lenoir, graduate Stray Greeks welcome.

Elections Board—4 p.m., Roland Parker III, GM.

Beta Gamma Sigma — 4 p.m., Faculty Seminar Room, Carroll Hall.

Wesley Foundation — 7:15 a.m., Wesley House, morning Communion.

Physics Colloquium — 4:30 p.m., 265 Phillips Hall.

Laundry Refunds — downtown laundry office, for all students attending first and second session summer school.

Coordinating Commission of the International Students Board—7:30 p.m., Y, Kellis Parker urges the following to attend: University Abroad, United Nations Education, Foreign Students Committee, International Relations Committee, the Spanish Club, the Arab Students Club, the Cosmopolitan Club, and the International Students Board.

Budget Committee—3 p.m., Grail Room.

CWC—6 p.m., East Cobb basement.

IDC DANCE

The Inter-Dormitory Council sponsors its first mixer with a women's dorm Friday night in the basement of East Cobb, beginning at 7 p.m.

The dance was arranged by the IDC in conjunction with the Cobb officers and the Carolina Women's Council.

The IDC has completed plans for the Consolidated University Day dance in Woollen Gym, Oct. 19. The Mat Jones combo will play, and the CU Day queen will be crowned during intermission.

The CU day dance will be from 7:45 to 11:45 p.m. and girls from Women's College will be there. Admission is 50 cents, stag or drag.

CORRECTION

John Knowles, UNC's first formal Writer-in-Residence, will have office hours Monday through Wednesday in 312 Bingham Hall for any student wishing to see him.

Hours are Monday, 10-12; Tuesday, 2-5 and Wednesday, 10-12:30.

Human Relations Committee of YM-YWCA will not meet today.

Yack Pictures — 1-5 p.m., basement GM, through Friday for Juniors, Nursing students, General Nursing students and Physical Therapy students.

Secretariat Interviews—2-4 p.m., through Thurs. see Bonnie Hoyle in Student Government Offices.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital,$1 charge.

Student Government — 2-5 p.m. daily interviews for limited committee appointments, apply 210 Graham Memorial. Five-minute interviews will be held. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Lawler will conduct them.

FUTURE

Wesley Foundation Lay Scholars —6 p.m., Thurs., Wesley House.

Campus Affairs Board—4 p.m., Thurs.

International Students Board—4 p.m., Thurs., "Y."

Friday meeting of the Carolina Christian Fellowship cancelled. Meetings resume Oct. 18.

CUSC—4 p.m., Thurs., Grail Room. Committee chairmen are asked to bring reports.

Hockey Club — 4 p.m., Thurs., Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

LOST

Lost—Brown leather wallet containing I.D. cards, etc., return to Charles W. Vaughn, 433 Ehringhaus. Reward offered.

Lost—Secretary containing cards 7 inches by 4 inches, return to Donald P. Walters, 224 Joyner or Tar Heel office. Reward offered.

Lost—black wallet, contact Charles A. Becker, 304 Ruffin.

MOVIES

Carolina—Seven Capital Sins
Varsity—The Hud
Northgate—VIP's
Rialto—The L-Shaped Room

ANTA PRESENTS THE NATIONAL REPERTORY THEATRE

EVA LeGALLIENNE
FARLEY GRANGER
DENHOLM ELLIOTT
ANNE MEACHAM

The Seagull by ANTON CHEKHOV
The Crucible by ARTHUR MILLER
Ring Round The Moon by JEAN ANOUILH

STUDENT AND FACULTY DISCOUNT — 50% GROUPPS OF 10

Pick up Discount Coupons at the Graham Memorial Info Desk.

OPENING OCT. 10 — AYCOCK AUD. WOMAN'S COLLEGE GREENSBORO, N. C.

"The SEAGULL" Thurs., Oct. 10 and Sat., Oct. 12 at 8:30 P.M.

"RING ROUND THE MOON" Fri., Oct. 11 and Sun., Oct. 13 at 8:30 P.M.

"THE CRUCIBLE" Tues. Oct. 15 at 8:30 P.M.

PRICES: ORCH — $5.00, $4.00; MEZZ — $5.00; BALC — $4.00, $3.00, $2.00

Economical Living Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C., Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill, J. D. Browning, Manager
5103 Market Street, Phone RO 2-0411, Wilmington, N. C., D. D. Browning, Owner

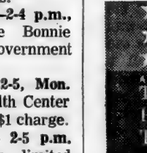
The Rathskeller Welcomes Back all U.N.C. Students
Mon.-Sat. 11:30 — 4:45-11:30

Have You Seen The Beautiful Drawings on Sale at $1.00?
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin Open Till 10 P.M.

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
GO BY SEA
FARES — $185.00 to $225.00 for RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

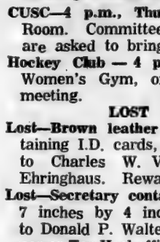
DINE AND WINE
At the Rathskeller
11:30 - 2:30 & 4:45 - 11:30

Old Well Charms



Sterling Silver ..... $4.00
Gold Plate ..... $5.00
Solid Gold ..... $17.00
T. L. KEMP JEWELRY
The Home of the Old Well Charm
135 East Franklin St.

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA—Raleigh
One Show—8:30 P.M.



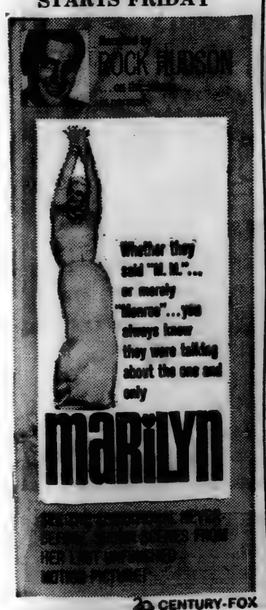
AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE... IN CONCERT
THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS
Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
A French soufflé ...a bit risqué!
JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents
7 Capital Sins
Dyaliscope • A Franco-Italian Co-Production • Les Film Gibe • An Embassy Pictures Release

Top Quality Chess Sets
WOOD CHESSMEN
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

NOTICE
Students, why walk when you can purchase a beautiful English style bike at Grant's for only $35.-00 on credit for $1.25 weekly.
W. T. GRANT
Easigate Shopping Center

TODAY ONLY!
"HUD"
Starring
PAUL NEWMAN
Varsity
STARTS FRIDAY



PART-TIME, DURHAM - CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

THE REASON MEN INSURE is not because they are afraid to die but because they know their families must live. For a sound program to provide for your family, call a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C. L. U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1957 PORCHE COUPE, 1600, Normal recent valve job and transmission overhaul, $1295. 929-1462.

1958 FIAT 600, NEW BRAKES, only 200 miles on major overhaul, $445. Guaranteed. 929-1462.

Sale — Miscellaneous

A BARGAIN — A COLUMBIA Console, Hi-Fi phonograph. Plays 33, 45 or 78 records. Bought new last year, will sell at half price. Phone 942-3953 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

WUNC-TV

Wednesday

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Parlons
12:00 U. N. Review
12:15 Mid-Day News
12:30 Aspect
11:00 Beyond Earth
1:30 Music in Air
2:00 Science, Nature
2:30 Sign Off
3:30 Methods
4:00 Sign Off
5:00 Algebra
6:00 A Schreiner
6:30 What's New?
7:00 News
7:30 Eric Hoffer
8:00 Hear Music
8:30 Japan
9:30 Goldberg
10:15 Sign Off

WUNC RADIO

Wednesday

6:00 The Dinner Hour—
Falla: Nights in the Garden of Spain
Mmetana: The Moldau
Bizet: Flowers Song from Carmen
Ketelby: In Persian Market
Borodin: In the Steppes of of Central Asia
6:55 News
7:00 This is a Friendly World
7:15 South Africa
7:30 Lincoln Story
7:45 Let's Talk About Old Age
8:00 Masterwork — Bach: Brandenburg Concerto No. Three Beethoven: Piano Concerto No. One
Brahms: Concerto for violin and cello
Mendelsohn: Concerto for violin and orchestra
10:00 Ten O'Clock Report
10:15 French Press Review
10:30 What about a Book
11:00 Hill Hall concert repeat
12:00 News

PEANUTS

For a Rollicking Good Time—
The RATHSKELLER

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wrinkles
5. Reasonable
10. Piece of furniture
11. Sheer fabric
13. Hair dye
14. Finished
15. Word of disgust
16. Therefore
18. Burglar: sl.
19. "—— Mutiny"
22. Hawaiian vine
23. Play
25. Parts of chair backs
28. Pronoun
29. Province: So. Afr.
31. Particle
34. Brazilian palm
35. Music note
37. Girl's name: poss.
39. Late summer fruit
42. Kind of quartz
43. Catkin
44. Hating
46. Swords

DOWN
1. Social group, esp. in Scotland
2. Shower
3. One of European-Asiatic descent
4. Like
5. Location
6. Black, hard wood
7. Slip
8. Exclamation
9. Writ of execution: Law.
10. Mandarin tea
12. Borders
17. Ahead
19. Calcium: sym.
20. Part of "to be"
21. Gauge
23. Tower over
24. Related again
26. Music note
27. Mulberry
30. Close to
32. Variety of willow
33. Horse blanket: Sp.
35. Not short
36. Insect
38. Stair
40. Arabian chieftain
41. Part of a camera
45. "—— senor"

Yesterday's Answer

Shiner's Availability Is Still Questionable

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Maryland quarterback Dick Shiner's availability status for Saturday's UNC-Maryland game is still questionable, Carolina head scout Emmett Cheek said yesterday.

Cheek, who scouted the Terps in their nationally-televised game with Duke last week, said he had talked with Maryland officials Tuesday morning but could get no definite word on the star's injury. Shiner, hurt with a hip pointer in the Duke contest, is second only to NC State's Jim Rossi in the ACC's total offense race. (Rossi is 408 to Shiner's 331).

"Maryland is improving tremendously every ball game," said Cheek, speaking at UNC's weekly press conference at the Carolina Inn. "They have three sophomores in the line, but their mistakes are vanishing with every added game experience.

"If Shiner is well, and we must go on the assumption that he is, and they've got Daryll Hill and Len Chiaverini in shape, we're in for a tough afternoon."

Coach Jim Hickey agreed he would have to prepare his team as if Shiner was going to play. "That way," said Hickey, "we'll be ready for anything."

Terrapin Coach Tom Nugent has been known to throw anything and everything at an opposition's defense. Nugent uses a multiple offense with 476 variations, including the straight I, the straight T, a split of both formations with sometimes two ends and sometimes one. Also used have been the shotgun, an unbalanced line and a lonesome end setup.

Defensively, they have run the 6-1 in their last two games.

UNC's pass defense statistic is sensational, but somewhat misleading.

The Tar Heels have given up only 12 completed passes of 51 thrown by their opponents. The net gain has been 81 yards for an average of 27 a game.

Nearest to UNC in the ACC is Clemson's mark of 270 yards and an average of 90.

Carolina's mark could well be one of the top five in the country as well it should be. For Virginia couldn't throw, Wake Forest couldn't pass and Michigan State didn't have to do either.

As far as the other ACC statistics go, UNC shapes up pretty good. The Tar Heels are second in rushing offense (491 to Duke's 518), second in passing offense (389 to Duke's 392), second in total offense (880 to Duke's 910) and second in total defense (581 to Clemson's 573).

Coach Hickey said yesterday he was planning on using a rotating system with quarterbacks Junior Edge and Gary Black.

"Black has done some outstanding work for us defensively so far," said Hickey, "and he has come along very fast as an offensive player. Edge has always been a good defensive man, and I think he is a proven offensive performer.

"Both of them being two-way players, I guess I'm using what amounts to a two-platoon system. They will remain in there when the ball changes hands and when their respective teams are playing."

Hickey also praised his team's blocking in the Wake game and the progress of Jay Malobicky at his new guard position.

by

Laszlo Birinyi

It's a simple grave and the epitaph is in keeping with the simplicity: "Chosen Coach of the Year 1953 by his colleagues — James Moore Tatum."

Jim Tatum graduated from Carolina in 1933 after having been an All-Southern tackle for two years. He returned to Chapel Hill in 1942 at the ripe old age of 27 to assume the duties of head coach. But after leading the Tar Heels to a 5-2-2 record, he left to join the Army.

After the war, "Sunny Jim" accepted the head coach's position at the University of Oklahoma. At Norman, the South Carolina native's squad compiled a won-loss record of 8-3 and went to the Gator Bowl.

But Tatum left Norman after one year to accept the same position at the University of Maryland leaving his prize assistant, Bud Wilkinson to succeed him at Oklahoma.

At Maryland, Tatum became a legend. During his nine years at College Park, his teams compiled an impressive 73-15-4 record which included three undefeated teams and one national champion. In addition five of his squads played in various bowls.

But Jim Tatum cherished the dream of returning to UNC and, when the opportunity presented itself in 1956, he took it even though it meant a considerable cut in salary and leaving a lifetime offer.

Unfortunately there were to be no Hollywood endings. At Carolina Tatum did a good job, 15-15-1, including a 7-3 season, but died of a virus infection before he could put one of his own squads, a squad he had personally recruited, into action.

Jim Tatum was a dedicated football coach, an outstanding recruiter, a tireless worker, a tough coach, a hard loser, a controversial figure and a good public relations man.

As a recruiter, Tatum had no peers. His favorite stomping grounds were the hills of Pennsylvania.

"There's 800 schools in Pennsylvania playing football, 400 schools in North Carolina and only half of them have teams. Where would you look?"

On one occasion, he had been invited to address a banquet but sent word that he wouldn't be able to make it. Upon hearing the announcement, Clemson's Frank Howard remarked, "What part of Pennsylvania's the wire from?"

Tatum was also an indefatigable worker. He was always the first person in every morning and the last to leave. Often he would drive all night from a banquet, sleep an hour and go to work.

As a coach on the field he was tough: "Jim Tatum is a mighty unpleasant individual to be around when someone isn't putting out."

Winning Was The Only Thing

Although his teams seldom lost, he was a bad loser: "Winning isn't the most important thing, it's the only thing." Or, "How can you be proud of a losing team?"

And above all he was controversial. His return to Carolina was by no means welcomed by everyone. The DTH criticized the "parasitic monster of professionalism" and many alumni dislike his "winning at all costs policies".

In his quest for good teams he often got into trouble with the administration: "If a college doesn't have a winning team, how's the alumni going to know the college president is doing a good job?"

But if some students didn't like his ways, his players were completely dedicated to him, "I don't know what it is, but I want to play football for him."

His staff likewise loved the big man, "He can make you mad as hell, but you were completely devoted to him."

And as a public relations man he was a master. He attended every banquet and luncheon he could. And reporters loved him, for the "Big Bull' was always ready to sit down and discuss in 20,000 words or more how to run the option or why Carolina was going to be better next year.

At lot of people wish Coach Tatum were still around. But this isn't fair to Coach Jim Hickey. Hickey had a lot of guts to step into the shoes of the coach who had the best won-loss record of his era, and a coach who was unquestionably the very best.

Tatum himself said he'd never have an undefeated team here: "This school's too tough, we won't get all the boys we want or keep all those we get."

James Moore Tatum didn't really care if he was the very best: "I don't want to be the toughest kid in town, I just want to be the guy who beat the toughest kid in town." And as a coach, his teams varied from the best to those that beat the best.

Carolina will probably never have a coach the equal of Jim Tatum, let's be thankful we had one.

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel

Page 4- Wednesday, October 9, 1963

UNC Halfback George Beim

After Tough Defeat, Booters At Davidson

Davidson College is the scene this afternoon as UNC's soccer team tries for win number one after its hard 0-6 shut-out defeat at Navy Saturday.

The Midshipmen gave Coach Marvin Allen's booters a tough lesson in their first match, but Carolina was not without its stars. Buddy Siegel (14 saves) in goal and defensemen George Biem, Park McGinty and George Butler were outstanding in the opener.

Biem played All-American Karl Kaeser man-for-man and contained him well. The big midshipman was held to one goal when he headed a rebound shot home in the first period.

Carolina's home opener with tough Washington University of St. Louis is scheduled for Monday, October 14. The kickers will also play Pfeiffer, Belmont Abbey, Maryland, Emory and Duke at home this year.

STARTING LINEUP

G—Buddy Siegel
FB—Charlie Battle
FB—George Butler
HB—Park McGinty
HB—Steve Painter
HB—George Beim
W—Jim Talbot
IL—Bill Reeves
CF—Drew Murphy
IR—Bill Haywood
W—Pete Blake

MURAL SCORES

4:00

AFROTC 8 Ehringh Skcums 0
Town Rats 14 Alex Poobahs 6
Law School II 26 Peacocks 6
Law School IV 49 Geology 0
SPU Godheads 10 Nhu's Gnus 7

5:00

Navy Mermen 36 Joyner Giants 2
Town Lodgers 40 Alex Playboys 0
Old East Primo 19 Stacy Studs 12
Med School I 25 Law School III 0
Med School II 1 Dent School III 0 (forfeit)

TODAY'S GAMES

4:00

Alex Bunnies-Everett Hustlers
Ehring C-Mangum Redskins
Alex Poobahs-Craige A
Grimes Gigolos-Navy Sea Lions

5:00

Joyner Jokes-Aycock Aardvarks
Old West Packers-Craige B
Victory Village-Grimes Gallants
BVP Bombers-Avery Antics
Manly Riverrats-Parker Panthers

LA's Jim Fregosi Is Named All Star

NEW YORK (UPI)—Los Angeles shortstop Jimmy Fregosi received one vote in United Press International's balloting for the 1963 All-Star team here yesterday.

Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers was a unanimous choice, and Cardinal shortstop Dick Groat was elected with only Fregosi's dissenting vote.

Koufax, who beat the New York Yankees twice in the World Series after a season during which he won 25 games, struck out 306 batters, had a record 11 shutouts and compiled a 1.88 earned run average, was named by all 24 experts who participated in the UPI's season survey.

Groat, who became the sparkplug of the Cardinals' surprising bid for the National League pennant after being obtained from the Pittsburgh Pirates, was picked by 23 of the 24 experts.

Also selected on the team were pitcher Whitey Ford, catcher Elston Howard and second-baseman Bobby Richardson of the Yanks, first-baseman Bill White and third-baseman Ken Boyer of the Cardinals and outfielders Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, Willie Mays of the San Francisco Gaints and Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers.

Aaron and Mays had 22 votes each, Boyer had 20, Howard, White and Kaline had 18 each, Ford had 16 and Richardson had 15.

Groat, returning to the heights of 1960 when he won the NL's most valuable player award, batted .319 with 201 hits, including six homers and 73 runs batted in. In addition, he proved the cohesive force that made the Cardinal infield the best in the NL.

Oklahoma Is 3-Point Pick Over Texas

NEW YORK (UPI)—Oklahoma Tuesday was rated a three-point favorite over Texas in Saturday's clash between the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 ranked college football teams.

The Oklahoma Sooners, idle last week after knocking off defending national champion Southern California two Saturdays ago, will carry a 2-0 record into the battle at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

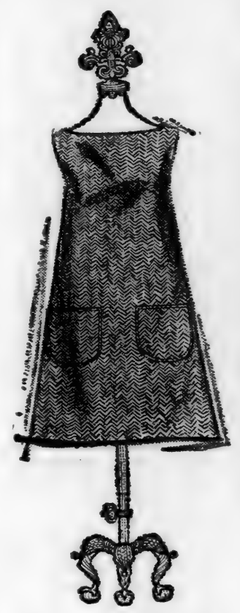
Birthday Greetings go today to Joe Pepitone, New York Yankee first baseman, whose error Sunday enabled the Los Angeles Dodgers to win the World Series in four straight games. Happy Birthday, Joe.



Herringbone A

Owning this is something like owning AT&T and the Mona Lisa . . . source of continuous joy. The smoother, slenderer A-frame, in a soft wool herringbone, lined to the hem. To wear sashed or unsashed . . . as a jumper or self-sufficiently. Black, Burgundy, Brown, or Navy, with White. Sizes 6 to 16.

The Villager

Town & Campus

Naturalaire

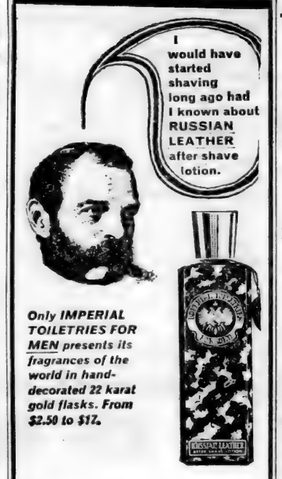
perfect expression of the natural shoulder suit

Tailored by H. FREEMAN & SON PHILADELPHIA

the label that means finer clothing

New collection of imported Scottish Shetlands, Tumbleweed Tweeds, & Superb Saxonies . . . in suits & Sportcoating . . .

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.



I would have started shaving long ago had I known about RUSSIAN LEATHER after shave lotion.

Only IMPERIAL TOILETRIES FOR MEN presents its fragrances of the world in hand-decorated 22 karat gold flasks. From $2.50 to $17.

RUSSIAN LEATHER

Gents, we caution overuse of this new after shave lotion for it seems the weaker sex has found it to be quite irresistable.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

DIAL M FOR FASHION

Imitation is supposed to signify quite a compliment—yet the adoption of the smart classic look Milton pioneered 14 years ago is still quite unique and distinctive.

We overwhelm many of our lassies with our vast shirt selections—not only do they find all the basics but the newest ideas that spin men's heads are first found in Milton's with new colours and stripes. By using our superior man shirtmaker our quality standards are quite high with absolutely no sacrifice to fashion.

In classic sweaters, the mists of Scotland yield the fine Laidlaw yarns which in turn become McGeorge's superb shetlands—our perrenial secret weapon of quality—plus a galaxy of new heather tones each year that get more irresistible. Take unusual tones such as sky mist, havana brown, autumn gold, autumn rust, azure blue, gray gold. In all these mouth watering colours, we have the classic crew, V-neck and classic cardigan with matching grosgrain ribbon.

In skirts, Milton's don't especially like the soft flannels that have poor shape-retaining properties and steal the worsted flannels from the men so their Lady Milton patrons can enjoy finer fabrics and finer tailoring, at modest quotations.

It's so much more fun in our Lady Milton Shops, since there is no such thing as coordinates. We feel these can be obtained in just about every glen, and therefore can't be distinctive. Milton feels our customers are too knowledgeable for this trite approach and prefer the adventure of selecting their own ensembles and show their clever originality in designing their own costumes.

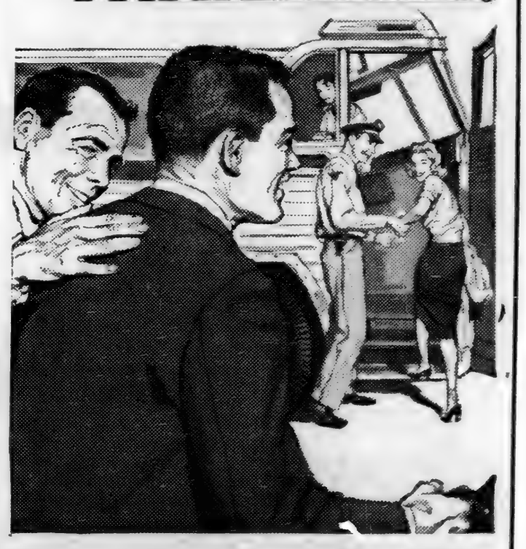
Our vast Lady Milton selections make this treat possible!

LADY MILTON SHOP AT

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Join the congenials . . .
take TRAILWAYS



easiest travel on earth

From the minute you step aboard to the end of your trip, you can feel the congeniality of a Trailways trip. Half the fun is meeting new people, but you'll enjoy also the luxury of Trailways' all-new fleet: reclining foam-contour seats, broad picture windows, air-conditioning, fully-equipped rest rooms. Next time you travel, take Trailways!

| From Chapel Hill | 1-way |
|---|---|
| NEW YORK — Thru Express-reserved seats | $15.50 |
| NORFOLK — Thru Express-frequent dep- | $6.65 |
| GREENSBORO — 7 Convenient trips daily | $1.45 |
| WILMINGTON — Daily thru service | $4.90 |
| WASHINGTON — Thru Express—seats reserved | $8.40 |
| CHARLOTTE — Convenient Express service | $4.25 |
| RALEIGH — 9 Convenient trips daily | $ .95 |
| MIAMI — New service via short route | $24.90 |

CHARTERS/TOURS /PACKAGE EXPRESS

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin Phone 942-3356

sero OF NEW HAVEN

IMPORTANT BRITISH STRIPES

This season, striped shirts take on a new fashion importance for well dressed men. Sero offers a handsome variety of stripes . . . variety in thickness, spacing and color combinations . . . tailored with Sero's famous, classic button-down collar.

Town & Campus

Rathskeller's
Welcome Back Gala
1/2 PRICE ON ALL PIZZA AND BEER
Today from 9:00-11:00 tonight
COME ON DOWN AND SEE ALL YOUR OLD FRIENDS
Special price only at table service

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Midlands Edition
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Cloudy and Mild

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1963 | United Press International Service

JOHN SALTER with Dorothy Denton, formerly of Morganton, a 1962 University graduate. Both now live in Chapel Hill. This photograph was taken while the American students were visiting at a Cuban collective farm, one of several they visited during their stay on the island this summer. They also visited industrial plants and talked to leaders in the Castro regime.

Salter In Cuba: Part III

TOMORROW

Gary Blanchard concludes his series on John Salter and the trip to Cuba by 59 American students with a discussion of Salter's impressions of Havana.

Curry Kirkpatrick once again bores the campus with his uninteresting selections of the top weekend football games and Diane Hile, DTH Woman's Editor, once again has the day off.

Fidel Was Good Host To Students

By GARY BLANCHARD
Third of four articles

"An average day of touring began around eight o'clock in the morning," says John Salter of his summer stay in Cuba with 58 other American students.

"We would be taken to a school, a housing project, a farm or a factory or to the downtown section.

"Our guides for the most part were students from the University of Havana who could speak good English. They had volunteered for the job when they were told of our coming trip.

"We left Idlewild Airport in New York City on June 25. It took us five days to travel to Prague, Czechoslovakia, and then to Havana. We arrived there July first.

"We spent the first week in and around Havana. 'ICAP,' the official government tourist service, had arranged for us to spend our stay in Havana in the twenty-story Habana Riviera. It was an ultra-plush hotel built in 1957 and later nationalized by the revolutionary government.

"Soon after we got there we were given cards to fill out, asking what we would like to see in general, who we'd like to talk to, and any other special interests or requests. Our official tour was drawn up based on that information.

"The usual procedure, after we got to our tour destination for the day, was to be told something about the place's history by the administrator. Then, after sometimes long question and answer sessions, we'd break up into small groups, usually with our student translators, and we'd talk with the students or the workers and ask them their opinions on working conditions, the government, or things in general.

"That was the pattern almost everywhere, in all the provinces we visited. Usually we had the greatest individual freedom possible in such a mass tour.

"The 'mass tour' part usually ended sometime early in the afternoon and we were free to go wherever we wanted to, either alone or, if as many as four of us wanted to go to a particular place, then 'ICAP 'would provide us with a translator and a car.

"We were served very good food in our hotel in Havana. In the provinces we ate many times in schools and we were served the same food as the Cuban students.

"It's a funny thing. Most of the men in our group lost weight and most of the women gained some."

Salter says he did a lot of wandering around on his own.

"I met quite a few Cubans who could speak some English, so it was easy to strike up a conversation," he says.

"Once in while they took me for a Russian, but usually they wanted to know if I were Czech or British. Many times I was asked if I was one of the American students."

(Tomorrow: Major impressions of Cuba.)

SUPERSTRUCTURE of a fishing vessel under construction is the background for American students visiting a Cuban shipyard this summer. Salter said he was told the crash construction of this type of ship has led to a fishing industry boom. —Photo by John Salter

Di-Phi Society Supports Public Accommodations

A resolution opposing the public accommodations clause of the Administration's Civil Rights Bill was defeated in the Di-Phi Senate Tuesday night by a 4 to 2 vote.

Meeting in the Di-Phi hall in New East, the senate debated the clause for two hours before voting on the measure. A vote of the combined Senate and guests resulted in a 21-10 defeat for the bill, introduced by Wright Doyle of Florida.

The resolution "urged the defeat" of the clause because its ambiguities in wording would result in the eradication of the institution of provate property. Furthermore, proponents maintained that, according to them, Section 8 of the Constitution, on which the clause is Constitutionally justified by opponents of the resolution, was "invoked not to regulate interstate commerce," but "to prohibit discrimination based on race, color, religion, or national origin in certain public establishments."

The supporters maintained that since the clause denies "the constitutional right of trial by jury to alleged offenders," it would result in "not justice but tyranny." They said that discrimination could not be eliminated through legislation; they did not say it would not help. Proponents alleged that the public accommodations law is a step toward socialism. Presumably they will call for repeal of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and income tax on similar grounds in subsequent debates.

Opponents held that the clause is an effective means of upholding the 14th Amendment; that it helps business as it increases the volume of patronage; and that it gives owners who want to integrate their establishments a chance to do so.

They also argued that the government has the right to regulate interstate commerce which now includes all business because of the high degree of mobility. Their final position was that human rights are more important to this nation than property rights.

Bar The Doors!

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

This year's record enrollment and subsequent housing shortage has prompted University officials to take action to curb enrollment figures for next year.

"We don't anticipate much growth for next year," Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey said this week. "We can't afford to grow any more."

Cathey said that the administration was going to be "quite a bit" more selective when reviewing admission applications for next year.

"Admission requirements will be up slightly," Cathey said, "thus eliminating some of the applicants."

He said the University would discourage those students who just did pass the entrance requirements and whose tests indicate they will not be an academic success at UNC.

"We will advise that student to go somewhere else, since he might not make it here," Cathey said.

Admission applications will also be screened more carefully in the graduate school level to help keep next year's enrollment figures about the same as this year's.

Earle Wallace, associate dean of the graduate school said the graduate school could not accept any more students than they have now.

"We have reached our capacity both in faculty and facilities," Wallace said. "We are going to be more selective and each department will be asked to reduce the number of early admissions.

Wallace said there were no plans to set up an arbitrary limit on the number of graduate students that would enter the University.

The biggest problem the graduate school faces now, Wallace said, is a lack of faculty and facilities.

"If we had unlimited funds, we could not build up our faculty to teach the graduate courses at the rate at which our graduate school is growing," he said.

He said that a request would be made in the next University budget for more facilities (labs, etc.) to be set up for the graduate program.

"We need to keep the graduate seminars small," Wallace said. "When we have to crowd 20 or 30 people into one of the seminar rooms, then the whole program loses its whole effect. We must keep the seminars small if the graduate program here is to be a success."

This is the main reason cited for a close scrutiny of graduate school applications, he said.

Lawler Extends SG Interviews

Student government committee interviews have been extended through Friday afternoon, acording to student body president Mike Lawler.

"The heavy response to fill the remaining ommittee positions has made it necessary for us to extend the time period," commented Lawler. "We have already had 87 applicants and there seems to be at least that many more to come.

"There are only a few openings on each committee, and I urge each student to look at the YMCA, YWCA and other campus organizations before making up his mind."

He asked that all applicants sign up for an appointment in student government offices.

The committees with openings are:

Attorney General's Staffs — the members of the men and women's staff investigate honor and campus code offenses, advise and protect the rights of defendants and present the briefs of cases under the direction of the Attorney General Buzzy Stubbs.

Academic Affairs — John Morris will head this group's study of courses and class procedures in order to make recommendations to the appropriate offices on the improvement of academics. Off-campus issues, such as the University's College Day participation in the high schools, are also considered.

Campus Affairs — Subjects from the price of football game date tickets to the establishment of an on-campus typing course are considered by Don Curtis and his committee. Campus problems are brought to the committee by the President, the Legislature, other student activities and individual students.

Carolina Forum — Each year outstanding speakers discuss topics of current interest under the auspices of this group headed this year by John Ulfelder. Members obtain the speakers and set up the programs; last year they hosted among others Chester Bowles, William F. Buckley Jr. and Norman Thomas.

Co-Op Committee — Bob Jones and group have the worthy but complicated job of investigating all possibilities of establishing a student cooperative on campus to reduce costs of books and supplies.

Honor System Commission — With this group lies the responsibility of lecturing on the UNC Honor System in state high schools, to other student governments and to new students at UNC. Chairman Jaene Yeager will also lead studies of the clarification, function and improvement of the Honor System.

International Students Board — The ISB, at present undergoing effective revision by chairman Kellis Parker, not only handles on-campus programming for the international students at UNC but also arranges the Tours and Columbian Exchange programs and the schedule of the N.S.A. Foreign Student Leadership Project Awardee, Chilean Cecilia Gajardo, McIver Dorm.

National Merit Scholarship — Co-Chairmen Allison Webb and Bill Graham will head arrangements for N.M.S. finalists and other outstanding high school students in N. C. to visit UNC for an introduction to Carolina's attractions.

United States National Student Association, Campus Committee— As a leading school among almost 400 member campuses, U.N.C. alsc claims two regional officers. Campus Coordinator Hugo Spechar will lead his committee in campus participation in campus educational activities, regional functions and work with the national staff in fulfilling the Associations policy for the year as mandated at the two week Congress of member schools this summer.

Orientation Reform — Borden Parker's committee already has some 300 questionnaires out regarding this year's Orientation as they begin work on an even better program for next year.

Secretariat — Bonnie Hoyle supervises the typing, mimeographing, mailing, filing, phoning and etc., that enables the committees and executive, not to mention the Legislature and other SG activities to function smoothly.

State Affairs — John McMillan will guide this group's work at bettering relations between the student body and the University with the State of North Carolina. Those with speaking and writing ability will be especially interested in this committee.

Student Credit Commission — Ed Brenner and commttee will be handling any bad checks passed by members of the student body, also bettering public relations with Chapel Hill merchants.

University Abroad—Pete Range heads this group that is investigating the possibility of setting up a UNC campus abroad similar to the Stanford Overseas program, or the Smith junior year abroad.

UNC Man Served HUAC Subpoena

Psych Ass't. Will Testify Wednesday

By MICKEY BLACKWELL and KERRY SIPE

An investigator from the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) yesterday served a subpoena on Peter Gumpert of Asheville, a University research assistant in the Psychology department.

Gumpert's subpoena was served by HUAC investigator Donald T. Appel of Washington. Gumpert will reportedly appear before a HUAC hearing October 16 in Washington.

The exact nature of the subpoena could not be determined, but it is believed to concern the abortive attempt by American and Canadian students—including at least one from UNC—to visit Cuba last Christmas.

Gumpert could not be reached for comment on the matter by presstime last night.

Chapel Hill police reported that their only contact with Gumpert has been to serve a warrant on him for several parking violations.

Gumpert came here as a student in 1951, authorities said and reportedly enlisted in the Air Force before completing graduation requirements.

Upon his discharge from the service he returned to UNC, the authorities said, and graduated in 1961 in the top portion of his class.

The serving of the subpoena on Gumpert marked the second known time within the past two months that an investigator from the House Un-American Activities Committee has visited the campus.

Last August 7, HUAC investigator William Margetich was here "to gather some information on certain individuals," he said.

Two of the individuals under study, Margetich said, were Larry Phelps of Burlington and John Salter of Greensboro, two former UNC students who visited Cuba last summer in defiance of a State Department travel ban.

Margetich said two organizations he was particularly interested in were the New Left Club, which is now inactive, and the Progressive Labor Club, an association of like-minded students and off-campus residents formed during the summer of 1962.

SPU Marches Yesterday

JOHN DUNNE, one of a group of a dozen persons who staged a silent protest demonstration against United States foreign policy in South Vietnam, is shown marching near Cameron Ave. Dunne is chairman of the campus chapter of the Student Peace Union which sponsored the protest. SPU announced plans for picketing the appearance of Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, Vietnam's first lady, when she speaks at N. C. State College on Oct. 17. —Photo by Jim Wallace

World News Briefs

U. S. To Sell Grain To Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy announced Wednesday he had approved the sale of four million tons of American wheat to the Soviet Union and her East European satellites for $250 million.

The President told a news conference the wheat would be sold by private American grain dealers at world prices for gold or dollars or on what he called "normal commercial terms." Their stocks would be replaced by wheat sold from U. S. surplus stockpile, he said.

The President said the sales would be made for cash or on "normal commercial terms" with restrictions that the grain is to be used only in the Soviet Union and satellite countries. This would bar transshipment of the food to other Communist countries such as Cuba or Red China.

He said European Communist countries also may wish to purchase American feed grains.

The President said the Agriculture Department would sell wheat from its huge surplus stocks to commercial exporters to replace the grain they sell to the Soviet Union and the satellites.

Thus, the effect of the sales—wherever the exporters make their initial purhases from—will be to reduce sharply the wheat surplus piled up in past years under American farm price support programs.

Gangland Songster In Fifth Stanza

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mobster turncoat Joseph Valachi testified Wednesday that he personally set up the 1952 murder of another underworld informer, Eugene Giannini, on orders of his angry Cosa Nostra bosses.

Valachi, reputed to have a $100,000 gangland price tag on his head, told senators it cost the operators of a dice game where Giannini worked $10,000 to have his body removed from the gambling site where he was slain.

"Isn't it worth $10,000 to get rid of a guy like that?" Valachi said he asked the complaining gamblers.

The convicted killer and dope peddler shed new light on shadowy Cosa Nostra murders in his fifth appearance before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

Castroites Battle Police

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Pro-Castro terrorists fought a two-hour pitched battle early Wednesday with hundreds of police around a suburban police station.

At least five persons were wounded in the gun battle which ended with withdrawal of the tommygun-firing terrorists, apparently only after exhausting their ammunition. Police arrested eight Communists, including a 19-year-old girl, in a raid on a suspected terrorist hideout.

The terrorists, members of the underground anti-government armed forces for National Liberation (FALN) dynamited a power generator supplying the police station with electricity, plunging it into darkness then they struck.

They carried out their attack from rooftops surrounding the station and from cars racing by it. Police rushed more than 200 reinforcements to the scene.

Education Bill Goes To House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's "minibus" version of President Kennedy's school aid bill rolled toward the House today on what looked to be a road studded with nails.

The measure, covering only three of the 24 education fields Kennedy wanted to help in a so-called "omibus" bill, passed the Senate 80-4 Tuesday.

Having completed this "first installment" on the Kennedy school program, the senators planned to take up a $1.5 billion college construction aid bill later this week.

The "minibus" bill would vastly expand federal aid to vocational education, increase National Defense Education Act NDEA student loan funds and continue the "impacted areas" aid program for schools crowded by children of servicemen and federal workers.

Playwright Heads University Day

Paul Green, prize-winning dramatist and playwright, will speak on the occasion of the 170th birthday of the University, Saturday at 11:15 a.m. in Hill Hall auditorium.

Green, who is one of North Carolina's outstanding literary figures, will address faculty, trustees, alumni, students and visitors on the anniversary of the cornerstone laying of Old East Building, Oct. 12, 1793.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will preside. The UNC Glee Club, directed by Prof. Joel Carter, will give its first concert of the year.

There will be an academic procession by the faculty, beginning from the Old Well at 11 a.m.

An honorary degree will be awarded during the ceremonies. The name of the recipient will be announced at that time.

In observance of University Day, classes will be dismissed after 11 o'clock.

TRUSTEES

The visiting committee of the University Board of Trustees, headed by Mr. Hill Yarborough, will visit UNC on Friday, October 18. The committee will hear a presentation by Student Government members, and hold interviews with individual students. Any student desiring to speak with the committee should contact Mr. Charlie Shaffer in Bynum Hall immediately to schedule an appointment.

Vol. 72, Number 17 Thursday, October 10, 1963

Chapel Hill
one of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

SPU Demonstration Raises Questions

The local chapter of the SPU claims to be autonomous, and we believe they are, but they certainly seem more than willing to hit the streets with their placards whenever the national association passes the word down.

Yesterday's rather pitiful demonstration markedly indicates the lack of support the SPU was able to muster for this particularly ill-conceived protest and the fact that the marchers were almost outnumbered by reporters testifies vividly that the march was a dud.

And it is little wonder.

The protest was against our government's policy in South Vietnam, and was touched off by Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu's visit to this country. The marchers contended that the U.S. should withdraw aid to the Diem regime and that the United Nations should be authorized to administer all economic aid to the peoples of both North and South Vietnam; and further, that the UN should hold free elections to determine the government of both countries.

These proposals seem to be so far removed from reality that they become farcical when studied closely.

In the first place, for the United Nations to administer funds to the peoples of both North and South Vietnam and hold free elections, the United Nations would first have to get into North Vietnam, and since that country is not a member of the UN, just how are they going to get there?

Already half of the mission is lost.

Secondly, for the UN to go into South Vietnam, the proposal would either have to pass the Security Council and Russia's veto, or go through the General Assembly. If it passed the General Assembly and the Secretary General were authorized to raise a police force, then only those nations who wished to support the policy would have to furnish troops. Hence we are back to the United States providing all the aid we presently do, and having it administered by the UN instead of us.

Thirdly, it is obvious that if the United States had pulled out of South Vietnam, or cut off all aid at anytime in the past, South Vietnam would now be completely in the hands of the Communists. If we cut off aid at this point, it would only be a matter of months before that same end would be accomplished.

None of us like the idea of supporting a tyrannical dictatorship, but either we support the Diem regime, or we step aside for an equally tyrannical Communist dictatorship. We submit that the Diem regime is by far the lesser of the two evils.

In the future, if the local chapter of the Student Peace Union continues to march in shallowly thought through protests against political necessities, they will find the number of their followers dwindling still lower than the ten or twelve who participated in yesterday's demonstration.

Baker's Departure A Tragedy All Around

As the Washington columnists ought soon to be reporting, the resignation of Senate Majority Secretary Bobby Baker of South Carolina could have far-reaching results on national politics, over and above his possible involvement in some illegal business practices.

Baker ranks in Washington as one of Vice President Lyndon Johnson's most stalwart supporters. He worked long and hard up to and including the 1960 Democratic national convention to get Johnson nominated. Although he failed in that attempt, he took considerable satisfaction from the fact that Johnson made the Number Two spot on the ticket.

And, as all who have had the opportunity to meet and talk with him know, including UNC's five Congressional interns last summer, Baker was convinced that Lyndon was the man for the Democrats in 1968. Now that Baker is gone, it may well be that Johnson's chances for the Presidency have also departed to a significant extent.

Of more immediate consequence in Baker's abrupt departure, however, is the fate of the Administration's Civil Rights bill in the Senate. Baker was a nose-counter and strategist par excellence, and often acted as the Administration's emissary in the involved backstage politicking of the Senate. With him gone, the Administration may find itself short-handed at a most crucial time.

The worst part of the entire matter, however, is that doubt has been cast upon the integrity of a man who formerly ranked as the most trusted assistant to the executors of the nation's business. His case deserves the most stringent investigation, and our fellow Americans would be well-advised to await the results of that inquiry before passing judgment on this multi-talented man.

New Name For State?

Perhaps it had to happen, but for some strange reason we'd hoped it never would. It's just that, well, State College has always had such a nice, unspotted reputation. And now, well, we can hear the Birchwags already.

"Dictator's den," they'll probably be saying of State, once the Dragon Lady, Mme. Nhu, has spoken there.

In a way, that's why we don't mind the one-upsmanship visible in State snagging Mme. Nhu over us here at Carolina.

After all, just think how confusing it would be if we were known as a "Dictator's Den" as well as a "Red Nest."

Besides that, State needs a good short nickname, now that it's name has been made so lawd-awful long. Still, we're sad to see it happen. They do so much else at State besides invite Dragon Ladies to speak, just as most of us at Carolina are involved in a few other things than simply holding cell meetings.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"Don't Think I Stand Idly By — I Keep Asking Them Not To Do This"

Cuban's Concern

Editor of the Daily News:

Not long ago I wrote some comments on the U. S. students touring Communist Cuba which were published in this same section. Today I will appreciate if you publish these few words about the Communist showdown staged at Capitol Hill by those same students and some other persons, involved with the same aim.

I have lived under Communism and have had the sad privilege to have met many Communists of my country (Cuba). I am pretty well acquainted with their methods and ways of operations. They are masters of deceit and are remarkable in the brainwashing of people. Their propaganda systems are wonderfully worked at almost no expense or very little at all, if any.

They concentrate their efforts on the youths. They know that among them they find the most fertile and easy people to work in, because of their inexperience and pride of self-thinking. Some of them, especially college or high school youths in the ages between 13 and 20 or so, become "socialists," "leftists," "progressives" (these words have been continuously used by Communists to replace the word Communists itself) and even if most of them later on desert and come back again to democracy, they, as far as Communism is concerned have already played their "role" and it is of minor importance to have them fighting against. They already gave their examples to others and converted other youths to continue a cycle.

I am concerned when I see this kind and credulous people of America being told so many well elaborate lies (as those contained in such a praise to the terror, starvation and humiliation, which the Cuban people are presently suffering).

I am concerned when I see that well organized showdown which is staged day by day, marvelously mastered in favor of the Communist propaganda in this country, which is today in particular the tour to Communist Cuba by some American youths, and which tomorrow could be something else.

I am concerned when the American people are confused by the Communists when they are told about some injustices in the country, of which, no doubt, the racial issue is the worst, that Communism is the "only way."

Communists, among other things, are experts in exploiting the weakness of everybody and every place in their favor. In the U. S. A., which is the most progressive and richest country in the world, there are not too many exploitable weak points, but still there are some. The racial problem, being the worst is a problem which is boldly being faced now. It is being solved. It will definitely be solved. The higher the standard of education in the country is reached, the sooner this social injustice will be overcome. But there is no need for the Communists (who are the worst racists) to come to solve this issue, nor is Communism the "only way" for its solution.

Communism is to be feared more working from within. It is not probable that a war will develop because Communists have not planned so. They don't try to conquer coming from the outside. They will try to do it in a more technical, elegant and less noisy way. And it is better to be dead than to be living under Communism. Do not let this conclusion be learned from your own experience.

—Dr. Octavio Diaz

Different Views

Trip To Cuba Raises Question

Trip Praised As Encouraging

By RICHARD STARNES
The Washington Daily News

A group of American students has defied the order of some nameless State Department bureaucrat and has gone to Cuba for a long, long visit.

The students, 59 in number, undertook their journey in spite of warnings that travel to Cuba without a special validated passport could subject them to prosecution, fine and imprisonment on their return to the United States.

It is encouraging that these young people went ahead with their plans. It leads one to hope that the present crop of American youngsters is not wholly made up of faceless, frightened puddings who believe Sen. Barry Goldwater is real. Any yongster worth the salt to keep him healthy wants to see what is happening in Cuba (and China as well).

What, one asks, is the State Department afraid the students will see in Cuba?

Is it that the State Department apprehends American boys and girls are not wise enough to see thru to the sham and brutality of a communist state? If this is their fear, they reveal only that it has been overly long since they talked to any bright students.

The truth is that no man alive knows what classes of American travelers are entitled to visit Cuba legally, and what classes are not.

One American reporter, William Worthy, is presently appealing from conviction on charges that he went to Cuba without a passport.

The point is that the right of Americans to travel is given or withheld at the arbitrary whim of the State Department.

Edgar Snow, author of "The Other Side of the River," is white, and he obtained the Government's blessing on a trip to the China mainland. William Worthy is a Negro, and he didn't. Of course, the people charged with the granting and withholding of passports will be horrified at the suggestion that their decisions are colored by the applicants' pigmentation, And, to be sure, they are not. But what does tip the scales?

Is it that one reporter is regarded as more, responsible and/or reliable than another? If this is the case, is it a function of any Government agency to decide which journalist may ply his trade, and which may not? What it means is that the Government has taken a long step toward deciding whose dispatches you may read.

Mr. Snow put it nicely when he wrote in the introduction to "The Other Side of the River":

"In judging China today the American reader can no longer comfortably assume that he lives under a system immune from state intervention between himself and the facts. Still greater conditioning by means of self-censorship is required if the public reflexes are to provide satisfactory responses to stereotyped cold-war idioms increasingly invoked by the state."

That, happy citizens of a free and open democracy, is the heart of the issue involving those 59 students who have committed the crime of wanting to see for themselves.

HUAC Again

Greensboro Daily News

Last week's unseemly row was not the first the House Un-American Activities Committee has had with impertinent youth. In San Francisco three years ago HUAC's probe of California high school teachers led to a riot later immortalized—if that is the word—in the film "Operation Abolition."

We do not profess to know whether either or both these disorders before the same congressional committee had been plotted beforehand. But those who see in the unpardonable behavior of these young men and women the hand of a Communist plot to undermine the legislative process have not been reading the society pages, which recently, to cite one example, detailed a $10,000 orgy of destruction on Long Island after a debutante party. Violence, tragically, is increasingly the response of those who value neither their elders nor their society; and the mystery is hardly political in nature.

The House Committee, this time, set itself the task of investigating the students who went on an unauthorized tour of Castro's Cuba this summer. At the hearing the committee called a young witness, Barry Hoffman, who made the trip as a spy for the FBI and the CIA. It was his testimony that touched off the disorders.

The trouble, of course, is that the wrong congressional committee, with the wrong record, undertook to do the job. No arm of Congress is more cordially or universally detested by college students than the HUAC. And it would be far better, we think, if the State Department, whose passport regulations they defied, dealt with the students.

Nor are the values of these students, however rudely vented, so false as all that. It is a pretty distorted vision that could see in Fidel Castro, the arch-betrayer of his own revolution and a cutthroat who has put scores of Cuban political enemies to the firing squad, a political savior. But the students, surely, may be pardoned their shock at finding they have been spied upon, at the behest of their own government, by one of their number. No one likes informers.

At all events, the misjudgment of students cannot be extinguished by congressional committees that belabor them publicly as "pro-Communists." They will only be embittered. Let the U.S. government handle these junior Don Quixotes with a maturity and detachment they might wish to emulate.

Much Ado

(The Washington Post)

It would be impossible to find worse champions of the right to travel than the band of doctrinaire and bearded adolescents who came before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. They accomplished the almost impossible task of making that Committee look responsible.

We think the State Department travel ban which these "students" breached is a serious limitation of liberty. We think the Un-American Activities Committee's summoning of the "students" is meddlesome folly; after all, their conduct is already under investigation by a grand jury and has been the subject of hearings by a House Judiciary subcommittee.

But none of this affords any justification for the offensive and abusive conduct of the "students" before the Committee. They have succeeded only in clouding the important travel issue. Students are supposed to study. If these young people really went to Cuba to investigate conditions in the island, they surely should have come back with observations more interesting and sensible than the cant they have been mouthing. They seem to have learned nothing save the least attractive of Cuban manners.

They have brought down upon themselves the cruelest possible punishment — complete disregard of their representations by persons seriously interested in the problems involved. It is a painful thing to see young people so thoroughly discredit themselves.

Explanation

The Tar Heel is now running a four-part series on the summer trip to Cuba made by 59 students, four of whom were from North Carolina, three of those being former students at UNC.

Today's editorial page contains different editorials and columns that appeared in newspapers throughout the country concerning both the trip and the House Un-American Activities Committee investigation of the group.

SICK!

By ROBERT G. SPIVACK

The Communists — especially American Communists — seem compelled to make a travesty of all the good causes to which they profess allegiance.

Except for one short period, they have never been able to stand on their own feet in this country. As a result, they often injure decent people and many worthwhile activities. Their aims are rarely what they said they were — and people who were innocent enough to be taken in were simply expendable.

I mention this background because of the recent hysterical performance by a group of alleged "students" who visited Cuba in defiance of American travel regulations.

When the Un-American Activities Committee sought to find out to what extent, if any, Communists were involved, the alleged students put on a "demonstration" that looked like what might happen in an insane asylum if the inmates were suddenly thrown into a panic.

Ordinarily it does not make much difference what young men and women of the nutty left do, anymore than the nation is seriously affected by the antics of the nutty right — or by the wacky white youth demonstrations in Birmingham.

There is always somebody who lets off steam. When conditions in the country are "normal," these demonstrations usually take the form of panty raids on girls' dormitories, or ripping up the goal posts after the football game.

But the "students" belong in a different category. These demonstrators try to give the impression that they were in keeping with the great protest traditions of this country, the latest manifestation of which was the March on Washington.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

The Washington march was a well-disciplined, orderly demonstration of democratic protest. Although many expected the worst, it did not happen because the demonstrators had a personal sense of dignity, regarded their cause as of the utmost importance, and were determined to show the world that American Negroes have come of age.

But the pro-Castro crowd had no such aim; nor was their real purpose to test the validity of the government regulations prohibiting travel to Cuba. What they wanted to do was to disrupt the hearings so that the committee members could not ask questions and find answers. This was not a demonstration; it was a diversion.

If those being investigated felt — or their lawyers felt — that the committee were going beyond its jurisdiction, they had a perfect right to take the Fifth Amendment or otherwise to challenge the committee's authority.

But these "demonstrators" have apparently decided that they can act as Castro hooligans do in Venezuela and elsewhere in the hemisphere. Their protests were notably unoriginal even after years of all kinds of demonstration.

As an example of how little they care for anyone — or any cause except their own — one demonstrator told a Virginia lawmaker that he was no more breaking the law than civil rights leaders in Danville, Va., or Louisiana. By linking themselves with the anti-segregationists, these demonstrators sought to achieve "innocence by association."

But they were also creating unnecessary difficulties for the civil rights demonstrators, for whom they profess to have so much admiration. It is in this way that they make a travesty of the things in which they say they believe. They behaved exactly as caricaturists used to picture the ultra-Left; they even looked like bomb-throwers with beards.

There are other differences between this crowd and the serious Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, as an example. But the pro-Castro "students" seek to obscure the difference. Theirs was a "sick" demonstration, as psychoanalysts define the word "sick."

—From The Charlotte Observer

College Paper Speaks Out

From The Daily Cardinal
(The University of Wisconsin)

The school year has hardly begun but across this nation's campuses an important political controversy has already flared up; that issue centers around the 59 students who violated a State Department ban and spent part of the summer in Cuba.

In a democracy, it seems to us, a citizen's freedom from government authoritarianism does not end at his nation's borders. If he has a right to interpret national events for himself, then he has the same right to investigate on the international scene.

There are those in this country curious, or skeptical, or enthusiastic about new governments, new economic and political methods, new forces on the international scene. There may be changes, or methods, or forces we do not like. That is irrelevant, however, to the right of American citizens to see for themselves.

Unquestionably some of those who went to Cuba were of left, or of Marxist, or of Communist persuasion. That is also irrelevant to their right of travel, unless they were actively working toward the subversion of our republic. We happen to have faith that the republic can withstand the action of 59 students visiting Cuba.

If the Chinese or Cuban governments choose to bar Americans, that is their prerogative. Further, the United States may tell prospective visitors to totalitarian nations that it cannot guarantee their safety. But this is clearly not the same as forbidding Americans to travel through societies which we oppose.

The State Department would be wise, we feel, to stop this kind of petty authoritarianism, and to allow our citizens to travel where they will. Surely there are more important issues confronting us than ping-pong matches with Fidel Castro. Surely the right to travel need not be abrogated in this instance.

A CAMPUS MUST

A collapsible – Lectern, Bed Tray, and Stand – All In One

For only 3.95

Ledbetter Pickard

Have You Seen The Beautiful Drawings on Sale at $1.00?

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin Open Till 10 P.M.

We all make mistakes...

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Touch-type, hunt-and-peck, type with one hand tied behind your back—it's easy to turn out perfect papers on Corrāsable. Because you can erase without a trace. Typing errors disappear like magic with just the flick of an ordinary pencil eraser. There's never a telltale erasure mark on Corrāsable's special surface.

Corrāsable is available in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In convenient 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet ream boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

EATON PAPER AVAILABLE AT

LEDBETTER-PICKARD'S

Special Notice To University Employees

Hospital Care Association's Blue Cross-Blue Shield group for University employees will be reopened for the addition of new members on Thursday, October 10. If your family is not protected by Blue Cross-Blue Shield, don't miss this opportunity to get Comprehensive hospital and medical care at group rates on a payroll deduction basis.

For further information without obligation see our representative, Mr. John Chapman

Thursday, October 10
9:30 A.M.–1 P.M.; 2 P.M.-4 P.M.

YMCA LOBBY

BLUE CROSS BLUE SHIELD HOSPITAL CARE ASSOCIATION DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Around The Campus

By PETE WALES

Ehringhaus is a new dorm again this year.

Opened last year for the first time, Ehringhaus was an experimental dorm. It was occupied almost entirely by freshmen under the theory that freshmen living apart from upper classmen would be free from disruptive influences.

The result was one of the noisiest dorms on campus with the highest amount of property breakage of any dorm.

This year the dorm population has been fully integrated with all four classes.

"Everyone who was here last year has been amazed at how quiet it has been so far," Dave Rendleman, president of the dorm since last April, said.

"Last year everyone was new and they thought they could get away with anything.

"But the freshmen this year are a little more reluctant to start a shaving cream fight with a neighbor who is an upper classman. They don't want to be thought juvenile."

Ehringhaus has raised its number of IDC representatives from six to 13. There are two on every floor, on on each side of the dorm.

"They have done a real good job in keeping order," Rendleman said. "There's been very little noise and only one brief shaving cream fight."

Ehringhaus is also the football players' dorm this year. The gridders occupy the first four floors of the cafeteria wing and have been a welcome addition, according to Rendelman.

"We're all just waiting for the football players to become eligible for our intramural teams. We plan to field three teams in each sport."

Rendleman felt that some of the chaos was caused last year by campus political parties running people for dorm offices for the sole purpose of getting votes for campus elections.

"This year the dorm officers are more concerned with the dorm.

"One problem was that there were no dorm officers last year between Christmas time and the spring elections in April. People were apathetic and totally unruly."

Rendleman is currently assisted by Social Vice-Chairman Val McWhorten. He will hold elections in the near future for vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

The secretary will be in charge of the 60-volume IDC library in the dorm and the quiz files. The vice-president will be in charge of the course files.

The library has texts and source books for the required freshman courses.

The quiz file is a donation of Delta Upsilon made last year.

The course file, new this year, lists all courses and instructors and the boys in the dorm who have taken them. Boys using the file can look up older boys to find out what the courses and instructors are like.

Ehringhaus has a budget this year of $2,400, about $300 of which is left over from last year, Rendleman said. Of this, about $2,000 will be used for social events.

First event on the social calendar is a combo party in the dorm's main lobby Oct. 19, the weekend of the State game. The Jammers will play and Rendleman and McWhorten have made arrangements for girls from Women's College to meet Ehringhaus boys for the party.

Another first this year is Ehringhaus' one entry in the Yack beauty contest.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Informal sorority rush will begin on Oct. 11. There will be an extended period for all interested to sign list in Dean of Women's office. Any girl who discontinued or was dropped during rush is eligible.

Secretariat Interviews—2-4 p.m., see Bonnie Hoyle in Student Government Offices.

Blue Cross - Blue Shield Group for University Employees will be reopened by John Chapman of the Hospital Care Association of Durham — 9:30 a.m. - 1 p.m., and 2-4 p.m. Y-Building.

CWC and Pan Hellenic are sponsoring a visit of Reed and Barton Silversmiths — 1:30 - 4 p. m., McIver Lounge, new silver patterns will be displayed.

Yack Pictures — 1-6 p.m.,, basement of GM, for Juniors, Nurses, Physical Therapists, and late Freshmen ($1.00 late fee).

Campus Affairs Board — 4 p.m., GM.

Cheerleaders — 4 p.m., Kenan Stadium for all freshman girls interested.

International Students Board — 4 p.m., "Y."

Hockey Club — 4 p.m. Women's Gym, organizational meeting.

Wesley Foundation Lay Scholars —6 p.m., Thurs., Wesley House.

NSA Committee — 6:30 p.m., Roland Parker Lounge, GM.

Christian Science Orgainzation— 7 p.m., Woodhouse, GM.

Placement Service Meeting for Seniors and Graduate Students — 7:30 p.m., Carroll Hall.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

Student Government — 2-5 p.m. daily interviews for limited committee appointments, apply 210 Graham Memorial. Five-minute interviews will be held. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Lawler will conduct them.

Laundry Refunds — downtown laundry office, for all students attending first and second session summer school.

MOVIES

Carolina — Wives and Lovers.
Varsity — Watch Your Step.

FUTURE

Honor System Commission—3:30 p.m., Fri., Roland Parker III, compulsory meeting.

TGIF Party — 8-10 p.m., Fri., student center of Presbyterian Church sponsored by the Westminster Fellowship.

State Affairs Committee — 4 p. m, Mon., Woodhouse Room, GM.

SP Legislative vacancies in Cobb (2) and Town Men's IV (2) filled by election at SP meeting— 7 p.m., Tues., for extra information contact Phil Baddour, 303 Everett, or Neal Jackson, 7 Old West.

Three Misdemeanor Convicions

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Misdemeanor convictions were handed out in rapid fire order Wednesday against the remaining two of three white men found with dynamite the night a Negro lawyer's home was bombed for the second time.

The City Recorder's Court action brought 180-day jail sentences and $100 fines for R. E. Chambliss, 59; John Hall, 36, and Charles Cagle, 22. Cagle was tried Tuesday.

None of the defendants spoke and all were released on appeal bonds of $300. The convictions were the maximum penalty for violating the dynamite act.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

JANET LEIGH · VAN JOHNSON · SHELLEY WINTERS · MARTHA HYER

A MR. WALLIS Wives and Lovers

Economical Living Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW MOBILE HOME SALES

400 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C., Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill, J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street, Phone RO 2-0411, Wilmington, N. C., D. D. Browning, Owner

EASTER VACATION CRUISE

NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK on

S. S. Queen Elizabeth

GO BY SEA

FARES — $185.00 to $225.00 for

RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS Call

Continental Travel Agency

PHONE 942-4151

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Immerse
4. Male sheep
7. Part of a window
8. Mine entrance
10. Island off Scotland
12. Scrutinize
14. Girl's nickname
15. Larva of a moth
17. Malt beverage
18. Strange
20. Cut
22. Gaze askance
24. Antlered animal
25. Small roofed theater: Gr.
27. Branches
31. Adjust, as a clock
33. Exclamation
34. Covers with soap
38. Constellation
39. Japanese sash
40. Holland embankment
42. Compass point: abbr.
43. Set the ——
45. Bundle
47. Keep
49. Chinese money of account
50. Guided
51. Finish

DOWN
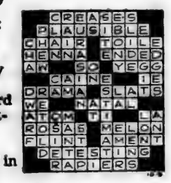
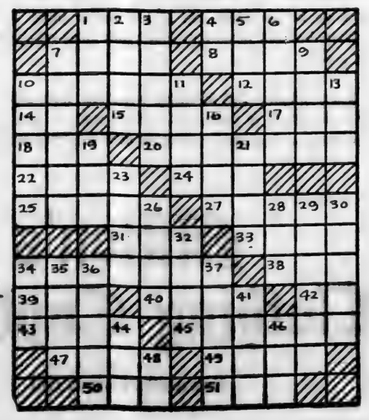
1. India mail
2. Taverns
3. Pares
4. Sun god
5. Public notices
6. Book of Old Testament
7. Rated highly
9. Story
10. Rounded, convex molding
11. The Christmas log
13. Man's nickname
16. Irritate
19. River: Scot.
21. Leap lightly
23. Dash
26. Reward
28. Flightless bird
29. Island in East Indies
30. Shoulder covering
32. Journey
34. Cut off, as the tops
35. Sleeveless garments: Arab.
36. Former coin: Siam
37. Fish
41. Ireland: poet.
44. Garden of Eden dweller
46. Bounder
48. Man's nickname

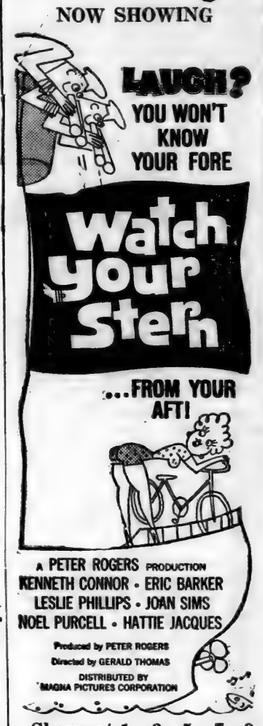


Yesterday's Answer



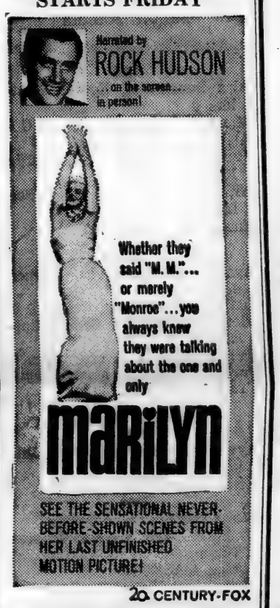
Varsity

NOW SHOWING



Shows at 1 - 3 - 5 - 7 - 9

STARTS FRIDAY



Farmer Boy's Breakfast

Choice of Juice
1 Hot Cake, 2 Eggs (Any Style)
Choice of Bacon, Ham, or Sausage
Coffee or Tea
80c

Maximilian's Restaurant
Eastgate Shopping Center

TO MAKE ROOM

for our new

TROPHY DEPT.

Wide Selection
Trophies, Plaques, Etc. and
ENGRAVING SERVICE

We have found it necessary to acquire additional space by reducing our record stock . . . and so offer—

All LP — Stereo & Mono

RECORDS

ALL LABELS

Pop — Classical — Opera — Jazz — Country & Western — Shows & Sound Track at

2 FOR THE PRICE OF 1

the Sport Shop, inc.
"It Pays to Play" CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

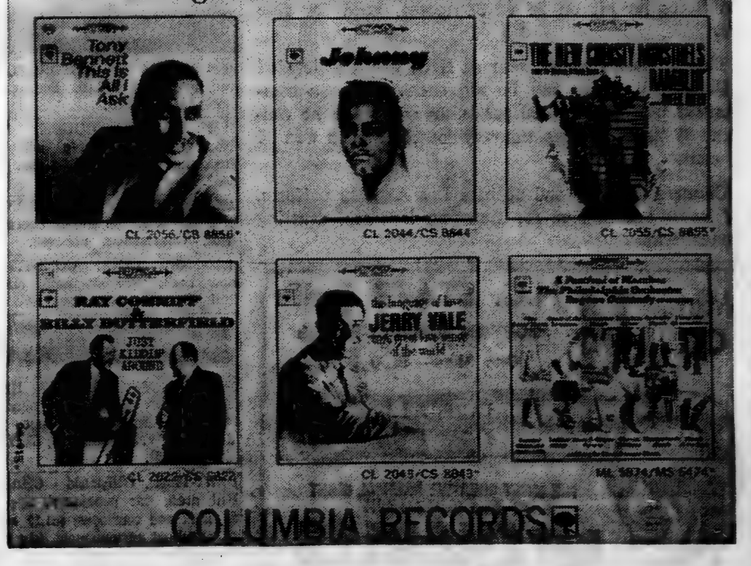
151 East Franklin

A NEW WAY TO CHOOSE YOUR RECORDS!

DON'T JUST READ ABOUT THEM... LISTEN TO THEM AT HOME.

Come in and pick up a special sample record featuring highlights from the latest Columbia albums.

Hear exciting selections from these six new releases:



The Record Bar

Everett Dorm Wins Two Mural Games

By AL KAPLAN

The Everett Rogah bounced back from a season opening loss Tuesday as they scuttled the Avery Admirals 30-0. Bob Cobb and Len Floren each scored two touchdowns to pace the Everett attack.

The Everett Grossmen, who also lost their first game, defeated the Gigolos of Grimes 1-0, in overtime.

Paced by the three touchdowns of Bob Neuman and the two of Denny Nunn, the Ehringhaus Eagles glided to a 37-0 win over the Craige Steelers.

In another overtime game the Terps of Winston crawled past the Craige GDIs 7-6. Bud Atkins of Winston and Tom Gibson of Craige provided the only scoring in the game.

The Mermen of Navy cut the Joyner Giants down to size as they rolled to an easy 36-2 victory. Bill Sessoms, scoring two touchdowns and a safety, and Don Boal, two touchdowns, led the Navy to its second victory in as many outings.

In the grad league, Law School-4 humiliated the Geology Grads 49-0. The well balanced Law School were led by Benny Sharpe who tallied two six pointers.

There are still some positions open in the Paid Intramurals Manager Program. All interested applicants are urged to report to the Intramurals Office, 316 Woollen Gym, as soon as possible, for an interview.

In non-point system activities, the squash racquets competition is scheduled to begin on Monday, October 14.

The University Golf Tournament is scheduled to get under way this week. The tournament will be divided into five flights, the Championship, President (which is comprised of the losers in the Championship round) and the first, second and third flights.

Leading qualifying round scores were turned in by Bud Fleisher and Bill Tucker. Each carded 70's. In the first flight 77's were recorded by Bob Edwards and Joe Allen.

ON THE

LEVEL

with JOHN MONTAGUE

THIS SUNDAY the pro football boys put on their biggest show of the season to date when the Cleveland Browns match their power against the cunning of Y. A. Tittle and the New York Giants.

Yankee Stadium will be the site of the clash which will see Jimmy Brown, off to his best start, go churning into that always-tough Giant defense. The Browns, under new coach Blanton Collier, are unbeaten in four games and it has been the running of Brown and the passing of Frank Ryan which has revived the listless Browns.

The Giants, Eastern Division champs for the last two years, have lost only once in four outings, and the lone defeat came three weeks ago in Pittsburgh when Tittle was sidelined and Ralph Guglielmi did the quarterbacking.

The odds-makers have yet to settle on a favorite, but the home field, plus Tittle, plus a slightly tougher defense seem to make the Giants a good bet.

Governor Bud Wilkinson??

HIGH-FLYING RUMORS have it that Bud Wilkinson will give up his coaching job at Oklahoma (and his position as Director of the President's Committee on Physical Fitness) in the near future. Why? Political sources in Washington say Bud is thinking about running for Governor of Oklahoma, on the Republican ticket.

* * * * *

LSU RETURNS to Carolina's football schedule next fall. The Tigers, who drubbed UNC, 30-0, in 1961, will host the Tar Heels in Baton Rouge on October 10. Michigan State is set for an appearance in Chapel Hill. It will be the second game of the year for Carolina. The opener is against N.C. State.

Bork—He Passes All The Tests

THERE'S A LOT of talk these days about George Mira, Roger Staubach, Billy Lothridge, Don Trull, Tom Myers, Joe Namath and other big-name quarterbacks. But the best pro prospect of all could well be George Bork, a 178-pounder from Northern Illinois who is throwing passes like crazy—and completing them.

In the opener this year, Bork bombed Whitewater State, completing 25 of 31 passes for 416 yards and SEVEN touchdowns. The following week against Winona State he hit on 28 of 38 tosses, good for five TD's.

This is Bork's senior year at NIU, which is located at DeKalb, Ill. Last fall he did such things as complete 232 passes for 2,506 yards. In one game he connected 37 times and his accuracy for the season was 65 per cent.

Chances are he'll end up in a Los Angeles uniform. The Rams are famous for finishing last and drafting quarterbacks.

UNC Booters Upset By 3-0

DAVIDSON — UNC's soccer team, attempting recovery from its 6-0 shutout at Navy last weekend, was rudely shocked here yesterday as Davidson beat the booters, 3-0.

Playing aggressively, the Wildcats took advantage of Carolina mistakes and scored in the first, third and fourth quarters.

Walt Eckman tallied first for the home team after only three minutes of the opening period. UNC, failing to cash in on many scoring opportunities, played undistinguished soccer much of the first half.

Carolina held the Wildcats scoreless for the remainder of the opening period and stood Davidson off the second period also.

But with just four minutes gone in the third quarter, Fred Shoen widened the gap to 2-0 with a 15-foot drive on which UNC goalie Buddy Siegel had no chance.

Ben Swain supplied the clincher at 7:34 of the final stanza — and Carolina was a shutout loser for the second time in as many games.

Davidson, which dropped a 7-3 decision last year to the Tar Heels, thoroughly surprised them this time with an aggressive defense and the more-than-adequate offense.

Goalie Siegel was credited with 13 saves, while Davidson's defensemen bottled up the UNC shooters and provided Wildcat goalie Dave Roberts with an easy day — only three saves.

Officially, Carolina outshot Davidson 17-16, but the advantage proved nothing as inaccuracy and lack of outstanding teamwork hampered the Tar Heels all afternoon.

Coach Marvin Allen, disappointed with his team's showing, couldn't get his attack moving to any degree of consistency for the second straight game. The hoped-for improvement of this year's booters over last season's club record of 7-2, now cannot be realized.

UNC's next start will be against strong Washington University of St. Louis on Monday, Oct. 14.

SCORING

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Davidson | 1 | 0 | 1 | 1—3 |
| Carolina | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0—0 |

First quarter: DAVIDSON—Eckman (3:00)
Second quarter: No scoring
Third quarter: DAVIDSON—Shoen (4:02)
Fourth quarter: DAVIDSON—Swain (7:34)

Heels' Defense Tested

Terps Pose Large Problem

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

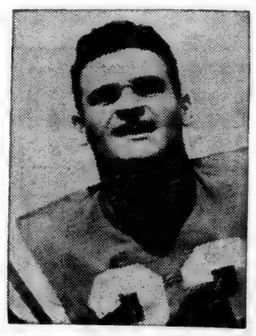
Richmond's Tobacco Bowl crowd got a pretty good idea Saturday why CBS had chosen the Duke - Maryland game as its "Game of the Week." In two words, Tom Nugent.

Maryland's three losses this season have come relatively easy. The Terps have lost to NC State, South Carolina and Duke by a total of 48 points. But they're still the most exciting team in the league, and Nugent is the reason.

Even when he didn't have his star quarterback, Dick Shiner, in there Saturday, Nugent's team provided a good show. And when Shiner is in there, the excitement of watching one of college football's great passers is evident.

With Darryl Hill, the ACC's first Negro ballplayer, and Len Chiaverini, league rushing leader last year, the Terrapins can present a dangerous attack. And when it operates from the myriad of offensive formations that Nugent uses, nobody really knows what's going to come next.

This is the problem that faces Jim Hickey's defense this week. The Tar Heels have to set their practices with the intention of playing against Shiner, whose severe hip bruise forced him out of the Duke game and makes his status for the UNC game questionable.



LEN CHIAVERINI

With Shiner in the Maryland backfield are a number of other "backs"—none of whom are in the usual mold.

Chiaverini, who rushed 21 times for 82 yards against Duke, is called a "swing back" and Hill, who masquerades as an end and is leading the conference in pass receiving with 13 catches for 144 yards, is in reality a "wing back."

Jerry Fishman, a big (6-1, 220) junior, has moved into the starting backline and will run at "tailback," while the Terps' "fifth" back will be Bob Burton, who goes by "upback."

Along the line, Maryland is big and, though green, considerably experienced beyond the years.

At the opposite flank of Hill—the split end position—is sophomore Andy Martin (6-0, 195). The tackles are junior Olaf Drozdov (6-0, 210) and soph Tom Cichowski (6-4, 230), while junior Fred Joyce (5-11, 195) and soph Mickey Melcher (6-1, 205) man the guard slots.

At center is co-captain Gene Feher (6-1, 205).

MURAL SCORES

4:00
Alex Bunnies 14, Everett Hustlers 0
Mangum Redskins 8, Ehring C 0
Alex Poobahs 21, Craige A 0
Parker Playmakers 18, Ruffin Rogues 0
Grimes Gigolos 21, Navy Sea Lions 0
Tuscarora 15, Sioux 10

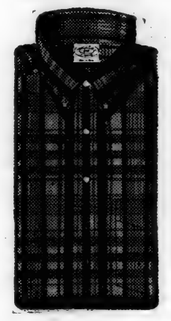
5:00
Aycock Aardvarks 20, Joyner Jokes 0
Old West Packers 23, Craige B 0
Victory Village I 8, Grimes Gallants 6
BVP Bombers 7, Avery Antics 6
Parker Packers 22, Manly Riverrats 21 (overtime)

TODAY'S GAMES
4:00
Aycock Aardvarks-Victory Village II
Lewis Lions-Ehringhaus A
5:00
Stacy Studs-Avery Admirals
Emerson Dardplayers - Winston Terps
Craige A-AFROTC
Med School II-Geology Grads
Physics Fiends-Law School II

NOTICE
Students, why walk when you can purchase a beautiful English style bike at Grant's for only $35.-00 on credit for $1.25 weekly.
W. T. GRANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

CO-2 Target Pistols
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

What Is A Traditional Shirt?



A TRULY TRADITIONAL SHIRT HAS THE FOLLOWING . . .
Single needle construction, tapered body, pleated back with locker loop and button-down collar with button in back.
The Shirt Described Above is found at THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL.
Don't accept anything less and be sure to select now while our collection is complete.
Priced from Five Dollars
THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

GINGHAM-CHECKED BUTTON-DOWN
Take the flare and fit of the famous Eagle Imported Gingham B.D.; add a colorful check and you have a pleasant change of pace in your shirt wardrobe. Colored in Carolina Blue, Navy, Red, and Black.
$8.95
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

SICK OF BANANAS?
Today's Daily Tar Heel includes the third installment of co-editor Gary (with one R) Blanchard's report on John Salter's stay in Cuba.

After Six Tuxedos
For Rent
Varley's Men's Shop

CAREER PROGRAM
A career program for all seniors and graduate students will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Carroll Hall.
Donald M. Cook, corporate manager of college relations for the Radio Corporation of America, will be guest speaker.

Tradition with Authority in the Madison Topcoat of Worsted Cheviot

The coat that becomes your complete coat wardrobe! Simple, handsome, correct at all times, for all occasions. In a choice of warm tones of grey, blue and brown of fine worsted cheviot, with a distinctive selection of diagonals and herringbones, all tailored in the authentic soft shoulder tradition with the unmistakable College Hall touch.
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DIAL M FOR FASHION

It's no accident that Milton's is synonymous with fashion. It's so much more fun trailblazing with the smartest and most unusual in our own version of "Old School Traditional". To accomplish this Milton and his brain trust of three knowledgeable Cupboard cognoscenti—the Chapel Hill, Atlanta and Dallas managers, hold several conferences a year prior to the start of the two main seasons, design many of our own patterns in suitings, sport jackets, and shirtings, bringing our devotees a wide refreshing scope of irresistible exclusives.

Many shops take a safer aproach to merchandising and highlight a theme color that the national sportswear guild or cloth manufacturers come up with. We don't dare try this approach since we love to live dangerously and stick our necks out with our own inimitable version. In this manner we are assured of a large host of dedicated devotees who look for us to keep them smartly attired for all dress and casual occasions.

Take a simple item like a ½ herringbone—a classic that almost any good, bad or indifferent store can come up with—so what does Milton's do in this given situation—they come up wth new exclusive tones not found elsewhere such as navy-white; beige-navy; beige mid-olive.

Milton's felt a need for a new interesting suit idea and came up with the country suit that feels equally at home on campus, a country weekend or for smart town appearances. The two main fabrics involved are a cashmere feeling saxony in a new larger suit size ½ herringbone in light gray-white; charcoal-gray; cognac-olive or the new six ply sturdy yet lightweight hopsack in a rich golden gray or medium gray.

We stand alone in shirts with our own nationally famous M-2 customized self roll button-down, absolutely the living end in a fashionable shirt, superbly detailed to our exacting specifications.

When it comes to sweaters, our Cupboards look to the bonny, bonny Banks of Loch Lommond and come up with many new unusual heathers each fall—the new winners this year are blond havana, havana brown, azure brown, azure blue, green mist, autumn gold, gray-blue and many other heathers made for us alone in our own higher V-neck shetland with better fitting saddle shoulders. You won't find fad tones such as bottle which we feel is much more at home in the hip pockets, but new tones that sometimes don't reach the national market for years.

Is it any wonder that so many wonderful folks swear by Milton's and come hundreds of miles out of their way, call us long distance from California, and order by mail all over the Free World.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL THEATRE AND ACADEMY PRESENTS
THE NATIONAL REPERTORY THEATRE
EVA LeGALLIENNE
FARLEY GRANGER
DENHOLM ELLIOTT
ANNE MEACHAM
The Seagull
BY ANTON CHEKHOV
TRANSLATED BY EVA LE GALLIENNE
The Crucible
BY ARTHUR MILLER
Ring Round The Moon
BY JEAN ANOUILH
TRANSLATED BY CHRISTOPHER FRY
(THREE FULL-LENGTH PRODUCTIONS ROTATING IN REPERTORY)
STUDENT AND FACULTY DISCOUNT — 50% GROUPS OF 10
Pick up Discount Coupons at the Graham Memorial Info. Desk
OPENING OCT. 10 — AYCOCK AUD. WOMAN'S COLLEGE GREENSBORO, N. C.
"The SEAGULL" Thurs., Oct. 10 and Sat., Oct. 12 at 8:30 P.M.
"RING ROUND THE MOON" Fri., Oct. 11 and Sun., Oct. 13 at 8:30 P.M.
"THE CRUCIBLE" Tues., Oct. 15 at 8:30 P.M.
PRICES: ORCH—$5.00, $4.00; MEZZ—$5.00; BALC—$4.00, $3.00, $2.00

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA—Raleigh
One Show—8:30 P.M.

AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE... IN CONCERT
THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS
Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

IN THE PAST 107 YEARS THE Northwestern Mutual has returned to its policyholders—in dividends alone—an average of 25 per cent of their total gross premiums. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1957 PORCHE COUPE, 1600, Normal recent valve job and transmission overhaul, $1295. 929-1462.

1958 FIAT 600, NEW BRAKES, only 200 miles on major overhaul, $445. Guaranteed. 929-1462.

1959-MGA, / GOOD CONDITION, new tires, $950 or make offer, Bill Bynsum—319 Connor.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

PART-TIME, DURHAM - CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

WANTED: AGENTS TO SELL stationery in dormitories, fraternities, and sororities. 25% commission. Call 968-5258 after 10:30 p.m.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

County Edition
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Generally fair and mild.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1963 | United Press International Service

Helms-McLendon Debate Proposed

By PHILLIP SPACE

A former chairman of the State Board of Higher Education has offered to debate the controversial gag-law with Raleigh television editorialist, Jesse Helms, the editors of the Daily Tar Heel said yesterday.

Major L. P. McLendon, who served as chairman of the higher education board from 1959-1963, has agreed to debate Helms, vice-president of WRAL-TV.

Helms could not be reached for comment.

Helms has stated on his television program "Viewpoint" that he supports the gag-law. McLendon, a Greensboro lawyer, is an outspoken opponent of the bill.

Former Orange Co. Rep. L. J. Phipps, who also supports the gag-law, has accepted an invitation to speak on the campus here to present his views on the matter. His appearance will not be connected with the proposed Helms-McLendon encounter.

If plans for the Helms-McLendon debate materialize, it will be held on the campus here within the near future.

It will be sponsored by the Daily Tar Heel and WUNC-TV will be asked to carry the debate live, as well as make the signal available to WRAL-TV for a simultaneous telecast.

Helms declined an earlier Daily Tar Heel invitation to speak on the campus, as did State Senate President Clarence Stone, another supporter of the law.

Helms later said that "Consolidated University President William Friday or some other responsible person for the other side" would be allowed to speak on the law in prime time over WRAL-TV.

The DTH editors said Major McLendon was the responsible person they had asked to take the opposition's view in the confrontation, pointing out that his past position on the State Board of Higher Education removed the problem of the speaker ban from a purely University level and raised it to the state level where they feel it properly belongs.

REPORTS REQUIRED

The Budget Committee yesterday announced that all organizations using student government funds will be required to submit a monthly financial statement.

Gerald Thornton, acting chairman of the committee, said organizations formerly had only submitted a final report at the end of the academic year.

Thornton said the monthly reports will help acquaint the committee with various organizational needs. He also stressed the control value of such a system.

The budget committee will meet with the organizational chairman this week to explain the new forms.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

MacMillan Surrenders Party Leadership

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold MacMillan, in a letter from his hospital bed, surrendered leadership of the Conservative party Thursday and disclosed his intention to resign as Britian's prime minister.

The surprise announcement, read to the annual Conservative Party Conference here, stunned the 4,200 delegates assembled to put together a platform they hope will defeat the resurgent Labor party in general elections that must be held within 12 months.

In the message from his sickbed where he underwent a successful operation for removal of his prostrate gland Thursday, MacMillan said he would be unable to carry on long as prime minister and has so informed Queen Elizabeth II. This is the first formal step toward resignation.

Many delegates believed a new party leader might be selected within the next two weeks and before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 24.

NSA Official Sold Secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An Army sergeant at the top secret National Security Agency (NSA) was paid an estimated $60,000 by Russia for secret documents and killed himself when he feared his high living had given him away, it was learned Thursday.

One well informed source said the security breach in the case of the sergeant, identified as Jack Edward Dunlap, 35, was far more serious than the defection to Russia of two NSA employes in 1960 because Dunlap was in a position to handle material of greater importance.

Gromyko Meets With President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met at the white House Thursday with President Kennedy in what the Russian called "the spirit of the test ban treaty."

It was Gromyko's first meeting with Kennedy since the Cuban missile crisis just about a year ago.

At that time, the Kremlin emissary's disclaimer of Soviet intentions led the President later to accuse him of "deliberate deception."

Nixon Calls Wheat Deal 'Fiasco'

NEW YORK UPI—Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon said Thursday President Kennedy's decision to sell wheat to Russia is "the major foreign policy mistake of this administration."

Nixon said the wheat deal will cost U.S. taxpayers $100 million. He said he thought the deal would turn out to be "the major foreign policy mistake of this administration—even more serious than fouling up the Bay of Pigs Cuban invasion."

Richardson Followed Instructions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John H. Richardson, recently recalled head of Central ntelligence Agency operations in Saigon, followed specific Washington instructions in South Viet Nam, high U.S. sources said Thursday.

Richardson, who is being reassigned, was told to cultivate Vietnamese strongman Ngo Dinh Nhu, the sources said.

Pauling Wins Nobel Prize For Peace

OSLO (UPI)—Dr. Linus C. Pauling noted biochemist whose opposition to nuclear tests has made him a controversial figure in the United States, Thursday was awarded the 1962 Nobel Peace Prize.

In addition to announcing the belated award, the Norwegian Nobel Prize committee announced it had divided the 1963 Peace Prize between the International Red Cross Committee and the Red Cross League.

The award made Pauling the first man in the 62-year history of the Nobel Prize to be honored twice. He won the Nobel Prize for chemistry in 1954. Mme Marie Currie, co-discoverer of radium, won one prize and shared another.

While the committee did not disclose why it named Pauling—over such other reported candidates as President Kennedy and Soviet Prime Minister Nikita S. Khrushchev—it generally was believed he was honored for his efforts to outlaw nuclear testing.

Pauling said Thursday "I think that the award of the prize to me really is to be interpreted as including my fellow scientists who have worked hard in this effort, too. I am grateful to the committee for having made the announcement on the 10th of October—today—the day when the bomb test treaty goes into effect with the deposition of the signed copies in Moscow, London and Washington."

Announcement of the award to Pauling came on the day that the partial nuclear test ban agreement by the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union formally went into effect.

Pauling long has been in the forefront of movements to ban the bomb.

Playmakers To Audition

Thomas Patterson, director of The Carolina Playmakers' second production of the season, has announced the tryout schedule for the Eugene O'Neill drama, "Long Day's Journey into Night."

Tryouts will be held Monday, Oct. 14, in Room 111 Murphey Hall, at 4 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m.

In announcing the audition schedule, Patterson said the drama calls for five actors, three men and two women. Four of these roles, the members of the Tyrone family, are very long parts. The fifth role, that of the maid, is somewhat shorter, he said.

Copies of the play are available in the Reserve Reading Room of the library and in the Dramatic Art Office, 307 Bynum Hall.

Former New Left Head Served With Subpoena

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Gumpert Surprised At HUAC's Subpoena

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

A UNC research associate says he was "very surprised and puzzled" when an investigator from the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) presented him with a subpoena to appear before a hearing in Washington October 16.

Peter Gumpert, 30, of Asheville, was served the subpoena Wednesday by HUAC investigator Donald T. Appel. When contacted late Wednesday, Appel said he had no comment on the matter.

"It's not the policy of the Committee to identify people under subpoena or to make any type of comment," Appel said.

The exact nature of the subpoena is not known but Gumpert theorized it was given him because of his friendship with Nick Bateson, who has been frequently mentioned in connection with the now defunct New Left Club and the Progressive Labor Club.

Bateson's name has also been mentioned in connection with the abortive attempt of American and Canadian students to visit Cuba last Christmas.

Gumpert said he now works with Bateson in the Psychology department. In addition to rooming with Bateson last year, Gumpert said, he had worked with Bateson on several research projects.

Gumpert denied being connected with either the New Left or the PLC organizations. He also denied that he had taken part in any planning session for either the proposed Christmas trip to Cuba or of the actual trip made last summer by 59 students, including Larry Phelps and John Salter, formerly of UNC.

The husky, sandy-haired Gumpert said the HUAC investigator was very courteous. "He asked me a couple of questions about my association with Bateson," Gumpert said, "and then he told me I would be needed in Wahington.

"I asked him if it was absoultely necessary that I go, and at that point, he gave me the subpoena . . but he told me I would be reimbursed for my trip," he said.

Gumpert entered the University in 1951, enlisted in the Air Force, returned and graduated in 1960 in the top portion of his class.

He attended Stanford University for two years and is currently working on his Ph.D degree in Social Psychology.

Top Physicists To Convene Here

World famous physicists will meet here for the Second Eastern Theoretical Physics Conference on Oct. 25 and 26.

Approximately 150 delegates from Massachusetts to Mexico are expected to attend, it was announced Wednesday by Dr. Eugen Merzbacher, professor of physics and chairman of the organizing committee. Sessions will be held at the auditorium of the School of Public Health.

Principal speakers will include Dr. G. E. Uhlenbeck of the Rockefeller Institute, and a member of the National Academy of Science, one of the highest honors ever granted a scientist. Dr. Uhlenbeck is credited with the discovery of the electron spin, one of the greatest discoveries in atomic physics.

Dr. F. J. Dyson of the Institute for Advanced Study, and a distinguished mathematician as well as a physicist, is another principle speaker. He is former chairman of the Federation of American Scientists which represents scientists in Washington.

Another speaker will be Dr. E. P. Wigner of Princeton University, who had an important part in the "Manhattan Project" during World War II. Like Dr. Uhlenbeck, he was selected for membership in the National Academy of Science. On his 60th birthday, Dr. Wigner was honored by "Modern Physics," a professional journal, which devoted an entire issue to his life and work.

Other notable speakers are Dr. J. S. Langer of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Dr. A. Klein of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. W. J. Willis of Brookhaven National Laboratories in Long Island, New York.

The first Eastern Theoretical Physics Conference was held last year at the University of Virginia.

A theoretical physicist is a mathematical physicist concerned with analysis and physical phenomena, as opposed to an experimental physicist who works in the laboratory.

UP SEATS OPEN

The University Party Executive Committee will hold interviews Sunday for two new legislative appointments and vacancies in five other districts.

Present legislators in Town Men's II and III are moving out of their districts, making the new openings available. Additional vacancies are in Craige, Ehringhaus, Town Women, and Town Men's I and IV.

UP Chairman Mike Chanin said interviews will be held in Graham Memorial's Grail Room between 8-9 p.m. Sunday.

"All persons interested in Student Legislature who reside in these areas are invited to come to the interviews regardless of whether they are UP members or not," he said.

COBB MIXER TONIGHT

All men inclined toward women are invited to come to the IDC mixer tonight in the basement of East Cobb free of charge. The party lasts from 7 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. and is guaranteed to be exciting by the Cobb officers.

Bateson Cited Here

By JOEL BULKLEY

A man who identified himself as a staff investigator from the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) Thursday served the second subpoena in two days on a member of the University community.

HUAC investigator Neil Wetterman issued a subpoena to Nicholas Bateson, a 28 year-old English graduate student in psychology. Bateson will reportedly appear before a HUAC hearing on Wednesday in Washington.

Bateson was unavailable for comment last night.

Bateson, whose former roommate was served Wednesday with a subpoena for a hearing the same day, has been closely connected with the now defunct New Left and Progressive Labor Clubs.

His name has also been mentioned in connection with the abortive attempt of American and Canadian students to visit Cuba last December.

Gumpert and Bateson work together in the psychology department and have worked together on several research projects.

Authorities said the HUAC investigator arrived here early from Washington, served the warrant to Bateson in front of South Building and then left immediately for Washington.

BULLETIN

HELMSTEDT, Germany (UPI) Soviet border guards closed the main highway to West Berlin Thursday, halted two U. S. Army convoys, and moved five Red Army armored cars up beside the halted convoys in the most serious challenge to Western access rights since the Communists built the Berlin Wall in 1961.

West German border officials said the Communists blocked the West Germany-to-West Berlin Autobahn by moving two trucks across the highway.

Then the Soviet armored vehicles moved in next to the American Army convoys which had been blocked at the Communist checkpoint since early Thursday morning, the officials said.

Castro Still Rates High In Cuban Popularity

AGRICULTURE is the subject under discussion in this photograph, taken while the visiting American students met with the administrator of a collective farm in the Pinar del Rio Province. This conference was held in one of the outbuildings on the farm, used for storage of material and equipment, lit only by a bare bulb hanging in the middle of the room. According to Salter, collective farms such as this one have been instrumental in a flowering of the Cuban farm economy, which used to be entirely dependent on the sugar market in the United States. In the last several years since the successful Castro revolution, the Cubans have begun to diversify their farm economy. The collective farms were set up on the model of the Russian farms, which has allowed the Cubans the benefit of the Russian mistakes. It is thought there is considerable Chinese influence in the formulation of the new Cuban agricultural policy, based on the Chinese experiences during the early forced collectivization of Chinese agriculture shortly after the end of the Korean War. —Photo by John Salter

By GARY BLANCHARD
Last of four articles.

Salter In Cuba: Part IV

Here are some of the major impressions John Salter formed on his trip to Cuba last summer:

1. Between sixty and seventy per cent of the Cubans he met were "very much in favor" of Fidel Castro's government.

"Another twenty to twenty-five per cent are more or less apathetic," he adds, "not at all emotionally involved.

"Then there are five to ten per cent who are against the government. I met some of these counter-revolutionaries, including priests. They talked freely about their disagreements with the government.

"We were told by officials and people that it's only when they take steps that harm the government or the people are they put in jail."

2. Most Cubans are highly interested in the United States, particularly in its current civil rights upheaval.

"When they learned I was from the South, that was the first thing they asked me about."

3. Most Cubans greeted the Americans "with the greatest hospitality and friendship. They seemed to expect better relations between them and the United States.

"The only open hostility we met was when we arrived in Havana on the bus. A man in the street saw us and made a spitting motion. That was all. But it turned out that was very non-indicative of the climate of opinion."

4. "I'd expected that our presence would be exploited far more than it was. I didn't expect the degree of freedom of movement and association we were all given. We'd split up in groups of two and three and wander off after the guided tour was over. On the tours, too, we were allowed to talk with anyone we wanted to."

5. "The thing I'll remember longest is the Cuban children. It's a fantastic emotional experience to go into a school for underprivileged children and have them greet you with such enthusiasm.

"The kids ranged from nine tc twenty. We went to dozens of those schools and without exception we got the same reception."

6. "The steps being taken by the government in hygiene, mental health, education and in other social improvement projects are very impressive. We visited a new mental hospital for psychotics. It had a big sports area. They believe in rehabilitation through sports.

"Also there were posters and billboards everywhere with messages about health. And there were ads in the papers telling about elementary steps for good health; and government leaflets, too. They were in many of the homes we visited.

"There's also a big campaign to eliminate gastroenteritis — bloated stomach. And children high up in the mountains were wearing shoes as a result of the government's campaign to eliminate parasitic diseases."

7. "We were told by people outside a clinic in the mountains, and by guides and government health officials, that there's a lot of red tape in the distribution of food.

"One worker in a cooperative food and dry-goods store told me that sometimes there is a marketable surplus of milk, although it's rationed to a quart a day for kids under seven. He said you sometimes run into the situation where in one town you can buy milk over the counter for 10 cents a glass and in a town 20 miles away it's severely rationed.

"We were told by government officials and some of the people that the ration list is becoming less restrictive. Milk, eggs, meat, flour—they're still rationed, but fish has been taken off.

"They've really developed the fishing industry. We saw new fishing boats in many places. Now all fish is off the ration list and they have enough to export.

"The administrator of a cattle farm we visited said they're building up cattle herds all over the island and the per capita allotment of meat is slowly rising. He said it's now three-fourths pound per week per person, including children."

STEELWORKER the American students met and talked with during their contraband visit to Cuba last summer in defiance of a ban on travel to the Communist-influenced island set up by the United States State Department. This man works in a steel mill in Havana Province, one of several mills and plants the students visited during their stay. Salter said he thought Cuban industry was on the rise, and this mill, built with Russian aid, was evidence.

—Photo by John Salter

Vol. 72, Number 18 Friday, October 11, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Salter Story: A Summing Up

Thanks to the tradition of editorial freedom that today's Daily Tar Heel is heir to, we have been able to present the other side of the story of 59 Americans' trip to Cuba in defiance of the State Department's travel ban.

We have done this not because we are in any way convinced that it is the complete, or even the most accurate, report of what the Americans — some of them students, some of them not — saw and did in Cuba.

We have done it because the story of the trip, from whatever point of view, is a good story and thus deserves to be told and recorded. For those especially interested in the matter, being able to hear this side of the story in addition to the side presented in last week's Saturday Evening Post, is apt to shed much-needed light on the present Cuban situation, as well as on the people who went.

But a story of this nature should not end with the final installment. It needs to be assessed and put into perspective, if possible, and if any questions have been raised, an attempt must be made to answer them.

* * *

First, an assessment. John Salter's "socialist" biases should be obvious to even the most politically unsophisticated person. Salter readily admits to them, at least by inference, by terming himself an American Socialist.

Nevertheless, the blind spots he exhibited about Castro's policies and the problems of the island are so apparent that they detract from the credence of what he reported.

These areas of blindness are not the product of Salter's lack of reporting skill alone. They seem to us to be the product of forced blindness wherever facts could not be reconciled with philosophy.

One example of this occurred when Salter called the American travel ban on Cuba "repressive." But what about the Cuban government's ban on letting Cubans leave the island?

"I don't know what their regulations are on this," he replied.

This may be pure naivete, but we don't think so. We regard it, rather, as symptomatic of a man whose politics force him to plead ignorance of a subject when the subject clearly contradicts his concept of the nature of things.

This, we feel, is the most dangerous sort of intellectual dishonesty, especially as it comes from one of those who wish to bring truth to this country.

* * *

Secondly, the perspective. The trip to Cuba of Salter and two other former UNC students, Larry Phelps and Dorothy Denton, raises questions that have never been adequately considered or answered on these pages.

Those questions go far beyond the subject of the trip itself and the merits of the State Department's travel ban. These questions have to do with these three former UNC students and their relationship to the University, the state and the country.

Unwittingly at first, and unwillingly throughout, the name of the University has been associated with these three former students and their activities. Yet the relationship has been distinctly one-sided.

The only possible way the University has benefited in this association is to the extent that the words and actions of these three former students may have caused many of us relatively more orthodox students to give more consideration to the shortcomings of our democratic system than we otherwise might have.

But it is clear beyond doubt that Salter, Phelps and Denton, plus their thankfully-few like-minded friends, have profited immensely from the association. They have used the University, and their previous connections with it, to lend respectability to their perhaps well-intentioned but nevertheless misguided efforts to remake the world according to the alien standards they subscribe to.

They have used the University with no regard for its well-being and reputation.

They have thus been irresponsible. And not once or twice, but over and over again, deliberately, conscious of what they were doing.

But the most damning indictment against them is that they have been irresponsible in a far more fundamental way than in merely using the University without regard to its welfare.

For they have found The Truth in a world in which there is no single truth. They have found The Answer where there are many answers.

Their basic premise is that capitalism is bad and socialism — or communism — is good, and they adhere to that basic premise with fanatical rigidity.

They are truly bigots of the Left.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

A Plug

This is a plug, pure and simple, for the debate that's supposed to come off today at 3:15 p.m. near the flagpole on the mall between South Building and the Library.

The combatants are Warren Ogden, challenger, and John Shaffer, challengee. The subject is the Speaker Ban Law passed last summer by the General Assembly. Ogden supports the measure, Shaffer opposes it.

We have no idea what the ground rules are, or how long the debate will last. But, it should be interesting, and at the least will serve admirably as a warm-up for Mr. Phipps' planned visit to the campus to speak in favor of the law.

No matter which side you're on, we hope to see you there.

Letters To The Editors

Otelia, Cuba, And The Peaceniks

Justification

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Self-justification has always been a very natural response in Man. For this reason, I was not surprised to read Otelia's answer to Mr. Harrison's criticisms. However, when one becomes a critic of others, one must be careful of how one justifies one's own actions.

I hardly think that "... because I like it that way", is a good justification for a practice which, in our day and age, is considered poor etiquette. Using a soup spoon in a cup of tea is just not done by those who take table manners seriously. It seems as if Otelia is trying to perfect our table manners, even in so informal a place as Lenoir Hall, to the point where they would be acceptable in the White House. I hardly think that Otelia would stir a cup of tea with a soup spoon . . . , "because I like it that way", if she were dining with the Kennedy's!

Another point of etiquette which does not seem to be a part of Oteliaquette, involves smoking. Ever since I was old enough to know that cigarettes existed, I was repulsed by the unladylike practice of some women to walk around with their cigarettes in their hands. It is not only poor etiquette, but quite unbecoming and definitely not feminine.

If Otelia were to practice what she preaches, she might find her criticism more graciously received.

Carol Morde
433 West Cobb

Imitation?

Editor, The Tar Heel,

I don't as a rule bother to answer letters concerning myself, but I am glad Reginall Harrison, Jr. has called attention to my silly old English habit of throwing bones on the floor. Now I can see where this callow youth has grounds for complaint . . . I'd personally use the brick layer's trowel I stur my tea with on anyone else I saw in so gross a transgression! Try it, Mr. Harrison, and see if it doesn't facilitate lumps on your head!

As for spreading my butter with my thumb, I have explained to those who have called me on that habit that it is a good old tartar custom I picked up from Ivan the Terrible in 1210 or was it 1211? You see, the Tartars had to keep their knives handy in case of nasty invaders, as must I so as to stick erring students I see doing it.

About this subject of wearing hats in church, it is an ancient church custom that some people like to have preserved, like burning witches and the inquisition.

Also, I use the large spoon rather than the tea spoon because I like it that way. That makes it right.

It is an encouraging sign that young people are beginning to give some thought to this aspect of their education. If you all would just do as I say, not as I do, my sacred task would be much easier. Like I always say, "Live and let live."

"Otelia C." Fox
325 Parker

No Commies!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I think you are doing the community a grave disservice to print all those crackpot Whupple letters. I realize that you probably know better than to believe all of the things he says—for instance, that there is a communist cell in the basement of the law school. But many people are very gullible, and will believe anything they read in print.

I went down to the basement of the law school and checked: there is no communist cell there at all. There was only a janitor; and he was fast asleep. I think you owe it to your readers to clear up any false impressions they have received.

Whupple is a typical redneck illiterate right wing biggot. Like all right wing fanatics, he overgeneralizes about everythng. Moreover, he sounds distinctly paranoid. Like General Walker and all the rest of them.

I personally feel that free speech is fundamental to freedom; and I am anguished to see you attack this point of view. Recognizing the fundamental importance of free speech was an important millstone on the royal road to democracy. In words that may well have sparked the first floodtides of revolutionary activity in America, the noted German statesman, Evril Zola, commented: "I disagree with you, but I will defend to the death your right to be wrong."

I think you are also overlooking another grave possibility. The contents of the D.T.H. are very likely to be quoted in uncommitted nations in Asia and Africa. The U. S. image has already suffered enough from Henry Wallace in Alabama and people like him. You are compounding the bad image when you print letters from people like Whupple.

What if India went communist because of your thoughtless editorial policy? Did you ever even stop to think about that? I think you should bear in mind that your newspaper is publicly consumptive.

As the great German philosopher, Alban Berkeley, put it: "The world will never be safe for democracy until the last dictator is strangled with the pigtails of the last priest." Those right wingers are always in favor of despotic despots like Batista. They support them at the expense of freedom and then have the the nerve to turn around and write letters to the D.T.H. and say they are actually trying to protect freedom.

I knew one of those right wingers once and he was unattractive and had a lot of nervous mannerisms and he was a sadist. What is more, he was dishonest, because he gave me an F in Math 6 when I really deserved at least a D. He wouldnt change my grade either.

Another reason I think the gag law is bad is because what if a great American like Eisenhower wanted to talk here only he couldn't get any clearance because of some mistake of his youth. It makes you stop and think doesnt it? But a lot of people won't stop and think because they are guillible and will be swayed by Dr. Whupples letters.

I read that the Catholics are against sterilization for any reason and you can bet I will never go near a Catholic Hospital to be operated on again. I had a boil on my neck taken off there once and it makes me shudder to think. I bet Dr. Whupple is one of those Catholic doctors. You would think they would know better in this day and age.

I also would like to say in closing I think Larry Pheips is a fine person and a real asset to any community and we would all be better off if some other campuses could have him, too.

John Du

"Help You?"

Editors, The Tar Heel,

In the Saturday, October 4, edition of The Tar Heel, Mr. James Sturges invites "other freshmen to contribute their good opinions about Chapel Hill." We feel it appropriate to mete out some such praise at this time to what we feel to be a very deserving party, namely the serving line personnel in Ehringhaus cafeteria. "Service with a smile," seems to be the watchword of these cheerful employees, whose eagerness to serve is voiced in the all too familiar query, "may I help you?" We wish to point out, for the benefit of those unfortunate students who have not had the opportunity to eat in our fine cafeteria, some of the nicities which make dining here a pleasure.

First, and this cannot be overemphasized, the general attitude of the servers is more than gratifying. The idea of prompt service is almost carried to the extreme. One hardly has time to pick up his tray and silverware before the ever-smiling waitresses signal their desire to be of assistance with a warm "next" or "help you?" And there is nothing impersonal about the service here; each individual is treated with genuine and polite respect.

The welfare of the student is also clearly borne in mind, strict attention is paid to the size of each serving, so as to prevent the student's having indigestion or perhaps becoming obese from over-eating.

Finally, as the student reaches the cashier, he is received with the same cordiality that characterizes the entire serving line. Is it not a reassuring fact to know that the cashier is infallible; that he never makes a mistake?

The wonderful thing about the trip through the cafeteria line is that we "regulars" are privileged to enjoy it over and over again. Indeed, it is an experience that never fails to create a friendly, relaxed atmosphere which makes dining at Ehringhaus a uniquely pleasurable experience.

Gene Hedrick
Sandy Worth
Ehringhaus

Bad Journalism?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

A responsible news media may be judged not only by its editorial policies, but also by the type and quality of story which it chooses to emphasize. It seems that the Daily Tar Heel has choosen to emphasize the recent students' trip to Cuba by means of a major four part series. These students fraternized with a man who has slaughtered thousands of Cubans and who would like to spread his police state methods to the rest of Latin America and even to the United States itself.

My point here is not to debate whether or not these students had the right to do what they did. It is, rather, to question the wisdom of the Daily Tar Heel in turning the journey of self styled pinks and punks into a modern Odyssey. If it is so necessary for UNC students to know what is going on inside Communist Cuba, it seems that a more responsible news source could have been found.

Every slight approval which is given to Castro or his sympathizers (Salter and Company) makes it that much easier for him to carry out repression of human rights. A student newspaper which devotes half of its front page for four issues to romanticizing the efforts of Communist sympathizers is merely playing into their hands.

James J. Dolan Jr.
205 Carr

A Criticism

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I have enjoyed much that you have written in your editorial columns, as well as the news, both campus and international, that you have presented elsewhere in your paper. I regret to observe, however, that your October 4 editorial, "The Peace Marchers Visit Chapel Hill," is a small collection of banalities and vagaries.

First, the banalities. You repeatedly congratulate the peace marchers for living up to their convictions. There have been sincere fanatics and monsters of every stripe throughout the pages of history who lived up admirably to their convictions. Furthermore, I doubt seriously if the peace marchers are at all interested in having their backs paternally patted and their arguments ignored. You claim "a strong sense of reality;" one would expect that such a rare providential gift would lead you to deal with what these people said in a clear concrete fashion. If they are significant enough for you to devote your editorial space to commenting on them, then they are significant enough to merit the honor of a genuine refutation.

Now the vagaries. If I understand your article, the points of it are that, first, though the peace marchers don't realize it, we all want peace very much already and don't need to be told how important it is; second, that it would take Jesus, or somebody like Jesus, to be able to accomplish the ideal of peace by being resolutely idealistic; third, that the peace marchers think that peace would result from the withdrawal of both Soviet and American troops from Cuba; and, fourth, that the reason we don't have peace and can't get it as easily as the peace marchers think we can is that the Russians are different from us as far as beliefs about the nature of human life and the right way to live are concerned. I've changed the phraseology and the order in which you made your points, but I think this covers, without bias, everything you said.

You accuse the peace marchers of oversimplifying everything, but I think, if you heard Bradford Lyttle's speech, conscience will force you to acknowledge that you have oversimplified his arguments as much as he oversimplified the realities of the political situation, if not more. Rather than filling up your paper, as I would enjoy trying to do, wth an attempt to dissect each of your points, thereby writing such a long letter that nobody would bother to read it, I will try to comment briefly on the way in which each of your points is intolerably vague.

First, we are not as concerned about peace as you suppose; think about it: how much time, on the average, do we spend per day, or per week, thinking hard about the present world situation—the "cold war"—how we (the people of the world) have gotten into such a predicament and what the possibilities are for getting out of it? For example, is the "cold war" a state of war or a state of peace, or is it something in between, and, if the latter, how much does it resemble war Have we got an enemy, as the nations of Europe had among each other when wars were a clear cut type of thing, understandabl and distinct from peace If we have an enemy, could we settle our quasi-war through thinking about it the same way one thought about old-fashioned wars—as a thing for soldiers and governments to settle by trying to destroy one another's ability to function?

Or, on the other hand, are we —the United States and Russia— going to destroy civilians, women, children, and civilizations if we attempt to meet our "war" by the same techniques with which one settled international conflicts in the past, by the very nature of the great powers of our weapons? I'm not sure of the answers, but if we don't spend a lot of time worrying about such matters—not to mention the significant issue, on which our scientists are divided, of whether our falloutshelter program can afford the same protection to citizens in congested cities with snarled transportation, as bomb shelters did against block-buster type bombs in the past, and the recurrent issue of whether the end—the maintenance of our patterns and habits—our "way of life"—justifies the means—carnage, then our concern for and interest in attaining peace is a pathetic joke.

Your second point: regarding the power of ideals, why do you think Jesus' ideals were effective to the entent to which they have been? To answer facilely that he was divine is to put the question aside with a label on it, instead of answering it. Consider Jesus' hard sayings, such as "The Kingdom of God is within you," and "Greater things than these shall ye do." Such utterances defy your labels and destroy your excuse for pigeon-holing ideas away without giving equally hard thought to the question of what they really are—not to mention the type of thing Lyttle spoke of en passent: the range of possibilities of non-violent direct action.

Third, the peace-marchers do not maintain that their program offers miracles, that if we pulled out of Cuba today, the Russians would do likewise today, and the world would immediately become one big happy family as a result. They do maintain that the unrefuted possibilities of concrete steps in various parts of the world, steps of a magnanimous and farsighted nature, would offer better chances of avoiding human extinction than the present dangerous stockpile and international chess game offer. Have you seriously considered the possibility that they might be right?

Fourth, what do you mean by saying the trouble resides in the fact that the Russians think differently about human life? Do you mean simply that we profess all manner of creeds—religious and political—or do you mean that the things that motivate us, the reasons we act, are fundamentally different in kind from the things for which the people of the Soviet Union live and work? It won't do to reply simply that we are a God-fearing people who believe in human dignity and they are not, because one must inquire deeply at this point about how crucial things are to us in comparison with the motivation of preserving our existence and sovereignty as a nation-state, on the one hand, and how central to our lives baseball, weekend dates, warm and even fashionable clothes, food and automobiles, the avoidance of manual labor, and, above all, the kind of money that makes all these things possible, are.

Have you considered the possibility that, on the one hand, we think of ourselves as more idealistic than we really are and, on the other, that the peoples of all modern nations want these things —or things similar to them—and that the Armageddon for which we may well be helping to prepare the way would sweep these things aside, things for which peace is necessary, as an angry chess player knocks down castles and pawns; that every human being wants to get and hold these things and would be, as a consequence, though not necessarily trustworthy, which is probably irrelevant (who is ), amenable to peace overtures (not merely treaties which sacrifice things that are inessential are far as our arsenal and international power are concerned)

Timothy Ray
50 N. Greensboro Rd.
Carrboro, N. C.

"Hey, Guess What——People From China Have Been Escaping To MY Country!"

FUN AND GAMES

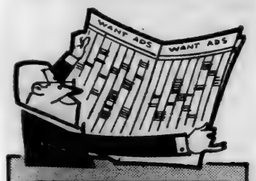
Silly people who don't have anything better to do, read the DTH's sports page.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING



CLASSIFIED ADS

Rentals

APARTMENT—MODERN, 2-BEDroom. Completely furnished. Call 942-7254 or 942-5253.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1957 PORCHE COUPE, 1600, Normal recent valve job and transmission overhaul, $1295. 929-1462.

1958 FIAT 600, NEW BRAKES, only 200 miles on major overhaul, $445. Guaranteed. 929-1462.

1959-MGA, 'GOOD CONDITION, new tires, $950 or make offer, Bill Bynum—319 Connor.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

WANTED: AGENTS TO SELL stationery in dormitories, fraternities, and sororities. 25% commission. Call 968-5258 after 10:30 p.m.

Asian Trip Open To Undergrads

Undergraduate students interested in international affairs may apply for a December trip to Southeast Asia, Hugo Spechar, NSA Chairman, announced yesterday.

The delegation will be sponsored by the NSA and the Institute of International Education.

Ten American students will be selected for the trip, which is intended to give them an opportunity to observe the cultural, social and political features of Singapore, Malaya, and Indonesia.

A majority of the students will be undergraduates with demonstrated leadership qualities. Those selected must have a thorough knowledge of international affairs and the ability to discuss American society and student life.

Participants in the trip will visit universities, major cities, and rural communities. All necessary expenses will be paid.

Those selected will be given reading lists and will be expected to develop an extensive knowledge of the countries to be visited. In addition, a weekend orientation program will be held in November.

Deadline for complete applications is November 1. Those interested should contact Hugo Spechar in the Student Government offices, or write the Asian Delegation, U. S. National Student Association, 3457 Chestnut St., Philadelphia 4, Pa.

SUPPER STUDY GROUP

The Baptist Student Union Supper-Study Group will meet today 5:45 p.m. at the Student Center, 151 E. Rosemary St.

Four study groups will be conducted, all with "Faith" as their basic theme.

The groups are:

(1) "Biblical Faith", an introduction to the theme, led by BSU Director Rev. Jim Cansler.

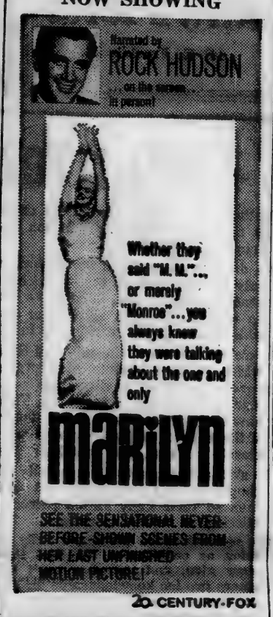
(2) "Dynamics of Faith" based on the book by Paul Tillich, and led by Rev. Dewitt Myers, pastor of the United Church.

(3) "Faith and Mission" led by Dr. Robert Seymour pastor of Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church.

(4) "Faith, Death and Destiny" led by Rev. Fred Reid, Chaplain of North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Varsity

NOW SHOWING



NOTICE

Students, why walk when you can purchase a beautiful English style bike at Grant's for only $35.-00 on credit for $1.25 weekly.

W. T. GRANT
Eastgate Shopping Center

Economical Living — Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES

409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

Chem Prof Planning Bout With Superman?

By MAT FRIEDMAN

Just about everyone who has been a Superman fan at one time, has heard of "Kryptonite," the terrible substance that put Clark Kent out of business so often.

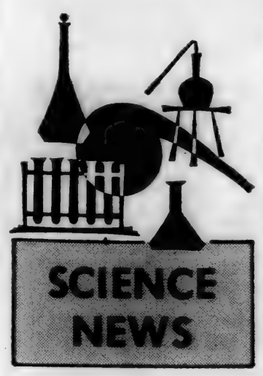
In reality, Krypton is one of the so-called "rare gases" which, as every chemistry student knows, do not form compounds with anything. But Dr. S. Y. Tyree, professor of chemistry knows differently. Last week, as a matter of fact, he addressed the Elisha Mitchell Society on "Compounds of the Rare Gases." Oddly, the same topic will be featured at a meeting here of the American Chemical Society.

Quite a lot of attention for something that doesn't exist!

* * *

Dr. Walter H. Wheeler of the Department of Geology is taking something of a "look back" into North Carolina history.

He is studying historic rock formations in the State, and many are as much as 10-30 million years old. But geologists will tell you that this isn't old at all. After all, the earth had been here for 10 billion years.



With the congressional slashing of funds for the United States moon project, science spending has been very much in the news.

Anyone who gets around the science departments as does this reporter, is constantly being amazed at just how scientific research does cost. Practically every scientist in the University, in fact, is working on some kind of grant.

The physics and chemistry departments, for instance, are currently on a government grant of more than $1 million. The zoology department has grants totaling about $160,000.

"But it is wrong to think," says Dr. Harvey Lehman, chairman of the department, that the value of a project can be measured by how much of the government's money is spent. Certain types of research, as amazed at how much scientific require very expensive equipment. Others do not. Some of the finest research projects are carried on with very little money at all."

* * *

A rather unique type of cancer research is being carried on here by Dr. Douglas Humm, professor of zoology. Dr. Humm is studying the differences in metabolism of normal and cancerous tissue in fish, the cancerous fish being obtained by special cross-breeding. Although he is not, at this point, only concerned with fish, Dr. Humm's work could very well add to our knowledge of human cancer.

* * *

Physicists from Massachusetts to Florida will converge on Chapel Hill Oct. 25 and 26 for a meeting of the Eastern Theoretical Physics Conference. Originated by physicists at UNC, Duke and Virginia, the Conference will bring together many of the East's top scientists.

WUNC-TV
Friday

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
12:00 Parlons
12:00 Industry
12:15 Mid-Day News
12:30 Aspect
1:00 Sign Off
5:00 Algebra
6:00 Big Picture
6:30 What's New?
7:00 News
7:30 Beyond Earth
8:00 Masked Ball
9:50 Sign Off

WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Student Body President Mike Lawler announced Thursday that interviews for two vacancies on the Women's Council will be held Monday and Tuesday from 2-5 p.m. in the Student Government offices in GM.

He said there is one vacancy in J.D. II (Spencer, Whitehead and Smith) and one in J.D. IV (East and West Cobb).

WUNC Radio

WUNC RADIO
Friday

6:00 The Dinner Hour —
Grofe: Grand Canyon Suite
Grofe: Mississippi River Suite
Copland: Billy the Kid Ballet
Traditional: Pop Goes the Weasel
6:55 News
7:00 Project 60
8:00 Let's Listen to Opera
10:00 Ten O'Clock Report
10:15 Friday Night Carousel
12:00 News

(Advertisement)

BEAUTY NOTES

BY ALICE STONE

If you have fine hair it is very likely soft-sheened and sleek, but it poses a number of problems of its own. Cold weather loads it with static electricity, heat leaves it limp and you are probably in a never-ending search for props to give it body.

We might suggest frequent washings and cream rinses to provide more body, but we caution against vigorous yanking on shampoo snarls as fine hair is even more fragile when wet. Also, be careful of too-energetic brushing and combing which only adds to friction troubles.

Fine hair responds nicely to a permanent which is soft and loose and free of frizzling tendencies. This type permanent — as is true of any permanent — is properly and expertly given at Aesthetic Hair Styling Salon, 133½ East Franklin Street — Phone 942-4335.

THIS WEEK'S HELPFUL Hint: A small dose of fabric softener or liquid detergent added to the final rinse water, lessens the static electricity and clinging tendencies of nylon slips in cold weather.

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.

SAAB

1960 Austin-Healy Sprite ..$1,000
1962 — Alfa Romeo Sprint ..... $2500
1963 — Elva Courier .....$2600
1960 TR-3 .....$1325
1959 — Vauxhall ..... $700
1960 Renault 4CV .....$450
1960 — VW Panel Truck ..$1000

imported cars ltd.

PHONE 942-7151

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Opera Workshop—7:30-9:30 p.m., Hill Hall. Director, Dr. Wilton Mason.

Faculty Club Dance Lessons — 7:45-8:45 p.m., Monogram Club. Director, Robert Walker.

Visiting Committee of Board of Trustees, headed by Bill Yarborough, will interview any interested student. Contact Charles Shaffer, Bynum Hall immediately for scheduling.

Friday Supper—6:00 p.m., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., call 942-2152 before 2:00 p.m. for reservations.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, October 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in GM basement.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

Yack Pictures — 1-6 p.m.,, basement of GM, for Juniors, Nurses, Physical Therapists, and late Freshmen ($1.00 late fee).

Informal sorority rush will begin today, Oct. 11. There will be an extended period for all interested to sign list in Dean of Women's office. Any girl who discontinued or was dropped during rush is eligible.

Honor System Commission—3:30 p.m. today, Roland Parker III, compulsory meeting.

TGIF Party — 8:10 p.m.—student center of Presbyterian Church sponsored by the Westminster Fellowship.

Meeting of Dorm Presidents—All Dorm Presidents come by Intramural Office (315 Woollen Gym) after 3:30 this afternoon.

Philosophy Colloquium — 8 p.m., 213 Caldwell Hall. Professor Virgil C. Aldrich, Chairman, Dept. of Philosophy, Kenyon College, will speak on "An Abstract Theory of Mind."

Student Government — 2-5 p.m. daily interviews for limited committee appointments, apply 210 Graham Memorial. Five-minute interviews will be held. Dick Ellis, Bob Spearman and Lawler will conduct them.

MOVIES

Carolina — Wives and Lovers.
Varsity—Marilyn
Graham Memorial Free Flick— Portrait in Black, 7:30 and 9 p.m. in Carroll Hall. Admission by I.D. cards only.

FUTURE

Baptist Student Union — 2 p.m. Sat., meet at BSU Center. Transportation will be provided to Umstead Park for discussion and recreation and picnic dinner.

CU Day Combos—4-6 p.m., Sat., Jammers. 8-12 p.m., Sat., Monzas in the Rendenzvous Room.

Petite Musicale — 8 p.m., Sun., BM Lounge. Concert of Chamber Music.

Order of the Old Bean Birds— 7:30 p.m. Mon., The Goody Shop.

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Chapel of the Cross Parish House. Address by Tom Davis, doctoral candidate at Duke, on "An Existential Interpretation of Sin."

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Common Meeting at University Methodist Church.

Woman's Council Interviews—2-5 p.m., Mon. and Tues. for two vacant seats, Whitehead and Cobb.

Y Committee Interviews — 2-5:30 p.m., and 7-9:30 p.m., Tues.-Thurs. on second floor Y Building. Applications available in GM and Y Building.

University Day Program — 11 a.m., Sat., Hill Hall. Speaker, Paul Green, Pulitzer Prize winning playwright.

Medical Science Lecture Series on the Kidney—11 a.m., Sat., Clinic Auditorium, School of Medicine. Dr. Robert W. Berliner will speak on "Mechanisms of Urine Acidification."

State Affairs Committee — 4 p. m, Mon., Woodhouse Room, GM.

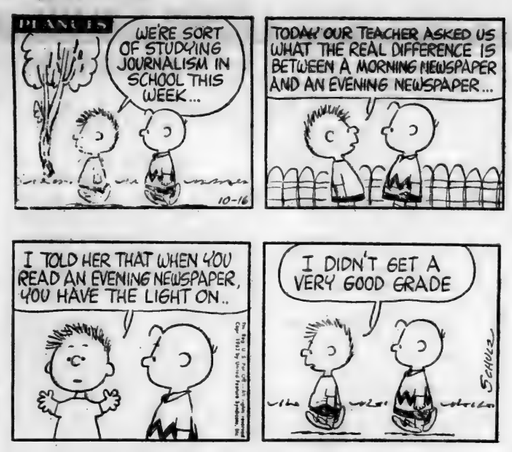
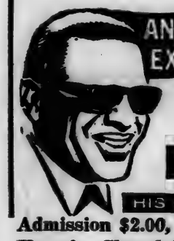
SP Legislative vacancies in Cobb (2) and Town Men's IV (2) filled by election at SP meeting—7 p.m., Tues., for extra information contact Phil Baddour, 303 Everett, or Neal Jackson, 7 Old West.

YMCA Freshman Supper Program speech by Rev. Charles Jones of the Community Church on Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. The speech and discussion period will be followed by a meeting of the members. B.Y.O.T.

PEANUTS



Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA—Raleigh
One Show—8:30 P.M.



AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE...IN CONCERT
THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS

Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

EASTER VACATION CRUISE

NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth

GO BY SEA

FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

The Jane Haslem Gallery

Unique Opportunities for the Beginning Collector

HANS ERNI — RUDY POZZATTI
ROBERT BRODERSON — JACK BILANDER
RAY FRENCH — LEONARD BASKIN

Students Welcome . . .

ART SUPPLIES 10% DISCOUNT
PICTURE RENTAL — CUSTOM FRAMING

113 W. Franklin — Chapel Hill, N. C.

JOY IN THE MORNING
By CHAPEL HILL'S OWN
Betty Smith

Impress the folks back home with an autographed copy of this national best seller.
There's one for you at the Intimate, and gift wrapping is yours at no extra charge...

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
115 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Greenwich Hotel 111 W. Washington
QUIET RESIDENTIAL HOTEL
• Grade A • Private Baths—Showers • Moderate Rates:
$3 Single $5 Double
Mrs. D. S. Baker, Mgr.—BR 2-3294
GREENSBORO (near Carolina Theatre)
No registration after 11 p.m. Gentlemen only

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Actuality
5. Italian coin
9. Apart
11. Former German state
12. Slip
13. Small nightbird
14. Norse god of war
15. Greek letter
17. Piece out
18. Small plants of rose family
20. City SW Missouri
23. Gust of wind
27. Mountain nymph
28. Skin disorder
29. Arctic animal
30. Edible mollusk
31. Jollyboats
33. Public vehicle
36. Tiny
37. Girl's name
40. Beetle
42. Stream of water
44. "Hoosier poet"
45. Tea cake
46. Prepare for publication
47. Female sheep

DOWN
1. Speedy
2. Associate
3. Cordage fiber
4. Fox
5. Mandate
6. Not working
7. Exude
8. Poker stake
10. Fervent
11. Welcome benefit
16. Female fowl
18. Wing-shaped
19. People of Switzerland
20. Task
21. Coin: Sweden
22. Edible seed
24. Insect
25. Charge for services
26. Sailor: sl.
28. 10th U.S. President: poss.
30. To be in debt
32. Absent
33. Solicitude
34. Among
35. Island east of Java
37. Acknowledge
38. Sand dune: G.B.
39. God of war: Gr.
41. Soak flax
43. Frozen water

Yesterday's Answer

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who pushed the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon.

Freshmen Debut In Kenan Today

By BILL LEE

UNC's freshman football team sends out its heralded quarterbacks for the first time before a home crowd this afternoon when the Tar Babies take on Wake Forest. Kickoff is set for 2:00 at Kenan Stadium. Admission will be free.

A 21-7 winner over NC State in its first outing, Coach George Barclay's squad has been idle for two weeks. Practice since then has largely been concentrated on pass defense and kickoff and punt returns.

The home debut of signal-callers Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver, two high school All-Americans when they battled for the state championship for Rocky Mount and Charlotte Myers Park last year, is expected to draw a sizeable crowd to Kenan.

Wake's Deaclets lost their opener to Clemson, 21-7, last Friday, but Barclay is anticipating a hard afternoon. "We scouted the game, and we know they have a lot of fine boys," says Barclay. "They have a good-sized line.

"Wake got behind early," he added, "but came back to 7-14. They were still in the ball game until Clemson scored in the last few minutes."

Barclay has no set starting team. He supplies two lineups that play both offense and defense equally well, one guided by Weaver—the other by Talbott.

In the game with State, Talbott's unit did a remarkable defensive job. Led by guard Joe Fratangelo, the Tar Babies held the Wolfpets rushing game to minus 25 yards. Beaver's team stood out on offense by scoring all three touchdowns.

Halfbacks Tom Lampman and Bud Phillips, and fullback Tim Reardon accounted for the touchdowns against State. Lampman and Reardon carried over. Phillips, who caught five aerials for 40 yards, pulled in a 10-yard pass from Beaver who hit 16 of 19 for 130 yards.

Talbott completed three out of nine for 25 yards and converted after each touchdown. He also handles the punting chores.

Jim Fortune, formerly of Brevard, may not play today. The swift halfback pulled in three passes for 18 yards and netted 67 yards in 10 carries in the frosh opener, but suffered a knee injury in practice last week.

Definitely out for the game are center Chuck Alexander and halfback Bill Johnson due to injuries.

Co-captains for the game will be tight ends Bob Powell and Bo Wood.

PROBABLE LINEUPS

| UNC | | WAKE |
|---|---|---|
| Knott | LE | Snow |
| Davis | LT | Tatarch |
| Erimias | LG | Jania |
| Cornelius | C | Penn |
| Fratangelo | RG | McMurray |
| Hodges | RT | Reynolds |
| Powell | RE | Hobbs |
| Talbott | QB | Hauswald |
| Fonvielle | HB | Lepic |
| Moore | HB | Nice |
| Barrow | FB | Wedel |

QB's Jeff Beaver (left) And Danny Talbott

MURALS

Due to some unfortunate mathematics by the intramural department's official scorers, the Navy Sea Lions-Grimes Gigilos game and the Ruffin Rogues-Parker Playmakers contest were both reported wrongly in the usually reliable DTH yesterday.

The Sea Lions defeated Grimes, 21-0 and Ruffin scored six points instead of the zip it was credited with in the loss to Parker. Parker got 18 points for the win. Any further complaints may be directed to Peter Harkness at 942-3112.

MURAL SCORES

4:00

Lewis Lions 22 Ehring A 0
Aycock Aardvarks - Victory Village II (postponed-snow)
HUAC Clowns 2 UNC Commies 0

5:00

Avery Admirals 12 Stacy Studs 0
Emerson Cardplayers 35 Winston Terps 0
AFROTC 1 Craige A 0 (forfeit)
Med School 2 45 Geology Grads 0
Law School 2 13 Phy. Friends 0

TODAY'S GAMES

4:00

Emerson Cardplayers-Ehring A
Avery Antics-Ehring B
Craige A-Winston Reds

5:00

Graham Gargoyles-Manly Riverrats
Joyner Giants-Town Lodgers
Teague Terrors-Victory Village II

The natural way to make an impression!

NATURAL SHOULDER VESTED

Be yourself. That's how you feel in this good mannered all wool suit. Handsome and correct. Tailored in the traditional soft shoulder construction by College Hall . . . naturally.

$69.50

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

The Traditional Sportcoat

TRUE TRADITIONAL SPORTSCOATS SHOULD HAVE THE FOLLOWING . . .

Softly rolled lapels off-set center vent, slightly raised welt seam, flap pockets and of course no no cumbersome shoulder padding.

At THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL, you'll always find authentic styling with no tailoring trickery. Stop in today and see THE HUB's vast collection of sportcoats in fine wool Herringbones, Camels, Shetlands, and Alpaca blends, reasonably priced from twenty-nine, ninety five.

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

ECSTATIC OVER Illinois' 10-9 upset of Northwestern and the Dodger sweep of the Yankees (which just goes to show they wouldn't finish fifth in the National League), I managed to survive a flock of other upsets which I didn't have the guts to pick.

An 18-6-1 last week (losses to LSU, Purdue, Oregon State, SMU, Mississippi State and Iowa) holds the average at .761 on 54-17-4 for the year. But it's shaky.

DUKE AT CALIFORNIA. The supposedly rebuilding Devils have rolled over three ACC opponents by 48 points worth. They are rebuilt enough by now to stop Craig Morton and Cal. Duke, by 10.

NC STATE AT SOUTH CAROLINA. Clemson found out the Wolfpack was for real last week. State visits the Palmetto again. It will win again. NC State, by 7.

WAKE FOREST AT FLORIDA STATE. Wake Forest might as well play Oklahoma all year. They must have offered Sweetan part ownership of the school to get him to go there. It wasn't worth it. Florida State, by 30.

GEORGIA AT CLEMSON. Maybe Howard will quit pour-mouthing after he gets beat four straight times. Rakestraw should again be the difference. Georgia, by 5.

VIRGINIA AT VMI. Yes, Virginia, there may be a team you can beat. There aren't too many of them. But this one is a likely candidate. Virginia, by 2.

FLORIDA AT ALABAMA. The Gators have suffered badly so far. A loss, a win, a tie. And they had a hard time beating Richmond. They'll have an even harder time beating the Tide. Alabama, by 10.

Tech, Northwestern Come Back

GEORGIA TECH AT TENNESSEE. Tech took it in the ear from LSU for the third straight year last week. They'll be roarin' mad for this tough SEC battle. Georgia Tech, by 11.

ARMY AT PENN STATE. The Nittany Lions are tired of these intersectional deals. One of the country's strongest, Penn State prepares this week for Syracuse. Penn State, by 16.

VILLANOVA AT BOSTON COLLEGE. The Philadelphia Wildcats, missing big Billy Joe, were upset by beloved Buffalo last week. Jack Concannon and BC are too tough. Boston College, by 12.

CORNELL AT HARVARD. High above Cayuga's waters is Gary Wood. But little else. Harvard may be the surprise of the Ivy League. Cornell may surprise Gary Ward. Harvard, by 8.

ILLINOIS AT OHIO STATE. The Buckeyes have not been scored on in victories over Texas A&M and Indiana. The Illinois upset magic has cooled off. Ohio State, by 6.

INDIANA AT IOWA. I'm tired of missing Iowa's games. In the battle of the Big Ten's little two, the Hoosier gets Hawked. Iowa, by 10.

MICHIGAN STATE AT MICHIGAN. The Spartans blew their game with Southern Cal, after leading 10-0. They are more powerful than most people think. Ask Jim Hickey. Michigan State, by 17.

MINNESOTA AT NORTHWESTERN. Two big, rough teams that play the TV game should put on a good show. Watch Carl Eller try to catch Tommy Myers. He'll miss him. Northwestern, by 9.

Oklahoma-Texas: Shoot 'Em UP

AIR FORCE AT NEBRASKA. Nebraska has quietly gone unbeaten (including a win over Minnesota) and moved into the polls' Top Ten. Air Force scored 69 points one week and zipped the next. Consistency over Falconry. Nebraska, by 18.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA AT NOTRE DAME. USC, shook up by Oklahoma, just did get by Michigan State. It'll be a bit easier this time out. That Irish schedule is suicide. Southern Cal, by 13.

PURDUE AT WISCONSIN. The Badgers have played one game of any note, won it by five points, and get a ranking of fifth in the country. Maybe they're that good. But I don't think so. In an upset. Purdue, by 5.

OKLAHOMA AT TEXAS. You got these two teams, see. And they're the number one and two best around, see. And they got these two great coaches, see. And the players play football for God and state, see. What do you do? You panic. Texas, by 3.

OREGON STATE AT WASHINGTON. The Huskies, supposedly one of the coast's powerhouses are presently 0-3. Overdue by now, they are also overrated. Oregon State, by 8.

OTHERS:

Columbia over Yale
Dartmouth over Brown
Missouri over Kansas State
Arkansas over Baylor
Rice over Stanford
TCU over Texas Tech

SICK OF BANANAS?

Elsewhere in today's DTH are: the fourth installment of Little Johnny in Storyville Land (page 1); a penetrating look into the crossword puzzle by Peanuts (page 3); the exciting Campus Calendar (page 3); and a colorful examination of the masthead by Dave Ethridge (page 2). Happy Reading!

UNC Analysis—4

Some Plays Not Used Yet

By JIM HICKEY
UNC Head Coach

Our game with Maryland tomorrow is a very important one. It will determine which way we are going to go in the ACC race. We have had real good practice sessions this week. The other coaches and myself have gone over Maryland game films countless times, and I think we are well prepared to meet the Terps.

The uncertainty surrounding their fine quarterback Dick Shiner hasn't bothered us that much. We have simply prepared for them assuming that he will play. That way I don't see how it can hurt us if he doesn't play.

Maryland has a fine varied offense, as you know, Tom Nugent is a real experimeter. Never can tell what he might come up with. Shiner is one of the finest passers in the country and he's a smart runner too. Mike Funk didn't look bad as his replacement in the Duke game.

Len Chiaverini is their biggest running threat. They use him mainly off the tackles. And of course this Darryl Hill is a real comer. Fast and shifty. He'll be their main pass receiver, but sometimes they'll use him in the backfield and let him run to the outside .

Their line is about the same as ours as far as size and quickness go, but I think we have a definite edge in experience up front.

In its last two games Maryland has been using what we call a "6-1 Monster." I won't say how we plan to run against this type of defense, but I will say that I believe they've been committing too many of their men to the run. Of course they really haven't faced a big passing team yet.

We have quite a few plays in our offense that we haven't used yet. We may use some of them against Maryland, but then again we might not have to.

There's been one change in our starting team. Vic Esposito has moved back into the first-team right tackle spot and John Hill is back on the second team.

I was very much pleased by the blocking in our last game. I think it will continue to improve as the season goes along, because with each game, we know more about the type of defense our opponents use.

Finally, a lot of people have asked me about that Edge to Jackson pass play. What happened? Well, I'd say we just calltime. With second-and-two we ed the right play at the right faked the run. They fell for it and we threw the bomb.

Maryland To Start Sullivan

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—A native North Carolina boy, Bob Sullivan of Wilmington, was named by Coach Tom Nugent yesterday for the starting quarterback slot against North Carolina here Saturday.

Sullivan, a 6-0, 180 pound sophomore, is a product of the same high school that produced ACC luminaries Sonny Jurgenson and Roman Gabriel. The Tar Heel native started off the season with the Terps as their sixth man at the swingback position. But star passer Dick Shiner's injury threw the quarterback spot wide open this week, and Sullivan moved in.

Coach Jim Hickey's UNC squad was to leave Chapel Hill today at approximately 12:30 p.m. A charter plane out of Raleigh-Durham airport will take the Carolina contingent to Washington, D. C. where they will stay at the Dupont Plaza.

The Tar Heels are scheduled to return to the Carolina campus immediately following the game.

Babe Parilli Questionable For Tonight

UPI Sports Wire

The condition of quarterback Vito Babe Parilli is the American Football League's biggest question when the Boston Patriots and Oakland Raiders kick off the sixth round of games Friday night at Boston's newly-occupied Fenway Park.

With Parilli in full or nearly full service, the Patriots won two games. But with the veteran passing star idled or held to limited service by a shoulder injury, the Pats have been beaten three times.

The night game, in which the host Patriots were four point favorites, is the first of an AFL weekend that includes three Sunday afternoon games.

New York's surprising Jets were ten-point underdogs for a game at San Diego, the Chiefs were nine-point picks while entertaining Buffalo at Kansas City, and the Houston at Denver game was rated a toss-up.

DIAL M FOR FASHION

Imitation is supposed to signify quite a compliment—yet the adoption of the smart classic look Milton pioneered 14 years ago is still quite unique and distinctive.

We overwhelm many of our lassies with our vast shirt selections—not only do they find all the basics but the newest ideas that spin men's heads are first found in Milton's with new colours and stripes. By using our superior man shirtmaker our quality standards are quite high with absolutely no sacrifice to fashion.

In classic sweaters, the mists of Scotland yield the fine Laidlaw yarns which in turn become McGeorge's superb shetlands—our perrenial secret weapon of quality—plus a galaxy of new heather tones each year that get more irresistible. Take unusual tones such as sky mist, havana brown, autumn gold, autumn rust, azure blue, gray gold. In all these mouth watering colours, we have the classic crew, V-neck and classic cardigan with matching grosgrain ribbon.

In skirts, Milton's don't especially like the soft flannels that have poor shape-retaining properties and steal the worsted flannels from the men so their Lady Milton patrons can enjoy finer fabrics and finer tailoring, at modest quotations.

It's so much more fun in our Lady Milton Shops, since there is no such thing as coordinates. We feel these can be obtained in just about every glen, and therefore can't be distinctive. Milton feels our customers are too knowledgeable for this trite approach and prefer the adventure of selecting their own ensembles and show their clever originality in designing their own costumes.

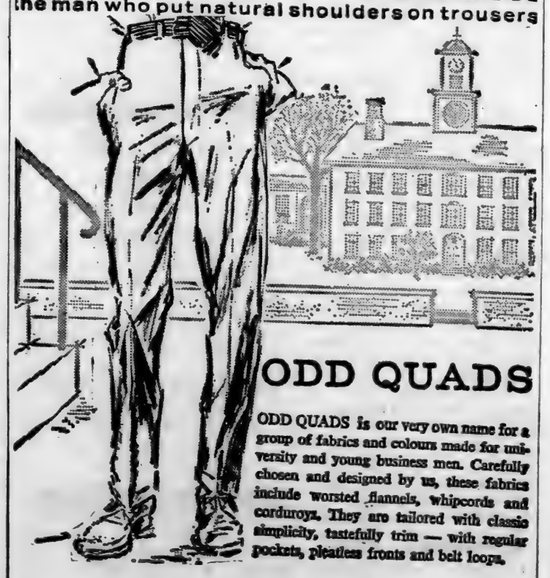
Our vast Lady Milton selections make this treat possible!

LADY MILTON SHOP AT

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

TROUSERED BY CORBIN
the man who put natural shoulders on trousers



ODD QUADS

ODD QUADS is our very own name for a group of fabrics and colours made for university and young business men. Carefully chosen and designed by us, these fabrics include worsted flannels, whipcords and corduroys. They are tailored with classic simplicity, tastefully trim — with regular pockets, pleatless fronts and belt loops.

Town & Campus

DRAMATIC NEW Creations STYLED BY Keepsake

New high-fashion styling, the finest expression of the gem-setter's art, brings forth a magic radiance from within each perfect Keepsake center diamond. Prices from $100 to $10,000.

Rings enlarged to show detail. Prices include Federal Tax.

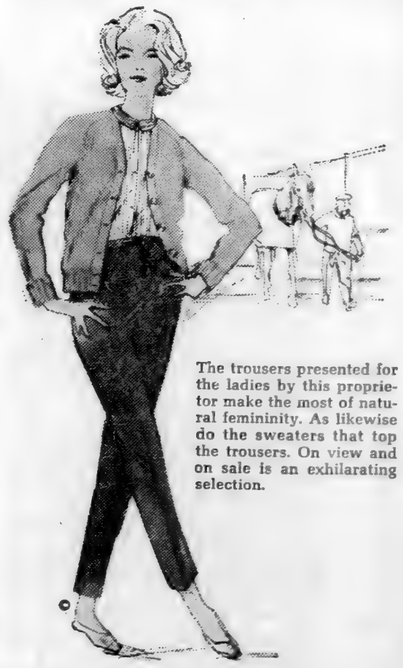
STUDENT TERMS ARRANGED

WELDON'S JEWELERS

327 W. Main Street — Durham
"The Students' Jeweler"

OPEN FRIDAY NIGHTS 'TIL 9

LADY OF THE MANOR



The trousers presented for the ladies by this proprietor make the most of natural femininity. As likewise do the sweaters that top the trousers. On view and on sale is an exhilarating selection.

Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Evening Edition
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Fair and a little warmer.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1963 | United Press International Service

Oct. 29 In Gerrard

Phipps To Speak Here On Gag Law

By BOB SAMSOT

State American Legion Commander L. J. Phipps agreed yesterday to discuss his views on the controversial Speaker Ban here with UNC students.

He will speak at Gerrard Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday, October 29, giving a brief talk on what he thinks the merits of the law are, then he will answer written questions from the floor.

L. J. PHIPPS

In accepting the Daily Tar Heel invitation, Phipps emphasized that he would not be speaking in any official capacity, but rather as an individual.

He had previously made tentative plans to accept the invitation, but had not set definite arrangements.

Phipps is one of three prominent supporters of the bill who were editorially invited by the DTH to come to the campus and express their views on it.

The other two men, State Senate President Clarance Stone and Raleigh television editorialist Jesse Helms, both turned down the invitation.

Phipps, a resident of Chapel Hill and long prominent in Orange County politics, represented Orange County in the 1963 General Assembly which passed the law.

A native of Orange County, Phipps graduated from UNC in 1922. He was Salutatorian of his class.

Graduating with a BS in Civil Engineering, he was secretary of Phi Beta Kappa and a member of the Golden Fleece. He was president of the Senior class and vice-chairman of the student body. He was one of the Yackety Yack's

(Continued on Page Three)

★ ★ ★

RTVMP Seminar

The Department of Radio-Television-Motion Pictures will hold a three-day seminar in the correct procedures for public service organizations desiring air time on radio or television.

The seminar, November 10-12 at Chapel Hill, is expected to attract 75 representatives of public service firms in the two Carolinas. Panel discussions, films and speeches will comprise the seminar, designed to produce more efficiency in the programming of public service messages. Prof. Earl Wynn is in charge.

Delegates will be greeted by Chancellor William B. Aycock and Mayor Sandy McClamroch of Chapel Hill. The seminar features such speakers as Dr. Wesley Wallace, chairman of the Department of RTVMP, Bailey Hobgood, promotion manager of WFMY-TV in Greensboro and E. L. Rankin, Jr., executive secretary of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters.

'No Thanks', Says Jesse

Jesse Helms, Raleigh television editorialist who countered the DTH invitation to speak on the Speaker Ban here with a proposal that a "responsible person for the other side" discuss or debate the bill with him in prime time over WRAL-TV, turned down an offer to debate with Major L. P. McLendon, former chairman of the Board of Higher Education.

In a letter to the Daily Tar Heel editors, Helms said he thought that Major McLendon's views on the matter would not be of interest to his viewers.

He indicated that the only person acceptable to him would be Consolidated University President William Friday.

Helms said in his letter that if McLendon still wished time to express his views, WRAL-TV would be glad to consider his request when they heard from him personally.

Bennett Heads Sunday Music

William Bennett, first-year graduate student in musicology, will conduct a program of chamber orchestra music tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. in the Graham main lounge.

James Hunt, trumpet, and Nathaniel Roof, English horn, will be soloists in the second part of the five-number program. Their selection will be "Quiet City" by Aaron Copeland, hailed by authorities of music as the most exciting of the contemporary American composers. The program will be presented by Graham Memorial.

The musicians are being sponsored through the courtesy of the Musicians' Performance Trust Fund, made available by large orchestras to promote the playing of live music.

Other selections include: "Variations on a Theme of Tchaikovsky" by Arensky, composed shortly after the death of Tchaikovsky; "Quiet City" by Copeland; "Two Elegiac Melodies" by Grieg ('Heart Wounds' and 'The Last Spring'); "Two Pieces for Strings from Henry V" by Walton (Pasacaglia: The Death of Falstaff and Air: "Touch Her Soft Lips and Part"), a contemporary; and in finale, by Britten, "Simple Symphony for Strings" containing the following movements: Boisterous Bouree, Playful Pizzicato, Sentimental Sarabband, and Frolicsome Finale.

There will be basic chamber orchestra instrumentation with six violins, two violas, three cellos, and a bass.

Hunt and Roof will add a trumpet and an English horn, respectively, in the Copeland number.

Bennett studied double bass and conducting under Dr. Earl Slocum as an undergraduate here.

In addition to his undergraduate program, Bennett is choral director at Chapel Hill High School. He also served as assistant director of the Summer Session Chorus from 1960 to 1962. He was musical director of the student Sound and Fury production, "Celestina." He has recently formed the Tri-City Motet (a musical form) choir, a chamber chorus, a-cappella-type, whose first performance is coming up here in early December.

APO FALL RUSH

Alpha Phi Omega, campus service fraternity, will conduct fall rush Monday-Wednesday night at seven o'clock in the television room of Graham Memorial. APO carries on several campus-wide service projects during the year, including running a book exchange semesters, sponsoring the Ugliest Man on Campus contest, and ushering at various University functions.

STUDENT ART SHOW

Sixteen paintings and six sculptures were selected by Joseph C. Sloane, chairman of the department of art of the University, Kenneth Ness and Robert Howard, also of the department of art, for a special UNC-Chapel Hill Student Art Show at Pembroke State College.

US, USSR Swap Spies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Friday traded two Soviet spies imprisoned in Brooklyn, N. Y., for two Americans held in Russia, one of them a priest who had been in Siberian prisons for some 20 years.

Exchanged by the United States and Russia were Ivan Egorov, a Soviet U.N. employee, and his wife, Aleksandra, for Father Walter Ciszek, a prisoner of the Soviets since the 1940's, and Marvin W. Makinen, 24, a student from Chassel, Mich., who was arrested in Kiev in the summer of 1961 and sentenced to eight years on spy charges.

The exchange was the first such agreement since the United States traded Soviet master spy Rudolf Abel for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers on Feb. 10, 1962.

Ordered Trial

The Egorovs were arrested July 2 in their New York apartment. Only two days ago U. S. District Judge Leo F. Rayfiel in Brooklyn refused to dismiss espionage charges against them and ordered them to stand trial Nov. 4.

They were released even as the exchange was being announced Friday and were taken immediately to Idlewild International Airport for the flight home.

Father Ciszek and Makinen left Moscow at 11 a.m. EDT Friday and were scheduled to arrive in New York Saturday.

Father Ciszek was born in Shenandoah, Pa., Nov. 4, 1904. His sister, Mrs. Helen Gearhart, resides in Washington, D. C. Informed of his release, she exclaimed: "I'll be darned. I'm shaking."

Makinen's father, William J. Makinen, lives in Ashburnham, Mass.

The surprise swap came just a day after disclosure that U. S. Army Sgt. Jack Edward Dunlap, 35, who killed himself in suburban Maryland last July, sold secrets to the Russians for $60,000. Dunlap worked for the top secret National Security Agency NSA at Fort Meade, Md.

Soviet Spy Ring

The Egorovs were arrested as part of what officials called the breakup of a Soviet spy ring.

At the same time they were taken into custody in New York, agents in Washington arrested a couple known as Robert K. Baltch and Joy Ann Garber Baltch, also accused of spying for the Soviets. Those were not their real names. They had appropriated those of real Americans.

The couple using the name Baltch still are in custody under spy charges. They have refused to disclose their true identities. The Soviet government never has claimed them.

SL Endorses Bill Against Gag Law

By HUGH STEVENS

Student Legislature, meeting in special session Thursday afternoon, unanimously endorsed a resolution voicing opposition to the controversial state speaker ban law.

The resolution was introduced by Phil Baddour and John Ulfelder, floor leaders of the SP and UP, for Mike Lawler, president of the student body.

The bill commends legislators who opposed passage of the speaker ban law, HB 1395, and "editors and citizens of this State who have brought to public attention the serious implications and effects" of the bill.

It also calls on the student community of North Carolina "to inform itself and to join in reasoned action to effect the removal of this statute."

The resolution "calls upon the alumni, faculty and students of the University of North Carolina to witness in these times to her beloved motto: Lux et Libertas."

Lawler's resolution was introduced to the body under a suspension of the rules. Baddour summarized briefly the history of the bill's passage, calling it unnecessary.

"We already have a law making it a misdemeanor for a person to speak who advocates the violent overthrow of the government," he said, in reference to GS 14-11, passed in 1941.

Baddour also said this law has not been violated, though all types of speakers have appeared at Chapel Hill.

In reference to the swift passage of HB 1395, he said, "the opposition was not given due consideration in the matter."

Ulfelder discussed some of the effects which the bill has had on the campus, with special reference to the barring of noted geneticist, Dr. T. S. Haldane.

He also reminded the body of the difficulty experienced by the Eastern Theoretical Physics Society in planning a meeting here.

"Part of the conference was moved to the Duke campus so that one of the society's members could present a paper," he said.

Ulfelder continued, "We fear, and rightly, that many people not affected under this bill directly may refuse to speak on the campus simply on principle. We must also consider the many people who fall under the bill as it reads, but who will not be here for political reasons."

Ulfelder cited Arthur Miller, noted playwright, as an example of the persons who fall under the latter category.

The bill's sponsors then yielded the floor to Lawler, who further discussed the resolution.

"HB 1395 was not a typical piece of legislation this year," he said. "The General Assembly was one in which the University fared well on educational and financial matters. Many important steps in the progress of the University were taken."

"I do not think that this is a bill which represents the sentiments of the General Assembly as a whole," he continued. "It was written by a few, pushed by a few, and defended by a few."

"The law represents a lack of faith in the administrators and trustees of our public institutions. For example, we can measure by the roomful the graduates of this institution who have served notably in the affairs of this state. HB 1395 is a denial of this tradition."

He said the bill seems to forget the efforts of these educators. "If we were to follow precepts like those outlined in this law," he said, "our football team would go against Maryland this week without any preparation. We would have no scouts, no films, and we would refuse to listen to anything about Maryland's team."

"This bill seems to presume that we should not hear our opponents or any dissenting element. I believe that a familiarity with diverse ideas serves to strengthen the faith of its citizens in democratic institutions."

Lawler also indicated that the bill could keep speakers away from the University who do not come under the bill. He gave Jefferson Fordham, an alumnus of the University and Dean of the Pennsylvania Law School, as an example of a person who has refused to come because of the law's presence.

"We should pass this resolution to commend those who have helped make the public aware of the implications and effects of this bill," he said.

(Continued on Page 3)

University Day

Paul Green, Pulitzer Prize winning dramatist and playwright, will be the featured speaker today at the University Day program.

Green, author of "The Lost Colony", will speak on "The Place of the University in a Nuclear Age". The ceremonies will begin at 11:15 a.m. in Hill Music Hall.

Classes will be dismissed at 11 a.m. in order that all students may have the opportunity to attend the ceremonies.

University Day celebrates the 170th birthday of UNC. On Oct. 12, 1793, the cornerstone of Old East Building, the first campus structure, was laid. Last year Robert Goheen, president of Princeton University, was the featured speaker and the year before President Kennedy spoke in Kenan Stadium.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will preside at the ceremonies, and the UNC Glee Club, directed by Prof. Joel Carter, will give its first concert of the year.

UNC faculty will gather at the Old Well at 11 a.m. for an academic procession to Hill Hall. An honorary degree will be awarded at the ceremonies, the name of the recipient to be announced at the time.

The invocation will be given by Dr. Samuel S. Hill, chairman of the department of Religion, and William C. Friday, CU President, will introduce Green.

The assemblage will sing "Hark The Sound", and the Glee Club will break the moment of commemorative silence by singing the traditional "Integer Vitae".

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Adenauer Tenders Resignation

BONN, Germany (UPI) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Friday tendered his resignation effective next Tuesday. But the 87-year-old statesman said he still is available in case he is needed.

"I won't force myself on anyone," he told an interviewer. "But I am available to help if I can be of help."

Adenauer will be succeeded by Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard.

Little Hope Apparent In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala (UPI) — A city-sponsored biracial committee held its second meeting Friday but there appeared to be little hope of an easing of racial tensions here.

Negro leaders, threatening new mass marches, have said the committee was "too little, too late."

Negroes have warned of more demonstrations if the city does not answer their demands for a speed-up of desegregation.

Arms Arsenal Uncovered

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — An army spokesman said Friday troops have uncovered "an arsenal of clandestine arms and ammunition distributed by the U. S. Alliance for Progress to Gov. Carlos Lacerda."

An Alliance spokseman, James Howe, denied the statement.

"We have never brought in anything more powerful than an ordinary police revolver," Howe said.

The charge, by Col Domingo Ventura, was another step in the government campaign against Lacerda, anti-Communist governor of Guanabara state.

Conservatives Pledge Alliance To U. S.

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) —The ruling conservative party, outwardly ignoring the bitter leadership struggle launched by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's announced resignation, Friday pledged a foreign policy based on a strong Anglo-American alliance.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home said that Britian must be firmly allied to power to maintain her influence in the world.

"In plain words, that meant and means keeping the United States on our side in a relationship or partnership," Home said.

"Without the closest alliance between the U. S. and Britain there is no balance of power and no security."

The foreign policy resolution proposed by Home was adopted by unanimous acclamation.

Correction

The visiting committee of the University Board of Trustees, headed by Hill Yarborough, will visit UNC on Friday, Oct. 18. The committee will hear a presentation by student government members, and hold interviews with individual students. Any student desiring to speak with the committee should contact Mike Lawler in the student government offices in GM to schedule an appointment.

Faculty and staff members who wish appointments should contact Charles Shaffer Sr. 302 South Building.

IRC Applicants To Be Chosen

The annual Christmas Seminar of the Association of International Relations Clubs, conducted Dec. 18-23 in San German, Puerto Rico, is open to a limited number of university students.

Dr. Juan Bosch, President of the Dominican Republic, will be the featured speaker at the seminar. The conference theme is "Caribbean Microcosm of World Struggle."

Vital topics such as "Communism vs. Democracy" and "Role of the Military" will be discussed. Speakers include Sen. Wayne R. Morse (D-Oregon) and Gov. Luis Marin of Puerto ico.

The YMCA and YWCA-sponsored seminars will take place on the campus of Inter American University.

Students interested in International elations, Human elations, and United Nations Affairs should check the appointment schedule posted at the office of the collegiate Council for the United Nations in Y Court.

Hugo Spechar, Secretary-General of the United Nations Model General Assembly, yesterday urged students to pick up application forms immediately.

Interviews will start Wednesday at 9 a.m., and a deposit of $25 must be paid by that time. Total costs for the six-day conference will be $135 leaving from New York, and $170 leaving from Chicago.

UNC Awards Incentive Fellowships

A new kind of experimental program is now available at UNC with aid of a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The grant is to encourage superior graduate students to achieve their Ph.D. degrees in a minimal period of time.

The amount of the award is $180,000 for a period of five years. This award will provide for so-called "incentive fellowships" to be awarded to UNC graduate students. The fellowships will be in the amount of $2,400 per year for three years.

A portion of each year's fellowship stipend will be conditional upon the fulfilment of certain steps, such as foreign language requirements, by a given date, after which the sum would be forfeited. Foreign langauge requirements must be completed by the end of the first year; the preliminary oral examination must be completed by the end of the second year; and completion of the dissertation will be the requirement for the third year.

The University will award 20 Carnegie "incentive fellowships" this year, five to students entering the University, and 15 to students already in residence and at various stages of their degree program. The fellowships will be awarded to students in any UNC departments offering the the Ph.D. degree.

(Continued on Page 3)

Football Horrorscope

You couldn't say Billy Cunningham "leaped" at the chance to pick some football games this week. But at least he didn't perish the thought before looking into the situation.

After surveying the list, The Kid asked the inevitable question you'd expect from a basketball player (and Cunningham DOES play basketball) — "You want the point spread, too" No, Bill, the Horrorscope doesn't want to make itself look any more foolish than it already is.

Cunningham

Now more confident, Billy worked hard at the choices and, with the help of Bill Galantai, Mike Cooke and other assorted frustrated selectors, came up with 20 answers.

Since everybody wanted to be credited with assists here, they get them on the Notre Dame and Air Force picks—which Billy alone had the guts to come up with. He's got to go with that Irish.

The Horrorscope again took a pretty fair licking last week. After the first two journeys into the ridiculous, the overall percentage was .696. Last week's farce dropped it almost 40 points to .660.

The Horrorscopes were 77-43 of the 120 chances last week — a .642 mark. Leading the ineptitude was guest selector Mrs. Douglas Fambrough, Graham Memorial's football sage. Unfortunately, her upset picks failed to materialize, and she came a cropper, 8-12.

Mat Friedman, on the strength of upset picks on Purdue over Notre Dame and Illinois over Northwestern, rammed out a 15-5 for the week to tie for the top spot. Curry Kirkpatrick, also a winner on Illinois, had the other 15-5 and now has tied for number one all three weeks.

The latter leads on the season with 42-12-1 while Friedman and John Montague are second at 37-17-1.

| GAMES | KIRKPATRICK | MONTAGUE | FRIEDMAN | KAPLAN | LOGAN | CUNNINGHAM |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Duke-Cal | Duke | Duke | Cal | Duke | Duke | Duke |
| State-USC | St | St | St | St | St | St |
| Wake-Fla. St | FSU | FSU | FSU | FSU | FSU | FSU |
| UVA-VMI | UVA | VMI | UVA | UVA | UVA | UVA |
| Ga.-Clem | Ga | Clem | Clem | Clem | Clem | Clem |
| Fla-Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama | Bama |
| Ga.Tech-Tenn | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech | Tech |
| Army-PennSt | PS | PS | PS | PS | PS | PS |
| Vill-Bos.Col | BC | BC | BC | BC | Vill | BC |
| Corn-Harv | Harv | Harv | Harv | Harv | Harv | Harv |
| Illini-OhioSt | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU | OSU |
| Ind-Iowa | Iowa | Iowa | Iowa | Iowa | Iowa | Iowa |
| MichSt-Mich | MSU | MSU | MSU | MSU | MSU | MSU |
| Minn-Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Nwest | Minn | Nwest | Nwest |
| AirF-Neb | Neb | Neb | Neb | Neb | Neb | AirF |
| So.Cal-N.Dame | USC | USC | USC | USC | USC | N.Dame |
| Pur-Wisc | Pur | Wisc | Wisc | Wisc | Wisc | Pur |
| Okla-Texas | Tex | Okla | Okla | Okla | Tex | Okla |
| Arky-Baylor | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky | Arky |
| OreSt-Wash | OreSt | Wash | Wash | Wash | OreSt | Wash |

Morath Revives Ragtime

The "folk hero of the spreading ragtime cult" will come to Graham Memorial on Oct. 24 at 8 p.m.

Max Morath will bring his one-man show, RAGTIME REVISITED, to re-create authentic songs and piano solos of the energetic turn of the century.

"The champagne fizz of sophistication with chasers of sentimentality" is Morath's brand of humor and satire strictly of the present.

Morath has appeared from the honky-tonks of Colorado's storied ghost towns, to New York's sophisticated Blue Angel and from Stanford University to N.Y.U.

For television, Morath has written and performed two series of half hour shows, The Ragtime Era and Turn of the Century.

Describing himself as "completely out of touch with his environment," Morath is careful to avoid the contemporary stereo-

(Continued on Page Three)

Vol. 72, Number 19 Saturday, October 12, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Perennial Matter Of Dirty Rush

About this time each year, the anguished cries of dirty rush go up from fraternities who have lost a pledge here and there, and this year is no different.

Well maybe a little different, since there seems to be some action in the air. The ATO's say they are going to trial Monday night for an honest mistake. They passed out pledge pins a day early and several of their boys walked into the Phi Delt house wearing pins. This would seem to indicate that the ATO's did make an honest mistake since no pledges could be that dumb.

But which fraternity had an AFROTC cadet officer pull a man out of ranks to talk to him about his fraternity?

Which ones held cocktail parties for their rushees?

Which ones took their rushees to dinner before the rush hour?

We are all aware that this goes on every year, and some houses even take a chapter vote on whether to dirty rush or not. This seems to us to be just a little cynical, however accepted a practice it is.

Generally, we disagree with the manner of rush. We feel it should be much longer and much less formal, but if the rules exist, then the fraternities should follow them. If not, the IFC should conduct a thorough investigation and treat offenders sternly.

Many Questions, But No Answers–Yet

The quiet, successive visits to the campus of two investigators from the House Committee on Un-American Activities to subpoena two UNC research aides have raised many questions, and we are among many persons on and off the campus who are anxious to learn some of the answers.

The most basic question, obviously, is what the HUAC hearing next Wednesday concerns. The best available information indicates it is about Nick Bateson's connections with the New Left and Progressive Labor Clubs, and his role in the abortive Cuban trip of last Christmas plus the "successful" one of this past summer. Gumpert's involvement seems to stem from his friendship with Bateson.

There is no patent reason for believing either man is guilty of anything and it may be that they are wanted for purely informational purposes.

We are therefore withholding judgment on the matter until the results of the hearing are in, and we recommend everyone else to do the same.

Madame Nhu And The Speaker Ban Law

Of course, if State College officials approve, the glamorous Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu should be permitted to speak on the State College campus. Her beauty and charm may attract some to a consideration of a serious aspect of American foreign involvement who might otherwise pay no attention to it. There is, of course, the danger that this sharp-tongued Oriental beauty may fascinate some young minds into un-American thinking. It is better that that chance be taken in an institution of university status than that students not be allowed to hear Madame Nhu even if, as some observers believe, she comes to America "to wage a war against the United States."

On Saturday Madame Nhu's approaching appearance here was illuminated by the flaming suicide of another Buddhist monk protesting against the dictatorship of the Diem regime which Madame Nhu represents. This type of self-sacrifice has been scorned by Madame Nhu as "barbecuing." Such incidents have not seemed so easily dismissed by American military and diplomatic officials. They feel that the Diem dictatorship in the name of anti-Communism has reduced the American hope of holding back real Communism in Southeast Asia and has threatened American effort in terms of American lives and treasure in the process.

Still the State Department has permitted the entry of Madame Nhu into the United States. It has put no restrictions upon her speaking in defense of an oppressive dictatorship which our observers fear may build such resistance against oppression of the majority of the people in Viet Nam as may serve Communist propaganda and power there.

The glamorous lady comes. And, although American officials have feared that the tyranny of her family may make more difficult the U. S. effort to contain and control Communism in Asia, under North Carolina law she has every right to speak on a North Carolina college campus. State students and other citizens should have the right to hear her. No one need fear that even such a siren will seduce the minds of students who need to know more about the complex world in which they live.

She will come. She will be a show. She will also be an ironic as well as decorative commentary on the law built in the fear that North Carolina colleges cannot be trusted to allow their students to hear doctrines which seem to threaten American hopes and ideas of freedom in the world.

—Raleigh News & Observer

Thanks, Mr. Phipps

More often than not we have found ourselves in basic disagreement with Judge L. J. Phipps in matters of political philosophy, but this does not mean that we are not willing to listen to, or think about his views. He has served Orange County in the State Legislature and is now State Commander of the American Legion, a rather potent force in North Carolina politics.

Judge Phipps has taken a stand on the speaker ban law, which is unpopular on this campus, and by agreeing to come here and defend his views and then answer written questions from the floor, he has demonstrated a strength of conviction that Mr. Helms and Senator Stone seem to lack.

We think the meeting will be most beneficial, and extend our thanks to Judge Phipps for accepting our invitation.

Demonstration For Peace

More Letters

Otelia Again And Again . . .

Who Am I?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

The students ask, "who is Otelia?" And that is a good question. It has been asked before, but never in such a swelling chorus. To individuals, I have replied that I was an Ambassador without Portfolio. They don't know what that means, and I don't either, so that doesn't help much. I have been called the gadfly of Chapel Hill. A gadfly is a fly that stings. Be that as it may, one thing is certain, something needed to be done about the manners here, and I have tried to do it. It has been gratifying to know that most of the students appreciate my efforts, for I hold no official position, and recieve no pay for my time-consuming job. I do it because I love the University and the students, and I want them to go out as worthy ambassadors of the University of North Carolina.

When students ask me what is my authority on manners, I tell them my Mother. While the "Long cord of training from mother to daughter, to granddaughter, from Eve to just yesterday has been cut" in most other respects, I want to do my best to see that the manners cord will be handed on from one generation to another.

Manners and morals are inescapably related, for people who are not thoughtful and considerate of others will take advantage of people in a business deal, thinking only of themselves and what they can get out of the transaction.

The Romans, and other great nations of history, degenerated morally and physically long before the barbarians moved in and took over.

The home, for many reasons, which we will not go into at this time, is no longer monitor of manners, so therefore it is imperative that the schools and other media, take over and do the job.

Otelia Connor

Get Lost, Otelia!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Otelia finally answered some complaints about herself and pulled a 'G'water' in doing it (didn't say a thing!). She seems to think that this is England we live in as she cites that all her manner mistakes are perfect English cutoms—maybe some of the things we do are done in other tribes too. Or maybe some of us unmannerly gents do things "because I like it that way" soup spoon in coffee way too. Otelia, why don't you take some long given advice and get lost—or better yet—have you heard of that ole English establishment in Raleigh—Dix Hill?

J. Sidney Murphey
724 Rocky Ridge Road

A Poem

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Hail to our leader,
Otelia is her name.
We really aren't too sure of this,
But we think she is sane.
We folow her to school each day
And seee her wil is done;
We open doors and stuff like that—
Good Gosh, do we have fun!
We always cut our meats al up
Before we start to eat,
And every time a girl comes near
We jump to our feet.
But dunking donuts is the thing
That we enjoy the most,
And when the donuts are used up,
We start on our toast.
And early every Sunday morn
We all to church process,
And there the sins of students all
To God we do confess.
And every time we go in there
We've seen before we've sat,
There're always some poor sinner girls
Who've come without a hat.
But fight we will and fight we must
'Til all is fine and swell,
And those who hate the presence of
Otelia go to Hell!

Jon Arterton
108 Graham

Scalp Disease?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Although I do not wish to cause widespread panic, I think it is worthy to mention that there seems to be some sort of infectious scalp disease traveling among the female Carolina student body.

Yesterday in the Pine Room I counted thirty coeds with their fingers in their hair, busily twirling, scratching, and picking, apparently attempting to dislodge some foreign invader. A typical victim removes her hand from its normal position (in the hair) only long enough to take a bite from her sandwich. Its frequency seems to be a function of personality and social situation.

For example, Pine Room type coeds are attacked by it more often than Lenoir Hall coeds, and the presence of male students usually causes a sudden increase in what sociologists may someday refer to as the "picking rate".

While these sociologists may diagnose the affliction as some kind of group-learned mannerism denoting nonchalance, I am skeptical and would like to offer two constructive suggestions: 1) fly Charles Antell to the campus immediately for consultation, or 2) lock the entire female student body in the Pine Room, fumigate the place, and thus wipe out this creeping menace.

Jim Sudmier

Pearson On Ol' Strom

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — All summer long no one has denounced me on the Senate floor and I was beginning to think I was slipping. This week, however, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina came to the rescue of my ego by delivering a reasonably strong anti-Pearson diatribe.

It was not, however, a work of art. It lacked the short, pithy phrases of Harry Truman, or the flowery oratory of the late Sen. Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee who filled six pages of the Congressional Record with eloquent descriptions of yours truly. Their work was art.

Nor did the senator from South Carolina let his imagination get into full swing as did Izvestia, which called me an "unwavering adherent of the maniacal plans for the establishment of world domination by American monopolies"; or Pravada, which called me the "sabotager of the cause of peace."

These are adjectives that will make headlines. Senator Thurmond's speech didn't make one headline; so I think it's only fair for me to help him out by giving him a little publicity.

Furthermore, he did me a favor by printing in the Congressional Record all my columns on the Khrushchev interviews. I have been getting letters from readers wanting copies of these interviews, which would have cost me a lot of money. Now I can refer them to Senator Thurmond, who has put them in the Record where they are printed free. And doubtless, since he has free mailing privileges and wants circulation of these columns, he would be glad to mail them to anyone interested.

I hope he will save me that expense and trouble.

The burden of Senator Thurmond's criticism, for those who don't want to write him, was that my reporting that Russia and the Communist countries had increased their standard of living and were making progress, I was following the Khrushchev line.

In this connection I suggest that the senator from South Carolina read last week's issue of Life Magazine which sets forth, with photos and in great detail, the tremendous progress of the Communist world.

The Appeasers

Martin Gilbert and Richard Gott, The Appeasers. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1963. Pp. 378.

By MIKE ALEXANDER

Only twenty-five years ago last month, the Munich Agreement for the partition of Czechoslovakia was signed by Britain, France, Germany, and Italy. Denounced by Winston Churchil as a "total and unmitigated defeat" for the Western democracies, the Agreement was an outgrowth of the Anglo-French policy of appeasing the aggressive demands of Hitler and Mussolini. Many historians have shown that Munich did not lessen the likelihood of a second World War but in the long run increased the chances of a general European conflagration. By supporting Germany's unreasonable demands for Czech territory, the Chamberlain and Daladier governments convinced Hitler that Britain and France were unwilling to oppose further German expansion in Eastern Europe. This led Hitler to plan the invasion of Poland, which furnished the immediate cause of the Second World War.

Apologists for the policy of appeasement generally claim that Britain and France were desperately attempting to avoid war until they had narrowed the armament gap between Germany and the Western powers. British and French leaders felt that war with Nazi Germany was inevitable but were wiling to meet Hitler's demands in order to gain time for rearmament.

The Appeasers, a new study of British foreign policy during the late 1930's, flatly denies this thesis. The authors, Martin Gilbert and Richrad Gott, contend that Neville Chamberlain, who served as Prime Minister from 1937 to 1940, never seriously considered the possibility of a war between Britain and France, on the one hand, and Germany, on the other. Moreover, Chamberlain consciously sought friendship with Nazi Germany and never thought of appeasement as a temporary policy arising out of necessity. Gilbert and Gott maintain that "the military thinking of Chamberlain's Government directly contradicted the theory that appeasement was a policy put forward to gain time for rearmament."

As proof of this charge, they show that even after the Munich crisis, Chamberlain's government did not launch a comprehensive rearmament program. The Prime Minister did not order the construction of long-range bombers for a possible future attack on Germany but merely speeded up the work on Britain's anti-aircraft defenses.

Gilbert and Gott believe that appeasement was a tragic, and almost fatal, mistake. Hitler could have been stopped without a general European war until signing of the Munich Agreement. During the Czech crisis, civilian elements in Germany secretly urged Britain to stand firm and oppose Hitler's demands. If Chamberlain had done so, the Nazi dictator might very possibly have been overthrown and the world would have been spared the horrors of the Second World War. But Chamberlain mistakenly believed that the best hope of averting war lay in meeting Hitler's demands. He therefore helped negotiate the Munich Agreement, which aided Hitler in overcoming all opposition to his policy in Germany and encouraged him to set out on the road to Poland.

Chamberlain played virtually the same role during the Poland crisis of 1939. He again sought to meet Hitler's demands, again at the expense of another country. Instead of warning Hitler to stop encouraging frontier incidents, Chamberlain throughout the crisis exerted pressure on Poland not to take any provocative action against Germany. Gilbert and Gott wryly note that Munich had taught Chamberlain "that it was eaiser to make the weak man submit than to put pressure on the strong." Hitler soon realized that Chamberlain had no intention of honoring Britain's promises to defend Poland and that he favored a negotiated settlement on the basis of the German demands. As a result, Hitler ordered the invasion of Poland, unaware that he was thereby unleashing the Second World War.

Most historians contend that Chamberlain had been seriously disillusioned by the German occupation of Prague in March, 1939, in violation of the Munich Agreement. The Prime Minister had lost his faith in Hitler's word and had concluded that German expansion could no longer go unchecked. Gilbert and Gott, however, deny this thesis. They maintain that Chamberlain continued to support appeasement until his fall from power in the spring of 1940. The Prime Minister never took Britain's promises to Poland seriously and never expected to be called upon to fulfill them.

By the terms of the Anglo-Polish alliance of August 25, 1939, Britain promised to go immediately to Poland's aid in the event of a German attack. But when the German army began to cross the Polish frontiers less than a week later, Chamberlain procrastinated and sought to arrange a negotiated settlement. Chamberlain did not even send an ultimatum demanding the withdrawal of the German troops; instead he merely sent a warning which, incidentally, did not include a time limit for Germany's evacuation of Polish territory. Gilbert and Gott make it painfuly clear that Britain finally declared war on Germany not because Chamberlain had lost faith in appeasement but because he realized his government would fall if he opposed a course demanded by public opinion.

The Appeasers is an engrossing if somewhat disturbing book. It points out the great danger in democratic systems of government: that incompetent and dishonorable men can obtain and retain power, even in times of crises. Moreover, it shows that a simple longing for peace is not enough, that a willingness to avoid difficulties regardless of the cost usually leads to far greater problems in the future. It also suggests that those who are willing to compromise everything may in the long run lose everything.

Gilbert and Gott have presented a very worthwhile account of Britain's foreign policy during the years preceding the Second World War. But it is by no means a completely satisfying account, even though it is carefully documented and extremely well written. The authors contend that Chamberlain's adoption of appeasement stemmed from two basic factors: first, the guilt and shame which Britain felt as a result of the severity of the Treaty of Versailles of 1919; and second, the hatred and fear of communism which made an alliance with Nazi Germany seem desirable and even necessary if the Russian menace was to be contained. Although the authors treat the first factor very carefully, they give only superficial consideration to the second. Moreover, while the authors trace the development of the Czech and Polish crises in great detail, they say nothing at all about Britain's reaction to Germany's absorption of Austria in 1938.

Unfortunately, The Appeasers leaves the reader with several questions that he cannot answer. For example, if Chamberlain did not experience a change of heart after Germany's occupation of Prague, and if he never intended to honor Britain's promises to Poland, why then did he make these promises at all? Gilbert and Gott evidently had an axe to grind and set out to portray Chamberlain and his associates in the worst possible light. Although they have exaggerated Chamberlain's failings, there is still a great deal of truth in what they have to say.

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

Quotes In The News

United Press International

So Van Ly, South Viet Nam ambassador to the United States, commenting on the visit of Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu to the United States:

"She cannot talk for the government. As long as I am chief of mission of the Vietnamese government in the United States, I shall speak for the government and only me."

* * *

President Kennedy, signing the limited nuclear test ban treaty:

"If this treaty fails, it will not be our doing, and even if it fails, we shall not regret that we have made this clear and honorable commitment to the cause of man's survival."

* * *

South Viet Nam—President Ngo Dinh Diem, stating he believes the buddhist movement against his government has been settled:

"At this very moment, it is with regret that we see some countries, intoxicated by false information on the situation in Viet Nam and on the Buddhist question in particular, request and obtain the inclusion in the U. N. agenda of a problem already settled."

* * *

Prof. Leonid Sedov, leading Soviet space scientist:

"It cannot be forecast yet when expeditions to the moon or other celestial bodies will be possible. The same is true for flights to Mars or other planets."

— Awards —

(Continued from Page 1)

The new program will be administered by a committee of the UNC Graduate School of which Graduate School Dean Hugh Holman is the chairman.

"The Graduate School regards this grant from the Carnegie Corporation as not only an opportunity to help some of the best graduate students to complete their doctoral program but also as a serious and important experiment in the use of awards as incentives in graduate study," said Dean Holman.

Carolina

NOW PLAYING

JOY IN THE MORNING

By CHAPEL HILL'S OWN

Betty Smith

Impress the folks back home with an autographed copy of this national best seller.
There's one for you at the Intimate, and gift wrapping is yours at no extra charge...

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Jim Hickey Show
at 12:30
UNC & MARYLAND
at 1:35
WCHL—1360

— Morath —

(Continued from Page 1)

type of ragtime. His performance will come as a surprise to those who know the classic rags mainly through piano-rolls.

"Ragtime is the link between folk music and traditional jazz," he says concerning the interest in colleges in the classic rags.

Morath uses sentimental songs in the context of illustrated colored slides typical of the era's entertainment. They have been chosen from a collection of 30,000 slides and are a particularly fascinating part of his performance.

Obviously genuinely fond of the era, Morath dresses with eye-catching flamboyance- a pearl-gray derby, red ascot tie flowing out of a wing collar, and a light blue suit lined with a faint pin stripe.

Morath has no personal memories of the period (he was born in 1926), but first heard piano rags played by his mother. Now, he sings songs with honest enthusiasm, without poking fun at them. He has no need to gild the humor of amusing songs, which still stand on their own merits.

Subjects of the popular songs include the telephone, booze, and theoretically "dirty" songs in a time when people "thought a four letter word was a three-letter word in the plural."

Ragtime began as a definite style in the early 1890's, and the first rag was published in 1897. It rocketed to popularity in America and then in Europe where every professional entertainer tried to master its tricky but exhilarating syncopations.

The controversy that raged over ragtime reflected the collapsing social barriers of the era. The dances that it spawned—the Turkey Trot and Grizzly Bear—had couples actually hugging each other right out in plain sight.

The rash of upright pianos, paper player rolls, dancing shoes and gramophones brought ragtime to stay. It went on to become the bedrock of popular song and rhythmic backbone of jazz.

Spirited observers exclaimed: "It creates renewed excitement in the hall whenever played."

"Ragtime is music of action, motion, commotion, and several other kinds of exhilaration."

"Furious as a catfight! It will add materially to the gaiety of nations."

BASKETBALL

Coach Ken Rosemond requests that all interested candidates for the freshman basketball team report to him DRESSED FOR PRACTICE on the gym floor Tuesday night (Oct. 15) at 7:15.

All those interested in trying out for the varsity squad should report to Coach Dean Smith before Tuesday (Oct. 15). Varsity practice will begin on that day at 5:00 p.m.

UNC Infirmary Ready For Almost Anything

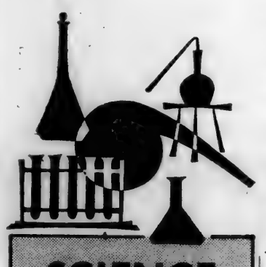
By MAT FRIEDMAN

To many people, "infirmary" is a word associated with those childhood days at summer camp when you were in bed with measles and the other kids were out having a great time.

To those who have been patients in UNC's infirmary at the Student Health Center, it is a word which commands a great deal of respect.

Dr. Edward McGowan Hedgpeth, head of the Center, has been the overseer of student health at the University for almost 30 years.



"We have the staff and facilities to handle just about any student illness you can name," says Dr. Hedgpeth. "When you are taking care of everyone from freshmen to graduate students there is quite an age span and quite a variety of ailments. I'd say we come into contact with just about everything except obstetrics."

Epidemics, a constant danger wherever there are large groups of students, have never caught the infirmary off guard. In 1957, when influenza had the entire campus under its grip, they set up facilities in the dormitories to take care of students when all beds at the Center were full. Special teams of doctors were formed to visit the sick students each day and arrangements were made to carry three meals a day to the dorms.

"Naturally," says Dr. Hedgpeth, "we don't carry facilities for an epidemic of 10,000. But we have a plan that can be put into effect on very short notice to handle most anything which may arise."

Dr. Hedgpeth says that respiratory ailments, prevalent during the winter months, are the most common on a campus and keep many students out of class every year. He explains, however, that those looking for an excuse to take a little vacation will not find it at the Health Center.

"We don't have the sort of system where a student can feign illness," he says. "We believe it is part of our job here to help them develop a sense of responsibility to meet their obligations. We try to keep them in class every minute we can.

"Our basic philosophy is that we are since we are dealing with students, our primary responsibility is to the parents, and we try to contact them whenever it is possible. When it isn't, we do as near as possible to what the parents would want. It is a great responsibility, but as long as I have been here, there have never been any problems regarding the decisions we have made."

Dr. Hedgepeth explains that the bulk of medical treatment is paid for by student fees. Only meals, which they would have to buy anyway, special drugs and special consultations bring about an expense to the students.

Aside from Dr. Hedgpeth, there are five regular physicians on the infirmary staff. There is also a daily visit from a surgeon for any minor operations which may be necessary, and a specialist in athletic injuries. In addition, arrangements are made with the Department of Psychiatry for students with "nervous problems."

In past years, says Dr. Hedgpeth, people from all over the country have visited the UNC Student Health Center to study its organization, methods, objectives and basic philosophy. There is a constant exchange of ideas taking place among the various centers through the National Student Health Association.

"Over the years," says Dr. Hedgpeth, "it has been a very satisfying experience to deal with young people. I think it is important that they see what good medical care is like. I think it is a fine experience and has great educational value."

— Phipps —

(Continued from Page 1)

business managers in his senior year.

He attended Law School here for a year and a half and passed the State Bar Examination in 1924. He has practiced law in Chapel Hill since that time.

He has served as Judge of the Chapel Hill Recorder's Court and as Judge of the Orange County Recorder's Court, from which he resigned in 1963 to accept appointment as a member of the House of Representatives for the 1963 session.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

University Day Program — 11 a.m. Hill Hall. Speaker Paul Green, Pulitzer Prize winning playwright.

Medical Science Lecture Series on the Kidney — 11 a.m., Clinic Auditorium, School of Medicine. Dr. Robert W. Berliner will speak on "Mechanisms of Urine Acidification."

Baptist Student Union — 2 p.m. meet at BSU Center. Transportation will be provided to Umstead Park for discussion and recreation and picnic dinner.

MOVIES

Carolina — Wives and Lovers.
Varsity—Marilyn
Graham Memorial Free Flick— Singer Not the Song, 6:30 and 9 p.m.

LOST

Brown leather wallet containing I.D. cards, etc., return to Charles W. Vaughn, 433 Ehringhaus. Reward offered.

Secretary containing cards 7 inches by 4 inches, return to Donald P. Walters, 224 Joyner or Tar Heel office. Reward offered.

Black wallet, contact Charles A. Becker, 304 Ruffin.

Black leather billfold, contact George Willets, 304 Graham.

Man's gold wrist watch, contact Neil Beach 968-0165, reward offered.

FUTURE

Symposium Interviews — 2-5:30 & 7-9 p.m., Tues.-Thurs., 2nd floor Y-Bldg., applications in GM or Y-Bldg. Committees include finance, publicity, related discussions, intercollegiate seminar, secretariat, social and hospitality, and physical arrangements.

Cosmopolitan Club — 4 p.m., Sun., Roland Parker Lounge.

Westminister Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., program, Sun., panel of student leaders: Mike Lawler, Virginia Carnes, Kellis Parker, Hugo Spechar, and Vance Barron, Jr., discusisng "Why We're Here," Presbyterian Student Center.

Lutheran Student Association — 6 p.m., Sun., Lutheran Church, speaker Rev. Clayton Sugg, "I'm More Right Than You."

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Chapel of the Cross Parish House. Address by Tom Davis, doctoral candidate at Duke, on "An Existential Interpretation of Sin."

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m., Sun., Common Meeting at University Methodist Church.

Petite Musicale — 8 p.m., Sun., GM Lounge. Concert of Chamber Music.

Meetings with Mr. John Knowles, writer-in-residence — 10:-12:30 a.m., Mon. and Wed.; 2-5 Tues., 312 Bingham.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

State Affairs Committee — 4 p. m, Mon., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Order of the Old Bean Birds— 7:30 p.m. Mon., The Goody Shop.

YMCA Freshman Supper Program speech by Rev. Charles Jones of the Community Church on Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. The speech and discussion period will be followed by a meeting of the members. B.Y.O.T.

SP Legislative vacancies in Cobb (2) and Town Men's IV (2) filled by election at SP meeting—7 p.m., Tues., for extra information contact Phil Baddour, 303 Everett, or Neal Jackson, 7 Old West.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, October 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in GM basement.

Carolina Playmakers Tryouts — 4 & 7:30 p.m., Mon., 111 Murphey Hall, Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night." Parts for three men and two women.

-SL-

(Continued from Page 1)

Lawler said the bill is said to be directed primarily against Chapel Hill, but we should "call upon our students all over the state to inform themselves and to take action for removal of HB 1395 by appropriate means."

There was little opposition to the bill.

Neal Jackson, SP legislator, said, "We should concern ourselves with this resolution. It has serious implications as to our image within the state. It demands our full and unanimous support in order for us to present a unanimity of opinion."

Lanny Shuff said that he had "talked to some who are in favor of HB 1395" and questioned the right of the legislature to pass such a resolution without the backing of the complete student body.

Ulfelder said in rebuttal that "This bill shows disbelief in our democratic ideals itself. It represents the tactics of a country run by a small group of people. I have discussed this matter widely, and I feel that there is general opposition to this bill on our campus."

The resolution then moved to a vote, where it was given unanimous approval.

In its introductory clauses, the resolution states that "The Hasty and unresoned enactment of HB 1395 . . . departs from the highest tradition of our State for tempered judgments, sound learning, and pure manners . . ."

HB 1395, it says, "represents an explicit and unfounded lack of faith in our dutiful administrators . . . and abrogates the well-established statutory and historical pattern of (the administrators) to exercise their rightful authority of the internal affairs of these institutions . . ."

Also stated is the belief that "complete discussion and free acquaintance with diverse ideas in a free society, even those which challenge the very fabric of democratic institutions, strengthen the faith of our people in our American System."

Both floor leaders and Lawler expressed pleasure in the passage of the resolution, calling it an important step in student action against the bill.

Neal Jackson, SP chairman, said he thought it was "good to see the legislature take some action in this controversial matter."

In other action, Speaker Bob Spearman announced the appointment of a student-faculty committee to consider the appointment of both a temporary and a permanent executive secretary for Student Government.

Spearman also announced the appointment of Paul Dickson to a vacant seat on the Men's Council.

Legislators absent Thursday were Paul Chused, Jeff Davis, Danny Edwards, John Getsinger, Mel King, Rack Kramer, Charles Legler, Bill Pitts, Gayle Ragland, David Rose, and Gordon Shapiro.

Varsity

NOW SHOWING

Lost and Found

LOST — BLACK WALLET IN Woollen Gym. Reward. Contact Joe Miller, 222 Winston.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1957 PORCHE COUPE, 1600, Normal recent valve job and transmission overhaul, $1295. 929-1462.

1958 FIAT 600, NEW BRAKES, only 200 miles on major overhaul, $445. Guaranteed. 929-1462.

1959-MGA, GOOD CONDITION, new tires, $950 or make offer, Bill Bynum—319 Connor.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

PART - TIME, DURHAM-CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, near and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excelent advancelment, four positions. WEAI, Wear-Ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Female parent
4. Food fish
7. W. Ind. fish
8. Sashes: Jap.
10. Armadillo
11. Not won
12. Likely
14. Exclamation
16. Ever: poet.
17. Sheltered side
18. Polynesian herb
19. Hindu meal
21. Burns, as with water
23. South American river
25. Beverage
26. Horizontal piece over doorway
29. Remain
32. Unit of work
33. —— (King) Cole
35. Dressed pelt
36. Brazilian palm
37. Six-sided plane figures
39. Get out!
41. Portion
42. Feathers of o-o
43. Shade trees
44. S. American Indian group
45. Property: L.

DOWN
1. Sending out, as from the country
2. Native of Arabia
3. Right and proper
4. Accumulate
5. Hautboy
5. Underworld god
7. Proof-reader's mark
9. Decorous
12. Size of coal
13. God of pleasure: Egypt
15. Owns
18. Raised stages
20. Perform
22. Roman money
24. Like bronze, in color
26. Permit
27. People of Ireland
28. Not strict
30. Certain relatives
31. Periods of time: abbr.
34. Candle
37. Cavity
38. Strong wind
40. Embrace

Yesterday's Answer

PEANUTS

Greet the shirt with an Oxford education by ARROW

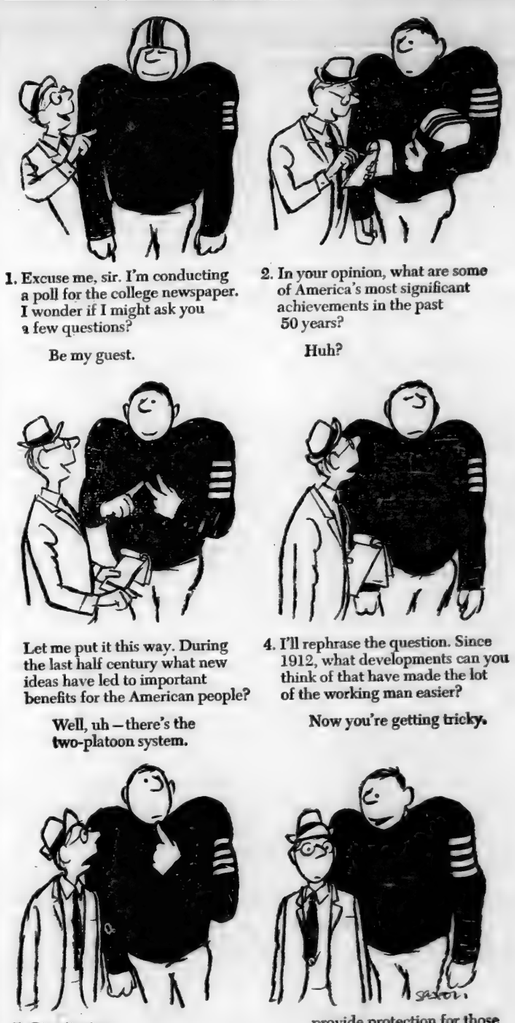
Any scholar will appreciate this new Decton oxford shirt...the latest graduate to the world of wash-and-wear by ARROW. A blend of 65% Dacron* polyester and 35% cotton...it outlasts all cotton shirts. From that famous button-down collar to the back button and back pleat, it's University Fashion at its best. Tapered to trim you down, "Sanforized-Plus" labeled to ensure a lasting fit, Decton oxford comes in white, colors and British stripes. Short sleeves as illustrated only $5.95

*DuPont T.M. for its polyester fiber

NEW! PRO-ELECTRIC ROLL-ON
FIRST! BEFORE-SHAVE LOTION THAT ROLLS-ON

No dripping, no spilling! Covers completely! Old Spice Pro-Electric protects sensitive skin areas from razor pull, burn. Sets up your beard for the cleanest, closest, most comfortable shave ever! 1.00

SHULTON



For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N.Y. ©1963

Talbott Paces Win Over Wake, 23-0

By BILL LEE

Quarterback Danny Talbott was the whole story yesterday as the Carolina freshman football team swamped the Wake Forest frosh 23-0.

Tlbott, a high school Al-Amerlican, passed for two touchdowns and kicked two extra points and a field goal. Coach George Barclay stated that "Talbott really did a great job."

In leading the Tar Baby victory, Talbott completed 6 of 9 passes for 72 yards. He also topped both teams in rushing with 101 yards in 7 carries, an average of almost 15 yards per carry.

Carolina scored on its first drive. Bud Phillips returned Wake's kick-off to his own 28, and twelve plays later, Leon Fonvielle carried over for the score on a two-yard plunge.

The drive was highlighted by a 15 yard pass from Talbott to Bob Powell and a 19 yard run by Talbott, who converted to make it 7-0 Carolina.

A quick pass from Talbott to Powell covering 29 yards on the first play of the second quarter accounted for UNC's second touchdown. The play was set up by Tom Lampman's return of a short Wake Forest punt. Talbott converted to make it a 14-0 score.

With Wake Forest deep in their own territory, Joe Fratangelo blasted through to block a Deaclet punt. The ball was picked up by Dave Erimias and carried to the eight yard line.

On the first play from scrimmage, Talbott threw to Fonvielle for the score to put Wake behind 20-0. The try for extra point was blocked. Midway of the third quarter, Talbott kicked a 12-yard field goal to make the score 23-0. This ended the scoring for the day.

Fullback Spencer Barrow and halfback Tom Lampman also supplied good running power. Each carried eight times, Barrow picking up 45 yards and Lampman 52. Jeff Beaver added more passing power by hitting eight of nineteen for 76 yards.

In the third quarter, when one of Talbott's passes was picked off by a Wake defender, the quarterback came off the field holding his wrist. He later said, "I think I just pulled a couple of ligaments in my wrist. The guy hit me and I tried to catch myself."

Wake Forest offered only one serious scoring threat. Kenny Hauswald completed a 42 yard pass to Tim Spina to the Carolina five. They never made it, as a rough defense, led by guards Fratangelo and Erimias, held them inches short of the goal line.

Late in the second quarter, history was reversed as Erimias blocked a Deacon punt and Fratangelo recovered on the 32 to set up a scoring threat. It was never realized as a pass interception stopped them.

A great example of teamwork was displayed in the third quarter when Glen Ragatz of Wake Forest attempted to run back Ronnie Faircloth's kick-off and was tackled and smothered by all of the Tar Heels on the playing field.

STATISTICS

| | UNC | WF |
|---|---|---|
| First Downs | 16 | 6 |
| Yds. Rushing | 228 | 40 |
| Yds. Passing | 148 | 62 |
| Completions | 14-28 | 3-14 |
| Totals | 376 | 102 |

Maryland's Nugent

Maryland Coach Tom Nugent, inventor of the "I" formation the monster Tar Heel defensive specialists will have to contend with at College Park today. Nugent's offenses have caused the Tar Heels much trouble in the past.

UNC-Md. — On-The-Spot

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

WASHINGTON, D. C. — You wonder how a team that has lost its first three games by a total of 48 points can afford to send out an unproven, non-scholarship sophomore as its starting quarterback in the fourth game. But that's just what Maryland plans to do against North Carolina in College Park's Byrd Stadium.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to look on as Bob Sullivan, a Wilmington, N. C. product, directs Maryland's explosive "I" formation against the Tar Heels. Dick Shiner, erstwhile passing star, is said to be improving from the hip injury suffered in the Duke game, but the Washington papers reported yesterday he would only see spot duty.

How much Shiner plays will probably depend on his condition at game time and the situation as the game progresses.

On the UNC ledger, hope runs high that the Tar Heels can continue their effective offensive yardage game that started at Wake Forest last week.

It is expected that Carolina will count heavily on its "big back" combination of Ken Willard and Eddie Kesler much of the afternoon. The two helped account for 269 yards on the ground in the 21-0 win over the Deacons.

If this plan gets stalled, Coach Jim Hickey has quarterbacks Junior Edge and Gary Black to choose from for passing duties. Edge was 11 for 15 against the Terps last year. Ronnie Jackson, the swift wingback, and ends Bob Lacey and Joe Robinson are other Tar Heel offensive standouts.

Coach Tom Nugent, the exciting offensive strategist of the Maryland camp, always comes up with some surprises. His naming of the soph, Sullivan, to a starting position, probably was only the first.

The last time UNC faced a sophomore quarterback, the Tar Heels got beat, 31-0.

In the "I" backfield with Sullivan will be Bob Burton at upback, Ernie Arizzi at swingback and Len Chiaverini at tailback. Reserve Jerry Fishman should also see a lot of action.

Darryl Hill, the celebrated kickoff return man and pass catcher, will be at right end, actually the wingback spot in the "I". Hill is the first Negro ever to play varsity football in the ACC.

PROBABLE STARTERS

| UNC | | MD. |
|---|---|---|
| Lacey | LE | Martin |
| Sigmon | LT | Drozdov |
| Cabe | LG | Ferrante |
| Hanburger | C | Feher |
| Zarro | RG | Melcher |
| Esposito | RT | Bagranoff |
| Robinson | RE | Hill |
| Edge | QB | Sullivan |
| Willard | LHB | Burton |
| Jackson | RHB | Arizzi |
| Kesler | FB | Chiaverini |

by

Laszlo Birinyi

During the past week, many Americans have assumed a new look. It is a happy-cheerful look-one which they have not been able to present in the past. These people are Yankee fans.

It's not easy to be a Yankee fan. People criticize you, and hate you with a vehemence usually reserved for poor-box thieves, grandmother haters, and communists.

Furthermore, it's not socially accepted to root for the Yanks (but the Mets, well that's something else.) Yankee-haters argue that rooting for the Bronx Bombers is like cheering for General Motors or IBM.

And those persons who have the courage to admit their Yankee partisianship are accused of being un-American, pro-big business, and anti-grandmother.

Betting on the Yanks is equally bad. Tell someone that you put some money on them and they'll classify you with the same people who bet on the lions when they fought the Christians or those who put their money on the locomotive in the epic saga of John Henry.

But today, thanks to Sandy Koufax, Joe Pepitone, and the "swift set," this is all changed.

It's not that the Yanks lost the series, I can remember three times in my baseball-following career when they've done that, it's the way they lost it.

In their other series losses, the American League champs were always close and never really were they really trounced. Take, for example, the series with Pittsburgh where the Yanks outscored, outhit, outslugged, and outplayed the Pirates, but lost.

Of course, the legions of Yankee haters were tickled, but somehow even they weren't too sure of the Yankee defeat.

But not so this year. The defending World Champions were humiliated. Of course, some real die-hard Yanks will argue that the Dodgers got all the breaks, but this isn't the case. Take the second game for example, when Roger Maris got hurt; that was the best break the Yanks had during the entire series. The benevolent right fielder had allowed several Dodger runs as a result of some atrocious fielding and was by no means hurting the Los Angeles natives with his bat.

So now, the Yanks have proved that they are vincible and their players are mortals after all. And Yankee partisans can admit their partisianship without the usual fear of reprisals or sneers. Indeed, many of the Yankee fans are receiving pity and condolences usually reserved only for Met and Phillies fans.

Thus, Yankee fans, admit your partisianship because in a couple of months the Bronx Bombers will make another shambles of the pennant "race" and you will again be hated, despised, and persecuted.

Alexander Whips Craige By 21-0

By AL KAPLAN

Felda Hightower scored two touchdowns and two conversions to pace the Alexander Poobahs offense to a 21-0 win over the Craige Crusaders.

End Jerry Davis caught two touchdown passes to lead the Emerson Cardplayers to a 35-0 whomping over the Winston Terps Thursday. The Cardplayer defense has allowed no points in its first two victories.

In other games, the Old West Packers rolled to their second win, 23-0, over the Steelers of Craige. Jim Blake of the Packers scored a TD, conversion and safety for a total of nine points.

Bud Blount scored two touchdowns and Tim Carr tallied once as the Aycock Ardvarks trounced the Joyner Jokes 20-0 Wednesday.

In the grad league, Med School clobbered the Geology Grads, the Mets of the league, 45-0. Dan Calhoun scored two touchdowns and PATs to set the pace for Med School.

* * *

The entry deadline for Fraternity White Football is Monday, October 14, at 2:00.

The first round of the Squash Racquets tourney is scheduled for October 14-22. 31 participants, from all affiliations have signed up for the competition, which is not one of the point activities.

The Intramurals Track and Field Meet will be held Wednesday and Thursday, October 16 and 17. The latest filing date for entries is Tuesday, October 14. Events in the competition will include the 60- and 100-yard dashes, the half mile run, the half mile relay, the 440 relay, the Discus throw, Shot put, High Jump and Broad Jump. Last year's champs included the Peacocks, NROTC and Beta in the grad, dorm and frat leagues, respectively. A minimum of eight participants is required for a team to receive participation points.

MURAL SCORES

Emerson Cardplayers 36 Ehrin. Skcums 0

Winston Reds 1 Craige A Crusaders 0 (forfeit)

Victory Village 1 Teague Terrors 0 (forfeit)

Town Lodgers 13 Joyner Giants 6.

Harriers

UNC's "loaded" cross-country team goes for its third straight victory of the season against Maryland today.

Joe Hilton's Harriers, who have scored two "sweeps" in meets with Clemson and Wake Forest, hope to score another today although it will be somewhat tougher. Maryland tied for second in the ACC last season.

The "Big Five" of Bob Bennett, Jim Folk, Jerry Smith, Art Mailet and James Meade figure to lead the way again in this meet and possibly to an undefeated season.

Oklahoma, Texas Battle For Top

Oklahoma and Texas, the nation's No. 1 and 2 teams, collide in the Cotton Bowl Saturday in the most important game so far in the 1963 college football season, and perhaps the most important game the entire season will produce.

With the national leadership at stake, Oklahoma, with nine consecutive regular-season victories since losing to Texas by 9-6 a year ago, ruled a three-point favorite.

A sellout crowd of 75,008 was assured for the clash in Dallas and disappointed ticket seekers were offering $35 to $100 for ducats.

The game was scheduled for local telecasting in the Dallas and Austin areas and fans who couldn't get into the stadium were moving into the areas for the TV.

Oklahoma goes into the big game with a 2-0 record, being idle last weekend after crushing 1962 champion Southern California two weeks ago.

Texas has a 3-0 mark but suffered a jolt when Ernie Koy, whose booming punts put Oklahoma in the defensive hole last year, suffered a shoulder separation last week that puts him out for the year.

What Is A Traditional Shirt?

A TRULY TRADITIONAL SHIRT HAS THE FOLLOWING . . .

Single needle construction, tapered body, pleated back with locker loop and button-down collar with button in back.

The Shirt Described Above is found at THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL.

Don't accept anything less and be sure to select now while our collection is complete.

Priced from Five Dollars

THE HUB of CHAPEL HILL

Economical Living Bank Financing

COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES

409 Main Street
Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager

5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA—Raleigh
One Show—8:30 P.M.

AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE...IN CONCERT
THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS

Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth

FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

SAVE 3¢ ON YOUR NEXT EAGLE INISHOWEN CHEVIOT SHIRT!

EVER interested in modern promotional techniques, exterior garment merchandising-wise, we at Eagle have devoted particular attention of late to the commercial practices of our colleagues in the tunafish, soup and soap lines. ✣ It seems that these three diverse industries have all discovered that by offering you a free discount coupon good for three cents off the purchase price of their product, they can lure you down to the neighborhood store. ✣ Well, we have been considering various ways to market (we believe that's the word they use) our Inishowen Cheviot Brooketowne. The first two adjectives describe a heavy herringbone oxford designed by our shirting gourmet who describes this fabric as meaty. Brooketowne is our tapered body button-down with the sloppy bulge we used to call flare before everyone else did too. ✣ So, tunafish on the mind, we decided to dip into that great fund of American advertising knowhow. ✣ Friends! as soon as you've written us to learn the name of your nearest Eagle dealer (not all Eagle shirts have the Eagle label in them, recall), and we answer you, and you need a shirt, run! don't walk and claim your Eagle I. C. shirt at three cents off! At once!

STORE COUPON

3¢ SAVE 3¢ ON YOUR VERY NEXT EAGLE INISHOWEN CHEVIOT SHIRT! 3¢

(Price before discount, about $7.50)

MR. DEALER: For your convenience in obtaining prompt accurate payment for this coupon, send it to Eagle Shirtmakers, Herringbone Oxford Inishowen Cheviot Brooketowne Prompt Accurate Payment Department, Quakertown, Pennsylvania (Attn. Miss Afferbach). Offer void where prohibited, restricted, or ignored. Only one (1) coupon per customer. Cash value: 1/100 of one cent. Eagle Shirtmakers.

© 1963 EAGLE SHIRTMAKERS, QUAKERTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD and VARSITY MEN'S WEAR

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill Council Edition

★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

20

Today's Weather
Cloudy and cooler.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1963 | United Press International Service

In University Day Ceremonies

Martin Newest Alum As Paul Green Lauds UNC

Author Attacks Gag Law

Paul Green, Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, extolled the meaning of UNC to his life and attacked the speaker ban yesterday in the annual University Day speech before a packed house in Hill Hall.

Green said that universities free and creative are responsible men and have a care and concern for the world. And by the world too I don't mean any special piece of earth or territory marked out with an ancient or modern name and bounded by certain rivers and mountains or other borders and set with its own nationalistic and separate flags, its army and air force, and all bristled up with Atlas missiles and atomic balls in tension and ready to blast not only some other nation but its own self into annihilation and death.

"No, I mean mankind the world of mankind and of the human spirit, the infinite human world.

"And in this shaping and building of creative free men the universities must also be free. . . . Nothing is to be forbidden for study and inquiry be the free intelligence. For thus the intelligence grows strong, affirms itself a witness to the truth and the true opponent of error and evil. . . .

"Take the recently enacted North Carolina gag bill, HB1395. This was an error in law-making. How can the students have a chance to know the truth, to examine and see the world as it really is if they are to be denied the chance to hear points of view from all sides.

"A great many of the legislators who voted for this bill were graduates of this University. . . . But what did they do really? They didn't hurt the communists, say, but they did hurt the university. . . .

"I am not afraid of communists coming to lecture on this campus. I think they should. We need a chance to hear the Marxists talk, hear the communists speak out their palaver. That is a good way in pointing out the errors of Marxism, of finding what it's all about. Thus our students can develop their own strength and belief in our own democracy. Anyone know that the way to weaken a child is to shelter it too much. It must have exercise, stretch its muscles, and its mind also must have exercise. A great disservice then was done to us when this bill was passed and I am surprised that though our administration registered strong objection there has been little outcry from our faculty."

—Photo by Jim Wallace

David Grier Martin, L. L. D.

Davidson Prexy Honored

David Grier Martin, president of Davidson College, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree at UNC at University Day ceremonies held yesterday at Hill Music Hall.

Chancellor William B. Aycock presided at the ceremonies celebrating the laying of the cornerstone of Old East Building, the first building begun on the UNC campus in 1793.

The citation for the degree reads as follows:

"David Grier Martin, President of Davidson College and alumnus of that institution in the class of 1932, first served his alma mater as alumni secretary, and, after a successful career as a business executive, returned to Davidson to become first, business manager and later, president.

"Vigorous, forward-looking, and public-spirited, he has continued to foster in our sister institution the high ideals of academic excellence which have placed his alma mater in the forefront of American colleges.

"North Carolina is justly proud of the college of which Dr. Martin is the chief executive, an institution which, through the years, has nurtured sound scholars, men destined to become famous in religion, in the arts and sciences, in business, in the academic world, and in government. In recognition of this remarkable achievement, and in the light of his dynamic leadership, the University of North Carolina is delighted to bestow on Dr. Martin the degree of Doctor of Laws."

Born in Covington, Ga., Dr. Martin attended Davidson College from which he graduated cum laude in 1932 with a B.S. degree in history. He did graduate work in history at Emory University and then became alumni secretary and publicity director for Davidson College, serving in this capacity from 1933-1936.

Dr. Martin has served in managerial capacities with Campbell Coal Co., Atlanta, Ga., and with Grey Hosiery Mills, Bristol, Va. He attended the Harvard Business School, War Adjustment Course, and graduated with high distinction in 1944.

World News Briefs

Boutwell To Consider New Proposal

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Mayor Albert Boutwell said Saturday he would "take under consideration" the city-sponsored biracial committee's recommendation that he announce immediately the city will hire Negro policemen.

A spokesman for the mayor said Boutwell decided "to take the move under consideration" but would have no immediate reply.

Negro leaders planning a demonstration campaign were awaiting his answer before announcing future plans.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Fred Shuttlesworth, who led record-breaking civil rights demonstrations here last April, planned to return Monday to back up the demands.

Ten Guerrillas Killed Near Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam—(UPI)—An elite force of Vietnamese paratroopers, transported and supported by American helicopters ferreted out and killed 10 Viet Cong Communist Guerrillas Saturday and captured 23 others in sunrise raids about 20 miles northwest of Saigon.

The paratroopers suffered no casualties in the "eagle" type operation, so dubbed because of the way the highly-mobile force swoops down out of the skies.

American military sources said the operation was the first in which Vietnamese specially trained for the eagle anti-guerrilla warfare strikes went into action. Previously, troops were selected only as the need for such an operation arose.

McClellan Outlines New Probes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan (D.-Ark.) says that Tampa, Fla., Buffalo, N. Y., and Boston are next on the list in enate investigators' city-by-city scrutiny of syndicated crime.

McClellan described as "shocking" statistics presented Friday to his Senate investigation subcommittee. Chicago Police Supt. O. W. Wilson said gangland executioners in his area enjoyed odds of 500 to 1 that they would not be arrested and convicted.

He told the subcommittee that of the 976 gangland-type murders in the Chicago area since 1919, only two have been cleared from police records by the arrest and conviction of the killers.

YMCA Starts Frosh Program

"A common meeting ground for all freshmen, both for the dormitory and fraternity side of the class," was the statement of purpose given by Marshall Bellovin at a meeting of the Y.M.C.A. last week.

From the charter members, a Steering Committee, or Freshman Cabinet of 11 members, was formed to plan the year's affairs. The members are Bill Moore, Rufus Meadows, "By" Ashley, Don Leslie, Buddy Lewis, Don Engvall, John Iurka, Doug Lawson, Lindsay Griffin, Denny Benton, and Carl Johnson.

Elected as temporary officers were Bill Moore, President; Rufus Meadows, Vice President; "By" Ashley, Secretary; and Don Leslie, Treasurer.

The meeting was followed by an assembly of the cabinet, which was divided into three committes. The first was set up to organize a system so that students needing tutoring could call and make arrangements for help through the "Y."

Social Affairs are being arranged by the second committee. A dance with Women's College at Greensboro is planned for October 25. Later in the year a trip to the western part of the state for skiing is planned, also with coeds from WC. A trip to New York is being discussed by the group.

A third committee is in charge of inviting speakers for the monthly supper forums. The first of these meetings is planned for the end of October, with John Knowles, UNC Writer-in-Residence, and author of A Separate Peace.

Rev. Charlie Jones of the Community Church will speak at a dinner meeting of the group on October 15 at 6:00 p.m., upstairs at Lenoir Hall. His topic will be Religion and Reason" and will be followed by an open discussion.

The charter members of this new organization are: John Falconer, Tim Balch, Pete Burgess, Bill Davis, Henry Hall, Lorenzo Lewis Jr., Neill Baker, "By" Ashley, Don Leslie, Bill Moore, Edward Millis, Dave Atwood, Scott Blankinship, John R. Hughes, Jim Robbins, Joe Rodriguez, Jim Goodwin, Gus Pereas, Ed Lewis, Ivan Crissman, Charles Morgan, Alvin Chesson, Billy Jarman, Billy Bullock, Doug Lawson, Terry Blinsmon, Denny Benton, Rufus W. Meadows, Carl Johnson, Lindsey Griffin, Jim Medford, John F. Moss, Bob Poitras, Steven Hildenbrand, Jim Davis, Steve Bell, Rufus Brown, Steve Milner, Ted Blackman, Norman N. Jones III, John Haywood, Don Engvall, John Iurka, James Cofield, Juan Cofield, Jim Brame, Phil Pope, Bill Spivey, Andy Nichols, and Bill Waite.

Bellovin stressed attendance of the first meeting, since elections for permanent officers will be held.

Erickson Is UP Speaker

Director of Athletics Chuck Erickson will be the guest speaker at the University Party's second meeting of the year, Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Mike Chanin, party chairman, announced that Erickson will speak on the University's athletic policies and plans. After his talk, Erickson will conduct a question and answer period.

Also on the agenda for the meeting is the election of a Sergeant of Arms and Treasurer to fill vacancies in the UP's Executive Committee, and the introduction of the newly-revised party by-laws.

Chanin also announced that there will be a meeting of the UP Executive Committee Sunday night in the Grail Room at 8 p.m. Committee members will interview all persons interested in the two new UP legislative vacancies, Town Men's II and III, and all persons who are interested in the other legislative vacancies in Town Men's I and IV, Craig, Ehringhaus, and Town Women.

NSCF Leader To Speak Here

Anwar Barkat of Pakistan, International Travel Associate for the National Student Christian Federation, will be in Chapel Hill Monday and Tuesday to talk to students interested in attending the Athens, Ohio Student Conference on the Christian World Mission.

Monday evening at 6 p.m. representatives of the various campus religious groups will meet with Barkat upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Following his presentation there, students interested in attending the conference will meet to discuss preparation and study.

Barkat, past associate General Secretary of the Student Christian Movement in Pakistan, has just completed work for his PhD in Political Science at Duke and is spending this year visiting college campuses across the country to promote the Christmas Conference.

Hootenanny

WUNC-FM will present a hootenanny Monday night at 7:30 in Swain Hall, with student talent on the stage. Admission is free to students with ID cards.

The program will be recorded for broadcast Tuesday night over WUNC-FM at 91.5 megacycles.

Kent Evans, program director of special events at the student-radio station, will be master of ceremonies. The talent will be Alan Pike, singer and guitarist, Dave Joyce, Richard Craft, Paul and Kent Collins, Charles Pettis and others. All are students here.

Evans said the program would consist of a wide variety of folk music, from traditional to contemporary songs. Included will be some country and bluegrass singing.

Barron Heads SP Publicity

Vance Barron, a junior from Chapel Hill, has been appointed Publicity Chairman of the Student Party, according to party chairman Neal Jackson.

Barron, an honors student in Political Science and History, was one of five UNC students to serve as political interns in Washington this summer. He has also worked for the Daily Tar Heel.

"I hope that by having a person whose sole major responsibility is to cover our publicity we will be able to show the campus that the Student Party is indeed the party of issues.

"Vance is a very capable person and I feel that we are very fortunate to have him working for us."

Symposium Interviews

Interviews for positions on six 1964 Symposium committees will be held Tuesday-Thursday in the second floor of the Y Building, from 2-5:30 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

Positions are open on the Finance, Publicity, Related Discussions, Intercollegiate Seminars, Secretariat, Social and Hospitality and physical arrangements committees.

Applications are available in Graham Memorial or the Y Building.

Soviets Withdraw Berlin Block On US Troops

BERLIN (UPI) — The Soviets abruptly ended their new Berlin blockade without explanation Saturday in the face of grim American determination. They allowed a 61-man U.S. Army convoy to roll into West Berlin after holding it at gunpoint for nearly 48 hours.

The Army immediately reaffirmed its Berlin access rights by sending another convey from West Germany to West Berlin. A convoy of 30 vehicles carrying about 150 men left the Helmsted checkpoint near the West German border at 5:02 p.m., reportedly with orders to reinforce the convoy if it had not been allowed to move.

The new convoy was cleared without difficulty in only 46 minutes.

The situation appeared so serious Friday the United States fired off three separate protests to the Soviet Union, and the British and French commanding generals in Germany also lodged vigorous protests with their Russian counterpart.

Moscow appeared to be the only capital not particularly worried over what had threatened to be a major cold war clash. The Soviet press Saturday blamed the U.S. Army for the delay, dismissed it as "much ado about nothing," and indicated it considered the matter minor, closed and finished.

The American troops in their 18 trucks and jeeps crossed the West Berlin border at the Dreilinden checkpoint at 12:50 p.m., four minutes after they began to roll out of the Soviet control point at Babelsberg, one mile away in East Germany.

Twenty-four minutes later, a convoy of 143 men in 25 vehicles —sent in to reinforce the halted convoy—continued its move to West Germany, reaching Marienborn safely at 5:35 p.m. By then the stopped convoy already had reached West Berlin without further trouble.

The convoy which was held by the Russians was commanded by 1st Lt. Raymond C. Fields of Pawnee, Okla., of Company A, 3rd Battalion, 6th Infantry Regiment. The support convoy which moved on to West Germany was commanded by Maj. Obel H. Wells of Indio, Calif., of Company B, 2nd Battle Group, 26th Infantry.

The troubles began over a Soviet demand that the 61 troops in the convoy dismount for a headcount. In the past the Army has done this with groups of more than 75 soldiers to expedite moving past the Soviet checkpoints, but contends it does not have to do this.

The East German Communist news agency ADN reported jubilantly the Americans finally gave in, but an Army spokesman said flatly: "The U.S. soldiers did not dismount from their vehicles for a head count by the Soviets."

During the long wait at Babelsburg the Soviets rolled up armored cars and antitank guns to reinforce their demands. U.S. soldiers and Russian soldiers faced each other with rifles and bayonets—but there was no crisis atmosphere. Witnesses said they laughed and joked with one another.

—Photo by Town & Country

The Tar Heels Surround A Terp

UNC Dots The 'I' With 14-7 Victory

Auto Crash Kills Robertson Albright

A University junior was killed and two of his companions injured Friday night when the convertible in which they were riding skidded out of control and overturned on Old Lystra Road southeast of Chapel Hill.

ROBERTSON ALBRIGHT

Killed in the wreck was Robertson C. Albright, 20, of Gastonia, a member of the SAE fraternity. Highway Patrolman B. W. Lacock said Albright was in the back seat with Mary Roper, 20, of Kingsport, Tenn., a resident of East Cobb dormitory. She was shaken up in the accident but apparently was not injured.

Lacock identified the driver of the car as William T. Martin, 21, of Bristol, Va., also an SAE member. He was reported uninjured. With Martin in the front seat was Susan Earnhardt, 22, of Kingsport, Tenn., a student at Queens College in Charlotte.

Lacock said Miss Earnhardt suffered a broken jaw and possible other injuries and is reported in good condition at Memorial Hospital.

Lacock said the car apparently rounded a curve on Lystra Road, went out of control, skidded 400 feet and overturned into a field. The patrolman said the accident was under investigation and charges are pending. He indicated high speed and alcohol were involved.

Heels Hang On To Win

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A dangerous defense was its most potent offense here yesterday as North Carolina intercepted a school record six passes and won a truly magnificent victory over Maryland, 14-7.

For the first time this year, the Tar Heels resembled the team its publicity says it is as they gamely fought back from a 7-0 halftime deficit and thwarted a late rally by Maryland's star passer, Dick Shiner.

Keyed by the interceptions of Jerry Cabe and Ronnie Jackson, Carolina moved for touchdowns in the early part of the third and fourth quarters, and then used another theft by Eddie Kesler to sew this defensive battle up in the waning moments.

Cabe's grab at the outset of the third period gave UNC the momentum to drive from the Maryland 33 for the tying score — an eight yard keeper around left end by Junior Edge. But it was Jackson and Kesler who saved the day for the UNC cause.

Little Ronnie, faced with the chore of covering the Terps' elusive Darryl Hill man-for-man, grabbed one of Shiner's passes off the chest of Hill late in the third quarter and returned it to the UNC 29.

It took the Tar Heels 13 plays to go the distance, but the time was not wasted.

Kesler's 10-yard burst and a Junior Edge-to-Bob Lacey pass for 13 yards got two first downs. But on the latter play, Edge was shaken up and had to be removed.

It didn't matter. Gary Black fit in nicely and took UNC the rest of the 46 yards unmolested. His own two screen passes to Ken Willard (for 13 and six yards) got two more first-and-tens and put UNC on the Terp 11.

Black, from here, missed Lacey in the end zone. But, after sending Willard up the middle for four, Gary hit UNC's great end on a replica of the other pass play. This time it meant six points and a 13-7 lead. Dave Braine's second conversion tallied the final score with 11:24 left in the game.

UNC got the ball back in Terp territory moments later when Jimmy Eason put his initials on a fourth Carolina interception. But Carolina stalled, and Max Chapman's 41-yard field goal attempt was off to

(Continued on Page 4)

Dr. Frank Celebrates 77th Birthday Monday

Tomorrow Dr. Frank Porter Graham, now a mediator for the UN, will be 77 years old.

Fifty-four years ago he was president of the senior class here at UNC.

Then 22 years old, he sat one day in Gerrard Hall and listened as Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, set the goal for Graham's future.

"I wish there were some man whose tongue might every day carry abroad the golden accents of that creative age in which we were born a nation; accents which would ring like tones of reassurance around the whole circle of the globe, so that America might again have the distinction of showing men the way, the certain way of achievement and confident hope."

Graham listened and determined to be the man of whom Wilson spoke.

As a freshman, Graham had been inspired by the words of his cousin and instructor, Edward Kidder Graham, when he said of UNC:

"This college should and can be the most conspicuous achievement of this people. It can be more influential in making actual the dormant and inactive ideals of the state than any institution in the world has been."

Graham listened and later his attempts to realize his ideals took him to the presidency of the Consolidated University; to six years of hard work on the War Labor oBard ;to working in the UN for Indonesian independence; to the Senate and back to the UN where he became and still is a top mediator.

Graham's voice has been carrying, at home and abroad "the golden accent," year after year as he fulfilled Wilson's words.

He is a men who has remained deeply rooted in the memories of many thousands of men from all over the world.

They remember him as a man who gave, and at the age of 77 is still giving, all he has for all he believes.

Vol. 72, Number 20 Sunday, October 13, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1879.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Tragic Death Of Robertson Albright

The death of Robertson C. Albright, a junior from Gastonia, should have more of an impact upon all of us than it is likely to.

We say this because too many of us will take note of the event briefly, then shrug it off with some sort of remark about how the police ought to crack down on drinking drivers and speedsters, or how that's what happens when you mix gas and alcohol.

Far too few of us will admit the truth: There, but for the grace of God, go I.

And "I", friend, means you and us.

Who of us hasn't had a few — often a few too many — drinks, then taken the wheel of our car and headed somewhere at an unnecessarily high rate of speed, endangering not only ourselves but anyone else with us or in and along our path of travel?

Who of us hasn't been riding in the back seat and distracted the driver, causing a near accident?

Who of us indeed?

Very, very few of us.

But we have been lucky: we haven't been killed or severely maimed.

Not so Robertson C. Albright, or William T. Martin, his fraternity brother who was driving, or Mary Roper and Susan Earnhardt, who also were in the car.

Albright was killed. Miss Earnhardt was injured, and Martin and Miss Roper were at least shaken up.

And these are only the physical occurrences.

What about the mental and emotional ones?

How mentally and emotionally maimed are the driver and the two girls, whether or not they were the cause of the accident? Isn't it probable that they'll carry the scars of this night of terror with them the rest of their lives?

What about Albright's family and friends? How do they reconcile his violent death with the hopes and plans he and they had undoubtedly held for the future?

What balm is there to sooth the ache his death leaves in the minds and feelings of those who knew and loved him?

Not even the scant consolation that he died in the service of some cause which he held dear.

The impact his death should have on all of us is that he died unnecessarily; without justification; and we should remember that everytime we get behind the wheel of a car, whether we have been drinking or not.

The pitiful thing about this message, however, is that — like most messages of this type — it will probably be forgotten by those who need to remember it most.

You and us.

'Jefferson Should Be Living Now'

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, UNC class of 1909, first President of the Consolidated University, later U. S. Senator from North Carolina, and now mediator for the United Nations, will be 77 years old tomorrow.

We join his legion of friends and admirers, both here and elsewhere in the world, in wishing him a very happy birthday.

If his purpose in life has been, as we believe, to affect the most number of people in the best possible way for the longest possible time, then he has succeeded beyond a shadow of a doubt.

That he continues to do so reflects great credit upon an already-great record of achievements.

* * *

Of the many noble thoughts Dr. Graham has given voice to, perhaps the following are most apt for our specific time and situation.

Writing in the Virginia Quarterly Review of 1962, he said:

"Most needed now is for the Southern people not to find themselves continuously and tragically isolated in their struggle apart from or against the mainstream of the modern world but to recover their great creative leadership in the nation and the world. Jefferson should be living at this hour! Virginia and the South have need of him to retranslate and interpret the authentic ideas of his universal declaration of human rights in the longer perspective of history, across thousands of years, and in the wider perspective of the present world."

'Well, I Meant . . .'

If there's one lesson we've learned from our dealings with Jesse Helms regarding our efforts to get him to explain personally why he supports the Speaker Ban Law, it's that he's a pretty evasive character.

First we ask him to come and speak. He turns us down. Later, over local radio station WCHL, he offers to debate us about the law. The next day he says 'no, I meant President Friday or some other responsible person for the other side.'

So Major L. P. McLendon agrees to debate him. And Mr. Helms replies that the Major's view "would not be of substantial interest to our viewers" but that "President Friday's would."

Why doesn't Mr. Helms simply admit that he's out to nail President Friday and the University and have done with it?

Now He Knows

"We don't know how good we are because we haven't played anyone yet."

If these words sound familiar, it's for a good reason. They were spoken by Maryland coach Tom Nugent after the Terps had trounced the Tar Heels 30-13 last season.

Well, he knows how good they are now. Maryland has yet to win in four starts.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Copy Editor — Bob Samsot
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

Letters To The Editors

Kennedy, Otelia, And Peanuts...

Editor's Note: Pen names may be used at the discretion of the editors only. A request for such must accompany the letter and contain the reasons for the request.

All letters will be verified as to the sender.

For P.A. Law

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Now that the Senate Commerce Committee has passed the public accommodations section of the 1963 Civil Rights Bill based on the Commerce Clause, it is important that the logic of their wise decision be understood.

The Constitution gives Congress the power to regulate commerce between the States. Any restriction of interstate commerce is a violation of the Constitution. The fact that Negroes are not allowed in certain establishments which deal in interstate commerce thus is clearly an abuse of the Commerce Clause: commerce between the states is restricted in a very real and touching way.

A Negro traveling from New York to Florida on a U.S. highway built by and whose upkeep depends upon the mony of every taxpayer cannot, when in the South, eat in most of the restaurants along the highway, and must often go far out of his way to provide nourishment for his family. At night, he cannot rest his family in any motel along the interstate highway, but must reroute himself in an attempt to find suitable lodging; in many of the small towns along the way restroom facilities are unavailable for his family.

This is not only morally degrading to the Negro, but it restricts his commerce between the states. Hence, the public accommodations section would enforce the historic Commerce Clause, by making all establishments which deal substantially in interstate commerce serve all humans regardless of skin color.

Stu Eizenstat
ZBT House

From Otelia

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Some genealogist said recently that people in this country begin to grow old at the age of 25. They have gotten their growth by now, and since they do very little manual labor, and take no exercise, they naturally begin to deteriorate.

People who would like to arrest this trend and at the same time enjoy themselves, are invited to join the Square-Dance Club, meeting every Tuesday night at the Women's Gym, located in the rear, downstairs, in the Woollen Gymnasium. Men and women, of all ages, are given a warm welcome.

I attended the organization meeting this week. I am looking forward to limbering up my muscles, and having a good time in the bargain.

Otelia Connor

To Otelia

Editors, The Tar Heel:

Regarding Mrs. Connor's letter of defence, it seems that she admits her ignorance of proper etiquette.

I think that someone should inform her that we ceased being an English colony almost 300 years ago, and have developed our own system of etiquette. In a word, Mrs. Connor, this isn't England.

It is an old Oriental custom to burp after a meal to show your host that you enjoyed the meal. Is this proper etiquette in the United States? Certainly not! In the same manner Lenoir Hall is not that cold, nor does it have the atmosphere of "Merry ole England" to make one the least bit nostalgic for England or English customs.

Pertaining to the soup spoon for stirring coffee, which is NOT proper etiquette, simply because one likes that way is a pretty flimsy excuse. Using the same excuse one would never have to practice proper etiquette or fear of reprimand from Mrs. Connor.

And so Mrs. Connor, lets get with it, try practicing proper etiquette before you preach it.

Tony Gardiner
106 Aycock

Sincere Thanks

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Concerning the letter of Misters Gene Hedrick and Sandy ees of Ehringhaus Cafeteria, Worth; we, the humble employgood old Ehringhaus Cafeteria. would like to express our sincere thanks for this praise rained so heavily upon us.

It really warms our collective heart to see that the patrons of our humble establishment find it in their stomachs—uh—hearts to let us know what they think of good old Ehringhaus Cafeteria.t Since we are serving about twice as many people as we were designed to serve in the cozy confines of those four polished walls, one can see that we might worry about how the patrons felt about the seped and efficiency with which we handled the masses of hungry humanity that stampede through our doors at each meal. We were afraid that perhaps the speed and efficiency would cut down on our social relationships with the patrons at their hour of need.

Also, since Man is mainly an indulgent animal, we don't want anyone to hurt himself as goldfish often do when confronted with an overabundance of food—besides, the resulting mess would be very hard to eradicate, and would most certainly affect the digestion of all the rest of our patrons.

At this point let me digress for a second to invite anyone who might think that such a perfect cafeteria does not exist to venture out into the wilds to make a visit to Ehringhaus, and determine for themselves what a lovely place of culinary delights Ehringhaus Cafeteria is. Especially, we invite any Co-ed who is free for an evening of fun and entertainment to visit us at any time —yes, we do serve Co-eds.

So, with gladdened hearts, we give to the faithful men of Ehringhaus, Craige, Avery, etc. our most heartfelt and sincere thanks.

The humble employees
of Ehringhaus Cafeteria

Advice

Editors, The Tar Heel

My first and last letter to you. Nearly one month of collecting impressions of Carolina and the DTH. Sophomore transfer from ambitious little northern school in the bush-poison-ivy league. Many thoughts; trying to compress them for space reasons.

Otelia. You have created her. She is not harmless, or even amusing. Quit writing about her and she will fade into the oblivion whence she came. Her "letters," I am told, are really press releases, and everything she writes you is subsequently printed in area papers. Unwise tommyrot and flap-doodle. More harm than good an dnot even diverting. Quit it.

Speaker ban. A silly act, true. Alas, your shrieks in the night even sillier. Student body doesn't care. Your let's raise hell attitude a tempest in a teapot. To no avail at the present time because legislature not in session to do anything about it. When it convenes, raise hell. Not now.

Whupples marvelous. Best thing in paper, and no credit to you. I know; I'm from Westbygodvirginia.

Freedom. You have it. Good. So quit throwing the fact in the administration's face, like a child who has robbed a bank he owns himself.

The headline on Cuba about "things normal, nearly" or something similar. Remarkably crass and thoughtless, as it coincides with savage hurricane deaths. Be careful.

And last. You create more news than you report. Do you wish to be a NY Daily News or a NY Times? If you want to create, get with the Quarterly. Either put finger on student pulse, which you have not done yet, or take finger out of bowl.

Quit yelling when a whisper would suffice, or probably be better. I talked to several students. We are tired of flapdoodle.

Don Hassing
661 Ehringhaus

Rocking Chairs

Editors, The Tar Heel,

A recent editorial in the Greensboro Daily News "exposed" an interesting opinion professed by Rex Clawson, an artist from Dallas Texas, of President Kennedy.

The young portrait painter explained that he has captured a rarely viewed aspect of President Kennedy's character, that of purity in the form of a portrait in the nude.

The artist says he effected his unique concept of purity from a photograph of JFK relaxing in a N. C. made rocking chair. It has been noted that JFK brought renown to N. C. by his use of rocking chairs manufactured in the state.

This is a new political twist, from the traditional kissing of bare babies to joining their ranks. This development could have an adverse effect on one N. C. community, that of Rosman. Rosman inhabitants might think first before supporting JFK in the next presidential election, considering its experience with the Summerlane Nudist Camp scandal.

Karen Sherrill
357 W. Cobb

More Peanuts

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Let me take this opportunity to express my complete agreement with the criticisms of Mr. James J. Dolan, Jr., as expressed in his letter to The Tar Heel of October 11. I have been dismayed by the somber aspect our campus newspaper has taken on of late, and would like to see The Tar Heel return to its proper place among the publications of our University.

Surely the first responsibility of a campus newspaper is to report the news of the campus to the students. But lately The Tar Heel has covered its front pages with exhaustive reports about the travels of pink Carolina drop-outs abroad and the tribulations of the New Left and the Progressive Labor Club, frequently with editorials to match, while the campus affairs column has been quietly regulated to an obscure corner at the bottom of the third page. I for one am weary of such poor journalism.

Surely, gentlemen, you can do better. Give us a little less—nay, a great deal less—liberalism and more campus affairs, Otelia, Pogo, Peanuts, and the like.

Harvey Clayton
303 Avery

Criticism

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Three cheers for the Daily Tar Heel! In the October 10, 1963 issue, it's editors managed to tell the reading public that a U.N.C. graduate and staff member was in trouble with the House Un-American Activities Committee, that the Student Peace Union had marched again and that Fidel Castro was nice to his motly assortment of campus discards from the United States. To make matters even worse, the Daily Tar Heel gleefully proclaimed it's intentions to continue this flow of garbage for at least one more day. In short, who gives a damn if a U.N.C. "flunkee" had a great time with the "bearded wonders" in Cuba

Who cares if the dozen or so radicals of the Student Peace Union picket a speech in Raleigh? Who cares? Every student and graduate of this university should care! Here is an abvious attempt by a university organ to publicize the most worthless members of it's student body and faculty. How can anyone not attending Carolina help but wonder after reading this issue of the Daily Tar Heel if Chapel Hill is not one big nest of communists, pacifists, and law-breakers? Why should a great institution such as this one receive a black eye because of the actions of a few deranged minds?

We suggest that the Daily Tar Heel concern itself in the future with expressing the views of the majority of the students at U.N.C. Is it to be the fate of Carolina readers to be subjected to the mouthpiece of subversive elements We think it is time that the editors of the Daily Tar Heel change their conception of what news is fit to print. While it may be beneficial to some people to be able to recognize the "village idiots" from their king-sized pictures on the front page of the Daily Tar Heel, we would much prefer an accurate summation of important campus activities, world events, and, by all means, the weather.

Kenneth M. Dunkley
W. Wilson Lowery, Jr.
Jerry T. Edge
208 Teague

The Maligned

By FRED SEELY

Perhaps the most maligned groups in our nation are those which express extreme ideology. I specifically refer to such outfits as the Student Peace Union, the John Birch Society, CORE and the band of students which ventured to the unknown worlds of Cuba this summer.

Theirs is a tough life — tough in the respect that they must fight for a somewhat unpopular cause and often fall prey to fools on the opposite side of the fence. Again, outside elements, such as Communists or racists, are often attempting infiltration of the ranks. But, no matter what we may think of them, one thing must always be considered — they have the right to think on those lines and they have the right to speak.

Consider the Student Peace Union. Their total desire in life is to disarm all the nations of the world. If they had their way, the world would be a good place in which to live — free from all threat of war. Yet they are maligned.

Of course, one thing that the majority of the members need most is a bath — although this should not be considered. But it is, and it spells downfall for the Student Peace Union.

Consider the John Birch Society. They want the federal government to withdraw completely from the affairs of private citizens. Under their desires, the people would be true rulers of the nation. All responsible factions could be represented equally. Yet they are maligned.

But ranting and raving has never gone over well with Americans. Neither has witch-hunting. And the elements which desire this sort of stuff have given their whole organization a bad name.

Consider the Congress of Racial Equality. If all the people of this nation could live together without ethnic disparities it would be a fine place in which to live. We could work together and eventually make the United States a better place in which to live. Yet CORE is maligned.

But they have not realized that there are people in this nation that will never integrate. There are people, and many of them, who have been told since their birth that the Negro is totally inferior and fit only to be a slave. These people are also citizens, and the more also citizens, and the mere thought of having a "nigger" vote is almost incomprehensible.

Consider the voyagers to Cuba. They went to that nation only by breaking the laws of this one, and they went in peace, seeking the real truth. They desire compatability between the two countries, and many of them earnestly desire peace and freedom. Yet they are maligned.

The main fault of this outfit is that they are not completely American-oriented. They think that all the world is sincerely devoted to the cause of peace and freedom and that Khrushchev really didn't mean it when he said that he would bury us. They have been led far astray by glad-handers who profess extreme interest in them, and this, more than anything, has been their downfall.

But all of this is part of America. In the past there have been the John Browns, the Marcus Garveys, the Thaddeus Stevens'. In the future there will be others. Extremism is a misnomer. It is rapidly becoming the American norm.

This summer I managed to be called a racist and a "left-wing Chapel Hill integrationist" at the same time. Both of the sobriquets came from people who were normal, respectable citizens. But that's another story. The real point is that the moderate is finding himself in the great minority. These are times which seem to demand that a person be committed one way or another to a cause and is then expected to fight for that cause 100 per cent.

Where will it lead?

I have no idea. Today's world is moving so rapidly that the normal, quiet man of yesterday is now carrying picket signs about or erecting billboards calling for the impeachment of someone-or-other.

Where will it end?

Jules Feiffer

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Christian Science Organization— Students needing rides to church services meet at the Columbia St. entrance to Carolina Inn, 10:45 a.m.

Student Peace Union — 3 p.m., 203 Alumni Bldg., Plans for Mme. Nhu's appearance at N. C. State College and setting up of communications systems for future use will be discussed.

Cosmopolitan Club — 4 p.m., Roland Parker Lounge.

Writer-in-Residence Committee of the YM-YWCA — 4 p.m., Y Court.

Westminister Fellowship — 5:30 p.m., worship; 6 p.m., supper; 6:45 p.m., program, panel of student leaders: Mike Lawler, Virginia Carnes, Kellis Parker, Hugo Spechar, and Vance Barron, Jr., discussing "Why We're Here," Presbyterian Student Center.

Newman Club — 6 p.m., Supper speaker C. Carol Hollis, "Mark Twain, The Pessimist," St. Thomas Hall More Church.

Lutheran Student Association — 6 p.m., Lutheran Church, speaker Rev. Clayton Sugg, "I'm More Right Than You."

Canterbury — 6:30 p.m. Chapel of the Cross Parish House. Address by Tom Davis, doctoral candidate at Duke, on "An Existential Interpretation of Sin."

Wesley Foundation — 6:30 p.m., Common Meeting at University Methodist Church.

Petite Musicale — 8 p.m., Sun., GM Lounge. Concert of Chamber Music.

Graduate Newman Club — 8:30 p.m., Student Center, a dialogue: "Augustine's City of God and U. S. Pluralist City."

MOVIES

Carolina—Divorce Italian Syle

Varsity — Judy

FUTURE

Meetings with Mr. John Knowles, writer-in-residence — 10:-12:30 a.m., Mon. and Wed.; 2-5 Tues., 312 Bingham.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

Carolina Playmakers Tryouts — 4 & 7:30 p.m., Mon., 111 Murphey Hall, Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night." Parts for three men and two women.

Scandinavian Student Travel Service Car Tour of Europe—Mon. 4:30 p.m., Roland Parker No. 1 for all girls interested.

A.P.O. Rush — 7 p.m., Mon.-Wed. T.V. room of Graham Memorial.

Order of the Old Bean Birds— 7:30 p.m. Mon., The Goody Shop.

Applications for residence intramural manager positions in Craige A, Graham, Grimes, Lewis, and Winston—For all interested people, Mon. after 1 p.m., 3:15 Woollen Gym.

YDC Executive Committee — 1 p.m. Tues., Lenoir Hall. Bring membership books and one dollar.

Symposium Interviews — 2-5:30 & 7-9 p.m., Tues.-Thurs., 2nd floor Y-Bldg., applications in GM or Y-Bldg. Committees include finance, publicity, related discussions, intercollegiate seminar, secretariat, social and hospitality, and physical arrangements.

YMCA Freshman Supper Program speech by Rev. Charles Jones of the Community Church on Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. The speech and discussion period will be followed by a meeting of the members. B.Y.O.T.

SP Legislative vacancies in Cobb (2) and Town Men's IV (2) filled by election at SP meeting—7 p.m., Tues., for extra information contact Phil Baddour, 303 Everett, or Neal Jackson, 7 Old West.

Episcopal Acolytes — 7 p.m., Tues., Old Chapel of the Chapel of the Cross. Training session for those who have never served at the Chapel of the Cross. Those unable to attend should contact Tom Roberts, at the DKE House, or Student Chaplain Jacob Viverette.

Hospital Committee of the YWCA — 7 p.m. Tues., 203 Alumni.

University Party — 7:30 p.m. Tues., Gerrard Hall.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, October 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in the GM basement.

Wives of Planning Students — 8 p.m. Mon., 234 McCauley St. ..

SERVE YOURSELF— EVERY SUNDAY
BUFFET 5:30-7:30 P.M.
featuring
RARE ROAST BEEF
4 Meats—7 Vegetables ---------- $2.85
All You Can Eat—It's a Cowboy's Treat
Recommended by Duncan Hines and Gourmet
RANCH HOUSE

Mon. Oct. 14 N.C. STATE FAIR
DORTON ARENA — Raleigh
One Show — 8:30 P.M.
AN UNFORGETTABLE MUSICAL EXPERIENCE! ...IN CONCERT

THE MOST CREATIVE MUSICAL GIANT OF THIS GENERATION!
RAY CHARLES
HIS ORCHESTRA AND THE RAELETS
Entire Production under the supervision of JEFF D. BROWN
Admission $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00. Tickets on sale at Kemp's, Chapel Hill; Hi-Fi Record Shop, Durham; and at Dorton Arena night of the show.

HURRY ON DOWN
New Studio Cards
Ledbetter Pickard

EASTER VACATION CRUISE
NEW YORK TO NASSAU TO NEW YORK
on
S. S. Queen Elizabeth
GO BY SEA
FARES — $185.00 to $225.00
for
RESERVATIONS AND DETAILS
Call
Continental Travel Agency
PHONE 942-4151

MURIEL WILSON appears as Madame Ernestine von Liebedich in The Carolina Playmakers' production of "Little Mary Sunshine," running from October 23 through October 27 in the Playmakers Theatre.

Veteran Actress In Musical Here

By JOHN WHITTY

Muriel Wilson is very noncommittal about her age. She refuses to go any further than to tell you that she was born sometime between World War I and World War II. The aura of glamor and mystery which surrounds her quite befits this young Durham woman who has been cast in the role of Madame Ernestine von Liebedich in The Carolina Playmakers' production of "Little Mary Sunshine." This rollicking musical is, among other delightold, worn-out operettas in which the men were all stouthearted ful things, a take-off on these and the fragile damsels never revealed their ages or their ankles.

Having apeared on Broadway in a production of "The Vagabond King," and later in Durham Theatre Guild productions of "Naughty Marietta" and "The Fortune Teller," Mrs. Wilson fits right into the mood that Director Foster Fitz-Simons is trying to create in "Little Mary Sunshine." The versatile actress and singer has also appeared professionally in supper clubs in the New York area, with the Alley Theatre in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, and with the Brevard Light Opera Company in Melbourne, Florida. While in Florida, she appeared on the Southern Belle Showboat doing impressions of Lillian Russell and Lilly Langtry.

A Brooklyn-born redhead, Mrs. Wilson has lost all of the "vocal color" which often identifies a person from that particular section of New York, and with a broad German accent which the role of Madame Ernestine calls for, she stops the show with her rendition of "In Izzenschnooken on the Lovely Essenzook Zee."

Although the role of Madame Ernestine is described as a "faded opera diva," Mr. Fitz-Simons feels that she is perfect for the part. Watching her in rehearsal, though, the first thing that occurs to you is how this vivacious beauty will ever manage to look faded.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Student Body President Mike Lawler said Saturday interviews for two vacancies on the Women's Council will be held Monday and Tuesday from 2-5 p.m. in the student government offices in GM.

Lawler said there is one vacancy in J.D. II (Spencer, Whitehead and Smith) and one in J.D. IV (East and West Cobb).

PEANUTS

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents MARCELLO Mastroianni
Divorce Italian Style

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Cool
4. American poet
7. Exclamation
8. Russian mountain range
10. Pineapples
11. Female horses
13. Ireland
14. Singer Rudy ——
15. Juicy fruits
17. Mrs. Castor
18. Bone: anat.
19. Corrode
20. Music character
21. Distorted
22. June-bug
23. Fun or jest
25. Underworld god
26. Toward
28. Evens post.
29. Chubby little rodent
31. Vendor
33. Scottish: Gaelic
34. Test
35. Marks "Let it stand"; print.
37. To cogue
37. Spirit lamp
38. Biting wish
39. Free

DOWN
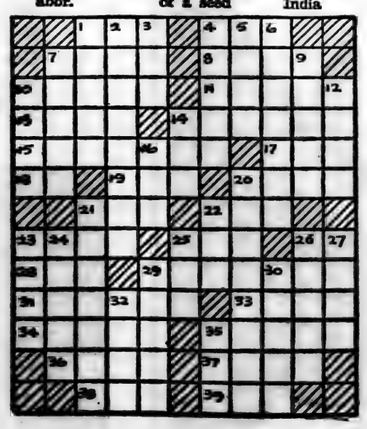
1. Greek region of Asia Minor
2. Court of equity: G. B.
3. Goddess of dawn
4. Cougars
5. Spoken
6. Sooner
7. Employs
9. City: Eng.
10. Gourd-like fruit
12. Chair
14. Veteran: abbr.
16. Grass cured for fodder
20. English painter
21. Martial
22. Indistinct
23. Annoying person
24. Looks askance
25. Patriotic organization: abbr.
26. External coating of a seed
27. Metallic rocks
29. Assists
30. Prevailing tendency
32. Den
35. Varying weight: India



Saturday's Answer

Imported Cars Ltd.
301 East Main St.
Carrboro, N. C.
SAAB
1960 Austin-Healy Sprite ..$1,000
1962 — Alfa Romeo Sprint ..... $2500
1963 — Elva Courier .....$2600
1960 TR-3 .....$1325
1959 — Vauxhall ..... $700
1960 Renault 4CV .....$450
1960 — VW Panel Truck ..$1000
imported cars ltd.
PHONE 942-7151

Rhodes Scholarships Up For Grabs Now

By ANDY MYERS

Students interested in applying for Rhodes Scholarships must have their applications in to the state level committee by November 1.

Since the applications must be processed by the University, however, it is requested that they be in as soon as possible.

Professor C. P. Spruill, the only Rhodes Scholar on campus, said, "The University in Chapel Hill usually nominates from three to five students to the state committee of selection. These nominations . . . must be in order by the middle of October."

Prof. Spruill, who has been teaching economics at UNC since 1923, was one of the 32 Americans to attend Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship in 1920.

"At that time the Rhodes Scholarship was the only international scholarship for English-speaking peoples," he said.

Asked how he felt he benefited from the program, Prof. Spruill said, "Just to be there was a wonderful exprience. The opportunity to talk to some of the best minds in the world . . . many men who were still active . . . justices, ministers, politicians, lawyers."

The annual selection of Rhodes Scholars is by elimination. There is a competition in every state, and two candidates from each state are nominated by a Committee of Selection.

The candidates then proceed to the district level. There are eight districts in the United States with six or seven states to a district. The 14 candidates in each district are cut to four men who represent their states as Rhodes Scholars at Oxford.

The program is open to any citizen of the U. S. between the ages of 18 and 24 who has at least a Junior standing at some recognized university or college.

Some of the qualities set by Cecil Rhodes to be used in the basis of selection are: "literary and scholastic attainments; qualities of manhood, thruthfulness, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy . . . and protection of the weak, kindliness, unselfishness, and fellowship."

He must show "force of character and instincts to lead," and "physical vigor" but "athletic prowess is less important than the moral qualities which can be developed in sports."

Prof. Spruill, who was on the rowing team, said that "more than half of the students at Oxford played some sport.

"Each school has its own athletic facilities, fields, and teams. The competition is similar to that between the smaller schools in America," he said.

The Rhodes Scholar "must be distinctive in some way. He doesn't have to be the three-letter varsity man or the president of Phi Beta Kappa, but he must be earnest in his desire to extend his education and broaden his interests," he said.

Prof. Spruill remarked that he found it a little difficult to adjust to the "tutorial system" at Oxford, which leans strongly toward "self-education."

Under this program each student is assigned to a tutor with whom he meets once a week. This is the only "required meeting."

The tutor helps the student plan his studies and gives him one written assignment a week, that is a critical essay on some phase of the student's work.

He also attends "such lectures as he chooses and others which the tutor recommends, said Prof. Spruill. There is no such thing as taking roll as in American universities; attendance is "strictly voluntary."

There is no set grading system at Oxford. All exams during the year are "informal and often oral reports" given to the student's tutor.

After two or three years the students take rigorous exams given by the university. Questions are on the advice the student has received from his tutor.

Since there is so little scholastic supervision a potential Rhodes Scholar must have a "real interest and definite plan for an effective program at Oxford," he said.

Oxford students attend classes for only six months of the year. There are three eight-week terms with a four-month summer vacation.

Although this may seem to be a light schedule, "often students are so busy with clubs, teams, dramatics and other campus activities during the term, that they do most of their studying during vacations," Spruill said.

The 32 Americans who go to Oxford each year are only a part of the total number to receive Scholarships.

Today there are some 300 Rhodes Scholars at Oxford from Canada, the U. S., Africa, and British dominions around the world.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Lost and Found

LOST — BLACK WALLET IN Woollen Gym. Reward. Contact Joe Miller, 222 Winston.

Automotive

1963 YAMAHA SCOOTER—ELECTRIC starter, turn signals, 3 speed, automatic clutch, red, only 2300 miles. Must sell. Best offer. 967-1185.

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1959-MGA, GOOD CONDITION, new tires, $950 or make offer, Bill Bynum—319 Connor.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

PART - TIME, DURHAM-CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, near and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excelent advancelment, four positions. WEAI, Wear-Ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
IT'S JUDY! Lighting up the lonely stage!
IT'S JUDY! singing for the first time since "A Star Is Born"!
IT'S JUDY! in the singing-acting role of her life!

STUART MILLAR and LAWRENCE TURMAN present
JUDY GARLAND DIRK BOGARDE
"I COULD GO ON SINGING"
TECHNICOLOR® and PANAVISION®
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS
Shows at 1 - 3 - 5 - 7 - 9
TUESDAY
ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S MOTION PICTURE SUSPENSE CLASSIC...STARRING
JAMES STEWART 'REAR WINDOW' with GRACE KELLY WENDELL COREY THELMA RITTER
TECHNICOLOR®
A Paramount Re-Release

Shows at 1 - 3 - 5 - 7 - 9

Keepsake DIAMOND RINGS

For Style Quality and Value
True artistry is expressed in the brilliant fashion styling of every Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Each setting is a masterpiece of design, reflecting the full brilliance and beauty of the center diamond ...a perfect gem of flawless clarity, fine color and meticulous modern cut.
Authorized Keepsake Jewelers may be listed in the Yellow Pages. Visit one in your area and choose from many beautiful styles, each with the name "Keepsake" in the ring and on the tag.
HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING
Please send two new booklets, "How to Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and "Choosing Your Diamond Rings," both for only 25¢. Also send special offer of beautiful 44 page Bride's Book.
Name
Address
City Co. State
KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, SYRACUSE 2, NEW YORK, 10202

Maillet, Jim Folk Pace Harrier Win

By JOHN MONTAGUE

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Paced by Mike Folk and Art Maillet, Carolina's cross-country team pushed its record to 3-0 with a 23-32 win over Maryland here Saturday morning.

Folk and Maillet tied for the first spot at 20:32.8. Maryland's Harold George came in behind them at 20:44.

UNC's soph sensation Jim Meade finished fourth with a 20:45 time. Jerry Smith and Bob Bennett rounded out the Tar Heels' top five.

The next meet for Joe Hilton's harriers comes at Raleigh on Tuesday when they meet N.C. State.

SUMMARY

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Folk, UNC | 20:32.8 |
| 2. | Maillet, UNC | 20:32.8 |
| 3. | George, Md. | 20:44 |
| 4. | Meade, UNC | 20:45 |
| 5. | Krueger, Md. | 21:03 |
| 6. | Smith, UNC | 21:05 |
| 7. | Harris, Md. | 21:16 |
| 8. | Wann, Md. | 21:25 |
| 9. | Thomas, Md. | 21:30 |
| 10. | Bennett, UNC | 21:32 |

Lothridge, Ga. Tech Triumph

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Billy Lothridge and his 14th ranked Georgia Tech Engineers assaulted Tennessee with sliderule precision and mule-kick power for a 23-7 Southeastern Conference victory Saturday.

The 21-year-old senior quarterback from Gainesville, Ga., ran for one touchdown, passed for another, set up a third and kicked a 28-yard field goal. Tennessee could not move against Tech's rocky defenses until tailback Wayne Bush capped a 52-yard drive in the final period by diving over the Tech line from two yards out.

A record crowd of 51,527 fans watched Lothridge use everything in the football manual to turn mistakes into touchdowns and rules confusion into scoring opportunities. Tennessee had nothing in its own book to stop him.

SPORTS Daily Tar Heel

UPSETS GALORE

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) —A Florida Gator that has been asleep awoke with a roar Saturday and slapped down third-ranked Alabama 10-6 on halfback Dick Kirk's 41-yard run, a field goal, and a brick wall defense.

Although kicking specialist Bob Lyle's 42-yard field goal in the opening minutes and Kirk's fourth quarter dash were Florida's big plays, it was the defense that kept the mighty Crimson Tide strangled.

Not until the final period did Alabama generate a serious offense. Quarterback Joe Namath led a 67-yard march climaxed by his one-yard plunge for the score. A two-point conversion try failed and, with only two minutes left, it was too late for the Crimson Tide.

The big breaks went to Florida from the first and the Gators took advantage. Kicking specialist Buddy French, trying to punt from the eight, fumbled the ball and got off a bad kick in the opening minutes and Bruce Bennett returned it to Alabama's 28.

DALLAS (UPI) — Daring Duke Carlisle engineered an almost flawless offense and baffled Oklahoma's No. 1 ranked Sooners with perfect execution of the option play Saturday to spark second-ranking Texas to a 28-7 upset victory.

The 6-1, 174-pound quarterback, whose starting role seems always in danger of being wrested away, drove Texas 68 yards with the opening kickoff for a 7-0 lead to set the tempo of the game and Texas' terrific defensive duo of Scott Appleton and Timmy Doerr saw to it personally that the Oklahoma offensive gears seldom meshed.

Oklahoma didn't cross midfield until midway in the third quarter after Carlisle and halfbacks Tommy Ford and Phil Harris had erected a 21-0 lead on the way to the Cotton Bowl's second major upset in less than 24 hours. Southern Methodist beat sixth-ranked Navy on the same sod 32-28 Friday night.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) —Underdog Army completely bottled up Penn State's high-scoring offense and rode the talented toe of Dick Heydt to a 10-7 win over the eighth-ranked Lions Saturday.

Heydt kicked a 32-yard field goal midway through the opening period and the three points proved to be the margin of victory. However, the score does not indicate the margin of superiority which the Cadets held over the Nittany Lions.

State had only two scoring opportunities in the game. After Army swept to a 10-0 lead early in the second quarter, State managed to get back in the ball game near the close of the half on a 69-yard pass play with Pete Liske tossing the bomb to Junior Powell.

The only other time State threatened was near the end of the game when the Lions recovered Army's only fumble of the afternoon. State's Glenn Rassler dropped on the fumble on the Army 31. But two running plays picked up only two yards and Army blocked two pass attempts.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Notre Dame spurned the forward pass Saturday and stayed on the ground with three terrific running backs to upset ninth-rated Southern California 17-14 on Ken Ivan's 33-yard field goal in the fourth period.

The Irish, with quarterback Frank Budka directing the offense all the way, tried only five passes. They completed two for 10 yards and one was intercepted.

But Budka, whose leg was broken against the Trojans last year, along with sophomore halfback Bill Wolski and junior fullback Joe Kantor, had the punch through the line to beat the vaunted Trojans.

It was the first win of the year for the Irish and for Hugh Devore, the "interim" coach. Notre Dame had lost by five points to Wisconsin and one point to Purdue.

The Irish were keyed up for the Trojans, who haven't won on Notre Dame turf since 1939 and lost here for the 10th consecutive game.

CLEMSON, S. C. (UPI)—Clemson spotted Georgia a quick touchdown under a sunny sky and then battled back in hail and rain Saturday for a 7-7 interconference tie.

Georgia quarterback Larry Rakestraw and Clemson fullback Bob Swift scored the touchdowns on one-yard runs. Clemson was a slim, two-point favorite in the game witnessed by 26,000 soaked spectators.

It was Georgia's first tie against two wins and a loss. Clemson, off to its poorest start in Frank Howard's 24 years as head coach, remained winless.

Both teams experienced frustration almost equal the punishment endured by fans who came here in sunny weather only to be chased by heavy rain and marble-sized hail.

Clemson made three long drives deep into Georgia territory but were set back on all but the tying one.

Who Goofed?

You've got to figure that the guy who arranged the T.V. football games for this weekend just isn't a fan. As Texas and Oklahoma regaled the Lone Star State with a battle for the number one spot in the country, Northwestern and Minnesota provided the video action entertainment here. Not a bad game, but everyone figured even before the season began that the Dallas clash would be a real big one. As things turned out, it may have been the biggest game of the season.

Now take the NFL "Game of the Week." The Browns and Giants clash in New York's Yankee Stadium in the Eastern Division's biggest game of the season. The Cardinals are at Pittsburgh in another big one, while the Packers and Bears play at Minnesota and Los Angeles respectively.

So who's on T.V.? San Francisco and Baltimore, the West's two tailenders.

Even reading the T.V. page is an adventure these days.

—UNC DUMPS TERPS—

(Continued from Page 1)

the left.

Maryland, however, was far from through. The Terps had used a spohomore, Bob Sullivan, a converted end, Mike Funk, at the vital quarterback position throughout the day. They were both futile.

Now they tried Bruce Springer, but he too did not work out. So Tom Nugent had to call on his injured star, Shiner, and the guy almost pulled this one out.

The blond pitcher came in with 8:50 left and Maryland on its own 20. Five minutes and some dazzling arm work later, the Terps were on UNC's 15, and it looked like another Tar Heel frustration.

In the interval, Shiner threw for four first downs (to Hill at the Maryland 34, to Andy Martin on the 41, to Martin again at the UNC 38 and to Hill again at the 15). The last was an interference call on Jackson, and most of the 21,000 crowd roared in approval and anticipation.

They were silenced two plays later. For, after Len Chiaverini bucked two yards, Shiner threw to Hill in the end zone. And this time UNC had him surrounded with three men.

The ball again hit Hill in the chest, again bounced into the air — and again was clutched by Carolina. Kesler had it, and it didn't matter much to anyone that he didn't get up. It was only the wind knocked out of him, and, anyway, he had just saved the game.

Shiner, though, still had a gasp left. After the Heels were forced to punt on their subsequent series, Maryland took over on its 30 with 1:05 remaining.

Two long bombs went awry, his receivers were all covered on the next play, and then Shiner suffered a coincidental embarrassment — another interception. It was Cabe for the second time, and the Terps were finally, completely dead.

The first half of this important (for UNC) contest was a preview of the defensive struggle to come.

UNC entered Maryland territory five times in the first half (to the Terps' 36, 41, 8, 41 and 33) but on only one occasion did it look like a threatening gesture.

About three minutes from the end of the opening quarter, Coach Jim Hickey's second unit took a punt return by Ron Tuthill as the impetus of a drive from the UNC 40 to the Maryland eight.

After losing a yard on two running plays, Gary Black scrambled for 17 yards around right end to the Terrapin 44.

From here, shifty Ron Tuthill gained another 17 on two bursts inside end, and UNC was quickly on the Maryland 27. Frank Bowman bounded off guard for nine and Tuthill picked up another four for a first down at the 13.

But two running plays and a flat pass from Black to Tuthill gained only a yard, and Edge's fourth-and-nine rollout to the eight was five yards short.

Maryland came across midfield only once in the half. And Jackson halted that with an interception in the end zone of a 40-yard pass from Sullivan to Martin. The little rabbit ran it out to the five.

But here was danger. After Willard gained seven, Edge faked a handoff to the big guy and started on a bootleg pattern around the right. But defensive end Jerry Fishman grabbed Edge's arm, knocked the ball free and pounced on it as it rolled over the goal line.

Suddenly, the Terps had a touchdown and Art Carney's kick put UNC down 7-0 going to the dressing room.

The Tar Heels looked as if their one mistake the whole day might affect them disastrously, though, when the second half began. For Maryland took the kickoff and had a fast first down on a rollout by Sullivan and rushes by Bob Burton and Chiaverini.

But here, with a first down on his own 40, young Sullivan found out just how valuable Lacey is to this UNC club. The Terp quarterback started on another rollout around right end and looked as though he had an open receiver. But Lacey, coming hard and fast, clamped him to the ground and the ball went wobbling into the arms of Cabe on the Maryland 41.

The senior guard returned to the 33 and UNC began to look like the ACC contender it is supposed to be. Willard ran three straight times for 17 yards, and Edge took care of the rest with two sweeps of his own, the last going for the TD.

STATISTICS

| Md. | | UNC |
|---|---|---|
| 14 | First Downs | 19 |
| 126 | Yards Rushing | 208 |
| 91 | Yards Passing | 93 |
| 11-29 | Passes Comp. | 9-19 |
| 0 | Fumbles Lost | 1 |
| 5-37 | Punt Average | 5-33 |
| 35 | Yards Penalized | 30 |

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Maryland | 0 | 7 | 0 | 0 | — 7 |
| Carolina | 0 | 0 | 7 | 7 | —14 |

Scoring Summary

Maryland: Fishman, fumble recovery (Carney kick).

Carolina: Edge, 8 running (Braine kick).

Carolina: Lacey, 7, pass from Black (Braine kick).

Attendance: 21,000.

Booters Will Face Washington U. Here

The winless and scoreless UNC soccer team hopes to get back on the beam against Washington University of St. Louis in the home opener here tomorrow. But the word is that it won't be easy, in spite of Washington's 5-3 loss to Duke yesterday.

Powerful Washington, which made the first of two trips to ACC land by traveling to Durham yesterday, is a perennial national threat and doesn't figure to make the UNC comeback one bit simple despite its 0-2 record.

Washington, which compiled a 6-1-1 record last season lost only to St. Louis, a defeat which knocked them out of the NCAA tournament. So UNC, which had hoped to better last year's 7-2 mark, will be hard-pressed to avoid its third loss.

Coach Marvin Allen's charges were shut out by Davidson for the second time in two games last Wednesday 3-0 after an opening 6-0 whitewashing at Navy. The result is eight switches in the starting eleven for the 3 o'clock match at Fetzer Field.

Only Jim Talbot (left wing), Charlie Battle (right fullback), and Buddy Siegal (goalie) remained in their original positions. Pete Blake has moved into the center forward spot, Marty Kruming will be at right wing, Mac Skelly at inside right, Harvey Moore at inside left, Bill Haywood and Steve Painter at halfbacks and Park McGinty at fullback.

"This lineup is not as experienced as the one we used for the first two matches," says Allen, "but the forwards are more aggressive and we should have a much improved offense.

"Coach Joe Carenzh's Washington team is one of the finest in the nation. The match should be one of the toughest on our schedule and we are looking forward to having a nice crowd on hand."

Washington has lost to current national champion St. Louis University by one goal in each of the past four years, the Billikens moving on to the NCAA finals on each occasion.

Scores

EAST

Princeton 34, Pennsylvania 0
Colgate 28, Rutgers 8

SOUTH

Georgia Tech 23, Tennessee 7
Virginia 6, Virginia Military 0
Clemson 7, Georgia 7 (tie)
North Carolina 14, Maryland 7
Fla. St. 35, Wake Forest 0

MIDWEST

Notre Dame 17, Southern California 14
Northwestern 15, Minnesota 8
Ohio St. 20, Illinois 20 (tie)
Michigan 7, Michigan State 7 (tie)

SOUTHWEST

Texas 28, Oklahoma 7
Virginia 6, VMI 0

WEST

Duke 22, Calif. 22 (tie)

EAST

Army 10, Penn State 7
Boston College 34, Villanova 0
Dartmouth 14, Brown 7

Giants-Browns Top NFL Sched.

The Cleveland Browns risk their spotless record Sunday in an Eastern Division showdown against the New York Giants while the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers face easy pickings in the west.

A sellout crowd of more than 62,000 will pack Yankee Stadium to watch Cleveland match the rushing thunder of Jimmy Brown against the aerial bobs of Y. A. Tittle in the Giants' home-opener.

The Bears, who like the Browns sport a 4-0 record, open a two-game West Coast swing against the weak-sister Los Angeles Rams 0-4, while the champion Packers 3-1 are on the road against the Minnesota Vikings 2-2.

In Sunday's other games, the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 make their debut gainst the Pittsburgh Steelers 2-1-1; the Dallas Cowboys 0-4 seek their season's first win in a home game with the Detroit Lions 2-2 the Washington Redskins 2-2 are at home against the Philadelphia Eagles 1-2-1 and the Baltimore Colts 1-3 entertain the San Francisco Forty Niners 0-4.

BASKETBALL

Coach Ken Rosemond requests that all interested candidates for the freshman basketball team report to him DRESSED FOR PRACTICE on the gym floor Tuesday night (Oct. 15) at 7:15.

All those interested in trying out for the varsity squad should report to Coach Dean Smith before Tuesday (Oct. 15). Varsity practice will begin on that day at 5:00 p.m.

Bought Old Books... If You've Never

There is no hobby quite so satisfying as colecting old books.

The chap who has learned the joy of spotting odd-ball and unusual books in his special field gets a double reward. He gets the same sort of pleasure as the collector of coins or stamps, but he also gets the intellectual thrill of finding forgotten facts that his fellow students miss. People look at him with added respect.

How does an important collection start? It starts with one book — perhaps a chance discovery on the 38c or 72c shelf at the Intimate. It keeps growing, discovery by discovery, and each new find is a special unique pleasure.

For example, tomorrow (Monday) we are going to start filling our Old Book Feature Case with one of the finest collections we've ever handled. It's so big it will probably take us three weeks to show all the books — and each book and pamphlet is the true, contemporary account of a famous murder, or other major crime.

Stop in and look these books over. See if you don't find yourself envious of the chap who had the fun of finding each of these unique books.

If you do, you may find yourself entering a delightful world that is denied to more hum-drum natures.

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

BE AN AD EXPERT

(show Madison Avenue how it's done)

Write the "perfect" ad for one of these 3 products and win a matched set of five Kaywoodie pipes.

EVERYONE ENTERING WINS A PACKAGE OF KAYWOODIE TOBACCO

In addition 5 major prizes awarded on your campus

Copy points on KAYWOODIE PIPES

Kaywoodie Super Grain-pipe illustrated $7.95—others from $5.95 to $2,500.

Pipes are today's symbol of the dominant masculine male. They provide all the pleasure of smoking, without inhaling. Kaywoodie is the world's best known pipe. Each bowl is painstakingly carved from rare grained, imported briar. That's why Kaywoodie always smokes cool and sweet. Inside the pipe is Kaywoodie's unique aluminum invention, a permanent filter that screens tars and irritants; condenses moisture; assures a mild, dry, smoke. (Now let's see how much imagination you have)

Ideas on NEW KAYWOODIE TOBACCO

Imported from Switzerland, it's an exclusive formula of rich, rare Cavendish Tobacco blended to perfection for flavor and mildness (underline mildness). Important: It's all tobacco, no "fillers" are used. That's why it burns slowly, evenly, and is easier to keep lit. In special "pocket-pak" only 50¢. (Try your creativity on this one and see what you come up with)

Facts about NEW KAYWOODIE BUTANE LIGHTER

Specially designed—it's the world's finest butane pipe lighter. Upright for cigars and cigarettes. Tilt for large soft flame for pipes. Easiest way yet to keep your pipe lit. Only $9.95 with free miniature Butane Injecto®—Refuel Cartridge. Guaranteed for life. (You take it from here)

HERE'S ALL YOU DO —Write any size ad, large or small. You don't have to draw, just describe whatever you want illustrated. The contest ends December 31, 1963. Decision of the judges is final. A two-pipe set will be awarded to the best ad on your campus. 4 runners-up will receive a Kaywoodie pipe or lighter. These ads will then compete against the winners from other colleges for a grand prize of a $100 matched grain, five-pipe set. Everyone who enters receives a package of Kaywoodie Tobacco. This contest is subject to all federal, state and local laws and regulations. All entries become the property of Kaywoodie Pipes, Inc. Send entries to Kaywoodie, New York 22, Dept. CU.

KAYWOODIE

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

it's invisible, man!

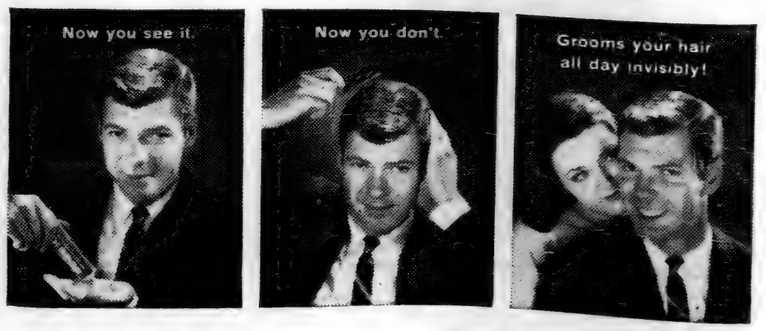
It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in.

Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code10. It's *in*visible, man!



U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

21

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Mostly sunny and a little warmer.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1963 | United Press International Service

Redistricting - What Is It?

Editor's Note: Many students have asked us to print an analysis of the redistricting controversy which is now before the special session of the State Legislature. The following, written by Joe Doster, UNC graduate and Phi Beta Kappa, is reprinted from the Charlotte Observer.

Power.

The power to decide who shall pay taxes and who shall not.

The power to decide how the revenues of the state will be distributed.

The power to make and change laws.

That's what the fight over redistricting is all about.

It is a fight over whether the vote of a Martin County resident shall continue to be worth several times that of a Mecklenburg resident.

It is a fight over whether far less than a majority of the people of the state will continue to control both houses of the N. C. Legislature.

Control of the Legislature is important because, in large measure, it is control of the state.

North Carolina's General Assembly is the most powerful state legislature in the nation.

North Carolina governors have no executive veto to block legislative acts, and because a governor cannot succeed himself he cannot build up extensive political power to use as a club over the Legislature.

Piedmont Settlers First To Complain

A fight for control of the Legislature is not new in North Carolina.

It has been going on since settlers first moved into the Piedmont and mountain sections of the state and started complaining about political control remaining in the coastal areas in the East where settlement first began.

As more and more people settled in the Piedmont and West, the Easterners in the Legislature created new counties and gave the people representation in the Legislature.

Whenever they created a new Piedmont or Western county, they divided an Eastern county into two counties. This kept the East in control.

In more recent times the struggle for legislative power has not been a strict East-West struggle but a struggle between the smaller counties in the far East and far West and the faster growing counties in the Piedmont.

The N. C. Constitution gives control of the House of Representatives to the smaller counties, but control of the Senate is supposed to depend on population.

Senate district lines are supposed to be redrawn following each 10-year census so that population shifts would be reflected in the Senate.

Majority Elected By Minority

A majority of the 120 House members can be elected by only 27.1 per cent of the people of the state.

This is possible because each of the state's 100 counties —no matter how small the county might be — gets at least one representative.

The remaining 20 members are parcelled out on the basis of population.

If all 120 members were distributed on a population basis, each would represent 37,968 people.

But under the rule giving at least one to each county a legislator from Tyrrell County represents only 4,520 people while the legislator from Wayne County represents 82,059.

Accordingly the vote of a Tyrrell County resident in the House is worth about 20 times as much as the vote of a Wayne County resident.

The Senate is almost as weighted against the larger counties as is the House.

It takes only 36.9 per cent of the state's population to elect a majority of the 50 Senate members.

If the Senate districts were drawn strictly on population, each senator would represent about 91,123 people.

Under the present alignment, districts vary widely.

For instance, the 29th District composed of Watauga, Alleghany and Ashe counties contains 45,031 people.

Senate Vote Out Of Proportion

The 20th District, Mecklenburg County, has 272,111 people but also elects one senator.

Only 13 of the 50 senators represent a population range within 10,000 of the 91,123 ideal. Only 21 of the 50 represent a population range within 20,000 of the ideal.

To bring all Senate districts into line with the population requirements of the constitution would mean a shift of power from the smaller counties in the East and West to the larger and fast-growing counties of the Piedmont section.

The Eastern and Western legislators who are now in control of the legislature have had the power to block efforts of the Piedmont to bring about a redistricting.

Fleishman To Address Student Party Tonight

Joel Fleishman, Legal Assistant to Governor Terry Sanford, will address the Student Party tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial on "The Tradition of the Student Party."

SP Chairman Neal Jackson yesterday said, "We are very pleased to be able to have Joel address the Party. Certainly there is no one who is better qualified to speak on the traditions of the Student Party than Joel, for he did so much to shape them."

Fleishman was chairman of the Student Party in 1954. While here he was also chairman of the Carolina Forum, a member of the Order of the Grail and a member of the Golden Fleece, the highest men's honorary on campus.

After receiving his A.B. in history from the University in 1955, he attended the Law School where he received his J.D. degree in 1959. In 1960 he graduated from Yale Law School with an LLM degree and in the same year received an MA from UNC. Since 1960 he has been Legal Assistant to the Governor in Raleigh.

Interviews In Y For Symposium

What are the peculiar problems in American society being caused by our present attitude toward armaments? This is the question which the 1964 Carolina Symposium proposes to pose, and to which it will direct the focus of its week of speakers, panels, and discussions next April.

The full title for this intellectual explosion will be "Arms and the Man: National Security and the Aims of a Free Society." Lectures and panels now in preparation will include individual freedom and collective security, the garrison state, the moulding of the public mind, education's response to the Cold War, and others.

Interviews are being held at the Symposium Office on the second floor of Y-Court beginning today through Thursday for eight committees. Any interested students should fill out an application form, which can be obtained at the Symposium office, Graham Memorial, or the Y office.

Next spring's Symposium will be the thirteenth observance of what is now a biennial event of interest to a wide segment of the North Carolina public. Participation in this program will be an opportunity for a close association with men of distinction in many walks of national affairs.

Erickson Won't Speak

Chuck Erickson, Athletic Director of the University, will not speak before the University Party tonight, Mike Chanin, UP chairman, reported Monday. Erickson is expected to speak at a later date.

Chanin said, "Due to a failure of communication between the party chairman and the party public relations director, it was erroneously reported that Erickson would speak tonight."

The UP will conduct a regular business meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Foremost on the agenda will be the election of a party treasurer and a sergeant-at-arms to fill vacant UP offices.

The revised by-laws of the party will also be introduced. Announcement of new legislators to fill UP vacancies in the Student Legislature is also expected.

Chanin said, "There is much business that the party must deal with before we can really begin to undertake our fall program. Several persons have expressed interest in running for one of the two open positions and I expect a very interesting race."

WUNC RADIO

Tuesday

6:00 The Dinner Hour
6:55 News
7:00 France Applauds
7:30 Holland Festival
8:00 Hill Hall Concert
9:30 Converse College
10:00 Ten O'Clock Report
10:15 Some Come to Sing
11:00 Repeat: Project 60

DATE TICKETS

Director of Athletics Charles P. Erickson announced yesterday that the passes purchased by women visitors from the Greensboro campus for the State game will allow them to sit anywhere in the student section. The passes will be honored in the same manner as date tickets, thus enabling all students to sit with their dates.

Civil Rights Bill Hearings In SL

By HUGH STEVENS

The Ways and Means Committee of Student Legislature will hold hearings tomorrow on a bill calling for "individual commitment to the attainment of equal rights."

The bill was introduced by Neal Jackson at last Thursday's special session of the Legislature.

This bill calls the attainment of equal rights "probably the most significant social issue facing the United States." It goes on to say that the attainment of such rights "can come only through individual action by each American in his own sphere of activity, and the student has a definite role to play in effecting the more perfect realization of those principles and ideals of a democratic society . . ."

The resolution also calls for a special legislative committee "to gather information regarding discriminatory practices in the University, if any, and . . . submit its findings no later than January 1, 1964."

Jackson announced yesterday that the Ways and Means Committee will meet Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room to hear student comments on the resolution.

"We have invited such people as John Dunne, SPU leader, and Armistead Maupin, an outspoken conservative, to air their views on this matter," he said.

"Anyone else who is interested may come and speak, and we encourage all points of view," Jackson said. "Anyone will be given 10 minutes for opening statements and then the committee will ask questions."

"We want to know how all types of groups feel about this issue, and those interested are welcome to speak."

"It is our intention in introducing the bill to arouse the thoughts of students on this issue. It is an old SP tradition to get issues such as this before the public and find out their opinions," Jackson concluded.

Jackson indicated that the resolution will probably not reach the Legislature before the October 24 meeting.

Price Cut

Carolina Playmakers will cut prices to $1.00 per couple for their opening night performance of "Little Mary Sunshine" on Tuesday, Oct. 22.

This experimental price cut will save students half the regular price and if it meets with popular reception, policy of reduced prices for other opening night performances will continue for the rest of the season.

Tickets for the performance, which will be for students only, will be on sale Wednesday in Y-Court (9-1) Lenoir Hall and at Graham Memorial Information Desk. I.D. cards must be presented.

Stansbury For Governor?

—Photo by Jim Wallace

'Ray's Our Boy!'

Political rallies and fraternity parties usually don't mix too well, but when Raymond S. Stansbury is the candidate—well, everything's fine.

Stansbury, who describes himself as "just an old country boy who understands those fellas back in the woods," performed Saturday night at Chi Psi's annual Barn Dance, and he may well have picked up some votes.

Ray and his Hillsboro string band put on quite a show, to say the least. The audience listened in rapt silence as the candidate outlined his platform of no sales tax, bonus for all veterans and stoppage of auto insurance money from flowing into South Dakota.

Wild cheers rocked the room when he concluded his speech, and the audience paraded about the house for some 10 minutes singing "We'll All Vote for Ray in '64" and waving banners proclaiming "Ray's Our Boy" and "Country Boy Makes Good."

Then the entertainment began.

"As soon as I wet my nose, boys, we'll have some good old pickin' and singin'," the candidate said.

A pitcher of beer appeared, Ray wet his nose and the pickin' and singin' did indeed begin. And it was great.

Yes, Ray Stansbury is on the campaign trail. And North Carolina is in for quite an experience.

Administration Gains In Redistrict Fight

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

High Court Begins Sit-in Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court began hearing pro-and-con arguments Monday on a series of Negro "sit-in" appeals that center on whether a private business owner has the right to bar customers because of race.

In essence, the issue that is being debated by the court in the first oral argument of the new term is the controversial storm center of President Kennedy's civil rights bill which would make it unconstitutional for a businessman to deny service to anyone because of race.

The court heard both sides on four of the five cases involving the dispute and was scheduled to hear the arguments on a fifth Tuesday along with U. S. Solicitor Gen. Archibald Cox.

As the lead-off attorney for the Negro plaintiffs, Joseph L. Rauh urged the Supreme Court to rule later this term that state courts cannot be allowed to back up what he called unconstitutional discrimination by private businessmen.

State and local officials argued that there was no constitutional question involved in the arrests of Negroes seeking service at a Maryland amusement park, a Baltimore restaurant and two stores in Columbia, S. C.

Boutwell Claims He Will Not Bow

BIRMINGHAM (UPI)—Mayor Albert Boutwell said Monday that he would never bow to pressure in the hiring of Negro policemen.

Boutwell's executive assistant, W. C. Hamilton, explained that it would be "impossible" anyway to employ even one Negro officer by the deadline—one week from Monday—set by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., as the price for refraining from new racial demonstrations.

King and the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, head of the Birmingham integration movement although he is pastor of a church in Cincinnati, Ohio, were expected in town late Monday.

They were to confer with associates about the advisability of calling Negroes into the streets once more to back up integration demands. A rally was scheduled Monday night.

Hamilton said civil service regulations require about six weeks to clear prospective policemen for employment and therefore "it would take an act of the legislature to hire Negro policemen" by King's deadline.

King and Shuttlesworth have demanded that the city hire at least 25 Negro officers within two weeks from their demand last Tuesday.

Students And The System: I

By PETE WALES
First of Five Articles

How do students feel about the honor system?

Up until this year there was no comprehensive study on this subject.

Now the results of a questionnaire passed around to all 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday classes last April have been released.

"We are very happy with the results of the study," says Whitney Durand, chairman of the Men's Council. "A great deal has come out about the student view of the system and its operation.

"Some of the results are somewhat discouraging but most of it seems to indicate the effectiveness of the honor system."

Impetus for the study came last spring from Grant Wheeler, then chairman of the Men's Council and now assistant to the Dean of Men.

"I wanted to have the study done to be some aid to the Honor Council as well as for my own personal reasons," Wheeler said.

"There was serious question in my own mind as to whether the Honor System could work in a university as big as this.

"I was also curious as to the effectiveness of the Campus Code and how students felt about the apartment rule."

Wheeler, with the help of Attorney General Buzzy Stubbs, went to the Sociology Department with a list of questions he wanted to ask the students.

There he received help on how the questions should be drawn up and what answers should be made available on the multiple choice sections. Some parts of the questionnaire left blanks for the students to exress their own views.

The study was divided into six major areas:

1) Student interest and evaluation of the effectiveness of the Campus Code and Honor System.

2) Students' opinion of how much cheating takes place at UNC, and how UNC compares to other schools on the amount of cheating.

3) Students' knowledge of the procedures used by the Honor Council and their evaluation of its members and operations.

4) Frequency of violation of the Campus Code & Honor System.

5) The Apartment Rule.

6) Differences between the responses of students by the amount of violations of the Campus Code and Honor Code.

In the case of multiple choice questions, the results were tabulated by IBM machines. In questions where the student gave his own opinion, all different types of answers were tabulated and put on IBM cards for processing.

A graduate student in sociology collected the data and drew up the report over the summer.

About 800 students took the quiz representing classes from nearly every department and ranging from freshmen to graduate students.

Graduate students in general knew less about the Honor System than did undergraduates because they are not under the same jurisdiction.

Of the 800 questionnaires, 550 were used in the study. The others were thrown out because of an insufficient number of answers or because a large number of answers were obviously facetious. It was felt that the 550 students were representative enough for the study.

In the following three articles of this series, the results of the study as tabulated by the sociology graduate student will be presented. The last article will deal with the reactions of administration, faculty and students to the study.

| Class | Male | Female | Totals |
|---|---|---|---|
| Freshman | 129 | 21 | 150 |
| Sophomore | 55 | 5 | 60 |
| Junior | 140 | 41 | 181 |
| Senior | 81 | 12 | 93 |
| Graduate | 45 | 21 | 66 |
| | 450 | 100 | 550 |

This chart shows breakdown by class and sex of the students who filled out the questionnaire on the Honor System and Campus Code last April.

Sanford's Speech Praised

RALEIGH (UPI)—The General Assembly of North Carolina convened in extraordinary session to consider Senate redistricting Monday with the administration drawing a pat hand after a discordant opening.

Gov. Terry Sanford's bill to realign senate seats for the first time in 22 years went into both houses with more than enough signatures to assure passage after administration floor leaders maneuvered around opposition to reapportionment under the present constitution.

Sanford urged the special session to redistrict the senate at once under the present constitution, but he did not recommend a constitutional amendment to reapportion the entire legislature.

The speech drew praise from the lawmakers and Republicans indicated they may support the Governor.

The key test came in the senate where small county lawmakers long have held command, but administration floor leaders successfully limited consideration of bills this session to measures dealing only with redistricting. A similar situation arose in the House, when an attempt was made to amend the restrictive rule, but it was defeated easily.

After Sanford addressed the legislature and no citizen appeared to speak at a public hearing on the bill, administration leaders felt a test vote could be taken Tuesday, with final approval following Wednesday.

Campus Code Discussions Start Here

Members of Carolina's judicial system Monday night began an extensive program to canvass every men's living unit on the campus to discuss the Honor System.

Men's Council Chairman Whitney Durand reported that six discussion groups, composed of two representatives of the Men's Council and one of the Women's Council each, will be working simultaneously to carry out the program. He said he expected to finish the program in five or six weeks.

Durand said discussion would be centered around the Campus Code, including a re-definition of it, and a talk on the philosophy and penalties of the Honor Code.

He added that "we don't plan to alter the wording or meaning of the Campus Code, but just to clarify it."

Discussions will be conducted at 10:15 p.m. in dormitories and 7 p.m. in fraternities, Durand said.

About 16 members of the Men's Council, nine members of the Women's Council and two members of the Attorney General's Staff will be participating in the program.

A tentative schedule for the next ten days calls for discussions at the Chi Psi Lodge tonight; ATO, Sigma Chi, Everett, Aycock and Winston, Wednesday night; Chi Phi, Lambda Chi, Kappa Sigma, Thursday night; Joyner and Alexander, Monday; Pi Lamb and Kappa Alpha, Tuesday; Ruffin and Grimes, Wednesday; and Sigma Phi Epsilon, Thursday.

DANCE GROUP

The Graham Memorial dance group will meet Monday and Wednesday afternoon from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. on Memorial Hall stage. Dot Silver and Foster Fitz-Simons will direct the practices in preparation for a performance planned for next spring.

The dance group will hold an opening performance on December 11, featuring original choreography. Anyone interested in the groups' activities should make plans to attend one of the meetings, or contact Carolyn Logue, GMAB Drama chairman.

Symposium

The Carolina Symposium will hold staff interviews today through Thursday in the Symposium office, 2nd floor, Y court.

Vol. 72, Number 21 Tuesday, October 15, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Dear Faculty: Silence May Be Golden, But It Can Also Be Misinterpreted

Paul Green had an awfully good point when he asked in his University Day address why more UNC instructors haven't voiced their opposition to the gag law.

Why have they been so remarkably silent?

We expect the answer has to do with the fact that many instructors were gone during the summer, when the law was enacted; with the fact that there has been so much else to worry about these first few weeks of the fall semester, in getting organized and all; with the fact that no convenient outlet has been available for the collective voice of our professors to express itself through.

Hopefully, therefore, the silence that continues to emanate from most of UNC's faculty is the silence before a storm of carefully thought-out and well-directed protest.

The fact remains, however, that because of this silence the notion may already have gotten abroad that most UNC instructors — and their brethren at our sister institutions — don't think the Speaker Ban is such a bad law.

Thus, when action comes, it could easily be interpreted by many of the ban law's proponents as Administration-provoked and not the sincere protest of concerned faculty members.

This would be, of course, a false notion. But how do we convince those backers of the law who are sincerely misinformed about the law's effect and ramifications of that? Especially the ones who are fond of seeing a big plot behind everything?

Obviously, the best way for our mental guides to answer Paul Green's charge is by speaking out, and soon.

That SPU Cartoon Was Good For Our Livers, But What About Our Lives?

Like many of you, we got a good laugh out of the Student Peace Union (SPU) cartoon carried on this page last Saturday. It probably represents one of the most trenchant observations on a local matter ever carried in these pages.

But if the effect of the cartoon was to make our average reader, whoever he or she is, think that he or she has been right all along, that the SPU is just an overgrown Mickey Mouse outfit, then the cartoon's fire will have miscarried.

For the SPU, however improbable and unrealistic was its protest march and statement last week about South Viet Nam, is nevertheless a very worthy organization.

It seeks to get all of us thinking and talking about the problems of peace; to make us aware of the nuclear precipice on which the world uneasily lives these days.

Too many of us are dangerously ignorant of the great problems the world faces. Too many of us can't even locate South Viet Nam on a map. Too many of us are just too unconcerned to care.

Without realizing it, those of us who fit that description are spiritual ancestors of the people who are largely responsible for the world being in the situation it is in today.

Apathy is and always has been one of man's own worst enemies. Because of it dictators rise and democrats despair; because of it, to a large extent, we as a nation let great problems reach the boiling point before we bother even to consider them, much less propose rational solutions to them.

Well, the SPU members are trying to crack this iceberg of apathy. Sometimes they strike out and sometimes they don't. Most of the time, as last Spring when they paraded to protest our Armed Forces slogan of 'Power For Peace,' they just succeed in getting people mad at them.

This, however, is a start. Many times before this, blind anger has become calm deliberation, although the occasions certainly have not been overwhelmingly numerous.

But at the least, the SPU is focusing attention upon problems which ought to concern all of us far more than they do.

So while that cartoon may have been good for our liver, in making us chuckle at the SPU's expense, it won't be good for our lives if all it did was to lull us back to sleep again.

The Barren Harvest Of Ill-Sown Seeds

Some of our more conservative legislators may be shocked to find that their recent Speaker Ban law does not just affect this hot bed of radical thinking here at Chapel Hill. The most recent loss has been suffered by our sister institution in Raleigh.

The National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences is currently sponsoring a tour by a real live Communist. As a matter of fact ,Mr. Sokolovskiy is director of the Laboratory of Plasticity in the Institute of Mechanics of the Academy of Sciences of the Soviet Socialist Republics. He spoke at Duke Monday at one of the university's mechanical engineering seminars, but the last we heard State had a fair to middling engineering school too.

Could Mr. Sokolovskiy speak there?

Obviously, no.

He is a Communist.

Not a sly, devious, home-grown Communist seeking to subvert our philosophy, infiltrate our schools and government and turn us from God and Country, but a full-fledged, fire engine red, Russian Communist who has something of value to say on plasticity.

Some of our unbending legislators might find a lecture on plasticity very helpful.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Copy Editor — Bob Samsot
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Reviews Editor — Steve Dennis

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"It's Peacemongering And Creeping Private Enterprise, That's What It Is!"

Gag Law Must Go

From The Gold and Black Wake Forest College

House Bill 1395 was enacted by the General Assembly of the state of North Carolina in the brief period of 39 minuites. This action, taken in the closing days of the session, was entitled "An Act to regulate visiting speakers at state-supported colleges and universities." This act makes it unlawful for members of the Communist Party, those who advocate the overthrow of the United States Constitution or of the State of North Carolina, and those who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in regard to communist and subversive activities to speak at any state supported school.

The action of the General Assembly does not affect Wake Forest College, for which we are quite thankful. Nevertheless we are concerned with this blow to academic liberty and freedom of speech in the bastille of liberalism in the South, the Old North State. We must be concerned with any attempt to shun the traditions of intellectual freedom and Jeffersonian liberalism any place at any time. The way has been opened for further legislative acts which could mean the end of free expression of ideas and beliefs on any college campus or on any platform in this state.

We have talked long and hard of the tradition of academic freedom at Wake Forest, expressing our belief that this was the one tenet above all else this institution passed on to her beloved sons and daughters as they departed. H. B. 1395 originated in the House of Representatives and was introduced by a son of Wake Forest College. We must pause and take stock of this situation. The college, her faculty, and her students can take no pride in the fact that one of her sons struck the first blow toward halting the free and uninhibited discussion of ideas on the campuses of North Carolina's great universities. The ideals of the past and the glories of yesteryear must not become just that. They must be living, breathing things, as much a part of our school as is the never ending pursuit of knowledge.

The intention of the supporters of this bill was no doubt good. But they have taken the wrong path to achieve their aims. It is the rule of every educational community to make the truth available to its students and provide them with the tools of self-dissemination. It is not the role of any college or university or of any body of elected representatives to adopt the habits of communism by feeding its students only one line of thought. This idea is alien to the democracy in which we live, and to the theory and beliefs of those who founded this nation "with liberty and justice for ALL."

Indeed, we are today engaged in a life or death struggle with the masters of the Communist world. Those countries now under the domination of the hammer and sickle are those where communism was a new idea that swept through the land before thorough and complete reasoning could find the ever-present faults in the Communist argument. We believe that Communism is a bankrupt dogma. The best way to bring ultimate and final defeat to the communist ideology is to hear it, read it, and discuss it. It will come to the forefront only when it is suppressed by governmental action and its carnival-like appeal is new to the masses.

It is imperative that the "Speaker Ban" bill be repealed at once. We lend our support to student leaders and to the responsible public leadership in North Carolina in this undertaking. It is a task that will require educating the people of this state and the students of both private and state-supported institutions to the inherent dangers involved. North Carolina, as a proud bearer of a great heritage, and its educational institutions, as the great academic communities that they are, have no place for an act which was passed without free and unlimited discussion in its legislative halls and relegates its entire educational network to, what could well become, academic oblivion.

Our Money For Powell And Rope

By CLYDE WILSON

Some time ago a man wrote a letter to the editor of the Richmond News-Leader. He had just read in the paper that Anthony Celebrezze, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, had sent a telegram to every member of the House, urging passage of a certain bill.

The measure failed. The government paid a $2,636 telegraph bill. The Secretary could have made use of a number of idle messengers who wre paid employes of the government. But what particularly aroused the reader was that that was exactly the sum he had paid in income taxes the previous year.

As he put it, in one inexcusable afternoon, one wanton bureaucrat had squandered money which represented three months of hard work on his part; money which could have sent his son to college for two years, made the down payment on a new house or bought him a new automobile.

This true story brings home an overlooked fact of life. The money spent in Washington, no matter what the distance is between the place where it is collected and the place where it is spent, is our money. Mine and yours.

If the government is going to take a part of our earnings for public purposes, we, as free men, have a moral right to be certain that the purposes are legitimate and necessary ones.

Missiles cost money. Jet bombers cost money. Nuclear submarines cost money. Few are the Americans who are not willing to sacrifice to make sure that America has all the missiles and bombers and submarines that she needs. Few are the Americans who would willingly give up one penny of their earnings for someone they have never seen to squander.

Some shocking examples of government waste can be catalogued. In 1956 the Hoover Commission discovered a rope factory employing 140 people which had been operated in Boston since the Civil War. The government subsidized the operation of the factory and then sold its products, for which it no longer had any use, at a loss.

Powerful politicians intervened and prevented even the gradual shut-down of the factory. It is still producing rope, at a loss.

It costs in excess of $1 million dollars per year to maintain each Congressman in the capital. Some of this money goes to pay salaries to wives and children who are ostensibly members of the Congressmen's staffs.

Then there is Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York. He recently married his secretary and raised her salary from $8,000 to $18,000 a year. She continued to collect that salary while spending six months in Puerto Rico undergoing pregnancy. Rep. Powell spent his last summer on the Riviera. At my expense and your expense. He was supposed to be investigating women's working conditions in Europe.

Government is naturally wasteful and waste is not confined to the Federal government. One need only compare the output of a city work crew to that of a crew hired by a private company for a vivid example. One need only sit in on a meeting of a typical city council or county board to be appalled at the flippancy with which those public servants toss around large sums of money.

In the early days of the Republic there was a much deeper sense of morality about the public funds. Washington and Jefferson watched their spending down to the last paperweight and goose quill pen. That spirit, that sense of obligation about the spending of other people's money, has disappeared.

Unless Americans begin to reassert their moral indignation, Congressman Powell is going to be spending his summers on the Riviera and that rope factory is still going to be turning out rope two hundred years after the Civil War!

Book Review

Lacking In Color

By NINA KING

"Spectacular Rogue: Gaston B. Means", by Edwin P. Hoyt; Bobbs-Merrill, 1963.

"Engaging was infamous, he swindled widows and governments and was accused of virtually every crime in the book: forgery, theft, conspiracy, obstruction of justice—and murder. J. Edgar Hoover called him the 'greatest faker of all time'; yet,, until the end of his infamous career, his fluent tongue and his dimpled smile beguiled even the most sophisticated."

In the preceding quote from a cover blurb, Edwin P. Hoyt's "Spectacular Roue: Gaston B. Means'' reaches its climax. Technically and thematically the direction thereafter is downhill, the speed most deliberate. It is incredible that a book which has as its subject the boldest scoundrel of the century should be boring, but Mr. Hoyt has succeeded in making his work a long and dreary anticlimax to the excitement promised by the cover.

A one-time student at UNC, Gaston Bullock Means began his career as the dean of conmen in 1915, reached his apogee of audacity during the corrupt years of the Harding Administration, and died still scheming in prison in 1938. During his 23 active years, he served as an espionage agent for Germany while his boss worked for England, used his rather vague connections with the Justice Department to promote magnificent swindles of leading bootleggers, wrote a best-seller proving that Warren Harding was poisoned by his jealous wife, and attempted a flamboyant exploitation of the Linbergh case.

The genius of Gaston Bullock Means lay not in his successes—more often than not his undertakings were spectacular flops. Rather it is to be found in the enormous imagination of this dimpled-cheeked husband and father who was able to convince his clients that even the members of the Supreme Court could be had for a price—if one used the proper Means.

Only occasionally in "Spectacular Rogue," does the flamboyant flavor of this extravagant personality come through. Emerging from a three year stretch in the penitentiary Gaston was met by a crowd of eager newsmen.

"What was he going to do in the future? a reporter asked.

'Anything I can,' Gaston said. And, laughing, he entered the car and was driven away."

Passages such as the above are rare, however, and it is obvious that Mr. Hoyt spent far more time on his impeccable footnotes than he did on his text. In other hands, such extensive documentation could serve as an excellent basis for a psychological discussion of a strange personality, but no such attempt is made by Mr. Hoyt. Neither does he provide the transitional material and conjectural asides needed to evoke a colorful man and his era. We learn little more about Means than the facts of his greed and his dimples.

Nor does the book serve, except indirectly, as an expose of the Harding administration. Mr. Hoyt seems incapable of even the most elementary editing, of finding a point and directing his material towards it. He includes everything he has learned from lengthy research—and he has learned much—but his chapters are the most arbitrary of divisions, his summations and conclusions nonexistant.

Thus, except for an occasional anecdote which managed to creep unnoticed into the author's notes, the value of "Spectacular Rogue" is limited to that provided the historian of the Harding era by the facts and figures. Historical writing being the selective metier that it is, the book's posterity will probably be an occasional footnotial mention in weighty tomes to come. And Gaston Bullock Means, native son and national menace, still awaits a worthy chronicler.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

A Friend!!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Regarding recent letters of criticism of the DTH—I don't agree. So it isn't a NY Times, nor even a Mad magazine. But I think the coverage of Carolina SPU activities and of HUAC's interest in a UNC staff member are news.

If students think such matters are not representative of the student body—to which I agree—then, perhaps, something should be done to establish a more representative image of Carolina. Would an augmented section of cartoons in the DTH do this?

While I don't believe "Blood on the old Well" or Cuban trips are all that UNC has to offer that is newsworthy, neither do I believe the DTH should stick its head in the sand. The Editors have made the best case AGAINST such non-representative groups as the SPU of any student spokesmen. And, thankfully, they have not resigned themselves to trying to make everybody happy. Even Pogo can't do that. I can't help thinking that there is more to an education than keeping up with Peanuts, Pogo, Otelia, and, by means all the weather. They are, no doubt, part of it, but, hopefully, not all. And, of course, if students dislike the paper's version of a Liberal education, isn't that what this column and the vote are for?

Jerry Kroe
314 Aycock

Pro Otelia

Editors, The Tar Heel,

It has been my observation that people have been too free to criticize Otelia Connor too quickly. I am willing to come to her defense on one point. Otelia said that she stirred her coffee with a soup spoon because she wanted to; but I am sure that Otelia had her tongue in her cheek when she said this. I am not sure where Mrs. Connor grew up and not nosy enough to ask her, but in Western South Carolina, where I was reared, it was customary for the very best families — the Aristocracy, no less — to use a soup spoon or even a tablespoon for stirring tea or coffee. My mother said that it was an old English tradition, but one that respectable people still use.

This alone, though, is not enough. There is a recently published pamphlet, Table Customs That Came and Stayed, by Joy M. Journey, which will clear up this point. Mrs. Journey's whose word, I feel, can be trusted, says, "the custom of using a larger spoon than the teaspoon for the coffee originated with the dunking of bread or cookies into the liquids. . . . The cookie was placed into the spoon and lowered into the cup in order to keep the . . . fingers dry." To me this seems reasonable; and I suspect that Otelia has read Mrs. Journey's pamphlet. I suspect that the majority of South Carolina aristocrats still dunk their bread at the table. Inform me if I am wrong.

Betty Powell
Cobb Dormitory

Poor Taste?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I think your recent "cartoon" on the peace marchers was entirely irrelevant and definitely in poor taste.

John Blackford

Bad Manners!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Although it may be a false image, I have always thought of myself as a neat, petite, motherly housewife. Men usually treat me as a lady.

I came to Chapel Hill Friday with my husband to visit his daughter, who is a freshman here. Although he had to return early, I stayed and went to the Graham Memorial Movie, Portrait In Black. I was never so embarrassed when two boys crowding in on either side of me stepped on both of my toes at the same time.

I would appreciate a letter of apology if you two are the kind of Carolina Gentlemen I would want my husband's daughter to marry!

Mrs. W. Stephens
31 Groves
Dennis, N. C.

Three Cheers

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Three cheers for Warren C. Ogden, Jr. and W. S. Berryhill, Jr. They have the right idea.

Christopher Thomas Myers
810 Old Pittsboro Road

Morroccan Army Invades Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI) — The Moroccan army supported by tanks and planes invaded Algeria in strength Monday and "fighting is under way," the government announced Monday night.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, in Morocco for a three-day official visit, was in the ancient city of Marrakech 200 miles from the scene of the border war.

The government announcement after an emergency cabinet meeting followed earlier reports the Moroccan army had recaptured the frontier posts of Hassi Beida and Tinjoub, scene of bloody fighting last week.

President Ahmed Ben Bella, already embroiled in an uprising by Berber tribesmen in the Great Kabylia region, met with the cabinet for an hour to consider the latest crisis in Moroccan relations.

A communique later said the Moroccans crossed the frontier last night in the m'Hamad el Ghouzlan region and advanced 19 miles inside Algeria.

It said despite Moroccan air strikes and attacks by tank troops the Algerian garrisons were holding their ground.

The communique followed immediately on the departure from a tense Algiers of two special emmissaries with a personal message from Ben Bella for King Hassan II of Morocco.

Officials declined to say whether the emissaries will hold out an olive branch or hand down an ultimatum. Tunisia has been trying to prevent the dispute from flaring into warfare but there were no reports of success.

Moroccan dispatches said there was no indication whether the Algerians withdrew from Hassi Beida and Tinjoub on their own volition and whether the Moroccans also attempted to reoccupy Hassi Mouni, a third border point involved in last week's fighting in which 10 to 20 Moroccans were killed.

Moroccan military sources said they believed the Algerian troops had withdrawn without any fighting.

But King Hassan invoked constitutional articles permitting him to call up army reservists and he dispatched strong reinforcements to the tense border.

Ahmed Reda Guedira, acting foreign minister and director general of the royal cabinet, was reported to have declared in Marrakech that "Morocco feels itself obliged to re-install its troops in the post occupied by the Algerians."

Guedira, denounced by the Algerian press as the real power behind the throne, was quoted further as saying it was up to Algeria now to show whether it was ready to discuss the border situation in detail.

The scene of the fighting is an ill-defined border area of mountains and deserts some 550 miles southeast of the Moroccan capital of Rabat and about 550 miles southwest of Algiers. The last fighting there was reported Oct. 8.

The strength of the Algerian armed forces and the Moroccan armed forces are placed at about 60,000 to 75,000 men each.

Part of the Algerian armed forces have been diverted to the restive Kabylia region east of Algiers. Ben Bella had accused Morocco of supporting the Berber rebellion against his one-man rule and of menacing Algeria's borders.

Calm prevailed in the Kabylia region where Berber guerrillas were holding their fire against government occupation troops in former rebel towns.

Ben Bella announced Saturday the uprising launched by the rebel socialist forces front against his regime Sept. 29 had collapsed with only two soldiers killed by rebels in scattered clashes.

Gag Report Considered

A special session of the Faculty Council will meet Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 4 p.m. in Howell Hall to consider the report of a committee appointed, by Dr. George Harper, chairman of the faculty, to prepare and present a resolution concerning the "gag" law.

At the last Faculty Council meeting, held October 4, it was decided that the committee appointed by Dr. Harper, professor and chairman of the Department of English, prepare and present "a resolution expressing our . . . concern . . . regarding the recently enacted legislative restriction upon visiting speakers in state-supported institutions."

Professor of Economics Corydon P. Spruill proposed the formation of the study committee at the October 4 Faculty Council meeting. Prof. Spruill's proposal also included sections authorizing the committee to "request discussion with the University Administration, statements from members of the Faculty, and such other assistance as may be appropriate," and also authorizing the transmission of the completed resolution to the Administration and the Board of Trustees, and requesting that the completed resolution be made public after consideration and action by the Board.

Members of the UNC faculty have been requested to present their ideas and suggestions to members of the committee which is preparing the resolution. Committee members are: Henry Brandis Jr., Dean of the School of Law, who is serving as chairman of the special committee; Frank W. Klingberg, professor of history; Clifford P. Lyons, Kenan Professor of English; Kenan Professor Charles B. Robson of the Department of Political Science; John C. Morrow, professor of chemistry; Warner L. Wells, associate professor of surgery; and Prof. Spruill.

Hale To Sing Here Tonight

Bass-baritone Robert Hale will appear this evening at 8 p.m. in Hill Music Hall, in a free concert sponsored by the Tuesday Evening Series.

Mr. Hale is winner of the 1963 auditions of the National Association of Teachers of Singing, and is presently making a concert tour of the South as the Association's "singer of the year."

The program will contain selections by Bach, Mozart and Gounoud, the four Serious Songs by Brahms, and a collection of art songs by French and American composers. Mr. Hale will be accompanied by pianist Laura Kennedy.

The young singer was recently awarded the Master of Music Education degree from Oklahoma University, where he played leading roles in many opera and musical productions. He has also toured in Europe with an American opera group representing the United States Government and is scheduled to do leading roles in opera productions at the New England Conservatory and Boston University next year.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Symposium Interviews — 2-5:30 & 7-9 p.m., Tues.-Thurs., 2nd floor Y-Bldg., applications in GM or Y-Bldg. Committees include finance, publicity, related discussions, intercollegiate seminar, secretariat, social and hospitality, and physical arrangements.

YDC Executive Committee — 1 p.m., Lenoir Hall, bring membership books.

YWCA Orphanage Committee—4 p.m., Y-Court.

Wesley Foundation Lay Scholars I—6 p.m., Wesley House. Interested persons contact Bob Johnson, 942-2152.

WRC—6:45 .m., Grail Room, GM.

GMAB Publicity Committee—7-8 p.m., GMAB office.

Communications Committee — 5 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM, compulsory attendance.

Eiscopal Acolytes—7 p.m., Old Chapel of the Chapel of the Cross, training session for new members, those unable to attend contact Tom Roberts, DKE, or Jacob Viverette.

SP Legislative vacancies in Cobb (2) and Town Men's IV (2) filled by election at SP meeting—7 p.m., Tues., for extra information contact Phil Baddour, 303 Everett, or Neal Jackson, 7 Old West.

Hospital Committee of the YWCA — 7 p.m. Tues., 203 Alumni.

Meetings with Mr. John Knowles, writer-in-residence — 10:-12:30 a.m., Mon. and Wed.; 2-5 Tues., 312 Bingham.

UNC Outing Club—7 p.m., 302 Woollen Gym.

YMCA Freshman Supper Program speech by Rev. Charles Jones of the Community Church on Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. The speech and discussion period will be followed by a meeting of the members. B.Y.O.T.

Alpha Chi Sigma Slide Rule Class —7:30 p.m., 207 Venable, bring slide rule.

University Party—7:30 p.m., Gerrard Hall.

Board of Adjustment — 8 p.m., Town Hall.

Tuesday Evening Series—8 p.m., Hill Hall, Robert Hale, "Singer of the Year."

UNC Student Wives — 8 p.m., basement of Orange Savings and Loan.

Finance Committee of Student Legislature — 8:30 p.m., Grail Room, GM.

Yack Pictures—1-6 p.m., basement of GM, for sophomores, pharmacy students and late juniors, through Fri.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, October 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in the GM basement.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

MOVIES

Varsity—Rear Window
Carolina—No Love for Johnny

FUTURE

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker I.

YM-YWCA Human Relations Committee—4 p.m., Wed., Y Bldg.

GM Dance Group—4-5:30 p.m. Mon. and Wed., Memorial Hall stage.

Elections Board—5 p.m., Wed., Roland Parker II.

Stray Greeks—6 p.m., Wed., "The Rat."

IDC and CWC—7 p.m., Wed., 4th floor, New East.

A.P.O. rush—7 p.m., Wed., T.V. room of GM.

Wesley Foundation — 7:15 a.m., Wed., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., Communion.

Christian Science Organization—7 p.m., Thurs., Woodhouse, GM.

Dirty Old Men—7:30 p.m., Thurs., Roland Parker I.

Spanish Club—7:30 p.m., Thurs., Faculty Lounge, 4th floor, Dey Hall.

Wesley Foundation Freshman Seminar—9 p.m., Thurs., Wesley House, interested persons contact Paul Davis.

RTVMP informal open house—9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat., at new quarters in Swain Hall.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S
MOTION PICTURE SUSPENSE CLASSIC...STARRING
JAMES STEWART
"REAR WINDOW"
with GRACE KELLY
WENDELL COREY
THELMA RITTER
TECHNICOLOR®
A Paramount Re-Release

Shows at 1 - 3 - 5 - 7 - 9

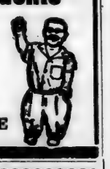
Gory Crime and Dangling Felons—

That's what you'll find in our Old Book Case this week.

This impressive collection of books and pamphlets on true crimes and trial reports is definitely worth looking at, and might even tempt you to a purchase!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

10% DISCOUNT
On Art Materials for Art Students
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE



CLASSIFIED ADS

The Most Treasured Gift Of All from T. L. KEMP Jewelry
135 E. Franklin 942-1331

CO-EDS
See or Call
GRACE E. THORTON
at
Esquire Tailors
For your sewing needs — Alterations — Restyling and Dressmaking.
140½ Franklin St. Ph. 942-6067

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
JOSEPH E. LEVINE PRESENTS A RANK ORGANIZATION PRODUCTION
No Love for Johnnie
starring PETER FINCH
An EMBASSY PICTURES RELEASE
CINEMASCOPE

The New York Life Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358
NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Economical Living Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C., Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill, J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street, Phone RO 2-0411, Wilmington, N. C., D. D. Browning, Owner

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.
BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1
Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes
115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

In A Hurry Breakfast
Orange Juice
Scrambled Eggs with Chunks of Ham
Grits or Hash Browns
Hot Biscuits or Buttered Toast
Coffee or Tea or Hot Chocolate
$1.00
Maximilian's Restaurant
Eastgate Shopping Center

Everyone Goes
Shoney's

Home of the BIG BOY
Durham's Favorite Family Restaurant
2001 AVONDALE DR.
Durham's Favorite Restaurant and Drive-In

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Obese
4. Young boy
7. Lily
8. Arab garments
10. Genealogy
11. Waistcoat
12. Poet
13. Range chain, for an animal
15. Eskimo knife
16. God of pleasure
17. Sun god
18. Trusted
20. Slam, as a door
22. Unit of work
23. Fabulous bird
24. Hogshead
26. Cavalry swords
29. Aloft
30. Lad
31. Japanese sash
32. One of the Apostles
35. Wild goat
36. Sacred image
37. Sandarac tree
38. Plunge into water
39. Hand covering
40. Boy's nickname
41. Donkey

DOWN
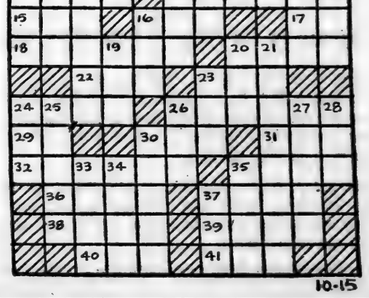
1. Metal rings about a cane
2. Matured
3. Foot digit
4. Washes
5. Incite
6. Punctuation mark
7. Not fresh
9. Severe
12. Prickly seed coat
13. Spread grass to dry
14. Roofing slate
16. Entreat
19. Vex
20. Cut, as the hair
21. Gymnasts
23. Beam
24. Slice
25. Plant insect
26. Ship's call for help
27. Former president of Germany
28. Number
30. Bundled, as cotton
33. Norse war god
34. To stir
35. Flower
37. Candlenut tree

ICE POE
HOWO URAL
PINAS MARES
ERIN VALLEE
PEACHES IDA
OS EAT REST
WRY DOR
PLUS DUSTED
EER HAMSTER
SELLER ERSE
TRIAL STETS
SKIP ETNA
ERS RID

Yesterday's Answer



10-15

—Use Our Classified Ad Service—

Services Available

IF EVERY WIFE KNEW WHAT every widow knows, every husband would be insured. For sound advice on your insurance program, call a Northwestern Mutual Agent, Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Automotive

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1963 YAMAHA SCOOTER—ELECtric starter, turn signals, 3 speed, automatic clutch, red, only 2300 miles. Must sell. Best offer. 967-1185.

Help Wanted — Male

PART - TIME CHAPEL HILL. Busy Fuller Brush man needs 3 or 4 part time men for sales and delivery. Write Box 153, RFD 1, Chapel Hill.

PART - TIME, DURHAM-CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-Ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

PEANUTS

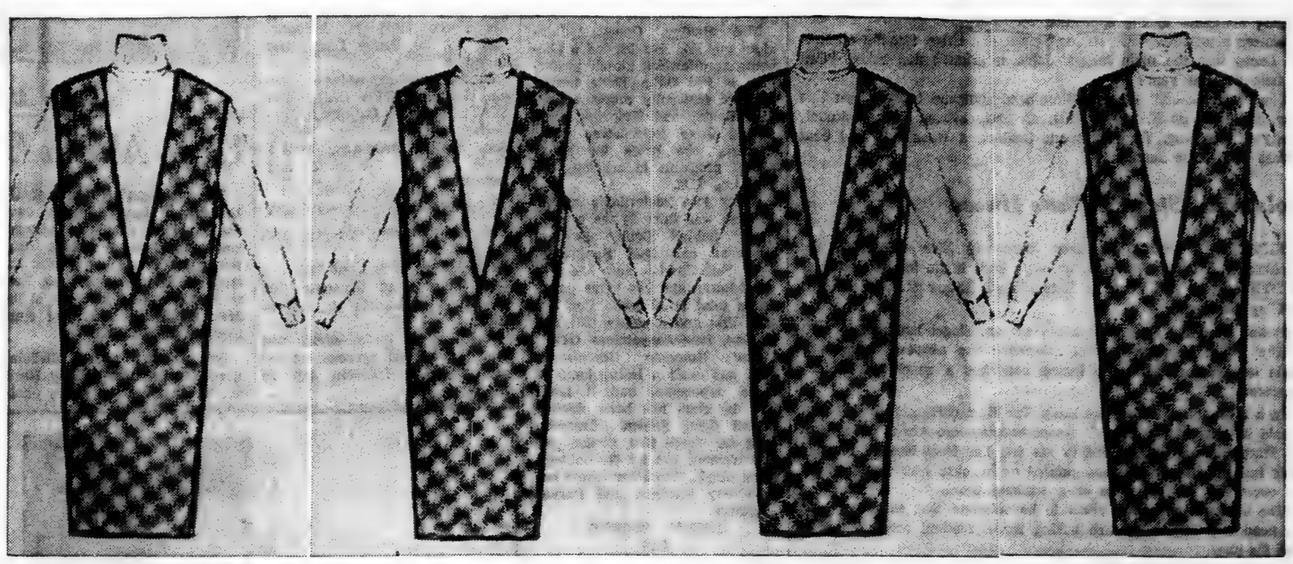
The Slingshot...
Here's The Big Newsmaker On The Campus Now . . .
It's The New Shift Jumper . . . Takes You Any Place . . . Any Time


. . . In Black Plum . . . In Black Green . . . In Black Black . . . In Red Red
Look Young . . . Be Young in the biggest smash hit success of the season . . . this "out of this world" jumper that dares to be different . . . styled with an exaggerated V-front and sides that dip to the waist. A dramatic duo when teamed with your favorite tops. 100% wool flannel, with self-belt if you wish. Turtle neck knit shirts in white and colors at $2.49
$9.99
Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.
OF CHAPEL HILL

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

THEY GRABBED Jim Hickey after the final gun Saturday, threw him roughly onto their shoulders and swiftly escorted him to the middle of the field, Tom Nugent was waiting, and Hickey handed him the crying towel that was initiated in this UNC-Maryland series two years ago. Nugent was the one who needed it this time.

The imaginative Maryland coach had just seen his magnificent passer, Dick Shiner, pick the Terps off the ground (down 7-14) and send them 65 yards through the air and the "1" to the UNC 15 with three minutes left.

He had completed seven of 11 passes along the way, but it was his eighth completion that probably had Nugent in tears. It went to Carolina's Eddie Kesler (after bouncing off Maryland's Darryl Hill and UNC's Jim Eason) in the end zone, and the ballgame, for all practical purposes, was over.

It was a big win for the Tar Heels (now a 3-0 co-leader of the ACC) for it came after three relatively lackluster performances which had people shaking their heads — sometimes in complete disgust.

Even with Junior Edge sidelined opening day, Carolina should not have been held to a four-point win (11-7) over Virginia; the defeat at Michigan State was a pitiful thing to watch — due mostly to poor blocking and the inability of Edge to hit some receivers; and even a 21-0 over Wake Forest did not seem enough. UNC was just supposed to be better than this.

But all of it is, or should be, forgotten now. Because this team, from here, looked as if it came of age last weekend. The offense, with good blocking, moved well under both Edge and Gary Black.

The six interceptions by the defense does not tell the whole story of how completely Carolina stopped Maryland.

The Terps were 11 of 29 through the air (Shiner, nine for 21) but all of that amounted to just 91 yards, about 50 of which came in that final drive. Further, the Tar Heels held feared Len Chiaverini to a net gain of 35 yards in 13 carries. Maryland finally just gave up on the guy. He ran only four times in the second half.

That was the defensive story and that's where Carolina must be tough against NC State Saturday.

Throw It To Him When He's Open

THERE'S ONLY ONE thing that still bothers me along this line. And that is Bob Lacey. Here is a kid that has some of the finest moves from his split end position of any flanker in the country. He runs his patterns brilliantly — and it doesn't matter if they've got one man on him or five.

His record so far this year is 14 catches for 146 yards. But he's only had three in the last two games, and this should be better. The point is they just aren't throwing to him enough when he does have the man beaten.

Up at Michigan State two weeks ago, Lacey continually was open. And he had to beat one of the best, Sherman Lewis, to get that way. But Edge had an off day, and that was that. Against Wake Forest, Lacey caught just one pass — after being the second leading receiver in the NCAA for the first two games. I didn't see the game, but the report was that the Deacons had him blanketed the entire game. Okay.

On Saturday, Edge ran two rollouts deep in Maryland territory. On the first, Lacey was all alone in the end zone. Whether the plays were set up for two runs I don't know. They both worked well, though, for Edge picked up nine yards the first carry and a touchdown the next.

This is fine, and it went great this time. But Lacey is too good to be wasted. And it's going to start counting from now on. I hope he won't be.

Harvey Johnson, player personnel director of the AFL's Buffalo Bills (and a college roommate of Jim Hickey) was up in the press box at College Park. And he seemed impressed with Lacey just making his fakes in the opposition secondary.

Johnson also came down to see Shiner and Edge (among others), but Lacey was the main target. Johnson grinned and asked "Can he help us next year?"

"Next year, heck," I said. "You need someone to help you this year. He could do it." (The Bills, an early season disappointment, finally are coming. They shut out Oakland a week ago and beat Kansas City, 35-26 Sunday.)

Columnist Siegel's Darts Missed

"SIEGEL AT LARGE", a daily column by Morris Siegel in the Washington Evening Star, was at large fault in an interpretation of a DTH column last week by Lois Birinyi. Either that, or he was hard up for ideas.

Quoting from the Friday (Oct. 11) edition, Siegel had this to say:

"The North Carolina student nwspaper has adopted a new attitude toward football. It no longer considers a winning team un-American.

"In a midweek editorial, the Daily Tar Heel eulogized Jim Tatum. It said he was sorely missed. Seven seasons ago when Massa Jim left Maryland for Chapel Hill to get the Tar Heel football foundry going full blast again, he was painted as an ogre who would wreck the university for the sake of a winning team.

"The students nowadays seem to be satisfied that they can hold the academic line. They are asking for a football team that can hold its line.

"The editorial message in the student paper was clear. It was a thinly disguised hint to Coach Jim Hickey that he'd better get his team going or he himself might get going.

"This is not the first threat the amiable Hickey has faced since he was thrust suddenly into the head coaching job after the death of Tatum in July, 1959. However, this probably is the most serious one.

". . . Beating Duke alone apparently is no longer considered job security at North Carolina. If it were, Hickey probably wouldn't have anything to fear.

"Hickey coached the Tar Heels to their lone victory over Notre Dame also. This isn't enough either, it seems. The cry is for more wins, starting tomorrow against Maryland.

Well, I'm sorry Mr. Siegel couldn't find something else to write about or some other coach to cut up. However, he shouldn't take too much blame. He's probably in the practice this season of throwing printed darts at football coaches. Maryland's 0-4, George Washington's 0-4 and Navy . . . well, let's forget that.

Billy Makes Guessing Look Easy

AND SO WHAT if Billy Cunningham picked both of the Notre Dame (17-14 over Southern Cal) and Air Force (17-13 over Nebraska) upsets? and smashed everybody in that ridiculous Horrorscope with 11 out of 20 right (four were ties)? My jumper's better than his.

Booters Post First Victory

George Beim (left) Checks Opposition

UNC defenseman stops Washington University (of St. Louis) forward on drive as Carolina's Park McGinty moves back up field. Action came in second half of yesterday's first home soccer game of the year. After two straight shutout defeats on the road, UNC finally got its offense moving and smashed the visitors from St. Louis by 6-0. Pete Blake led the attack with two goals while Jim Talbot contributed a goal and two assists. —Photo by "Boots" Wallace

St. Louis Team Is Shutout Victim, 6-0

By RON LOGAN

North Carolina's offensive finally jelled after two frustrating losses as the Tar Heels demolished Washington University of St. Louis 6-0 on Fetzer Field Monday afternoon.

Pete Blake, George Beim and Bill Haywood made Coach Marvin Allen's revamped lineup look like the team they were touted to be when the season opened.

Reeling from two straight shutout losses, the Tar Heels regrouped their forces and threw a potent offense at the St. Louis squad which had to fight desperately to prevent the game from turning into a complete rout.

Marty Krumming, a new face in the UNC lineup, booted in Carolina's first goal of the season with only one minute elapsed, and from there on it was just a question of how high the Heels would run up the score.

Jim Talbot scored 16 minutes after Krumming, co-captain Blake rammed in two second quarter goals, and Drew Murphy along with Haywood tallied one goal apiece in the second half to account for the UNC scoring.

Washington U. seldom mustered a threat during the contest, and Carolina goalies Buddy Siegel and Tom Roberts had only nine saves between them and seven of those were in the initial half.

"We are very pleased with the results of our lineup changes. We got just what we wanted—a more aggressive forward line which added a lot of offensive punch," beamed Coach Allen who was obviously happy with the way his team played.

Although the visitors were never in the game after the first quarter, they managed to frustrate several Tar Heel scoring opportunities.

Norb Iguaran, Tarakii Serif, and Gus Granados were outstanding on defense, but their teammates could not give them the support they needed.

Coach Joe Carenzh's Washington squad was unable to stop Carolina's smooth passing, and they seemed to be bewildered by the rough brand of play which typified the contest.

The victory gave Carolina a 1-2 mark and sent Washington down to its third straight defeat, including a 5-3 loss at the hands of Duke Saturday afternoon.

Coach Carenzh commented that "Carolina will have a real tough time beating Duke this year. The score was closer Saturday, but they seem to have a little better balance and make fewer mistakes than North Carolina did today."

Next on tap for the Tar Heels is a Thursday afternoon contest with North Carolina State in Raleigh, and next Thursday the soccermen take on Pfeiffer College here in Chapel Hill.

SCORING

UNC .....2 2 1 1—6
Washington U. .....0 0 0 0—0

First Period: Kruming (UNC) 1:00 (Assist Talbot); Talbot (UNC) 17:00.

Second Period: Blake (UNC) 3:00 (Assist Talbot); Blake (UNC) 21:50.

Third Period: Haywood (UNC) 13:00 (Assist Talbot)

Fourth Period: Murphy (UNC) 11:30

Saves: Siegel (UNC) 7; Roberts (UNC) 2; Karel (Washington U.) 20.

Texas Looms Large In Poll's Top Spot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas' Longhorns bulled their way into first place and upsets completely jumbled major college football's top 10 in the weekly ratings of the United Press International board of coaches Monday.

Not a single member of the top 10 remained in the same position as last week and only three of the elite emerged with unbeaten-untied records.

Wisconsin jumped to second place from fifth, idle Pittsburgh moved up a notch to third, Ohio State skipped three places to fourth despite a tie and Oklahoma, No. 1 last week before its 28-7 licking by the Longhorns, fell to fifth.

Three Southeastern Conference teams, Georgia Tech, Mississippi and Alabama in order filled the sixth through eighth spots.

Illinois, a newcomer to the list along with Ole Miss, tied Alabama for the eighth position and Northwestern ranked 10th. The Wildcats and Georgia Tech returned to the ranking after a week's absence.

Defending champion and twice-beaten Southern California, ninth last week, dropped completely out of the first 20 after its loss to Notre Dame.

Texas drew 30 first-place votes and Wisconsin picked up the other five from the 35-man board of coaches. The Longhorns piled up the biggest point total of the season in the ratings, 344 out of a possible maximum of 350. Points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th places.

Navy and Penn State, upset victims last Saturday, fell from sixth and eighth to 11th and 12th respectively. Duke, 13th, along with 18th-ranked Missouri, were the only teams to maintain their ratings from last week. Louisiana State finished 14th, Oregon, 15th and Auburn 16th.

The Air Force ranked 17th and Notre Dame and Syracuse tied for 19th to complete the top 20 teams.

Georgia Tech hosts Auburn and Penn State visits Syracuse in the only meetings between top 20 powers.

| Team | Points |
|---|---|
| 1. Texas 30 (4-0) | 344 |
| 2. Wisconsin 5 (3-0) | 304 |
| 3. Pittsburgh (3-0) | 215 |
| 4. Ohio State (2-0-1) | 146 |
| 5. Oklahoma (2-1) | 123 |
| 6. Georgia Tech (3-1) | 113 |
| 7. Mississippi (2-0-1) | 108 |
| 8. Tie Alabama (3-1) | 98 |
| 8. Tie Illinois (2-0-1) | 98 |
| 10. Northwestern (3-1) | 77 |

Second 10—11, Navy (62); 12, Penn State (27); 13, DUKE (25); 14, Louisiana State (23); 15, Oregon (22); 16, Auburn (17); 17, Air Force (15); 18, Missouri (13); 19, tie, Notre Dame and Syracuse (12).

Others receiving votes — Florida, Iowa, NORTH CAROLINA STATE, Southern California, Mississippi State, Southern Methodist, Army, Arkansas, Iowa State, Baylor, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Mac Boxley, George Wainright and OH Parrish led a phenomenal offensive attack yesterday as Phi Delta Theta buried TEP in fraternity mural action, 61-0. Boxley and Wainright each scored three touchdowns while Parrish, who leads the entire mural program in scoring, tallied two TDs.

Going into yesterday's action, Parrish was third in the scoring derby behind Bobby Cox of Emerson and Bud Rankin of Zeta Psi. Parrish now has five touchdowns and two extra points for a total of 32 while Cox has four TDs and a safety (26) and Rankin, four six-pointers (24).

Cox' Emerson Cardplayers club has dealt a losing hand to three opponents, and it looks like the deck has been stacked in all three games. Emerson beat Air Force 53-0, Craige 39-0 and Winston 35-0 for the unblemished mark. Two other teams are 3-0—Navy Mermen and Parker Panthers.

MURAL SCORES

4:00

DU 26, AKPsi 0
Sigma Chi 6, Pi Lamb 0
Pi Kap Phi-Lambda Chi (postponed, snow)
PiKA 15, Delta Sig 13
Phi Delta 61, TEP 0
Tecumseh 36, Tyler 12

5:00

Med School II 9, Law School IV 6
Aycock Aardvarks 49, Victory Village 2
Chi Psi 23, Beta 0
Phi Kap Sig 14, ZBT 6
ATO 39, St. Anthony Hall 0

TODAY'S GAMES

4:00

Town Lodgers vs. Navy Mermen
Ehringhaus A vs. Winston Terps
Grimes Gallants vs. Manly Riverrats

5:00

Geology vs. Dent School III
Med School I vs. Law School II
Chi Phi vs. Pi Kap Phi
Pi Lamb vs. Kappa Psi
ZBT vs. SAE
Alexander Playboys vs. Joyner Giants

SPORTS

Daily Tar Heel

Marvin Allen In Distress

How About These Bananas?

The managerial ranks of the Dominican League were completed when Clemente (Sungo) Carreras, veteran Cuban skipper, agreed to terms to pilot Estrellas Orientales last week. Carreras managed Monterrey in the Mexican League the past summer, COMPRENDE?

One further note: Birthday greetings go today to Mel Harder, for the last few years pitching coach of the Cleveland Indians. The veteran, who was fired last week after years of service in favor of Early Wynn, is 44. Happy Birthday, Mel.

Knicks On TV

The New York Knickerbockers' contest with the Baltimore Bullets, January 2, will launch the National Basketball Association's 11-game television schedule, it was as announced by J. Walter Kennedy, President of the NBA.

One game will be carried each week — on a Thursday — through March 12. There will be a blackout in the home city as well as any other city in which another NBA contest is being played.

BASKETBALL

Coach Ken Rosemond requests that all interested candidates for the freshman basketball team report to him DRESSED FOR PRACTICE on the gym floor tonight at 7:15.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Coordinators Al Long and Dean Smith announce that the second meeting of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) will be held Thursday night (Oct. 17) in 304 Woollen Gymnasium at 8:00.

VISIT OUR PARTY SHOP For HALLOWEEN SUPPLIES

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Halloween is Oct. 31

GET READY

Things are happening! Leaves are falling and the early morning air is getting sharper. But, best of all the State game weekend is coming up. So, gents, get ready for it all by visiting the Varsity Men's Wear which carries nationally known brands such as:

Hart Schaffner and Marx, famous suits and sport coats in 100% worsted wools and exclusive combinations Eagle Shirts, in beautiful stripes and solids with the perfect B.D. collar.

Florsheim Shoes — Wingtips, saddle cordovans, tassel loafers and many others, all in the Imperial models. All these and many other famous brands, now at the

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

THE FLAT TOP

THE FLAT TOP is popular today for athletes, the carefree, or the man with unruly hair, yet it takes the proper shaped head and face for this cut to make your appearance correct.

Come in and ask if the FLAT TOP, a variation of this cut, or if any of the other masculine styles will fit you better. Our barbers can create any of them for you.

Carolina Barber Shop

Free Parking 131 E. Franklin St.

Follow this series each week

The Traditional Blazer . . .

For many years a favorite of the well-dressed college man is still going strong. At THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL you'll be able to choose the classic blazer in many striking colors including navy camel and burgundy.

There simply aren't enough words to properly pay tribute to this classic jacket, so may we suggest that you stop in today and see them yourself.

Priced from Twenty nine ninety-five.

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

Bass OUTDOOR FOOTWEAR

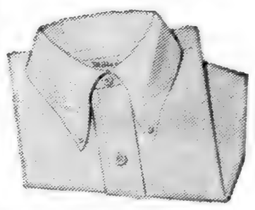
WEEJUNS

HIS: Antique Brown, Black, Genuine Cordovan & Scotch Grain

HERS: Stained Brown, Antique Red & Navy in Loafers

Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

*T.L.C. Is the Hidden Secret In Milton's Fabulous M-2



*Tender Loving Care!

1. Perfect roll collar.
2. True single needle tailoring.
3. Twenty stitches to the inch.
4. Non-breakable buttons that will not yellow.
5. Tapered body and chest.
6. Taller more flattering collar.
7. Double pleat on barrel cuff.
8. Buttons sewed on with lock stitch.
9. 330 weight in the white combed Greenwood oxford.
10. Eleven inch tapered sleeve on all M-2 half sleeves.
11. Die cut for perfect sizing and shaping on collars and bands. (The die cutting insures the painstaking uniformity of fit and protects against the sloppy bulge commonly referred to as the "arch flair")
12. Die cut, hand turned and then pressed on blade especially cut for this purpose.
13. M-2 is completely hand-pressed.
14. Every shirt is triple inspected.
15. Extra stitching at collar point to insure sharp point.

All these important steps are accomplished at $5.95 for white combed Greenwood oxfords and $6.50 for solid colors and our fascinating multitude of candy stripes

16. Made by our own shirtmaker in model Singer plant.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.
★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Fair and warmer

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1963 | United Press International Service

Women More Honorable

16 Per Cent Of Students Not Interested In Honor

By PETE WALES
Second of Five Articles

Over one-half of the students polled last spring on their attitudes toward the Honor and Campus Codes said they believe the Honor System works better than any other system would.

One-third of the students replied they did not know. This may be because of a lack of first - hand knowledge of other systems in operation. About 14 per cent thought another system would work better.

Student support of the Campus Code was greater with about two-thirds of the respondents endorsing it. About one-fourth had some doubts and 11 per cent of the males and 7 per cent of the females felt it should be discontinued.

The main reasons for supporting the Campus Code were:

1) The Code serves as a standard of conduct;

2) It develops responsibility;

3) It gives a feeling of pride in UNC;

4) It maintains order.

Those who were doubtful of the Code's effectiveness said it was vague and too difficult to enforce.

The vast majority of students expressed personal interest in the Honor System and its operation. Eight out of ten males and nearly nine out of ten females reported "quite a bit" or "very much" interest.

Females Had More Interest

About 20 per cent of the males and 12 per cent of the females reported little or no interest in the system. At all class levels females reported stronger interest than did males.

As for the effectiveness of the Honor System, over three-fourths of the students said it "cuts down" the amount of cheating. Over 20 per cent said they thought the system had little or no effect.

No women and only one per cent of the men thought the system had a reverse effect.

From the freshman to the senior year, the effects of the system were believed to decrease.

The same trend was noticed among students who felt that the Honor System should be replaced by something else. A comparatively greater number of seniors believe the system should be discarded, most of them favoring a proctor system.

On another question, only one out of ten said they would prefer a proctor system to the Honor System. About half supported the system as it now is and over 40 per cent felt the system should be kept but that changes should be made.

Of the suggested changes, many students felt the system should be stricter and better enforced. They said that trials should be public and that violators should be pointed out to remind students of the consequences of offenses.

Others said that the Honor System should be publicly stressed often, and the incoming students should be thoroughly indoctrinated.

Reminders Needed

Several also thought that upper classmen should be reminded of the importance of the system each year.

A few thought that less impersonality between student and professor would result in more acceptance of the Honor System.

Given four possible alternatives, students were asked what body they would prefer to be tried by if they should commit a violation of the Code. The majority listed the following order:

1) The Honor Council;

2) The faculty member concerned;

3) A faculty committee;

4) The University administration.

Nine out of ten picked the Honor Council as either their first or second choice.

However, only 55 per cent of the females and 42 per cent of the males claimed they were familiar with the procedures of the Honor Council. An additional 43 per cent of the males and 42 percent of the females said they were partly acquainted with the Council's procedures.

Many of the students "unacquainted" with the procedures of the Council were graduate students.

Procedures Approved

About two-thirds of the students said they approved of the procedures of the Honor Council while 20 per cent replied "don't know." The latter figure may come from a lack of understanding of procedures.

Only 15 per cent of the males and 10 per cent of the females said they did not approve of Council procedures.

About 70 per cent of the students said they respected the competence and judgment of the Honor Council members while about five per cent reported no respect at all. Nearly 80 per cent felt the Council tried to be fair and impartial in judging cases, while 20 per cent said "don't know."

About half the students felt the sentences of the Council were "about right" while 25 per cent were evenly split between "too severe" and "not severe enough." The females had a larger percentage of "too severe" answers than the males.

On the question of sentences about one-fifth of the males and one-third of the females replied "don't know." This figure corresponds to the number of "don't know" answers on the other questions involving procedure.

About half the students said they knew of no one who had been tried by the Council during the current year. Females knew fewer people tried than did males and freshmen and sophomores knew fewer than juniors and seniors.

This also might be reason for "don't know" answers on other questions of procedure.

DKE Named 'Top House'

Delta Kappa Epsilon was awarded the R. B. House Outstanding Fraternity Award for 1962-63 at an IFC meeting Monday night.

IFC President Charlie Battle made the presentation to DKE President Bill Davis.

Phi Delta Theta finished second in the competition with Delta Upsilon and Alpha Tau Omega tied for third.

Others in order of finish were: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Epsilon Phi, Sigma Nu, and Kappa Sigma.

Winners of the award are selected annually by the Faculty Committe on Fraternities and Sororities. Points are awarded for six areas of contribution and achievement: scholarship, campus representation, intramurals, IFC participation, house appearance, and faculty-student relations.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Committee Endorses Kennedy Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday left it up to President Kennedy to decide whether to use foreign aid as a device to further the anti-Communist war in South Viet Nam.

Because the President already has discretionary authority to extend or withhold aid to any nation not specifically barred by Congress, the committee's move seemed to be an endorsement of Kennedy's avowed policy of taking any action deemed necessary to win the Viet Nam war.

The committee's action came on voice vote adoption of an amendment to the President's $4.5 billion foreign aid request. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The committee took no action on another, much stronger Church proposal to cut off all U. S. aid to South Viet Nam unless President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime undertakes drastic reforms.

Ben Bella Mobilizes Army

ALGIERS (UPI) — The Algerian guerrilla army that defeated France was mobilized Tuesday by President Ahmed Ben Bella to battle an invading Moroccan army he estimated at 4,000 men supported by tanks and planes flown by "foreigners."

Both Algeria and Morocco claimed victory in the 24-hour-old battle swirling through the Sahara Desert border wastelands, while Ben Bella's emissaries conferred in Marrakech, Morocco, with King Hassan II in hopes of a truce.

Ben Bella appeared before a mass rally in the Algeria Forum Tuesday night and announced mobilization of the troops who defeated France's most able units in seven years of fighting. He also appealed to all able bodied men to report for military duty.

Police Enter Racial Dispute

BIRMINGHAM, Ala (UPI) — Birmingham's Fraternal Order of Police stepped into the city's latest racial dispute Tuesday by presenting a petition to City Council opposing the addition of Negroes to the force.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and other integration leaders have demanded such action as the price for preserving racial peace in this steel city.

King, the Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth and their aides met Tuesday to decide their next move in the dispute.

A group of about 30 policemen delivered the petition to the City Council while it was holding its weekly meeting Tuesday morning.

WUNC RADIO

Wednesday

6:00 The Dinner Hour—
Rimsky - Korsakov: Russian Easter Overture
Schubert: Serenade
Saint-Saens: Symphony No. 3, C Minor
6:55 News
7:00 This is a Friendly World
7:15 South Africa
7:30 Lincoln Story
7:45 Let's Talk About Aging
8:00 Masterwork—
Mozart: Concerto No. 20
Schubert: Moments Musicaux
Dvorak: Symphony No. 5
Milhaud: Suite Francais
10:00 Ten O'Clock Report
10:15 Repeat: Hill Hall
12:00 News

Wins Burdick Award

A University physician doing research on a mysterious, inherited bleeding disease has won the 30th annual Ward Burdick Award.

The coveted award for outstanding research in clinical pathology has been conferred on Dr. Kenneth M. Brinkhous, head of the Department of Pathology at the UNC School of Medicine.

He was co-recipient of the award in 1941 for his work on vitamin K, a vitamin essential for normal blood clotting.

Dr. Brinkhous delivered the traditional Ward Burdick scientific address in which he described the use of blood transfusions in the treatment of "bleeders" (hemophiliacs).

His research since 1947 has centered on a colony of hemophilic dogs here.

Dr. Brinkhous is noted for his research in blood diseases. He served on a special blood study committee of the U. S. Public Health Service for four years and in 1954 was named chairman of a special subcommittee of the National Research Council assigned to a study of blood clotting.

Bill Needs Teeth Pulled Says Bobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy told the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday to pull some of the teeth from its proposed civil rights bill that was shaping up much tougher than the administration recommended.

At a closed-door showdown session, Kennedy told both Republicans and Democrats on the key committee that he would prefer to seek a weaker bill enacted rather than see a stronger one go down to defeat in the House or Senate.

"What I want is a bill, not an issue," the Justice Department head told newsmen after the meeting.

Kennedy urged modification of sweeping provisions on voting, public accommodations and the authority of the Justice Department to initiate civil rights suits as drafted by a judiciary subcommittee. The stiff proposals were adopted by a House judiciary subcommittee and caused a deadlock in the parent committee.

Committee Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) and Rep. William M. McCulloch (R-Ohio), senior GOP member of the committee, said the attorney general's softer stand should end the impasse and gain bipartisan support for the President's civil rights program.

However, it seemed certain that Kennedy's willingness to jettison some of the tougher features of the measure would draw fire from Negro leaders and other civil rights advocates.

In a statement made public after the committee session, Kennedy said:

"A strong civil rights bill can only be enacted if this committee and this Congress put aside partisan considerations and both political parties work together toward that end. Differences as to approach and emphasis must not be permitted to be escalated into the arena of politics or else the country will be the loser."

He endorsed the judiciary subcommittee's action in approving a strong provision to create a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC). Kennedy said the administration was for such a proposal either as part of the overall civil rights package or as a separate measure.

It has been almost four months since President Kennedy urged Congress to act on the civil rights issue, and the legislation has yet to emerge from the House Judiciary Committee. The bill still must pass the House before going to the Senate, where a Southern filibuster awaits it.

Playmakers Cut Prices For Opener

Beginning today, UNC students may purchase opening night tickets at a specially reduced price of one dollar each for the musical comedy "Little Mary Sunshine," which will begin its seven-performance run in the Playmakers Theater next Tuesday evening.

Th 330 opening night tickets will be on sale today in the Y-Court (9 to 1), Lenoir Hall (lunch and dinner), and at Graham Memorial Information Desk.

By presenting I.D. cards, students may purchase these general admission tickets for themselves and their dates, at a saving of one-half over the regular ticket price on other nights of the run.

Playmakers' business manager, John Parker said the general public will not be sold tickets at any price to the opening night performance. The occasion is designed only for University student theatergoers and their dates.

In the event this "Playmakers Opening Night for Students" plan meets with popular reception, the policy of reduced prices for these occasions will be continued for the rest of the season, Parker said.

AT SEMINAR

Kenan Professor of Mathematics A. T. Brauer is one of six speakers at an international seminar on "Recent Advances in Matrix Theory" at the Research Center of the United States Army at the University of Wisconsin this week. The title of his two lectures is "Characteristic Roots of Non-negative Matrices".

Dirty Rush Charges Brought Against ATO's

University Ready To Host State, WC At CU Day, Sat.

By HUGH STEVENS

Chapel Hill throws open its doors Saturday to welcome visitors and alumni in the annual celebration of Consolidated University Day.

The day will feature numerous activities, including the traditional battle between State and Carolina, the CU Day Queen contest, and a meeting of the Consolidated University Student Council. The Council is sponsoring CU DAY.

Girls from the Greensboro campus will arrive by bus in time to be met at various men's dorms and be escorted to the game. This year, for the first time, they will have passes which will allow them to sit anywhere in the student section. Several men's dorms will hold receptions after the game for the girls and their dates.

Numerous visitors are also expected from the State campus for the contest, which is expected to be a sell-out.

The CUSC will meet with President Friday at his home at 10 a.m. for a discussion of the speaker ban law and other matters. They will also have a dinner meeting at Lenoir Hall Saturday evening. The officers of the Council will have lunch with President Friday and members of the Board of Trustees for further discussion.

The CUSC will present an award to retiring Chancellor William B. Aycock during the halftime ceremonies of the football game. The award will honor Aycock's record as a staunch defender of academic freedom.

Also included at halftime will be the crowning of the annual Consolidated University Queen, who will be selected from nominees from all three campuses.

Increased alumni participation will be emphasized in a reception scheduled after the game at Finley Golf Course, sponsored by the Educational Foundation.

CU Day will conclude with a dance in Woollen Gym at 8 o'clock for all University students and their guests, sponsored by the IDC.

Charges Brought Against Martin

William T. Martin, 21, of Bristol, Va., will be charged Thursday with manslaughter and reckless driving as a result of an auto crash Friday night that killed Robertson C. Albright, 20, of Gastonia.

Highway Patrolman B. W. Lacock said Tuesday that the charge would not be formally made until Thursday because Martin's lawyer would be present then and could arrange bond on the spot. Lacock said that bond would be set at $1,000.

Albright, a University of North Carolina junior, died of skull and chest fractures when the convertible in which he was riding skidded out of control and overturned on Old Lystra Rd., three and a half miles southeast of here.

Lacock said that Martin had admitted to him that he had been drinking at the time. Lacock estimated the speed of the car to be in excess of 75 m.p.h. at the time of the crash.

Martin was reported uninjured. Lacock said that two girls were in the car at the time of the crash. Mary Roper, 20, of Kingsport, Tenn., a University coed was reported by Lacock to have been shaken up in the accident but apparently escaped serious injury.

With Martin in the front seat, Lacock said, was Susan Earnhardt, 22, of Kingsport, Tenn., a student at Queens College in Charlotte.

Lacock said Miss Earnhardt suffered a broken jaw and possible other injuries. He said that she had been transferred to a hospital in Kingsport.

Martin's trial on reckless driving will probably be held Nov. 1 in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court, Lacock said. His preliminary hearing on the manslaughter charge will also be around Nov. 1.

Albright and Martin were roommates and were brothers in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

ASIAN GRANTS

The East-West Center in Honolulu is again offering 100 scholarships for graduate study at the University of Hawaii which include field study in Asia for those who qualify.

Valued at about $8500, these scholarships are for a two-year period beginning in September 1964. Full tuition, living expenses, plus round-trip transportation from the student's home and a small personal allowance, are provided.

American students will join students from Asia and the Pacific Area for intercultural exchange in East-West Center Residence Halls, and in classes and campus activities of the University of Hawaii.

Students eligible for scholarship consideration must have a high scholastic standing, a deep interest in Asian affairs and plan to study an Asian language.

Full information may be obtained by writing the Director of Student Selection, East-West Center, University of Hawaii, Honolulu, Hawaii 96822.

OPEN HOUSE

The Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures will hold an informal open house Saturday, in its new quarters in Swain Hall.

All students and faculty members are invited to drop in and see their facilities between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Hearings Today

The Ways and Means Committee of Student Legislature will hold hearings today at 6:30 p.m. in Woodhouse Room on the bill calling for "individual commitment to the attainment of equal rights."

SP Chairman Neil Jackson, who introduced the bill at a Legislature session last week, said, "We want to know how all types of groups feel about this issue, and those interested are welcome to speak."

The bill calls the attainment of equal rights "probably the most significant social issue facing the United States."

Gave Pins Too Early Is Charge

By PETE WALES

Alpha Tau Omega will be tried before the Inter-Fraternity Court tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. on two charges of "dirty rush," it was decided at an IFC meeting Monday night.

The ATO's are formally charged with:

1) Giving pledge pins to rushees who had "shaken up" on Wednesday night of rush week.

2) Transporting rushees between houses during rushing hours.

On the first charge, fraternities can not "shake up" a rushee until the last night of rush, in this case Thursday of rush week. A rushee "shakes up" by committting himself to a fraternity.

Other charges against the ATO's have been dropped, either because of insufficient evidence or because they were cleared, according to Court President Brooks Emory.

About other rumored instances of "dirty rush" Emory said "No other charges or complaints have been filed."

Possible penalties for violation of rushing rules range from general probation (a type of reprimand) to loss of rushing privileges.

In other business, the IFC set up a deferred rush committee and selected Ned Martin, vice-president of the IFC, as chairman.

The committee will study the problems that deferred rush, scheduled to begin next year, will bring up. It will also propose the procedures and rules for deferred rushing to the IFC.

The IFC also discussed plans for an investigation of its rules and procedures during the next month.

"We may have to completely revise all our judicial procedures and by-laws," Charlie Battle, president of the IFC, said.

PLACEMENT ANNUALS

Seniors and graduate students can pick up their free copies of the 1964 College Placement Annual from the Placement Service, 206 Gardner Hall. The annual contains a directory of business and industrial firms that employ college graduates. Helpful articles for the job seeker are included with the employment indexes.

Career for the College Man, a similar publication, is also being distributed.

Honest To God

Honest to God will be the subject an informal discussion group of graduate students will explore beginning Wednesday, at 9:00 p.m. at the Council Room of the Presbyterian Student Center.

The group will hold informal discussions of Bishop J. A. T. Robinson's controversial book, "Honest To God," and his thesis that Christianity needs to be disentangled from religion and that the image of God not only in popular piety but also in orthodox theology is outmoded.

Mixed Reactions Shown To Gag Law By Faculty

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

University faculty members had mixed reactions Monday to a weekend speech in which Pulitzer Prize-winning author Paul Green of Chapel Hill accused them of not speaking out against the so-called speaker gag law.

Green, asked to clarify the statement he made at a University Day ceremony Saturday, issued an even stronger indictment of the faculty.

Green said Monday, "Professors and researchers are busy discovering and searching for truth, but they do darned little to see if that truth prevails in our society," Green said.

"The teachers here should be on the public firing line," he said. "They are the men who have the knowledge, then they should try to see that it is used for the benefit of the society in which they live.

"I am not criticizing this faculty more than any other," Green said. "It's just that a faculty sometimes disclaims their social responsibility to what they discover."

Faculty reaction to Green's initial charge of silence about the gag law went like this:

"The faculty is doing something," said Arnold Nash, chairman-elect of the local branch of the American Association of University Professors, a prestigious national faculty organization.

"Mr. Green cannot prove that the faculty is not doing something about it. What he means is that the faculty isn't making a great noise about it.

"The real trouble," Nash said, "is that the legislature has taken over the powers which involve the day-to-day running of the university. That should be left to the trustees."

Walter Spearman, journalism professor, said he agreed with Green's statement.

"I think it was a healthy thing to say," Spearman said. "Mr. Green's talk was a challenge for the faculty to speak out. The faculty is almost unanimously opposed to the gag law, but rather than speak individually, they speak through the faculty council or the AAUP.

Economics professor C. P. Spruill said that some steps toward faculty expression on the gag law will be made this month. "I am not as 'surprised' as Mr. Green was," Spruill said. "This doesn't mean that we have been silent, or that we will be."

At the first meeting of the faculty council this month, Spruill proposed the formation of a study committee to prepare and present a resolution opposing the gag law.

After the council acts on the measure at a special session Oct. 22, it will then be presented to the board of trustees before being made public.

Indications are that the statement will contain strong wording in opposition to the gag law.

Political science instructor Raymond Dawson said, "The faculty is deeply concerned about this matter. If Mr. Green means that the faculty is keeping silent because they don't care, then I will have to disagree with him."

One of Dawson's colleagues in political science, Gordon Cleveland, an Orange county commissioner, agreed with Green.

"I think that most of us will probably agree that there has not been much of a cry from the faculty, but there has to be a certain amount of political strategy involved in something like this."

"Many of the faculty are waiting for the administration to see what they want them to do. After all," Cleveland continued, "we can't have too many people speaking officially for the University."

Mathematics professor Ernest Mackie had only one comment. "I wondered at the time why Mr. Green said that," he said.

Wesley Wallace, chairman of the department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures said, "I have protested as a faculty member through the University. Most of the faculty are doing what they can in their various ways to oppose the gag law."

"I would hope that was not true," Frank W. Klingburg, professor of history said of Green's remark.

"I think that many of our faculty members have written letters to the legislature stating their opposition to the law."

Volume 72, Number 22 Wednesday, October 16, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

'Why All These Danged Demonstrations'?

Until recently, we were not fully aware of the storm of bilious anger which demonstrations and other forms of civil disobedience stir up in our more orthodox elders around the state and elsewhere.

But, we have since been educated on that point.

Wow, do some of them ever see red!

It might be well, therefore, for those of our orthodox elders who chance to read these columns, if we devote a few moments to explaining our understanding of such activities.

Demonstrations, as we view them, have basically three purposes.

The first is to provide the means whereby a person who feels strongly about some matter can express his convictions forcefully and emphatically; can stand up and be counted.

The second purpose has to do with education, in the sense of enlightenment about a situation which the demonstrator feels needs to be brought to public attention.

The third purpose is to create such a nuisance that someone in a position of responsibility does something positive, if only to end all the fuss and bother being caused by the demonstrators.

* * *

As we see it, furthermore, there are two basic reasons why demonstrations have come into such popularity.

The first reason concerns our unfolding Civil Rights revolution. Enough Civil Rights proponents finally got up enough steam a few years ago to do something about the lack of equality conferred upon Negro Americans. They tried talking, negotiating, pleading and cajoling, but all to no avail. They finally determined that the only way to break down segregation was to take to the streets. What other technique was available? All the other ones were tried but, if anything, resulted only in a hardening of the Stagnant Quo.

This technique, in addition, had the merit of welding Civil Rights proponents together as one. It unified and strengthened them. More importantly, it worked. Segregation laws began to come down.

Secondly, and more important for our purposes, the technique of non-violent direct action struck a respondent chord in the fibre of Americans living in an age characterized by Big Business, Big Labor, Big Government, Big Everything — an age that seems to increasingly dwarf the efforts of an individual to count for something, if only because he is small and so much else is so big.

Here, in non-violent direct action — or picketing — was a way in which a single concerned individual could count for something; a way in which he could do something concrete to clothe his convictions with action and effectiveness.

This obviously, is where we are today.

* * *

In the final analysis, then, demonstrations are nothing more nor less than a continuation of man's age-old desire to do something about the things that cross his mind and vex his conscience.

If orthodox elders will take the time and make the effort to consider demonstrations in this light, they might find our fast-changing world makes a lot more sense to them than it obviously does at present.

Mayhem And Some Slinky Little Foxes

This coming weekend we play State in what should be one of the best games of the season. But aside from watching a good ball game, the weekend will afford us a chance to get together with the other members of the Consolidated University.

State will of course be well represented, as they always are on such occasions, and better than that, Woman's College will probably have half their student body here. And they have some nice student bodies over there.

The point is, no matter how hotly the game is contested, the pre-game and post-game periods can be spent meeting fraternity brothers or friends from Raleigh, or maybe latching on to some slinky little fox from Greensboro.

That's a lot more fun than painting stadiums, so let's confine the mayhem to the football players and playing field.

Maryland Fraternities Serve Own Interest

We learned this week that the Inter-Fraternity Council at the University of Maryland is sponsoring an all-campus concert featuring the Chad Mitchell Trio. As if sponsoring an all-campus event wasn't enough, the Fraternity Council is donating all of the proceeds to charity.

We don't know what shape the fraternity system is in at Maryland, but if they are in the same bind the fraternities here are in, it would seem they have begun the same kind of a public relations job that has been sorely needed here for several years.

Most fraternities on this campus will be in financial difficulty next year with the advent of deferred rush, and the Council could easily sponsor profitable concerts and speeches for all students, and the proceeds could go to houses who find themselves in a temporary financial bind awaiting the next group of pledges with all their fresh money.

This could give the fraternity system here a cohesion and spirit of self-help that is now lacking. For the system to survive at Carolina, the bickering among the separate houses must stop and the Council must act in the interest of the University.

If this is done, the interest of the fraternities will be well served.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Copy Editor — Bob Samsot
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Sue Simonds, Desk
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran
Science Editor — Mat Friedman

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"Down, Boy—Not That One—Down, You Dumb Mutt"

Goldwater: Another Age

By ERIC SEVAREID
(In The Charlotte Observer)

The Goldwater Phenomenon has already reached proportions far beyond anything that most serious observers, especially those in the eastern centers of thought, imagined it could attain a year ago, and the phenomenon is just hitting its real stride.

If it is to be described as a conservative movement, clearly it has little connection with the ideas and the climate that surrounded Sen. Robert A. Taft, the true, traditionalist, conservative of the post-war period. Taft largely created his own following, the hard way; a great deal of Goldwater's following has rushed to him, including groups he is bound to find an embarrassment sooner or later.

B. Goldwater

Taft knew exactly what he thought and the philosophical and historical reasons behind his thoughts, and he built a systematic program from this foundation; Goldwater's domestic ideas spring essentially from negative reaction to what he sees about him, and the emotional battery that gives them energy is all but pure nostalgia for a society that is gone.

For these and other reasons, including his simple, homespun sincerity and charm, he is much more another Eisenhower than another Taft. Like Eisenhower in both his campaigns, and unlike Stevenson and Kennedy in theirs, he is making no demands upon the people for greater and greater intellectual and physical exertions.

In his domestic proposals, he issues no rallying cry for the people to charge the barricades or cross unknown frontiers. He seems, instead, to be issuing a rallying cry for passive resistance to the baffling problems of a nightmarish age.

When he advocates turning civil rights over to the states (that is, turning desegregation in the South over to the segregationists), when he asks the progressive income tax be abolished, when he suggests that family relief in the vast, sprawling Harlems of America be turned over to lodges, unions, private charities and relatives of the indigent —when he says these things he is not solving the problems, he is wishing them away.

Yet he is perfectly correct when he retorts that the problems of our time and our society are not being solved as matters are going. And in this profound frustration must lie the key to Goldwater's large following. It is not half so much a movement with a program as one with a protest. It is desperate, confused protest against a desperately confused new world of human living rising around us at home and abroad. Millions have simply given up trying to understand it, let alone cope with it.

Most of the human race abroad is convulsed with the paroxysms of a revolution that is essentially socialist and non-white. These parts of the world refuse to "turn out" as men like Goldwater had wanted to believe they would.

At home, labor union power has grown enormously; giant corporations become supergiants, beyond detailed comprehension; the people migrate like heedless lemmings, draining the farm states, inundating the cities where the slums and the maddening traffic increase. Crime spreads, technology baffles and disorganizes our daily lives, throws millions out of work, and before these monsters of the scientific Frankenstein even educated men seem powerless.

Problems we have always had with us, even massive problems, because we are not and never have been one of the inert societies of earth. But what is different this time, what many of us have sensed increasingly and what maddens people who make up the Goldwater following because they believer there must be a simple answer, is this, as Robert Heilbroner has put it: "They (the problems) do not respond to our existing means of correction and control."

It is in a profound sense that, as Heilbroner states it, "Our society seems no longer under our control. Running its masterless course, it disposes of us as 'it sees fit and not as we might desire."

The traditional agencies of correction and control—local governments, limited federal governments, the Congress, the market place, the most exhaustive reporting and analysis of facts by the press—these agencies are no longer truly effective.

Nor is the agency to which Goldwater appeals, traditional horse or common sense. It is not to be wondered at that Negroes have taken to the streets or that a crime organization which should have been dealt with in the quiet of grand jury rooms becomes the subject of a Senatorial, TV and press circus.

We have entered the age of what Heilbroner calls the "Great Paralysis." I do not know how the paralysis is to be broken, but broken it must be. The last thing we can do is escape it, as so many of Goldwater's followers seem to wish, by thinking ourselves back to a simpler time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

Ugly Stuff

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I red da letter in Sunday's Tar Heel. Lets stop dis publishing of ugly stuf like bout dem communist an such. Maybe if we make like an ostrich dey will go way. Den da whole country won't find out what a den of communists Chapel Hill is cause some of its students were subpoenaed by dat great American Institution da H.U.A.C. What kind of a newspaper is dis anyway.

Don't yous guys know its against da law to talk about dirty communists on dis campus (or is it to talk to dem, or someting like dat).

Robert Engler
4 Old West

For CORE

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I am writing in reference to an article in Sunday's DTH, "The Maligned" by Fred Seely. As a member of the newly formed Chapel Hill Chapter of CORE, I would like to express to Mr. Seely my personal beliefs about CORE.

It is nothing short of asinine to accuse members of CORE (or any other civil rights organization) of being unaware of the racists and bigots, of being unaware that there are people "who have been told since their birth that the Negro is totally inferior and fit only to be a slave." This fact—these racists and bigots—are the very reason for CORE's existence. The civil rights leaders and their followers realize more than anyone that complete harmony among the races will not be attained in a day, but before we achieve any harmony, we must attack the legal and de facto barriers to basic human understanding. This can be done NOW. The knowledge that the road ahead is long and filled with many perils should not be sufficient reason to keep inactive those of us who sincerely believe in equality and human dignity. And it is not.

Charles Miller
107 Ruffin

Dislikes Cartoon

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I would like to register a personal protest about the cartoon in the Oct. 12th issue of the D.T.H. The issue of peace is not something to mock nor are those seriously interested in bringing this issue to the attention of the public to be scoffed and ridiculed. The title and the caricature of a person well known in local protest groups are in very poor taste.

It is my hope that you will show a more responsible attitude toward subjects of this nature in future issues of the D.T.H. While many of us do not agree with the tactics of various protest groups in town, they should be given a chance to speak without having to put up with this kind of nonsense from the press. It does not take a heck of a lot of talent to criticize the commitments of others. If you have so much on the ball why don't you propose a better alternative?

Paul Dommermuth

Sincerity is more successful than genius or talent.

When the destination is desirable, expectation speeds our progress.

—Mary Baker Eddy

Book Review

Good Imagination

By LINDA GRIFFITH

The Collector by John Fowles. Little, Brown, and Co., 1963. 305 pages.

Frederick Clegg was an ordinary young British clerk who lived with his Aunt Annie and his crippled cousin Mabel. He had two unusual interests, however; he collected butterflies, and he was hopelessly in love with a beautiful blonde art student named Miranda Grey. She didn't know he existed, but he always watched her, never speaking, dreaming of the life they might have together.

Then something extraordinary happened to Frederick; he won 73,000 pounds in a football pool. He and his aunt and cousin moved to London, where Miranda was going to school. After Aunt Annie and Mabel left for Australia to visit relatives, Frederick gradually decided on the idea of kidnapping Miranda, taking her away, and making her grow to love him. "I thought, I can't ever get to know her in the ordinary way, but if she's with me, she'll see my good points, she'll understand. There was always the idea she would understand . . . I only wanted to do the best for her, make her happy and love me a bit."

Frederick planned every detail; he bought a van fitted with a camp bed and a secluded old house in Sussex which had a cellar perfectly suited for a "guest." He purchased clothes, art books, novels — everything necessary for Miranda's comfort. Then he kidnapped her on her way home, and took her off in his van to the room he had so carefully prepared.

All this is accomplished in the first twenty-five pages of the book. The rest is the story, first from Frederick's view, then from Miranda's secret diary, of the two months the girl was his prisoner.

Frederick was kind to her at first, bought everything she asked him for, never made any demands on her. But he would not let her go. Miranda says, "I know what I am to him. A butterly he has always wanted to collect." Collectors are "anti-life, anti-art, anti-everything."

From the first page, Frederick reveals his ordinary working-class mind. He uses cliches constantly, phrases like "in yours truly's opinion." Miranda calls him "the most perfect specimen of petit bourgeois squareness I've ever met." He is obsessed with sex, but always from a distance. He has a prudish mind—that type of thing is "not nice"—yet he buys pornographic magazines and takes pictures of couples in the park. He prides himself on not "taking unfair advantage" of his prisoner.

Frederick says, "I was never once punished at school . . . Aunt Annie let me smoke cigarettes after a lot of rows when I came out of the army, but she never liked it . . . I got a bit drunk once or twice when I was in the Pay Corps, especially in Germany, but I never had anything to do with women."

The Collector would be a remarkable book if only for the way the author has Frederick reveal his character as he tells about his relationship with Miranda. There is never a false note in his account.

Just as consistent with her character and just as revealing is Miranda's version of the same events. The reader gets an idea of what she is like from Frederick, but the complexity of her personality is made much clearer in her diary.

Miranda is an intensely alive and intelligent girl. She views life in a way totally different from Frederick; he looks at things as good or bad, nice or nasty, while she sees things as only beautiful or ugly. A modern liberal intellectual, she works for nuclear disarmament, loves music and books, and has intense feelings about good and bad art. To save her sanity, she writes in her diary about her family and friends and her life before she was imprisoned. Frederick had slyly told her that his name was Ferdinand, and she writes, "I have to give him a name. I'm going to call him Caliban."

The difference between these two becomes only too apparent to both. She is the middle-class Miranda, while Caliban stumbles along behind with his lower-middle-class mentality. The interplay of their personalities is fascinating and frustrating. The girl tried to change him into a normal human being and also tried to escape; both efforts were hopeless. After one attempt to get away, she cried, "It's so unfair . . . O God I'm so lonely so utterly alone."

The ending comes as a disagreeable shock and may leave the reader with a slightly sick feeling of dismay. Fowles' book would be just another suspenseful melodrama with an unusual twist were it not for his remarkable imagination in depicting his two very real characters and skillfully probing into their hearts and minds.

Even Fidel Admits Things Not Going Well In Cuba

By RALPH McGILL
(From The Atlanta Constitution)

United Nations: Words keep coming out of Cuba, but they too often are in need of decoding or they add up to harangues, or merely repeat old slogans. Still, they keep coming and a sort of theme begins to run through them . . . things are not good.

"We Cubans will follow our own line," says Castro, and the experts dissect it as one does the cadaver of one of Khrushchev's long three-hour speeches. Is it that Castro is finding it increasingly difficult to get what he needs from Russia, or is he playing it cagey and reminding the Chinese that he is an uncommitted man, a hitch-hiker with both thumbs up, willing to go in either direction?

But even Fidel admits things are not good. His theme is that they must be much better.

Here at the U.N. some of the neutralist powers say that if only Guevara's arteries would fill up with cholesterol and he would drop dead of a stroke, Fidel would then come under more resilient influences. "Castro," they say, with both admiration and contempt in their voices, "is an exhorter. He has no great convictions. He does not like administration or details. He likes power, the feel of being able to sway people, and to have admirers around him. It is Guevara and another tough one or so who provide the dialectic, the commitment to a Marxist state. It was Guevara who determined that Cuba would become an industrial state when he should have known that was impossible in this generation and time! Three crops a year will grow in Cuba and they have ruined agriculture and let the sugar crop annually fall prey to blight, lack of care and a shortage of cutters and harvesters. Castro's revolution started out to reform agriculture. But then the old-line Marxists got to him about steel mills, factories, and so on. He will of necessity return to emphasis on agriculture."

The Castro revolution, which took its own priests, intellectuals, teachers, and middle class leaders into the mountains, paradoxically was a good revolution until it was won. Once it was won, it was betrayed and lost. Some of the South Americans at the U.N. are inclined to shrug and say it was lost by the Eisenhower Administration. When Castro came to Washington in April of the year of his victory, he was given but a few minutes with Vice President Nixon. But the President avoided him and Castro felt he had been treated with contempt. He spent most of his time at the Cuban Embassy with his shoes off, drinking beer and talking about how the administration had failed to show any understanding. If, say the South Americans, he had been taken in and puffed up and given a small loan for tractors, he might have been kept in line.

But this, with the benefit of hindsight, is unlikely. Guevara, without counting Castro in, earlier had participated in the organization of a Communist group that would, when the propitious moment came, take over. For a time, sincere revolutionists were at the head of the national bank and the department of the interior. But by late spring, the Guevara forces had emerged as the real power. Jail doors began to clang and those who had been exiles from Batista became exiles again. The Eisenhower administration began to make plans that culminated the failure at the Bay of Pigs after John F. Kennedy became president.

The Russians came. The missiles were rushed in and erected. And then they were removed because of a Kennedy ultimatum that, for a brief while, had the world very close to a nuclear war. Cuba beame more and more an expensive Soviet toy . . .

Now, there are new expenses along the far-reaching border between Red China and Russia. Peking hints at recovering Outer Mongolia and other areas once Chinese. There will be less and less for Castro's extended bowl.

So the talk runs on and on . . . but there is a growing belief here at the U.N. that early 1964 might be enough time to work changes in Cuba . . . especially if Guevara can, in one way or another, be removed.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Elections Board — 5 p.m., Roland Parker II, GM, wear coat and tie as Yack pictures will be taken.

The Carolina Quarterly — 3:15 p.m., Quarterly office for Yack pictures.

Aquaholics—7:30 p.m., gym pool, election of officers and planning for purchase of boat.

YM-YWCA Public Affairs Committee — 4:30 p.m., Y-Bldg., special program on gag law.

Carolina Quarterly Interviews— 3-5 p.m., Wed. and Thurs., Quarterly office or see Ann Green, 244 West Cobb.

French Table — 1 p.m., upstairs Lenoir, people wishing to speak French are invited.

Student Association of Social Workers—8 p.m., Howell.

Carolina Inn Cafeteria — needs boys to work either part-time or regular shifts in the cafeteria. Interested boys should either come by the Inn during meal hours or call Bill Graham at 942-6989.

Carolina Forum — 4:20 p.m., Morehead Planetarium, Yack pictures will be taken.

Orientation Reform Comm. — 4 p.m., 203 Alumni Bldg.

GMAB Current Affairs Comm. Interviews—2-3:30 p.m., GMAB office, Thurs., Fri., Mon.

Hockey Club—4-6 p.m., Women's Gym.

WAA Tennis Tournament — 3:30 p.m., Clay courts behind Alexander.

Symposium Interviews — 2-5:30 & 7-9 p.m., Thursday, 2nd floor Y-Bldg., applications in GM or Y-Bldg. Committees include finance, publicity, related discussions, intercollegiate seminar, secretariat, social and hospitality, and physical arrangements.

Yack Pictures—1-6 p.m., basement of GM, for sophomores, pharmacy students and late juniors, through Fri.

A.P.O. Rush — 7:00 p.m., T.V. room of GM.

Wesley Foundation — 7:15 a.m., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., Communion.

YM-YWCA Human Relations Committee—4 p.m., Y Bldg.

GM Dance Group—4-5:30 p.m. Memorial Hall stage.

Stray Greeks — 6 p.m., "The Rat."

IDC and CWC — 7 p.m., Fourth floor, New East.

Publications Board — 4 p.m., Roland Parker I.

MOVIES

Carolina—Forever My Love
Varsity—Rear Window
Rialto—The L-Shaped Room

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—brown leather wallet, contact Maung Maung Pyone, 411 Coker Hall.

Lost—7"x4" secretary, cards inside, contact Donald Walter, 224 Joyner.

Lost—black wallet, contact Charles A. Becker, 304 Ruffin.

Lost—brown leather wallet, contact Charles Vaughn, 433 Ehringhaus, reward.

Lost — yellow gold, Waltham, men's wrist watch, contact Neil Beach, 968-0165.

Lost—black leather wallet with important papers, may keep money but return papers, George Willets, 304 Graham.

FUTURE

Wesley Foundation, Lay Scholars I — 6 p.m., Thurs., Wesley House, if interested call Bob Johnson or 942-2152.

Mademoiselle Magazine Tea — 4-5 p.m. Sun., Roland Parker Lounge, for all women interested in their college board contest.

RTVMP Open House — 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat., new quarters Swain Hall, informal.

Wesley Foundation, Freshman Seminar—9 p.m., Thurs., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., if interested see Paul Davis or call 942-2152.

Spanish Club—7:30 p.m., Thurs., Faculty Lounge, Dey Hall, organizational meeting, all interested invited to attend.

Dirty Old Men — 7:30 p.m., Thurs., Roland Parker I, GM.

Christian Science Organization— 7 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes FCA—8 p.m., Thurs., 304 Woollen Gym.

Alpha Epsilon Delta — 7 p.m., Thurs., 226 Med. School.

Carolina Christian Fellowship — 6 p.m., Fri., supper meeting upstairs Lenoir, Rev. Jim Raines will speak on "Basic Christianity: Part 1—The Human Dilemma."

Scabbard and Blade—1900 hours, Thurs., A.S. classroom 3, wear prescribed uniform.

Yack Beauty Contest—all entries for the Yack Beauty Contest must be in the Yack Office by Oct. 21. Entry fees in by Oct. 22.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, Oct. 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in the GM basement.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

Interviews Today

Jon Commander, chairman of the Current Affairs Committee of GMAB, will hold interviews for that committee tomorrow, Friday and Monday from 2-3:30 p.m.

The interviews will be held in the student government offices in Graham Memorial.

The committee, which was begun last year under Ford Rowan, is still in its formative stages, according to Commander.

"Its purpose is to bring current issues to the attention of the campus through panel discussions, etc.," Commander said.

"The committee will attempt to take advantage of the professors on campus who are experts on the issues brought up. The issues will cover a wide range of international, national, and local affairs, including everything from politics to sports.

"We need some people to do secretarial work as well as anyone else who might be interested," he added.

Holman And Orne Encyclopedists

Professors C. Hugh Holman and Jerrold Orne of the University are authors of articles appearing in the new Encyclopedia International, it has been announced by Grolier Incorporated, publishers of the reference work. Grolier also publishes Encyclopedia Americana and The Book of Knowledge.

Ecuador Students Will Visit Here

UNC has been chosen as the site for the orientation of 10 Ecuadorian students who will visit the United States as participants in the Special Exchanges Program of the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U. S. Department of State.

The students, who will spend about a month in the United States, will arrive on the campus Sunday. They will remain here through early evening of October 24 when they will begin their U. S. tours of medical centers and educational institutions.

Faculty and student government leaders will conduct the orientation program for the Ecuadorian students. The orientation sessions will cover U. S. social patterns and economics; U.S. government; culture in the United States; student life, organizations and student government; student activity in the civil rights area; and emphasis on medicine and philosophy and letters, the two subject areas which the Ecuadorian students are studying in their native country.

The National Social Welfare Assembly is administering the Ecuadorian students' program here in the United States. The group is being accompanied by a State Department escort-interpreter.

Six of the visiting students are studying medicine; four are students of philosophy and letters. The medical students and their universities are: Carlos Alberto NARANJO Lalama, Central University, Quito; Miss Magdalena VANONI Martinez, member of the Medical Students Center of the Eugene Espejo Hospital; Augusto Octavio NEIRA Pavon and Hernan SACOTO Salanea, School of Medicine, University of Cuenca; Carlos FERRETTI Robles and Miss Olinda MURRIETA Newmane, School of Medicine, University of Guayaquil.

The philosophy and letters students and their universities are: Miss Maria Rosa CRESPO and Juan VALDANO, students at the Faculty of Philosophy and Letters, University of Cuenca; Miss Maria Eugenia VIVAR Castro and Luis German MORENO Ayala, students at the Faculty of Philosophy and Letters, University of Loja.

Physics Dept. Looks Like UN

By MAT FRIEDMAN

A walk through Venable Hall these days is almost like a tour of the United Nations. Of 100 graduate students in the Chemistry Department this year, 12 are from outside the United States.

The Island of Taiwan, and South Korea, with three students each, are tops in representation. There are two from American University in Beirut, Lebanon.

There is one student each from the U. of Korea Hong-Kong; Karala U. in India; Ankara, Turkey and the University of Tokyo.

And if you don't agree that 12 constitutes a United Nations, then you would have to agree that the United States itself is well represented.

North Carolina leads the list, of course, with 21. Then comes Virginia with 11, South Carolina with 10, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee nine each, and the New England states with a total of seven.

Mississippi and Louisiana have sent six each, followed by Florida and Pennsylvania with four. And after you cover the East coast, its like a guided tour of the U. S.

The students come from practically every area of the country, from Nebraska to Queens College in New York City; from Colorado School of Mines to St. Lawrence College way up there near Niagra Falls; from Oklahoma, University of the Pacific, and Ohio State.

"We get letters from students all over the world asking to go to school here," said Dr. Horace Crockford, head of the department. It is quite a job deciding which ones we can accept. . ."

Prep Debate Teams Tackle 'Fedicare'

How much control over medical care should be given the federal government?

Basically, this will be the problem area to be studied by high school debaters and their coaches at a two-day meeting beginning Oct. 25 on the University campus.

The North Carolina High School debating Union has issued invitations to high schools throughout the state.

Political Intimidation On Tax Cut, Says Senator Gore

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration opened its drive Tuesday for Senate action on tax cuts amid charges by a Democrat that his party had subjected him to "political intimidation" to support the bill.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon was on hand to testify as the opening witness on President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut program when the intra-party row exloded in the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. Albert Gore (D - Tenn.) kicked off the wrangle when he complained about a seven-page telegram sent by William Keel, director of research for the Democratic National Committee, to Tennessee communities.

The telegram urged local Democratic leaders in Tennessee to support the tax program, and to send press releases to local news media saying "Sen. Gore is making a most serious mistake in opposing the tax reduction."

Gore said this amounted to "political intimidation." He urged that Keel be summoned to testify—subpoenaed if necessary. "So far as I know, this is the beginning of a purge," Gore declared.

Committee Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) agreed to look into the matter "thoroughly," then struck back at critics who have accused him of delaying hearings.

Byrd said inferences that there had been "undue delay" by the committee had "all the characteristics of pressure propaganda." He said 140 witnesses who have asked so far to appear will be given time "in accordance with the committee policy of long standing."

Dillon sat silently while the storm raged within the committee. When he finally got a chance, he endorsed wholeheartedly both the form and scale of the tax program passed by the House 20 days ago, with one exception.

Dillon asked the committee to scrap a provision that would give undue tax relief to persons who profit from the sale of stocks and other property. Except for this, he accepted the House version as it stands, and urged the committee to act quickly on tax cuts —this year to stimulate the economy and avoid the risks of another recession.

Sen. Russel B. Long, La., number two Democrat on the tax-writing committee, sought to smooth over the party row triggered by Gore. He said he was sure the telegrams were not intended to pressure anyone. He called it an "undiplomatic act by one individual," and said the incident should not be blamed on the Democratic National Committee.

Keel told newsmen Monday when the telegrams issue arose that wires had been sent to numerous states as part of an informal campaign. "We're just pointing out to their constitutents what their senator's stand is," he said.

After the storm subsided, Dillon was questioned by members for about two hours, then asked to return for further interrogation Wednesday.

PEANUTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Parrot: Braz.
6. Entertain
11. By oneself
12. Feudal estate
13. Platform
14. Performer
15. Fish
16. Larvae of botfly
17. Northern constellation
21. Rhine tributary
24. Harmonies
28. Stream of water
30. Push
31. Implicate
33. Born
34. Surmise: colloq.
36. Moiety
39. Malt kiln
43. Forcefully
45. Snake
46. Missile-like weapon
47. Large net
48. A piece of paper
49. Slightly crazy: Brit. colloq.

DOWN
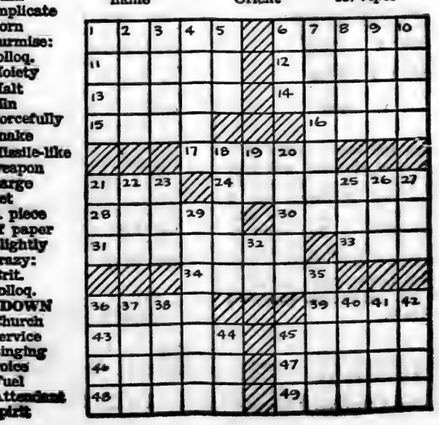
1. Church service
2. Singing voice
3. Fuel
4. Attendant spirit
5. Tiny
6. Wine receptacle
7. Shakespearean tragedy
8. To: poet.
9. Chimney dirt
10. Blunders
18. Alaskan river
19. Registered Nurse: abbr.
20. Theater passageway
21. Boy's nickname
22. Fortify
23. Steal
25. Electrified particle
26. Adam's wife
27. Observe
29. An opening
32. Whether
35. Roundup of cattle
36. Dutch painter
37. Nurse: Orient
38. Narrow roadway
40. Mine entrance
41. Dispatched
42. Three, at cards
44. Snare
45. Viper

FAT LAD / SEGO ABAS / TREE VEST / BARD TETHER / ULU BES RA / RELIED BANG / ERG ROE / CASK SABRES / UP BOY OBI / THOMAS IBEX / IDOL ARAR / DIVE MITT / NED ASS

Yesterday's Answer



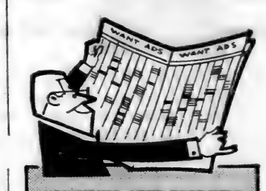
Pay Your Way Through School.
Many Cards and Dice Games to Select from
Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

Gory Crime and Dangling Felons—
That's what you'll find in our Old Book Case this week.
This impressive collection of books and pamphlets on true crimes and trial reports is definitely worth looking at, and might even tempt you to a purchase!
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Economical Living Bank Financing
COLLEGE VIEW
MOBILE HOME SALES
409 Main Street, Carrboro, N. C.
Phone 942-6462, Chapel Hill
J. D. Browning, Manager
5108 Market Street
Phone RO 2-0411
Wilmington, N. C.
D. D. Browning, Owner

PRESTONE ANTI-FREEZE
2 Gallons for $3.00
(Regular $2.45 gallon)
"He Who Waits Is Lost"
ROSES VALUE-VARIETY
109 E. Franklin

The Most Treasured Gift Of All
from
T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
135 E. Franklin 942-1331



CLASSIFIED ADS

Services Available

IT IS MISTAKEN KINDNESS TO provide so well today that no provision can be made for tomorrow. For sound planning today call a Northwestern Mutual agent. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C.L.U. and Associates, Telephone No. 942-6966.

FOUND — A PLACE TO GET Prestone Anti-Freeze at 2 gal. for $3.00 at Roses Variety Store, E. Franklin St.

FREE RELATIVE - SITTING — Mothers, sisters, little brothers, love our handmade gifts and toys. Fathers like our free coffee. The Country Store, across street from Zoom-Zoom.

Automotive

1960 PLYMOUTH FURY. 30,000 miles, Golden Commando engine, power features—including air conditioning. So new it is still tight! Priced for quick sale. 929-2564.

1963 YAMAHA SCOOTER—ELECtric starter, turn signals, 3 speed, automatic clutch, red, only 2300 miles. Must sell. Best offer. 967-1185.

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
The Glory of a Mighty Empire!
Filmed against the time and moment when a kingdom triumphed through the heart of a woman!
"Forever My Love"
COLOR BY Technicolor
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

HELD OVER 3RD WEEK
BRITAIN'S ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST ACTRESS
LESLIE CARON
"Sex is not a forbidden word!"
THE L SHAPED ROOM
THIS IS AN ADULT PICTURE
A WOMBLES PRODUCTION • A COLUMBIA PICTURES RELEASE
Showings daily at 12:40, 2:45, 4:55, 7:05, 9:15 p.m.
RIALTO THEATRE
Durham, N. C.

TEPPAZ
the World's largest Manufacturer of PORTABLE PHONOGRAPHS

TEPPAZ
4-SPEED STEREO TEPPAZ PORTABLE WEIGHS ONLY 17 LBS.
• Foil Stereo dual channel with twin 5-watt amplifiers
• DeLuxe Stereo cartridge with jeweled stylus
• Individual volume controls
• Automatic stop
• Separate bass and tone controls
• 2 remarkable Teppaz-Designed speakers with 7" woofer and revolving speaker stand
• Weight only 17 lbs.
The Record Bar

One of the seven golden keys to brewing
Budweiser®
U.S. PATENT NO. 2,136,685

SPECIAL FERMENTATION PROCESS
Exclusive and protected by patent... this process gives Budweiser its rich, mellow taste. It's just one more of the seven special things we do to make your enjoyment of Budweiser even greater!
KING OF BEERS • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA

Pack Sent Packing, 17-46

Harriers Romp Once More

RALEIGH — North Carolina's cross-country team used a one-two-three punch to demolish N. C. State here Tuesday, 17-46. It was the fourth victory of the season for the unbeaten Tar Heel harriers.

Jimmy Meade, UNC's fine sophomore, led the way across the tape for Coach Joe Hilton's runners. Meade finished in 21:39, just 20 seconds ahead of Art Maillett and Bob Bennett who finished in a virtual tie for second.

Carolina took seven of the first eight places (only the first five finishers for each team count in the final total) in the rout with sophomore Silas Davis of State coming in fourth. Davis was timed in 22:03. Behind the Wolfpack's lone significant man were four UNC runners.

Mike Folk finished fifth, Jerry Smith sixth, Worth Helms seventh and Chuck Lefler eighth.

The other State points were scored by Jack Carey, Rick Edwards, Tom Ferguson and Scott Charr.

Carolina is now 4-0 on the year and seems almost assured of going through the year unbeaten. Maryland was the only question at the start of the season, and the Tar Heels pounded them 23-35 at College Park last weekend.

State is now 1-3 with only an outside-the-conference win over VPI in the four starts.

Meade, a Washington, D. C. native, has now won or tied for the first spot in three of the four meets. He and Maillett won at Wake Forest; Smith joined the two in the winners' circle at Clemson; and now he has added a third win, this time all alone.

In the Maryland win, Maillett and Folk were the first place finishers.

SUMMARY

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Meade (UNC) | 21:39 |
| 2. | Maillet (UNC) | 21:59 |
| 3. | Bennett (UNC) | 22:00 |
| 4. | Davis (State) | 22:03 |
| 5. | Folk (UNC) | 22:13 |
| 6. | Smith (UNC) | 22:24 |
| 7. | Helms (UNC) | |
| 8. | Lefler (UNC) | |
| 9. | Carey (State) | |
| 10. | Edwards (State) | |
| 11. | Ferguson (State) | |
| 12. | Charr (State) | |

CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Sports Courier

JIM HICKEY GOT up in the Pine Room of the Carolina Inn yesterday and calmly announced "North Carolina State will be the toughest team we'll play to date." And, with this descriptive keynote, began another football press conference where coaches disregard past opponents as futile groups who aren't in the league anymore, and look upon future games as pure suicidal engagements.

Hickey may have forgotten his trip to Michigan State when he called the Wolfpack "the toughest", but the chances are greater he was just counterattacking a bit of propaganda put out by State coach Earle Edwards on Monday. Edwards called UNC "a team without a weakness" — a statement that will send the Spartans of MSU into wild hysterics.

Emmett Cheek also contributed to keeping the mass of writers, radio-TV men and other freeloaders awake. Cheek, UNC's head scout, gets up each week and tells what he has seen of the coming Saturday's opponent. The trouble is, he reads from the same script each time. He was talking about State yesterday, but it sounded mighty like the report on Wake Forest two weeks ago.

Adjectives like "good," "fine," and "great" flow around the room each week whether the opponent is Texas or Alcorn A&M State Teachers College.

Cheek was mainly impressed with the NC State defense, which has given up only one touchdown in the last three games. The Pack has letter winners at all positions in the first two units except three. And one of the best, tackle Rosie Amato, is the sole non-letterman on the first team.

"Jimmy Rossi has made the State team what it is this season (4-0) with his leadership," Cheek said. "Most of his passses come off a fake run or a rollout pattern. He is a scrambler and very hard to run down."

Rossi, who currently leads the Atlantic Coast Conference in everything but grades, has 545 total yards for a 5.9 yard average everytime he moves the ball.

Defensive backfield coach Bud Carson also is a bit wary of Rossi and how to contain him. "Rossi is a different type of quarterback than any we have faced this season. He gets loose from a rush very well. This gives him more time to throw and helps his receivers get open. Our job is to make certain he doesn't get too much time to run around back there."

Hickey intends to make no lineup changes for State. This would mean Cole Kortner and John Atherton will be starting for Gene Sigmon and Joe Robinson at tackle and tight end. John Hammett, erstwhile starter at tight end, has been slow coming around from an ankle injury, and his playing status for Saturday is doubhtful.

UNC-State Means Money In Bank

UNC'S VICTORY over Maryland and NC State's fine early-season showing have resulted in a tremendous box office boost for their meeting on Saturday.

The ACC co-leaders (with Duke at 3-0) are expected to draw upwards of 45,000 people to Kenan Stadium, necessitating some scrambling by Chuck Erickson, Inc. to seat them all.

Erickson said yesterday that 2500 seats were still available but that 1,000 of these had to go to State. 1,500 alone were sold Monday.

Erickson intends to put up temporary bleachers at Kenan's east end to take care of the crowd which would overflow the Stadium's actual capacity of some 42,000. Reports that standing room tickets will be sold are, as yet, unconfirmed. Gametime, as all UNC home games this year, is at 1:30.

THE MUCH-PRAISED FRESHMAN football team may be all its cracked up to be. But Coach George Barclay won't be sure until this Friday when his Tar Babies run up against Virginia and the Cavayearlings' 290-pound tackle John Naponick. It's supposed to be the best frosh team in Virginia history.

Carolina has beaten two ACC freshmen teams, NC State (21-7) and Wake Forest (23-0). But this guy, Naponick, may be better than both of them. He's sure as heck bigger.

But Barclay isn't scared. They're already calling Joe Fratangelo one of the toughest lineman to hit this campus in a long time. Fratangelo (5-11, 195) and Dave Erimias (6-1, 220) are expected to more than make up for Naponick.

John Cornelius (6-2, 210), the center from Charlotte, gives Carolina good power up the middle with Erimias and Fratangelo flanking him at the guards. And this, along with UNC's touted backfield stars — Danny Talbott, Jeff Beaver, Jim Fortune, Leon Fonville and Bud Phillips — looks like too much for Naponick.

The freshmen have only two remaining games past Virginia. Duke will be here Friday, Oct. 25 and Maryland will be away, Friday, Nov. 5.

Basketball Just Around Corner

BASKETBALL IS STARTING to break big around here. And practice officially opened for Carolina's varsity and freshman teams yesterday.

Coach Dean Smith looked around and found Billy Cunningham both heavier (218 up 20 pounds from last year) and taller. The Kid's height has always been a question. They were measuring it in twenty-fifths of an inch last year. But he seems to be set at ABOUT 6-5 now. It really doesn't matter. The rim doesn't care.

Smith said yesterday his squad of about 20 might stay that large up until Dec. 1. They all may last after that, too. He has what he calls "eight strong varsity performers." (presumably Cunningham, Mike Cooke, Bryan McSweeney, Charlie Shafffer, Ray Respess, Bill Galantai, Art Katz and Billy Brown). But help is needed in the backcourt.

The loss of slick guards Larry Brown and Yogi Poteet will hurt on defense probably as much as in the ball-handling duties. The plan as of now is to move Shaffer and Cooke to backcourt. But Smith wants a third guard to spell the two at times (especially Shaffer, who sustained a groin injury in a tennis tournament this summer and just this week got medical permission to play ball).

Chi Psi Takes 1st By Bombing Beta

By AL KAPLAN

Chi Psi moved into first place in Frat League II as they trounced Beta 23-0, Monday. Gene Barrier, Bill Dannerman and John Angell each scored one TD to pace Chi Psi to its second win.

DU ran its record to 3-0 as they won easily over AKPsi 23-0. Dan Howe led the DU offense with 2 TDs. Roy Hagerty and Carl Goodling had one each.

Phi Kappa Sig defeated ZBT 14-6, for their first victory, on the offensive showing of Bud Sharp, who scored two touchdowns. Steve Kalman provided ZBT with its six.

PiKA took the lead in the first half 8-0, and held off a Delta Sig rally to win 15-13. Bob Douglas scored the all important safety and Guy Smith and Buddy Bishop tallied TDs for PiKA. Ron Moser and Ernie Riddle each scored touchdowns for Delta Sig.

Lee Sherill provided all the scoring, a touchdown, as Sigma Chi edged Pi Lamb 6-0.

In the dormitory league, the Aycock Aardvarks scored their third win of the year, a 29-2 victory, over the Victory Village Bagel Belchers. Jim Booth scored two touchdowns.

The Intramural Track Meet will be held today and Thursday. The discus, shot put, high jump and broad jump finals will be held today in the Dorm and Grad divisions. Qualifying heats in the 60 and 100 yard dashes and the 440 and 880 yard relays are also on tap for this afternoon. Thursday's schedule shows the finals in all running events and finals in Frat field events.

In last year's competition two new records were set. The NROTC broke the 440 relay record of 51.2 seconds with a time of 50.4. Bud McDonald of the Dental School shaved half a second off the old half mile run record. His time was 1:59.0.

SPORTS
Daily Tar Heel

Wolfpack Favored By 2 Points

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas and Wisconsin, the nation's No. 1 and 2 college football teams, are only one-touchdown favorites for tough games in their own conferences on Saturday.

Top-ranked Texas, with a 4-0 record after its stunning 28-7 triumph over Oklahoma last week, was listed as only a 7-point choice over twice- beaten Arkansas. On comparative scores, Texas beat Oklahoma St. by 26, Arkansas did the job by 21.

Wisconsin, with a 3-0 record, is only a 7-point favorite over Iowa, which scored its first win in three starts last week by an impressive 37-26 score over Indiana.

In the three regionally televised games CBS this Saturday, Pitt, ranked third nationally with a 3-0 record, is favored by 14 over West Virginia, Purdue vs. Michigan is rated even money, and Oregon is a 14-point choice over Arizona.

Ranked Teams Favored

Despite last week's wave of upsets, nine of the teams ranked among the top 10 in the nation by the UPI Board of Coaches this week are seen as favorites on Saturday.

The exception is fourth-ranked Ohio State, which finds itself a 4-point underdog against defending national champion Southern California in their game at Los Angeles. Ohio State is 2-0-1 and Southern Cal, which tumbled out of the national rankings after a 17-14 loss to Notre Dame last week, is 2-2.

Fifth-ranked Oklahoma is a 13-point choice to bounce back from its loss to Texas by beating Kansas. Georgia Tech No. 6 is picked by 10 over Auburn, and Mississippi No. 7 by 25 over Tulane. Alabama, tied for eighth, is 19 over Tennessee and Illinois, also eighth, is a 3-point favorite over Minnesota. Tenth-ranked Northwestern is 24 over Miami of Ohio.

In the only major game Friday night, Miami Fla. is picked by 6 over Georgia.

In other Saturday games:

East: Syracuse 4 over Penn State, Villanova 4 over George Washington, Cornell 6 over Yale, Princeton 6 over Colgate, Brown 7 over Penn, Dartmouth 14 over Holy Cross, Army 27 over Wake Forest.

South: North Carolina St. 2 over North Carolina, Air Force 6 over Maryland, South Carolina 6 over Virginia, Duke 6 over Clemson, Louisiana St. 7 over Kentucky, Virginia Tech 8 over William and Mary, Wichita 8 over Louisville, Florida St. 12 over Southern Mississippi, Mississippi St. 13 over Houston, Florida 19 over Vanderbilt, Navy 21 over V.M.I.

Midwest: Xavier 4 over Dayton, Cincinnati 8 over Detroit, Bowling Green 13 over Toledo, Michigan State 14 over Indiana, Notre Dame 14 over UCLA, Nebraska 20 over Kansas State.

Southwest: Rice 6 over SMU, Tulsa 6 over North Texas St., Memphis St. 10 over West Texas St., Texas Christian 2 over Texas A. & M., Missouri 13 over Oklahoma St., Baylor 13 over Texas Tech.

West: Iowa St. 4 over Colorado, Oregon St. 10 over Washington St., Washington 11 over Stanford, California 13 over San Jose St., Wyoming 13 over Brigham Young, Utah 8 over Colorado St.

UNC's Jimmy Meade

Washington, D. C.'s contribution to Carolina's cross-country arsenal, sophomore Meade led the unbeaten harriers to a romp over N. C. State at Raleigh Tuesday.

How's This For Bananas

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R. — Despite the recent political upheaval here, the Dominican League is going ahead with plans to open the season on October 22.

Only the inter-league tieup with the Venezuelan League appears likely to be affected. Venezula has broken off diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic.

Escogido became the third club to announce its manager, naming two native products — Jose St. Clair and Horacio Martinez, a San Francisco Giants' scout— as co-pilots.

Estrellas Orientales has yet to pick its skipper.

MURAL SCORES

4:00

Town Lodgers 14 Navey Mermen 6
Ehring A 1 Winston Terps 0 (forfeit)
Manly Riverrats 1 Grimes Gallants 0 (forfeit)
Van Doren's Virgins 25 Belinsky's Bananas 0

5:00

SAE 64 ZBT 0
Kappa Psi 30 Pi Lamb 0
Law School II 23 Med School II 0
Chi Phi 21 Pi Kap Phi 0
Dental School III 13 Geology Nothings 0
Joyner Giants 20 Alexander Playboys 0

TODAY'S GAMES

Intramural Track Meet.

LORD CHESTERFIELD

A gentlemen of letters of another era inspired the lines of this fly front coat. With its formalized feeling, it gives a gentleman that certain look of success which is an instant advantage. The proprietor suggests that a try-on is in order.

Town & Campus

ACC Statistics

TOTAL OFFENSE

| | Yards | Avg. |
|---|---|---|
| Duke | 1397 | 349.2 |
| UNC | 1181 | 295.2 |
| N.C. State | 971 | 242.8 |
| Clemson | 948 | 237.0 |
| Maryland | 911 | 227.8 |
| USC | 766 | 191.5 |
| Virginia | 659 | 164.8 |
| Wake | 542 | 135.5 |

RUSHING OFFENSE

| | Yards | Avg. |
|---|---|---|
| Duke | 751 | 187.8 |
| UNC | 699 | 174.8 |
| Clemson | 554 | 138.5 |
| N.C. State | 537 | 134.3 |
| Maryland | 479 | 119.8 |
| Virginia | 477 | 119.3 |
| USC | 457 | 114.3 |
| Wake | 295 | 73.8 |

PASSING OFFENSE

| | Att-Com | Yards | Avg. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Duke | 92-48 | 646 | 161.5 |
| UNC | 81-43 | 482 | 120.5 |
| N.C. State | 64-36 | 434 | 108.5 |
| Maryland | 95-40 | 402 | 100.5 |
| Clemson | 84-35 | 394 | 98.5 |
| USC | 65-37 | 309 | 77.3 |
| Wake | 87-33 | 247 | 61.8 |
| Virginia | 48-18 | 182 | 45.5 |

RUSHING DEFENSE

| | Yards | Avg. |
|---|---|---|
| Clemson | 404 | 101.0 |
| N.C. State | 471 | 117.8 |
| Duke | 490 | 122.5 |
| UNC | 626 | 156.5 |
| USC | 637 | 159.3 |
| Virginia | 652 | 163.0 |
| Maryland | 741 | 185.5 |
| Wake | 776 | 194.0 |

PASS DEFENSE

| | Att-Com | Yards | Avg. |
|---|---|---|---|
| UNC | 80-23 | 172 | 43.0 |
| Clemson | 64-20 | 315 | 78.8 |
| Maryland | 62-32 | 374 | 93.5 |
| Virginia | 74-34 | 376 | 94.0 |
| N.C. State | 87-42 | 415 | 103.8 |
| USC | 77-39 | 444 | 111.0 |
| Duke | 96-39 | 523 | 130.8 |
| Wake | 65-41 | 561 | 140.3 |

TICKETS

A few seats are available for the State game on Saturday, but everything points to a sell-out.

After Six Tuxedos
For Rent
Varley's Mens Shop
144 E. Franklin

Old Colony joins two great classics: the cardigan and the Afghan plaid

The classic cardigan with ribbon facing (have it your way, in or out). Done in cloud soft Scotch Nap knit. It goes like mad with a wonderful A-line Afghan plaid skirt of 100% wool by Einiger. The colors? Everything to make your life livelier, lovelier. Skirt, 6-16. Top, 34-40.

you saw it in Mademoiselle!

The Best Of Europe At Your Door Fine Shetland Sweaters from Scotland

In all new coordinating tones in crew neck pullovers, V-neck, and cardigans for basic casual attire $14.95 to $19.95.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Milton's Traditional Suitings with the Built-in Plus

Our own suit model embodies a truly natural shoulder, soft trim lapels, with the new ease—in the shoulder and armholes, plus a smaller body for the final customized touch — thus eliminating major tailoring adjustments. This coupled with Milton's own exclusive fabrics make for ultra-smart fall. Lightweight wool suits from $60.00.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

SCOTTISH SWEATERS

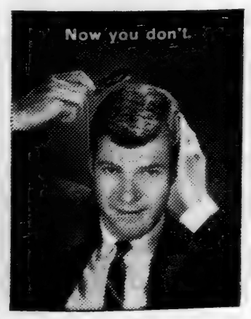
There is nothing quite as casual, and at the same time good looking, as a well made sweater. Ours are imported from Scotland, a country well known for its creative art in sweaterwear. BRAEMAR, PRINGLE, J & D. McGEORGE. All Scottish and all very wonderful makers of cardigan and pull over sweaters. Colors galore! In either wool, Lambswool, Cashmere, or the new blend of Cashmere and Lambswool. Come in and see our selection today.

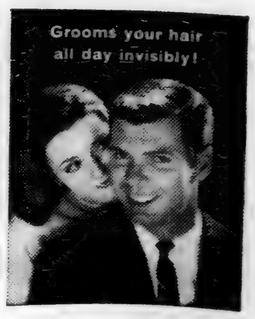
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

only your hair knows it's there!

It's invisible, man! You can't see it. She can't feel it. Only your hair knows it's there! It's CODE 10 for men, the new invisible hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. Non-greasy CODE 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that inflames women, infuriates inferior men! Be in. Let new CODE 10 groom your hair all day, invisibly.

code 10 HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN





U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

23

Nhu Deal Edition

★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Sunny and mild.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1963 | United Press International Service

Fleishman Praises SP And Slams UP

'Discontent Makes SP Great'

By VANCE BARRON

Joel Fleishman, former Student Party chairman and now Legal Assistant to Governor Terry Sanford, Tuesday night blasted the University Party, saying that its basic constituency was composed of the "least discontented elements on campus" and praised the Student Party for its tradition as the "party of discontent."

Fleishman defined "partisans of discontent" as students who desire to see the campus a better place when they leave it and who are active in trying to reconcile "the real and the ideal in student life. "While not all partisans of discontent are in the SP," he said, "the University Party has never been a party of discontent, and I don't give it much hope."

The SP has been an open forum for campus problems and has attracted people who are discontented, he said.

Fleishman outlined the history of the SP, saying "it was born in 1938 in an atmosphere of social concern folowing the Depression and achieved its maturity with the influx of war veterans into the University following the Second World War.

"It was the return of the war veterans, men who had learned what it meant to take an active role in human affairs that enabled the SP to begin winning elections i nthe late 40's," Fleishman continued.

"Thus it was a part of the general awakening of American students to the problems around them.

"The moments of greatness of the tSudent Party, however, have not always been when it was winning elections," Fleishman added. "It has been of greatest use to the University when it has served as critic and the partisan of discontent.

"A political party is a group of people who band together to convince the public of the wisdom of following a particular course of action," he said. "This purpose is fulfilled by running candidates, but a party can fulfill its function without necessarily winning elections.

"I would hope that none of you are here solely for honor, out of of a love of the uses of power, or out of a queer fascination with the mechanisms of government," he told the group.

"These are part and parcel of politics, but they are not the heart of politics or of the Student Party."

The SP offers to the partisans of discontent the opportunity to participate in a continuing tradition of reform of student life, he added.

"There is, unfortunately, a great lack of continuity in the tradition of student government," Fleishman continued. "The student memory is very short—only four years — and there is very little inheritance from one student generation to the next. The battles you are fighting tday have been fought before."

Fleishman urged the writing of a history of student government

(Continued on Page Three)

Need A Job?

On-campus recruiting for employment in business, industry, and government will begin next week. Seniors and graduate students desiring interviews should register with the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

The following companies will recruit on campus during the week of October 21-25:

Monday — Texaco, Inc.; Union Carbide Nuclear Co.; The Springs Cotton Mills; Union Carbide Corp.

Tuesday — Air Products & Chemicals, Inc; Union Carbide Corp.; Housing & Home Finance Agency.

Wednesday — The Dow Chemical Co.; Union Carbide Corp.

Thursday — Southern Research Institute; American Hospital Supply Corp.; W. R. Grace & Co., Research Division; Spartan Mills.

Friday—Spartan Mills; Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Center for Naval Analyses; Vanity Fair Mills.

Night at Woollen

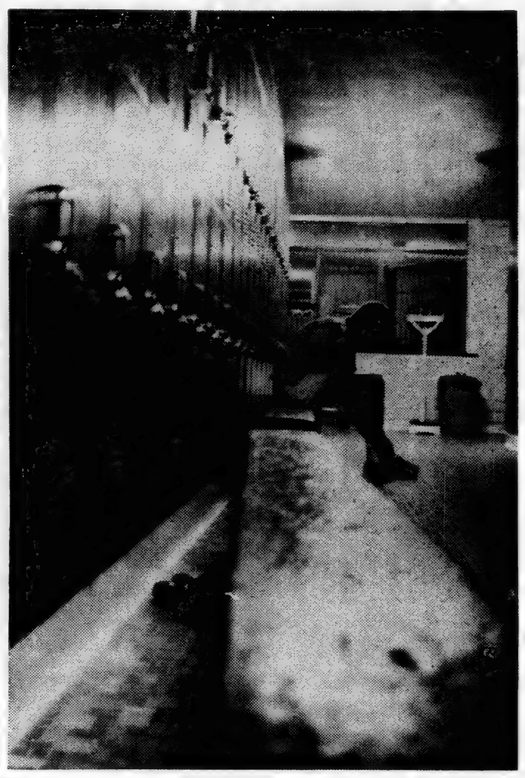

Photo by Jim Wallace

Night, And A Near-Empty Locker Room

Woollen Gym Quiet Despite Late Hours

By day, Woollen Gym is alive with activity. Basketballs pound against the floors for hours on end, endless shuttlecocks whiz back and forth across badminton nets and basketballs ricochet off walls and ceilings.

By night, it's a different story. For the most part Woollen Gym is empty

Dr. O. K. Cornwell, director of physical education, said yesterday the gym is going virtually unused on the nights when there is no scheduled activities.

"We opened the gym this year on Monday through Thursday on an expanded schedule," Dr. Cornwell said. "We had lots of students tell us last year that their schedules prevented their using the gym when it closed at six o'clock. So we made the efforts necessary to get the extra money so we could stay open until nine."

"The problem," Cornwell said, "is that very few students are taking advantage of the facilities. We hope for the number to increase when it gets colder, but we feel that many are simply unaware that the gym is open at night."

"We have the pool, the handball courts the main floor, and just about every other facility open, and we certainly hope the students will begin using them. After all, it's their gym."

2 Vacancies Filled On UP Committee

Frank Martin and Jeff Adams were selected to fill vacancies on the University Party Executive Committee Tuesday night. Martin, a sophomore from Chapel Hill, defeated Wade Logan in the election for party treasurer, and Jeff Adams, a sophomore from Nashville, Tenn., won over Don Leslie for sergeant-at-arms.

Commenting on the elections, party chairman Mike Chanin said, "I am well pleased with these selections and by the large turnout of over 135 UP members for this meeting. I know that both Frank and Jeff will do a good job for the UP and for the furtherance of Student Government at Carolina."

Chanin also announced the following UP legislative appointments: Craige, Ron Hendren; Ehringhaus, Edwin Arrington; Town Men's I, George Ingram; TM IV, Warren Ogden; and Town Women's, Darst Murphy.

John Ulfelder UP legislative, tfloor leader said, "We've been able to appoint some highly qualified people who I know will do an excellent job in Student Legislature."

In other action, Chanin announced that the Academic Problems Committee under the chairmanship of Jim Riley will meet today at 4 p.m., in Roland Parker I.

Chanin also announced that the Executive Committee will hold interviews Sunday for legislative openings in TM II, and IV at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. "We felt," Chanin said, "that because we announced these openings at such a late date, that many people who were interested could not come up for interviews. I hope that these people will take the time to come up Sunday."

Chanin, also announced that the UP's fall convention will be held Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 6:45 p.m. in Carroll Hall. At this convention, members will nominate a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and social chairman for the freshman, sophomore and junior classes. All ersons interested in running fr class officers are asked to call Chanin at 968-9021.

WUNC RADIO
Thursday

6:00—The Dinner Hour:
Handel:
Water Music Suite
Resphigi:
Fountains of Rome
Pines of Rome
6:55—News
7:00—Carolina Roundtable
8:00—Masterwork —
Beethoven:
Egmont Overture
Sonata No. 3
Symphony No. 2
Schubert:
Rosamunde, Ballet Suite
Impromptu in A Flat
Symphony No. 5
10:00—Ten O'Clock Report
10:15—Hillside Jazz with Frost Branon
11:15—Repeat: Some Come to Sing
12:00—News

Citizen's Council Pledges Negro

By PETE WALES

One member of the segregationist Durham County Citizen's Council will not be on hand to hear Alabama Governor George C. Wallace speak in Durham Sunday night.

He is Kellis Parker, a Negro and a senior at UNC.

Parker received his membership card last August, much to his surprise.

"My reaction was about like that the father-in-law of Charlayne Hunter," Parker said.

Charlayne Hunter was the first Negro coed at the University of Georgia who revealed her secret marriage to a white Georgian this summer. Her father-in-law is reported to have said, "This is the end of the world."

Parker believes that some one signed his name to a membership list as a practical joke. However, he has not notified the Council of his race.

In fact he has received further information about the Council and materials for recruiting more members.

"Although the original intent was to play a practical joke, this does show the gross lack of communication between such groups," Parker said.

"In view of the current changes in our nation and in Durham County in particular, it seems we should be seeking to better our communications.

"Since we shall be attending the same theatres, the same restaurants, the same schools, the same parks, etc., we should have closer contacts no matter what our political groups.

"Therefore I extend the invitation to all my fellow members of the Durham County Citizen's Council to participate in the activities of CURED & the NAACP."

CURED (Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity) is the local Chapel Hill integration group, started last August.

Parker has been a member of the executive committee of CURED and led a series of peaceful demonstrations in his home town of Kinston this summer.

He was one of the first Negroes to win an all-campus election at a major Southern state university when he successfully campaigned as a UNC delegate to the National Students Congress last spring.

Parker is also chairman of the nIternational Students Board this year.

"It is significant that they've taken the initiative to integrate their own group," Parker added. "Perhaps this small gesture towards integration will be extended to others in Durham.

"Perhaps they will now inform their friend Governor Wallace that the inevitabilities of history cannot be defied."

Madame Nhu To Speak In Raleigh Today

A group of Carolina students is expected to stage a demonstration in Raleigh this afternoon in protest of United States foreign and military aid to the Diem government in South Vietnam.

Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, Vietnam's first lady, is scheduled to visit the Capital City today to hold a 4:30 press conference and give a 6 p.m. lecture in the N. C. State Student Union.

The campus chapter of the Student Peace Union (SPU) and members of the local Progressive Labor Club are expected to participate in the demonstration.

John Dunne, chairman of the local SPU, said Wednesday in a prepared statement, "We wish to make clear that we fully support Mme. Nhu's right to speak and urge everyone to attend.

"Our protest, however, is directed to U.S. economic and military support of a government which represents sixtenths of one percent of the population of South Vietnam, and whose tyrannical suppression of the most basic human freedoms is totally inimical to the fundamental ideals of American democracy.

"We invite everyone who feels that no end can justify a mean so hypocritical and self-degrading, as to make a mockery of the democratic precepts for preservation of which we are fighting this very war, to join us in peaceful protest."

Dunne said cars will be leaving the Morehead Parking Lot at 2, 3:30 and 4:45 p.m. for those needing rides.

John Salter, chairman of the Progressive Labor group reported that transportation to Raleigh will also be available at 4 p.m. from GM.

In Washington Wednesday, Mme. Nhu said she has evidence that some Kennedy administration officials have "no eagerness to win the war against Communists" in South Vietnam.

She also criticized as political pressure a recent withholding of U.S. commercial aid to Siagon.

"I cannot see how such a thing can be done without reason against a government which is winning the war," she said.

The State Department has delayed payment of a reported $12 million in grants this month to help South Viet Nam finance commercial imports.

Debate Team Places 2nd

The UNC Debate team returned from a tournament at Davidson College this weekend after rolling up an impressive 8-2 record and tying with Duke for second place in the event. There were 10 schools participating in the meet.

Both the affirmative and negative teams won four debates and lost one.

The affirmative team, consisting of Haywood Clayton of Durham and Bob Powell of Thomasville, lost to Randolph Macon. The negative side, consisting of Dick Brodeur, of Coral Gables, Florida, and George Carson of Elkin gave up its only loss to Washington and Lee, who won the tournament.

The negative team defeated Duke in one of the top debates of the meet.

Federal aid to education provides the conflict for this year's debate topic which is: Resolved that the federal government should guarantee every qualified high school graduate a college education.

Coach Donald Springen commented that he was pleased with results of this first tournament for it showed a considerable exhibition of strength.

Petition Try Is Halted

UNC student leaders Wednesday confirmed reports that some efforts had been made earlier this week to petition the Special Session of the General Assembly to reconsider the controversial speaker ban law.

"The Technician," student newspaper at N. C. State, reported Tuesday that student groups had planned to present the petition to the special session Monday.

Grant Blair, co-editor, said the students changed their plans following action by the Legislature in limiting its consideration to redistricting the State Senate.

Student Body President Mike Lawler and Vice-President Bob Spearman said, however, they had met with several student leaders early Monday morning and decided it was "tactically not a good time to present a petition."

The newspaper said student groups from Duke, N. C. State, UNC, UNC at Greensboro, Wake Forest, Charlotte College, Wilmington College, A & T College and East Carolina had planned to present the petition to the Assembly.

CONVENTION

Mark Ethridge, editor, publisher, and journalist, and Dr. Lester F. Zerfoss, management specialist and education advisor, will be the principal speakers at the N. C. School Boards Association Convention meeting here.

Bateson Clams Up In HUAC Hearing

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

British Convoy Delayed By Soviets

BERLIN (UPI) — The Soviets Wednesday held up a British convoy for nearly nine hours outside West Berlin in a futile bid to force acceptance of new terms for Allied road travels to Berlin. Britain promptly announced it was strengthening its Berlin troop garrison because of the "present situation."

The Russians held up the westbound British convoy at the Babelsberg checkpoint one mile from West Berlin but finally backed down and freed it after the British refused to give in.

The British convoy moved without further incident across Communist East Germany, was passed quickly through the last Soviet check point on the West German border and entered West Germany Wednesday night.

A British spokesman said later that training maneuvers of the 1st battalion of the Prince of Wales' own Yorkshire regiment had been cancelled because "the present situation in Berlin has necessitated their immediate return" from West Germany.

Kennedy Proposal Termed 'Sellout'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite Negro cries of "sellout," Atty. Gen. Rbert F. Kennedy won major support Wednesday in his drive to soften a House civil rights bill as a step towards pushing it through Congress.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.) of the House Judiciary Committee agreed with Kennedy that the bill would have to be toned down to win more bipartisan backing. As drafted by a judiciary subcommittee, the bill is stronger than was proposed.

As Kennedy had expected, he was the immediate traget of Negro leaders. Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told newsmen: "It's a shame. There's no reason for this kind of sellout."

Fighting Spreading In Morocco

MARRAKECH, Morocco (UPI) Morocco charged that Algerian warplanes bombed Moroccan territory Wednesday and said fighting was spreading between Algerian and Moroccan ground forces in disputed desert border areas.

Ahmed Reda Guedira, chief of cabinet to King Hassan II, said fighting broke out for the third straight day around the Sahara border posts of Hassi Beida and Tinnjoub.

License Fraud Is Subject

FROM DTH WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON — A story with cloak and dagger overtones was unfolded Wednesday of a fraudulent North Carolina drivers license being obtained and used in setting up the forbidden trip of U. S. students to Cuba last summer.

The two principles in the story, Nicholas Bateson, a UNC graduate student, who said he is a British subject, and Arnold Idenbaum, a New Yorkers, refused to answer any questions about it before a House Sub-Committee on Un-American Activities. Both pleaded the Fifth Amendment against possible self-incrimination.

But an airline ticket girl for KLM Dutch Airlines in New York, June Gard, identified Idenbaum as the man she said arranged for large blocks of airline tickets to Paris.

She said he later claimed a refund on unused tickets, identifying himself with a North Carolina driver's license in the name of Jay Jacobs.

A similar story was told by witnesses for the British Overseas Airway Corp. and KLM.

A North Carolina license examiner, Drane Sherman, identified Idenbaum as having applied for a license July 26 under the name of Jay Jacobs. Sherman said the license was later mailed to Jacobs at Box 141-B, Durham, N. C. The address was identified as that of Bateson and Peter

(Continued on Page 3)

Photos by Jim Wallace

What A Mess!

"Hey, where are you guys?"
"Craige dorm, third floor!"
"What?"
"Hey you, get off thephone!"
"I'm in Spencer!"
"ATO house here!"
"How many people are on this damn phone?"

These are some of the comments you are likely to hear if you use the phone in Chapel Hill these days, especially if you happen to listen in over a busy signal.

Yes, that's right—a busy signal. In the past few days, this campus has been hit by a fad that is now sweeping the country, called the "Beep Line" or "The Grapevine." By any name, it's a riot.

Exactly how it happens, no one seems to know, but somehow all campus calls that reach a busy number seem to be channeled into a central circuit where the busy signal is produced. Someone found that conversations may be carried on between callers while the signal drones on endlessly in the background—and that the number of possible connections is apparently limited only bythose patient enough to listen.

The result has been something that must be heard to be believed.

Beginning early in the evening, and continuing well past the bewitching hour, the busy signal line is jammed with conversation—dorm residents, fraternity men, girls, and unidentified screams. They all may be joined by the Winchester, Va., operator and even a banjo picker. Last night, even Jack Kennedy and Ma Frickert showed up.

It's a wild time, indeed, with the total at any one time often reaching ten or more phones. Fraternity men swear at anonymous dorm voices, dorm men scream "frat rats," and they all go crazy when a girl joins the line.

One of the results of all this nonsense has been an abominable "snafu" in the phone system. It has become virtually impossible to reach a dorm or fraternity house while "The Grapevine" is going—unless you can weed out your party from the babble of voices.

The current issue of "Time" reports on the nation-wide phenomenon, saying that there is little the phone company can do to prevent it. "It sounds," says "Time," "like a convention of tomcats in an aviary."

Volume 72, Number 23 Thursday, October 17, 1963

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 8, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

Wesley Foundation Harboring Criminals At University of South Carolina?

The Wesley Foundation, we have always thought, is a nice respectable Methodist student group not prone to getting into trouble. But, we have discovered, not all Wesley Foundation units are alike in this regard.

Take the one at that citadel of higher learning in our sister state, the University of South Carolina. It's been harboring a criminal—at least, according to Dennis Myers, a member of USC's Student Senate and editor of the campus newspaper, The Gamecock.

Myers has introduced a resolution in the Student Senate asking that the local Wesley Founadtion be censured because it "provided support and assistance to a member of an integrationist group."

The Foundation, says Myers' resolution, was aware of the background of the "integrationist"—one Samuel Shirer, 20, of Atlanta, a field worker for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, who was recently arrested during a Columbia sit-in demonstration.

Myers charges that Shirer "did comport himself in such a manner as to bring the name of the University into bad favor in a court of law, as well as interfering with the normal academic life of the University and some of its students."

Sad to say, in the face of such clear-cut evidence of the Wesley Foundation's guilt, the resolution was referred to a committee for "further, careful study."

But Myers, intent upon justice being done, then took to the editorial columns to support his resolution.

Shirer, says editor Myers, "has a record of criminal offenses, including two arrests in South Carolina for his part in racial demonstrations. During Shirer's visit on the (South) Carolina campus, he made his headquarters at and used the facilities of the Wesley Foundation, even after his activities were known to Foundation members.

"Such a person," the editorial continues, "who has brought adverse publicity to our University, should not have been welcomed in the manner which the Foundation treated him."

In a burst of righteous indignation, Myers' editorial concludes: "We are not opposed to liberal social attitudes, except when they appear to be used as methods for following the Gus Hall line of thought. We hope this is not the case of the Wesley Foundation."

Along with Mr. Myers, we hope not, too.

Almost as much as we hope Mr. Myers is not really representative of student thinking at the University of South Carolina.

Where Do You Turn For Help?

A kitten drowned just outside the Chapel Hill city limits yesterday. The kitten was the pet of a small boy and the playmate of a redbone hound.

She fell into a well, scrambled to a large ledge and sat meowing until her owner discovered her. The Chapel Hill police were called, but the house was outside of their jurisdiction. The fire department was called, but again the house was out of bounds. The Fire Department told her to call the County Sheriff, but the Sheriff said that cats were not in his line of work.

Neither the phone book nor telephone information listed a number for an Animal Rescue League. The Information operator tried both local veterinary hospitals, but neither could give any assistance. The mail man stopped and tried to help, but gave up and went to look for someone else to help. No men were in the neighborhood.

The owner lowered various articles trying to get the kitten to grab one, but the kitten was too frightened.

Two hours after it all began, and still no help, the automatic pump started. While the owner watched helplessly, the water level rose and the kitten drowned.

Ga. U. Students Can't Hear, Just Color

The Atlanta Constitution

Probably nothing would have enlightened University of Georgia students about the nature of Communist propaganda faster than to hear a real, live Red twist and turn with the tortuous party line in debate.

Phi Kappa literary society doubtless thought so when it proposed a debate between an economics professor and a member of the Communist Party of New York.

But university officials apparently still believe in teaching by rote. Students will just have to take it on faith that communism is bad, without knowing why and in what ways.

The university administration's desire not to waste students' time with crackpots and unqualified persons is understandable. But communism is one of the vital issues of the day. Surely minds are not too tender to endure the exercise of debate. Surely the university has an economics professor capable of supporting American democracy.

Harvard was able to hear Ross Barnett without being won to his racism; and Yale will hear George Wallace.

Controversy is the fiber of education. It is possible to "protect" young minds right into dullness: See the Communist. Color him red. He is bad, bad, bad.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Gary Blanchard, David Ethridge
Co-Editors

Managing Editors — Wayne King, Fred Seely
Associate Editor — Peter Harkness
Photo Editor — Jim Wallace
Sports Editor — Curry Kirkpatrick
Asst. Sports Editor — John Montague
Night Editor — Jim Wallace
Copy Editor — Bob Samsot
Reporters:
Mickey Blackwell, Administration
Peter Wales, Campus Affairs
Hugh Stevens, Student Government
Editorial Assistants:
Dale Keyser, Sue Simonds, Linda McPherson, Linda Riggs
Science Editor — Mat Friedman
Women's Editor — Diane Hile
Features Editor — Chris Farran

BUSINESS STAFF

Business Manager — Art Pearce
Advertising Manager — Fred McConnel
Circulation Manager — John Evans
Subscription Manager — Bryan Simpson
Asst. Advertising Mgr. — Woody Sobol
Asst. Business Mgr. — Sally Rawlings
Sales — Frank Potter, Dick Baddour, Bob Vanderberry

"Harry, I Don't Think You're Going To Like This One Any Better"

Letters To The Editors

More Gripes And Advice

Who Is Master?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

There is a resolution presently pending before the Student Legislature which I believe merits close attention.

Article II of "A Resolution urging an individual committment to the attainment of equal rights for all citizens" calls for the creation of a special committee to investigate discriminatory practices on our campus. This proposal is obviously within the realm of student government.

The pertinence and desirability of Article I is altogether another matter. Article I reads as follows: "The Student Legislature urges each student to develop an individual committment to actively further, insofar as he is able, the attainment of full political rights and equal economic opportunities for all citizens of the United States." While few will deny that "full political rights" and "equal economic opportunities for all citizens" are fine rhetorical phrases and indeed testify to the erudition of the author, these phrases seem just a little vague. In fact, these terms are so vague that their use without further clarification would seem to render this portion of the resolution meaningless.

Legislation which is not readily self-explanatory necessitates interpretation. If this resolution is passed, who will interpret it? What guarantee is there that an arbitrary interpretation will reflect the intentions of the Student Legislature? One wonders even how the Legislature can consider and discuss Article I unless they merely conjecture its intent. Certainly no specific intentions are evident taking the words at their face value.

Is equal economic opportunities for all citizens construed to mean that the Student Legislature goes on record as advocating the establishment of an F.E.P.C. with sweeping powers? Why or why not? The answer is certainly not to be found in the resolution itself. What possible use is Article I in its present form? If its author and proponents have something definite in mind, why do they hesitate to incorporate these measures into the resolution and thereby create a meaningful piece of legislation which can be considered on its evident merits or defects?

If a student legislator is going to introduce a resolution of this nature it seems that he could at least introduce something with enough substance and detail so as to present a clear and explicit picture of what he opposes or advocates. This would seem to be common sense.

The scope of Article I brings to mind the advisability of a student legislature passing legislation containing obvious partisan political implications. Current political issues in all levels of government are of vital interest and concern to the students of any institution of higher learning; however, it does not follow that a student legislature should take upon itslf the duty of acting as a political sounding board for issues not directly related to its prescribed duties as a governing body of a student government.

It would seem that the Di-Phi is an adequate and certainly the traditional means of kicking around issues of the scope of the one at hand. Organizations such as the Y.D.C., Y.R.C., S.P.U., and Y.A.F. offer means of expression for students with views almost anywhere on the political spectrum. The point of course is obvious — these organizations do not represent the student body as a whole in an official, or semi-official capacity.

It is interesting to note the wording of Article I. It would seem that in passing this measure the Student Legislature would be reversing the normal democratic process of allowing legislation to be initiated by constituents.

One wonders just who is the master.

Clark Crampton
214 Grimes

????

Editors, The Tar Heel,

In re: Otleia—Conner means one who tests, examines, studies; but that was her husband's name.

The surest way to make a tyrant is to give undue recognition to prolix near-nonentity.

Whitmel M. Joyner
18 Old East

Both Sides

Editors, The Tar Heel,

I am enjoying the articles by Gary Blanchard on the student tour in Cuba. However, I feel that the articles would be more effective, and reflect the truth more closely, if the writer would avoid the pleasant euphemisms of communist propaganda, and use the words descriptive of what actually happened. For example: "—The official government tourist service had arranged for us to spend our stay in Havana in the twenty story Havana Riviera. It was an ultra-plush hotel built in 1957 and later nationalized by the revolutionary government."

Consider what a world of unpleasant facts is smoothed over by that pretty word "nationalized." How much more accurate, and how much more honest it would have been to make that last sentence read, "It was an ultra-plush hotel built by the United States money in 1957 and later stolen at gun point by Castro." The two sentences ,mean the same thing, but the second gives both sides of the picture.

Paul Smith
The Intimate Bookshop

No Reason?

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Since I subscribe to the NAACP I don't see any reason to subscribe to The Daily Tar Heel too.

C. Kay Davis

A Good Gripe

Editors, The Tar Heel,

RIP 'EM UP, TEAR 'EM UP, GIVE 'EM HELL LAUNDRY!!!!!

Have you ever sent underwear to the University Laundry, only to have them returned as two pieces of cloth resembling shoe rags? Well, I have, and I agree with that bit of satirical nonsense written in Saturday's DTH. The situation is actually revolting! It is the University's responsibility to maintain a quick, efficient service for one to clean his clothes. The service is lousy and the detergent used is so strong that after a few washings the clothes begin to rot. As it stands, it would be better to have washing machines and dryers in every "residence hall" basement and let the students serve themselves.

G. C.
Ehringhaus

Not Me!

Editors, The Tar Heel,

Robert Barnard of the Art Department is not connected in any way with the Barnard responsible for the cartoon in last Saturday's Tar Heel.

Robert Barnard
Asst. Professor of Art.

Off Key In The Capital?

By JAY JENKINS

The Charlotte Observer

One of the most presistent critics of the Sanford administration is the Raleigh station, WRAL-TV, which bills itself as the "Voice of Free Enterprise" while holding a government-bestowed honopoly on channel five.

WRAL-TV is owned by the Capital Broadcasting Co.

A division of the Capital Broadcasting Co. is a firm called Woody Hayes Music which peddles, among other things, canned or piped music.

The State Highway Commission is paying Woody Hayes $26 per month to pipe music to the darkroom and other portions of the Photogrammetry department (which examines and develops aerial photos). The theory is that the music relieves the tedium, and makes work in the semi-darkness more pleasant.

The piped-in music began in January, 1960, while Luther Hodges was Governor.

So if Gov. Sanford wants to hear some soothing strings and horns, in contrast to the chin music he usually gets from Capital Broaddcasting, tie has only to walk the few steps from his office to the Highway building, due east on Capital Square.

'Total Power Is Totally Wonderful'

By WARREN UNNA
The Washington Post

SOUTH VIET-NAM's Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu is a woman who has learned to make more than her own way in a man's world.

Like the Queen of Hearts in "Alice in Wonderland," Mme. Nhu loves to cry, "Off with his head!" But unlike Lewis Carroll's queen, who was very doughty, Mme. Nhu is such a dish that the poor victim, more often than not, is likely to gaze up at her adoringly as the execution order is pronounced.

Mme. Nhu, or "Beautiful Spring," as her hopeful parents named her at birth 38 years ago, has timed her arrival in New York to coincide with the scheduled opening of the United Nations debate on South Viet-Nam's current suppression of Buddhists, students, intellectuals and all opponents of her family's regime.

But even though she is the most articulate defender of her regime's policies, she is not expected to be seen on the U.N. premises. South Viet-Nam's friends have warned that Mme. Nhu's presence would only insure a harsh U.N. condemnation, and South Viet-Nam's representatives at the U.N. have indicated that they are only too well aware of this.

Instead, Mme. Nhu is planning a triumphal tour of the United States: a week in New York, four days next week in Washington and then a 10 to 12-day trip around the country which will take her as far as San Francisco.

She is said to have one of the biggest advance TV bookings on record. And her tour here, like that of Nationalist China's Mme. Chiang Kai-shek during World War II, could well flush out American gallantry. The sight of a tearful, beautiful lady in distress historically has had its way in pushing aside all nasty thoughts about the regime she represents.

And Mme. Nhu's charms already have worked their way into America's own "royal" family.

In Belgrade at last month's meeting of the International Parliamentary Union, Mme. Nhu, with her great beauty, girlish giggles and elegant floating panniers, reportedly did such a job on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) that Teddy's big brother in the White House had to give him an oral spanking when he got home.

Last week, in a telephone interview from his Senate office, Teddy was all circumspection: "I think she has got a keen, decisive mind. And she does have great ability to talk."

Teddy said he had no plans to see Mme. Nhu while she is here, and that attitude apparently now is going to be standing operating procedure for the whole Kennedy Administration.

There is some evidence to indicate that the United States had a leading part in persuading South Viet-Nam's President Ngo Dinh Diem to get his sister-in-law, First Lady and official hostess out of the country for a while until the hatred of her simmered down.

But United States officials certainly hadn't encouraged Diem to send Mme. Nhu here, where the Administration is having trouble enough persuading Congress that aid to South Viet-Nam's Diem-Nhu regime should be continued.

Who is this woman whom American journalists variously call a modern-day Lucretia Borgia, a misguided Joanne d'Arc, a Queen Bee and a real-life version of the comic strip's Dragon Lady?

Officially, in terms of her government's functions, Mme. Nhu is nobody, even though she arrives here with a diplomatic passport and a United States diplomatic visa.

Unofficially, she is the lightning rod for her husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, the real ruler of today's South Viet-Nam. But although the policy for her inflammatory pronouncements is his, the tactics are hers, and even Nhu is not always able to stop her once she gets going.

Neither can her parents, the recently resigned Vietnamese Ambassador to the United States, Tran Van Chuong, and his wife, a descendent of Vietnamese royalty.

Early in August, Ambassador Chuong disavowed his daughter's remarks on a TV show in which she had accused her country's Buddhists of "barbecuing" an "intoxicated" monk with "imported gasoline."

Later in the month, the Ambassador resigned, from a "government which ignores my advice and of which I disapprove." He had in mind his daughter and her husband.

Mme. Nhu's mother also resigned as South Viet-Nam's permanent observer to the U.N. Some time before this, Mme. Chuong was forced to make a hurried trip back to South Viet-Nam to spirit out her younger daughter. Mme. Nhu had her sister locked up in a sanitarium for defying her strictures against divorce.

For her part, Mme. Nhu has referred to her childhood as that of a poor little rich girl, unhappy and unloved in a home where her mother held court as the reigning beauty of Hanoi.

In marrying Nhu, "Beautiful Spring" forsook her mother's Buddhism and her father's Confucianism for her husband's Catholicism and promptly proceeded to become more Catholic than the Pope.

She made that quite clear in regard to the late Pope John's "Pacem in Terris." "Poor Pope," Mme. Nhu purred. "He pleases everyone with this encyclical. "But if something pleases everyone, it can be exploited."

Mme. Nhu is a firm defender of the family and told Newsweek correspondent Robert K. McCabe recently: "My husband and I have never liked public life. We would much prefer to live in our home, with our children."

Her home is a Saigon palace which the Nhus share with President Diem, a convenient proximity for her visits to the President's study to tell him where to get off.

"It's our followers who save him," she recently said of Diem in an interview. "Women follow me and not the President. And my husband leads the youth group, which he created."

Mme. Nhu also is on the outs with another of her husband's brothers, Ngo Dinh Can, the warlord of Central Viet-Nam: "He has face with the family. He no longer has any political importance," she explained. And when she wanted some first-hand evidence of the corruption scandals involving Can's shipping and rubber enterprises, she ordered her agents to "search his ships, a hundred times a day if necessary."

There are also many rumors in Saigon about Mme. Nhu herself running various financial enterprises and investing abroad, primarily in France.

When I interviewed her husband in his Saigon palace last May, he grew stern on only one subject: "One thing I know for certain is that if there were one American intelligence agency of value here, it would be able to have documents to tell the American Congress and the American people that the calumnies people are spreading on a worldwide basis about my wife are lies."

Like her husband, Mme. Nhu is an intense nationalist and tolerates the American presence in South Viet-Nam as a necessary sacrifice in order to help the family regime survive. But the 15,000 United States military advisers now in South Viet-Nam and the $1.5 million a day the United States is spending there have not bought her uncritical silence.

She called President Kennedy "very misinformed" when he declared in a Labor Day telecast that the Diem-Nhu regime's suppression tactics were "very unwise" and the government was getting "out of touch with the people."

South Viet-Nam's First Lady has a habit of breaking into martyred tears when provoked, and then becoming even more outspoken. She infuriated United States soldiers in South Viet-Nam by banning dancing: "Dancing with death is enough."

She did not endear herself to her own people when she used her seat in the National Assembly to put through a family bill which made adultery a prison offense, outlawed polygamy and concubinage and permitted divorce only by special presidential dispensation, abortion, contraceptives and organized animal fights were banned.

She has antagonized South Viet-Nam's military by heading a women's paramilitary corps ("My darlings") which gets paid twice as much as army regulars.

She also organized the Women's Solidarity Movement, a sort of Oriental ladies' aid whose estimated 1.2 million members combine social good deeds with political intelligence snooping.

Essentially, Mme. Nhu and her husband look upon all expression of opposition as a threat to themselves personally as well as to their regime.

"I shall never, never admit defeat," she declared recently. Nevertheless, on her current trip she took the precaution of removing her four children from South Viet-Nam and boarding them in France.

With her children thus safeguarded, Mme. Nhu felt herself free enough to do her own paraphrasing of Lord Acton in an interview with Denis Warner in this week's edition of the Reporter magazine. "Power," she said, "is wonderful. Total power is totally wonderful."

Students And The System: III

By PETE WALES
Third of Five Article

How many students would you say have violated either the Honor Code or Campus Code?

In last spring's study, 88 per cent of the males and 95 per cent of the females said they had violated the Honor Code either "never" or "once or twice."

For the Campus Code, 74 per cent of the males and 83 per cent of the females answered "never" or "once or twice."

These percentages were fairly evenly split between the two answers except in the case of females violating the Honor Code. In this category twice as many females said "never" as said "once or twice."

One per cent of the males and no females said they violated the Honor Code "frequently." But nine per cent of the males and five per cent of the females said they violated the Campus Code either "often" or "very often."

Violations

The numbers of admitted violations increased from freshman to senior year according to the study.

Over three-fourths of the males and 60 per cent of the females said they could "probably" or "definitely" get away with violation of the Honor Code if they wanted to.

Only 5 per cent of the males and 17 per cent of the females said they thought they could not get away with it.

More graduates thought they could get away with violations than did undergraduates.

Females showed more disapproval of the "apartment rule" than did males by 75 per cent to 64 per cent. The rule requires no less than two couples in an apartment at one time.

About 22 per cent of the males and 18 per cent of the females favored the rule.

Larger percentages of graduates approved the rule than did undergraduates.

Diversion

There was some diversion between the number of people who said they had cheated and the numbers that students guessed were cheating.

A little over half the students replied that they guessed one in ten Carolina students had violated the Honor Code. Only five per cent of the students thought that over half the student body had violated the Code.

Upper classmen tended to guess higher percentages of violations than did freshmen and sophomores.

About half the students said they thought cheating decreased from freshman to senior year while one-third thought it remained about the same.

In general, students said there was less cheating at UNC than at the high school they attended. About half reported "a little less" or "much less" cheating at UNC. About 20 per cent said it is about the same.

Less Cheating

Freshmen felt more strongly than others that there is less cheating here than in their high schools.

Only 55 per cent of the males and 65 per cent of the females would make a guess as to whether there was more cheating here than at other colleges. Of those giving an answer, 89 per cent of the males and 77 per cent of the females thought there was the same or less cheating here as at other colleges.

About half the students felt that the grading system contributes to the number of cheating violations.

Grading methods most frequently attacked were:

1) Mass grading.
2) Using graduate students as graders.
3) Giving many make-up exams.
4) Curving grades.
5) Too much emphasis on grades in general.

Males especially mentioned the "low point spread" as leading to cheating. In courses where 96 to 100 is an "A," 90 to 95 is a "B," ets., students who need a good grade may cheat to gain one or two points.

Causes of Cheating

Other conditions most commonly named as causing cheating were:

1) "The continued use of old quizzes and quiz files in dorms and fraternity houses." Students felt that since quizzes didn't change from year to year, people just studied the old quizzes rather than the material of the course.
2) Large and crowded classes.
3) Take-home exams.
4) Make-up exams.
5) Objective and multiple choice
6) Pressure on students to make good grades.
7) Too much emphasis on exams and grades in general.
8) Student competition.

-Bateson Pleads 5th-

(Continued from Page 1)

Gumpert.

Gumpert, a 29-year-old research associate at UNC told the subcommittee Bateson introduced him to Idenbaum last July but he never knew him by the name of Jacobs.

Idenbaum asked him, Gumpert said, to help him get an auto so he could take a North Carolina driver's examination. Gumpert said he rented a car on July 26 so Idenbaum could use it for the test and Idenbaum paid the cost. He never saw Idenbaum after that, he added.

Bateson gave Fifth Amendment answers to whether Box 141 B was his mailing address and to whether he involved Gumpert "without his knowledge in this fraudulent performance."

Miss Gard said Jacobs received a refund for eight unused tickets. She said he was accompanied by Levi Laub, a young New Yorker previously identified as the leader of the expedition to Cuba. The students went to Europe, flew to Cuba and went back to Europe before returning to the U. S.

Committee Counsel Alfred Nittle said Jay Jacobs deposited more than $22,000 with BOAC in Ottawa for 40-odd seat reservations to Paris. He said Jacobs also deposited $13,000 with KLM in Ottawa in June for another block of 26 tickets to Paris.

The committee was told at a previous hearing in September that the cost of the trip to Cuba was paid for by a Cuban student federation and each American student paid only $100 as his share.

No Parking

The following areas will be closed to traffic and parking Friday night at 11 o'clock.

(1) — The area between Woollen Gym and the Tin Can;
(2) — Bell Tower Road, between the Bell Tower and Parker Dormitory;
(3) — Ram-Varsity Parking lot behind Kenan Field House;
(4) — The area behind the Nurses Dormitory adjacent to South Side Gate 6.

Gory Crime and Dangling Felons—

That's what you'll find in our Old Book Case this week.

This impressive collection of books and pamphlets on true crimes and trial reports is definitely worth looking at, and might even tempt you to a purchase!

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar Items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Scabbard and Blade—1900 hours, A.S. classroom 3, wear prescribed uniform.

Symposium Interviews — 2-5:30 & 7:00-9:00 o'clock p.m., 2nd floor Y-Bldg., applications in GM or Y-Bldg. Committees include finance, publicity, related discussions, intercollegiate seminar, secretariat, social and hospitality, and physical arrangements.

GMAB Current Affairs Comm. Interviews—2-3:30 p.m., GMAB office, Fri., Mon.

WAA Tennis Tournament — 3:30 p.m., Clay courts behind Alexander.

Interviews for Advertising Manager of "The Carolina Quarterly"—3-5 p.m., Quarterly office, GM, interested persons call Anne Greene, 968-9004, or come by office.

UP Academic Improvement Committee—4 p.m., RPI.

University Women's Club with Newcomer's Division Tea—4-6 p.m., banquet room of the Morehead Building.

Wesley Foundation, Lay Scholars 1—6 o'clock p.m., Wesley House, if interested call Bob Johnson or 942-2152.

YWCA Gravely Committee — 5 p.m., Y-Court.

UNC Debate Team—6:30 p.m., Bingham Annex.

Alpha Epsilon Delta — 7 p.m., 226 Med. School.

Christian Science Organization— 7 p.m., Woodhouse Room, GM.

Spanish Club — 7:30 p.m., in the Faculty Lounge, Dey Hall, organizational meeting, all interested invited to attend.

Dirty Old Men — 7:30 p.m., Roland Parker I, GM.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes F.C.A. — 8 p.m., 304 Woollen Gym.

Wesley Foundation, Freshman Seminar — 9:00 p.m., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., if interested see Paul Davis or call 942-2152.

Yack Beauty Contest—names of all entries for the Yack Beauty Contest must be in the Yack Office by Oct. 21. Entry fees in by Oct. 22.

Yack Pictures—1-6 p.m., basement of GM, for sophomores, pharmacy students and late juniors, through Fri.

Carolina Inn Cafeteria — needs boys to work either part-time or regular shifts in the cafeteria. Interested boys should either come by the Inn during meal hours or call Bill Graham at 942-6989.

All Organizations are reminded that contracts reserving space in the 1964 "Yackety Yack" must be signed before Friday, Oct. 18. Any group which has not made arrangements by this deadline will not be included in the book. Any organization which has not received a copy of an organization sheet should procure one as soon as possible from the Yack office in the GM basement.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital, $1 charge.

Tennis Club—3:30 p.m., Varsity courts.

MOVIES

Carolina—Donovan's Reef

North Gate—The Young Racers

GM Free Flick for Sat. has been changed from One-Eyed Jacks to Cat on a Hot Tin Roof.

SPORTS

Freshman Soccer—3 p.m., Fetzer Field, against Appalachian State.

FUTURE

Math Colloquium—4 p.m., Fri., 383 Phillips, speaker F. V. Atkinson, "Multivariate Sturm-Liouville Theory."

Carolina Christian Fellowship — 6 p.m., Fri., supper meeting upstairs Lenoir, Rev. Jim Raines will speak on "Basic Christianity: Part 1—The Human Dilemma."

Mademoiselle Magazine Tea — 4-5 p.m. Sun., Roland Parker Lounge, for all women interested in their college board contest.

RTVMP Open House — 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat., new quarters Swain Hall, informal.

"The Heroic Age of Greece and Israel" lecture by Dr. Cyrus H. Gordon—8 p.m., Sun., Murphey Hall Auditorium.

Splash Club—7 p.m., Mon., Indoor Pool.

Golf Club—1 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym.

Beta Gamma Sigma — 4 p.m., Fri., Faculty Seminar Room, Carroll Hall.

Baptist Student Union Supper— Study—5:45 p.m., Fri., Student Center, 151 E. Rosemary St., four discussion groups.

UNC Philosophy Colloquium — 8 p.m., Fri., 213 Caldwell Hall, speaker Dr. Francis Parker, "Traditional Reason and Modern Reason."

PLACEMENT ANNUALS

Seniors and graduate students can pick up their free copies of the 1964 College Placement Service, 206 Gardner Hall. The annual contains a directory of business and industrial firms that emply college graduates. Helpful articles for the job seeker are included with the employment indexes.

-Fleishman-

(Continued from Page 1)

at the University to make students more aware of their tradition. If the SP is to make its greatest contribution, it must know what has gone before," he commented.

Fleishman named a number of SP alumni who have gone on to continue the "tradition of discontent" in politics, government and university life. He also named a number of achievements spurred by SP "discontent" on campus: dorm social rooms, TV sets in the dorms, co-ed visiting agreements, and deferred fraternity rush.

Fleishman concluded by saying that for 25 years the SP has been willing to champion student causes, letting the University know that the students are not contented. He called on the SP to present a program to the campus that would provide new direction to students in the '60's.

Dave Williams and Neildes De Vere were elected to fill legislative vacancies in Town Men's IV at the meeting. Judy Frieder and Diana Wellons were selected to fill vacancies in Dorm Women's IV.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Lost and Found

FOUND — A PLACE TO GET Prestone Anti-Freeze at 2 gal. for $3.00 at Roses Variety Store, E. Franklin St.

Services Available

3 BEDROOM HOUSE, CERAMic bath, carport, 100x200 wooded lot, fenced yard, good neighborhood. $450 down, $77 a month. See and buy. Occupancy January. 967-1008.

FREE RELATIVE - SITTING — Mothers, sisters, little brothers, love our handmade gifts and toys. Fathers like our free coffee. The Country Store, across street from Zoom-Zoom.

THE ONLY DIFFERENCE BEtween an old man and an elderly gentleman is income. Your Northwestern Mutual agent can show you an excellent retirement income plan costing only a few cents a day. Arthur DeBerry, Jr., C. L. U. and Associates. Telephone No. 942-6966.

Help Wanted — Male

PART-TIME, DURHAM-CHAPEL Hill area, car necessary, age 19-35, neat and courteous, $51.10 weekly, excellent advancement, four positions. WEAI, Wear-Ever Aluminum, 1731 Morehead Ave., Durham.

Automotive

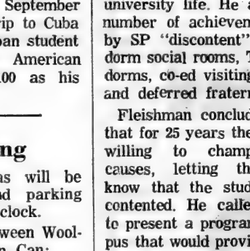
1960 PLYMOUTH FURY. 30,000 miles, Golden Commando engine, power features—including air conditioning. So new it is still tight! Priced for quick sale. 929-2564.

1963 YAMAHA SCOOTER—ELECtric starter, turn signals, 3 speed, automatic clutch, red, only 2300 miles. Must sell. Best offer. 967-1185.

1963 HONDA 300 MOTORCYCLE, red, like new. $550.00. See at Imported Cars, Ltd.

1962 — Austin Healey 3,000 MKII; 21,000 actual miles; new tires; perfect condition; $1965; 929-1462.

1957 THUNDER BIRD, WHITE with red interior, body and engine in excellent condition, must sell, call 942-2400 after 6 p.m.



ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRASABLE BOND

Don't meet your Waterloo at the typewriter—perfectly typed papers begin with Corrasable! You can rub out typing errors with just an ordinary pencil eraser. It's that simple to erase without a trace on Corrasable. Saves time, temper, and money!

Your choice of Corrasable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin in handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrasable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

Available At Ledbetter Pickard Eaton Paper

Carolina
NOW PLAYING

Why Wait? Flunk Now

Build and Fly Model Planes.

Billy Arthur
EASTGATE

PEANUTS

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club will hold its first meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the fourth floor Faculty Lounge of Dey Hall.

Mrs. Ronna Abbott, president has invited all Spanish students, as well as students from Spanish-speaking countries to attend.

"This will be an organizational meeting to make plans for club's activities for the year," Mrs. Abbott said.

"Some of our plans call for interesting talks by Latin American natives. In addition, we hope to organize a group that can meet once a week for lunch and speak Spanish exclusively at the meal — something similar to the German Club's Mit-Tag Tisch group," she said.

Delivery Service Phone 968-2571
Delivery until 11:30 P.M.

BILL'S BAR-B-Q No. 1

Specializing in Pit Cooked Bar-B-Q
Chicken Boxes and Shrimp Boxes to Take Out
Sandwiches — Cold Drinks — Smokes

115 N. Graham Street Chapel Hill, N. C.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wrestler's floor covering
4. Opium poppy seed
7. Rational
8. God of war
10. Latent
12. Minute skin opening
13. Remotely ancestral
15. Silkworm
16. Before
17. Ostrich-like bird
18. Close to
19. Old times: archaic
20. Land measure
21. Pack-sack: West. U. S.
23. Great Lake's whitefish
26. Greek letter
27. Seed vessel
28. Exclamation
29. Palm leaf: var.
31. Little child
32. Fuel
33. Teases: sl.
35. Pulverized earth
38. Transparent feldspar
38. British princess
39. Taverns
40. Place
41. Wages

DOWN
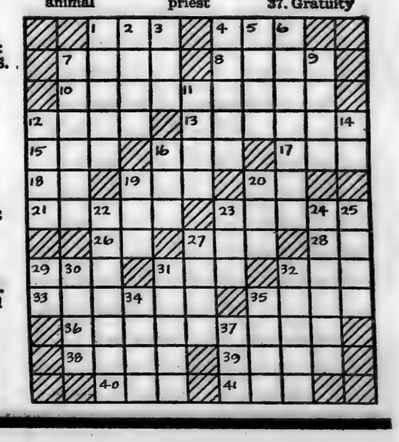
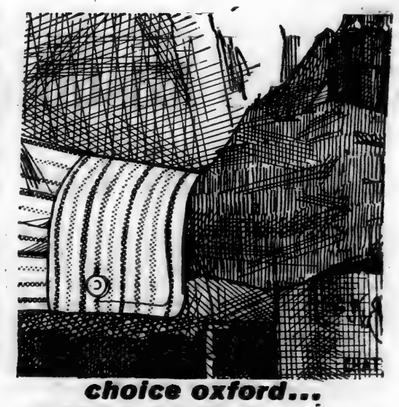
1. An aborigine: N. Z.
2. Poker stake
3. Golf term
4. Dull finish
5. Melody
6. Finchlike birds
7. Showy, as clothes
9. Slender
11. Ointment
12. Apex
14. Copper: sym.
16. Antlered animal
19. Five-franc piece
20. Help
22. Race of female warriors: Myth.
23. Newfoundland Banks fish
24. Follows
25. Malt kiln
27. Mountain defile
29. Gold: Her.
30. Tibetan priest
31. Doctrine
32. Coarse jute sacking
34. A region set off
35. Spanish lady
37. Gratuity

Yesterday's Answer





Multi stripes: burgundy, golden, green. Mellow as candlelight and rare as wine. But there's more than multi stripes needled into its warp and woof. In addition—there's flair, fit, casual roll of collar—three vital "inherents" that make all the difference when a man wears a Gant. This multi stripe oxford Gant shirt about $7 at discerning stores.

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

Julian's

Myers Park Grads To Play Large Part In UNC Future

By BILL LEE

The football team of Myers Park High School in Charlotte ranked third in the state at the end of the 1962 season with an 8-2-1 record.

From this team, four players, Jeff Beaver, John Cornelius, Bud Phillips, and Jerry Kiser, are now on Carolina's freshman football team and are prominent figures in UNC's gridiron future.

They chose Carolina for different reasons. Beaver, a quarterback, who is on a Morehead Scholarship, decided on UNC after looking at other schools including West Point. He plans to major in business.

Center Cornelius decided to uphold the family tradition as his father is an alumnus and his brother is now a junior here.

Kiser, a running-back, had heard a lot about Carolina and liked the academic standards. He and Cornelius also plan to major in business.

Phillips, a wingback, decided that he would get more out of a big school and would enjoy playing football more for a large college. He plans to go into business or religion.

John Cornelius Jeff Beaver
Jerry Kiser Bud Phillips

Beaver and Cornelius are veterans of the East-West All-Star Game played at Greensboro in August. The quarterback directed most of the West attack, while Cornelius stuck mostly to offense until near the end of the game. Both were also slated for the Shrine Bowl, but Cornelius was unable to play due to a knee injury.

Beaver was last year's recipient of the annual Thom McCann National Award for his essay on what football and the chance at higher education has meant to him.

The fact that four have come from one team has held significance in familiarity with each other. This is an advantage even though they are spread out among three different teams.

Phillips and Beaver are on the same team and are also roommates. This has enabled them to help each other and to work things out with ideas each has noticed during practices and games.

Phillips said, "Although it is psychologically good to know each other so well, it is not that big of an advantage as you are branching out."

These two have expressed an interest in professional ball if the chance ever comes their way. The offense that the freshman team uses is the same as pro teams and was also used at Myers Park.

In Beaver's opinion, "College football differs from high school chiefly because of the caliber of players." He added, "There is more detail involved, and the adaptation of the team members to each other is quicker."

Cornelius pointed out the longer game, and that here "they can take you or leave you." Kiser, a defensive specialist in high school, noted that a player must be able to play both offense and defense.

Phillips added, "You've got to be on your toes and you have more fun if you hustle more." All agreed that the game is rougher than high school ball.

Kiser and Phillips also plan to go out for track. Kiser will try the pole-vault while Phillips will try at low hurdles, broad jump, and relays. Beaver may go out for basketball.

One of the boys added that, "From a team standpoint, we get along real well with the coaches, and the team-coach relationship could not be better."

Wolfpack's Mistakes Come Too Few And Far Between

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

Two minutes from the end of the first half in UNC's 14-7 win over Maryland, Junior Edge began a rollout from his own 12-yard line. He never finished it. The Terps' Jerry Fishman grabbed Edge's arm, knocked the ball free and fell on it as it bounced across the goal line for a 7-0 halftime lead.

It was Carolina's only mistake of any proportion the entire game—and it is just this factor which UNC must employ this weekend if it is to stay close to the Wolfpack.

N.C. State's 4-0 record has been founded on its ability to stay away from telling, killing mistakes. That, plus an explosive attack around Jim Rossi and a veteran defensive line, has meant victories (36-14 over Maryland, 14-0 over Mississippi State, 7-3 over Clemson and 18-6 over South Carolina) all year.

Against the Gamecocks last week, State has a 12-0 lead with time running out in the half. Rossi, deep in his town territory, decided to gamble and throw the ball on third down. His pass was intercepted and carried back into a dangerous (for State) spot.

Rossi had gambled foolishly, but South Carolina was unable to take advantage of it for the score. It was one of the few times this year when the Pack quarterback has made a mistake. It could have hurt but it didn't. The two teams traded TDs in the second half for the 18-6 State win.

The Wolfpack doesn't give you opportunities like that too often. And when you look at their personnel, you get an idea why.

The backfield, out of Southern Europe, has played together four years, and is just this season beginning to blossom.

Quarterback Rossi (5-10, 175) is the ACC's total offense leader (545 yards) and has thrown five touchdown passes. The running backs out of the Wolfpack's Slot-T formation are halfback Tony Koszarsky (5-8, 174) and fullback Pete Falzarano (5-10, 201).

Falzarano is the ACC's second leading rusher, yards-per-carry wise. He is at 4.8. Joe Scarpatti lines up at the slotback spot (State's equivalent of the UNC wingback) and is the Pack's best pass-catcher (12 for 140 yards).

On the line, Coach Earle Edwards employs six more seniors and one junior. But the only thing keeping it from being an all-senior group is the ruling by the ACC before the season that limits tackle Bert Wilder to seven games.

Wilder's military service-interrupted career has already included three games with both UNC and Virginia, and he must be held out of one other game this year. That one is yet to be decided.

Whether State will miss Wilder is a moot point. Replacing him is up to two juniors, Glenn Sasser (6-4, 215) and Rosie Amato (6-0, 221) whose credentials for the job have been impressive. Sasser is expected to start Saturday.

At the ends will be Ray Barlow (6-2, 201) who caught the pass that beat Clemson and Don Montgomery (6-2, 208). Montgomery is without a doubt the league's finest defensive flanker.

The big Albemarle product blocked a South Carolina punt last Saturday, caught the ball on the run and ran for the second touchdown. His play has been a large factor in State's championship drive and, though it hasn't come up yet, this may be the Pack's most valuable wolf.

The tackle opposite Sasser is Chuck Wachtel (6-3, 220), another veteran lineman.

At the guards are Jack Schafer (5-7, 200) and Bill Sullivan (5-10, 215) while center Oscar Overcash (6-2, 238) rounds out the starting team.

On defense, State usually makes two major replacements. Merrick Barnes (6-1, 197) comes in for Rossi to play safety and Lou DeAngelis (6-0, 197) takes over for Overcash at middle guard.

The second unit backfield is composed of (in addition to Barnes) running backs Mike Clark (5-10, 173) and Dave Houtz (5-11, 195) and slotback Jimmy Guin (6-0, 170).

Houtz takes care of the punting duties well. He has kicked 22 times for 893 yards—a40.4 average. The point-after and field goal man is sophomore Gus Andrews (5-8, 207) who is seven for seven in extra points and zip for two in field goals.

Willie Pep

From DTH Wire Report

Willie Pep, a dapper, dandy dancer whose flying hands and feet earned him the world featherweight title and the neck-name "Will o' the Wisp," is the latest addition to Boxing's Hall of Fame.

"It is nice news," said Pep when advised of his selection. "I was surprised that I got it now."

Now a sales representative for a radio company in Brockton, Mass., Pep said "I miss boxing very much. It was an exciting life and it gave you a chance to meet a lot of very nice people."

Light-footed Willie, now 41, was one of the fastest, most clever boxers in modern history.

He won the featherweight title in 1942 with a 15-round decision over Chalky Wright in New York, was in military service for two years and retained the crown until the first of his four classic fights with Sandy Saddler.

Soccer Club, Harriers Are Away Today

By JOHN MONTAGUE

The runners and kickers take to the road today and each squad is expected to bring back a victory when they return to Chapel Hill tonight.

Coach Joe Hilton takes his unbeaten cross - country team to Charlottesville for a 3 o'clock meeting with the Virginia Cavaliers. In quest of their fourth consecutive ACC title, the Tar Heel runners have posted four wins to date—over Wake Forest, Clemson, Maryland and N.C. State.

Meanwhile the soccer team, still recovering from shutout losses in its first two matches, takes on N.C. State at Raleigh. This will be the first ACC match of the fall for Coach Marvin Allen's booters, who beat Washington of St. Louis here Monday after losses to Navy and Davidson.

Sophomore Jimmy Meade and junior Art Maillet are the big wheels in UNC's harrier express. Bob Bennett, Mike Folk and Jerry Smith round out the top five.

Blake Leads Soccermen

Wingman Pete Blake is considered the top scoring threat on the Tar Heels' front line offensive attack which also includes Bill Haywood, Drew Murphy, Jim Talbot and Marty Kruming.

Halfbacks George Butler, George Beim and Park McGinty back up the forwards, and fullbacks Steve Painter and Charlie Battle along with goalie Buddy Siegel comprise the defensive threesome.

The freshman soccer and cross-country teams are also in action today.

Everett Takes Lead In Intramural Track

By AL KAPLAN

The Field Events in the first day of the Intramurals Track and Field Meet were held in the Graduate and Dormitory divisions Wednesday. Everett, with two firsts and two thirds, took the early lead.

In the discus, Everett dorm did extremely well. Everett's Cobb took first place with a throw of 102-5 and McGint placed third with 93-2. Badgely of Old East finished second on his hurl of 93-11.

Everett also took a first place in the shotput. Bethel of Everett had the best put, 37-3. Crowson of Winston placed second on his 35-0.

In the broad jump, McKee of Parker won with a leap of 19-6. The NROTC copped second and third on Belangia's 18-10 and Frank's 18-8.

In a runoff for first place, Craige's Brown jumped to first place on his try of 5-7. Reynolds of Aycock took second with 5-6 and fewest misses. Tied for third were Clark of Manly and Franks of NROTC.

In the graduate division, Law School won the broad jump with a first and second-place sweep. Barter jumped 18-5 and Worthlaw 17-9.

The Peacocks, defending champs in the grad division, won first place in the shotput on George's throw of 35-2.

MURAL SCORES

4:00

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 24 | to 6 | |
| 7 | to 0 | |
| 18 | to 14 | |
| 65 | to 0 | |
| 14 | to 8 | |
| 1 | to 0 | (forfeit) |
| 7 | to 6 | |

5:00

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | to 0 | (forfeit) |
| 8 | to 6 | (forfeit) |
| 24 | to 0 | |
| 27 | to 0 | |
| 27 | to 14 | |
| 45 | to 12 | |
| 30 | to 0 | |
| (postponed, snow) | | |
| 18 | to 6 | |

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the duplicate bridge game held Oct. 11 by the Friday night Duplicate Bridge Club are as follows:

NORTH-SOUTH

(1) — Mrs. Bob Quincy and Mrs. Phil Jackson;
(2) — Bill Brady and Mrs. Mildred Alexander;
(3) — Mr. and Mrs. Vic Huggins;
(4) — Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pinney.

EAST-WEST

(1) — Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McFadhyen;
(2)—Mrs. W. E. Rodgers and Mrs. E. D. Weeks;
(3) — Mrs. M. A. Roycroft and Mrs. C. P. Richman;
(4) — Mrs. W. C. Lawrence and Mrs. C. E. Warren.

The next game will be played Oct. 18, at 7:45 p.m. in the hall of the Chapel of St. Thomas More, 744 Gimghoul Road.

Boxer Dies After Fight In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Heavyweight boxer Ernie Knox died here Wednesday from a brain blood-clot and the Maryland State Athletic Commission immediately ordered an investigation to determine whether his knockout Monday night had resulted from a mismatch.

Knox, 26-year-old Baltimore hod carrier and part-time fighter, was knocked out in the ninth round at the Baltimore Coliseum by the heavier and more experienced Wayne Bethea of New York.

COLLEGE WEEK In BERMUDA
Easter Vacation
Raleigh-Durham-Bermuda
$155-$210 Round Trip
Including Room
Contact
Alan Saul or
Steve Nauneim
968-9007 or
968-9091

PRESTONE ANTI-FREEZE
2 Gallons for $3.00
(Regular $2.45 gallon)
"He Who Waits Is Lost"
ROSES VALUE-VARIETY
109 E. Franklin

Make Mine Scotch Please!

We'll be glad to. THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL has just received a large shipment of the new imported Scotch-Grain loafers that is taking the Carolinas by storm. Don't buy an imitation . . . Get the only true Scotch Grain, fully leather lined loafer in Chapel Hill. Stop by and see it today at THE HUB
THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

NEW! PRO-ELECTRIC ROLL-ON
FIRST! BEFORE-SHAVE LOTION THAT ROLLS-ON
No dripping, no spilling! Covers completely! Old Spice Pro-Electric protects sensitive skin areas from razor pull, burn. Sets up your beard for the cleanest, closest, most comfortable shave ever! 1.00
SHULTON

TRADITION WITH AUTHORITY IN THE CLASSIC BLUE SUIT
The indespensible addition to every man's wardrobe, important for business and social functions, for daytime and evenings. Vested with natural shoulder, authentically tailored in the natural manner by Hart, Schaffner, and Marx. None finer. Carried by
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

Lady Milton Autumn Temptables

Our manager, Harvey Cannon, feels that every co-ed needs some of our smart exclusives in their wardrobes, so we're offering some unheard of buys for a very limited time — then you can see for yourself why our Lady Milton classics are quite different from those offered elsewhere.
The buy of a lifetime — entire stock of our kilt, box pleat and straight skirts, regularly to $25.00, go mad at a ridiculous below cost $6.99.
Scotland's finest Fair Isle Shetland cardigan sweaters, regularly $23.95, now offered at only $12.99.
You've heard us rave about the finer quality of our Lady Milton Shirts — we are reducing over 1500 of them for you to sample—for a very limited time, entire stock pullovers in choir boy roll up sleeve, button-downs, roll sleeves, and flambeau cardigan shirts with roll sleeve, take your pick at a giant $2.00 off.
You'll Love Milton's New Look This Fall.
LADY MILTON SHOP
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Brief Manor
Brief Manor, the makers of a finer Chesterfield Coat, at popular prices, offers you both the fabric and the color that will make Chesterfield Coats a must for any wardrobe.

Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
New York Deal Edition
Chapel Hill, N.C.

★ ★ ★

The Daily Tar Heel

Today's Weather
Continued Sunny and warm.

Offices in Graham Memorial | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1963 | United Press International Service

Aycock Withholds Comment On Bateson And Gumpert

Chancellor William B. Aycock said yesterday he had no comment on the HUAC subcommittee hearing of a UNC grad student and a 29-year-old research assistant here.

Aycock said he would have no comment on the affair until he had time to study transcripts of the proceedings.

Nicholas Bateson, a UNC graduate student who claims he is a British subeject and Peter Gumpert, a UNC research assistant were subpoenaed early last week to appear before the House subcommittee on unamerican activities to explain a fraudulent North Carolina driver's license which was obtained and used to set up the forbidden trip of U. S. students to Cuba last summer.

Bateson apparently served as a go-between in the affair in which Arnold Idenbaum, a New Yorker, obtained a North Carolina driver's license under the alias of Jay Jacobs and used it to buy large blocks of tickets to Europe, the jumping-off place that the students used to get around a travel block the U. S. had set up.

Both Bateson and Idenbaum pleaded the Fifth Amendment under questioning from the committee.

Gumpert said that Bateson had introduced him to Idenbaum, who had asked for help in getting an auto so he could take the N. C. driver's examination. He said he rented a car for Idenbaum and that was the last he saw of him. He claimed that although he had met Idenbaum, he never knew him by the name of Jacobs, the name under which the fraudulent driver's license was reportedly obtained.

★ ★ ★

Playmaker Tickets Selling Well

Twenty-four tickets to the opening performance of "Little Mary Sunshine" were sold in the first hour of sales in response to the student night price cut for Tuesday night.

Only 228 tickets remain for the musical comedy.

Tickets for the performance are on sale at $1.00 apiece in Y-Court (9-12), Lenoir Hall (12-1) and at the GM Information desk.

If sales run high for the experimental price - cut performance, the practice will be continued for the remainder of the season.

Torch Parade Tonight

Fiery spirit will be shown at a pep rally tonight when UNC students take to the streets with torches in hand to spark up the team for tomorrow's game.

Head cheerleader Jim Slaughter said that the cheerleaders will start driving around the campus at 8 p.m. and will distribute torches at Craige and Ehringhaus.

The well-lit congregation will meet at the Scuttlebutt from where they will go to the Carolina Theater to meet the team.

Then they will block up traffic and jam the streets as they march to Y-court and hold a short pep rally.

Slaughter has planned the massive pep rally with hope that the spirit the team exhibited last weekend will spread through the student bodies and great support will be given for the contest with on of our most hated enemies—the boorish cows.

Ban Law Shows 'Lack Of Faith' In UNC Trustees

Lawler Says In Preview Of Meeting

By FRED HARWELL, JR.

Student Body President Mike Lawler will tell the Visiting Committee of UNC Trustees today that the Speaker Ban represents a "lack of faith" in the trustees themselves.

Lawler and others will go before the sub-committee to air problems of major concern to students when the group holds its annual meeting here this afternoon.

"The Speaker Ban Law," Lawler said yesterday, "shows a lack of faith by a small group of legislators in many families of men who have given their lives to this University and to this state."

Along with the Speaker Ban, the problem of rising costs at UNC will be discussed.

Bob Spearman, student vice-president, will outline plans for a student co-operative, now under study by a sub-committee headed by Bob Jones.

"Expenses here at the University are no worse than at any other its size," Spearman said, "but the problem of self-liquidation is forcing costs higher all the time."

Rising costs will be discussed formally at the meeting. Lawler's statements on the Speaker Ban will be made as part of his introductory remarks.

He plans to emphasize the concern of students over the Gag Law and its effects on campus activities such as the Carolina Forum and the Carolina Symposium.

Some legislators have presented a "perverted picture of the situation to the people of the state," Lawler said.

He will express appreciation to the trustees for their objectivity and confidence in the students concerning the issue.

Also at the meeting, Buzzy Stubbs and Whitney Durand will outline late improvements in the system of lower courts at UNC.

They will explain the more decisive role now played in campus affairs by the IFC and IDC courts, and give trustees some idea of the new responsibilities of each.

Pete Range, head of International Affairs at UNC, will introduce the idea of a "University Abroad" program to the meeting, and express the need for an "International House" on campus.

The "University Abroad" program would send a number of students abroad to study for one year, with earned credits directly transferable back to Carolina.

An "International House" would essentially be a place on campus where foreign and American students could live and work together.

The programs have been successful at other schools, Range stated, and there is great desire for both at UNC.

Many trustees other than members of the sub-committee, headed by Hill Yarborough, are expected to be on hand for the meeting because of the CU celebration on Saturday.

"These meetings are very important," Lawler stated. "They are the only opportunity students have to present their problems directly to the trustees for consideration.

"They can be very beneficial," he said. "I am very impressed with the results of last year's meeting."

He will also present a request for a meeting this spring to determine the effectiveness of this year's student-trustee discussion, and for two session every year from now on.

The student leaders and trustees will meet this afternoon at 3:45 in the faculty lounge of Morehead Planetarium.

RESEARCH AWARD WINNER

A University physician doing research on a mysterious, inherited bleeding disease has won the 30th annual Ward Burdick Award.

The award for outstanding research in clinical pathology has been conferred on Dr. Kenneth M. Brinkhous, head of the Department of Pathology in the award in 1941 for his work on vitamin K, a vitamin essential for normal blood clotting.

He was co-recipient of the School of Medicine.

What?? A NEGRO!!!

New Member Bugs Council

Kellis Parker, UNC's newest member of the Durham County Citizens' Council, may be slated for a quick blackball from the group organized to promote "racial integrity."

The friction point between the Durham organization and Parker, a UNC senior, seems to be race.

Parker is a Negro.

He believes someone signed his name to a membership list as a practical joke, paid the necessary $2.00 fee and conveniently left out information about Kellis's race.

Parker believes the incident was intended as a practical joke, but the Durham Citizen's Council isn't having too many laughs about it.

Wednesday night, Louis Gill, president of the Citizen's Council, admitted that someone could easily do this, but avowed that the group would never knowingly admit Negroes.

He said the Council planned to take action "to correct this situation."

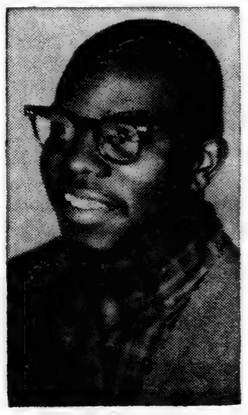
Sebert Spradling, vice chairman of the organization, said as far as the Council's concerned, Parker has never been a member.

He claimed that the Council's charter provided for the prevention of such incidents, but neglected to say whether the charter specifically excluded Negroes.

James Hardy, treasurer of the Council, said there was no place on membership applications for listing a person's race.

Parker said he had failed to advise the Council when he received his membership card and indicated the whole affair was a practical joke.

Council President Gill still found nothing funny about the incident and said, "We're going to find out who signed Parker up. That's the man we're going to deal with."



KELLIS PARKER
. . . New Citizens Councilor

Mme. Nhu & Co. Breeze In

Calls For Moral Aid

By JOEL BULKLEY

RALEIGH — Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu Thursday night called on Americans for moral aid and understanding in the crisis in South Vietnam.

Vietnam's controversial first lady said, in a prepared statement before a packed house in N. C. State's College Union, she had come to the United States to learn a few things about this country and to clarify a few things about her country.

In a plea for more understanding, Mme. Nhu said, "It doesn't help to boo, hiss or beat us. You can only help by telling us what is wrong with us."

The 38-year-old Vietnamese leader claimed Americans don't know the real story in Vietnam and insisted that South Vietnam is winning the war against International Communism.

She cited five facts which she said aren't well known to most Americans: (1) there is absolute religious freedom in South Vietnam; (2) there is no discrimination against religious groups; (3) flags of foreign countries can be flown in Saigon; (4) Buddhist monks who have burned themselves to death in protest of the policies of her brother-in-law, South Vietnam President Ngo Dinh Diem, were victims of excitement; and (5) the Communists are exploiting our people because they are losing the war and are becoming desperate.

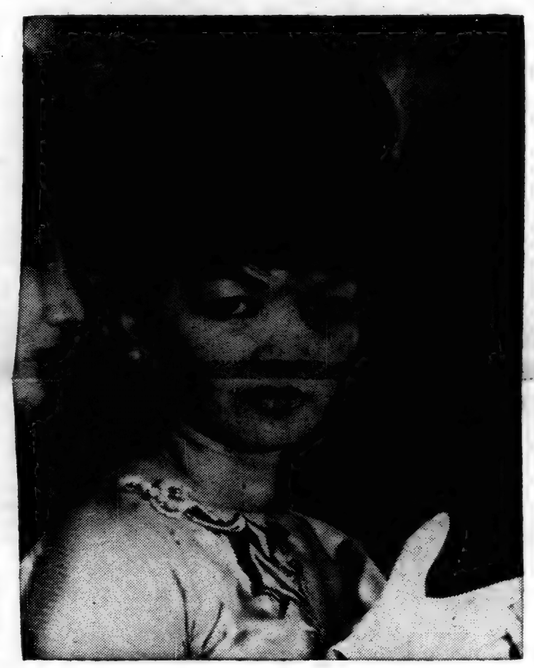
Her family has been criticized for its alleged persecution of Buddhists. Mme. Nhu stated that the religious demonstrations were inspired by Buddhist leaders who are members of the Communist Resistance Movement.

She also denied reports that she had called American soldiers helping in South Vietnam against the Communist Viet Cong guerrilias "soldiers of fortune," adding that she felt this a complimentary term anyway.

She said Sir Winston Churchill often applies it to himself and that it means "a self-made hero."

Sixteen members of the campus chapter of the Student Peace Union and nine members of the local Progressive Labor Club picketed against U. S. foreign policy in Vietnam outside the Student Union Building. No incidents were reported.

Her one-day visit to the Capital City was sponsored by the N. C. State Student Lecturers Committee.



—Photo by Jim Wallace

Vietnam's Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu

Photo by Jim Wallace

Madame Nhu And Daughter Le Thuy At Press Conference

'Like Terry And Pirates'

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK

RALEIGH — It looked like Terry And The Pirates at Raleigh-Durham airport yesterday.

The 50-odd people lounging around the lobby didn't realize it at first. But when the gorgeous Oriental stepped down the ramp off Flight 687, the crowd (now swelled to more than 150) was all out there to see her. And, make no mistake about it, Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, first lady of South Vietnam, is some dish to see.

Variously called "1960's Mistress of Uncertainty" and "The Dragon Lady," Mme. Nhu looked instead like some dancer out of a Flower Drum fantasy as she was hustled to a waiting car and sped to a press conference at N. C. State College.

Both Mme. Nhu and her equally-beautiful daughter, Le Thuy, were oblivious to the 18 placard-carrying demonstrators who marched in protest of the United States policy in South Vietnam.

As her daughter admitted in an impromptu interview later, the wind gave the visitors the most cause for concern.

The mother and daughter act, most glamorous since the Gabors, had serious trouble at the airport keeping their bouffant hairdos in place and the brightly-colored Ao Dais (native costumes of hand-made silk) smoothed down. The confrontation with the wind was the final excitement of the day.

Later, the more than 100 persons (half of them burdened down with cameras) jammed into the ridiculously-small press conference room, found out just how this volatile exotic with the jet-black hair can command so much respect while giving so little herself.

She's the kind of gal who can put you into supreme Ecstasy with a simple little "Go To Hell."

Mme. Nhu is a knockout in an aqua-colored Ao Dais slit on the side from the waist down. Exposed then is a plain white silk sheath, which she continuously played with against the wind.

She wore button-shaped pearl earrings and a matching curved stickpin, which added a Western flavor to the beautiful oriental dress.

Her daughter, a coy but articulate 18-year-old, chose a multi-colored Ao Dais of purple, lavender and pink. A pink ribbon in her hair went very well with the youthful Page Boy cut.

As movie, TV and still cameras whirred and clicked along with the questions, Mme. Nhu seemed puzzled. She looked at her daughter on her left after each question was asked. But the difficulty appeared to be not one of understanding but of acoustics.

The myriad of photographers rushing around in confusion turned the motion-picture style atmosphere from South Pacific to La Dolce Vita. At the end of 20 minutes, she was through, and it was about time, for such startling things had come out of it as:

She was tired.

She had never been South.

Both Nhus wear very little makeup—just lipstick and some light eye shadow. But it's quite enough.

At the airport, a smallish man who escaped the clutches of four Highway Patrolmen to get past the guardrail, said as much.

"Just let me say hello to her," said John Hurt of Raleigh. "I want to show her she has at least one friend out here."

Buddy, make that two.

Students And The System

Interest, Honesty Related

by Pete Wales
Fourth Of Five Articles

Students who admit doing the most cheating are the same ones who report the least interest and belief in the Honor System and its operations, according to last spring's study.

In general students had less respect for the system in proportion to the number of times it had not worked for them.

A relation was also shown between the number of Honor Code violations and the number of campus Code violations. Students who had violated the Honor Code most frequently were the same ones that had violated the Campus Code most frequently.

About 27 per cent of the males reporting frequent violations of the Campus Code said they had also violated the Honor Code often. Nearly 70 per cent of the males who reported no violations of the Campus Code reported none for the Honor Code. The same trend was true among the females.

A direct relation was found between grades and number of violations of the two Codes.

For the Honor Code, 54 per cent of the males and females who were frequent violators reported averages of less than 2.3. Of those who reported no violations, 45 per cent had an average of 2.7 or better.

For the Campus Code, males with higher averages reported fewer violations. But females with higher averages had more violations.

Of the frequent male violators, 56 per cent had an average of 2.3 or less. Of the non-violators, 55 per cent had averages of 2.7 or better.

Of the frequent female violators, 19 per cent had less than a 2.3 average, while 48 per cent of the non-violators had averages of less than 2.3.

For both males and females in all classes, the majority of students reported either "one or two" or "no" violations of the Campus Code. But for both groups, violations increase from freshman to senior year.

The trend does not continue over to the graduates who have fewer violations than the freshmen.

For the Honor Code, almost 40 per cent of the frequent violators believe that the amount of cheating increases between freshman and senior years. Only one-fifth of the non-violators agreed that cheating increased overthe four years.

On the question of the apartment rule, more of the less frequent violators of the Campus Code report disapproval of the rule. Of the more frequent violators of the Code, 77 per cent the females did not approve of the rule.

Slightly larger proportions of of the males and 94 per cent of the Honor Code wanted to do away with the Honor System in favor of proctors. However, the difference from those who had never violated the Code was only two or three percentage points.

The same situation was true among those who had frequently broken the Campus Code. Again there was only a slight difference from the non-violators.

The number of violations of the Honor Codealso had an effect on Honor Code also had an effect on the guesses as to how many other students cheat.

Of the frequent cheaters, 31 per cent guessed that less than 10 per cent o fthe student body had ever cheated.

Of the non-violators, 61 per cent guessed that less than 10 per cent of the student body cheated.

Students were also influenced in this guessing by the number of students they had known who had gone before the Honor Council that year.

Of those who knew no one going before the Council, 57 per cent guessed that less than 10 per cent of the student body cheated.

Of those who knew of nine or more people going before the Council, 30 per cent suspected only 10 per cent or less of the student body for cheating.

Males who report few or no violations of the Campus Code claimed a higher interest in the Honor System than those who had violated frequently.

Among females, however, there was very little difference in interest between those who had violated the Code frequently and those who had not.

Frequent violators have less respect for the Honor System and for the judgment of the Honor Council members than the non-violators. However, a majority of both violators and non-violators said they had "complete respect" or "respect for the most part" for the competence of the Council.

Those violating the Campus Code frequently tend more to feel that more cheating goes on here than at other schools than do non-violators.

Large proportions of those who had never violated the Campus Code replied that they didn't know how UNC compared with other schools with regard to cheating.

Carolina Forum Unsuccessful So Far This Fall

The Carolina Forum has not been as successful as they had hoped in getting speakers to come to the campus.

John Ulfelder, chairman of the Carolina Forum Committee, invited I. Beverly Lake to the University to speak during October, but his schedule had already been filled.

Gov. Wallace of Alabama was scheduled to speak here next Monday, but "our chances are looking bad," said Ulfelder. He feels that they may be able to have him later this year.

The committee is now trying to contact Senator Goldwater. He will be in Greensboro on Feb. 28 and 29 for the Young Republicans Club meeting. Ulfelder hopes that he will be able to speak on the campus at that time.

"We have high hopes that Harry S. Truman will be able to come to our campus this year," said Ulfelder. He was planning to speak here last year, but

If Truman is able to come, he will be here for two or three days to visit classes, have informal talks with students and make formal speeches.

"We feel that this is closer in line with what a forum should be . . . getting students to talk with Truman informally," said Ulfelder.

MURALS

Everett Dorm edged by NROTC and Law School nosed out the Med School to win their respective divisions in the Intramural Track Meet Thursday afternoon. The fraternity championship went to the Phi Delts.

Goldwater To Speak To State GOP

GREENSBORO (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a leading contender for the GOP presidential nomination, has accepted an invitation to address the N. C. State GOP convention here Feb. 29.

Charles J. Mitchell, arrangements committee chairman for the Feb. 28-29 convention, said Monday he would announce within two weeks the name of another leading Republican who will appear with Goldwater on the program.

"The fact that 'Mr. Republican' has accepted the North Carolina GOP's invitation to the convention is conclusive proof to everyone familiar with practical politics that two-party government is not just on the way in North Carolina," Mitchell said. "It has arrived."

Volume 72, Number 24 Friday, October 18, 1963

The Daily Tar Heel

70 Years of Editorial Freedom

Offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Telephone number: Editorial, sports, news — 942-3112. Business, circulation, advertising — 942-2138. Address: Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Entered as 2nd class matter at the Post Office in Chapel Hill, N. C., pursuant to Act of March 3, 1870.
Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year.

Published daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations, throughout the academic year by the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Company, Inc., 501 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL is a subscriber to United Press International and utilizes the services of the University News Bureau.

The Color Of The Citizens Council

A dark shadow has appeared on the horizon for the Durham Citizens Council. Their lily-white tone is a bit shaded since Kellis Parker, a Negro student at UNC, revealed that he is a member of that group.

Parker isn't quite sure how his membership came about, but speculates that a friend signed him up as a joke. We think it's a pretty funny joke, but apparently the humor of the situation is lost on the council. Louis Gill, council president, isn't laughing, and says they are out to get the prankster who signed Parker up.

As for Parker's status in the organization, Sebert Sprading, vice chairman of the council, said that as far as he was concerned Parker had never been a member. Parker's membership card and literature on council recruiting tend to contradict Sprading, but then he should know who the members are and who they aren't.

Before going into hiding for the rest of the week, Parker said, "It is significant that they've taken the initiative to integrate their own group . . . I extend an invitation to all my fellow members of the Durham Citizens Council to participate in the activities of CURED (Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity) and the NAACP."

We feel that the Citizens Council has taken a giant step in the right direction in saying that Parker has never been a member. These people have organized a group of forward thinking men to help maintain racial integrity, and we feel it is criminal for some student to attempt to subvert the principals of this high-minded group. Here they are, bravely fighting civilization, desperately attempting to discredit the lessons of history for the good of us all, and lo and behold they find a traitor in their midst. Is there no sanctuary from the onrushing tide of integration? Is no man safe? Is all lost to the black plague which is sweeping the country; forced on us by those nine Communists on the Supreme Court?

That would appear to be the case. The tragedies of everyday life are overwhelming, and the good Citizens Council has been made the butt of a most horrible joke. We can only weep for their misfortune.

Crocodile tears.

Our First Chance May Be Our Last One

For the benefit of those students whose interest in the arts is great, but whose pocketbooks are small, the Carolina Playmakers has arranged a special student price of $1.00 and a special student night for the opening performance of "Little Mary Sunshine" this Tuesday.

If a full house of 330 students shows up for the performance, the Playmakers plan to continue the policy for the remainder of the season. A season ticket for the remaining four plays will be sold, probably at an even lower reduction.

Originally intended to be a student theatre and dramatic workshop for the campus, the Playmakers have become less and less vital to the students over the years. Townspeople fill all the seats at the productions, and a recent survey showed that last year only about 50 students, or one-half of one percent of the total student body, bought season tickets and attended the productions regularly.

While students all over the world consider theatre-going an essential part of their educational experience, for some reason students at Chapel Hill seem to completely overlook this dimension of art, this particular interpretation of reality.

We are lucky to have an active student theatre at our University, and it has now been made financially accessible to every student. Ticket sales at Y-court and Lenoir Hall have been encouraging, but not overwhelming. The perpetuation of this opportunity depends on its initial success, so let's not miss our chance.

Iron Hand Squeezes Man Of The Cloth

As might be expected, Senate President Clarence Stone started the special session of the Legislature with a bang.

He fired the Rev. E. C. Durham as Senate Chaplain Monday. Durham had held the position for 14 years, and was completely unable to explain his firing.

"I don't know what his motive was" Durham said, but he thought he might have offended Senator Stone and Senator Tom White of Lenoir by not accepting their suggestions for the content of his morning prayers during the regular session.

On one occasion the Chaplain did read a prayer given him by Senator White which was critical of the Supreme Court Decision on school prayers.

Everyone knows that Senator Stone runs the Senate with a iron fist, but if he wants an editorial comment each morning why doesn't he ask his philosophical bedmate Jesse Helms to deliver a politically spiced invocation each morning. Mr. Helms should be more than willing to accept suggestions from Senators Stone and White, since they, like him, seem to be from another place in another time.

We are not too sure how close the Senate would get to God that way, but that doesn't seem to be bothering Senator Stone at the moment anyway. As a matter of fact, nothing seems to bother him as long as he gets his way and no one is presumptous enough to raise a voice against him.

A Weakly Suggestion From The Weekly

Not long ago the Chapel Hill Weekly came up with an editorial suggesting that the University should further restrict the use of cars to students because the parking problem in town is so severe, and is getting out of hand. The Weekly didn't actually say how the University should apply the restrictions, but just that since the town had a problem, the students should be penalized.

Since the Weekly didn't come up with a solid plan, and we agree that there is a problem, we would like to offer ours.

Driving is obviously necessary for most townspeople, and it would be foolish to restrict it, so we suggest that everyone be allowed to drive as much as he desires, but that townspeople not be allowed to park. This would allow them full use of their automobiles to conduct business, run errands, visit beer halls or deliver newspapers, and at the same time would completely solve the parking problem which now exists.

With a little good publicity and some signs placed on the outskirts of town, Chapel Hill could really become known as a "town on the move."

Letters

The Daily Tar Heel solicits and is happy to print any letter-to-the-editor written by a member of the University community, so long as it is free of slanderous and libelous remarks.

DH offices are on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Edit page material should be turned in two-to-three days before publication is desired.

No letters will be edited in any way, unless they are unreasonably long. Letters must be typed and triple-spaced.

A Summer In Washington

A Close Look At Our Congress

By GARY BLANCHARD

(Ed. note—Blanchard was one of five UNC students who served as Congressional Interns last summer. The other four were Bob Spearman, Stu Eizenstat, Vance Barron and John Ulfelder. The annual program is sponsored by the UNC Political Science Dept.)

Criticizing Congress has become one of America's leading spectator sports.

Not that this is anything new. Telling "those damn fools down in Washington where to get off" has been one of our national preoccupations since the Republic was formed.

But with the advent of greatly increased leisure time, the communications explosion, and the bevy of vital issues which increasingly dot the Congressional docket, the number of Monday-morning Congressional quarterbacks is at an all-time high.

Thus, when a young interested student of public affairs is presented with the opportunity to spend the summer working in Congress, he grabs it eagerly.

"Here is a priceless opportunity to get a look at this institution close-up," he thinks. "Now I can see if it is as bad as its critics say it is."

By the time he arrives in Washington, the student is prepared for the worst, although he knows Congress can't be as bad as all that. By the end of the summer, however, he realizes he was both right and wrong in his initial assessment of the place. In some ways it is that bad; in others, it isn't.

The judgment is based on a potpourri of information, experiences and impressions gathered against a background of three years of formal instruction in the Liberal Arts.

The student, in company with several colleagues, has spent the summer working in a Congressman's office doing everything from licking stamps to writing press releases and investigating the background of legislation.

He has gone to committee meetings on a variety of subjects, read several books about the Congress, and talked with and to political professionals of every variety . . . .

Journalists such as the Alsops, Marquis Childs, C. P. Trussell and Charles Bartlett.

Representatives such as John Lindsay (R-NY), Frank Thompson (D-NJ), Thomas Curtis (R-Mo.) and L. H. Fountain (D-NC).

Senators such as Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), Joseph Clark (D-Pa.) and Hugh Scott (R-Pa.).

Presidential aides such as Theodore Sorenson and Arthur Schlesinger.

Plus scores of lobbyists, staff people and others from the Supreme Court to the State Department.

To this student, Washington is no longer just a sprawling city full of historical landmarks, imposing buildings and impressive institutions.

It is a great constitutional cauldron bubbling with political interests of every variety; interests which represent the needs and desires of people in every nook of the country, every cranny of the world; interests which impose enormous moral and intellectual responsibilities upon the men and women who man our national government, and especially upon the men and women who man the Congress, where those interests must ultimately be resolved and given direction.

By the same token, Congressmen no longer seem only vainglorious seekers-after-glory, intent only upon straddling issues wherever possible. Instead they are seen as human gears, meshing the complex and often conflicting interests of their districts and states with those of other areas, the nation, and the world. And an honest accounting shows that most Congressmen are scrupulously honest, conscientious and sincere in their efforts, positions, and statements. But . . .

It is a big "but", and a dangerous one, because college students are notoriously idealistic, and any criticism of Congress based solely on book learning and a modicum of practical experience is very apt to be invalid.

Nevertheless the "buts" are there and have been examined at length with an eye to their validity. Here are some of them, along with a few general observations:

—Too many Congressmen of both parties are the prisoners of out-dated and unrealistic philosophies, resulting in the Congress not being a creative partner in the great enterprise of self-government but instead a grudging accomplice.

For example, it is inevitable that government will continue to grow as our population expands, our technology and industry diversify, and our society becomes increasingly interdependent.

So simply being "against big government" is no longer any good. Big government is here to stay. The problem is to keep governmental growth and operation orderly and intentional, and to keep the government itself responsible and responsive to the people. Yet this glaring fact of life has still to penetrate many Congressional minds.

—There is a general lack of leadership, of "political guts," among too many Congressmen. There are the members who perpetually "run scared." If the country is on dead-center, as many persons allege, then Congressmen have a duty to kick it in the seat. Instead, too many Congressmen pander to this reputed indecisiveness of the electorate, preoccupied not with what they believe is realistically best or necessary, but with what they think their votes will "buy."

The trouble with this is that it leads such Congressmen to continually underestimate their constituents. This in turn robs politics of its great educational potential, and robs the country of progress. In short, more Congressmen should be leading their constituents rather than merely following them.

—It may seem illogical to add that most Congressmen do represent—in the sense of being like—the people who elect them. That is, they are of the same general mold.

However, it is important to note that the present Congressmen are not necessarily the best Senators and Representatives their voters could have in Congress. And it is equally important to note that they represent the voters of their State and District, not necessarily all of the people in it. Hence the dramatic need for all qualified citizens to vote, to express their interests at the polls. Otherwise they stand an excellent chance of going inadequately represented in Congress. This is especially true with regard to the Negro's drive for equality.

—Certain issues, such as Civil Rights, are so all-important in certain areas of the country that Congressmen from those areas cannot be said to be representative on those issues so much as they are captives of them. Generally, there is only one way they can vote on such issues. Certainly many of them vote that way out of conviction, simply because they are representative of their area.

But even if they feel differently about the matter, they usually can't say so openly without risking political suicide. Here appears one of the crowning virtues of Congress: There are always some members who are in a position to be relatively objective about the issue in question. They can and do exert a moderating influence on their more emotionally involved colleagues.

—Another in a long series of rows between members of the House and the Senate is in the offing, as the Senate continues to grow in popular prominence. Members of the House have an acute feeling of unappreciation which threatens to become worse.

For example, Representatives bitterly resent the fact that the press often gives far greater weight, or play, to one Senator's statement than it does to an action of the entire House of Representatives. Many Representatives openly feel that they are "just going through the motions" when they debate on the House floor—that no one is really listening.

House members realize this is due in part to the fact that there are 435 of them and only 100 Senators; therefore the actions of a Senator are numerically and otherwise more important than those of a Representative. But the Representatives feel they are more reflective of the country in that they are elected every two years while Senators have six-year terms.

And the tensions continue to grow.

—Of all the dangers facing America, none is more fearsome than the incrustation of the spirit that motivated our national origin. Yet such incrustation is evident in the actions of many Congressmen, who seem to place more emphasis upon that which divides us at the expense of that which unites us.

And if, as many Congressmen an dothers allege, the Congress has declined in power and prestige, surely it is due in large measure to this hardening of moral and intellectual arteries, plus a few procedural ones.

There are many ways in which the situation can be remedied. Congressional reforms are one way; reforms such as:

Limitations on the number of terms a member of Congress can serve.

Modification of the Seniority System so that length of service is not the sole factor determining committee chairmanships and assignments.

Making the House Rules Committee more responsive to the leadership.

Forcing a period of germaneness in Senate debate and curbing that body's filibuster rules.

Raising Congressional salaries (so members can at least try to live off what they are paid).

And extending Representatives terms from two years to four on a staggered basis.

But such actions, however essential, will not alone suffice to regenerate the power and prestige of the Congress. New blood is needed; new ideas; new perspectives. More able men must be willing to offer themselves for public office and thereby give the voters more of a choice than they perhaps had before. In this connection, something drastic must be done to lower the enormous cost of campaigning. At present politics is far too much of a rich man's club, or, in some cases, a club of poor men with rich friends.

Overall, the Congress and the country must be re-imbued with a sense of adventure, with the belief that we have a noble destiny which cannot be attained if we persist in pointing to the forms of old virtues while neglecting to apply their spirits to the problems of today. We must regain our sense of personal responsibility, the lack of which is reflected in the remarks of Congressmen who privately admit that they agree such and such a measure —say, trade with Yugoslavia and Poland—is necessary, but that they don't dare vote for it.

As a nation fairly well reflected in its Congress, we must cease to be obsessed with the so-called tried and true methods. We must recognize such methods for what they are: A foundation to build upon, with much construction still to be accomplished.

—Lastly, there is the District of Columbia, seat and creature of the Congress. Its maladministration by the House District Committee is an open scandal. Southerners reflecting 19th century conservative ideas dominate the committee and hamstring most efforts to meet the city's fundamental problems.

Inadequate social, educational and housing facilities combine to breed slums filled with apathetic youngsters facing a bleak future. The result is juvenile delinquency and crime on an alarming scale, although not nearly so bad as several national magazines and many damagogues would have the country believe.

The obvious crying need is for some system of representative government for Washington. Otherwise the residents will continue to be powerless to better their living and working conditions and to instill a sense of community pride amongst themselves.

The factor preventing such remedial action as Home Rule for the District is the fear of old-line white Southerners on and off the District Committee that Negroes, who constitute more than half of the city's population, will get control of the city and it will immediately go to pot.

Such a lack of democracy in the capitol of the world's greatest democracy is exceedingly difficult to understand.

These then are the buts and general observations of a student who has weathered a summer of Congress in Washington. As was noted at the beginning, they point to the inescapable conclusion that Congress is not so bad as many say it is, but it is in dire need of repairs. However, it is a fairly accurate reflection of the country, and no basic improvements will be forthcoming until more citizens show by word and deed that they want such improvements made.

Note

"A Close Look at Our Congress" is the first in a series of reports from students who participated in different programs this summer.

Another report will soon follow from Hugo Spechar, campus coordinator for The National Student Association, on the NSA Congress this summer.

"Somehow, This Campaign Just Doesn't Have The Old Zing"

Never Had It So Good

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

The big-time spenders of the taxpayers' dollars never had it so good in peacetime as during the past three months. These months comprise the first quarter of the 1964 fiscal year.

Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon must have been greatly cheered by the Treasury's first quarter spending figures. Dillon believes big-time spending and Treasury deficits are good business for everybody including the common man and, of course, the Democratic party.

If Dillon is right about that, things will be looking up for the Democrats as they go into the 1964 presidential campaign—and for the common man. Dillon, the Democrats and the common man should rest easy. They are assured of another big fat deficit when the books close next June 30 on fiscal '64.

Some citizens will not be as enthusiastic as Secretary Dillon about the first quatrer Treasury figures. There will be citizens with life insurance policies, pensions, money in the bank and other assets measured in terms of U. S. dollars. These big fat deficits gradually are creating a currency inflation that sweats the dollar of its purchasing power.

The U.S. dollar was worth 45.6 cents in October, 1962, in comparison with its purchasing power in 1939. When the Bureau of Labor Statistics publishes its consumer price index for October of this year, the dollar bill will have slumped a little to about 45 cents. Not much perhaps, but overall it adds up to 55 cents in 24 years.

At that rate we will have a two-bit dollar in 10 years or so and then a dollar worth a dime, a nickel and a penny. At that point the pensioners, the prudent savers, the family collecting life insurance on a breadwinner—all of these are likely to be out in the woods fighting the squirrels for nuts.

The Treasury does not regularly ublish figures for expenditures and receipts. It did at one time on a daily basis. What is daily now is an accounting of "withdrawals" from and "deposits" in the Treasury. These figures roughly represent expenditures and tax revenue. The daily figure also includes the public debt, the gold balance and some additional matter, including figures for the same period in the last previous year. There is a lag of several days.

Thus, the Treasury has reported that as of Sept. 30, 1963, withdrawals since June 1 were $31.3 billion compared with $29.4 billion in 1962. Deposits were $28.9 billion so far this year and $26.8 last. Since Sept. 30, 1962, the public debt increased by $7.3 billion to $306.9 billion, a record that should encourage Secretary Dillon, if not the Democratic party.

The U. S. gold hoard, meantime, had shrunk since Sept. 30, 1962 by $485 million to $15.5 billion, a statistic that will encourage nobody unless, perhaps, it be Nikita Khrushchev.

The Treasury probably will collect more than $100 billion in taxes in this fiscal year. But that won't be enough to pay the bills incurred by the politicians in behalf of the U. S. government. Deposits so far in this fiscal year are more than $2 billion greater than in the like period last year. But the spenders still are able to get rid of the dollars faster than they roll into the Treasury.

It is a fact little noted that most of these tax dollars are from the pockets of the little fellows, the common man. The little guys will find out about that some day.

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date. Lost and Found notices will run on Wednesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

UNC Philosophy Colloquium — 8 p.m. . . . 213 Caldwell Hall, speaker Dr. Francis Parker, "Traditional Reason and Modern Reason."

Yack Beauty Contest—names of all entries for the Yack Beauty Contest must be in the Yack Office by Oct. 21. Entry fees in by Oct. 22.

Baptist Student Union Supper— Study — 5:45 p.m. . . . Student Center, 151 E. Rosemary St., four discussion groups.

Beta Gamma Sigma — 4 p.m., Faculty Seminar Room, Carroll Hall.

Yack Pictures—1-6 p.m., basement of GM, for sophomores, pharmacy students and late juniors, through Fri.

Carolina Inn Cafeteria — needs boys to work either part-time or regular shifts in the cafeteria. Interested boys should either come by the Inn during meal hours or call Bill Graham at 942-6989.

Flu Shots — 9-11:30, 2-5, Mon. thru Fri., Student Health Center in Memorial Hospital. $1 charge.

Carolina Christian Fellowship — 6 p.m. . . . supper meeting upstairs Lenoir, Rev. Jim Raines will speak on "Basic Christianity: Part 1—The Human Dilemma."

Hillel Foundation—8 p.m., Hillel House, Sabbath services and program. Dr. Samuel S. Hill, chairman of UNC Rel. Dept. will speak.

Wesley Foundation—6 p.m., Wesley House, 214 Pittsboro St., for reservations call 942-2152 by 2 p.m., Fri.

RTVMP Open House—9 a.m.-6 p.m., today and Sat., new quarters Swain Hall, informal.

United World Federalists — 6:30 p.m., Friends Meeting House, covered-dish supper and talk by Susan Smith.

Dr. Theodor Sterling — 8 p.m., ..clinic. auditorium. of UNC School of Med., lecture on Social Evening — 8 p.m., Community Church, games, square dancing, refreshments, bring musical instruments.

MOVIES

Carolina—A Majority of One

Free Flick—Horizontal Lieutenant.

Varsity—This Sporting Life

GM Free Flick for Sat. has been changed from One-Eyed Jacks to Cat on a Hot Tin Roof.

FUTURE

Math Colloquium—4 p.m., Oct. 25, 383 Phillips, speaker F. V. Atkinson, "Multivariate Sturm-Liouville Theory."

Wesley Foundation, Sun. Common Meeting—6:30 p.m., basement of University Methodist Church, High Noon will be shown.

Hillel Foundation — 4:30 p.m., Sun., Hillel House, reception for Prof. Cyrus Gordon, 5:30 p.m., dinner program.

Golf Club—1 p.m., Mon., Women's Gym.

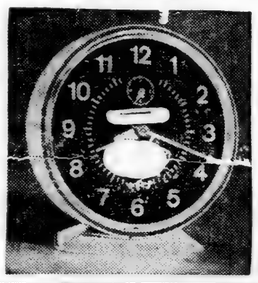
Mademoiselle Magazine Tea — 4-5 p.m. Sun., Roland Parker Lounge. for all women interested in their college board contest.

MANN'S
DRUG STORE
WEEKEND SPECIALS
Eastgate Shopping Center — Phone 942-2810

• TRANSISTOR RADIOS •
REALTONE MELODY
3-BAND PORTABLE 10 TRANSISTORS

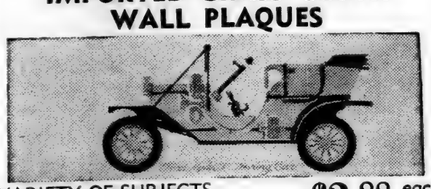
Here's the FM/AM radio receiver that is the talk of the nation! Dyna-Ratio circuitry ... DRIFT-FREE Slide-rule tuning ...
DRIFT-FREE RECEPTION
Gift boxed with leather case, earphone and 4 - "AA" penlight batteries ... Black & Teal Blue.
For Only $29.88

WEST CLOX
ALARM CLOCK


Mascot key wound alarm – streamline case – easy to read dial – 4½ in. high
3.49 Value
1.99 each

CERAMIC
BREWMASTER
Hot water in a jiffy for your instant coffee, tea . . .

For Only $2.88 each

Size 29" x 13" Complete with Metal Hangers
IMPORTED GRASS CLOTH WALL PLAQUES


VARIETY OF SUBJECTS FOR ONLY ..... $2.88 each

CON-FORM
BABY-SEAT
- Adjustable, removable metal stand locks in 4-position slots on back of seat . . . changes angle of support as baby grows older.
- 72" length of durable woven cord included with each seat for tying to chair back or car back rest.

4.95 Value
$2.88 each

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING
HONORABLE SCREEN SMASH!

ROSALIND RUSSELL & ALEC GUINNESS
A MAJORITY of ONE
A MERVYN LeROY PRODUCTION
TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.

FOR THIS BIG WEEKEND TAKE YOUR DATE TO FOR CAROLINA
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
Ledbetter Pickard
STATIONERS

